

MANY SUITS FOR DAMAGES: BIG BUSINESS FOR ASSIZES

Numerous Writs Against the Street Railway and Steam Roads—Reid Case Also Figures in the Long List at the Courthouse.

The London street railway, the G. T. R. and the C. P. R. will have no less than ten or eleven damage suits to face at the October assizes, unless some of the cases are settled beforehand.

The Reid disaster, too, has brought forth several writs for actions, notice of which have already appeared in The Advertiser, and altogether the outlook is for a very heavy list of damage suits at the assizes.

Some of the most important writs entered are as follows:

George Nixon vs. G. T. R.—A suit for unstated damages for wrongfully taking and entering lands of plaintiff, part of lot 24, concession 3, London Township, and erecting thereon an embankment as part of a highway crossing their railway without having deposited a map, plan, or book of reference and without having served notice to the plaintiff, giving description of land to be taken, or the price they were willing to pay therefor. Ivey & Drummond for plaintiff.

Kennedy Sues.

Wm. J. Kennedy vs. London Street Railway Company—An action for damages for injuries received while a passenger of defendant's road.

loss street, in front of another one going in the opposite direction. J. F. Faulds for plaintiff.

Henry T. Bell vs. London Street Railway Company—Mr. Bell sues to recover unstated damages for injuries received while traveling on defendant's cars.

Bell was riding on an Oxford street car a few weeks ago, when it left the track while going at the rate of approximately 25 or 30 miles an hour. The plaintiff's upper jaw was splintered, and he was otherwise injured. J. F. Faulds for plaintiff.

A Crystal Hall Echo.

Cassandra U. Jeffrey vs. Archibald McCallum and I. H. Brewster—An action to recover possession of lot 7, south side of Dundas street at No. 201, Edgar Jeffrey for plaintiff.

Journalist's Trip to the Forest City

Mr. J. T. Dunsford, of the Bridge-water, England, Mercury, who recently visited London in company with the British journalists, writes his paper as follows of the city of London: "London, a city containing nearly 50,000 inhabitants, was reached in the evening, and the journalists found awaiting them at the station the mayor and corporation and numerous press representatives, who escorted them to the clubhouse, where dinner was partaken of under the presidency of Mr. Judd, the mayor, supported by Senator Coffey, of the Dominion Legislature. In responding to the toast of 'The British Journalists,' with which his name was associated, the writer expressed the personal gratification he had experienced in finding that the mayor was, like himself, a Devonian, and that some other members of the company had also come from his native county, and were doing well. After dinner a special car was requisitioned to convey the journalists to the Glenmore, the beautiful home of the London Hunt Club, where another social hour was spent very agreeably. On the following morning the visitors enjoyed an automobile drive of several miles around the city and its suburbs, accompanied by a large number of the principal citizens, the motor cars, nearly a dozen in number, being decorated with miniature Union Jacks. Westminster Bridge, spanning the River Thames, was crossed, and several of the places visited, including the 'Crystal Palace,' were named after the best known public resorts of our own metropolis. When some distance from the city it was determined to call out the fire brigade in order to give the visitors an opportunity of witnessing their work. Without any preconcerted arrangement, and within an incredibly short interval after the call was given, the powerful engine (with a delivery capacity of 1,100 gallons per minute) and several members of the force, with other apparatus, were observed to be approaching at a marvelously quick rate, and as the horses galloped by the visitors could not refrain from a hearty burst of cheering in appreciation of the smartness displayed."

GIRL KILLED IN ASCENSION

Balloonist's "Cannon" Fails to Work and Woman Falls to Her Death.

Howard City, Mich., Sept. 6.—Encased in a balloonist's "cannon," which refused to work, Pearl Potter, of Big Rapids, fell 500 feet from the balloon to the ground and was killed, at 6 o'clock tonight at the fair grounds. It was the girl's first attempt at an ascension.

The girl and a parachute were taken up by the balloonist encased in the "cannon." At a height of about 500 feet the cannon was cut loose, but something failed to work and neither the girl nor parachute left it. The cannon with its human freight crashed to the earth about 40 rods east of the fair grounds.

It was several moments before the crowd could realize that a fatality had occurred. Three doctors and the coroner pronounced the girl dead. It is thought she died before reaching the ground.

The officials of the fair did not know until after her death that the girl was not experienced. Her maiden name was Ellen. Her parents, who reside at Big Rapids, were notified. She was separated from her husband over a year ago.

R. A. Wilson, of Grand Rapids, the balloonist, and his assistant, Schultz, declared they will never send up a balloon again.

No Teacher to Fill the Vacancy; W.C. Ferguson's Position Still Open

No. 1 Committee of the Board of Education Met Last Night and Discussed Situation.

No. 1 committee of the board of education met last night, and transacted some important business.

It decided to take no action at this time in regard to filling the chair of English, made vacant by the resignation of Mr. W. C. Ferguson, it was said.

The substitute is doing satisfactory work for the time being, and it was thought advisable to wait until a satisfactory teacher for the position could be secured. This appears to be a somewhat difficult task.

It was recommended that Mr. W. Govenlock be placed in charge of the upper assembly-room, made vacant by the resignation of Mr. Ferguson.

Miss Anna Grant was recommended to take the position in the West London kindergarten made vacant by the resignation of Miss Angus. Miss Anna M. Kennedy, Miss Edna Claris, Miss Lillian E. Owens, Miss M. Nash, Miss Elmore Marsh, and Miss Ethel Teasdale were admitted as students in the London kindergarten.

The committee also recommended that Miss Dixon, of Galt, be given an appointment in the London kindergarten.

Misses Myrtle Justin, Winnifred Gould and Mabel C. Buckle were recommended for the substitute teachers' staff.

The Aberdeen kindergarten is very much crowded, and Inspector Edwards was given power to take whatever steps he considered necessary to re-

Important Move to Help Chelsea Green Roadway Opened to 1st Concession

Talk of a Bridge on the L. and P. S. R. Tracks at the Base Line.

The opening up of Chelsea Green road right through from Adelaide street bridge, over the Thames, to the Commissioner's road, or what is also known as the first concession of Westminster, has been arranged for.

The township council met this morning at the corner of the Wellington and Commissioner's roads, and gave their final consent in the matter.

It is stated that the Chelsea Green Company has given the land free to the township for the roadway, which is to be 60 feet wide from the river to the base line. South of that point, the land for the roadway is being donated by Mr. J. H. McMechan, of this city, who owns the farm lying east of the L. and P. S. R. tracks and south of the base line to the Commissioner's road.

There will be a spacious avenue, well graded, all the way from Adelaide street bridge to the first concession of Westminster. This will be a big convenience to all the people of that district of Westminster, who have now to come into the city by means of the Wellington road, or Vauxhall bridge.

There is also talk of a bridge being built across the London and Port Stanley Railway tracks at the base line, in rear of the Spettigue farm, to connect with the Chelsea Green roadway.

The base line now runs only as far as the tracks east of the Wellington road, where it comes to a dead end.

It is understood that the Westminster Township Council is giving exemptions to all factories which will locate on Chelsea Green on the ground that the factories will build up the township, and bring many people to live there.

Victoria Street Girl Falls Twenty Feet

Gertie Brennan, the 14-year-old daughter of Mr. Jeremiah Brennan, of 184 Victoria street, fell out of a second story window of her home last night, and was seriously injured.

The girl was playing in the room, and was leaning out the window when she overbalanced.

Dr. Tillmann was summoned, and he is of the opinion that she will soon recover.

No bones were broken, but it will not be known for some time whether she sustained internal injuries. She fell about twenty feet.

Wiseman—Trueman.

A quiet wedding was solemnized by Rev. James Livingstone, at the Wellington Street Methodist parsonage, on Wednesday at 7:30, when Miss M. A. Trueman, of Windsor, was united in marriage to Mr. Joseph C. Wiseman, of Walkerville. After the ceremony the happy couple adjourned to the home of Mr. and Mrs. L. P. Johnston, 486 Central avenue, where a dainty luncheon was served. Mr. and Mrs. Wiseman will reside in Walkerville.

Death of Wm. Dyson.

The death of another old and highly respected citizen of London, Mr. William Dyson, occurred at the family residence, 75 Dundas street, this morning, in his 81st year. The funeral service will take place from his late residence on Monday, at 3 o'clock. The service will be held at 2:30.

Mr. and Mrs. Joseph C. Wiseman, of Walkerville, are visiting at the home of Mr. and Mrs. L. P. Johnston, 486 Central avenue.

2,000 Names on Sunday Car Petitions Lord's Day Alliance Will Fight Move

Arguments of Those For and Against the Proposal—A Meeting on Monday.

The local branch of the Lord's Day Alliance will hold a meeting on Monday next, at which the agitation which is now being felt in London for Sunday street cars will be discussed.

A member of the alliance stated to The Advertiser this morning that the alliance will fight the agitation on the ground that Sunday cars are not needed in this city.

The argument is put up by those opposed to the movement, that in a city of 50,000 people, Sunday cars are not at all a necessity, and that they would only lead the people to evil things.

The other side points out, however, that the need for Sunday cars should not be judged by population, but by territory.

For example, London has only 50,000 people, and yet the city covers about 4,500 acres. Hamilton on the other hand has well onto 70,000 people, and the city only covers about 2,500 acres.

The point is that in London the people have very long distances to cover, and that the city needs Sunday cars much worse than Hamilton.

It is pointed out, too, by the advocates of Sunday cars that if cars are not a necessity in London the people indulge in frequent luxuries week days, because they are, as a rule, crowded, on all lines.

It was stated to The Advertiser today that there are now over 2,000 names on the petitions being circulated for Sunday cars.

Those behind the agitation claim they will present petitions bearing not less than 15,000 names to the city council very shortly.

It was also stated that several ministers have promised to preach in favor of Sunday cars tomorrow.

Main Tracks Have Not Been Raised

City Engineer Graydon and Engineer Mitchell, who is in charge of the Grand Trunk construction work west of the city, went out to Ridout street this morning to inspect the crossing.

Some time ago complaint had been made to the aldermen that the track at the crossing had been raised contrary to the agreement with the city. The council dealt with the matter at its last meeting, and the city engineer was instructed to see if the complaints were well founded.

It was shown by Mr. Mitchell that the main tracks had not been raised an inch since they were put down. The switch at the point, however, had been raised a few inches to make it on a level with the main track, but nothing more was done.

NEW TENDERS FOR THE SIDEWALK

The city council held a special meeting at noon today. At the last meeting a contract had been awarded to Mr. W. J. Anthistle for the sidewalk in front of Hyman's tannery for the sum of $200. It was found that the tender called for $390 instead of for $200, and although Mr. Anthistle thought that he could do the work for the lower sum, it was not thought right to give it to him over the Forest City Paving Company, whose tender in the first instance was for $345.

The council at noon today, on the motion of Ald. Matthews, referred the matter to No. 2 committee, with the instructions that new tenders be called for the work immediately, and that the contract be awarded as soon as possible. It is the intention of the council to finish the sidewalk as soon as possible.

Mr. S. Screaton, chairman of the hospital trust, was given the use of the city hall for several afternoons, to be afterwards decided upon, for the purpose of rehearsing a concert to be given shortly in behalf of the furnishing of the new isolation hospital.

The members of the council present were Mayor Judd, Ald. Screaton, Stevenson, Matthews, Cooper, Gerv. Gillen, Saunders and City Clerk Baker.

HITS WIFE WITH WHISKY BOTTLE AND IS IN FOR STIFF PUNISHMENT

"I have been married nearly seven years, have three children, my husband has been a heavy drinker and has frequently abused me and threatened to kill me on numerous occasions," was the story told in police court this morning by Mrs. Anna Johnson, when testifying against her husband, Charles Johnson, who was arrested last night on a charge of having done bodily injury to his wife.

Johnson was formerly a laborer in a local brickyard, but quit his job some time ago and as a consequence of his drinking habits he and his family were forced to leave their home. The wife went to her mother's home to live, while he got along as best he could.

Last night he became intoxicated and paid a visit to his mother-in-law during the absence of his wife. Upon Mrs. Johnson's return to the house Johnson asked her to step outside as he wished to talk to her. "I want to stay here tonight," said he. "Do you think your mother will stand for it?"

"We have no room for such as you," was the reply he received, whereupon Johnson pulled a whisky bottle from his pocket and threw it at her head inflicting a bad cut and causing several bruises on the woman's arm.

