THE PLUG-HAT CENTENARY. There seems to be no doubt that the recent celebration in London of the centennial of the plug hat was chron-ologically correct. The police court records of that city for Jan. 16, 1797, record that on the day previous, John Hetherington, haberdasher, of the Strand, was arraigned before the lord mayor on a charge of breach of the peace and inciting to riot, and was required to give bonds in the sum of It was in evidence that Mr. Hetherington appeared on the public highway wearing upon his head what called a silk hat, a tall structure having a shiny lustre, and calculated to frighten timid people. The officers of the crown stated that several women fainted at the unusual sight. while children screamed, dogs yelped, and a young man who was returning from a chandler's shop was thrown down by the crowd which had collect-ed, and had his right arm broken. For these reasons the defendant was seized by the guards and taken before the lord mayor. In extenuation of his crime the defendant claimed that he had not violated any law of the kingdom, but was merely exercis ing a right to appear in the heddress of his own design-a right not denied to any Englishman. Fever and Ague and Bilious Derangements are positively cured by the use of Parmelee's Pills. They not only cleanse the stomach and bowels from all bilious matter, but they open the excretory vessels, causing them to pour copious effusions from the blood into the bowels, after which the corrupted mass is thrown out by the natural passage of the body. They are used as a general family medicine

On the Course of the U.S. Senate Committee in Re the Arbitration Treaty.

London, Feb. 1.-The Daily News, commenting upon statements cabled by the New York correspondent of the paper, in regard to the action of the Senate Committee on Foreign Relations, says that the United States Senators are trying to kill the Anglo-Am erican treaty indirectly. This they fear to do directly, because the public sentiment of the people of America is in favor of the measure. The afternoon newspapers generally express great disappointment at the proposed amendments to the arbitration treaty. The Westminster Gazette hopes that public opinion in the United States will make itself felt before the Senate acts upon the report of its committee on foreign relations. The Pall Mall Gazette says: "The committee is doing its best to make away with the treaty. It has not dar-

What Borneans Here Believe Under the Rule of an Englishman.

Fresh Accounts of the Race From Which the Museum's "Wild Men" Were Wont to Come - How They Dress, Court, Marry and Do Other Things.

An anthropological study in a thousand pages is an achievement which German thoroughness might envy, and there can be no question that in "The Natives of Sarawak and British North Borneo," Mr. Henry Ling Roth has produced a work of solid value. The modern history of Sarawak is in itself a romance, the country being one of the now necessarily very rare instances of a kingdom carved out by the energy, determination and genius for rule of one man. In this respect it is certainly the most interesting corner of the Malay Archipelago. Before the arrival on the scene of the young Englishman who afterward became Rajah Brooke, the Dyaks were the prey of all the pirates, slave raiders and freebooters who, until very recent times, infested Malayan wa-

No sooner had young Mr. Brooke converted himself into an absolute monarch by obtaining the cession of that northwestern portion of the Island of Borneo which we know as Sarawak, than the harassed natives began to breathe more freely. The pirates were kept at a respectful distance, life and property became secure, and, with a gratitude that might been found among a more sophisticated people, the rajah was revered as a superior being, descended to earth to succor the afflicted. Primitive man, as he is still to be seen in Borneo, seems, however, to have a good many ideas and customs not very far removed from those of more polished peoples. He knows all about déluge, possesses an improved version of purgatory, and has a firm belief in guardian angels. Like his white fellow-subjects of the west, he may not marry his deceased wife's sister or his grandmother, and, although divorce is easy, public opinion does not consider it respectable to break the seventh commandment. The young Dyak gallant is quite as particular about the sit and fashion of his voluminous waist cloth as any European dandy about the fit of his necktie, while his sister lavishes the paternal wealth upon the brass wire corsets, which are her proudest gar-

Even in his sports the methods of the Dyak are not altogether unfamiliar. He fishes with a float, knows how to bait a hook scientifically, and angles for crocodiles with a dead monkey for bait-the "higher" the monkey the bigger the bag. In the art of poling. which is now becoming so favorite a branch of aquatics, he could give points to the most expert practitioner on the Thames. On the whole, he seems to live a happy life, tempered by a few lingering regrets that, at all events in Sarawak, he is no longer permitted to take occasional holidays in search of heads. That grim sport, so far as it still exists, appears to be almost entirely kept in fashion by the ladies. These Malayan daughters of Herodias turn disdainfully from a wooer who has never shortened a man by a head. No head, no wife, is their rule ,though, to do them justice, it must be admitted that they are not too exigent as to whose it is or how obtained. A woman's will serve, and, singularly enough, he who obtains this essential in what seems, to our western notions, the less sportsmanlike fashion, is esteemed a remarkably clever fellow. A brave boasted that he had secured his trophy from a Chinaman in "the finest way"-by cutting it off when the owner was

Mr. Edward Cronyn's Views - Six Months Devoted to Personal Investigation-To Investors.

