The Art of Giving.

Rev. Dr. Cuyler tells the following anec when I brought them down! Funny I didn't dote in his own inimitable and effective way:
"A poor old Scotch woman, having no bread, knelt on the floor of her little cabin, eight years before my eyes. Well, the first thing I do tomerrow morning is to go up In the attic and get that cup. Now I know it's gone; it seems kind of lonesome without it. I wonder if I couldn't get it to-night. I am sure I could sleep better if I had it. I know what James and Mary would say, that I was crazy to go over those attic stairs after dark the long to go over those attic stairs after dark the long to go over those attic stairs after dark the long to go over those attic stairs after dark the long the force of her little cabin, built coles gainst the floor of her little cabin, built coles against the floor of her little cabin, built coles against the focks of a mountain side, and prayed for some. A roguish boy of the neighborhood chancing to pass that way, heard her voice, and listened at the door. He hurried home, and quickly returned with a loaf, ran up on the rocks, and so upon the cabin roof, and tossed the bread down the smokeles chimney. It rolled from the empty fireplace to the chair beside which the old woman still knelt, earnestly praying. crazy to go over those attic stairs after dark the old woman still knelt, earnestly praying. There was a moment's pause, and then her thanksgiving succeeded supplication."
"'Ye need na' be thankin' the Lord for Grandma gradually neared the door, and and at last with a firm step she started, ful servant when used as fuelfor steam generators.

The attic stairs were narrow and steep, and at no time did the family care to have Grandma go over them. Such a thing as her going up after dark had never occurred to the below, "it was the Lord that sent it, if the devil brought it."

It was the old story of fore pretty Mary Emerson in the proscenium Hamburg recently, the ladies of the party alone.

One evening as Grandma laid down her Bible an old yellow stained letter fluttered out, which she picked up and carefully read the faded writing, while tears gathered in her eyes.

A New Departure.

In composer singer counted his manuscript and answered, "Sixty-seven."

"All right, then," said the clarinetist, "you go ahead and sing your song for sixty-seven measures; then open your mouth as if you were going to lift the roof and keep still. I'll do the rest. Here, let me see your copy."

Feverish with excitement, Mollenhauer examined the song, committing its final measures to memory. Charley saw what he intended to do, and, though the singer was cheered, he was yet very nervous. What if he should come in a half measure to soon or a measure too late? What if everybody should tumble—

He was urging those doubts on the clarinetist when I sent a callboy to tell him that it was bis turn. I wondered, too, why Gus Mollenhauer went to his place just back of the violas. Gus was never known to sit on the stage when he had nothing to do, and there was no part for him in Norton's song. Nevertheless I saw Gus take up his B flat clarinet and test the tune of it to the A that Schreiner was scraping on his fiddle.

Just before the climax I saw him turn suddenly toward Miss Emerson's box, and I saw her smile encouragingly upon him. I happened also to glance at Schreiner, who was sawing away decorously, looking out of the corners of his eyes at his fellow performers. There was a smile on Schreiner's face, too, but I thought nothing of it till it changed to an expression of amazement and unmistakable chagrin. has just put himself on record as in favor of the abolition of that body as a factor in our provincial government. Mr. Armstrong has just been nominated to the council and the sudden expression of his views constitutes rather a cool greeting to the members who have grown old in the service. However the local senators can afford to be magnamin ous since they can readily muster a two-thirds majority in favor of continuing in sometimes hasty and unwise legislation favored by the younger and more intensely partizan members of the house of assembly. The principal reason why the local upper and is urged by a large portion of the province is maintaining a staff of legislators entirely out of proportion to the amount of business which it is called upon to transact. The truth of an excessive cost of government is apparent but it may be fairly argued that could be abated quite as effectively as by the abolition of the legislative council. There is the house of assembly. "The plum crop was very abundant in localities where the trees were carefully cultivated, and is estimated at 20,000 to 30,000 bushels, but prices in most cases barely raid expenses, and only those who grow, packed and marketed carefully made a profit. Pears and small fruits were an average crop and fairly profitable."

"This Association since its formation has won 16 medals in all the great expotitions of the world, and our apples have always been awarded a prize where they have been exhibited in fair competition with the world. As this industry increases we must find new markets and keep our fruit before the world in every large exposition; and we must make a good exhibit in Leadon this year and in Paris in 1900. Our exhibit in Berlin in 1896 first introduced Canadian apples there and $5 and $7 per barrel clear has been received for consignments of Canadian apples there this year."

Head, 17½ inches; staves, between crezen, 28½; bitge, 64 inches, outside."

"As this association is provincial and intended to promote fruit culture all over the province some means should be employed to reach all the people, and if our county vice presidents would each form a county association of eyen ten or five members, and meet and discuss fruit growing, they would soon create an interest and promote a profitable industry in every county, and such mission work would be amply rewarded in this life." this life."

We had the pleasure of a visit from an officer of the Ioland Revenue Department on Wednesday of last week. He turned the contents of a so-called beer shop into the gutter. This place has caused a great deal of noise, as well as anxiety, for some time past.