This morning Mrs. Johnson exhibited the injuries to Magistrate Love. Johnson elected trial by the magistrate and said he "guessed he was guilty."

"Well, you had better not do any guessing in this matter," retorted the magistrate, "if you are proven guilty of this offense you are liable to a sentence of three years." Johnson then pleaded guilty, and was remanded for one week for sentence.

"I am going to put you in a place where you won't threaten any woman or abuse your wife for a long time," remarked Magistrate Love, as Johnson was being led away. "And besides, I will insist that you furnish reliable bonds in the sum of $500 that you will keep the peace upon your discharge from jail."

Johnson several times interrupted the taking of testimony by calling to his wife to forgive him and to give him one more chance.

Charles Gray, charged with assaulting Anne Purdy, was bailed to appear next Saturday.

"Ten dollars or twenty-one days in jail," was the punishment meted out to Daniel Curtin, 24, of Ottawa, while Frank Legg got off with a fine of $5.

James Walsh, charged with vagrancy, said he was no tramp and that he was engaged in getting out a theatrical programme when arrested.

One of the officers, however, stated that Curtin had been sleeping around the railroad yards for two nights, and that he had no permanent place of abode. Curtin was remanded for one week.

A number of first-time offenders were allowed to go.

London Soldiers at Petawawa Well

A dispatch from Kingston states that several cases of typhoid fever have broken out among the soldiers who were at the Petawawa camp.

There are also some cases at Pembroke and other points.

Inquiry was made at the Barracks this morning, and it was found that the soldiers there who had been at Petawawa were in excellent health, and the same was true of the rest of them who went to Ottawa direct from the camp.

No cases have been reported from the artillerymen.

Major Mills' troops have also escaped, as no cases amongst the men has been reported.

City and County Ask Grant of $8,000 For Proposed Tuberculosis Hospital

Chairman Stevely and Committee Dealt With the Matter at a Special Meeting.

A meeting of the joint committee of the city and county councils regarding the tuberculosis hospital, was held this morning at the city hall, with Ald. Stevely (chairman), Ald. Beattie, County Councillor S. Frank Glass (secretary), County Councillor Brown, ex-Warden E. W. Jackson and Dr. J. S. Niven present. Mr. J. Lewis Thomas, who drew the plans, was also present.

It was decided to send the plans of the proposed sanatorium to the Provincial board of health at once.

Ald. Beattie and County Councillor Brown moved that:

county of Middlesex have entered into a provisional agreement for the erection by them jointly, at a point in the county of Middlesex near the city of London, of a sanatorium for consumptives at a cost of about $20,000. Be it resolved that this committee from the city and county do respectfully request that the Government grant to each of the said municipalities the full statutory grant of $4,000, making a total of $8,000; and that a copy of this resolution be forwarded to the Provincial Secretary of Ontario.

This motion was carried unanimously.

It was also decided, on the motion of Dr. Niven and Mr. S. P. Glass, that the Ontario Legislature be asked to grant special legislation to the city and county, empowering them to erect a sanatorium and to issue debentures for the same without taking a vote of the people on the question.

A copy of it will be forwarded to the Provincial Secretary.

UNITED STATES NAVAL PRO-GRAMME.

The decision of the United States Navy Department to shortly send the Atlantic fleet of sixteen battleships to the Pacific has caused not a little newspaper comment. When the decision was first made known there were those who, in view of the then prevailing friction with Japan, professed to see in it, if not a sign of war, at least a naval demonstration. In Japan, too, popular excitement was considerably intensified, and jingo talk took the place of common-sense reasoning. The little flurry has at last passed over, however; the Americans now better understand Japan's Pacific purposes and imperative motives for avoiding war, while the Japanese have apparently received assurances from Washington that there is nothing warlike in the naval plans of the United States.

Now, however, the American politician has taken up the matter. Opponents of President Roosevelt, who, as commander-in-chief of the army, has authorized the voyage of the fleet, are inventing new objections to it. These people declare that the proposed parade of battleships is intended to further Mr. Roosevelt's political programme for 1908, or to secure a "solid Roosevelt delegation" from every Pacific state, and certain congressmen have announced their intention of demanding of the President an explanation of the voyage. Of course neither the President nor the naval board is likely to take such a demand seriously, nor is there probability of it finding much favor in Congress.

The explanation of the voyage is simple enough. The object is to put the fleet through disciplinary exercise and the trying out of officers and men on a large and difficult scale. The working out of difficult problems will be undertaken and the efficiency of ships and crews tested. One of the problems is that of coaling. The sixteen big battleships will be supplied from relays of their own coallers at four or five designated points along the route under conditions (the possibility of attack eliminated) which would have to be met in time of war. There can be no question as to the importance of sailors thoroughly learning their business, and it would perhaps be difficult to devise a way of schooling and tempering them more thoroughly than this projected hard and long voyage of 14,000 miles. The main purpose, aside from a more logical apportionment of ships, is no doubt the disciplinary one, and a most commendable one it is. That the country will be satisfied with it may be taken for granted, for no one will be inclined to dispute that the crews cannot be better employed than in thus learning their business in strenuous sea life.

AUSTRALIA'S NEW TARIFF.

The new Australian tariff gives little or no encouragement to the free traders of New South Wales, as it bears every evidence that the protectionist sentiment of Victoria dominates the present ministry of the Commonwealth. The duties on all articles which Australia manufactures are increased, and while a preference ranging from 5 per cent upwards is given to British goods, the amount of the concession depends on the extent to which the article imported comes into competition with home productions. For instance, a preference of 10 per cent is allowed on British furniture, small agricultural implements of certain kinds and household utensils, while only 5 per cent is given on British hats, hosiery, galvanized iron and electrical machinery as against those of foreign origin.

An idea of the protectionist character of the tariff may be formed when it is stated that the general duty on furniture is 40 per cent, on boots and shoes 35 per cent, while the importation of bicycles is put practically out of the question by the imposition of a duty of 25 for each machine. On iron there is an extensive scheme of duties, the matter of bonuses being left in the hands of the Federal House. The free list applies to goods of British origin only, and comprises over fifty articles which are subject to a duty of 5 per cent when imported from any other country. This concession to the British manufacturers is so small that they will derive little advantage from it, and it is not surprising that they regard the preference as something in the nature of a farce.

In adopting the principle of giving a preference to goods of British origin the Commonwealth Government is following the lead of the Liberal Government at Ottawa. But what a long way behind!

ENGLISH RAILWAY PROGRESS.

England is at present served by eleven big railway systems, and the semi-annual reports, recently presented, are regarded by the shareholders as only moderately satisfactory. They show an increase of 3.6 per cent in earnings over the corresponding half-year of 1906, of 4.6 per cent, in the expenditure, and of only 1.8 per cent in net revenue. The gross receipts amounted to £41,983,000, being a gain of £1,453,000; expenditure, £27,107,000, an increase of £1,138,000, and the net revenue £14,876,000, or £267,000 better than that of the 1906 period. Thus, while railways have benefited from the activity in trade, the increased business has cost more proportionately than it brought to the companies, the increase in operating expenses being from 64 per cent of the receipts to 64.5 per cent. Considerable capital expenditures are being made by some of the roads, and more money is required to make dividends, so that a continuous increase is necessary if results are to be entirely satisfactory to the shareholders. While the increase was sufficient in the case of some roads, big companies such as the Great Eastern, the Brighton and the London, Chatham and Dover, had to make cuts in their dividends. One company, the Great Central, on some of its issues pays nothing. Various causes contributed to the losses, among them being some of a permanent character, such, for instance, as the development of the London tramway systems. The Brighton company is meeting this by electrifying its South London line. To companies which are not in a position to follow a similar course the change in all probability means a permanent loss in connection with passenger train service, so that the immediate outlook for them is not of the brightest. All the roads are being supplied with coal on contracts which expire this year, so that the advance in the price of fuel will soon be felt. This will be no insignificant matter. For instance, in the case of the Great Northern, it is stated that an increase of a shilling a ton means an annual outlay of £40,000, and it is understood that the miners are demanding an increase of three shillings a ton. Demands of employees for advances in wages by no means brighten the prospect of the English railway shareholders.

W. F. MACLEAN, M. P.

[Ottawa Journal.]

Started by Mr. E. W. Thomson, in Ottawa correspondence to the Boston Transcript, the suggestion that Mr. W. F. Maclean, Conservative M. P. for South York, might find a resting place in the Laurier cabinet, is receiving a generous attention from the press.

Our guess is that Mr. Maclean will never find a resting place anywhere. At least, not unless as prime minister, leading a party not of Liberals or Conservatives, but of Macleanites.

He is like Mr. Bourassa, only worse. Mr. Bourassa believes himself to be a Liberal, the rest having drifted away from the true platform; but while Mr. Maclean remains nominally a Conservative, it is probably because that party is out of power and is unable to do much for him to carry. When the Conservative party gets into power, let it look out for Billy.

Meanwhile we think there is as much chance of his entering the Laurier cabinet as of his forming a coalition with Mr. Bourassa.

PLEADS IGNORANCE.

[Exchange.]

Judge—How did you come to get drunk Defendant—Faith, yer honor, O'm not to blame. O didn't know what O was doin'.

Judge—You didn't? How was that?

Defendant—Well, yer see, yer O was under th' influence of liquor when O started.

OF LITTLE ADVANTAGE.

[Bon Vivant.]

Passenger—Hi, porter! Have you seen anything of my wife and my luggage?

Porter—I've no doubt I have, sir, but as I don't know them, I'm afraid that won't help you much.

ALONG WITH ROCKEFELLER.

[Life.]

"Have you ever contributed any money toward the cause of higher education?"

"Indeed, yes. We use Standard Oil at our house."

A VALID OBJECTION.

[Kansas City Times.]

When it was decided that the wife and daughter of an east side man should visit swindle in the country, the daughter, a 6-year-old, made a protest which was so surprisingly vehement that he father asked why she objected.

"Mamma says everybody goes to bed with the chickens down there," sobbed the little rebel.

"But you don't want to stay up late, do you, dear?" asked the astonished parent.

"No," replied the child, "but I'm not going to sleep in any old hen house."

NEED OLD AGE BE A BURDEN?

[New York American.]

Lord Brampton, the famous criminal judge of London, finds that living a century has its drawbacks. Having retired from active duty, Lord Brampton, who is now 80, pines for work. "Old age has very few compensations," he says. "Laziness is not pleasant. It fills me with regret that I am no longer able to take an active part in the life of the world."

This is a new view, and somehow gives the impression of being an honest one. To a man who is interested in achievement, who has been used to doing, who loves work and has been pleased to consider himself a factor in human progress, idleness must be more irksome than toll. And why should one who loves effort more than rest be condemned to the torments of an inactive life simply because he is old? Gladstone was a great party leader almost to the time of his death. Other examples of octogenarians whose nobility of mind did not suffer, and whose capacity for work was not impaired, are by no means scarce. Why should those who find most happiness in doing be doomed to unhappiness simply because of the world's false notion of age?

Man is not a slave to years. If he does not fossilize, if he keeps as ready to welcome the new truths as at first, if his spirit retains the sense of being young, why should the world condemn him to inaction just at the time when his store of wisdom should make his service and opinions of most value? Men of that sort are more efficient at 80 or even 90 than some people who are in the prime of life.

KANSAS REPORTING.

[Kansas City Star.]

A vivid bit of descriptive writing by a Lake City correspondent: "The heavens turned loose Friday night with her artillery, and bombarded Sharon and community with her electric force, striking Mr. Rucker's house and killed the old gentle cow, set a straw stack on fire belonging to one of the Dunkin boys, and put a number of telephones out of commission."

AN UNOBSERVANT HUSBAND

[Atholton Daily Globe.]

An Atholton woman who has false teeth married a man who lived with him many years, or until he died, without his discovering the fact.

A DIPLOMAT.

[Chicago Record-Herald.]

"Mr. Spriggins is the most diplomatic man I ever knew."

"I have never noticed it."

"Why, he can give an order for a meal and arrange it so that the waiter will have to pronounce the French name of every dish on the bill of fare."

A CYNICAL INSTRUCTOR.

[Washington Star.]

"Father," said little Rollo, "what is a great man?"

"A great man, my son, is one who manages to gather about him a corps of assistants who will take the blame for his mistakes, while he gets the credit for any good ideas."

A PLATFORM OF PLATITUDES.

[Winnipeg Tribune, Ind.]

