

CHIGNECTO POST AND BORDERER.

SACKVILLE, N. B., JULY 22, 1886.

—Justin McCarthy is to lecture in Charlottetown in September.

—Hon. Mr. White, Minister of the Interior, is at Victoria, B. C., perfecting the organization of a Land Department for the Pacific Province.

—Queen-Dowager Marie, of Bavaria has ordered the erection of a memorial chapel near the spot where the remains of her son, King Ludwig, were found.

—A New Brunswick for the last week has been endeavoring to collect $10 promised him at Sackville for his vote at the late election, so says the Summerside Journal.

—The convention between the steel rail manufacturers of England, Belgium and Germany formed for the purpose of preventing ruinous competition has expired. It is stated that the convention will not be renewed.

—At a banquet given by the Savage Club in London, on Saturday evening, Sir George Bowen predicted a speedy confederation of the Empire, wherein, perhaps, the United States would join, thus assuring the peace of the world.

—We are informed that Rev. W. E. Vickery claims that the recent action of the Southern Baptist Association, in severing the connection he held as one of its members, was entirely unjustifiable, and is about to enter an action against the Association for damages.

—There is to be a new amended extradition treaty between Great Britain and the United States. The number of crimes which will be extraditable offenders will be considerably enlarged, and the various provisions of the law will be made more precise and more rigid.

—It is rumored in the London clubs that while both Lord Hartington and Mr. Chamberlain will support Lord Salisbury, neither will accept office under him. To obviate this difficulty some believe, that the Duke of Argyll will become Premier, and that Lord Salisbury and Hartington will serve under him.

—The local elections will shortly be held in Quebec, probably in the course of next month. Both sides have their candidates in the field and the contest is waxing warmer every day. Unfortunately the Opposition is appealing to the country mainly on the execution of Riel. Such a course cannot be too deeply deplored.

—Sir Charles Tupper recently spoke on Imperial Confederation at a meeting of the London Chamber of Commerce. He took strong ground against a suggested imperial tax on Colonial shipping for the purposes of defence, showing that such a tax would most unfairly burden Canada as being the great ship-owning colony of the empire.

—Gabriel Dumont, Riel's right hand man in the North-West rebellion was recently the guest of the French societies in New York at the celebration of the fall of the Bastille. In replying to a toast he stoutly maintained the righteousness of the cause in which he had been fighting. It is officially stated that he is to be allowed to return to Canada unopposed.

—Israel McLaughlin, who recently attempted an assault on a young lady at Hampton, has been sentenced to the penitentiary for life. He has been many times before found under suspicious circumstances in the apartments of women, though it is not known that he has actually succeeded in committing any assault. Hence some think that he is simply a crank, and the Chatham World advocates that an attempt be made on this ground to have his sentence shortened.

—On July 10th Chief Justice Allen gave judgment in the matter of the application to remove Election petition for the County of Albert from the files, ordering it to be removed on the ground that the petition should be a separate recognition for each respondent instead of one for both. His Honor said there was considerable doubt in his mind about the point and therefore he would suspend operation of his order until October to allow the matter to come before the full Bench, at which time it will be argued.

—They administer justice in a vigorous but rather eccentric manner in Victoria, C. A girl living in that region recently had a number of men sent up for trial to the Supreme Court on the charge of criminally assaulting her. Before the trial, however, the accused parties had her arrested for perjury, brought before the County Court, tried, found guilty, and sent to the penitentiary. The Attorney General is reported to be looking into the case. It is to be hoped that an end will be put to this checkmate style of meeting out justice.

—The Provincial Board of Agriculture met on Tuesday week at the stock farm. All the members, save Mr. Colwell, were present. After a long discussion it was decided to ask the Government to grant $10,000 for the purchase of eight or ten English stock horses, the money to be deducted from the agricultural grants for a term of years to come. After the meeting, the members of the board took a look over the ground. With the exception of hay which is this year, very light, the crops are looking very well. The spring calves of this year, which are now in the stables, are said to be the best that have been raised on the farm. They are a fine looking lot of animals and all very large for their age.

THE TRURO AGRICULTURAL SCHOOL.

SACKVILLE, N. B., JULY 22, 1886.

Whatever the defects of the present Government of Nova Scotia, it certainly deserves great credit for its course in establishing a School of Agriculture in connection with the Normal School at Truro. The first term of the institution recently closed, after what is stated to have been a very successful term's work. The closing exercises were held in the Assembly Room of the Normal School, and were attended by a large and representative audience. Interesting addresses were delivered by various gentlemen, particularly by Col. J. K. Blair, to whom the school very largely owes its origin, and who expressed himself as very much gratified by the success crowning the labors of the first term. Two young men, Messrs. T. W. H. King and G. B. McGill, graduated with honors, the former taking two cash prizes amounting to $80.00, and the latter, two prizes to the value of $20.00.

The closing exercises were held in the Assembly Room of the Normal School, and were attended by a large and representative audience. Interesting addresses were delivered by various gentlemen, particularly by Col. J. K. Blair, to whom the school very largely owes its origin, and who expressed himself as very much gratified by the success crowning the labors of the first term. Two young men, Messrs. T. W. H. King and G. B. McGill, graduated with honors, the former taking two cash prizes amounting to $80.00, and the latter, two prizes to the value of $20.00.

In this interesting production Mr. King showed how important it was to the farmer to know thoroughly the origin and constituents of the soil and its relations to the plant, discussing the formation of soils through the disintegration by natural agencies of different rocks, and the amalgamation thereof of organic materials, resulting from the decay of plant matter. Proceeding, he gave a valuable account of the soils of Nova Scotia and their characteristics, and discussed the best methods of coping with the peculiarities of each by drainage, tillage, the application of fertilizers, &c. &c. Mr. McGill's thesis was on the "Diseases of Agricultural Plants."

1. Those caused by the excess of defect of richness in the soil, and by the effects of light, heat, moisture, &c. 2. Those caused by poisonous agencies. 3. Those caused by parasitic plants. 4. Those caused by mechanical injuries and the attacks of insects. Particular attention was paid to parasitic growths, such as smut, rust, and ergot, and the use of copper was strongly urged, both as a remedy for these diseases and as a fertilizer when applied somewhat sparingly—say half a pint per acre. It was stated that potato rot, in particular, could be warred off by the use of farm-yard manure, watered with copper-water.

TRIUMPH OF CANADIAN PLUCK AND DIPLOMACY.

There is good reason to believe that a satisfactory solution of the vexed fishery question will soon be reached. There is already a marked difference in the tone of the freighting portion of the United States press, and some American papers are forced to admit that a fair and reasonable settlement of the points of difference between the two countries would be of advantage to both. The attitude of the Imperial Government in reference to the matter is a sad disappointment to American fishermen, and the college sympathizers, and the expressed conviction of American demagogues and their Grit friends that Canadian statesmen would get their knuckles rapped by the Home authorities has been ridely discredited by the firm and dignified course pursued by Great Britain in connection with the dispute.

It has been repeatedly urged by Grit press that the Dominion should have secured a renewal of the treaty of Washington before it accepted, but even the most rabid Grits are beginning to realize that the consent of both parties is necessary in making such a bargain. The dialysis course pursued by a portion of the Canadian press has doubtless retarded the settlement of the fishery trouble, but the plucky and determined action of the Dominion Government in protecting our fisheries in spite of sneers and censure at home and abroad, and especially abroad, has had the desired effect, and is likely to lead to an early date to bring about a settlement of which Canadians have no reason to be ashamed.

Our enterprising contemporary, the Summerside Journal, publishes regularly an extra, devoted to agriculture. The last one copies an article from the Post, advocating the establishment of the Maritime Agricultural Station at this place. We are glad to receive the influential endorsement of the Journal, but as that paper has omitted any quotations marks or other references by name to Sackville, we fear many of its readers will be in doubt as to the locality advocated. The question is an important one for P. E. Island as for the mainland. A location in as close proximity to the island as possible would make the promised institution yield important benefits to the farmers beyond the straits.

