THE ANNUAL JULY SALES START TOMORROW (FRIDAY) AT LONDON HOUSE

The Premier Value-giving Event of Midsummer, Offering Thousands of Dollars' Worth of Specially Purchased and Specially Selected Merchandise From Stock at Amazingly Low Prices.

Wonderful midsummer bargains in women's, misses' and children's ready-to-wear garments. It would never pay to even think of getting garments made when such prices as we are quoting prevail.

This season's disposal sale is destined to eclipse both in point of completeness and money-saving possibilities, the most brilliant twice-a-year achievements of other seasons. This is due to the unsettled condition of trade, the tremendous bargains offered by manufacturers to clear, and our determination that our large stock of sensible merchandise must speedily find new owners in order that our inventory sheets be free from carry-overs and small lots. Come and help us accomplish our aims—and by so doing help yourself.

Special purchases of new merchandise that brings reasonable wearing apparel under the half mark.

Many of the specials selected from our regular stock are marked at prices that save you nearly half.

See special advertisement, page five, Daniel, Head of King Street.

Forty Taxis have left for Chipman this morning in charge of A. M. Gregg, to spend two weeks under canvas, attending the annual camp for boys under fifteen. The camp is in charge of A. M. PECULIAR SUICIDE

Man and Girl Connected Electricity to Shoes.

Berlin, July 14.—The long chances one takes in suicide dying in Germany these days are illustrated in the experience of a young girl named Anna, who leaped into a suburban lake, having first carefully disrobed on the banks. Once in the water, Anna changed her mind. Her shrieks attracted the attention of a patrol of heavily armed "green" police, who hunted her ashore with nets. In the excitement of the rescue someone stole Anna's clothes, and she had to be brought home to her mother in a closed cab.

A strange double suicide is reported from Neustadt. A man of twenty-three and a girl of sixteen fastened a wooden shoe to a wire, threw it over an electric transmission cable and were shocked to death.

URGES USE OF VEGETABLES

Miss Abby L. Marlett Gives Some Hints to Housewives.

(N. Y. Times) "Plenty of properly prepared vegetables are a great aid in keeping the family well," explains Miss Abby L. Marlett, director of home economics at the University of Wisconsin, "but to get best results the housewife must cook green vegetables carefully."

Here are some suggestions offered by Miss Marlett: "If vegetables are wilted, they may be refreshed by soaking in cold water for an hour before being cooked. If the head and leaf vegetables are soaked head down in cold water, to which a tablespoon of vinegar has been added, the insects will drop out.

"Use as little water as possible in boiling green vegetables, and save the water that is left for soups and sauces. A large part of the minerals and valuable vitamins which promote the growth of children dissolve out and are lost if the water is not saved for use. If the water is allowed to evaporate at the end of the cooking, much food value is saved.

"Cooking vegetables in a steamer over a kettle of boiling water means a saving of mineral matter. Such vegetables as spinach, celery, cabbage, cauliflower and carrots may lose as much as 86 per cent. of their mineral matter by boiling. If these same vegetables are steamed the loss is not more than 6 per cent.

"Strong flavor in vegetables may be lessened if they are cooked in amounts of rapidly boiling water in open kettles. This is true of cabbage, cauliflower and onions. Cabbage may be 'cooked' at the end of twenty minutes. A longer time develops strong flavor and hard water may darken the color. Strongly flavored vegetables should not be cooked in the pressure cooker, because it emphasizes the flavor.

"Fresh green vegetables which consist of leaves and stems may be cooked without added water if heat is applied slowly, so that the water in the leaves escapes in such amount that the plant cooks in its own juices.

"The time required for cooking depends upon the method of cooking, the size, kind and size of the vegetables. It is wise to cook the tough part first and add the tender portion later.

"Delicately flavored vegetables, such as peas, string beans, squash and rutabagas, may be served in their own juices, seasoned only by salt, pepper and butter. Carrots, celery and Summer squash may be improved in appearance and flavor by first cooking in water and then draining and covering with white sauce."

PREDICTS DEFEAT OF THE TURKS

Greek Commander-in-Chief Has Great Confidence in His Soldiers—Praise for the American Y. M. C. A.

Smyrna, June 18.—(The Associated Press, by Mail.)—A complete victory of the Hellenic arms over the Kemalists of Turkey in the next offensive was predicted today by Major-General Anastasios Papoulas, the commander-in-chief of the Greek forces in Anatolia.