Mr. R. L. Borden's so-called platform, which he outlined at Halifax the other night, is little better than a pile of platitudes for nothing tangible, says nothing that has not been said in one form or another by political parties for years, and, as it at present stands, means nothing. The people naturally look to a party in opposition as the party of reform, progress and advanced ideas. To Mr. Borden's opening speech of his transcontinental tour they looked forward with hope and the expectation of something radical, comprehensive and definite. Their hopes have been disappointed for they have had presented to them a platform that is vague, rambling and so full of loopholes that it is worthless, a mere bundle of generalities and platitudes.

A MEANS TO EXERCISE.

[Chicago Record-Herald.]

The Doctor—What your wife needs is more physical exercise.

Homer—But, doctor, I can't induce her to go outside the house.

The Doctor—Oh, yes, you can. Mark all the bargains advertisements in the paper, and give her $50.

HOT TALK.

[Philadelphia Press.]

Lovett—Yes, she rejected me. What of it?

Hadley—Nothing; only I'll bet you felt foolish about that time.

Lovett—Yes, I guess I felt just as foolish at that time as you look all the time.

LUCKY, INDEED.

[Exchange.]

"Did your husband have any luck on his hunting trip?" asked the friend of the family.

"Yes, indeed," replied her husband's wife. "He managed to get home without shooting himself or anybody else."

HORRIBLE EXAMPLE.

[Chicago News.]

"My dear," said Mrs. Strongminded, "I want you to accompany me to the town hall tomorrow evening."

"What for?" queried the meek and lowly other half of the combine.

"I am to lecture on the 'Dark Side of Married Life,'" explained Mrs. Strongminded, and I want you to sit on the platform and pose as one of the illustrations."

THE HUSHED VOICE.

[Buffalo News.]

What mother said—it didn't matter then. A loving word, perchance, and then again, when childish wrath came in our simple way.

And little woe beset youth's rosy way.

Her sweetie gentle words dispelled the wrath.

And coaxed the buds to bloom that lined our path.

Her voice was sweet to greet the morning sun.

And, sweeter still, when golden days were done.

Her soft good-night that sent us to our bed—

It didn't matter then—what mother said.

It didn't matter then, but now she's gone.

The world lacks all its sweetness, and at dawn

The sunbeams, coming down from heaven's dome,

But emphasize the loss from out the home;

No kindly smiles to cheer the passing day.

No mother's words to guide us on the way—

No loving arms that wait but to enfold

When world and all grow merciless and cold.

The kingdom there, I think, is made of such—

What mother said! Oh, now, 't would mean so much!

STRONG SAVAGE WOMEN.

[Detroit News.]

Among savage tribes the women are very little smaller than the men, and have greater power of endurance. Stanley says the best porters in Africa were women, and an early explorer in the Northwest tells that before he started on a certain expedition an old chief advised him to take some squaws along to drag the baggage. Even among civilized nations girl babies exhibit more vitality than boys, a greater number coming safely through the perils of the first five years, yet a civilized woman has only half as much physical strength as a civilized man.

CHOLERA MORBUS, cramps and kindred complaints annually make their appearance at the same time as the hot weather. It is a disease which is very common, and many persons are debilitated from eating these tempting things, but they need not abstain if they have Dr. J. D. Kellogg's Dysentery Cordial and take a few drops in water. It cures the cramps and cholera in a remarkable manner, and is sure to check every disturbance of the bowels.

Is Ten Thousand Dollars Enough?

Have you considered the earning power of money? Have you thought of the amount of Principal it requires to produce a given income? Invest $10,000 safely and what income would your widow get? Perhaps $500 per annum. Is that sufficient? Are you insured for even $10,000?

Think seriously of this. A man should have enough insurance to guarantee the comfort of those depending on him. Write to us asking for particulars respecting our special plans of insurance.

ARTIST EARLE'S DEFENSE.

New York, Sept. 6.—Ferdinand Pin-ney Earle, the Orange County artist-Socialist, who has set his fellow-townsmen at Monroe and other per-sons all agog by shipping his young wife and their little son Harold, off to Europe, so that he may obtain the freedom he needs to marry another woman, has written to the World a lengthy defense of his action, his text being recent criticism of himself by a woman writer. He says:

JULIUS SCRIVER DEAD

Noted Old-Time Quebec Liberal Has Passed Away.

Montreal, Sept. 6.—Julius Scriver, who from 1869 to 1900 represented the County of Huntingdon in the Liberal Interests in the House of Commons, died this morning at the family residence. He had resided in Montreal 12 years, and had been ill since 1898, and partly paralyzed.

The late Mr. Scriver was born at Hemmingford, Que., on Feb. 5, 1826, and was educated there, at Workman's School, Montreal, and at the University of Vermont, after which he entered commercial life, and was for many years a prominent merchant at his native place. He entered public life at the union of the provinces in 1867 as member for Huntingdon in the Quebec Assembly, but retired from the body in September, 1869, and was thereupon elected by acclamation to succeed the late Sir John Rose as the representative of the county to hold the seat until 1900, when he did not present himself as a candidate. Mr. Scriver was elected five times by acclamation. In his early days he gave an independent support to the Conservative Government, but later became a Liberal. He was an ardent supporter of Mr. Mackenzie throughout his administration. On the meeting of the new Parliament in 1896 he was appointed chairman of the standing committee on private bills.

LETTER CARRIERS CONVENED

Gathered at Brantford in Twelfth Biennial Session.

Brantford, Sept. 6.—The twelfth biennial session of the Federated Association of Lettercarriers of Canada opened in this city this afternoon with about twenty-five delegates representing various associations in cities where there is a free delivery. The visitors were welcomed by Mayor Bowly. The actual business of the meeting will be transacted on Friday. The objects of the association are to promote the service generally and to provide a small insurance benefit against death for its members. The business to be transacted will include a discussion as to securing greater remuneration for lettercarriers. The claim will be made principally on the increased cost of living and the arduous duties performed. There is also a grievance in some cities caused, it is alleged, by the hours of work being extended above what is reasonable and fair. A contrast can be drawn between Canadian lettercarriers and those of the United States. The Canadians get from $1.25 a day to $2.25 after several years' service, and a large number of them who preferred to remain under the old act of 1882 get something like $49 a month, and, it is said, have had no increase in from fifteen to twenty years. The United States carrier gets $600 in his first year, $800 the second, and $1,000 for his third year. Changes are to be made in the beneficiary department of the association as to the age of admission, medical examinations and other matters.

Zangwill, the author, is a very well informed man. He was asked recently to write an article for use in a newspaper the next morning on famous trials. He sat down at once and dictated about 3,000 words, covering the famous trials of the past 200 years, a thing few lawyers could do. At present German capitalists have loans in Turkish securities amounting to about $50,000,000, invested chiefly in fisheries, railways and armaments, drawing interest at the rate of 4 and 5 per cent. The railways in which Germany is interested are the Anatolian and Bagdad.

PURE FOOD LAW

IS NOW IN FORCE

Meat Packing Establishments Subject to Rigid Govt. Inspection.

Ottawa, Sept. 6.—All the large packing establishments of Canada are now under the strictest possible inspection, as also are all the fruit, fish and vegetable canneries. The act "respecting the inspection of meats and canned foods," passed at the last session of Parliament, went into effect Sept. 3. Seventy-five thousand dollars were appropriated to carry out the inspection and 40 men have been trained for the work. The result, it is confidently expected, will be that hereafter meat and provisions exported bearing the words, "Canada approved," will carry the highest guarantee of purity and healthfulness and will command the highest prices in the markets of the world.

The most impressive of the new regulations for the packing of meat are those relating to cleanliness. It is declared that all establishments having inspection shall be suitably lighted and ventilated. All appliances, such as tables, trucks, vats, machines, containers, etc., must be kept clean and sanitary. All steps in the course of production shall be carried on carefully and with strict cleanliness, and under the supervision of an inspector.

Rooms in which carcasses, parts or products thereof are prepared shall be frequently whitewashed or painted and shall contain facilities for cleaning all equipment. Employees of the establishment engaged in handling foods must be free from tuberculosis or other communicable diseases, and must observe such general rules as to sanitation as may be deemed necessary by the inspector in charge.

No carcass or parts thereof entering into the production of food shall be allowed to come in contact with anything that will contaminate or deteriorate them. Coverings used by employees to protect their clothing or persons shall be of material easily cleaned. Dressing-rooms and lavatory accommodations shall be ample, sanitary and fully equipped, and shall be entirely apart from any room or compartment used for the production or storing of food.

The yards and pens belonging to or used in connection with any establishment shall be maintained in a clean, comfortable and sanitary condition, and shall not be used for the fattening of swine or other animals, nor shall any offal or other refuse from the establishment be utilized for feeding purposes. Inspectors in charge of each establishment will suggest to the manager or owner any needed changes in the sanitary conditions, and are required to report weekly to the veterinary inspector-general as to the general observance of this section. Inspectors are authorized to refuse inspection if sanitary conditions are not observed.

Carcasses from the United States marked "U. S. Inspected and passed," and carcasses from other countries certified to have passed Government inspection there, and other carcasses of animals killed in Canada, with the vital organs in place, can be packed after they have passed another Canadian inspection. No clearance from a Canadian port will be granted to a vessel carrying meats unless the carcasses and parts are marked "Canada approved."

Transportation companies cannot accept shipments intended for export unless accompanied by a certificate that the meats or foods have been properly inspected and marked. The words, "Canada, approved," cannot be used except on packages that have been officially inspected. Offenses are punishable by fines to the extent of $500.

THE PEACE RIVER CROP

May Cause a Big Rush of Settlers There Next Year.

Toronto, Sept. 6.—A dispatch received today by the Imperial Bank states that crops in the Peace River district have been very good, and that the grain has all been cut. Quite a number of people have gone into the district this year, and if the crops are as good as reported, there should be quite a rush of settlers next spring. Advice from private sources regarding crops in some other parts of the west are not so reassuring. Damage is reported in the Kikella district and also from Wolsley.

NEARLY ALL INFANTS are more or less subject to diarrhea and such complaints while teething, and as the period of their lives is the most critical, mothers should not be without a bottle of Dr. J. D. Kellogg's Dysentery Cordial. This medicine is a specific for such complaints, and is highly spoken of by those who have used it.

MINER'S STRATEGY

SAVED HIS HAIR

By Avoiding Prison Barber Convict Facilitated Escape From Pursuers.

Vancouver, B. C., Sept. 6.—That Bill Miner had fairly long hair and mustache when he broke away from the penitentiary is the allegation made by a Western Island man. The train robber was seen and recognized on the island by several people who were not disposed to disclose his whereabouts to the police. Doubtless he was seen by others who would have informed on him but for the puzzling fact of the long hair and mustache.

It is a rule in penitentiaries and prisons all over the country that prisoners shall be clipped at least once a week. Suspicions aroused by a man resembling Miner in facial and physical appearance would instantly be quelled when his long hair and mustache were noticed.

It now transpires that some little time before Miner made up his mind to leave he discovered that he had a very sore lip. On this account he was allowed to keep his mustache. Because of scalp trouble that also mysteriously developed, he was allowed to have his hair long so that as a matter of fact he did not look a bit like the description of him sent out.

Miner had evidently been laying out all his plans well in advance and his insisting that working in the shoe shop made his feet blister was only one of the several cogs in the wheel on which he rolled to freedom.

ROBBED AND MURDERED

Canadian Killed and Thrown in a Chicago Park Lagoon.

Chicago, Sept. 6.—The body of a man, supposed to be E. A. Henderson, of Touchwood Hills, Canada, was found early today floating in the lagoon in Garfield Park. Evidence that the dead man possibly was waylaid and robbed, and then thrown into the lagoon, where he drowned, was disclosed by the pockets, turned inside out. The body was that of a man apparently about 45 years old. The hair is dark brown, as is the mustache. A card addressed L. A. Henderson, Touchwood Hills, Canada, was found in one of the man's pockets. A razor, a small gold band baby's ring, inclosed in a leather case, and a doctor's prescription, bearing the name of Bronke, Toronto, were also found in his clothing.

"MUST NOT BE TOO GOOD"

British Premier Says Word for the Bad Boy.

London, Sept. 6.—"Bad boys" have had their "inning" in England. In laying the foundation stone of a new block of buildings at Leys school, Cambridge, Sir Henry Campbell-Bannerman, in a speech to the boys, said: "The boys, I have no doubt, will always be told to be good boys. They must not be too good. I think a little spice of evil rather sets off the good in a boy."