—Mr. Justin McCarthy, while not objecting to a treaty between England and the United States for the extradition of dynamite and Socialist, fears its scope might be extended to include political offenders.

—At a dinner party given to the members of his Cabinet on Saturday night by Mr. Gladstone, the decision of resigning was arrived at.

—Up to the 6th, 1,500,000 people attended the Colonial Exhibition—an unprecedented gathering.

THE NEW PARLIAMENT.

SACKVILLE, N. B., JULY 22, 1886.

When the British Parliament re-assembles the members will be distributed thus: Conservatives 816, Liberal Unionists 72, Gladstone Liberals 196, Parallellists 86. As the Parliament contains 670 members it will be seen that the Conservatives fall 20 short of a bare majority. But they will need 20 or 30 more at least than a bare majority in order to run the Government comfortably. It is plain therefore that the Conservatives if they are to take office will have to form an alliance with the Liberal Unionists. But there are difficulties here. The Conservatives will not be able to legislate in accordance with their own views without being sure of always having a majority. Can the Liberal Unionists, in accordance with the conditions of their election, give a steady support to the Conservative policy? It is difficult to see how they can. The only point of contact between the two bodies is the negative one of opposition to Mr. Gladstone's Home Rule Bill. The leading Liberals, such as Lord Hartington and Sir Henry James, have refused to enter a coalition with the Conservatives. The Marquis of Salisbury will probably be called on to form a ministry which will drag on an inert existence till either the Liberal Unionists make up their minds to join Mr. Gladstone and the Conservatives, or the Conservatives decide to support the Marquis of Salisbury. The Marquis of Salisbury will probably be called on to form a ministry which will drag on an inert existence till either the Liberal Unionists make up their minds to join Mr. Gladstone and the Conservatives, or the Conservatives decide to support the Marquis of Salisbury.

Commercial.

—The New Albion gold mining company report a profit on the year's working of $2,988.

—First-class freight will be carried by the Canadian Pacific Railway from Winnipeg to Victoria, B. C., a distance of about fifteen hundred miles, for $1.89 per hundred pounds.

—In 1885 New Brunswick exported of her own products to the value of $5,223,282—lumber $3,269,381, fish $1,111,498, animals and their products $894,037, manufactures $244,450, agricultural products $38,172, and minerals $67,183.

Personal.

—Rev. Dr. Hole, of London, England, has been induced to resign St. Paul's Church in place of Dr. Hill.

—Sir John A. MacDonald has had an enthusiastic reception at Winnipeg. He was met by a large number of his admirers, and his arrival was hailed with enthusiasm.

—Messrs. Cobb and Laird, Congressmen, recently came to blows in one of the lobbies of the Capitol at Washington.

—Thomas Webster, a gentleman from New York, died of paralysis last week at the Parker House, Fredericton.

—John H. Craig, "the Kentucky giant," is supposed to be the largest man living. He is 6 ft. 4 in. tall and weighs 792 lbs. It takes 37 yds. of shirting to make him a shirt.

—The adjutant chief convened at Gagetown on Tuesday last, Judge Watters, of St. John, presiding. When the Rev. D. D. Currie's case was called on, his counsel, L. A. Currie, moved for a writ of prohibition from a judge in the supreme court on the court and prosecutors, ordering them not to proceed with the case. The judge then declined to hear it or any motion in reference thereto.

—Our enterprising contemporary, the Summerside Journal, publishes regularly an extra, devoted to agriculture. The last one copies an article from the Post, advocating the establishment of the Maritime Agricultural Station at this place. We are glad to receive the influential endorsement of the Journal, but as that paper has omitted any quotations marks or other references by name to Sackville, we fear many of its readers will be in doubt as to the locality advocated. The question is an important one for P. E. Island as for the mainland. A location in as close proximity to the island as possible would make the promised institution yield important benefits to the farmers beyond the straits.

—The Industrial Journal of Bangor, Me., gives an account of the display of furniture, &c., in the Portland Centennial procession. It consisted of eight well filled covered wagons owned by the firm. The value of the goods exhibited, exclusive of the teams, was $5,768. The Messrs. Atkinson are natives of Woodport.

—It is stated that Earl Rosebery has sent an embassie protest to Russia against the closing of Batoum as a freeport, characterizing Russia's action in doing so as "a flagrant violation of the Treaty of Berlin."

—Hugh M. Brooks, alias W. H. Lennox Maxwell, convicted of murdering Charles Arthur Preller, was sentenced at St. Louis to be hanged August 27th, 1886.

—A man named James Junior, who called at Windsor Castle on Friday, to know if the Queen would marry him, has been sent to a lunatic asylum.

The Seigneurie of Chipody.

SACKVILLE, N. B., JULY 22, 1886.

A CHAPTER IN THE HISTORY OF ALBERT COUNTY.

New Accessions to Chipody.—The First Water Mill.—Progress of Settlement.

"It may be remarked" continued Des Goutins to the Royal Government "that this land is only marsh that has no great depth, that one can only raise cattle on it, that this delays the establishment of the settlement and prejudices the inhabitants. The men Jean, Antoine, Pierre and Michel as being the men who discovered the said river and have transported there at their own cost with their own vessels the people who have settled in the said river, petition for a title in fee of two leagues in front of the place in which they have commenced their settlement. You could not, monseigneur, gratify more worthy subjects in this country." We cannot but be touched with pity at the futility of the hopes and endeavors of a loyal and industrious people striving to make homes for themselves under the fleur de lais, the flag of their ancestors! Thirty years later the names of Jean, Antoine, Michel and Pierre Thibodeau, as residents at Annapolis Royal, appear signed to an oath of allegiance to George the second, with the other Acadian people of that time. Acadia, having in the meantime by the fortune of war fallen into English hands. But this is forestalling the narrative of events. In 1709, in the early spring, Thibodeau set sail with all his belongings. His own wife, one of his cousins, a rich farmer of Port Royal, Jean Francois Brossard, confided to him his oldest son, Pierre, aged eighteen years. This Brossard settled himself in Acadia between 1671 and 1686, and prospered had followed his labors. He was an active, enterprising man of about fifty years of age and was pleased enough with the idea of the new settlement. He sent his son in advance to reconnoitre these fertile valleys, where he himself was later to play a certain role. Four other young men, sons of tenants, Andre and Jack Martin, Pierre and Francois Pitre, joined the expedition as prospectors, all in the strength of youth. All belonged to ancient families of Acadia capable of sustaining them in their enterprise. Six other young men had been engaged by the way by Thibodeau for the long and tedious journey. He loaded also his two mules, and all the munitions necessary, a poultry yard complete, a horse, cows, a bull and hogs.

On entering the Chipody river, he found his two sons awaiting him, for the night before they had been notified by their friends the Micilets, that he had seen a European sail in the bay. It is easy to understand how great was their joy at the meeting after the isolation of how long a time. He loaded the reception they met. The young men had not been idle, a number of packs of pelts in the store house, besides newly made utensils, also large quantities of square timber, bore evidence of their industry.

While a portion of this infant colony commenced to put in the spring crop, the others were employed in completing the ditches and abateaux and the dam the Parish they were to construct. Their work was young, alert, habituated to the sort of work, united by common interest and in the primitiveness of their lives, they were easily controlled by the old man Thibodeau. They were in love with their work and it advanced rapidly. The spring, which appeared in all its verdure, opened their hearts with hope, and the uneasiness which first beset them was dissipated by the powerful charm of the realities of prosperity in view.