His army, he declared, had been enormously strengthened since the repulse at Eskishehr, and only by pure chance could the Turks now be successful. He further stated that his troops outnumbered the Kemalists by almost three to one and that his army was so mobile that it could attack at any point along the 500-kilometer front.

The Greek generalissimo, whose appearance suggests the old civil war type of soldier, received the correspondent in the ancient Turkish barracks overlooking Smyrna harbor. He had just finished admonishing a group of officers telling them that they must put aside factional political feelings, think only of the good of their country and leave politics to Athens. He exhorted them that they must consider themselves as fathers and brothers to their men, and be true to their duty to God and the King.

General Papoulas is about sixty-five years old, of commanding physique and impressive features and with a great charm of manner. He has been a soldier for thirty years and is held in great affection and esteem by his men.

"We are anxious to show the world that this time we can crush the Turk if given a fair chance," said the general sanguinely. "Our soldiers are impatient to begin the fight. Only this moment I received a message from them urging that they be sent forward. We want to put an end to Kemal and his outlaw government.

"Our soldiers seek redress for the lives of their brothers and sisters who have been the victims of Turkish rapacity and murder. Our king is now with us; in his presence our soldiers will find renewed inspiration and strength. Naturally, I cannot say when the offensive will begin; but we are prepared, and I have no fear of the result."

The Greek commander-in-chief spoke in high terms of the work of the American Young Men's Christian Association, which, he said, had centers in all parts of the zone from Smyrna to the front.

"I cannot appraise in words the value of their material aid and moral stimulus to our men. The best appreciation of their devoted work is to be found in the hearts of our soldiers themselves, who look upon America as the protector of the world and the chief bulwark of democracy and humanity," the general declared.

The strength of the Kemal forces was placed by General Papoulas at between 80,000 and 90,000. He did not believe that they were receiving much assistance from either the Russian Bolsheviks or the Germans. He said he was sure that his own arm was given no material aid by the British, as has been frequently asserted; but he knew that the English military observers with the Greek army were kindly disposed and helpful.

Two small boys were discussing the various attributes of their respective parents, and the conversation had reached the highly critical stage and threatened to get even warmer still.

"Well," remarked Tommy Stubbs, "you can say what you like but I reckon your father's about the meanest man that ever lived!"

"My father is not mean!" screamed Bobby Roberts.

"Yes, he is mean," repeated Tommy, "or else why does he let you go about in such shabby shoes when he is a shoemaker by trade?"

"All right," answered Bobby, "but at any rate he is not so mean as your father. Why, he's a dentist, and yet your baby brother's got only one tooth!"

LOST BRIDE RETURNS DAZED
Unable to Recognize Own Mother or Realize Own Identity.

Chicago, July 13 — Her mind a blank, Mrs. Ruth Holman, a twenty-year-old bride who has been missing since July 1, walked into the office of Police Chief Fitzmorris on Saturday and asked him to tell her who she was.

She was immediately recognized, and the chief telephoned for her mother, Mrs. Edgar Griffith.

"Ruth, don't you know me?" the mother sobbed.

"No, I don't know you," Mrs. Holman replied, and then broke down when further questions failed to bring coherent answers.

A ring and wrist watch Mrs. Holman wore when she disappeared were missing. She could give no clear account of where she had been.

CONFESSES LEADING NATIONAL THIEF RING

New Haven Prisoner Says His Band of 35 Men Has 14 Autos and Plenty of Money.

New Haven, Conn., July 14—Russell Wells, alias Dr. Samuel Burton, alias "the oil magnate," has confessed that he is the leader of a nation-wide ring of thieves, numbering thirty-five men, who have been looting towns and cities in this country for several years. He added that the gang has fourteen automobiles and plenty of money to spend, since one of the men alone is worth a half million dollars.

Inquiry at the county jail here disclosed the fact that warrants of arrest for him as soon as he was released on July 27 have been received from the police of Worcester and Springfield, Mass.

Claiming Bolivia, N. Y., as his native home, Wells, in his confession, informed the police that he had selected Meriden, where he was arrested, simply because

On To Calgary and The Women's Council

The hour had arrived for the customary afternoon dip, so we went down to the beach, accompanied by the new friend and her little dog, and found a place to watch the swimmers. This beach is kept only for the use of the residents, and men and women, girls and youths, were gaily swimming quite far out, diving, etc., while the kiddies were being coaxed into the water reluctantly and anxiously, to learn the art of swimming and protection.