Asked his opinion upon these remarks, Rev. H. B. Gray, the warden of Bradfield College, said:

"Sir Henry Campbell-Bannerman's remarks, probably, were merely lame joking to relieve the dullness of ordinary speech days, but if the Prime Minister meant by excessive goodness unquestioning subservience to public school rules and restraints it is probably true that such subservience has a tendency to stifle individuality which is the weakness of all quasi-monastic systems."

Commenting upon the remarks of the Prime Minister, Rev. A. F. Alcock, of Highgate school, said: "Other things being equal I believe a high-spirited boy will make the best man, even though he gives more trouble at school. If the statement of Sir Henry Campbell-Bannerman of Leys school meant more than this I disagree with it entirely."

Said Mr. J. D. McClellan, of the Mill Hill school: "The Prime Minister is a philosophical humorist and has doubtless been imperfectly reported. There is no danger of boys being too good, but some of them are too good—good. Probably that is what he alluded to."

The Kaiser has recently got after his master of horse and is looking after his stables a bit himself. He found that he was employing four men whose only duty was to braid the tails and manes of the imperial horses. He dismissed all four. Then he found that 400 men were employed to care for 350 horses and 240 carriages, and more heads fell.

THE CODES ARE

OPEN PROPERTY

Those of the United States Abroad Are Not Guarded.

London, Sept. 6.—The ways in which the United States manages its diplomatic affairs abroad will never cease to be a subject of amazement to foreign diplomats. They have talked for years about shirt-sleeve diplomacy, but what they least of all understand is playing the game with all the cards on the table. Secrecy has been regarded as a fundamental rule since envoys first existed. America retains the machinery of secrecy, but for what reason nobody seems to know. In practice the precautions taken in using it are of the flimsiest description. The work of coding and decoding dispatches between most of the American embassies in Europe and the state department is entrusted to poorly-paid foreign clerks and never undertaken by the attaches sent from America.

Used by Spies.

The writer knows of one case where a man employed in this work is actually in the employ of the Government of a country where he is located. Could any better guarantee be given of the simplicity of America's diplomatic motives and purposes than this practice? Still it seems quite conceivable that the American Government might wish quite legitimately to communicate privately with its representatives abroad. Perhaps the state department can afford to be open and ingenuous in all its dealings, but the case is hardly the same when it involves affairs of the navy.

It happened not long ago that an American naval officer on entering the office of the United States dispatch agent at London found a copy of the secret naval code lying open on the counter. There is nothing that any European navy so strictly guards as the code book. If a copy disappears in any way the whole code is destroyed and a new one compiled and published.

The necessity of such precautions in case of war is obvious to anybody. The United States dispatch agent in London is nominally Newton Cranor, a practicing lawyer, who came here more than a quarter of a century ago. The real incumbent is an English clerk, and through his hands pass all letters and documents between the embassy and all the American officials in Great Britain and Washington.

European statesmen are glad to believe that America's policy is for peace and for ever more. They are just a little puzzled, however, to understand why she should maintain any navy if she feels that she can disregard all the ordinary precautions.

Government Will Insist That Bridge Be Built

Quebec, Sept. 6.—Extraordinary interest is centered in the developments which the federal investigation into the bridge disaster will reveal next week. A Phoenix bridge official stated today that the United States company fully realized how seriously they were involved in the inquiry. The commission undoubtedly has a most serious duty before it, as not only the reputation of American steel as regards stability in bridge building is at stake, but there is also the important issue as to the competency of American civil engineering to be decided.

PASSENGER ON WRECKED SPECIAL SAYS IT TRAVELED MILE A MINUTE

Flesherton, Sept. 6.—In direct contradiction to the statement of Engineer Hodge, who, in the witness box at the inquest before Coroner Johnson last night at Toronto, stated that the train was not traveling more than 15 miles an hour at the time of the wreck at Caledon, Andrew Wilson, one of the victims, says that he followed with open watch the flight of the train from Flesherton to Orangeville on Tuesday morning. According to his watch the 45 miles was made in 43 minutes.

Western Fair WILL BE A Hummer

The Western Fair secretary reports that every department of the big fair is unusually busy today. The probability is that in all the departmental buildings everybody will be hustling till midnight. The entries in every class are unusually heavy, and they have been refusing entries all day. In horses and other live stock classes they will be very much crowded for room, and the management are at their wits' end to accommodate them. The rush for the dog show is quite unexpected. Although not required to be here until Tuesday of next week, they are already coming in. All the companies furnishing attractions are already here, so the entertainment is secure. Knabenshue is here with his big airship and reports everything in first-rate order.

nection, it is stated on high authority that the Dominion Government will take a firm stand in its attitude towards the Phoenixville Bridge Company. If, as present indications tend, the pliers had nothing to do with the disaster, the Government will hold the company fully liable, and will insist upon the rebuilding and completion of the bridge, as though no accident had occurred. The Government will also insist upon the enforcement of all penal clauses, if the company is shown to be responsible under the law. Sir Wilfrid, who was at the scene of the tragedy Tuesday, is determined that the bridge shall be rebuilt, and the Government, it is stated, will press the company to the fullest extent of its obligations under the contract. Should there be any failure on the part of the company to complete its contract the Government will take the matter in hand and see to the completion of the bridge itself.

CHARGE OF EMBEZZLEMENT

Detroit Man Run Down and Held by the Chatham Police.

[Special to The Advertiser.]

Chatham, Sept. 7.—Wm. J. Strong, aged 30, of Detroit, a former agent of the Commercial Telegraph Company, 404 Hodge Building of that city, was arrested here last night on the charge of embezzling $593.75, on the complaint of Warren Anderson, of the company. Strong, who is alleged to have disappeared with the money some day between July 8 and 16, denies the theft, though he admits having the money, claiming that he earned it through legitimate stock speculation. The loss of the money was discovered on Aug. 10, when the Detroit police were immediately notified. J. C. Lombard, a Detroit detective, worked on the case, and with the aid of the local police, located Strong in Chatham yesterday. Extradition papers will be asked for, which Strong may fight. A fugitive warrant is being requested before Judge Dowling this morning. Strong has a family living in this city. Prior to seeing his family, however, he went to Kingston. It was on his return here yesterday that he was met by the police, who had been instructed to be on the lookout.

OFFICIAL BOARD HONORS MR. SAUNBY

Presented With an Address Upon the Occasion of His Retirement.

A very pleasant affair took place at the residence of Mr. Robert Greene, 116 Mill street, when Mr. J. D. Saunby was made the recipient of a beautifully illustrated address by the official board of the Empire Avenue Methodist Church.

Mr. Saunby has been recording steward of the church ever since it was organized, nearly 35 years ago, and he is retiring from the position, although still a member of the official board. The address was read by Mr. W. Gibson, superintendent of the Sabbath school, and the presentation was made by Rev. I. B. Walwyn, pastor of the church. Mr. Saunby made a brief and suitable reply.

The officials and their wives were present, and a pleasant evening was spent. Mr. S. D. Swift entertained the party with some very excellent music.

Dental Parlors Reopened.

Dr. Colon Smith has, with the assistance of Dr. B. E. Wilson, reopened his dental parlors, which are situated on Richmond street, directly opposite the city hall, the offices having been closed for two months, owing to the remodeling of the building and the equipment of Mr. Boughner's new store, which is just beneath them. Dr. Colon Smith is one of the most successful dentists in the city and has been practicing here for twelve or thirteen years. Dr. B. Wilson has been associated with him for the past year or two, and has had eight years' experience previous to coming to London. These gentlemen are now inviting their many friends and the public to call upon them at their old stand, which will be found to be modernly furnished in every respect. Appointments on and after Monday, September 9.

A quiet wedding took place last Tuesday at St. Peter's Cathedral, when Miss Theresa Meadows was married to Mr. Adolphus Hennessy, of this city. Rev. Father Aylward officiated. Miss Pearl Morjies acted as bridesmaid, and Mr. James Hennessy was groomsmen.

Township and G. T. R.
The London Township council met this afternoon at which a deputation of Grand Trunk officials were present. The matter under discussion was the bridge at Trafalgar and Hale streets. The council adjourned, and went with Engineer Mitchell of the Grand Trunk, to the bridge in question. On Thursday Miss Wilhelmina Faulds, only daughter of Mr. and Mrs. W. M. Faulds, of Mount Brydges, was married to Mr. J. Melbourne Foran, editor of the Sunday World, Toronto, and a former well-known newspaper man of London. The ceremony was conducted by Rev. T. T. George, principal of the Mount Elgin Institute, Miss Minnie Coffman, of St. Louis, was maid of honor, Miss Beatrice Wyatt, of this city, was the bridesmaid, and Miss Lois Faulds, of Toronto, flower girl. The groomsmen were Mr. W. A. Wallis, of Toronto. The wedding march was played by Miss Pearl Jones, of this city. The bride's dress consisted of a lace robe embroidered in seed pearls over ivory tulle. Her veil was caught with orange blossoms. Mr. and Mrs. Elson will shortly take up their residence at 66 Olive avenue, Toronto.

Popular Organ Recital.
An attraction of interest during fair week will be the popular organ recital to be given by Mr. Jordan on the grand organ in the First Methodist Church next Thursday evening at 8 o'clock. Miss Beatrice Hunt, a promising young soprano, and Mr. Maurice Pour, the talented violinist of this city, will assist Mr. Jordan in playing a genuine Guinard violin, valued at $1,500, which he has just brought with him from Europe. The programme will be popular in nature, and will doubtless appeal to the many visitors who will be in the city for the fair.

CHARGE OF EMBEZZLEMENT

Detroit Man Run Down and Held by the Chatham Police.

[Special to The Advertiser.]

Chatham, Sept. 7.—Wm. J. Strong, aged 30, of Detroit, a former agent of the Commercial Telegraph Company, 404 Hodge Building of that city, was arrested here last night on the charge of embezzling $593.75, on the complaint of Warren Anderson, of the company. Strong, who is alleged to have disappeared with the money some day between July 8 and 16, denies the theft, though he admits having the money, claiming that he earned it through legitimate stock speculation. The loss of the money was discovered on Aug. 10, when the Detroit police were immediately notified. J. C. Lombard, a Detroit detective, worked on the case, and with the aid of the local police, located Strong in Chatham yesterday. Extradition papers will be asked for, which Strong may fight. A fugitive warrant is being requested before Judge Dowling this morning. Strong has a family living in this city. Prior to seeing his family, however, he went to Kingston. It was on his return here yesterday that he was met by the police, who had been instructed to be on the lookout.

CAID MACLEAN BADLY TREATED

Has to Sleep on the Floor With Only a Carpet as a Covering.

Tangier, Sept. 7.—Recent letters received here from Caid Sir Harry MacLean, the Englishman, who for many years has been in the service of the Sultan of Morocco, and who was captured early in July by the bandit Raisuli, complains that the Caid is suffering from chills, as a result of sleeping on the floor with only a carpet for a covering. Raisuli refused to supply him with a mattress, but the Caid adds pathetically:

"The chief is very kind in sending me milk, as I am afraid to eat anything."

Continuing Sir Harry says he is in a tumble-down room, the roof of which on one side is completely lacking. He is guarded by four of Raisuli's men, and the five have only one small kettle for water. It is consequently impossible for the Englishman to wash.

Another letter from the Caid says that Raisuli's men declare that all the sailors and soldiers who landed at Casablanca from the French warships have been killed, and that the Sultan has turned all Frenchmen out of the country.

BIBLEMAN SHI DEAD

The Bible Society Loses One of Its Most Successful Workers.

Rev. Dr. Beaumont has received a communication from the British and Foreign Bible Society agent in China announcing the death of Mr. Shi, Bibleman in the Chekiang Province. During the six months preceding his illness and death, Mr. Shi sold 1,770 gospels and other portions of Holy Scripture to his heathen countrymen. He was a scholarly man, a B. A., and a good evangelist. His death is widely lamented. He is succeeded by Mr. Hsu, an energetic Bibleman, who, in one particular month, sold 700 gospels, etc., visited 48 market towns and villages, and preached everywhere to large assemblages of people, explaining the Scriptures and proclaiming the gospel message with great success.

Uniontown, Pa., Sept. 6.—William Wirsing, was awarded $45,000 damages today for injuries said to have been received at the hands of his father-in-law, James R. Smith, a wealthy coal operator.