On the afternoon of the same day the house on the farm of J. R. Hall, two and a half miles out of town, was burned to the ground. The family that were living in the house saved a part of their goods. E. J. Elliott, of Clarence, had 150 barrels of Nonpareil apples stored in the celler, 100 of which were baked. More might have been saved if the wind had been in almost any other quarter, but the fire was blowing on the barn, and the men had all that they could do to keep that building from burning. The water ran short, and they had to use snow. Mr. Hall lost all of his potatoes and roots. Too much praise cannot be given to the men who fought the fire. There was one colored man mand James Brothers, very small in stature, but a big man in a fire, who went down into the cellar with fire all around him, and amid blinding smoke hooked on to 50 barrels of apples; when they came out the barrels were on fire, but he came out without a burnt finger. He should be rewarded.

The doctor tells us that this is his only mode of conveyance, that he keeps no horse, that there are but two or three miles at the Bay over which a carriage could be conveyed, and then at a speed not much faster than a walk. Horses, we are told, are indeed very rare and are kept only for hauling of wood, and for the herrings over the ice in the winter from the holes made for the purpose of fishing. A gentleman gives us an essay upon the horse, composed at one of the schools recently. We are confident that it must have produced a profound sensation upon the fellow schoolmates.

Pains in the Foot and Limb-A Complete Cure Accomplished by Hood's Sarsaparilla. "For a number of years I was afflicted with acute rheumatism in my left side and all the way down my limb into my foot. I live five blocks from my work and had to stop and rest several times in going and coming. I could get no relief from my trouble and was on the point of giving up my job when I happened to hear of Hood's Sarsaparilla. I purchased a bottle of this medicine and a vial of Hood's Pills and began taking them. Before I had half finished them I was relieved and it was not long before I was completely cured. I never lose an opportunity to praise Hood's Sarsaparilla, for my cure meant a great deal to me, as I have a family and must always be at my post." To Prevent Premature Burials.

A bill has been presented in the legislature at Albany, N. Y., which has for its object the prevention of premature burials, and of a doubt that death has actually taken place. It provides that in cities or places where there are 100 or more interments each cemetery shall have a mortuary or mortuarwhich shall provide rooms of sufficient number to enable every body that is received to be placed and kept therein a certain time.

The mortuary shall be constructed of stone, brick or metal, each room to be at least ten feet in length by six in width and ten feet in height; with a door at least six and one-half feet high by four feet wide. Over the door shall be a transom kent open at all hours, and the door shall be kept tantly unlocked. Permission to inspecthe body deposited shall be given at all hours of the day to the relatives and friends of the deceased, provided that the officer may refuse to permit more than fifteen per sons in one day to inspect the body. No body shall be received unless acc panied by a statement from an attending physician or coroner as to whether or r

Cigarettes. Suppose a boy has a lot of cigarettes and smokes a few of them every day. Is there any injury in this? I can tell you, for I have had such boys as patients. Such smoking, even in so called moderation (as if there were any such thing as moderation in stimulants for the young!) will do three things for him: 1. It will run his pulse up to one hundred or more per minute. 2. It will reduce his weight below the healthy standard. 3. It will reduce his strength and general vitality, as will appear in his pale complexion and his diminished appetite. Cigarette smoking is one of the worst habits phys ically that a boy can form. It injures the heart and digestion, and it tends to check the growth. It gives a lad false and silly notions, and does not bring him into good

Fruit trees of any kind frequently grow with great luxuriance. In this they are usually unfruitful. No tree commences to flower and fruit until its vegetative exuberance has been somewhat checked. Those who understand the art of fruit culture thoroughly can bring these way ward trees into a straighter line of duty by root pruning them. It is affected by digging a trench around the tree and then filling it up with the earth that has been thrown out. This cutting off the ends of the roots causes check to the extreme vigor, and the result is the production of flowers instead of branches. The distance from the trunk that the trench should be dug will, of course, depend upon the age and size of the tree, as also its ratio of luxuriance The aim should be to dig so as to cut off about one third of its roots. The pear, as well as other fruit trees, is particularly be efitted by root pruning. In recommending Monthly, says it can be carried out at an

than it can anywhere else, and even to this day the depth of snow in the woods is in country districts the only recognized measure of the depth of the snowfall. There is a great advantage to the trees having this uniform depth of snow all around them. It prevents deep freezing of the soil, and in many cases prevents it from freezing at all, as there is always a bed of more or less decayed leaves under the snow, and these hold agood deal of air which prevents the descent of the cold. In most cases when a forest becomes so thinned that winds will blow the snow in heaps, some of the older trees will begin to die out. In childhood the sleep is somewhat disturbed by what are called night terrors. A child that has gone to bed apparently wel and for an hour or two has slept soundly, or perhaps been slightly restless, suddenly starts with a piercing cry.

He is found, seemingly wide awake, sit ting up in bed or standing in the middle of the room, trembling, screaming and looking tently at some imaginary object. His skin is moist and his hands clutch each other or anything within reach, and when spoken to he does not appear to understand He calls for his mother or nurse, but does not know them when they come, and often alternately clings to and repulses them. After a time, lasting from a few minutes to an hour, or even longer, the child recognizes those about him, and gradually falls into a sleep from which he does not awake