The pet dog, who had reached years of discretion, and who almost seemed unconscious of that canine instinct for swimming, ran up and down, barking and quivering with eagerness, one minute making a dash for the incoming wave, or seeking safety in heavy exclaiming while his owner sagely deprecated his lack of proper courage. Tea, served in the coolness of the evening, while the little Mona Lisa had somehow disappeared mysteriously—a neighbor's child, it was told, but a steady frequenter of the attractive tennis court, with most always her prized possession held by a dimpled looking handle that cracked audibly its will of protest against the ownership of a too optimistic little girl.

Before the sun was setting a start was made for return to the city, as the knowledge of the crowded ferries at a later hour was uppermost; especially as the decision had been made not to relinquish a Pullman reservation which might not again be attainable for a week (in view of the heavy exodus from Toronto's soaring mercury, which was steadily climbing upward) on available trains to the sea.

At the King Edward, where the still moving delegate found an agreeable hotel clerk, and was permitted registration (for in some hotels unless you are arranging for a room this is not possible), a quiet place was sought among the restful chairs of the lounge on the second floor, where came shortly the president of the Toronto Council, with her daughter, to extend the courtesies of an evening motor drive. Mrs. Smythe had returned from the National a few days previous, and regrettably informed the St. John member of what she had missed by not listening to her oft repeated invitation to return by the lake route with her. But the representative who had straggled back to Toronto in all the dust and heat of a dry country could still be glad she had enjoyed those extra days with Calgary's friends. The somnolence of mosquito bites had passed, the dust forgotten, and there lingered only the loving memories of those last hurried teas and luncheons.

Mrs. Smythe was elected to office when Lady Falconer resigned at the Toronto Council's annual meeting, and is proving an alert officer, with an optimism that is not assumed, but proportionate to the future of the Council's progressive development.

The arrival of a member of the Yacht Club, a returned aviation officer, who had deplored her inability to accompany him to the club luncheon that day when the members were joyously entertaining on a large scale, found the still indefatigable St. John representative equal to the power of speech, but declaring that an unchanged toilette had brought the firm conviction of having joined the noble army of summer camps. The polite protestations of the courteous young cousin, an insistent invitation for a motor drive, a visit to the ladies' retiring room, where wonders can be attained with welcome emollients for a sunburned face; a brisk whisking by an interested attendant, and the sotto voce of determined friends, and a rested, trim-looking, transformed delegate came forth to enjoy that evening motor drive.

Toronto by night, or shall I say "through the thoroughfares of Toronto by night." The intense heat of the day had vanished, the holiday-makers at rest, tired kiddies murmurs hushed in heavy slumber; the noise of a busy city fallen to minor note, while the miles of well-paved lighted streets presented a different aspect from the afternoon of sunshine, and crowded cars and motors. Lake Ontario is calm, no breeze to ripple its glassy surface, and out beyond a few stray lights, and above the stars glow brightly.

"For toil has folded hands to dream, and cure has ceased to frown, And every wave's a lyric when the dark comes down."

Then out in the county along Dunvegan Road, to the home where the cousin lives, with the mother, an old-time school friend and closer cousin, a further drive out to the beautifully situated Country Club, then back to the station in time to catch that train to Montreal. The difficulty of obtaining Pullman transportation, if decision were in favor of remaining two days in Toronto on persuasion of friends, only inspired determination to board that waiting train.

Mrs. Dignam, whom St. John friends will be grieved to learn has suffered an unfortunate fall down stairs, had been prevented from sending to the National Council her report on Fine and Applied Arts, from the Art Association, and a report from all the committees on this work in Council over Canada. Mrs. Smythe had been appointed to tional benefits to those returning members; and the mutual assent and recognition of National Council's indelible impressions left behind on the city where the conviction had been welding an influence for more of National and less of self-centered domination.

Many members who had been plodding for years for a Local Council, not estimating the national character to be assumed and strengthened, had been released, away from the one-province idiosyncrasy, and realized that unity was for Canada and for the eleven

Canadian ideals and standards for Canadian women, and for the biggest asset of all the Dominion—the Canadian children.

The mental powers were rested, and once more alert for action, physical. The train on its journey through the night gathered speed and stations came and went, but only was the sleeper conscious that she had been in some miraculous way transferred to the green roads and rose gardens of dreams where was weaving shaves of thought and love for home.