A year ago Wirsing eloped with Smith's daughter. Upon the return of the young couple Smith met Wirsing with a Winchester rifle, and shot him in the right arm, shattering the bone, and it is said rendering it useless for life. Smith is now serving a five years' sentence for the shooting.

REGENERATE FILIPINOS; JOB FOR ROOSEVELT

London, Sept. 7.—That Theodore Roosevelt should undertake the job of regenerating the Philippines after the completion of his presidential term, is suggested by the Spectator.

"Why should Mr. Roosevelt be asked to undertake that vastly possible and honorable task?" the paper asks.

"In a little more than a year he will be free and in a little more than two years he will be rested and have the heart for any fate. Could he devote his powers to a work of wider import? At all events until some solution as heroic as that has been attempted, we as ardent well-wishers of America, should not reconcile ourselves to the sale of the Philippines."

KNOWS NOTHING OF IT

Ottawa Not Yet Informed as to Reported Hindu Invasion.

Ottawa, Sept. 6.—The Immigration department has had no information concerning the report that 750 Hindus are on their way from Bellingham, in Washington Territory, for British Columbia. Canada cannot prevent Hindus arriving in this country. If there are any "undesirables" among the Hindus they will be deported. Any of them suffering from disease or likely to become a public charge on the community will not be allowed to land in Canada. Beyond this, which is provided for under the immigration act, and is applicable to British subjects as well as foreigners, there are no restrictions upon Hindu immigration.

STOCK MARKETS.

J. C. Becher, stockbroker, received the following by private wire from Bartlett, Frazier & Carrington, today:

New York, Sept. 7.—The decrease in loans in the bank statement was small, amounting really to nothing. Special movements in preparation for payments next week and the advance in the stock market were the inducing causes. The artificial part of yesterday's advance was shown today by net gains approximating one per cent in active issues at the close. Dividends on Northern Pacific was denied. The U. P. annual meeting, according to the wording of its proxies, should be an interesting affair, for those soliciting frankly state that they want a blanket approval of the past actions of the directorate. Export in grain is still going on in volume, and it is being much commented on every day. Again we say we do not see why a bond syndicate that is going to bid wants a stock market to go up. We advert to this matter simply for the reason that it has been dwelt upon much of late. Foreign conditions cut very little figure in today's market movements. Views of the prominent bank and supporter of reformed methods in relation to corporations, save commanded a good deal of attention the last few days, because they perhaps indicate a change or modification of his viewpoint. He seems perfectly willing that reform should be the order of things. Next week with its U. P. bond syndicate payments as well as those of New York City should make the market somewhat erratic, at least it's doubtful whether any people want to sell stocks until these two events are off.

Saturday, Sept. 7.
Today's market was a hummer in every sense of the word. Last Saturday's market was a large one, but there was a much larger crowd of farmers, gardeners, and hucksters present today. There was a good demand in all lines, with the exception of apples and potatoes, the market being over-supplied in these lines. There was not any great change in prices in any particular line.
Grain—Oats were not very plentiful and prices were higher. Old oats sold at $1.50 to $1.52 per cwt. and new oats at $1.33 to $1.40, mostly at $1.35 per cwt. Wheat sold at 85c and 86c per bushel for both old and new.
Hay and Straw—A couple of loads of hay was brought in, which sold at $14 and $14.25 per ton. There will be a fair demand for hay on Monday and Tuesday, as there will not be much offered on the remaining days of next week. Straw is selling at $6 and $6.50 per ton.
Vegetables and Roots—Potatoes were a drug, as there was to many offered. They have not started to bring in any quantity for the winter, and those produced today were for present requirements. Sales were resented, mostly home grown, which sold at 85c to 90c for the 11-quart basket, and 55c for the 6-quart basket. Peas were plentiful at $1 per bushel for small, and $1.20, and occasionally $2, for large. Peaches sold at 75c to 1 per bushel. Crabapples were scarce at 25c per peck.

Poultry—There was a large supply. Sales were hardly as brisk as last Saturday. Chickens sold at 12c per pound, dressed, or 80c to 90c to 1 per pair, old, 7c per pound, alive, or 8c to 9c, dressed. Ducks were dull at 80c to 90c per pair, dressed, and 65c to 80c, alive. Turkeys sold at 13c to 14c per pound, dressed.

Dressed Hogs—Prices were lower at $8.50 to $9 per cwt., not many selling at the higher price.
Live Hogs—Prices for Monday's shipment will be $8.25 per cwt. for hogs 160 to 210 pounds in weight, and $4.50 per cwt. for fat sows.
Small pigs were dull at $5.50 to $7 per pair.
Honey—The demand was good at 11 1/2c to 12c per pound for strained in wholesale lots.

LONDON'S BISHOP REACHES CANADADr. Ingram Reaches Quebec, and Is Welcomed by Many Clergymen.

Quebec, Sept. 6. — Dr. Winnipeg Ingram, Bishop of London, arrived this afternoon via S.S. Victorian at 1 o'clock. The distinguished visitor who is accompanied by a chaplain and Mr. Christopher, a layman, was extended a very hearty welcome to the ancient capital, as he was met by the Lord Bishop of Quebec and an array of clergymen and several prominent citizens. He drove in company with Bishop Dunn direct to the citadel and lunched with her Excellency, Lady Grey at the Governor-General's quarters. A telegram expressing his regret at being unavoidably detained was received from Earl Grey. After luncheon, Dr. Ingram visited some of the points of interest in the city of Quebec, and will dine this evening at Bishop Thorpe's. A special car will convey the bishop and party to St. Anne De Beaupre tomorrow morning, and a stop will be made at Montmorency Falls.

The bishop will be the guest at luncheon Saturday with Mr. and Mrs. W. Molson Macpherson. A public reception Saturday afternoon will be from 3:30 to 8 o'clock at Bishop Thorpe's. During his visit here the Bishop of London will visit Laval University on the invitation of Manager Mathew, C. M. G. He will also visit Wolfshild.

After leaving Canada his lordship will proceed to Washington to take part in the ceremony of laying the corner stone of the great cathedral to be built there, thence he will proceed to Richmond, Va., to attend the General Episcopal convention.

Dr. Ingram is looking exceedingly well, and expressed himself as delighted with his crossing.

RAILWAY WAR AT HAMILTONGrand Trunk and Street Railway Company Row Over Tracks.

Hamilton, Sept. 6.—The Grand Trunk and Street Railway Companies are at war. Recently the city gave the Grand Trunk permission to lay another track across Barton street at Ferguson avenue, but the street railway company objected. Yesterday the Grand Trunk started the work, putting a large gang on the job in an effort to finish it before the street railway company got wise. The street railway company got wise in a hurry, however, and sent another gang down to stop the operations. In the meantime lawyers got busy, hunted up a judge and secured an injunction. Operations have been suspended until the injunction is fought out at Osgoode Hall.

SPIRITUALIST STUMPEDUnable to Read an Unopened Letter, as She Had Boasted.

New York, Sept. 6.—Mrs. May S. Pepper-Vanderbilt, a leader of the spiritualists, appeared as a witness again today in the lunacy proceedings brought against her husband, Edward W. Vanderbilt, by his daughter, Minerva Vanderbilt. Mrs. Vanderbilt had yesterday testified that she was under the control of the spirit "Brighteyes," an Indian child, and through this control, while in a trance, was able to read unopened letters and learn of secrets unknown to the lay mind.

A large crowd filled the court room to listen to the testimony of Mrs. Pepper today. Mrs. Pepper was challenged by counsel for Miss Vanderbilt to read unopened a sealed letter which he handed her. Counsel for Mr. Vanderbilt testified against the question, but Commissioner Ketcham held that the question was material, for if Mrs. Vanderbilt could read the letter through the aid of the unseen "Brighteyes," it would clear up all the questions in the case. The letter was handed to the witness.

"I cannot read it," said Mrs. Pepper. "I am not under the control of 'Brighteyes.'"

DARING HOLD-UP ON ROCK ISLANDMasked Robbers Make Parlor Car Passengers Deliver at Revolver's Point.

Omaha, Neb., Sept. 6.—The Omaha and Texas Express on the Rock Island was raided this morning, just before daylight, near Murdoch, Neb., by three masked men.

The robbers went through the chair car, robbing every passenger therein, securing their pocket books and purses, covered the train crew with revolvers, and escaped by leaping from the train.

Railroad detectives and sheriff's posse are in pursuit, but the robbers have several hours' start on the officers. The robbers were passengers on the train. Shortly after leaving Murdoch the men arose in their seats their faces covered with masks, and with revolvers in each hand, covered the passengers. Then the leader ordered everybody to keep still and not to resist else they would be shot.

Two men went down the aisle with hats in hand, while the third kept the passengers covered. All passengers were ordered to throw pocket books into the hats, and this was done. The conductor appeared in the car with a pistol in his hand but was promptly covered with four guns and forced to drop his revolver.

After getting all the money in the car the robbers jumped from the train, which had stopped. An attempt was made to enter the sleeper section but the door was locked, and the attempt was unsuccessful.

Standard Oil and Several Railroads May Be Mulcted Eighteen Millions.

ANOTHER MIGHTY FINE IN SIGHT

Jamestown, N. Y., Sept. 6.—An investigation, which was begun before the federal grand jury in this city early in July, was concluded today and the jury discharged by Judge Hazel, of the western district of New York. Before adjournment the jury found four indictments, one each against the Standard Oil Company, the New York Central Railroad Company, the Pennsylvania Railroad Company and one against the Erie Railroad Company, jointly.

The indictment against the railway companies separately contributed eighteen counts each and that against the railways jointly contributed fifty-four counts, all of them charging a violation of the interstate commerce law either in accepting or granting or rebates on oil shipments from Olean, N. Y., to points in Vermont. The law provides a penalty of $20,000 for each provision violated or each count; therefore, if convictions are made according to the indictments returned the three companies named will be subject to a total fine of $756,000.

In August the same jury returned similar indictments, embracing other charges, against the same concerns, with a total number of counts sufficient to have justified fines, in case of conviction, of more than eighteen million dollars.

BEWARE THIS BIG FAKE

A Bogus Silverware Company Is Vic-timizing Thousands.

Toronto, Sept. 6. — The officials of the inspection branch of the postal department state that between 5,000 and 6,000 letters from all parts of the country have been held in connection with the fraud which a bogus silver company has been working on the public mind. The letters all at Niagara Falls, numbering several hundred, will be allowed to remain in there to give the proper person time to present himself and claim his mail. Nearly all the letters contain money orders for 97 cents, the amount asked for by the promoters of the scheme. The Washington authorities have taken the matter up. The letters will be returned to the senders marked "fraudulent" if they are not claimed within a few days.

PROTESTANT ORPHANS HOME

Board Held Its Regular Meeting on Wednesday Afternoon.

The trustees of the Protestant Orphans' Home, held their first meeting since June on Wednesday afternoon last, the president, Mrs. C. McCallum, in the chair, also in attendance a fair showing of the members.

The meeting was opened in the usual way with devotional exercises, following which three reports were given, secretary's, treasurer's, and the visitor's, all of which were adopted, being satisfactory.

The communications for one month were read and filed, all others received during the summer months having been replied to by the matron. Some three of the letters were applications for two girls and one boy desired as help in towns in Ontario; these replies were ordered in the negative. A notice was also received and read from Mr. C. B. Edwards, inspector of public schools, stating the board of education had permitted the sending of the home children to Richmond street and St. George's schools for instruction. Much other important business was discussed and decided on, and bills for the month certified by the secretary. The trustees wish to acknowledge with sincere thanks all the numerous donations received at the home during the summer months.

SHAMROCK AND HARP

Buffalo Home Week Has an Irishmen's Day.

Buffalo, Sept. 6.—Irish and Fraternal Day was one of the great successes of the "Old Home Week" and anniversary celebration. The shamrock and the harp were prominent features of the decorations of the city. The parade of fraternal organizations tonight was a brilliant spectacle. Main street was brilliantly lighted with myriads of vari-colored electric lights festooned across the line of march from great white pillars.

The marching columns of uniformed men, performing intricate evolutions, troops of cavalry, beautiful floats, and other attractions, brought forth salvos of applause from the thousands of men, women and children, who banked the line of march for miles.

The line of march was four miles long, and was over one hour passing the reviewing stand at Lafayette Square.

WHEAT STEAMER LOST

Seventy-five Thousand Bushels Go to the Bottom Near Brockville.

