BLOSSOM SUNDAY IN GRAND PRE.

Charming Word-Picture of One of the Beauty Spots of the Valley by Young Halifax Journalist.

(By Miss Annie Campbell Huestis, in the Halifax Chronicle.)

Once upon a time, we thought that if we ever stood at the summit of this hill, at the very tip of the tumbled fir, we could look over the edge of the earth, and see the other worlds, and, putting up a hand, could touch a star. Now, at last, after some years, we have climbed it, only to see from its crest other hills as high and mysterious, and a sky no nearer than it used to be. So we know, now, that the pleasure of climbing is not in standing on the heights at last, but in looking backward over the way we came, and seeing where a difficult path led off to or through an enchanted land.

The wind that blows by your window, at five o'clock in the morning, is like no other wind, at any time of day or night. If you go to sleep again in spite of it, it will be less friendly when it comes to-morrow. And, morning by morning, its voice will grow so faint that at last you will forget you even heard it.

So, if you are a sluggard, it leaves you—in Biblical fashion, and at your convenience—to consider the ways of the exasperating ant, and to such wisdom as that methodical insect can teach you—and then goes blowing off a blithe and irrational breeze to the Pagan woods, the clustering, leafless hills, the paths that lead everywhere and nowhere, the rush and hush and fleeting magic of early morning. It calls you through the dappled halls, out of the open door into the bright air, and if you have "ears to hear," you will rise and follow. It is so still without, that you almost think that all the world is sleeping, but the birds and you, and yet so full of heavenly sound that the wonder is that all the heavens do not start broad awake, and run to the window to see who called.

It is a long and tiring climb, and your feet are very wet, but what does that matter? For here you are at last on the old French hill, far from sheltering roof and prisoning wall—the only thing beside you your silent shadow on the grass—the only thing above you the friendly sky. The only voice, from far or near, the calling wind. You look down at the houses, with their lazy, smokeless chimneys, and do not pity the sleeping people. The early morning world will be waiting here for them, when they are wise enough to wish for it. You look another way, toward where you know a quiet graveyard is, where some whom you know once, are lying very still this sunny morning; and for one Pagan moment you feel that they have lost all, and are forever blind to all that you are seeing. "Weep for the dead, for light hath faded from them," and the young grass, from field to field, is wet as if with tears.

It is Blossom Sunday, and Grand Pre Valley, from end to end, is white with bloom. They flock the brook with straying petals; they change the red-brown roads to a fairy path-way, from orchard to orchard, they fill the air with scent of flowers. Like falling snow, they drift through the vanishing shadows; and through the fields, where the wind has blown them together, they make a narrow silver way, as if an angel, walking in the darkness there, had left a trail of light.

From here, we can see the river, where the English ships waited to carry the Acadian exiles to strange shores, and the place where their little village stood. Nothing is left of the cozy French town but an old well, a few willows, a weaver of two.

The chimneys begin to smoke; the doors are opening, and Grand Pre is stirring. Everything, as far as eye can see, is very modern, and Protestant and British-Canadian, and the trouble of 1755, seems a bad dream. "It is not a dream," say the old willows, far off, near the dykes. "The shadow that we cast this morning fell as darkly here, more than a hundred years ago. We saw it all. We know."—It is not dream, says forsaken well, built by humble, hopeful hands, and the

Henry Samuel, who has lived in South Africa ever since he was a "boy in his teens," and that a long time ago, in the course of an article in last Empire Review, on "How to Keep South Africa," says:

"After the war the Boers, like the brave sensible men they are, acknowledged themselves beaten. Both sides had fought hard and suffered terribly. But one side must win in the long run, and it was not the Boers. In such circumstances the people were not unwilling to be in the position of Crown Colonies. Indeed, for three years after the war matters throughout South Africa promised to settle into satisfactory working order. * * * The Boers went back to their farms and the British settlers were anticipating good returns for their work. * * * Then came the change of government at Westminster. And the fatal movement set in at once. The Boers knew that from the days of Gladstone they had been the pets of the Radicals, and the tactics that had already hampered the progressive movements of the authorities were promptly redoubled. Lord Milner's position was made almost untenable, and opposition dogged the efforts of the Prime Minister of the Cape Colony. The inevitable happened with the introduction of the Transvaal government. An extraordinary arrangement was made by which the British were voted and in a few months the Boers held every position of power throughout the last of the old British government which threw away all the advantages of a great and successful war, speedily brought the country to such a state that the country may be saved by overwhelming the Boers with prosperity. To attain this end "the British must pour out money as they have poured out blood." They must send men, they must send money. They must teach the Boers and others scientific farming, they must fill the country with such productiveness and prosperity that Boer and Briton will be equally gathering the rich harvest that they will forget the past "and be "brothers in work and prosperity." It is surely a gorgeous dream, but no very cheap one for John Bull.

ORDAINED TO THE MINISTRY.

Harry B. Strothard, a former Bridgetown School-boy Made Member of the New Brunswick Methodist Conference.

MONCTON, June 21.—Pulpits of three Methodist churches in the city and Sunny Brae, four Baptist churches in Moncton and Lewisville, Presbyterian, St. Paul's and Evangelical churches in this vicinity were occupied today by ministers attending the N. B. and P. E. I. conference. The greatest interest centered in central Methodist church in which the conference is being held. The service this morning was of unusual interest from the fact that Rev. H. B. Strothard, son of Rev. James Strothard, pastor of the Central church, was ordained in the work of the ministry in accordance with the beautiful and impressive ritual in use in the Methodist church. The spacious sanctuary was well filled. The musical part of the service was all that the heart could wish. The service was conducted by the president of the conference, assisted by Secretaries Rev. M. R. Knight and H. E. Thomas, and the venerable Dr. Stewart, of Sackville. Dr. Stewart led the congregation in prayer. The secretary presented the candidate for ordination to the president. The president in accordance with the time-honored custom called upon the candidate to give an account of his conversion and call to the work of the ministry.

Mr. Strothard, in a brief address, told the story of his conversion and how he came to offer himself to the service of God and the church. In the formation of his religious character, he confessed his indebtedness to the influences arising from his home-life.

Rev. H. E. Thomas read a passage of Scripture, after which the president read the admonitory passages of ritual with much impressiveness, and asked the usual questions concerning faith, fidelity, obedience and loyalty to discipline, all of which were clearly answered in the affirmative. After the usual form of laying on of hands, the ordination service was preached by Rev. James Crisp, ex-president of the conference. He first congratulated the newly ordained minister upon his ordination, dwelling upon the sacredness of the obligations involved, and urging him to perform faithfully and well the duties resting upon him.

The newly ordained minister takes charge of Sunny Brae circuit.

Jere McAuliffe's Son Fatally Injured.

St. John, June 22.—Eugene McAuliffe, the fourteen-year-old son of Jere McAuliffe, the actor, was crushed under a train just as he reached Union Depot this morning, and will die. One leg is completely off, and the other ground to pulp. Besides this, the boy received severe injuries to the spine and head.

McAuliffe and Company closed their engagement at Chatham on Friday and since then the parents, with Eugene, visited Prince Edward Island. They came across today to spend a few days here before going to their old home at London, Ont. The train had about 40 feet more to go when the boy's dog jumped from the car platform. He jumped after it, but slipped and his feet went under the dining car, which passed after him. He was taken to the hospital and the doctors who have amputated the legs say that the boy cannot live more than a few hours. The parents are crazed with grief.