THE MARITIME MERCHANT
(Halifax Recorder)

With the issue of The Maritime Merchant, on Thursday last, that Journal commenced its 50th year. So young, so good-looking and so vigorous, not a sign of grey hair. The Recorder, now in its 50th year, extends its congratulations. Editor Stewart, in the issue referred to, says:—

"About the hardest thing in the world some men have to do is to say a word of appreciation of approval of the other fellow's effort. They will lend him money; sit up with him at night if he is ill; do all sorts of charitable things, sometimes at great sacrifice to themselves, and apparently be glad to do them. But when it comes to patting him on the shoulder and saying 'Good work, my boy' there's nothing doing."

We take great pleasure in patting editor Stewart on the shoulder and saying that The Maritime Merchant deserves all the good words that can be said regarding it.

MATTER OF THE ONE-MAN CARS

Letter from W. F. Hatheway Read at Council Meeting Today.

Many Tenders for Newman Brook Arch—Claim for Damages Against City by Automobile Owner—Status of Public Taxis is Questioned and Investigation will be Made.

Objection to the operation of the one-man cars which are now being used by the New Brunswick Power Co. was expressed in a letter to the city council from W. Frank Hatheway, one of the members of the board of conciliation which investigated the dispute between the power company and its employees about three weeks ago.

Commissioner Thornton, of the safety department, announced that he was having an examination of one of the cars in operation made this morning. The mayor presided and all the commissioners were present.

The mayor presented a letter from Percy J. Steel, regarding a previous complaint that water flowed across his property at the corner of Main and Elm streets. Commissioner Frink said the trouble could be remedied by the installation of a couple of catch basins.

Tenders for the erection of a concrete arch over Newman Brook were opened and referred to Commissioner Jones and the city engineer for report. They were as follows (price a cubic yard):

A letter from W. Frank Hatheway was read protesting against the operation of the one-man cars now in use in the city. He referred to the report of the conciliation board which recommended that before the cars were operated they be fitted with automatic brakes.

Commissioner Thornton reported that he was investigating the matter and had arranged for an inspection this afternoon with the city engineer and city electrician.

A request from the Canada Nail Co. to allow the charge for lease to remain at $300 a year instead of the increased amount of $700 was further considered.

Commissioner Bullock asked to have the matter laid over until the council has the details of the transaction. The whole matter was referred to Mr. Bullock for report.

R. A. Davidson wrote placing a claim for damages done to a car belonging to Martin M. McDool of Penfield by running into a rut in Douglas avenue, breaking an axle, radius rod and windshield. The claim was for $45. It was referred to Commissioner Frink.

C. A. Emery, secretary of the board of assessors, recommended the granting of contract to A. Milne Fraser for the making of stencils for the women's franchise list. He tendered for $275, the matter was referred to the mayor for report.

Commissioner Thornton said that some of the vehicles being used as taxis in the city were not safe for public travel. He said that now that the number was getting large something should be done in the matter.

THE EVENING TIMES AND STAR, ST. JOHN, N. B., THURSDAY, JULY 14, 1921

DOES NOT BITE FOR BITING'S SAKE

Black Fly Does It for the Kiddies—Only the Female
Can Cause Humans Worry.

(Toronto Mail and Empire.)
Water Collins O'Kane in the Boston Evening Transcript traces the criminal career of the black fly from the time it is an innocent egg through the period when it is an amphibious wriggler, then a pupa and then the mature fly. Mr.
O'Kane holds no brief for the black fly,
as for some strange reason he neglects to say, but he holds that there are good and bad black flies. The good ones are the males. They do not bite. They have an apparatus that looks as though it once were made for biting, but in the course of evolution it has lost this power. Nevertheless, we do not warm to the male black fly, for we gather that it is indirectly responsible for the blood-sucking tendencies of its mississ.

Where They Breed.
We learn, too, that when a female sometimes has an extra large cargo of eggs to deliver one meal is often not sufficient. She will take her bite and retire to lay her eggs, and, after laying a couple of hundred, will find it necessary to lay off and take some more nourishment before delivering the rest of them. One might look forward to the day when all mosquitoes shall be destroyed. Over such great areas as the Panama Canal some they have been practically exterminated and continue to retreat before the advance of civilization. If the stagnant water is either drained away or covered with oil the mosquitoes cannot come into the world.
They can breed only on stagnant water.
But no such hope can be held out with regard to the black fly. It does not breed in stagnant water, but in the swiftest running streams, and to abolish them it would appear necessary to abolish the streams as well.