Having just concluded six months' personal investigation of mines and mining in the great gold and silver camps of Rossland and the Slocan, I submit as follows: My investigation was made from the standpoint of an investor, also from that of one who might be asked, or feel disposed, to advise the investment of money by others who have not the opportunity to personally visit the mines.

In addition to actual examination of the mines, I have gone very carefully into the different methods of company organization, plans of operation and the character of individuals forming boards of management of companies prominently before the public with their shares. But a very short stay in Rossland or the Slocan is required to convince the most skeptical that the great gold and silver mines are not only destined to individual fortunes. My especial purpose, therefore, soon became the determination as to what kind of organization, operation and men "at the helm" were best calculated to assure profitable results to investors, assuming that a good mining 9 to 1. property had first been secured. I submit briefly the conclusions at which I have arrived: A. Given a first-class property, the company mining or operating it must be properly organized er some incorporation law sufficiently well established by the highest judicial decisions, to enable the shareholders and officers to know precisely what their powers, privieges and responsibilities are. B. Given a first-class organization, sound management is absolutely necessary. By "sound," I mean honest and If either qualification is to sacrificed, let it not be honesty, for honest managers can readily divert the profits entirely away from the

C. In any event, ample working capital is esential to safe, profitable mine operation. This is especially true if the property be, as is usually the case, undeveloped, for time and money are when I got a box of Milburn's Heart necessary to enable the opening up and Nerve Pills from Mr. T. Details of Saturday's Accident at Chatham.

Narrow Escape of the Passengers-Express Messenger Madell's Injuries.

Following is a fuller account of the C. P. R. accident briefly mentioned in Saturday's Advertiser:

Chatham, Feb. 1.—The No. 5 west-bound express, "The Flyer," due here at 1:02 p.m., Saturday, jumped the track near the Adelaide street crossing. The engine and tender, in coming on to the switch, went on the wrong track, and the coacnes on the other. The baggage and express car was thrown on its side, the second coach derailed, and the third remained on the track. The express messenger, J. A. Madell, was buried under the wreck. As the engine left the track it tore up the rail, and was swung with terrific force against J. L. Scott's warehouse. The next car dashed into it, smashing it badly. The day coach and Pullman were shaken from end to end, but all the passengers escaped with nothing worse than a scare.
The escape of Express Messenger J.

A. Madell, of Toronto, was marvelous. He was hurler from his car by the force of the concussion, and fell on the track. The car rolled over and pinned him down, but in such a way that its weight did not fall full upon him. He was held by the limbs, how-ever, in a painful and critical posi-tion for half an hour, all the while acting coolly and cheerfully, directing the efforts made to liberate him, which work was finally effected after severe exertion. He was severely bruised. Messenger Jackson, from the Sarnia route, took his place, and Madell went nome on the next train.

Many of the passengers in the second-class car had a narrow escape. That car went crashing into the bag-

How to Make Scotch Oatmeal Cakes—The Famous Buns

and Shortbread. My patriotism and my pride as a Scottish housewife writes Susan Hunter in the Washington Star, are sadly ruffled over an article appearing in the January number of the Ladies' Journal that purports ew of the national New Year cakes made in referring to Scotland as "the land o' cakes" in a manner that suggests that it is a land of sweet cakes, which it is less, I believe, than any other country of modern civilization. The cakes referred to in the sobriquet are, of course, the oat cakes which orm the bread of life of the Scottish aborer, and are no more allied to cakes in the sense in which the word is used noe cake of "Old Virginny." Again, our delicious shortbread is concorted into a mongrel "shortcake," a term and a cake utterly unknown to Scotland, and, further, any description of the composition of the "bun" also menioned-the cake of all Scotch New Year sweet cakes—is entirely omitted.