On entering the Chipody river, he found his two sons awaiting him, for the night before they had been notified by their friends the Micilets, that he had seen a European sail in the bay. It is easy to understand how great was their joy at the meeting after the isolation of how long a time. He loaded the reception they met. The young men had not been idle, a number of packs of pelts in the store house, besides newly made utensils, also large quantities of square timber, bore evidence of their industry.

(To be Continued.)

Dorchester.

—The Trinity Church fair on Thursday was very successful. It netted $150. The ladies propose obtaining a new church bell.

—An election agent for the proprietor of the half acre fronting the hotels and law offices here, was proposed by a band of Salvationists under the leadership of Capt. Tupper, who marched in some weeks ago, converted Hickman's Hall into a barracks, paraded the streets, prayed for the people's sins, sang odes and ditties, wore poke bonnets edged with red tape, and such other things, and pounded their drum in defiance of the world, the flesh and the devil. Daily since, the praying and singing and thumping and drumming have gone on. The ungodly stand amazed, and a few have been converted. The "Opera House" the "Theatrical Club" have been furnishing lovers of the "Drama" with some first-class troops, such as the Bangor Opera Company in "Mikado," the King Hedley Company in "After Dark," and such other companies, who would do credit to any large city. The seating capacity of the Opera House is 800, and when any company of merit plays it is filled. Monctonians are fastidious, and as a result, the "Admission Blues" show only the highly "polished" headed top men—no ladies. The legitimate Drama is appreciated and patronized by the intelligence of the community.

—The natives "are" offered one more chance to be converted. This time it is the "Reformist Fathers." Between the different religious agencies at work, I think there can be little doubt as to the complete rout and total annihilation of the "devil." If so, then Sackville need not require to come down as "handsomely" at the next election as in the past. But the fact must not be lost sight of that Moncton counts big at voting time, and if the electorate be so pure that they elect the best, the best of the other-prising managers and manipulators of our industries will expect the "cola" to be invested here, in order to demonstrate that the N. P. and Moncton industries are a financial success. "You know."

He Acted Wisely.

"I am so weak I can hardly move, all run down with a Chronic Summer Complaint," said one gentleman to another on our street the other day. Now take my advice, "replied his friend, "go to your Druggist and get a bottle of Dr. Fowler's Extract of Wild Strawberry. I have never known it to fail in curing any kind of Summer Complaints."

New Advertisements.

PIGS.

I HAVE 30 Chester and Berkshire PIGS for sale. They are old enough to be taken away now.

JAMES R. AYER.

Cedar Shingles.

FOR SALE LOW: One Hundred Thousand Cedar Shingles.

JULY 19 JAMES R. AYER.

TEACHER WANTED.

A TEACHER is wanted for the term commencing the 2nd of August next. Apply to JOHN E. ATKINSON, Secy to Trustees, Second Westcock, July 21, 1886.

New Advertisements.

SACKVILLE, N. B., JULY 22, 1886.

Ex Barque "Onaway"

FROM BOSTON.

125 BBL. "GLEN VALLEY" FLOUR;
75 BBL. "SNOW QUEEN"
50 " CHOICE OATMEAL;
50 " Best K. D. CORNFLOUR.

Wholesale and Retail.

J. L. BLACK.

Also per Rail.

In Store and due to Arrive:
150 Bbls. "Gold Coin" Flour.
8 Tons Best Wheat Middlings.

J. L. BLACK.

DAIRY SALT

Ex Barque "Aristides."

240 Sacks—in prime order.

We will sell at $1.10 per sack, also at lower rates to the trade at wholesale.

J. L. BLACK.

Farm and Garden.

FOR ROOT CROPS USE
"PERUVIAN GUANO."

One Ton, in 50 lb. and 100 lb. bags, and in barrels 250 lbs. each.

Try it! Don't Forget to Try it!

For sale by

J. L. BLACK.

House Painters' Stock.

DECORATORS' PURE WHITE LEAD;
GENUINE WHITE LEAD;
No. 1 WHITE LEAD;
COLORED PAINTS, Black, Red, Yellow, Brown, Blue and Green;
LIQUID COLORS, mixed ready for use. Yellow, Buff, Gray, Green, Van-dyke, Drab, Quaker Drab, Bronze Green, Brown Stone, Fr. Grey, Old Gold, Bright Red, Fr. Green, Seal Brown, in pails, of assorted sizes from one pound to a barrel;
PAINTS, White and Tints;
KALSOUME, in tubs and kegs;
FLOOR PAINTS, Lead Color, Dark Green, Yellow, and others;
PAINTS GREEN;
"EVERGREEN," for Blinds;
VERMILIONETTE.

J. L. BLACK.

Carriage Paints.

MASURY'S DROP BLACK;
" Ivory Drop Black;
" Carriage Part Lake;
" Coach Painters' Green;
" Gold and Flake White, for Stripping;
STRIPE COLORED, in Tubes; Gold Leaf, &c.;
VICTORIA COLORS, in one pound tins, ground in oil;
BOILED & RAW OIL;
TURPENTINE, JAPAN;
COACH VARNISHES;
FURNITURE VARNISH;
DAMAR VARNISH.

J. L. BLACK.

MAY 27, 1886.

Don't Forget Our

Tailoring Department,

Mr. Petterson, Cutter.

Highest Satisfaction thus far given.

WE WARRANT CONTINUANCE.

J. L. BLACK.

100 Pieces

CLOTHS,

Double & Single Width.

A Splendid Assortment

suited to the Season.

INSPECTION INVITED.

J. L. BLACK.

OUR

Spring and Summer

STOCK

Complete in all its Departments.

Ladies' Seasonable Dress

and Fancy Department,

full, and we offer them

cheap.

Tapestry, Wool, Union & Hemp

Carpets and Floor Oil

Carpet,

IN LARGE VARIETY.

Cotton Goods.

Every kind of Thing.

Window Trimmings

IN VARIETY.

Ladies' Hats,

Flowers, Plumes and Tips,

Laces, Ribbons, Gloves,

Hosiery, &c., &c., to suit

the multitude.

J. L. BLACK.

To Carriage Builders.

EVERYTHING IN YOUR LINE:

Wood, Leather, Iron, Steel,

AND SUNDRY SMALL WARES.

J. L. BLACK.

New Advertisements.

SACKVILLE, N. B., JULY 22, 1886.

NOTICE.

THE Annual Sale of GRASS on the Sackville School Lands will take place on WEDNESDAY, THE 28th INST., commencing at 9 o'clock, a.m., on the Sackville Island lot.

Terms cash at sale.

TITUS HICKS,
ALBERT FAWCETT, Com.

Sackville, July 19th, 1886.

CHALLENGE.

THE Home Circle Base Ball Club hereby challenge either the Port Elgin, Bale Verte, or Cape Tormentine Club, to a friendly match at any time and place that will suit the club accepting this challenge.

W. J. IRONS,
Capt. Home Circle B. B. C.

Sackville, July 21st, 1886.

SPRING &

SUMMER.

STOCK COMPLETE.

50 pces. Dress Goods

In Black and Colors.

15 pieces Fancy Muslins;
375 pieces Prints and Cambrics;
20 doz. Silk, Lace and Cotton Gloves;
25 doz. Ladies' and Misses' Hosiery;
40 doz. Ladies' Sunshades;
25 pieces Cretommi;
10 pieces Table Linen and Turkish
Tobacco.

A full stock of Corsets and small wares.

Gents' Furnishings.

300 Suits Clothing, "Cheapest in Sackville";
75 doz. White and Regatta Shirts;
50 doz. Ties;
70 doz. Collars and Cuffs;
10 doz. Silk Handkerchiefs;
100 doz. Hats, "Latest Styles."

J. E. HICKEY.

May 20, 1886.

"TO BUILDERS."

150 kegs Nails, steel and iron;
700 lbs. Zinc;
3 tons Dry and Tanned Paper;
1 ton White Lead;
1 ton Colored Paints;
6 casks Boiled and Raw Oil;
Locks, Knobs, Hinges, &c., &c.