The Wrighlers.
Says our authority, "The larvae, or wrighlers, of the black fly live attached to smooth rocks or to almost any object just beneath rapidly flowing water.
Where a mountain brook boils down over a boulder bed or where it flows swiftly in a thin sheet over a smooth, worn side, in such places the larvae will be abundant. But the streams of meadows and of more level country breed millions as well. Here every grass blade that bends to lie just beneath the surface of the water may carry a dozen or a score of the wrighlers." The reason the larvae, or wrighlers, are deposited under water is because it is from the water that they derive their nourishment as they struggle up to blackflyhood. This food is supposed to consist of microscopic portions of animal matter. When the fly is ready to lay its eggs, they are deposited either just at the surface of the water or just beneath. The eggs must have moisture, for if they dry out they soon lose their vitality. Black flies have been observed to actually go under water for a fraction of a second and deposit their eggs.

The Best Protection.
We shall not detain you with a long history of the black fly's development, nor what probably occupies its thoughts in the months that elapse from the time they are an egg until they become the proud possessors of eggs of their own. Sometimes the period does not occupy more than five weeks. Sometimes it consumes six months, but what happens to a black fly that is born in the fall we do not know. In the north, as a rule, we have two generations of black flies in a season. Further south they have four or five. Mr. O'Kane makes the sensible remark that there is only one certain protection from the flies, apart from moving out of their country. That is to wear leather gloves and a net over the head. It may also be weights were as necessary as the iron box, because, while merchants met from time to time, and placed a common value on the guineas, doubloons, Mexican and Spanish dollars that came over their counters, there was always danger of loss

The first volume of the "History of the Canadian Bank of Commerce," has arrived at the public libraries.
The old Halifax Banking Company history is contained in chapter 11, and comprises 223 pages of the most interesting matter in the volume. Of Hon. Enos Collins, and his colleagues in the old Free Bank of Nova Scotia, there are some personal touches, supplied by an old inhabitant who knew some of them personally, especially Collins. He quite coins tendered him were of standard weight, or, if not, how much they lacked, that he was willing to accept them.

A sea captain, just home from a cruise, leading a small procession of sailors carrying bags of treasure, landed by a guard armed with stout cudgels or cutlasses, was no uncommon sight on Water street in those days, and as often as not these little bands turned into the stone warehouse at the head of Collins' wharf. There Enos Collins and his partner, Joseph Allison, still continued to be important factors in the diminished trade of the port, even after the lucrative opportunities of the French and American wars had vanished. The preceding years of adventure had left the firm not only vastly enriched, but occupying a high place in the commercial world, because of their daring exploits.
It was these men who had been most successful in running the French blockade with shipments of flour and provisions for the support of Wellington's army in the Peninsula and eluding the French fleet a second time with their return cargoes, thus securing double profits.

WARM DEBATE ON COMMISSION ACT

Slim Attendance at Meeting Last Night—H. R. McLellan Points Out Defect in Act—Mayor and Commissioner Bullock Favor the Scheme.

While the meeting called by Mayor Schofield for the purpose of discussing harbor commission for this port was poorly attended in the Seaman's Institute last evening...

Mr. Emerson, in a brief speech, expressed himself in favor of harbor commission but said that there were many points to be explained.

The mayor took a supposition that the harbor commission had gone into force here in 1912, and showed by figures that the city would have had a balance of $299,229 instead of $8,400 or $4,000 net gain showed by his previous figures.

The harbor area was originally 650 acres, of which 303 acres had been given to the government free. Two hundred and fifty acres were returned to the city's name.

WELCOME RELIEF FROM ECZEMA

Complete Treatment That Gives Gratifying Results

It had an attack of Weeping Eczema so bad that my clothes would be wet through at times. For four months, I suffered terribly...

Mr. Beatty of the C. P. R. was opposed to it but he did not speak purely from the fact that the present site would be retained.

There was no guarantee that the commission would see that the harbor would be maintained in its present condition.

The mayor said that it was a mistake to think that the rates would be increased. The harbor would be placed on a parity with other harbors.

Mr. McLellan said that he was in favor of the harbor commission. He said that the harbor commission would be a step towards the harbor being a national port.

Commissioner Frink was called on for his opinion, but he thought there should be an expression from the public.

Straw Hats, Frozen in Ice, Make Novel Display.