The cakes which have given to Scotand its name of the "land o' cakes" are made of oatmeal—and here it should be said that the oatmeal which forms so important an article of diet of the At Fort No. 7 a stout resistance was Scot is ground much finer than that used in this country, which is too coarse to make out cakes-with salt to season and cold water stirred in to make the compound of a consist-ency that it may be rolled out. This leaves the trocha open for any Cuban band that may desire to pass through. One of the Spanish guerilla bands made round to fit the big round "griddle" that has been dusty with the floury meal and hangs hot from the "crook" over the open peat fire. most important holiday of the year, among the laboring classes of Scotland. Christmas is but slightly observd, a remnant of the disdain of the old Scottish Covenanters for any observance of a holy day of the times before the reformation. The "guid New Year" is ushered in with many a quaint ceremony, and the "bun" re-ferred to is chief among the sundry and divers refreshments that are offered to the caller during the day of festivity and generally throughout the week following. It is rather a rich compound, and is usually baked a week or two before the important day, as it is decidedly improved by being kept for a while. What remains after holiday season is over carefully by for special occasions during the year, and the "bun" frequenty lasts from one New Year to an-Here is its receipt: Four pounds raisins; 2 1-2 pounds currants, 1-2 pound almonds, 1-2 pound orange peel, 1-2 ounce cloves, 1-2 ounce ginger, 1-2 ounce allspice, 22 ounces butter, 5 pounds bread dough. Roll out the rest and lay the fruit on it and sprinkle the spices over the fruit and knead all into the dough. When it is well kneaded, roll out the cover, and with it line a large bread pan, leaving enough of the dough to form a top; lay the bun into this, then cover it neatly with the top, trim it round the edges and prick the top with a fork; set in a pretty quick oven, and just before you take it out glaze the stop with the beaten white of an egg.

Death of a Former Dorchester Man in British Columbia-Glenco, K. O. T. M.'s.

News has been received of the death of Mrs. Thomas Richardson, which occurred in British Columbia on Jan. 18. Deceased was born in Lancashire, England, in 1834. In 1858, along with her husband, she came to America, settling in the Eastern States. After remaining there for some time, they moved to Canada, settling in Dor-chester township, where they con-ducted a hotel until a few years ago, when they moved to British Columbia. Besides a husband, deceased leaves two children, Mr. J. C. Richardson, of Ingersoll, and Mrs. O. N. Nelies, of British Columbia, to mourn her loss. Rev. Rural Dean Ridley, of Galt, who has been appointed to canvass the county of Middlesex re diocesan debt, has returned from Glencoe, Wardsville and Newbury, where he made a successful collection towards the debt fund. He preached in these three places on Sunday.

At the last meeting of the Glencoe K. O. T. M., the presence of Sir Knight Trussler, deputy commander, was a great support to the lodge during the business part. The following officers were installed for 1897: Sir Knights Thomas Atkinson, past commander; J. A. McRae, commander; O. Bowlby, lieutenant commander; J. A. Crothers, record keeper; Geo. Visit From Long Point's Heroine-The Coming Entertainment.

Advertiser Agent, Delmere Butler. Simcoe, Jan. 30 .- The body of Mrs. aniel Winter was interred in Oakwood Cemetery yesterday. The entertainment given by Harry Rich and W. E. Ramsay was excellent, but the crowd was slim. Abigaii Becker, the heroine of Long Point, is in town today. There will be an entertainment given in behalf of the Thirty-minth Pattalion Band in the Opera House here, on Monday evening, Feb. 8.

THORNDALE.

Presentation to Mr. Joseph Dawson-

An Efficient Officer Appreciated. Thorndale, Jan. 29.-The officers and directors of the West Nissouri Agri-cultural Society took occasion on Phursday evening to do honor to their retiring president, Mr. Joseph Dawson, and with 100 of their friends, gathered at his home. Mr Dawson was much surprised when Mr John Taylor took the chair, and after explaining the object of the meeting. called on the secretary, Mr. W. F. McGuffin, who read a neatly worded McGuffin, who read a neatily worded address, expressing regret at Mr. Dawson's retirement, as he had been a faithful and energetic president for City, Wallaceburg and Sarnia, the restaure the meet two years, the success of Nissouri's fair being largely due to his untiring efforts. He was asked to accept for himself and wife two large elegantly upholstered chairs as a slight token for the valuable services rendered the society. Mr. Dawson friends for the kind words expressed in the address, and also for the present. After the presentation an oyster supper, prepared by the ladies. partaken of. An excellent programme was then given, consisting of instru-mental music by Miss McDonald and Mr. Wilson, and Mr. and Miss McMillan, recitation by Mrs. Arthur Brown, short addresses by Mr. John Hobbs, Major Booth, Thomas Farley, Peter Eligie, W. McMillan, W. F. McGuf-fin, George W. Belton and others. Altogether, a most enjoyable evening was spent, and at a late hour. the meeting dispersed.