A Cripple, Yet a Hero

New York, June 20.—The World says today: With stumps for legs, stump for his right arm, and his left hand minus several fingers, Joseph Gilligan, 18 years old, swam to the rescue of two boys in a gravel pit pond at Morris Plains, N. J., and saved their lives. Alexander Patterson and Augustus Monahan, twelve years old each, were in an old boat in the pond, which is near the Lakawanna Railroad tracks at Morris Plains. The pond is about ten feet at its greatest depth, and it was at this point the boys upset the boat while playing. Patterson could not swim, and he clasped Monahan around the neck. Before he was dragged down, Monahan cried for help. Gilligan, sitting with other boys in the shade of a tree, but out of sight of the pond. He had been showing his friends the artificial limbs his parents had procured for him. He had unstrapped the limbs when he heard the cries for help. Not stopping to put them on, Gilligan hurried to the pond.

Plunging in, he swam to the spot where the boys were struggling, and grasped the two lads and pushed them apart. He then swam with one hand and pushed Patterson ashore.

Returning, Gilligan sought Monahan, who was sinking. The cripple also pushed him ashore. The two boys, grateful for his rescue, carried him to their home, where he received dry clothing.

Gilligan ten years ago was run over by a trolley car in Brooklyn. He lost one leg above the knee and the other below the knee, his right arm was taken off at the elbow, and three fingers from his left hand. He learned to swim a few years ago.

ANOTHER EARTHQUAKE FELT AT MONTREAL.

Montreal, June 17.—A considerable earthquake shock was felt here at 4.18 p. m. yesterday. The measurements of the record or the seismograph at McGill have not yet been made. The shock was felt all over the Ottawa Valley district and in the Laurentian Mountains.

ONE THOUSAND PERSONS HOMELESS.

Three Rivers, Quebec, June 22.—Fire which broke out at noon today destroyed one hundred buildings, including the Post Office, Telegraph Office, Bell Telephone Office, all the banks, all the drug stores, all the principal groceries, all the dry goods stores, the old parish church, many private residences, and all the principal hotels. The loss will probably be about one and a half millions of dollars. One thousand persons are homeless.

FORESTERS' NEW RATES.

Toronto, June 21.—The new rates adopted by the Independent Order of Foresters mean an increase of nearly $900,000 a year to the Mortuary Fund. Should there be any lapses on account of the higher rates this will of course, be an advantage in decreasing the liability of the Order. Increase averages $8 per member per annum. The deficit of $61,023 in 1907, under the old rates, would, under the new table, have netted a surplus of $275,000.

The Order numbers 112,000 members carrying $10,315,528 insurance. The average rate formerly paid was $1.01 per $1,000. This is increased 5 cents per $1,000. It has been decided to abandon the Orphans' Home on Foresters' Island, built by Dr. Orshyk, at a cost of $250,000. The sixty children cared for will be provided for in the new farm home near Toronto. The Union Trust Company will be continued in connection with the I. O. F. The capital stock was reduced from two to one million, and the Foresters' stock was reduced from $1,000,000 to $400,000. On this amount ten per cent profit was paid.

THE HOME

Fretting

Walk along the street and observe the women met. Nine out of ten of them have their foreheads drawn and wrinkled, their mouths curved downwards and are bearing a general look of anxiety and discontent, which gives the impression of some mortal and woeful disaster beyond the power of human endurance. Usually there is nothing the matter worth such signals of distress. The paperhanger has said he must put her off for a week; the landlady has disappointed her; her maid has given warning; the woman she depended upon to make her spring things has been obliged to refuse her dearest foe has a hat the very image of her; Bobbie's shoes are as good as gone and Phyllis must have a coat—the weather is so contrary—and, and, and.

If she would iron out the wrinkles on her face and turn up the corners of her mouth; if she would use a little common sense and remember that she is not helping matters by fretting, that she is adding years to her looks and teaching her friends to avoid her; if she would take stock of her mercies and contrast them with the sorrows of dozens of women she knows, maybe things would not seem quite as dreadful. If she would smile and stop fretting for a few minutes, she would remember that she could do better than she is doing; that Phyllis' old coat could be sponged and pressed and have a few stitches where needed; that the landlady was spilling her clothes; and that she could do better; that as for the maid, there were as good fish in the sea as ever were caught; that if the spring things were not made they would not have to be paid for; and that as for waiting another week, or a fortnight probably, the weather would be warmer by that time for the papering. If she would stop short, she would give her inner woman, that usually sensible inner woman, a chance to make things go.

None of us can afford to be lazy and let things take care of themselves, but after all there is a good deal to say for lazy women. One of them boards because it is too much trouble to keep house; to be sure, she lives in one room with her husband and child, and the household of boarders bears all their little family jars. She goes out into the dining room the last one in the house because she cannot hurry and tire herself, to suit anyone, and finds poor food and scant service. She means to take Ruth out for a walk, but it is too much trouble to get a child ready; and the little looks as though she needed to be out-of-doors, but that cannot be helped. She wears her winter clothes way along in the spring, and her summer clothes in the winter, for she is so unfortunate in getting her work done for her. She says it is "so respectable" to go to church and that she is going regularly. But it is too hot, or too cold or too windy, or too wet, or the breakfast was too late, or she could not get Ruth ready, so while others go and return refreshed, she dawdles the day away and yawns and stretches because of its long hours, but she never worries. She takes it easily and just vegetates. Should any of us like to be in her frame of mind?

Is there a midway between too much anxiety and too little; between too much fretful activity and laziness; between ceaseless worry and idle apathy. Pillow counsel is a good help-in the morning. If the habit can be formed of waking a few minutes earlier than duty demands, a few minutes given to planning work, meals, expenditure and pleasure, will go a long way toward the success and happiness of the day, and will help keep the wrinkles from the brow and the downward curve from the mouth. Try it. At all events, do not fret over troubles; there is so much sorrow in the world, that mere annoyances seem trivial, too trivial to worry about.

PRETTY IS AS PRETTY DOBS.

There are some small boys, And some small girls, too, Who silently do paid for, and that as for waiting another week, or a fortnight probably, the weather would be warmer by that time for the papering. If she would stop short, she would give her inner woman, that usually sensible inner woman, a chance to make things go.

THEIR TEMPER IS UGLY

Their faces, also, And people dislike them Wherever they go.

There are some small boys, And some small girls, too, Who are happy and helpful The whole week through.

Their manners are lovely, Their faces, also, And people do love them Wherever they go.

Health Hints.

The feet are susceptible of many deformities and are subject to all sorts of neglect. Many people do not bathe them sufficiently often, do not change their stockings with sufficient frequency, and do not care for them in other ways as they should. The soldier who cares for his feet is the one who holds out on the march, and many foreign armies have doctors to see that the men care for their feet. To rub the feet with alcohol refreshes them wonderfully. A famous physician declared that his income would dwindle to half if women kept their feet warm. And it may be added that a woman's chance of being a comfortable person would be improved if she would wear the right kind of shoes, and care for them and her feet properly.