The above Goods will be sold as cheap as the cheapest, consistent with quality.

J. E. HICKEY.

May 20, 1886.

J. E. HICKEY.

May 20, 1886.

CARD.

By special agreement with John C. West & Co., Toronto, Ont., we have secured the agency of their popular medicines. We have just placed in stock a good supply of their "West's Truly Celebrated Cough Syrup," which we can recommend to you as a speedy and certain cure for Coughs, Colds, Bronchitis, Sore Throat, Asthma, and Consumption in its early stages; also "West's Liver Pills," which we know to be the standard remedy for Liver Complaint, Dyspepsia, Indigestion and Sick Headache. They never fail. Sugar Coated; 30 Pills in each box; price, 25 cents per box, or 5 boxes for $1.00. Cough Syrup, 25 cents per bottle. If you have never tried these remedies, do so at once and be convinced of their extraordinary merits.

Yours very truly,

For Sale and To Let.
Grass for Sale.
THE subscriber will sell his GRASS on the Spectacle Marsh in lots to suit purchasers. Terms as usual.
July 14, 1886.
C. MILNER.

Marsh for Sale.
SIX acres Prime Broadleaf Marsh, situated on Sackville Island, body, adjoining Main road. For particulars apply to R. BELL, ESQ., or the undersigned.
Sackville, July 16, 1886.
N. L. BELL.

ENGINE FOR SALE.
THE subscriber offers for sale a second hand 20 H. P. Steam Engine, in good condition, which he will sell at a bargain. Terms easy on good security.
A. ALONZO DOBSON.
Johanna, April 12, 1886.

Lots for Sale.
THE subscriber offers for sale Forty Building Lots, fronting on Union and Academy Streets, situated about midway between the Stations of the Intercolonial and Cape Town Railway. The lots are in the Town, and only a few minutes walk from either the Station or Academy. Price moderate. Terms accommodating. Title undoubted. Apply to
W. H. HARRISON.

Mill Property for Sale.
THE subscriber will sell his MILL in Cockville; also, about 4,000 acres of Log Land, which is heavily timbered. Also there is about 8,000 Logs at mill. The Mill is in good repair and will be sold on easy terms. For particulars apply to
GEORGE W. TOWSE.
Abouhagan Road, July 14th.

Mill Property for Sale.
THE subscriber offers for sale a valuable Rotary Saw Mill, with full complement of Saws, a Shingle Mill, with Saws, a 30 H. P. Engine, and a 35 H. P. Boiler, all of which are nearly new. Terms easy. Part cash; balance on time, with security, to suit purchasers. Apply to T. Magee, Baie Verte.
Baie Verte, June 2, 1886. 2-2m

Farm for Sale.
THE subscriber offers for sale that valuable FARM known as the Gammon Farm, situated near Bonnell's Corner, Laiz Mountain, about eight miles from Moncton. This is an excellent Farm, containing about fifty acres, with new House, Kitchen, Woodhouse, Henery, Pigsty, and a fine large Barn, all entirely new and very convenient. It is thoroughly fenced, and has a well cultivated garden. The soil is dry and loamy, free from stone, and well adapted for growing early vegetables, grain, or hay, and is now in a high state of cultivation. It is convenient to church, school and mill, and admitted to be the finest Farm in that section. Plenty of good water on the premises. No other required outside of stock and farm implements. A rare opportunity is offered to anyone wishing to start a general market Farm. Terms of payment—A portion down; balance by instalments extending over a number of years. Apply to
CHARLES FAWCETT,
Sackville, N. B.
Or BORDEN & ATKINSON,
Moncton.

LOOK! LOOK!
Clearance Sale
I am selling off at COST,
For One Week Only,
—MY—
ENTIRE STOCK

Watches,
Clocks,
Jewellery &
Silverware,
AS I AM
Bound to Clear Out
My whole Stock at Once.

C. WARMUNDE,
Music Hall Block,
SACKVILLE, N. B.

Now Brunswick,
County of Westmorland, S. S.
To the Sheriff of the County of Westmorland, and to any Constable within the said County, Greeting:

WHEREAS Lauretta Outhouse, Administratrix, and Edward S. Outhouse, Administrators, of and under the last Will and Testament of said Lauretta Outhouse, deceased, have filed an account of their administration of said goods and chattels, and have prayed that said account may be passed and allowed; Be it remembered, that on the TWENTY-SIXTH DAY OF JULY, 1886, at ten o'clock in the forenoon, at a Court of Probate for the said County, the said account, and also for the making an order for the distribution of the estate left by said deceased, given under my hand and the seal of the said Court, has been read and allowed.

(Signed) A. E. OULTON,
Judge of Probate,
County of Westmorland.
(Signed) CHAS. E. KNAPP,
Register of Probate,
County of Westmorland. JUN 24 1886

BRICKS.
One Car Bricks
At Station. Now for sale low.

JAMES R. AYER.
Sackville, July 7, 1886.

NEW SPRING CLOTHS.
We have just received and are now opening our Spring Importation of Cloths
From the leading Scotch and English Manufacturers.
Leave Your Orders Early,
And thereby secure first choice from the Largest and Best Selected Stock of these Goods to be seen in the Maritime Provinces. Our
Tailoring Department
Is always under the most skillful management to be found within the same limits.

Now opening: A fine assortment of English and American HATS.
Dunlap, McDonald & Co.
Amherst, N. S., Mar. 10, 1885.

Look Here, Farmers!
If you want a cheap, durable Fork, and one for lifting all kinds of hay and grain, purchase one of our Forks. These Forks are made of the very best material and warranted.
We are also prepared to repair all kinds of machinery. Mowing Machine repairs a specialty.

JOHN MOORE & SONS.
Port-Eggle, July 24, 1886.

DE FOWLER'S
EXTRACT-WILD
STRAWBERRY
CURES
CHOLERA
CHOLERA INFANTUM
DIARRHEA
AND
ALL SUMMER COMPLAINTS
SOLD BY ALL DEALERS.

New Spring Goods!
New Spring Goods!
JUST OPENED:
6 CASES and 4 Bales of Staple and fancy SPRING DRY GOODS, bought direct from the manufacturers, and will be sold on the smallest profits. 4,000 ROLL ENGLISH WALL PAPER, from 6c. up.
A Full Stock of Groceries, Boots and Shoes, Ready-Made Clothing and Hardware, at rock bottom prices.
I am selling balance of Winter Goods at smallest advance on cost.
Call and inspect my Goods and learn prices before buying elsewhere.

W. J. MAHONEY.
Baie Verte, Feb. 16, 1886.

NEW Harness Shop.
THE subscriber having taken Mr. Alex. Ford's Building, opposite the warehouse of Messrs. M. Wood & Sons, begs to notify the public that he will carry on the Harness Business
in all its various branches, and hopes by strict attention to business and moderate charges to receive a share of public patronage.
Repairs neatly and promptly done, and satisfaction guaranteed in all cases.
JOSEPH W. DOBSON,
Sackville, 22nd June, 1886.

HACKARD'S
YELLOW OIL
CURES RHEUMATISM
FREEMAN'S
WORM POWDERS.
Are pleasant to take. Contain their own Purgative. Is a safe, sure, and effective destroyer of worms in Children or Adults.

C. E. LUND.
Deputy Land Surveyor,
SACKVILLE, N. B.
Deeds, &c., written, Plans prepared, &c., &c.

"The Current" CHICAGO, N. S. A. The Journal of the day. Clean, perfect, grand. Over 50 brilliant contributors. $2.50 yearly; 6 months, $1.00. Try it at your newsdealer's. Sent in advance for sample copy. The Current and Post, one year, only $2.50.