Death of Young Mr. Archie Graham. on Friday.

Komoka. Jan. 30.-We are very sorry to chronicle the death of Archie Graham, the oldest son of Mr. D. Graham, who died at his home Friday evening at 8:30 o:clock, aged 20 years. The funeral leaves the house at 2 o'clock Monday afternoon, and the remains will be taken to Komoka cemetery.

Komoka, Feb. 1.-The members the R. T. of T. gathered at the house of Mr. D. Graham on Saturday evening to sympathize with the sorrowing parents, who mourn over the death of their oldest son, Archy, and presented to them a beautiful wreath of white flowers, as a last token of respect to their departed son, and which was much appreciated by Mr. and Mrs. Graham.

The Rev. Mr. Haige preached his first farewell sermon Sabbath afternoon to a large congregation. At the close, when the reverend gentleman was giving the few parting words, many were moved to tears.

Achievements.

Business Agent. D. McMaster. Sarnia, Jan. 28 .- The past two days have contributed some keen enjoyment to those who take an interest in the "roarin' game," for Sarnia has been the objective point of all clubs in groups 4 and 8, competing for the Ontario and also for the Western Association tankards. On Wednesday Bay City, Toledo, Detroit and Sarnia were the only clubs competing, the others in the group having defaulted. Bay City and Toledo played two rinks, resulting in the defeat of the former by a score of 42 to 38. Sarnia and Detroit were opposed to one another. and the Americans suffered defeat, the score being 46 to 34. In the play-off between Sarnia and Toledo, the game was not finished, owing to the Toledo men having to leave by the evening train for their homes, thus leaving Sarnia the winners in the group. The local men play in the finals at Toronto, and, it is thought, will make a creditable showing at

Good Work Done by the Ghaners Delaware Their Next Field

On Friday night the Gleaners, a band of earnest temperance workers, completed a week's series of meetings at Union Hall. The programme at each meeting was of a varied char-acter, consisting of short temperance addresses, songs, recitations and lime-light views. The special feature Friday night was a limelight representation of "Ten Nights in a Bar-Room," and the views were certainly vivid and realistic. The motto of the Gleaners is to educate and to organize, and their labors have resulted in substantial additions to the membership of the local lodge. Next week the Gleaners will be in Delaware for the purpose of or-ganizing a lodge of R. T. of T. Successful Skating Carnival-Names of the Participants and Prize-Winners.

Exeter, Jan. 30.-The carnival Friday night was a most successful affair, fully 350 people being present, half of whom had their skates on, and enjoying the exhibitaring exercise. Some of the ladies costumes were very pretty indeed. The free-for-all race for gentlemen was about the most exciting feature of the evening. The young lads had the race all to themselves, although several men from tributary towns were "in it," or, ra-ther, "out of it." The judges—Messrs. Deputy Reeve Taylor, Joe Davis and Will Weekes—did pustice in every case, though somewhat handicapped by the confusion caused by the more boisterous boys. Dr. McEachern expressed the belief that the plague was on the decrease, and thinks if the people interested will do what they are asked to do, the middle of summer will see the last of the plague. He says: "In all suspected cases I would advise the farmers to at once report to us. If disease is found on their farms, which they have not reported, they are liable to a fine of $200, and debarred from claiming any indemnity for hogs slaughtered. The disease is very easily dealt with, and it can be stopped on a farm with proper precautions. If it is not controlled promptly, it will jeopardize the whole hog raising industry of the peninsula."

Not for War, But for Honorable Peace.