Six 200-pound blocks of ice with a straw hat frozen in the centre of each, displayed in prominent places of the business district, was the unique manner in which L. Strauss & Co., of Indianapolis, opened their straw hat drive recently.

Six brand-new straw hats were sent to the refrigerating company's plant where they were imprisoned in transparent oblongs of ice. Each hat was placed in a 200-pound ice vat and frozen so that it would be horizontal, top-side up and near the top when the cake of ice was stood on end.

The novel show cases, so to speak, were then distributed in the busiest section of the downtown shopping district. One was displayed behind the large show window at the front of the Strauss arcade. The other five were put on the sidewalk in front of theatres, cigar stores and the like, where they attracted much attention. The ice was placed on the curb in order that it might not impede traffic and that the water resulting from the melting would run into the gutter. On one side was tied a sign bearing two words—"Strauss says." To the residents of Indianapolis these are household words, so that the passing spectator immediately caught the significance of the display. The unusually warm weather Monday helped to put the "stunt" over big.

In the evening, the attention value of the sidewalk publicity was taken advantage of in a follow-up in an Indianapolis paper, where an advertisement was run with a wash-drawing in half-tone of the straw hat increased in its block of ice. The argument of the picture was driven home by this copy: "Strauss says, 'Time for straw hats—The place? We'll leave it to you!'"

Abraham Told Them in No Uncertain Language.

Everybody seems to be picking on the retailer. The farmer says the merchant wholesalers hint as much. The same thing is said openly by government officials, and the buying public is repeatedly told that they won't get relief until the retailer is made to lower the price of the goods he has for sale.

A. T. Abraham, shoe retailer, of Lake City, Minn., got tired of hearing the retailer "bawled out" and blamed for existing conditions. One day he woke the citizens of Lake City up with an advertising broadside that became the talk of the town and redounded to his material advantage. It was rather a shock, but it made folks stop and think about the charges being made so freely against the retailer.

In the four-column advertisement, in blackface type, the Abraham store said: "The woods are full of amateur economists who claim that prices of clothing, underwear, hosiery, shirts, sweaters, overalls and shoes will soon return to pre-war levels.

"Will they?"

"Yes, they sure will!"

"When hard coal is back to $9 a ton, when railroad fares are back to two cents a mile,

"When house rent is back to $25 a month,

"When gasoline is back to ten cents a gallon,

"When telephone rates are back to $1 a month,

"When a square meal is back to a quarter,

"When labor is back to $2 a day,

"When gas is back to ninety cents,

"When shaves are back to ten cents,

"When the freight rate from New York, now $1.84, is back to ninety-seven cents,

"When street-car fares are back to a nickel,

"When money is back to five per cent,

"When cooks are back to $3 a week,

"When haircuts are back to a quarter,

"When movies are back to a nickel,

"When a car wash is back to ten dollars,

"When ice cream is back to a dime,

"When a doctor's call is back to two bucks,

"When a newspaper is back to a penny.

"For the love of Mike," continues the advertisement, "why expect the retailer to go the route alone? Why expect us and no one else to go back to pre-war prices?"

"Beg your pardon, we forgot the farmer. He, too, is getting it hard. Why pick on us?"

"Aren't we all in on this proposition together? Haven't we got to work it out together? Well, then, haven't we, the retailers, got much faster and much further than the average in reducing prices and making readjustments? We'll say we have.

"We're ahead, we and the farmer—way ahead of the procession. Now let the barbers and the movie houses and the Standard Oil and the soft-drink parlor and the landlords and the hotels and restaurants and the drymen and the bankers cut their prices and catch up with us.

"It's time for us to pick on somebody.

"We've been the goat long enough."

—And There Isn't a Box in the Store!

Decked with shining rows of mahogany cases, divided into compartments small enough to hold a 4-4 glove on the first floor to a row of fresh blouses on the third, the Hunter-Tupper Department Store in Syracuse, N. Y., is today ranking as the first paper-boxless retail concern in the country.

A total absence of the pasteboard box, heretofore considered an indispensable adjunct of the retail department store, is the most striking feature about the newly equipped establishment. From the ground floor, with its notions, toilet accessories and small wearing equipment, up through the women's wear of the children's department, the crockery and household goods, as far as the fourth floor, where the house furnishings begin, the new mahogany cases hold sway.

In the words of the advertising manager, "We put them everywhere that the rug department—and we couldn't get them big enough for that."