Infants' Colic—According to a writer in The Mothers' Magazine among the peasant mothers of Russia the following is a common treatment for colic in the child:—When the pain begins the child is laid on its back, and the stomach covered with a thin coating of any household oil accessible. The mother then takes the palm of her hand and softly rubs this oil into the skin. She gives the palm a circular twist in doing the work, and does not cease until all the skin of the stomach and bowels is warm. When this condition is reached she binds a warm flannel cloth about the stomach, restores the child's night clothes, and tucks it into bed. It is said to be usually asleep long before the cloth is bound about it.

GOOD LOOKS AND DRESS

Study appearance by studying what you wear. Choose your clothes in harmony with your own particular style of beauty rather than the latest fashion.

The color of your eyes should guide you in choosing the shades that suit you best; a girl with brown hair and brown eyes never looks prettier than when dressed in varying tones of brown. Bright lips and a fresh complexion can be emphasized by wearing a string of coral beads, or by introducing a touch of cherry color into the trimming of one's dress. A pale complexion is set off to the greatest advantage by very faint tints of color, such as pale blue, pale pink, a soft shade of heliotrope or delicate green.

JUST BEING HAPPY.

Just being happy Is a fine thing to do; Looking on the bright side, Rather than the blue.

Fail or sunny musing Is largely in the choosing, And just being happy Is brave work, and true.

A housekeeper says that jelly which cannot be detected from the best curd jelly can be made by using a quart of cranberries to a peck of tart apples. The galvanized iron tubs can be cleaned by scrubbing with hot vinegar. The curd jelly can be made to remain on for a time, then wash in hot strong soapuds and wipe dry.

TRUST.

Build a little fence Of Trust Around to-day; Fill the space With loving work And therein stay. Look not through The sheltering bars Upon to-morrow; God will help thee Bear what comes, Of joy or sorrow.

Mary F. Butts.

The dealer who keeps foodstuffs in stock finds it worth his while to study the storage problem. So, likewise, should the housewife. If her flour is not to deteriorate, she must keep it covered, and her vegetables and fruits should be stored in a well ventilated and cool place. Her ice-box must be kept carefully cleaned, else micro-organisms, developing in it, will give a bad taste to the butter and milk. Furthermore, if she is wise, she will not put her celery and lettuce in water to keep them fresh, like flowers in a vase, but will wrap them in a damp cloth. The soaking of green vegetables in a mass of their flavor, which passes into the water that is thrown away.

Secrets of a Happy Life.

You sometimes see a woman whose old age is exquisite, as was the perfect bloom of her youth. She seems condensed sweetness and grace. You wonder how this has come about; you wonder how it is that her life has been a long and happy one. Here are some of the reasons:—

She knew how to forget disagreeable things. She understood the art of enjoyment and inflicted them on no one. She kept her nerves well in hand, and inflicted them on no one. She believed in the goodness of her own daughters and in that of her neighbors. She cultivated a good digestion. She mastered the art of saying pleasant words. She did not expect too much from her friends. She made whatever work came to her congenial. She retained her illusions, and did not believe that all the world was wicked and unkind. She relieved the miserable and sympathized with the sorrowful. She retained an even disposition and made the best of everything. She did whatever came to her cheerfully and well. She never forgot that kind words and a smile cost nothing, but are priceless treasures to the discouraged. She did unto others as she would be done by; and now that old age has come to her, and there is a halo of white hair about her head, she is loved and considered. These are the secrets of a long life and a happy one.

A widow lady in New York makes her living in this way. She makes a house-to-house canvass, looking for hats which need rettriming. She carries a book containing the latest styles in millinery. Her customer selects the shape she wants, the lady collects the old hats and trimmings and takes them to her house, where she converts them into the most stylish hats.

Such is the demand for this kind of work that the lady has often fifty orders on hand at one time. She not only makes a living, but proves what women can do.

Macaroons—Blanch, dry and pound 1 lb. almonds. Make into a paste with 1 teaspoon rose water. Beat 3 egg-whites with 1 cup powdered sugar, adding the sugar by the teaspoonful. Add 1 teaspoon almond extract. Add the pounded almonds, if very soft, add 1 tablespoon flour. Roll into balls, walnut size, with wet hands. Flatten a little and place apart from each other on buttered paper. Bake slowly.

Some ways of cooking as every housewife knows, are very wasteful. If a roast is to be prepared, for example, the precious juices are lost by too low a temperature in the oven. The oven should be good and hot to start with, in order to crisp the outside quickly and make it a hard shell to hold the juices. It pays, indeed, to use a thermometer, and there are household ranges provided with thermometric dials, which show at a glance the exact temperature of the oven.

A useful suggestion to the laundress is as follows: When ironing if you should scorch your garments at once put a wet cloth over the place, and hold a hot iron over the cloth, continuing wetting the cloth until the scorch has disappeared. Do not spread the cloth out, but punch it up, this is much easier and quieter than the old way of hanging the garment in the sun.

Stick some old cotton cloth on to a small board, saturate with kerosene and rub the iron well over it, then on a clean cloth before using. There will be no more trouble about staining or rubbing up, and they can be done in half the time.

TO DEVELOP THE CHEST.

The best exercise for developing the chest is a stretching movement. Stretch well and thoroughly over and over again until the muscles of the arms and shoulders feel quite loosened. One can do so lying down or standing, but it is the best when stretching the shoulders to stand. While in an upright position throw the arms to the back of the head and stretch well. After she has exercised her back and shoulders in this way a woman will find it hard to sit in a stooping attitude and she will without effort square her shoulders and hold herself erect.

Much time is wasted in cutting out doughnuts. A farmer's wife who had learned to save time as well as money told me that she dropped the soft dough into the fat by tablespoonfuls. Afterwards, I had the pleasure of tasting some golden balls, rolled in powdered sugar, that proved the experiment was a success.

They found him enveloped in flames. He was roasted to death, dying of his terrible injuries shortly after the accident. Rev. Mr. Teasdale is pastor of the Baptist church.

BEAVER FLOUR
A PERFECT BLEND OF MANITOBA AND
ONTARIO WHEAT

Manitoba wheat contains more food value than any other. It makes the most nutritious Breads and Biscuits. But it contains so much Gluten (Nourishment) that the dough won't rise properly, and the bread is both heavy and gray.

That is the reason, too, why Manitoba wheat flour does not yield good pastry.

Ontario wheat does not give as nutritious bread as Manitoba wheat. But what it lacks in food properties, it equals by its Biscuits, Cake and Pastry. For Pastry, alone, Ontario flour is better than any other flour made of a single variety of wheat.

But there is no need to go to the expense of buying two flours.

Beaver Flour
is both a bread flour and a pastry flour. It is a blend of {Ontario Fall Wheat} {Manitoba Spring Wheat}. It contains just the right proportion of each to make the most nutritious Bread—the whitest Bread—and the lightest, most delicious Pastry of all kinds.

Beaver Flour also yields MORE Bread, etc., to the barrel, than any other.

No matter what other flour you are using, you are not getting the best results because you are not using the best flour.

Order a trial sack of Beaver Flour. The first baking will prove its quality.