The National Arbitration Committee of the United States, appointed at the great conference held in Washington last spring, in a statement sent to The Advertiser, makes an effective though indirect, reply to the jingoes of the republic. The jingoes are a small but noisy body, but they seem determined, if possible, to prevent the ratification of the treaty between Great Britain and the United States. In the interest of world-wide humanity and of peaceful development of the two great branches of the English-speaking race, it is to be hoped that these mischief-makers will not succeed.

We are reminded by the National Arbitration Committee that from Washington's administration down to the present day, arbitration has uniformly been a prominent feature of The pending treaty, it is pointed out, is really in a very definite sense the result of the initiative of the United States. In 1890 Congress unanimously questing the President "to invite from parently care nothing for their own such compensating glories as time to time, as fit occasions may arise, negotiations with any Government with which the United States has or may have diplomatic relations, to the end that any differences or disputes arising between the two Gov- week, when a hundred Tories went into ernments which cannot be adjusted by the lobbies against the Ministers. The Trade Bulletin says that the season is about closed, and only a very small amount remains unsold. This, however, by no means implies that there are no cheese at Montreal, as there are probably 40,000 to 50,000 boxes in store, that are held on English account, await-ing instructions. There is one good sized lot of finest Septembers that is held at 12c, but 111c is the highest price that has been made.

FROZEN TO DEATH.

Three Indians and Thousands of Cattle Perish With Cold.

Deadwood, S. D., Feb. 1 .- Word has just been received here showing the esults of the severe weather at the Cheyenne agency during the recent Three Indians froze in their tents, and a number of others will die from the effect of the exposure. Thousands of head of cattle perished in the storm, and 300 were found dead in one place.

Crowds Go Out to See the French Gypsies.

Aren't They Wearing Their Welcome Out?

Loads of Clothing and Provisions - It Has Become Quite a Fad.

The gypsies are being smothered in Paris. kindness. Charity on their behalf has degenerated into a fad.

Yesterday hundreds walked out the Hamilton road to the camp. All day P. Mullins. the spot wasc rowded with curious W. Forristal. and well-meaning people, who peeped into the tents, poked the bears, played with the children, and lent willing ears to the cunning jargon of their swarthy entertainers.

Saturday saw the same scene, School children made a specialty of the gyp-sy camp. Loads of them drove out Compositio

The gypsies were not allomed to perform in the city, but as the city moves out to the gypsies, they want nothing better. They are giving a continuous exhibition now to metropolitan audiences, and are having a capital time. They are all warmly clothed, and have a stock of provisions that will enable them to keep the proverbial wolf from poking his nose under the tent doors for some

In fact, these interesting visitors are being treated so well by the good people of Lendon that they have be come quite attached to the place, and may decide to permanently locate here if this generosity continues. It reflects the greatest credit on local philandhropy that the distress of the poor move on before the bump of benevosides. It is understood the grant of provements, county council will be applied towards the purchase of horses, on the condition that the gypsies travel into the next county. Perhaps St. Thomas will give them a warm welcome.

SUBJECT FOR THE CALLOWS. Recapture of an Escaped Murderer

An Awful Crime Recalled.

Kansas City, Mo., Feb. 1.—By the capture of George Taylor at Hanford, Cal., the last chapter in one of the most atrocious murders in Missouri's history has been begun. Bill and George Taylor were condemned to hang together for the murder of the Meeks family, and while in the Carrollton jail, they escaped during the night of April 11 last. Bill was caught on the roof of the jail, returned to his cell, and in less than a month later was executed. George made his escape, and until now had eluded capture. Gus Meeks, his wife, his two little girls and his baby, were shot and beaten to death on the night of May 11, 1894, on a lonely road in Sullivan ccunty, Missouri. The Taylors had been accused of making a big cattle steal, and Meeks was to be the principal witness for the State. After killing all the family but Nellie, 9 years old, the brothers placed the bodies in a straw stack on George Taylor's farm. Nellie, though badly wounded, managed to crawl from the stack next morning and gave the alarm. The Taylors fled, but in three months the were run down at Mountain Home, in Arkansas, and brought back for trial. Several attempts to lynch them were made, but the law was permitted to take its course. They had plenty of money, and at the first trial succeeded in convicted and a new trial was had. Finally murder in the first degree was returned and the sentence of hanging, which Bill has already undergone, must soon take place in George's

MRS. STERNAMAN Will Endeavor to Secure a Change of Venue.