His Ship.
I closed a drawer with sudden pang to-day,
For 'neath the thing I sought there lay a toy,
Carven and cut and chipped in childish way—
Too sacred to destroy.
A wooden hammer, that with mimic nails
Had builded tiny ships (launched forth anon),
And kept aloft with breath on snowy sails
Till narrow waves were won.
How little then I knew those ships were won,
Slender and gay, across the shallow seas,
Were but the pastime of an angel sent,
To teach love's mysteries.

For the rapture of eternal calm,
Lifted on noiseless wings, he went away,
Bearing white lilies in his folded palms,
Resting from childish play.
Now sculptured on a marble's base, they show
His sleep, unconscious of my soul's lament,
While on the spring's warm bosom still they grow,
Smiling as when he went.
And could he wander back to earth awhile,
Crossing the golden threshold, granted leave,
Heaven would itself be lone without his smile,
And, hush! he, too, might grieve.

The Night Operator's Story.
"If I can get him to sleep he may pull through. But, here the doctor hesitated—how long has he been on this spree?"
Mother had striven hard to conceal the true cause of father's sickness, had tried to appear very brave, and as the physicians entered the house, had endeavored to assume an air of dignity to conceal the fact that she was broken hearted, and that she was a drunkard's home; but she was a miserable failure, and she burst into tears. Father had been drinking for many years; not much at first, as I can remember, but of late years very much. He had tried every method to reform, but all to no purpose. It was the old story of a drunkard forgetting wife and child, losing self-respect, becoming every day more hardened and brutal, at last caring for nothing but rum, even selling his wife's little treasures to obtain it, and hurrying madly on to a drunkard's grave.
I cannot speak of that night with calmness. With mother and the doctor I saw him die. The death-bed scene was burned into my brain; and it will never be effaced; the horrible cries he uttered and his imploring screams to us for help which we could not give, are still ringing in my ears.
The doctor labored very hard, but the medicine had no effect; the worn-out stomach rejected everything at last, and it was impossible to get him to sleep. Towards morning the delirium passed away, and then he was so weak! But he knew us, cried like a child for his wasted life, begged our forgiveness many times, and then with his arm around mother's neck and my hand clasped in his, he sank to sleep like a little child.
After the funeral we were very poor. Father had earned but little for several years, and the steady drain upon his once comfortable property had told seriously. We had nothing left. There were only mother and I, and I said bravely, "Mother, I will work; you shall not suffer."
"But what can you do? You are too frail to do hard work. The world has not much for girls to do."
"But mother, I am 18 years old and stronger than you think."
I need not tell of my struggles to obtain employment. At last I found a place as night operator in a telephone exchange. I didn't like the position, from the very start, but when I could I worked during the day till I had learned the business; and was very brave the first night I was to be left alone. The girls dropped off one after another, until all were gone. There was no little business at night, and I could easily attend to it. You never could tell when there was going to be a rush, so the management would not give me an assistant. But it paid better than day work.
After the girls were all gone I had many calls to attend to, and did not at first feel very lonely. Then, too, I could hear the busy hum of life without. But the calls came less and less frequently, and the tramp of monotonous horses sounded only at intervals. Towards midnight there was scarcely a call, and only an occasional rattle of wheels as some all-night cab hurried over the pavement, or some physician was driven rapidly on his errand of mercy.
"The city has gone to sleep; few good people are out now," I said. Then I grew terribly lonesome and nervous. There I was, all alone in the city, which has the name of being the wildest on the river, in the third story of an old building, in a back corner, away from everybody.
At last there was a sudden excited ring. I had learned, you see, to tell how everybody felt when they rang. It was from a saloon; they wanted a police station. I listened to the conversation.
"Hello! policeman!"
"Hello! who are you?"
"Fillenup's saloon."
"Well, what do you want?"
"Send the patrol wagon to act. That was a lot, I pondered awhile, and tried to read. Soon another call came;
"Give me 303 (Dr. Brown). I listened again.
"This is the Rev. Dr. Smith. For God's sake come quickly, doctor; my only child is dying." Now the calls come only at rare intervals.
I lay down and slept a little, having at last the good sleep that I call came it would wake me, and thus I passed the night.
In the morning I told the manager how lonely I was. He urged me very kindly to remain, assuring me that the loneliness would soon wear away.