The Rat Plague

(Paris letter in New York "Times.")
Rats as a menace before which humanity may disappear is a theme developed with disquieting precision by Dr. A. Calmette, a French scientist, in the current number of the "Revue du Mois." Dr. Calmette predicts that mankind will have to engage in a general warfare on rats before many more years elapse if the world is to continue to be habitable. He points out that different countries have different breeds of rats which are no great menace in themselves, which in fact, are often useful. The peril comes from the migratory rat, otherwise known as the sewer rat, which has been evolved by civilization and which follows the march of man into every clime. Rats of other breeds have been known ever since man began to keep records of the things around him. The migratory or sewer rat is modern. The first mention of him was made only in 1620, when he was a native of Persia and East India. He did not invade Europe until the eighteenth century.

At that time he was driven out of his old haunts by the widespread famine in those regions and of which he was largely the cause. Old chronicles report that millions of the vermin crossed the Volga in 1727. They made their appearance in Prussia in 1780, and were first seen at Paris three years later. The newcomers were not welcomed. Within a week, sixteen thousand were slain. This made no apparent difference in the ranks of the invaders.

Dr. Calmette says that the sewer rat did not appear in America until 1865, when he was first noticed along the coast and in various seaports. As late as 1870 he had not yet reached the headquarters of the Missouri. By 1900 he had gone up to the permanent ice belt.

At present, the scientist continues, this migratory rodent is destroying in the West Indies, in the Azores, and in the Cape Verde Islands annually hundreds of thousands of dollars' worth of coffee, banana, sugar, and orange plantations. As a sample of what he can do, the case of an island in the estuary of the River Humber is cited. This island was once completely covered with rich "rass, which kept in good condition all the year round about three thousand head of cattle. The island is separated from the shore by half a mile of water. One day the place was invaded by swimming. This was fifteen years ago. To-day there is not enough verdure on the island to nourish a rabbit. The whole island has been honeycombed by the rats so that it cannot even be reclaimed by cultivation.

In a number of the Channel Islands where nothing grows but a few ferns and mosses, there are also many thousands of rats. How they found sufficient food was long a matter of curiosity, but one day a scientist, bent on investigating the matter, dug up one of the numerous rat holes and discovered, not without surprise, a pocket of the earth, while there were six in another. The crabs had not gone there by themselves, that was evident, for all of them had their legs cut off. Investigation showed that the rats were in the habit of making their crabbing expeditions at low tide. To immobilize their victims and render them harmless, the rats captured them as soon as they were captured. All the crabs found were still living and in good condition. Whether the wily rats kept their prisoners fed or not is unknown.

The sewer rat is perfectly at home in sea water, and, according to Dr. Calmette, is always on the lookout for an attractive ship in which to take passage for some foreign port. He will wait patiently until night-fall and then swim out to some yacht which has pleased his fancy and crawl aboard by way of the anchor chain. He is extremely prudent and is not easily caught. The amount of damage these rats do annually in the cargoes of seagoing ships, in docks, and warehouses would count up easily into the tens of millions. They are almost omnivorous, eating everything from meat and poultry to the bark of young trees. They have been known to kill ducks and chickens that were almost fully grown. They have even been known to attack children and old people. It is reported that a few years ago these hairy quadrupeds organized a regular expedition against the Pitt Hospital. They were only banished after the nurses and physicians charge had used hundreds of pounds of sulphur and disinfectant.

Everybody is familiar with the stories of how rats carry disease germs from one part of the world to the other. These stories are perfectly true. Extraordinary precautions are taken against rats at Marseilles

NOW I AM WELL

THANKS TO "FRUIT-A-TIVES"
Eli, Manitoba.
I wish to state, for the sake of others who may be suffering like I was, that I suffered from severe indigestion and constipation for years and that there was also womb trouble with unpleasant pains in my back which made me miserable, constantly. I tried physicians and took many remedies but I got no relief. I was induced to try "Fruit-a-tives" and I can't say this was the first medicine that ever did me any good. "Fruit-a-tives" quickly relieved the constipation and indigestion and completely cured me of all symptoms of womb trouble. I cannot express too strongly my great gratitude to this medicine. I am as well now in every way as ever I was, thanks to "Fruit-a-tives". I can strongly recommend "Fruit-a-tives", it is easy to take and the effect is always mild like fruit.

and other Mediterranean ports which have learned much by tragic experiences in the past.

Dr. Calmette concludes by showing that within two years a single pair of rats will ordinarily multiply to 1,536. That is one of the reasons why he thinks that unless something is done rats will some day be the only animals left on the surface of the globe.

BADLY SPRAINED ANKLE CURED

Three years ago our daughter sprained her ankle and had been suffering terribly for two days and nights—had not slept a minute. Mr. Stallings, of Butler, Tenn., told us of Chamberlain's Pain Balm. We went to the store that night and got a bottle of it and bathed her ankle two or three times and she went to sleep and had a good night's rest. The next morning she was much better and in a short time could walk around and had no more trouble with her ankle.—E. M. BRIMMITT, Hampton, Tenn. 25 and 50 cent sizes for sale by

A FATAL CANOE RIDE.

Worcester, Mass., June 7.—The treacherous canoe claimed three victims on the waters of Lake Quinsigamond late today while a fourth member of the party barely escaped. One of the victims is either Fred Ketchell or Fred Fa-well, 17 years, who worked for Mrs. Calvin Gay, at 19 Walnut street, and whose home is believed to be in Pittsburg. The two other victims are girls of about the same age, whose names are unknown. Allison Dwight Watrous, of 22 Maple Road, was rescued.

The two boys went to the Lake in the afternoon. On the way they met two girls whom they asked to go canoeing. Only Ketchell knew the girls.

To avoid the splashing water when rocks were thrown at them the girls leaned on one side and the canoe partially filled. The girls then moved quickly to the stern where Ketchell was sitting, and the canoe went down, stern first. Watrous clung to the bow of the canoe until he was picked up. The bodies have not been recovered.

Spent Eighteen Dollars

Gentlemen—I have pleasure in stating that I have used $18.00 worth of Psychine, and as a result was cured of every serious throat and lung trouble.

My case was a most difficult one, and the doctors had practically said that I could not get well. I tried Psychine, and it did me so much good that I continued its use until I had taken $18.00 worth, with the result that I am now a new man physically. I have gained thirty-five pounds.

It is with the greatest confidence that I recommend Psychine to all who are afflicted with throat or lung trouble.

Yours truly, C. A. FINKHAM, Scotstown, Que., Sept., '07.

This man speaks from experience. Psychine cures all throat, chest, lung and stomach troubles and gives renewed strength and vitality to run-down people. At all druggists, 50c and $1.00, or Dr. T. A. Sloum, Limited, Toronto.

The Outdoor Life.

Houses were made for shelter, not for confinement; for freedom, not restraint; they were intended to enlarge our sphere of activities, not to diminish them. They were to provide us a protection against the elements so that busy happy life could go on unhindered by season or climate, heat or storm.

After food, they are the first requisite—the first trace of himself which man imposes upon the natural world, and the most primitive and lasting evidence of the handwork which grows into all the arts of all the centuries. They foster the family and make progress possible, but we should not abuse their protection.

We have crawled away into their still and comfortable recesses, slept in their dry clean chambers, toasted ourselves over their sheltered fires, read by their unflinching lights, and eaten from their bountiful boards so long, that we are grown pale, timid, peevish and "thankless" without them.