Buffalo, Feb. 1.-There seems to be a wavering of opinion amongst Mrs. Sternaman's friends as to whether she should give up further proceedings in fighting extradition. Chas. J. Thomas, who was legal agent for the Ontario Government, it is said, has arranged that a change of venue be had and the trial take place out of Haldimand county, where, Mrs. Sternaman claims, opinion would condemn her no matter how strongly the evidence would tend in her favor. Cardinal, Jan. 30 .- Mr. Robert Mc-Intosh, a farmer very widely known in this county, and living near this village, has been in a painful and dagerous condition as the result of kidney disease affecting the bladder. When called upon he said: "During three years, until quite recently cured by using four boxes of Dodd's Kidney Pills, I have been an intense sufferer from Kidney Disease, which kept going from bad to worse, though I was doctoring all the time. "Under advice I began using Dodd's Kidney Pills, at once realizing great help. I now feel like a new man, and am perfectly cured of kidney trouble in any form."

QUEER BATHS.

Strange Fancies of Some People in the Way of Luxuries.

For sheer ostentation of luxury there is nothing to equal the bath of asses' milk in which Cleopatra is said to have regularly indulged, troops of she-asses accompanying her retinue wherever she went, so that she might never be with out the needful supply. Only the bath of champagne with which Sara Bernhardt is credited can in modern days be put on the same level.

Such indulgences are the madness of extravagant luxury, but it is possible to do very well without going quite so far. Flower baths have been highly spoken of, and extolled as something novel, but they are quite a new fashion, for beauty baths of this sort were much in favor with French ladies of bygone years. Madame Tallien used to take a bath prepared of strawberries and raspberries, 20 pounds of the former and two pounds of the latter being rushed and thrown into the water. This had the effect of beautifying and softening the skin, giving it a delicate pink tinge and an agreeable perfume. Others have used baths of various herbs, baths of crushed flowersthree or four handfuls of cowslips or wild primroses added to the water perfuming the skin and proving very soothing both to it and to the nervous system-baths of leaves, and baths of powdered roots. The baths of earth known at one time have gone out of favor, the idea of lying in garden mould up to the neck not being particularly fascinating. An American physician, however, has found the placing the body of a sufferer from lightning stroke up to the neck in a hole dug in the earth a remarkably efficient mode of treatment. Pleasant to contemplate, in comparison, is the sun-bath, much in vogue in certain Swiss and other Continental resorts, where the patient-or the healthy for that matter-in the garb of nature, is exposed, under glass, to the beneficial rays of old Sol, the best and most genial of physicians. The electric light bath is spoken of as not at all a bad substitute, and it is said that to tinge the skin with as real a tan as the sun himself. Half a pound of starch added to the bath water produced the starch bath-a real novelty, deliciously refreshing and soething, and much affected by French and American ladies. And for variety, again, there are the mud baths of such places as Dax and Homburg, where the patient suffering from rheumatism gets ness and his limbs plastered over with hot liquid 25 cents. mud, as the old Romans used to do, for these baths were known in their time and much sought after for their curative

While physicists are still busy experimenting and speculating on the Roentgen rays, comparatively little has been added to what was contained in the discoverer's first announcement. The search for the best methods and apparatus for producing the rays has resulted in several types of tubes, each having its peculiar advantages. A recent practical development of great value is the photo-fluorescope, which enables the eye and the photographic sensitive plate to record images simultaneously. In the early days of medical Roentgen ray work, a long exposure had to be made of the object to be photographed, and in cases where a prompt diagnosis was imperative, this necessity was apt to prove a serious disadvantage. Then came the fluoroscope. by which the condition of the limb or organ under examination could be instantly ascertained by looking on the shining screen on which the Roentgen rays were playing. But this was not sufficent for all purposes. The image vanished as soon as the fluoroscope was removed, and there was no record of it. For the purpose of subsequent guidance and study, it was essential that such a record should be available as the photofluoroscope now supplies. It is simply a combination of an ordinary photographic camera and a fluoroscopic screen of special make, carefully fitted into the camera. The object can be thrown on the screen, and after it has been examined by the practitioner for his present needs, it can be instantly photographed on the sensitive plate by the pressure of a button. Thus the instrument becomes peculiarly valuable to physicians and surgeons for positive diagnosis. Very important work is being done with the photo-fluoroscope in the shadowing out and recording of tumors, growths, foreign bodies and various diseased conditions of the larynx and bones of the face and their accessory cavities, and the lungs with their many complicated allments. One of the first applications of the in strument by Dr. Mount Bleyer, its inventor, secured a picture of a silver tube which had been placed in the throat and had slipped down cut of sight in the