The next night or near morning, rather, I was awakened by some one trying to get into the room. Rising on my elbow, I plainly saw the door-knob turn, but the door was securely bolted, and there were no further demonstrations. I was frightened almost out of my wits, and you may rest assured that I slept no more that night.
In the morning I told the manager of my fright, and that I did not think I could muster up courage to remain alone another night.
"Why did you not call the police station," he said; "that is what the police are for."
"Because I feared the prowlers would hear me, and burst in the door."
"Now see here, Miss Lottie," said he, "we have hard work to get good girls to fill your position. You just stay and I will arrange a couple with the police or a mutually understood signal that will bring them at any time."
At night he came to me and said: "Have no more fears; you will be safer here than at home. When you feel that you are in danger call No. 132, the central police station, only three blocks away, and when they reply you have only to say, 'This is the central office, Doctor Bangs is dead and his wife has discontinued the telephone. That will bring an officer at once.' I felt better then, but I felt better still when I talked with the police over the wire and found that it was all right.
"Don't be afraid," said the chief; "when Dr. Bangs dies, the wife will come at once to the funeral," and then he laughed at my timidity.
So things went better. The little man I was making with what mother earned taking in sewing—I wouldn't let her go out—enabled us to live comfortably.
Several months went by and I became accustomed to the business. I generally slept until noon, and then I had the rest of the day to myself. Several times the manager took me to ride, and once or twice on off nights he accompanied me to the theatre. But I didn't think much of his attentions; he took some of the other girls out, too. I never thought a gentleman like him, well born, and highly connected, could care much for a drunkard's daughter. But I came to like his attentions. Then, too, he was always so kind and polite to mother.
But there are always changes in this world. The manager's father died, leaving him a large and valuable farm, and he resigned his position, and he left he shook my hand warmly, and—yes, he held my hand quite a long time.
"I have much on my mind, now," he said, "but in a few days I want to see you again."
"Why, of course, you can see me at any time," I said carelessly.
He looked straight into my eyes, but I pretended to have a call to answer, and ran away from him. When I looked around the next day I felt lonesome then, for he had been very kind to me.
The new manager I did not like. Sometimes he would fault with me, and I feared he would put his cousin into my place, so I was as he could for a nice supper. One night after he had kept me pretty busy connecting them with different politicians all over the city, I heard a footstep on the stairs. I had come to know it; it was the waiter from the nearest restaurant; some time he would come to my door, and I stopped breathing. He tried to get in, but he was not to be admitted. He had a nice supper for me—beefsteak, toast, eggs, coffee, and a glass of nice jelly. He set the tray down and politely withdrew.
I began to nibble the toast and sip the coffee. Just as I was about to taste more solid food the door suddenly opened—I had forgotten to lock it after the waiter—and in stepped two of the worst looking rascals I ever saw. I nearly fainted with fright, but at once thought of the police and sprang up to call the central station. But they divined my intention, and one of them rudely grasped me by the wrist and stared boldly into my face with leering bloodshot eyes.
"No use," he said; "we're onto their rackets. You can't jingle them bells 'n' call for no police. Jim lock the door. We've caged ye this time, my beauty, for sure!"
My heart seemed to be paralyzed, and I stopped breathing. He tried to get in, but he was not to be admitted. He had a nice supper for me—beefsteak, toast, eggs, coffee, and a glass of nice jelly. He set the tray down and politely withdrew.
I began to nibble the toast and sip the coffee. Just as I was about to taste more solid food the door suddenly opened—I had forgotten to lock it after the waiter—and in stepped two of the worst looking rascals I ever saw. I nearly fainted with fright, but at once thought of the police and sprang up to call the central station. But they divined my intention, and one of them rudely grasped me by the wrist and stared boldly into my face with leering bloodshot eyes.
"No use," he said; "we're onto their rackets. You can't jingle them bells 'n' call for no police. Jim lock the door. We've caged ye this time, my beauty, for sure!"
My heart seemed to be paralyzed, and I stopped breathing. He tried to get in, but he was not to be admitted. He had a nice supper for me—beefsteak, toast, eggs, coffee, and a glass of nice jelly. He set the tray down and politely withdrew.
I began to nibble the toast and sip the coffee. Just as I was about to taste more solid food the door suddenly opened—I had forgotten to lock it after the waiter—and in stepped two of the worst looking rascals I ever saw. I nearly fainted with fright, but at once thought of the police and sprang up to call the central station. But they divined my intention, and one of them rudely grasped me by the wrist and stared boldly into my face with leering bloodshot eyes.
"No use," he said; "we're onto their rackets. You can't jingle them bells 'n' call for no police. Jim lock the door. We've caged ye this time, my beauty, for sure!"
My heart seemed to be paralyzed, and I stopped breathing. He tried to get in, but he was not to be admitted. He had a nice supper for me—beefsteak, toast, eggs, coffee, and a glass of nice jelly. He set the tray down and politely withdrew.
I began to nibble the toast and sip the coffee. Just as I was about to taste more solid food the door suddenly opened—I had forgotten to lock it after the waiter—and in stepped two of the worst looking rascals I ever saw. I nearly fainted with fright, but at once thought of the police and sprang up to call the central station. But they divined my intention, and one of them rudely grasped me by the wrist and stared boldly into my face with leering bloodshot eyes.
"No use," he said; "we're onto their rackets. You can't jingle them bells 'n' call for no police. Jim lock the door. We've caged ye this time, my beauty, for sure!"
My heart seemed to be paralyzed, and I stopped breathing. He tried to get in, but he was not to be admitted. He had a nice supper for me—beefsteak, toast, eggs, coffee, and a glass of nice jelly. He set the tray down and politely withdrew.
I began to nibble the toast and sip the coffee. Just as I was about to taste more solid food the door suddenly opened—I had forgotten to lock it after the waiter—and in stepped two of the worst looking rascals I ever saw. I nearly fainted with fright, but at once thought of the police and sprang up to call the central station. But they divined my intention, and one of them rudely grasped me by the wrist and stared boldly into my face with leering bloodshot eyes.
"No use," he said; "we're onto their rackets. You can't jingle them bells 'n' call for no police. Jim lock the door. We've caged ye this time, my beauty, for sure!"
My heart seemed to be paralyzed, and I stopped breathing. He tried to get in, but he was not to be admitted. He had a nice supper for me—beefsteak, toast, eggs, coffee, and a glass of nice jelly. He set the tray down and politely withdrew.
I began to nibble the toast and sip the coffee. Just as I was about to taste more solid food the door suddenly opened—I had forgotten to lock it after the waiter—and in stepped two of the worst looking rascals I ever saw. I nearly fainted with fright, but at once thought of the police and sprang up to call the central station. But they divined my intention, and one of them rudely grasped me by the wrist and stared boldly into my face with leering bloodshot eyes.
"No use," he said; "we're onto their rackets. You can't jingle them bells 'n' call for no police. Jim lock the door. We've caged ye this time, my beauty, for sure!"
My heart seemed to be paralyzed, and I stopped breathing. He tried to get in, but he was not to be admitted. He had a nice supper for me—beefsteak, toast, eggs, coffee, and a glass of nice jelly. He set the tray down and politely withdrew.
I began to nibble the toast and sip the coffee. Just as I was about to taste more solid food the door suddenly opened—I had forgotten to lock it after the waiter—and in stepped two of the worst looking rascals I ever saw. I nearly fainted with fright, but at once thought of the police and sprang up to call the central station. But they divined my intention, and one of them rudely grasped me by the wrist and stared boldly into my face with leering bloodshot eyes.
"No use," he said; "we're onto their rackets. You can't jingle them bells 'n' call for no police. Jim lock the door. We've caged ye this time, my beauty, for sure!"
My heart seemed to be paralyzed, and I stopped breathing. He tried to get in, but he was not to be admitted. He had a nice supper for me—beefsteak, toast, eggs, coffee, and a glass of nice jelly. He set the tray down and politely withdrew.
I began to nibble the toast and sip the coffee. Just as I was about to taste more solid food the door suddenly opened—I had forgotten to lock it after the waiter—and in stepped two of the worst looking rascals I ever saw. I nearly fainted with fright, but at once thought of the police and sprang up to call the central station. But they divined my intention, and one of them rudely grasped me by the wrist and stared boldly into my face with leering bloodshot eyes.
"No use," he said; "we're onto their rackets. You can't jingle them bells 'n' call for no police. Jim lock the door. We've caged ye this time, my beauty, for sure!"
My heart seemed to be paralyzed, and I stopped breathing. He tried to get in, but he was not to be admitted. He had a nice supper for me—beefsteak, toast, eggs, coffee, and a glass of nice jelly. He set the tray down and politely withdrew.