The cases mark a new departure in the retail business in Syracuse, for no other store in the city is able to present its goods to such advantage as these cases permit. The entire establishment from the first to the top floor is finished in the mahogany and the hotels and restaurants and the drymen and the bankers cut their prices and catch up with us.

"It's time for us to pick on somebody.

"We've been the goat long enough."

Can Goods Be Sold on Three Months' Guarantee?

M. J. Jackson, of the Robinson furniture store in San Jose, Cal., had long cherished a vision of a specialty shop where nothing but nationally advertised, tested, approved and thoroughly dependable merchandise would be sold to the housewife with a positive guarantee that said: "Keep this article three months and thoroughly test it, and if you find you do not like it, we insist on your bringing it back."

Jackson's friends sadly shook their heads and his competitors chuckled gleefully when it became known that a small shop adjoining the Robinson furniture store had been secured for the Specialty Shop and that Jackson was to take charge of it, while every sale would include a three months' trial of the article purchased. Such a policy had never been heard of out on the Pacific coast. It simply couldn't work!

But it did!

Here is the psychology of it. Mrs. Brown purchases an electric vacuum cleaner at the Specialty Shop. Proudly she is sent to her home, and after one or two trials she is perfectly satisfied that it is exactly what she wants. Proudly she pushes it back and forth over the rugs. Some sweeper! Then Friend Neighbor happens in. "Oh, I see you have a new vacuum cleaner. You ought to have one like mine. Nothing like it! Had it a year and never a cent for repairs!"

Mrs. Brown's heart sinks. Why hadn't she investigated the merits of the other make before purchasing? What if she had been stung? She rushes to the telephone. "Mr. Jackson, my neighbor says that her sweeper is much better than the one I bought, and cheaper, too. What do you think?"

And he answers: "I think you are the one to be satisfied. It is you who will use the cleaner. I'll be right out to your house with a sweeper of the other make and let you compare the two and take your choice."

Out he goes to Brown's (if he hadn't carried the other sweeper in stock, such is his faith in his own lines that he would have gone out and bought it and risked comparison), and in her own mind Mrs. Brown soon admits that her vacuum cleaner must be all right because there wasn't the least hesitancy in offering to exchange it for one costing less money, with the difference refunded. Such is human nature that when she has perfect liberty to exchange she doesn't want to. Jackson returns to the shop with the other sweeper, as he knew he would.

The slogan of the little shop, if it has one, would be something like this: "We make good on a sale good on absolutely satisfy the customer if we lose every cent of profit."

Jackson attributes his phenomenal success in this new venture to specialization—including first, last and all the time, specialized service. Every repairman, every salesman is a specialist in some one line. He not only knows this line from A to Z, but his competitors as well, and he is paid enough to make it worth his while to learn everything about the different makes so he can discuss them intelligently and with authority.

They Come From Four Towns to Buy Here.

Suppose you had a store at a country crossroads in the centre of four good-sized towns, but eight miles from the nearest of them and good concrete roads the only thing in your favor? How would you go about getting their business?

Yes, it can be done. The Neal Bros. have done it. Or rather, the sons of Nealville, N. C. have done it. Or brothers have done it, with the assistance of their wives. It was the result of a keen inspiration, just the logical outgrowth of reasonably taking advantage of an opportunity when it presented.

The idea of gasoline, oil and a repair shop, coupled with sandwiches and lunches, looked about right. They tried it out. It was right. Many of the machines stopped when they saw the gasoline tanks and the signs telling of the sandwiches.

The next step was to so arrange the lunch-room that as the customers sat and ate the merchandise of the store would be in view. So only a railing, more decorative than anything else, separated the lunch room from the body of the store.

Here was where the wives of the sons of the Neal brothers got into the game. They arranged the displays of inexpensive house dresses, caps and the like with yards prominently featuring the prices. The women patrons of the lunch-room were quick to see that these prices were lower than those quoted in the town shops for similar goods. They were lower, of course, because the overhead of the store was lower. They began to buy. They began to drop in when they passed the crossroads from one town to another, even when they did not want lunch. They'd saved up many of their little purchases of household articles until the date of their visit to a neighboring town. Then the store began to push things. The wives visited the four towns. They noted the sort of merchandise which sold well, the sort for which there was a demand.

The store today is doing a business of about $25,000 in general merchandise and a lunch business of $60,000 a year, with just 150 people in town and eight miles to the nearest of the four sources of trade, all four of which have good shops.