We have kept ourselves away from the wind and the sun and the lashing rain, from the feel of the earth under foot and the sense of the leafy forest above our heads, until we no longer know the keen and simple joys of being alive.

We have set up barriers against the inclemency of nature, and covered before her severe austerity, until now we have forgotten how indispensable is all her kindly nature, how tonic her rugged ways, how full of solace her assuaging calm.

Houses were only made to live in when it is too cold or too hot, or too wet to live outdoors. Any other time out-of-doors is best. Out-of-doors is the only place where a man can breathe and sleep to perfection, and keep the blood red in the cheeks; and those are the three prime factors in the life of humans. The three first great rhythms of our being. It is almost impossible to get enough fresh pure air inside four walls, and it is not possible at all to keep the wholesome flush of health in rooms unvisited by the daily sun.

To keep out-of-doors for a month is better than a trip to Europe. In this climate one must have a roof, of course; but any piazza that is open to three-quarters of the heavens will serve as a bedroom, and the rest is happiness is unbelievable. With an abundant supply of good air the sleep soon grows normal, deep and untroubled and refreshing, so that we open our eyes upon the dawn as gladly as a hunter or a shepherd in the morning of the world.

We grow anxious and flustered and harried with distractions, the calm of nature becomes an inseparable companion; and we groan in spirit that the universe is all away; when in truth half a dozen deep breaths of clean air would lend a different complexion to life. Our anxieties are nearly all artificial; and are bred in floors, under the stifling oppression of walls and roofs and the maddening clangor of pavements, and a day in the open will often dispel them like a mist.—Bliss Carman, in "The Craftsman."

You can't beat the Yankees. They will sell you a turkey for Christmas and when you come to market in the spring for millinery they will sell you the feathers. You can't beat 'em.—Exchange.

The crusade against tobacco as well as liquor is spreading. The Syracuse University distributes yearly about a thousand scholarships, but Chancellor Day has announced that none of these scholarships will be given to students who use tobacco or attend theatres. He declares that "young men who can afford to pay for needless luxuries and indulgences can afford to pay for their own tuition."

THINGS THAT MAKE WORRY IMPOSSIBLE.

Good, robust health is a great enemy of worry. A good digestion, a clear conscience, and sound sleep kill a lot of worry.

Worry is but one phase of fear, and always thrives best in abnormal conditions. It cannot get much of a hold on a man with a superb physique, a man who lives a clean, sane life. It thrives on the weak—those of low vitality.

It is not a very difficult thing to make worry impossible. Many people make it impossible for most kinds of disease to get a hold on them because they have such strong disease-resisting force. Disease always attacks us at our weak point.

The great desideratum is to keep one's physical, mental and moral standard so high that disease germs, the worry germ, the anxious germ, cannot gain a footing in our brain. Our resisting power ought to be so great that it would be impossible for our enemies to gain an entrance into the brain or body.

WEDNESDAY, JUNE 24, 1908.

The ravages of the canker-worm are about over for this season, the grub now leaving the trees to make its nest in the ground. Orchardists are now protecting their trees with tarred paper, to prevent the female moth, which will emerge from the cocoon later and which is wingless, from crawling up the tree to deposit her eggs for another season. One orchardist informs that he has used salt, scattering it over the ground when ploughing his orchard, and in his experience has found it effective in killing grubs which burrow in the ground.
Annapolis County is not the only vicinity which has seen the ravages of this insect, reports of equal, or worse, destruction coming from the orchards of Kings County.

WHAT MIGHT BE.
There is food for thought in the following extract from the San Francisco Star, on the occasion of the recent visit of the United States fleet to that city—
"The $190,000,000 invested in the war ships now in San Francisco harbor would irrigate 6,000,000 acres of arid land and provide homes for 150,000 families, giving to each family fifty acres of land. That amount of money would build a road from the Atlantic to the Pacific, and such a road owned by the people and run for the benefit of the people would squeeze every drop of water out of the railroads of the country."
"That amount of money would build and equip a national telegraph and telephone system, which, conducted for the people, would squeeze every drop of water out of the privately owned telegraph and telephone systems."
"That amount of money, properly spent, would go far toward relieving the people of the tremendous monopoly burden now resting on their backs."
"That amount of money would build from sixty to one hundred great electric power plants for the people, and free them from a monopoly that is now skinning them."
"Instead of building more warships isn't it time to call a halt? With tens of thousands of our citizens begging for an opportunity to earn a living, isn't it time to call a halt on this wicked waste of money and energy? If we are going more and more into the warship business, let us be honest and pull down our churches. If we are to glorify war, let us quit glorifying the Prince of Peace. Let us quit being hypocrites."

The St. John Telegraph remarks—
But the advocates of a still greater navy, chief among whom are President Roosevelt and the successor he is now nominating, Mr. Taft, would reply that peaceful enterprises, if they are to be prosecuted successfully, demand a navy big enough to guarantee the United States against attack by foreign nations. Among armed neighbors, they say, the United States must go armed. Their statement does not appear at all convincing, for there is no likelihood that any nation is going to make an unprovoked attack upon the United States. Be that as it may, the powerful politicians and their friends the powerful contractors, are in favor of a bigger navy. And they will have their way.

FATALLY INJURED IN A DRIVING ACCIDENT.
Annapolis, N. S., June 19.—News has been received here of a fatal accident which occurred at Bear River Hill on the east side of the river yesterday morning, which resulted in the death of Mrs. Bars, a well known resident of Victoriavale, a few miles from Bear River. She was coming to town, accompanied by a man who was driving, when the harness broke, causing the horse to kick, and the driver losing control of the animal, both of the occupants were thrown out of the carriage killing Mrs. Bars, almost instantly. She was over 60 years of age and survived by a grown up family. The driver was but slightly injured.

The home of Mr. and Mrs. Adoniram J. Foster, 114 Bowler St., was the scene of a pretty wedding, Wednesday evening, when their daughter, Miss Precious Mae Foster, was united in marriage to Leroy L. Wood Dixon. The ceremony was performed by Rev. William W. Burtard, of the Dudley street Baptist Church, Roxbury, an uncle of the groom. To the strains of Lohengrin's wedding march, played by Mrs. Nettie Stevey Hardenbrook, the bride and groom, accompanied by the bride's bridesmaids, and the groom's groomsmen, took their places in the parlor before a bank of ferns, potted plants and cut flowers. Here they were met by the clergyman who tied the nuptial knot with the double ring service. The bride wore a handsome gown of white satin with yoke of allover lace and insertion, and veil caught up with white roses. She carried a bridal bouquet of the same flowers. The bride's gift to the groom was a pearl necklace, and the groom's gift to the bride was a pearl necklace. The bride's gift to the groom was a pearl necklace, and the groom's gift to the bride was a pearl necklace. The bride's gift to the groom was a pearl necklace, and the groom's gift to the bride was a pearl necklace.

From 8.30 to 10 a reception was tendered the newly married couple, during which an excellent musical program was furnished by the Hardenbrook orchestra of Peabody. The ushers were J. Murray Wilson, Jas. H. Rounding, Joseph M. Foster and Joseph S. Hill. The guest book was in charge of Miss Goldie Esther Brinton, and the gift room by Miss Edie Saville Bent. The punch bowl was in charge of Henningar L. Foster and the servers were Mrs. Lizzie M. Hill, Mrs. Addie P. Wilson, Mrs. Maud A. Foster and Miss Ethel M. Clondman. The groom's gift to the bride was a brooch of diamonds and pearls. The bride's gift to the groom was a pearl necklace. The bride's gift to the groom was a pearl necklace, and the groom's gift to the bride was a pearl necklace.