Kingsport, Sept. 6.—The steamer Edmuntson, with 75,000 bushels of wheat from Port William to Montreal, ran aground and sank last night at the Narrows near Brockville. The Donnelly wrecking crew left today to lift the freighter. The Edmuntson is owned by J. C. Matthews, Toronto, and the cargo by J. S. Norris, of Montreal, and both are insured. Last night was quite foggy.

FIRST OF THE SEASON.

Evansville, Ind., Sept. 5.—Twin girls with abdomens and chests grown together and with but one breastbone and one heart were born to Mrs. Della Heldt, wife of Bismark Heldt, at St. Mary's Hospital today. The children lived but a few hours.

Every physician in the city visited the hospital to view the sight, and they say that medical annals record nothing like it nearer than the famous Siamese twins.

The Heldt babies were born face to face. Between the front ribs and lying near the breast bone there is a double heart. Each child had separate and complete sets of all the other organs of the body. The children weighed seven pounds each.

General Manager Hays and the other Grand Trunk officials, who were here on their way west, inspected the St. Clair tunnel, and then went to Port Huron and paid a visit of inspection to the new powerhouse in connection with the electrification of the tunnel. May Not Come.

It is as yet problematical whether Mr. H. G. Martin, of the Berlin Collegiate Institute will come to London to accept a position in the collegiate here. Mr. Martin, it is said, is under a year's contract to the Berlin board and they have not as yet released him. If Berlin should state things better for him there it is not likely he will come to London. The Berlin board of education meets Friday to consider the matter.

Lambeth Runaway.

Yesterday while Mr. Stanley Winters, of Lambeth, accompanied by two friends were taking a drive in the country they met with an accident which luckily turned out less seriously than it might have. The horse shied at something on the road, breaking loose from the trap and running to its barn, leaving the party on the road. The horse was caught after some difficulty, none the worse of the encounter. Mr. Winters and his friends escaped unhurt.

The Late Mrs. McCarthy.

The funeral took place yesterday at St. Thomas of the late Mrs. Jas. McCarthy who died recently in Detroit.

The funeral was held from the residence of her son-in-law, Mr. S. B. Pocock, Wellington street, to the Church of the Holy Angels. Rev. Father West conducted the services.

The pall-bearers were Messrs. T. Farrell, F. Moore, T. H. Price, T. McManus and C. W. Regan. Amongst those present from a distance were relatives from London and Detroit.

Died at Dorchester.

The death took place early yesterday at Dorchester of Mr. James E. Jolly, formerly a resident of this city.

The late Mr. Jolly was born at Harrietsville in April, 1868. For many years he was engaged as a telegraph operator in different parts of Canada and the United States, but owing to losing the power of his legs, he was compelled to give up that kind of work.

He is survived by his mother, two sisters and three brothers. Mr. Jolly was well known as a writer of no mean order, and frequently contributed articles to newspapers.

Advertiser Correspondence

The Pay of Postmasters.

To the Editor of The Advertiser:

With reference to the dispatch from Ottawa, which was in your paper of the 4th inst., relating to the increase which the Postmaster-General has been pleased to grant the postmasters, I would like to call attention in the columns of your paper, to an error in the dispatch which may cause a wrong impression in the minds of the public.

The clause referred to is this: "On the first $800 revenue the postmaster now gets 40 per cent, whereas for the past four years we have been getting 44 per cent on that quantity of revenue. This error, apparently slight, however, means that the present increase amounts to only 13 7-11 per cent of the present salary, instead of 25 per cent, which the dispatch would lead one to believe."

It is true, that the announced rate of 50 per cent of the first $800 revenue is 25 per cent better than five years ago, when the rate was 40 per cent, but that 40 per cent was fixed at confederation. Think of it! Sixty years ago, when rents and living were low compared to the present struggle for existence, and the purchasing power of $1 equaled that of twice the amount now. One postmaster at the recent convention in Toronto stated that he and his two assistants were receiving an amount equal to 9 1/2 cents per working hour. Is that fair remuneration for being on duty from 6 a.m. until 10 p.m., as is frequently necessary? And this rate of pay per hour is not far from the average received by rural postmasters in Canada.

Moreover the dispatch does not indicate any increase in the scale of rental allowed, where the Government does not own the office. This is perhaps a more pressing need in the west, where the $40 allowed per annum as rental, where the revenue is between $700 and $800, is only a fraction of what must often be paid in those growing villages and towns for almost any kind of building. Nor was any allowance mentioned for fuel, light and many of the things which the postmasters have to supply. Many people have the idea that the Government supplies these for the offices and possibly enough for the postmaster's household besides, as railways do for their agents; but it's the other way about, and it makes a considerable hole in the postmaster's bank account if there are any fortunate enough to possess such a desirable attachment.

We are thankful for the increase as announced in the dispatch, but do not, by any means, consider that full justice has been done us; nor do we believe that the public, understanding the facts, will consider us either.

Yours very truly,

POSTMASTER.

Spring Water and Filtered Water.

To the Editor of The Advertiser:

We are reading so much in the Free Press about river water filtered, and if we would believe it, the only thing we can do is to put in a filtration plant, take the water from the north branch of the River Thames.

What is this water? It is drainage from thousands of farm barnyards and surface drainage from bogs and swamp lands, and in summer very much polluted and unfit for use.

If the Free Press and the doctors who favor filtration carry the scheme it will mean that our hospitals will have to be enlarged, for nothing, as we know, is as injurious to health as impure water.

Speaking from experience, I have used filtered water for eight years and would say I found it far from pure, and have no desire to use it again. Why should we think of abandoning the Komoka scheme? What is this water? Principally spring water, filtered by nature through beds of pure gravel and sand. We are told the supply is from three to four million gallons per day, which estimate I know to be very low, because having done a great deal of drainage work in the Kilworth and Komoka district, I am in a position to know, and am fully satisfied that from five to ten million gallons per day of the very best and purest water in our country could be procured, and would supply the future demand of the city. By all means I would advise our commissioners to adopt the Komoka scheme, and give us pure water. Our city has been noted for its pure water and low death rate. Should impure river water be used, and disease or epidemic break out in our city, our water system would be condemned, and this would mean a loss of many thousands of dollars to us.

UNIQUE WINDOW DISPLAY

A modern typewriter hanging to a chain, by one typewriter with positively no other support is not seen every day, because there is only one typewriter made capable of such a strain upon its typebar. This machine is the Visible Underwood, and the display is shown at the new store of United Typewriter Company, 441 Richmond street (three doors below the postoffice) who are the sole dealers for this typewriter in Canada. Businessmen should see the new Underwood Biller.

In after years a spinster may have cause to congratulate herself on the number of times she didn't get married.

Drawing Lessons for School Children

In addition to the lesson for Grades IV, V, and VI, some suggestions for teaching color in the grades are given below, that should prove helpful to teachers who have not had much experience in color work. If in any case these suggestions do not seem perfectly explicit, questions addressed to The Advertiser will be carefully considered, and anything that has not been made clear will be further explained.

Later on some suggestions may be given for the handling of clay.

The lesson for Grades VII. and VIII. will appear next Saturday.

LESSON FOR GRADES IV.

V. AND VI.

Before the first holiday week was over, we had forgotten all about school and we got up late and wasted time recklessly. Then came the going away had really begun.

In the same way this first week of school swings in the balance, half regret for vanished joys and liberty, half relief at being once more down and the outdoor fun, and vacation to a systematic way of living with a definite aim in view. Another week or two will find us deep in study and troubled with anxieties over class standing and future examinations. Soon the outdoor games and occupations we have been reveling in will be hazy memories. While they are still quite fresh, I want you to make a record of them.

The illustration in the paper is a simple record of a recent and very vivid incident in my holidays. I went rowing in a bay, where the water is very deep, with a dear little 5-year-old boy and his mother.

For his size and age he knows a great deal about boats, and can handle a big pair of oars with wonder dexterity. I could not row with him, however, and he was disgusted with my method of managing a boat, and showed his displeasure in such a lively manner, that I was too nervous to remain in the boat. After getting rid of me he persuaded his mother to let him take her out alone. The prospect seemed to cause her no uneasiness, and though he ran the boat into the shore twice, and had to jump out and shove her off, he finally brought her into the landing in fine style, and without any mishap. Later on, he confided to his mother that he liked me well enough except when I was in the boat. The illustration is painted with brush and ink, and shows him bringing the boat into the landing.

Some of you have been out in the country. You have fed the calves or hunted eggs, or have gone with Rover after the cows. Perhaps you have watched the men bring in the hay. You may have helped to toss it on the rack. Probably you stood at the barn doorway gazing curiously at the big hayfork as it stowed the hay in the mows. Some of you have buried each other in it in play, or have hollowed out fragrant caves to hide in.

There are so many delightful games one can play at on a farm, I know from experience that a farmer uncle is the very nicest possible kind of an uncle to have.

Let us make pictures of some of these beautiful games that you have played this summer.

Some of you have been at the lake or down by the river. There were breezy sails when you went flying over the white caps, or romps in the water when you waded, swam, dived or paddled. Perhaps you built a raft or a pier. I remember a stone pier we worked at for years in my childhood. It is still undisturbed. I should like to go back and work at it now.

The stones were very heavy, and our fingers were scratched and bruised, but it was such fun, and it was to have a glorious pier, quite beyond anything of grown-up manufacture we had ever seen.

There have been berrying expeditions, I know, long tramps in the woods with cautious feelings into birds' nests, so as not to disturb the little families, and many a climb into wild cherry trees, with perhaps a few tumbles.

Such splendid times you have had. You need not to shut your eyes, and it all comes back, and it is so easy to make a picture of it, if we just keep shutting our eyes and trying to remember what it all looked like.

Think over your holiday. Try to recollect the very jolliest thing that happened. Or was it something that frightened you that has left the most vivid picture in your memory? Close your eyes and see it all again. Then take your pencil or charcoal and sketch it lightly on white paper. Draw the people, little or big, that the story is about, first. Close your eyes, and think how they were placed. Was one half hidden behind another, or were they separate? Think how big they looked, and whether those at a little distance looked quite as large as those near at hand.

When you have corrected these things, close your eyes again, and think what you saw in the background, and what was beside the figures. Sketch these in, remembering that things in the distance are never as distinct or as strong in color as those that come in the foreground.

Close your eyes again, and compare with the picture in your mind as to the relative size and importance of the several things. When your sketch is a fairly satisfactory representation of the story you want to tell, draw a well proportioned rectangle around that part of your sketch which makes the best composition, then take your brush and, with either black paint or black ink, giving it the same treatment that the one shown here has been given. Keep it simple and paint it altogether with the brush. If you can paint it directly with brush and ink without first sketching it in charcoal or pencil, you may do so. Write a line in lead pencil on the back of the paper, explaining the situation, and do not be disheartened, no matter how crude your illustration is if it tells the story you intended.

Drawings in by Monday, the 16th, will appear in the following Saturday's edition.

Only the six best are to be sent in from each grade.

COLOR SUGGESTIONS.

As no lessons are arranged in the outline for September, it is strongly recommended that special attention be paid to color, which is not yet up to the standard desired.

As desultory work leads to more or less waste of time, a systematic plan should be arranged for this month, so that the color work throughout the year may be built upon this foundation.

In Grades I. and II., the color names, red, orange, yellow, green, blue, violet, should be taught, and the children led to match them in flowers and fabrics. If possible, have them make a chart of the six standard colors, using a flower for each color, as the salvia for red, goldenrod for yellow, and the wild aster for violet. It is not necessary that each child use the same flower. Let the class compare with are nearest it in color. The example standard colors or hues in this circuit are complementary, and should neutralize each other; that is, mixed in equal quantities, they should produce gray.

A great deal of exercise in rapid direct painting of flowers and grasses should be given in these grades. Simple landscapes in color, showing sky, foreground and distant trees, should be attempted. As much color work as possible should be done while abundant material is at hand. After the beginning of November, ink and charcoal or pencil should take the place of color to a large extent.

In Grades III. and IV., before making a color sketch of a flower, have the pupils decide the number of colors necessary to make a simple representation of the flower, and place a row of small squares on the left side near the top of the paper. In these squares they are to match the colors of the flower before painting it.

An occasional half-hour might be devoted to the matching of colors in plants and flowers, and deciding which would be most suitable for dress or decoration, and why. The children should be taught to feel the wisdom of quiet, restful colors, that do not compel attention to end by wearying the eye; also the value of brilliant colors, when used sparingly as accents to enhance the beauty of an article without subordinating its usefulness.