I began to nibble the toast and sip the coffee. Just as I was about to taste more solid food the door suddenly opened—I had forgotten to lock it after the waiter—and in stepped two of the worst looking rascals I ever saw. I nearly fainted with fright, but at once thought of the police and sprang up to call the central station. But they divined my intention, and one of them rudely grasped me by the wrist and stared boldly into my face with leering bloodshot eyes.
"No use," he said; "we're onto their rackets. You can't jingle them bells 'n' call for no police. Jim lock the door. We've caged ye this time, my beauty, for sure!"
My heart seemed to be paralyzed, and I stopped breathing. He tried to get in, but he was not to be admitted. He had a nice supper for me—beefsteak, toast, eggs, coffee, and a glass of nice jelly. He set the tray down and politely withdrew.
I began to nibble the toast and sip the coffee. Just as I was about to taste more solid food the door suddenly opened—I had forgotten to lock it after the waiter—and in stepped two of the worst looking rascals I ever saw. I nearly fainted with fright, but at once thought of the police and sprang up to call the central station. But they divined my intention, and one of them rudely grasped me by the wrist and stared boldly into my face with leering bloodshot eyes.
"No use," he said; "we're onto their rackets. You can't jingle them bells 'n' call for no police. Jim lock the door. We've caged ye this time, my beauty, for sure!"
My heart seemed to be paralyzed, and I stopped breathing. He tried to get in, but he was not to be admitted. He had a nice supper for me—beefsteak, toast, eggs, coffee, and a glass of nice jelly. He set the tray down and politely withdrew.
I began to nibble the toast and sip the coffee. Just as I was about to taste more solid food the door suddenly opened—I had forgotten to lock it after the waiter—and in stepped two of the worst looking rascals I ever saw. I nearly fainted with fright, but at once thought of the police and sprang up to call the central station. But they divined my intention, and one of them rudely grasped me by the wrist and stared boldly into my face with leering bloodshot eyes.
"No use," he said; "we're onto their rackets. You can't jingle them bells 'n' call for no police. Jim lock the door. We've caged ye this time, my beauty, for sure!"
My heart seemed to be paralyzed, and I stopped breathing. He tried to get in, but he was not to be admitted. He had a nice supper for me—beefsteak, toast, eggs, coffee, and a glass of nice jelly. He set the tray down and politely withdrew.
I began to nibble the toast and sip the coffee. Just as I was about to taste more solid food the door suddenly opened—I had forgotten to lock it after the waiter—and in stepped two of the worst looking rascals I ever saw. I nearly fainted with fright, but at once thought of the police and sprang up to call the central station. But they divined my intention, and one of them rudely grasped me by the wrist and stared boldly into my face with leering bloodshot eyes.
"No use," he said; "we're onto their rackets. You can't jingle them bells 'n' call for no police. Jim lock the door. We've caged ye this time, my beauty, for sure!"
My heart seemed to be paralyzed, and I stopped breathing. He tried to get in, but he was not to be admitted. He had a nice supper for me—beefsteak, toast, eggs, coffee, and a glass of nice jelly. He set the tray down and politely withdrew.
I began to nibble the toast and sip the coffee. Just as I was about to taste more solid food the door suddenly opened—I had forgotten to lock it after the waiter—and in stepped two of the worst looking rascals I ever saw. I nearly fainted with fright, but at once thought of the police and sprang up to call the central station. But they divined my intention, and one of them rudely grasped me by the wrist and stared boldly into my face with leering bloodshot eyes.
"No use," he said; "we're onto their rackets. You can't jingle them bells 'n' call for no police. Jim lock the door. We've caged ye this time, my beauty, for sure!"
My heart seemed to be paralyzed, and I stopped breathing. He tried to get in, but he was not to be admitted. He had a nice supper for me—beefsteak, toast, eggs, coffee, and a glass of nice jelly. He set the tray down and politely withdrew.
I began to nibble the toast and sip the coffee. Just as I was about to taste more solid food the door suddenly opened—I had forgotten to lock it after the waiter—and in stepped two of the worst looking rascals I ever saw. I nearly fainted with fright, but at once thought of the police and sprang up to call the central station. But they divined my intention, and one of them rudely grasped me by the wrist and stared boldly into my face with leering bloodshot eyes.
"No use," he said; "we're onto their rackets. You can't jingle them bells 'n' call for no police. Jim lock the door. We've caged ye this time, my beauty, for sure!"
My heart seemed to be paralyzed, and I stopped breathing. He tried to get in, but he was not to be admitted. He had a nice supper for me—beefsteak, toast, eggs, coffee, and a glass of nice jelly. He set the tray down and politely withdrew.
I began to nibble the toast and sip the coffee. Just as I was about to taste more solid food the door suddenly opened—I had forgotten to lock it after the waiter—and in stepped two of the worst looking rascals I ever saw. I nearly fainted with fright, but at once thought of the police and sprang up to call the central station. But they divined my intention, and one of them rudely grasped me by the wrist and stared boldly into my face with leering bloodshot eyes.
"No use," he said; "we're onto their rackets. You can't jingle them bells 'n' call for no police. Jim lock the door. We've caged ye this time, my beauty, for sure!"
My heart seemed to be paralyzed, and I stopped breathing. He tried to get in, but he was not to be admitted. He had a nice supper for me—beefsteak, toast, eggs, coffee, and a glass of nice jelly. He set the tray down and politely withdrew.
I began to nibble the toast and sip the coffee. Just as I was about to taste more solid food the door suddenly opened—I had forgotten to lock it after the waiter—and in stepped two of the worst looking rascals I ever saw. I nearly fainted with fright, but at once thought of the police and sprang up to call the central station. But they divined my intention, and one of them rudely grasped me by the wrist and stared boldly into my face with leering bloodshot eyes.
"No use," he said; "we're onto their rackets. You can't jingle them bells 'n' call for no police. Jim lock the door. We've caged ye this time, my beauty, for sure!"
My heart seemed to be paralyzed, and I stopped breathing. He tried to get in, but he was not to be admitted. He had a nice supper for me—beefsteak, toast, eggs, coffee, and a glass of nice jelly. He set the tray down and politely withdrew.
I began to nibble the toast and sip the coffee. Just as I was about to taste more solid food the door suddenly opened—I had forgotten to lock it after the waiter—and in stepped two of the worst looking rascals I ever saw. I nearly fainted with fright, but at once thought of the police and sprang up to call the central station. But they divined my intention, and one of them rudely grasped me by the wrist and stared boldly into my face with leering bloodshot eyes.
"No use," he said; "we're onto their rackets. You can't jingle them bells 'n' call for no police. Jim lock the door. We've caged ye this time, my beauty, for sure!"
My heart seemed to be paralyzed, and I stopped breathing. He tried to get in, but he was not to be admitted. He had a nice supper for me—beefsteak, toast, eggs, coffee, and a glass of nice jelly. He set the tray down and politely withdrew.
I began to nibble the toast and sip the coffee. Just as I was about to taste more solid food the door suddenly opened—I had forgotten to lock it after the waiter—and in stepped two of the worst looking rascals I ever saw. I nearly fainted with fright, but at once thought of the police and sprang up to call the central station. But they divined my intention, and one of them rudely grasped me by the wrist and stared boldly into my face with leering bloodshot eyes.
"No use," he said; "we're onto their rackets. You can't jingle them bells 'n' call for no police. Jim lock the door. We've caged ye this time, my beauty, for sure!"
My heart seemed to be paralyzed, and I stopped breathing. He tried to get in, but he was not to be admitted. He had a nice supper for me—beefsteak, toast, eggs, coffee, and a glass of nice jelly. He set the tray down and politely withdrew.
I began to nibble the toast and sip the coffee. Just as I was about to taste more solid food the door suddenly opened—I had forgotten to lock it after the waiter—and in stepped two of the worst looking rascals I ever saw. I nearly fainted with fright, but at once thought of the police and sprang up to call the central station. But they divined my intention, and one of them rudely grasped me by the wrist and stared boldly into my face with leering bloodshot eyes.
"No use," he said; "we're onto their rackets. You can't jingle them bells 'n' call for no police. Jim lock the door. We've caged ye this time, my beauty, for sure!"
My heart seemed to be paralyzed, and I stopped breathing. He tried to get in, but he was not to be admitted. He had a nice supper for me—beefsteak, toast, eggs, coffee, and a glass of nice jelly. He set the tray down and politely withdrew.
I began to nibble the toast and sip the coffee. Just as I was about to taste more solid food the door suddenly opened—I had forgotten to lock it after the waiter—and in stepped two of the worst looking rascals I ever saw. I nearly fainted with fright, but at once thought of the police and sprang up to call the central station. But they divined my intention, and one of them rudely grasped me by the wrist and stared boldly into my face with leering bloodshot eyes.
"No use," he said; "we're onto their rackets. You can't jingle them bells 'n' call for no police. Jim lock the door. We've caged ye this time, my beauty, for sure!"
My heart seemed to be paralyzed, and I stopped breathing. He tried to get in, but he was not to be admitted. He had a nice supper for me—beefsteak, toast, eggs, coffee, and a glass of nice jelly. He set the tray down and politely withdrew.