'If you could have cleared it up no one would have been more thankful, Miss Bostal thinks I haven't brought more grateful than I," retorted Clifford, whose face had grown haggard with anxiety, with unhappiness, on Nell's account: "but to send a young fool, without tact, without delicacy, like Lowndes, spying about, and making a thundering idiot of himself-why, it was more what you would expect a couple of schoolboys than of two full-grown men out of Hanwell!"
"As to that," replied Conybeare, "I don't know that Lowndes has less tact than anybody else. I must say that, in the circumstances, I should have acted very much as he "Now, my dear Clifford, you are unreasonable, as all persons suffering from your ailment are," said Conybeare, rising and standing in a judicial atti-tude in front of the fire. "Because tude you admire this young woman, you hink she is incapable of a crime which has, in my opinion, been traced clear-ly home to her. If the woman whom Lowndes saw and followed was not Miss Claris, how was it, when pur-sued, she made straight for Miss Claris' room? Could Miss Claris have a bedfellow-there was only one bed in the room-without knowing it? If she had a bedfellow, would not some person in the house have been acquainted with the fact, and would not the sudden disappearance of this person arouse suspicion, even in the in-nocent mind of Miss Claris?" "But I don't believe a word of the whole story. Lowndes had too much whisky before going to bed, and hav-ing his mind full of the tales you had told him, he dreamed that he saw a woman in the room, and started in pursuit of a wholly imaginary figure. You know he admits he had nothing stolen. The only part of the story which I do believe, is his own idiotic flight through a door and a window, and the bath in the river which sobered him."

"All right," said Conybeare. "It is no business of mine whether you believe Lowndes or not. Let us drop the

She did not offer to shake hands with him, and she eyed his tweed suit and low-crowned hat with open disfavor.

"I am afraid," said Clifford, "that enough of London down with me!" The colonel laughed, and said they would overlook that. But the prim little lady said icily:

Her father interrupted her "Good gracious, Theodora, if you are old-fashioned, what ought I to be? And I should think Mr. King very foolish to walk along a country road in his Bond street get-up, on Sunday or any other day.'

"Oh, it is I who am foolish," retorted Miss Theodora. "I suppose the clergyman didn't mind; he gets too much used to that sort of thing now-a-days. But in my young days a vicar would have felt himself insulted if any member of the upper classes had appeared at service in such a costume."

Even the colonel, who was presumably accustomed to his daughter's vagaries, was astonished at her acrimonious tones. Clifford, who was hardly prepared with an answer, was relieved when she made an much cuse of preparing dinner, to leave him

As the spare figure, clad in a curious old-fashioned dress of five-and-twenty years back, the skirts uplifted with both hands in the ancient manner, disappeared into the house, the colonel "I need not apologize for my daughter, I suppose," he said, with a twinkle in his eye. "Women fossilize more quickly than we do, you know.' "I really began to feel rather frigh-tened," said Clifford. "I was speculating as to what would happen if I should let slip the fact that I hadn't been to church at all this morning!" "She knew that as well as we did, I imagine," said the colonel. "The vicar gave us an hour and ten minutes of it this morning, so I suppose felt bitter.' "I don't see why she should have vented her feelings on me," murmured

But the old gentleman suddenly stopped short. He had been walking on with Clifford in the direction of the "I have it!" he exclaimed, with con viction. "It's on account of Nell Claris, her little protege! My daughter is very indignant about the way in which the girl has been persecuted lately, and I suppose she thinks you have had something to do with it." (To be Continued.)