The couple were well remembered with many beautiful and useful wedding gifts, among the special ones were a handsome table lamp from the employers of the bride and groom, J. J. Grover Sons; a cut glass water-bottle from the employees of the shipping and turn departments, Mr. Dixon being former manager of the former room; a clock from the bride's associates; in the stitching-room; a picture from friends in the office, and a cut-glass water set from the First M. E. choir.
At 10 o'clock Mr. and Mrs. Dixon left on an extended wedding trip to Nova Scotia, New Brunswick, and Maine. On their return they will reside at 108 Bowler street.

JOHN E. SHIPP.
There passed away early on Saturday last, at West Dalhousie, well known figure in the person of John E. Shipp, after a strenuous and well spent life, at the ripe age of 81 years. The funeral took place on Sunday afternoon, the interment being in the burial ground adjoining the Baptist Church. The large number of people present at the service, which was conducted by Mr. C. J. Purcombe, testified to the respect and esteem in which the deceased and his family are held.

Russia is becoming a great buyer of British-grown teas. Partly owing to the enormous increase in the quantity they are using, the price of tea at the gardens has advanced greatly during the past year, making it necessary for the "Salsola" Tea Co., in order to maintain the high standard of quality for which "Salsola" is noted, to advance the price of "Brown Label" from 25c to 30c per pound.

MILNER AND TARIFF REFORM.
Reciprocal trade among members of the British family, business and sentiment making together for Imperial cohesion, unity and strength—such has been the keynote of several effective addresses on tariff reform recently delivered by Lord Milner. These presentations of the case have commanded much attention, and British newspapers have given much space to them, accompanied in many cases by hearty editorial commendation. In one of these addresses Lord Milner said, in part:
"But now, in conclusion, to get away from these figures—instructive and indispensable as the figures are to the great economic and political objects which we as tariff reformers have at heart. There are two ideals before us—separate and yet akin—and working into one another. I do not say, never will say that tariff reform alone is going to accomplish either. I have no superstitious belief in it. But I do say it is essential to both. One is the building up of the several great states of the empire, including India, as separate units, to the highest state of industrial efficiency, of productive power of which they are individually capable; the other is the drawing together of these units separately built up into an economic and political union, which might be the greatest in the world, the most self-sustaining, and, as a whole, the most unassailable. What is the attitude of the people of any of the great self-governing Dominions? With many local differences there is still one spirit common to them all. We want, they say, to be a real nation, with an all round development, with varied industries, capable of standing on our feet, economically as well as in all other respects. We will not allow anyone, not even the Mother Country, not even the sister states to cramp or fetter our growth on our own lines. We believe we know what is best for ourselves. Moreover we believe that the stronger and more independent we are the more we shall contribute to the strength of the family of States, the Greater Nation to which we are loyal, to which we still desire to belong. What more natural than that we should try to help the other members of the family and expect them to help us in every way not inconsistent with the separate growth of each member. Everyone for himself first, but everyone next for the family. Let the family all round recognize a duty and an interest in promoting the prosperity of its members. Let us mutually give each other the greatest help we can. Let us give each other the greatest help we can. Let us give each other the greatest help we can."

The annual competitions of the Annapolis County Rifle Association are to be held Friday and Saturday of this week on the range at Nictaux. Preparations are being made by the ladies at Nictaux to entertain the visitors on Saturday, and the entrance fee has been reduced very much with a view to attract new shots and "one match" has been arranged at 200, 500 and 600 yards, with a prize for every competitor.
On Friday of next week, the provincial match for the "Klondike Cup" will be shot on the range at Kentville. The Bridgetown Club sent a team last year which won second place, but, owing to the removal and absence of some of the best shots, it will not be able to furnish a team this year, but the 6th will send a team and it is expected now that a strong team will be made up.

SACQUE AND CASH FOUNDRY. CATERPILLARS STOP TRAIN IN NEW BRUNSWICK.
Mrs. J. F. Outhit and Miss Outhit left on the Plant Liger Halifax Thursday for Boston, and late in the afternoon a sacque was afloat in the harbor by a boatman. In the pocket he found $36 in cash and Miss Outhit's ticket for Boston. He immediately took it to the Plant office and Mr. Outhit was communicated with and identified the sacque as Miss Outhit's. He rewarded the finder and forwarded the sacque and contents of the pockets by express to Miss Outhit at Boston as well as telegraphed her of the finding of the sacque. It is thought the sacque had been laid on the rail when the steamer left the wharf and was caught by the wind and blown overboard, not being missed perhaps for some time afterwards.

On account of ill health, Rev. E. E. England, of Bermuda, is to take a year's rest, which he will spend in Berwick.

The Annapolis District Division will meet with Nelson Division, at Lawrence town, on Tuesday, July 14th, at 2 p. m.

$15,000 is offered in premiums for exhibitors in the St. John Exhibition, which will be held from Sept. 12th to Sept. 19th.

Rev. W. H. Warren, provincial organizer for Sons of Temperance, returned last week from a seven weeks' sojourn in Cape Breton.

The slightest touch of Nico Soap is sufficient to destroy every Forest Tent Caterpillar that it comes in contact with.

Mr. J. Brown has just finished an apple warehouse, 40x100 feet, at Coldbrook, and has commenced one 40x75 at Britton.—Outlook.

It has been rumored that Hon. George E. Foster will be asked to contest Pictou County now that Sir Herbert Tupper has declined.

Attention is called to the new time table of the H. & S. W. Railway on this page, also their local announcing special rates for Dominion Day.

Terrace Queen, C. F. DeWitt's 2.06 trotter, has been entered for the Moospath races at St. John, July 22nd and 23rd, and is now in training.

At a meeting of the Moral Reform Association of Kings County held at Waterville on Friday, John Donaldson was selected as the candidate to oppose Sir F. W. Borden.

A number of prosecutions for illegal salmon fishing have been entered against parties along the Gaspereux river and several fines are reported to have been paid.

The Methodist and Baptist churches were closed last Sunday, a most unusual occurrence. The pastors were attending respectively the Association at Bear River and the Conference at Lunenburg.

The house has passed Mr. Fisher's bill to amend the inspection and sale act. The penalties for infraction of the fruit marks act are reduced to a maximum fine of $25 for first, $50 for second, and $200 for third offence.

An exchange says that the New Brunswick Tourist and Hotel Company, of which J. Harry King is the head, has purchased the old Baptist Seminary building at St. Martin's, and will convert it into a tourist hotel.

There will be an eclipse of the sun on June 29, visible here shortly after eight o'clock a. m. In Mexico, in Bermuda, and in some other sections of the western hemisphere, this will appear in the form of an annular eclipse; elsewhere, it will appear only as a partial eclipse.

The services in St. James' Church on Sunday last were conducted by Mr. Woolvern, a divinity student. The rector went to Middleton on Saturday afternoon to conduct the morning service in the Church of England there, returning home on his wheel in time for the evening service.