I began to nibble the toast and sip the coffee. Just as I was about to taste more solid food the door suddenly opened—I had forgotten to lock it after the waiter—and in stepped two of the worst looking rascals I ever saw. I nearly fainted with fright, but at once thought of the police and sprang up to call the central station. But they divined my intention, and one of them rudely grasped me by the wrist and stared boldly into my face with leering bloodshot eyes.
"No use," he said; "we're onto their rackets. You can't jingle them bells 'n' call for no police. Jim lock the door. We've caged ye this time, my beauty, for sure!"
My heart seemed to be paralyzed, and I stopped breathing. He tried to get in, but he was not to be admitted. He had a nice supper for me—beefsteak, toast, eggs, coffee, and a glass of nice jelly. He set the tray down and politely withdrew.
I began to nibble the toast and sip the coffee. Just as I was about to taste more solid food the door suddenly opened—I had forgotten to lock it after the waiter—and in stepped two of the worst looking rascals I ever saw. I nearly fainted with fright, but at once thought of the police and sprang up to call the central station. But they divined my intention, and one of them rudely grasped me by the wrist and stared boldly into my face with leering bloodshot eyes.
"No use," he said; "we're onto their rackets. You can't jingle them bells 'n' call for no police. Jim lock the door. We've caged ye this time, my beauty, for sure!"
My heart seemed to be paralyzed, and I stopped breathing. He tried to get in, but he was not to be admitted. He had a nice supper for me—beefsteak, toast, eggs, coffee, and a glass of nice jelly. He set the tray down and politely withdrew.
I began to nibble the toast and sip the coffee. Just as I was about to taste more solid food the door suddenly opened—I had forgotten to lock it after the waiter—and in stepped two of the worst looking rascals I ever saw. I nearly fainted with fright, but at once thought of the police and sprang up to call the central station. But they divined my intention, and one of them rudely grasped me by the wrist and stared boldly into my face with leering bloodshot eyes.
"No use," he said; "we're onto their rackets. You can't jingle them bells 'n' call for no police. Jim lock the door. We've caged ye this time, my beauty, for sure!"
My heart seemed to be paralyzed, and I stopped breathing. He tried to get in, but he was not to be admitted. He had a nice supper for me—beefsteak, toast, eggs, coffee, and a glass of nice jelly. He set the tray down and politely withdrew.
I began to nibble the toast and sip the coffee. Just as I was about to taste more solid food the door suddenly opened—I had forgotten to lock it after the waiter—and in stepped two of the worst looking rascals I ever saw. I nearly fainted with fright, but at once thought of the police and sprang up to call the central station. But they divined my intention, and one of them rudely grasped me by the wrist and stared boldly into my face with leering bloodshot eyes.
"No use," he said; "we're onto their rackets. You can't jingle them bells 'n' call for no police. Jim lock the door. We've caged ye this time, my beauty, for sure!"
My heart seemed to be paralyzed, and I stopped breathing. He tried to get in, but he was not to be admitted. He had a nice supper for me—beefsteak, toast, eggs, coffee, and a glass of nice jelly. He set the tray down and politely withdrew.
I began to nibble the toast and sip the coffee. Just as I was about to taste more solid food the door suddenly opened—I had forgotten to lock it after the waiter—and in stepped two of the worst looking rascals I ever saw. I nearly fainted with fright, but at once thought of the police and sprang up to call the central station. But they divined my intention, and one of them rudely grasped me by the wrist and stared boldly into my face with leering bloodshot eyes.
"No use," he said; "we're onto their rackets. You can't jingle them bells 'n' call for no police. Jim lock the door. We've caged ye this time, my beauty, for sure!"
My heart seemed to be paralyzed, and I stopped breathing. He tried to get in, but he was not to be admitted. He had a nice supper for me—beefsteak, toast, eggs, coffee, and a glass of nice jelly. He set the tray down and politely withdrew.
I began to nibble the toast and sip the coffee. Just as I was about to taste more solid food the door suddenly opened—I had forgotten to lock it after the waiter—and in stepped two of the worst looking rascals I ever saw. I nearly fainted with fright, but at once thought of the police and sprang up to call the central station. But they divined my intention, and one of them rudely grasped me by the wrist and stared boldly into my face with leering bloodshot eyes.
"No use," he said; "we're onto their rackets. You can't jingle them bells 'n' call for no police. Jim lock the door. We've caged ye this time, my beauty, for sure!"
My heart seemed to be paralyzed, and I stopped breathing. He tried to get in, but he was not to be admitted. He had a nice supper for me—beefsteak, toast, eggs, coffee, and a glass of nice jelly. He set the tray down and politely withdrew.
I began to nibble the toast and sip the coffee. Just as I was about to taste more solid food the door suddenly opened—I had forgotten to lock it after the waiter—and in stepped two of the worst looking rascals I ever saw. I nearly fainted with fright, but at once thought of the police and sprang up to call the central station. But they divined my intention, and one of them rudely grasped me by the wrist and stared boldly into my face with leering bloodshot eyes.
"No use," he said; "we're onto their rackets. You can't jingle them bells 'n' call for no police. Jim lock the door. We've caged ye this time, my beauty, for sure!"
My heart seemed to be paralyzed, and I stopped breathing. He tried to get in, but he was not to be admitted. He had a nice supper for me—beefsteak, toast, eggs, coffee, and a glass of nice jelly. He set the tray down and politely withdrew.
I began to nibble the toast and sip the coffee. Just as I was about to taste more solid food the door suddenly opened—I had forgotten to lock it after the waiter—and in stepped two of the worst looking rascals I ever saw. I nearly fainted with fright, but at once thought of the police and sprang up to call the central station. But they divined my intention, and one of them rudely grasped me by the wrist and stared boldly into my face with leering bloodshot eyes.
"No use," he said; "we're onto their rackets. You can't jingle them bells 'n' call for no police. Jim lock the door. We've caged ye this time, my beauty, for sure!"
My heart seemed to be paralyzed, and I stopped breathing. He tried to get in, but he was not to be admitted. He had a nice supper for me—beefsteak, toast, eggs, coffee, and a glass of nice jelly. He set the tray down and politely withdrew.
I began to nibble the toast and sip the coffee. Just as I was about to taste more solid food the door suddenly opened—I had forgotten to lock it after the waiter—and in stepped two of the worst looking rascals I ever saw. I nearly fainted with fright, but at once thought of the police and sprang up to call the central station. But they divined my intention, and one of them rudely grasped me by the wrist and stared boldly into my face with leering bloodshot eyes.
"No use," he said; "we're onto their rackets. You can't jingle them bells 'n' call for no police. Jim lock the door. We've caged ye this time, my beauty, for sure!"
My heart seemed to be paralyzed, and I stopped breathing. He tried to get in, but he was not to be admitted. He had a nice supper for me—beefsteak, toast, eggs, coffee, and a glass of nice jelly. He set the tray down and politely withdrew.
I began to nibble the toast and sip the coffee. Just as I was about to taste more solid food the door suddenly opened—I had forgotten to lock it after the waiter—and in stepped two of the worst looking rascals I ever saw. I nearly fainted with fright, but at once thought of the police and sprang up to call the central station. But they divined my intention, and one of them rudely grasped me by the wrist and stared boldly into my face with leering bloodshot eyes.
"No use," he said; "we're onto their rackets. You can't jingle them bells 'n' call for no police. Jim lock the door. We've caged ye this time, my beauty, for sure!"
My heart seemed to be paralyzed, and I stopped breathing. He tried to get in, but he was not to be admitted. He had a nice supper for me—beefsteak, toast, eggs, coffee, and a glass of nice jelly. He set the tray down and politely withdrew.
I began to nibble the toast and sip the coffee. Just as I was about to taste more solid food the door suddenly opened—I had forgotten to lock it after the waiter—and in stepped two of the worst looking rascals I ever saw. I nearly fainted with fright, but at once thought of the police and sprang up to call the central station. But they divined my intention, and one of them rudely grasped me by the wrist and stared boldly into my face with leering bloodshot eyes.
"No use," he said; "we're onto their rackets. You can't jingle them bells 'n' call for no police. Jim lock the door. We've caged ye this time, my beauty, for sure!"
My heart seemed to be paralyzed, and I stopped breathing. He tried to get in, but he was not to be admitted. He had a nice supper for me—beefsteak, toast, eggs, coffee, and a glass of nice jelly. He set the tray down and politely withdrew.
I began to nibble the toast and sip the coffee. Just as I was about to taste more solid food the door suddenly opened—I had forgotten to lock it after the waiter—and in stepped two of the worst looking rascals I ever saw. I nearly fainted with fright, but at once thought of the police and sprang up to call the central station. But they divined my intention, and one of them rudely grasped me by the wrist and stared boldly into my face with leering bloodshot eyes.
"No use," he said; "we're onto their rackets. You can't jingle them bells 'n' call for no police. Jim lock the door. We've caged ye this time, my beauty, for sure!"
My heart seemed to be paralyzed, and I stopped breathing. He tried to get in, but he was not to be admitted. He had a nice supper for me—beefsteak, toast, eggs, coffee, and a glass of nice jelly. He set the tray down and politely withdrew.
I began to nibble the toast and sip the coffee