The completion of the works on the American side has been delayed by difficulties which always beset, and are inseparable from, great and novel undertakings. pany could only assure itself that it , was securing the most useful machinmost careful experiment. Small units of electrical power have been transmitted in the United States and in Switzerland distances of fifty miles. The company was fully aware of the transmission from Tivoli to Rome, and at Telluride, Colorado. but the Niagara undertaking is on much larger and entirely different lines. Surely it is not an unreasonable request in view of the fact that the Canadian company have already paid the Government $100,000, and are consequently most anxious to push development so that they may get some return for this money, and the enormous rental they have to pay per year, and some return for the great expenditure that is necessarily involved within the next three years be assured they are going ahead in the

If the the Canadian Niagara Power Company, although my English and Can-up among half a dozen or more people, no one would put in the necessary capital to have a proper and efficient plant for the development and trans-mission of electricity, if the latter can now be said to be feasible. The enormous expense incident to such an un-dertaking makes it absolutely important that some franchise should be granted before capital can be induced to venture upon such an enterprise. The next objection that has been taken is, that the American side is being developed at the expense of the out that upon the American sid five millions have been expended on capital account, and until this autumn without any return; and with the exception of two manufactories moved from the coal regions, no manufacturers from outside places have been induced to come to the American side. On the Canadian side no bona fide demand for over 1,000 horse power has been made locally, and such horse-power has only been asked for from the two American industries above referred to, who contemplate establishing Canadian branches. This power can be obtained at any time by arrangement with the Park Electric Railway Company, who have surplus power which they will be glad to have utilized if the Government will permit such an arrangement to be made

The importance to Canada and to work was to be retarded beyond reason, or not completed (in case of the distances). Hamilton, Toronto an other Ontario cities and towns might well be disappointed. If, however, all that is asked is a delay of eighteen months to properly demonstrate the successful operation of long distance transmission on the American side to Buffalo, a distance of 26 miles, so as to give Canadians the best possible results once the project is under way, are not these cities the gainers? If the present company should retire from this enterprise, it would mean that some other company would have to be organized which would have to begin experiments, and which would await the result of the experiment upon the other side. As it is, the cities of Hamilton and Toronto are assured of having a substantial company complete with the best possible machin ery, with little likelihood of break downs or mishaps, and with an Act which limits the price that can be charged to the same price as is charged on the American side. Applications of a nebulous and indefinite character ventors, representing products not yet produced commercially, and by anxous real estate brokers looking for

"booms," and pretending to know of large manufactories anxious to use Canadian Niagara power. The company has offered to commence work upon the satisfactory agreement of any reliable person or persons or corporations of financial responsibility to take in the aggregate and pay for 5,000 electrical horse power for local use for a definite period. In a word, I have pointed out the enormous advantage of having the present company, which has paid so much money into the public coffers, which at would have absolutely dost if the experiment proved a failure, being allowed to complete its experiments and assure itself of having the proper machinery, and then proceeding to push the work on as rapidly as possible. DEATH OF MRS. BRADEURN.

Here-Her Daughter Is Now a London Teacher.

The Tilsonburg Observer, in a biographical sketch of the late Mrs. Jas. Bradburn, whose death occurred there at the home of Mr. Alex. Bradburn, shortly after her return from a visit to her sister, Mrs. Jeffrey, of this city, says: Mrs. Bradburn, whose maiden name was Amy Haley, was born in the historic old town of St. Andrews, N. B., in 1828. When she was about 13 years of age her father removed with his family to the township of Pickening. The farm on which he settled was called Brunswick Hill. Mis-Haley had a love for learning, that the hardships of the early settler's life could not quench, and we find her shortly engaged in teaching, and later taking a course at the Normal School, Toponto. Among her fellow-students were Dr. J. H. Sangster and Dr. Mc-Lellan, both of whom afterwards rose to eminence in the educational profession. After graduating from the Normal School she secured a situation in the London Union school, where she taught for some time. It was the same school that Miss Helen Bradburn, her only daughter, is at present engaged in. She removed from London to in. She removed from London to teach in the Humilton Union school, of

After several years he sold out to his brother, and spent about a year with his family in Man-itoulin. Returning to Tilsonburg, itoulin. where he lived for some time, he pur-chased the Pinnel farm, near Delmer, where the family resides at present. Mrs. Bradburn first joined the church in connection with the St. Andrew's congregation, London, under the late Rev. John Scott, and was for many years a consistent and highly esteemed member of the Avondale Church in Tilsonburg, of which her husband is the oldest surviving elder. She was a lady of singular sweetness of life, and with her refined and cultured tastes and fine Christian character, was a model wife, mother and friend. Not only to her own family, but to all who knew her she has left a sweet and fragrant memory which is among Formerly Taught in the Union School the helpful influences of life.