The sight of a small pony being cruelly beaten by its owner attracted the attention of a number of people Friday night. Finally a young man among the onlookers ventured a protest and the unpleasant scene was ended. Much cruelty of this sort might be prevented, at least in the public view, by a little more backbone on the part of those who are frequently shocked but silent witnesses.

In some of our towns the merchants have decided to close their stores half a day each week, giving their employees a half holiday. In Yarmouth the Friday half holiday has been in vogue for a number of years and now seven stores in Truro have agreed to close on Wednesday afternoons during July and August. Lunenburg is also considering the matter. Why should not Bridgetown fall in line?

LOCAL AND SPECIAL.

Work is progressing quite rapidly on J. I. Foster's new store and is expected to be ready for occupancy about a fortnight.

At the Bay View Hotel, the popular hostelry of Captain and Mrs. J. B. Templeman, a Fish Dinner will be served on Dominion Day, July the first.

Correspondents are requested to take notice that owing to Wednesday next being a public holiday, we are desirous of issuing the Monitor one day earlier than usual. They will therefore confer a favor by sending in their contributions on Saturday or, at latest, on Monday.

The Prize List of the Provincial Horticultural Exhibition to be held in Kentville this fall has come to hand. It is attractive both in its make-up and contents. $1,300 is offered in regular prizes, and $1,300 in special prizes. Anyone interested may procure a copy from F. C. Land Secretary.

We are informed by the Secretary of the Board of Trade that it has been found impossible to awaken public attention or interest in the organization and that after several efforts to hold a meeting the idea has been abandoned. We would respectfully suggest that the agency of the press might be enlisted with possibly better results. There is nothing like publicity for public interests.

Dr. and Mrs. Burns leave to Clementsport on Saturday to visit Mrs. Burns' father, who met with a severe accident recently by which his leg was badly injured. He was leading a young animal by a chain, which by a sudden movement of the animal became twisted around his leg, causing him to fall upon a stake causing a bad laceration. Dr. and Mrs. Burns returned on Monday.

It is interesting to learn, though the public was not informed at the time, that through the suggestion of F. R. Fay, secretary of the local town board of trade, an advertisement was sent to the Monetary Times for six months publication setting forth the advantages of Bridgetown as a manufacturing centre. Part of the cost was paid by funds in hand of the board of trade and the balance by the order of the town council.

Some means should be used to prevent miscreants from stealing or destroying the plants and flowers placed in the burial grounds, of which frequent instances occur. A handsome plant placed on one of the graves in the cemetery on Saturday last was found ruthlessly destroyed on Sunday, and similar acts of vandalism are reported. This seems to be a case for police investigation and protection.

Improvements are contemplated in the burial ground of the Church of England. Plans have not been definitely reached as yet but J. B. Whitman, Warden, will survey and mark out the lots and a new fence will be erected as a more effectual barrier against trespass on the property. Mr. H. A. Frat, of Kentville, who was in town this week, and who is much interested in the improvement of the place, has offered to pay all the expense of a care-taker for the first year.

The Royal Theatre is drawing full houses. Especial interest is being taken in amateur night, which is now announced for every Monday night. Six competitors took part last Monday night. The Bridgetown Band played a quartette, Thomas Cowling gave a popular song, Robert Hoyt gave a character monologue in his inimitable style, Albert Burns gave a capital speech in dapper make-up. Hal Hoyt gave an original piano and harmonica duet, while Master Calvin Gross brought down the house with a recitation, and, in response to an encore, gave a dance while whistling his own accompaniment, and was awarded the prize. Last Thursday night the prize was won by Miss Bess Hoyt. Much interest is now shown in the prize to be awarded on Saturday night next to the "most popular girl." This was won last week in Windsor by the daughter of the Mayor, over a thousand ballots being cast in her favor.

In The Fog

BY
Richard Harding Davis.

Copyright, 1901, by Robert Howard Russell.

"As I felt my way along the wall, I encountered other men who were coming from the opposite direction, and each time when we hailed each other I stepped away from the wall to make room for them to pass. But the third time I did this, when I reached out my hand, the wall had disappeared, and the further I moved to find it the further I seemed to be sinking into space. I had the unpleasant conviction that at any moment I might step over a precipice. Since I had set out I had heard no traffic in the street, and now, although I listened some minutes, I could only distinguish the occasional footfalls of pedestrians. Several times I called aloud, and once a jocular gentleman answered me, but only to ask me where I thought he was, and then even he was swallowed up in the silence: Just above me I could make out a jet of gas which I guessed came from a street lamp, and I moved over to that, and, while I tried to recover my bearings, kept my hand on the iron post. Except for this flicker of gas, no larger than the tip of my finger, I could distinguish nothing about me. For the rest, the mist hung between me and the world like a damp and heavy blanket.

"I could hear voices, but I could not tell from whence they came, and the scrape of a foot moving cautiously, or a muffled cry as some one stumbled, were the only sounds that reached me.

"I decided that until some one took me in tow I had best remain where I was, and it must have been for ten minutes that I waited by the lamp, straining my ears and hailing distant footfalls. In a house near me some people were dancing to the music of a Hungarian band. I even fancied I could hear the windows shake to the rhythm of their feet, but I could not make out from which part of the compass the sounds came. And sometimes, as the music rose, it seemed close at hand, and again, to be floating high in the air above my head. Although I was surrounded by thousands of householders, I was as completely lost as though I had been set down by night in the Sahara Desert. There seemed to be no reason in waiting longer for an escort, so I again set out, and at once bumped against a low iron fence. At first I believed this to be an area railing, but on following it I found that it stretched for a long distance, and that it was pierced at regular intervals with gates. I was standing uncertainly with my hand on one of these when a square of light suddenly opened in the night, and in it I saw, as you see a picture thrown by a biograph in a darkened theater, a young gentleman in evening dress, and back of him the lights of a hall. I guessed from its elevation and distance from the sidewalk that this light must come from the door of a house set back from the street, and I determined to approach it and ask the young man to tell me where I was. But in fumbling with the lock of the gate I instinctively bent my head, and when I raised it again the door had partly closed, leaving only a narrow shaft of light. Whether the young man had re-entered the house, or had left it, I could not tell, but I hastened to open the gate, and as I stepped forward I found myself upon an asphalt walk. At the same instant there was the sound of quick steps upon the path, and some one rushed past me. I called to him, but he made no reply, and I heard the gate click and the footsteps hurrying away upon the sidewalk.

"Under other circumstances the young man's rudeness, and his recklessness in dashing so hurriedly through the mist, would have struck me as peculiar, but everything was so distorted by the fog that at the moment I did not consider it. The door was still as he had left it, partly open. I went up the path, and, after much fumbling, found the knob of the door-bell and gave it a sharp pull. The bell answered me from a great depth and distance, but no movement followed from inside the house, and although I pulled the bell again and again I could hear nothing save the dripping of the mist about me. I was anxious to be on my way, but unless I knew where I was going there was little chance of my making any speed, and I was determined that until I learned my bearings I would not venture back into the fog. So I pushed the door open and stepped into the house.