One half-hour a week might be devoted to the making of rhythms of color from light to dark or from one color to another, beginning with three gradations.

In the rhythms from light to dark, the central color might be the standard, and where crayons are used the lighter tone could be made by adding white crayon to it, and the darker by using a little charcoal. With water colors the tints are made by adding water, the shades by adding black or gray.

Yellow, orange, red forms a rhythm from one color to another. A smoother rhythm would be yellow, yellow-orange, orange. These color rhythms should be cut out in little squares and mounted in booklets to be used later in choosing color schemes for surface patterns and flat-tone compositions.

In Grades V. and VI., continue the making of rhythms from light to dark, and from one color to another. Teach the difference between a color and a hue. Green is a color; yellow-green and blue-green are hues of that color. Begin the study of complementary colors. Make a color circuit, from yellow through yellow-green, green, blue-green, blue, blue-violet, violet, red-violet, red, red-orange, orange, yellow-orange, back to yellow.

In making this circuit arrange twelve circles in a circle, the upper one for yellow, the lower one for violet. Begin by placing orange or green. If it is green, place it in the third circle to the right. Add a little yellow, making yellow-green, and place it in the second circle. Color the first circle yellow. Add a little blue to the standard green, making blue-green for the fourth circle, and proceed in the same way with the other colors.

Opposite colors or hues in this circuit are complementary, and should neutralize each other; that is, mixed in equal quantities, they should produce gray.

Besides the making of these color rhythms, paint as much as possible from nature—trees, flowers and simple landscapes. The landscapes to be memory sketches.

Do not try to accomplish everything, and refuse to be discouraged over results. Look for what is best in every effort, and try to make each lesson cultivate the children's taste for what is harmonious. Remember always that the cultivation of good taste, and not a few passable pictures, is the ultimate end in view.

Where Grades VII. and VIII. have already mastered the color work suggested for Grades V. and VI., they may

In selecting specimens for class painting, always choose those that are of good length, and are accompanied by green leaves. If a spray has too many leaves or branches, remove those that you can without detracting from the beauty of the plant. Make it as simple as possible.

If flowers are picked the evening before they are required and kept in water over night they will remain fresh much longer than if used immediately after plucking.

A diagram for a color circuit is given here. The colors and hues are to be painted in the circles designated by the letters, which are not to appear.

In the neutral scale the names of the values, beginning at the top, nearest white is high light, then light, low light, middle, high dark, dark and low dark, which is next to black. In begin the study of scales of values, instead of the grays used in the neutral scale, any color may run from the lightest possible tint, almost white, to the lowest possible shade, almost black. We speak of the distance of a color from white or black as its value.

First make the neutral scale—then try one in red or any of the other colors, giving the highest rectangle or circle (H. L.) the slightest perceptible tint of red and making the lowest (L. D.) as near black as it can be and still show a trace of red. When these scales of values are well done they may go on to the study of scales of intensity and harmonies of color, but we will hardly be ready for a systematic study of these before another year.

Besides the painting of flowers, trees, landscapes, etc., from nature in these grades, a good deal of attention should be paid to the making of flat-tone studies of flowers, landscape, etc.

A splendid exercise is the painting of a single leaf in different positions, so as to show the fore-shortening and the difference in value between the upper and the under side.

Dr. A. E. Gibson writes: "It may seem strange to us, though the fact nevertheless remains, that the veterans of the grand army of Napoleon, weighed down by age and glory, were men of whom few had passed their 35th year. It was a time of rash and short living, with an early age and no overtures of real youth—a time when we find Thackeray ridiculing De Florac for holding claims on being still a young man at the age of 35. The average man of today carries the spirit and power of youth into an age which a century ago was regarded as bordering on the shady side of existence."

Arrangements have been completed for the final appearance here this afternoon and evening at the Grand of that much beloved and ever popular presentation of Porter J. White's "Faust," with all the old-time realistic and startling electrical effects and numerous new and novel devices in stagecraft. In fact the production this year is claimed by managers to far surpass all previous undertakings of Goethe's great immortal play. Frederick J. Wilson, better known among his college chums as "Nick himself," has been particularly selected and he ably sustains Mephisto.

The electrical effects are immense and afford a continual succession of startling surprises, notably in the "Brocken scene," in the fourth act, when the curtain falls to the accompaniment of a heavy shower of electrical sparks behind which are seen the witches and imps reveling in their fiendish merriment. An idea of the grandeur and vastness of this one magnificent scene will be conveyed to our minds with the divulging of the fact that the paraphernalia for this last act of Porter J. White's "Faust" was this season secured at a cost of $11,000, sixteen thousand feet of electric wire being used.

The melodious atmosphere of the entire production of B. C. Whitney's fervent musical cocktail, "Piff Paff Puff," is sure to be fragrant with harmonious exhilaration. Its musical numbers are of the variety that set the audience whistling and time will not readily erase from the memory the enjoyment to be extracted from the delightful numbers that the piece contains. Some of these are: "I'm So Happy," "Dolly Dimple," "The Ghost That Never Walked," "Little," "The Unkissed Man," "Cordelia Malone," "Under the Goo Goo Tree," and a score or more of others. "Piff Paff Puff" will be the attraction at the Grand for an engagement of two nights, commencing Monday evening.

Manager Bowers begs to announce to his patrons that for next Wednesday, Thursday and Friday he has secured an extraordinary attraction, the Grace Opera Company, including Grace Cameron, in the great musical success, "Little Dolly Dimples," now in its second year, and which will be presented here with all its wealth of electrical and scenic splendor.

The company is a large and notable one, including such names as Al. Lawrence, the celebrated mimic; Florence Langdon Tempest, who has lately been the hit of the "Sam Houston" production, and also Thomas W. W. Ross, in "Checkers"; the Criterion Musical Four, a quartette of real musicians, rendering classical selections on xylophone, brass quartette, string and many novel instruments, form one of the added features. Two tons of electrical chime bells are used with this act, which in itself is a feature worthy of the attention of our patrons; Loren Rivers will appear in a comedy role. A big electrical dancing specialty, employing the services of the entire chorus and the pony ballet, and a terpsichorean expert, the national dancer, Miss Phoebe Cardowine, one of the unique and novel features of the performance. The Elm City Male Quartette, also will render a pleasing specialty.

Miss Cameron is well-known to local theater-goers, who have witnessed her performance with the Bostonians, "Foxy Quillie," "When Johnny Comes Marching Home," "The Tenderfoot," the "Normandy Wedding," "Piff Paff Puff," and other notable successes.

Manager Bowers announces that Mr. A. J. Small has booked the following attractions for the Grand this season:

Virginia Harned, "Brewster's Millions," "Forty-Five Minutes From Broadway," Geo. M. Cohan in "Fifty Miles From Boston," "Red Feather," Williams and Walker, Cole and Johnson, "Madame Butterfly," "The College Widow," "Eddie Foy" in the Orchard, "De Wolf Hopper" in "Happyland," Jimmy Powers in "The Blue Moon," Isabel Irving in "The Girl With the Curl," Marie Cahill in "Marrying Mary," "The Gingerbread Man," Jas. K. Hackett in "The Walls of Jericho," "Just Out of College," Raymond Hitchcock in "The Yankee Tourist," "The Sultan of Sulu," "The Prince of Pilsen," Geo. Primrose's Primroses, Grace George, Dustin Forum, Martyn Arbuckle, "The Round Up."

"Sis in New York" drew a big house at the Grand last night, and the production was well received. The work of Lyman Abbey, as the funny Dutch boy, and the efforts of Bessie Delmore, who played the part of Sis, were acceptable.

A strong comedy and novelty bill will be offered at Bennett's next week. Walter Perkins and a company of three clever people including Miss Norma Winslow and George Maynard. Mr. Perkins is the former star of such well-known farces as "My Friend from India," "The Man From Mexico," "Who Goes There," etc., and will be remembered by London playgoers as a comedian of great originality and ability. The playlet these clever artists will present is called "The Man From Macy's," and is a great laugh producer. Written especially to suit the peculiar talents of Mr. Perkins, by Will M. Cressey, a widely-known author of vaudeville sketches, it is said to be the cleverest comedy vehicle Mr. Perkins has ever had.

As a special feature for the lovers of animal intelligence, Le Mont's Circus of trained dogs, cats and monkeys, have been secured and the monkey that "loops the loop," and other astounding feats accomplished by the other animals, this should be a great delight to children and grown-ups alike.

The American Comedy Four, who term themselves "the drollest act in vaudeville," is also the highest-priced comedy quartette now touring the vaudeville. They have a travesty on all the latest song hits which are extremely funny and the voice of each member is high above the average.

McPhee and Hill make a specialty of death-defying feats on the triple bars. Their high casting is really marvelous. Throughout this act there is a spirit of quiet comedy which is highly pleasing.

Patsy Doyle is a monologist of wide reputation, and always has a new routine of stories and parodies, "Something new all the time," is his motto. The Althea Twins are two charming young ladies who have a novel singing and dancing specialty, using many spectacular electrical effects. Their acrobatic dancing is winning for them the praise of all audiences.

Nagel and Adams have a clever whistling, juggling and comedy act that is sure to please, while the Benetograph will offer a series of new and interesting subjects as a climax to the above great all-feature bill.

The usual daily matinee at bargain prices will be given at Bennett's throughout the season.

The Bellong Bros., a team of Parisian artists offering a sensational equilibrium act, will be the feature at Bennett's the week of Sept. 16.

May Duryea, now assisted by Will Mortimer, is booked to play a return engagement at Bennett's soon.

Liska & King are now offering a new magic act in which Herman the Great is burlesqued. The act has been a big hit in the United States.

Jules and Ella Garrison's new act is a travesty on Forbes Robertson's great success, "Caesar and Cleopatra."

The Norwich Bulletin says: "Quincy Adams Sawyer," with a capable cast that brought out the best in this presentation of New England farm life, delighted a large house at the Broadway Theater on Friday evening. In the title role Frederick Smith is well placed and Arthur Hollman, of London, Ont., Floyd R. Briggs, William Nason and Morean Carpenter give strong support. Bertha Van Norman and Frances Skinner are engaging in their parts and win favor at all times. The audience showed its appreciation of the situations in the play so cleverly worked out by the company, and it was accorded a hearty reception.

Miss Jane Courthope and her company produced a new playlet entitled "Lucky Jim," at Lansing, Mich., on Aug. 26. It is the work of Frank A. Furguson and has been given an elaborate setting, painted by Sosman & Landis. The action takes place in a northern mining camp and the third scene transpires in a snowstorm.

Ermete Novelli, the Italian actor, will make a twelve-weeks' tour in the United States this season under Shubert management. He will be seen at the Garrick Theater.

Miss Aline Crater, who has a part in "The Red Mill," is the wife of Fred A. Stone. Miss Crater is well remembered for her clever performance as the Lady Lunatic in "The Wizard of Oz." One of her earliest successes was made in Chicago in the leading soprano role of David Henderson's extravaganza, "Aladdin, Jun.," at the Chicago Opera House.

Miss Florence Roberts has foregone her starring tour under the direction of John Cort and has gone east to create the leading part in "The Struggle Everlasting," the new play by Edwin Milton Royle, which is announced for presentation at Providence, R. I., on Oct. 23. Arthur Byron will be entrusted with the principal male role.

"She's a remarkable girl—I was going to add 'for a negress,' but I needn't qualify it."

"Oh, no! You don't know how fine she is." Seating herself she added, as if to herself, in a sort of sigh: "What that girl has done for me!"

"I am sure that she would say just that of you," I remarked.

"Oh, I try her a good deal, sometimes. Her mother was my nurse. When I sent for Leah, I didn't expect to get anything more than, perhaps, some of the hereditary devotion darkies have, even if I got that. But I got a friend. You can't trust her too far, Mr. Castle, believe me! She's pure gold."

It happened that, as she spoke, Leah herself came into the room with letters for me. Miss Fielding took the girl's hand and pressed it against her own cheek affectionately. As she did so, I noticed a peculiar scar—a livid, U-shaped mark on Leah's wrist. It was the sort of scar that might be left from the wound of a carving tool—one of the narrower gouges.

"Was I very horrid yesterday, Leah?" Miss Fielding asked, looking up into the fine brown face.

"Oh, please, Miss Joy!" Leah begged unhesitatingly.