"I found myself in a long and narrow hall, upon which doors opened from either side. At the end of the hall was a staircase with a balustrade which ended in a sweeping curve. The balustrade was covered with heavy Persian rugs, and the walls of the hall were also hung with them. The door on my left was closed, but the one nearer me on the right was open, and as I stepped opposite to it I saw that it was a sort of reception or waiting-room, and that it was empty. The door below it was also open, and with the idea that I would surely find some one there, I walked on up the hall. I was in evening dress, and I felt I did not look like a burglar, so I had no great fear that, should I encounter one of the inmates of the house, he would shoot me on sight. The second door in the hall opened into a dining-room. This was also empty. One person had been dining at the table, but the cloth had not been cleared away, and a flickering candle showed half-filled wine-glasses and the ashes of cigarettes. The greater part of the room was in complete darkness.

"By this time I had grown conscious of the fact that I was wandering about in a strange house, and that, apparently, I was alone in it. The silence of the place began to try my nerves, and in a sudden, unexplainable panic I started for the open street. But as I turned, I saw a man sitting on a bench, which the curve of the balustrade had hidden from me. His eyes were shut, and he was sleeping soundly.

"The moment before I had been bewildered because I could see no one, but at sight of this man I was much more bewildered.

"He was a very large man, a giant in height, with long yellow hair which hung below his shoulders. He was dressed in a red silk shirt that was belted at the waist and hung outside black velvet trousers which, in turn, were stuffed into high black boots. I recognized the costume at once as that of a Russian servant, but what a Russian servant in his native livery could be doing in a private house in Knights-bridge was incomprehensible.

"I advanced and touched the man on the shoulder, and after an effort he awoke, and, on seeing me, sprang to his feet and began bowing rapidly and making deprecating gestures. I had picked up enough Russian in Petersburg to make out that the man was apologizing for having fallen asleep, and I also was able to explain to him that I desired to see his master.

"He nodded vigorously, and said, 'Will the Excellency come this way?' The Princess is here.

"I distinctly made out the word 'princess,' and I was a good deal embarrassed. I had thought it would be easy enough to explain my intrusion to a man, but how a woman would look at it was another matter, and as I followed him down the hall I was somewhat puzzled.

"As we advanced, he noticed that the front door was standing open, and with an exclamation of surprise, hastened toward it and

Ottawa, June 15.—At the afternoon sitting of the house, the bill amending the Yukon act was put through as was also the bill to amend the Chinese immigration act. The latter makes more rigid provisions against evasion of the head tax and also provides for a deposit of $500 for each Chinaman passing through Canada, the amount to be refunded upon the Chinaman leaving the country.

Mr. Templeman moved the second reading of his bill respecting proprietary and patent medicines. The bill, he said, was not so drastic as the legislation introduced last session, and he thought it would be satisfactory to manufacturers and retailers who had been consulted. The use of cocaine is prohibited, as well as the excessive use of alcohol. When a manufacturer prints the formula on each package the medicine will not come under the act, while if certain potent drugs are used they must be named on the label. The bill was read a second time and referred to a committee composed of the minister of inland revenue, Mr. McIntyre, (Perth), Mr. Sprout, Dr. Beland and Dr. Chisholm.

To keep ourselves perfectly free from our worry enemies, everything we do must be done sanely. No matter how honest we may be or how hard we may try to get on, if we are not sane in our eating, in our exercise, in our thinking, in our sleeping and living generally, we leave the door open to all sorts of trouble. There are a thousand enemies trying to find a door open by which they can gain entrance into our system and attack us at our vulnerable point.—O. S. Margen, in Success Magazine.

C. P. R. Prohibits Profanity.

An order has been issued by Mr. D. Nicol, vice-president of the Canadian Pacific Railway, calling the attention of trainmen to instructions regarding swearing and the use of obscene language on trains. Employees of the C. P. R. are not only instructed to refrain from swearing or using obscene language, but have been ordered to see that language of an offensive or annoying character is not used by passengers.

During the past few days the Grand Trunk Railway discharged eight employees for not obeying the rules. Six of the men were dismissed for swearing on passenger trains, and two for drunkenness.

Hon. G. P. Graham, minister of railways, in a recent letter said: "I have your letter with reference to the very objectionable habit of profanity. As you are aware, there is a stringent law against it in public places, and I think it would be greatly checked if the law were enforced when the offence takes place and I will very carefully consider what you say."

A New York judge recently sentenced a man to jail for ninety days for using profanity.

NO NEED OF SUFFERING FROM RHEUMATISM.

It is a mistake to allow rheumatism to become chronic, as the pain can always be relieved, and in most cases a cure effected by applying Chamberlain's Pain Balm. The relief from pain which it affords is alone worth many times its cost. It makes sleep and rest possible. Even in cases of long standing this liniment should be used on account of the relief which it affords. 25 and 50 cent sizes for sale by

A PARAPHRASE. Mother could not attend church one Sunday.

"A millionaire," said Dr. Brady, lay dying.

"If I leave a hundred thousand dollars or so to the church will my salvation be assured?"

"The minister answered cautiously 'I wouldn't like to be positive, but it's well worth trying.'"

MIGHT BE MISUNDERSTOOD. "You made a mistake in your paper," said an indignant man,

"Well, what's on the bill of fare to-day?" inquired the genial drummer.

"And you will give us your blessing?" asked the eloping bride,

"But don't you sell suits on installments?"

"How much more?"

"Bibbs—I understand that you lost money on that chicken-raising experiment of yours."

"Born in Iowa. One family were both born and raised in Iowa,

The Boston's Boat Found

The Gloucester Daily Times of Friday last says—Schooner Wesley W. Sinnett, Captain Lemuel Sinnett,

The boat itself was not hurt a bit, but forward, on a thwart it was found that the iron eye bolt had broken off just below the thwart.

At the conclusion of the ceremony the couple separated temporarily. The bride returning to the Stevens' home.

Mr. and Mrs. Stevens, who were greatly distressed, at once telephoned the Letts to Governor and Mrs. Tweedie at St. John.

The newly married couple left last evening for Montreal. Some time ago Mr. McEwan signified his intention of returning to Scotland.

Mr. and Mrs. Stevens, who were greatly distressed, at once telephoned the Letts to Governor and Mrs. Tweedie at St. John.

Men are gossip. Did you know that? Half the scandals we hear are hatched in men's clubs.

When you pass a men's club and see half a dozen men leaning out of the windows and talking together,

Of course they have a right to express their opinions; but to hear the average man talk, one would think he was a perfect miracle of discretion and that woman was responsible for all the gossip going.

Neither is a man so wonderful at keeping a secret as he would have you believe.

This may sound rather abusive, but think of the endless criticism of this kind that man has aimed at woman! Ever since time began he accused her of gossiping, and being unable to hold her tongue.

Man, perhaps, does not indulge in so much little tittle tattle as woman does, but in the big things he gossips quite as eagerly as any woman.

His gossip is more dangerous than woman's, for the reason that hers is generally taken with a grain of salt while his is believed implicitly.

He has established the reputation of being above such things as gossip, but to poor woman it is supposed to come as natural as breathing.

There is yet another deficiency we might touch on, and that is a man's density.

Have you ever tried to shut a man up by giving him a gentle push or a kick when you saw he was putting his foot in it, only to have him turn to you blandly and say, "What are you kicking me for?"

Isn't it maddening?

He has no more intuition than a hen, and the pathetic part of it is that he considers himself past master in the art of diplomacy and for-sightness."