"Of course you understand, Leah: I only want Mr. Castle to know I'm sorry," Miss Fielding insisted.

"I need only to look at you to be sure you're sorry, and to look at Leah to be sure that there's no need of it," I declared. "At any rate, there's no need of my understanding. In fact that's just what I thought you didn't want me to do. Isn't it?"

Leah looked quickly from me to Miss Fielding, and back again.

"Yes, I suppose it is," Miss Fielding said slowly, thoughtfully. "Let's get back on the island again. I'm sure it's big enough for us."

We stayed, therefore, "on the island," all that afternoon, touching, that is, but lightly on personal topics. But though we did not go wide, we went deep enough to make the talk hold us absorbed for an hour or more. In quite another way, I think, we went far, as well. Miss Fielding was a stimulating conversationalist. She made me feel at my best. She had that happy way of meeting me on my own ground every little while, then going on, and giving me a hand up to hers, and so by a series of alternate agreements and divergences, keeping the discussion both sympathetic and various. In most of this quick give-and-take Leah was a passive listener unless specially appealed to, at which times she often expressed herself succinctly and sapiently that Miss Fielding and I looked at her, and then at one another with a comic expression of admiration and depreciation of our own powers.

With such conversation the day went fast. In the afternoon Miss Fielding read to me, and in the evening I spent two or three hours in passive delight listening to her violin.

My pain had almost subsided now, and I looked forward with some thing more poignant than regret at being able to be up and about, knowing that would mean the beginning of the end of our companionship.

CHAPTER VI.

The next morning Miss Fielding slept late, and her breakfast order was, as it had been two days before, prosaic. Then also she gave me a presentment. I looked curiously for the first sight of her to confirm or destroy a theory that I had been incubating during my long night hours alone. The fact that, as I ate my breakfast, I could hear her whistling in her room helped along my hypothesis. So did Leah's apparent mental detachment.

Miss Fielding rapped into my room at about half-past nine, and with a laugh and a "Good morning, Chet!" pounced up to my bed. My theory instantly gained plausibility. Her manner was what I had anticipated. Her dress also was significant.

She had on a fussy sort of silk waist, inappropriate, I thought, with her cloth walking skirt. Her hair was elaborately "marcelled," and she wore bangles that clinked on her wrists; there was the same odor of Santal that I had previously noticed. What was most suggestive was that this get-up was apparently meant to impress me. At least, that was how I interpreted her coquettish smile. I should not care to say that she showed actual poor taste—it was only, I thought, poor taste for her. She needed such adjuncts of fashion so little.

"See here," she said, tossing her head and pointing at me dramatically, "you're getting altogether too lazy. I think that you've been in bed long enough. I'm going to get you down stairs today. The doctor said three or four days in bed would do, and now it's five. How do you feel?" She shook the post of my bed with mock ferocity, as if to expend some surplus energy. There seemed to be an extra ounce of blood in her this morning.

"Oh, I'm game!" I replied. "Nothing would suit me better."

"I'll get the library ready, then; Leah and Uncle Jerdon will help you down. Then you can watch me work. If you don't mind. I'm trying to finish my coffee." She felt thoughtfully of her blouse. "I'll get quite a muscle before I'm through. I shall have driven about twelve hundred nails by the time it's done."

She walked to the door, swinging her arms, and called, "Leah! Come up here! Quick!"

Leah appeared out of breath, as if, for the moment, she had expected that an accident had happened. She gave a quick comprehensive look about.

"Leah, we're going to get Mr. Castle downstairs today. Is Uncle Jerdon about?"

"Do you think Mr. Castle is well enough to be moved, yet?" Leah ventured.

"Didn't I say he was going downstairs?" Miss Fielding repeated impatiently. "I think we can decide that question. You do as I say. Go and get Uncle Jerdon, and be quick about it, too!"

"She's spoiled. She thinks she runs this house," Miss Fielding complained to me, when Leah had left.

I said nothing, watching her closely. My theory was now pretty well substantiated. I could not pass this scene off as merely one of the "moods" that she and Leah had both mentioned. There was something definitely wrong with Miss Fielding today—something more than a mere whim of temper. There had been something wrong two days before, when she had acted similarly. She was distinctly not herself, if her normal self was the graceful, delicate, tactful creature who had first charmed me.

It was not only her mood or her taste in costume that seemed different. It was something not quite describable which seemed to permeate her whole personality. She had taken a chair and sat with her right arm cast up over the back. The angle of her raised elbow threw her into a distinctly awkward position. Her gestures, too, were characteristic of this mysterious difference. When they were not distinctly imitative, as in mimicking Uncle Jerdon's table manners, they were irrelevant, mere spasmodic exhibitions of activity—as when she caught the fly, or swung her arms with active tennislike gestures. This spontaneous irrelevancy she showed now in the way she doubled her fists and brought them athletically to her shoulders, as she talked, or, raising her foot a little, made circles with her toe, showing the slenderness and suppleness of her ankle. I don't say that all this ebullition of high spirits wasn't in its way charming. It was. But it was different from the way she had acted yesterday. Perhaps I can best describe it by saying that she seemed quite ten years younger.

She sprang up and, apropos of nothing at all, proceeded to dance or hop sideways across the room and back hilariously, in sheer excess of vigor. It was what she called "galumphing," and from time to time, during the day, usually at the end of some little overserious conversation, she repeated the performance, to my great amusement and delight. It was the absurdly meaningless galumphing of a kid, but it was so delicious in its inconsequence that every time it provoked my laughter.

While we were talking nonsense there Leah came up with Uncle Jerdon. Uncle Jerdon was distinctly a straw-chewing farmer, quaintly original, confident, droll. He was well on in years, a dried-up, wrinkled, New England type—the chin-bearded, toothless bachelor with sparse, straw-colored hair, long in the neck, and twinkling blue eyes full of good nature. He wore overalls and reeked of the stable.

Miss Fielding introduced him, and I shook his skinny hand. "Well," he drawled, "thinkin' about movin', be ye? I guess Leah an' me'll make a pretty good elevator. I'll help ye get dressed, fast—an' then we'll take ye up tenderly, lift ye with care."

The two women left while I got my clothes on. It felt good to leave the bed.

"We've been a tinkerin' on that air machine of yours, but it's a little bit too much for us, I guess," Uncle Jerdon said. "You'll have to send down a man I expect. I wouldn't ride in one o' them pesky things for all the gold of Ophir, nosire, bob! When I want to go to ride I want to see the back of a good horse—I know I'll get home by sun-down."

He monologued away thus as he helped me into my clothes, and when I had finished called to Leah.

She came in, and I took an arm of each, though I scarcely needed their help. We descended a narrow, paneled stairway slowly but safely, without causing me any pain, and turned into a door on the left-hand side of the lower hall. There I found a four-legged chair ready for me, drawn up before a wide brick fireplace where an oak log was burning. Uncle Jerdon left me with a wink at seeing Leah placing a footstool for me and drawing up a taboret on which were cigars and cigarettes. There ensconced, I looked about with interest.

It was a large room, finished all in paneled unvarnished redwood, most beautiful in color—a lighter red than mahogany, with more softness and bloom. Two sides were lined with book-cases, except for the chimney-breast; another was almost filled with a broad bow window of leaded glass with a deep seat covered with corduroy cushions. The wall space was well supported by carved brackets part way up, and a cornice above that. Between the adzed beams of the ceiling were panels of old Spanish leather lacquered and stamped. The whole effect was a modified French Renaissance worked out with many charming originalities of detail. The pillars, the ornate moldings and graceful consoles, showed handicraft of an interesting sort. They seemed to have been carved by some artistic amateur, being boldly cut without the machine-like regularity of the professional. There was, besides the unusualness of the wood, much to interest me as an architect.

The library was well filled without appearing crowded, and everything, furniture and appointments, betokened, as had my chamber, not only taste but luxury. It was evident that Miss Fielding was very well off, and knew how to use her money. It was as evident that she had a strong personality, for there were details that were unique. A large prism of rock crystal, for instance, carelessly resting in the sunshine upon the dull brown cushions of the window seat, threw a prismatic spot of splendor upon the ceiling. It was like a gorgeous butterfly pinned to the leather. There was a silver cage of waiting Japanese mice upon the mantel, little grotesque, pish creatures that spun wheels, played their necks with their paws and nibbled at rice. The books, too, were arranged upon the shelves apparently not as regards subjects, but rather on account of their bindings, giving masses of color, green and red and brown and black and white.

But it had all been indubitably so well lived in, its properties all ministered so to one's comfort, and the tones were all so restful and admirably composed, that I could imagine no more charming environment for a rainy day with Miss Fielding.

ORIGIN OF THE TUBBING.

The origin of Saturday night tubing seems to be lost in the mists of antiquity. Sidney Young, F. S. A., author of "Annals of the Barber Surgeons," delivered recently a most erudite and amusing discourse at Barbours' Hall, London, on "The Relations Anciently Existing Between Barbers and Surgeons." It was, he said, the custom of no less a person than King Henry VIII. to perform partial ablutions on occasional Saturday evenings. The "king's barber," one John Pen, Penn or Penne, an ancestor of the famous Quaker of that name, was expected to be present at these august ceremonies, when the Defender of the Faith was pleased "to cleanse his head, legs or feet."

The regulation requiring the barber's attendance was a standing order, dating apparently from the reign of Edward IV. It is preserved in the "Liber Niger Domus Regis," and its wording seems to imply that the solemn washings were partial and special rather than thorough, and that the King's majesty often did without them.

The royal barber, who was also a groom of the privy chamber and one of the fifteen persons allowed to enter it, was also required to shave the King daily, "having in readiness his water, basins, knives, combs, scissors and such other stuffs as to his room doth appertain for trimming."

SAVES LITTLE LIVES.

Most liquid medicines advertised to cure stomach and bowel troubles and summer complaints contain opiates and are dangerous. When the mother gives Baby's Own Tablets to her little one she has the guarantee of a Government analyst that this medicine does not contain one particle of opiate or narcotic. Therefore, she can feel that her little ones are safe. There is no other medicine can equal Baby's Own Tablets in preventing summer complaints or curing them if they come on suddenly. Keep a box of Tablets always at hand—they may save your child's life. Mrs. C. E. Hancock, Raymond, Alta., says: "I have used Baby's Own Tablets for summer complaints, constipation and sleeplessness, and always with the best results." Sold by all medicine dealers or by mail at 25 cents a box from the Dr. Williams' Medicine Company, Brockville, Ont.

and dressing of the King's head and beard." He was further required to "take a special regard to the pure and clean keeping of his own person and apparel, using himself always honestly in his conversation, without resorting to the company of vile persons," and so on. Thus we have the beginning of asepsis. When he was shaving the King a knight of the chamber or a squire of the body, or both, were required to be present in order to prevent foul play.

SIDELIGHTS ON NOTABLE PEOPLE BY THE MARQUISE DE FONTENOY

Lady Ruby Elliott will be recalled by many people in America as the second of the three pretty daughters of Lord Minto, the former Governor-General of Canada. The numerous friends of the Mintos will therefore be interested to learn of Lady Ruby's engagement to Viscount Errington, eldest son and heir of Lord Cromer of Egyptian fame. Lord Errington, who is a member of the diplomatic service, possessed of a wonderful command of Russian and Turkish, is now one of the private secretaries of Sir Edward Grey, the secretary of state for foreign affairs, and has been frequently brought into contact during the London season, which has now come to a close, with Lady Ruby, who has been in England since the spring with her mother and elder sister, Lady Eileen Elliott. Lady Violet, the youngest of the girls, having remained in India with her father, who as viceroy is prevented from leaving that vast oriental dependency until the completion of his term of office.

Lord Errington may be regarded as a matrimonial catch. For besides being a particularly nice fellow, exceptionally gifted, he is destined to succeed to the earldom of his father, and likewise to the fortune of his mother, the first wife of Lord Cromer, and who was the daughter and heiress of the late Sir Rowland Stanley Errington. Lord Cromer was deeply devoted to the late Lady Ruby, and when he was made an earl not long after her death, he asked the King to make his second title that of Viscount Errington as a memorial of the role which she had played in making his administration of Egypt a success. It is probably the only instance in the British peerage of a title being based upon a consideration such as this.

I may add that since the late Lady Ruby's death, the late Lord Cromer's fortune will be shared at the death of the earl between her two boys. Lord Cromer was particularly pleased to receive the recent national grant of £250,000, which enables him to make a suitable provision for his little son by his second and present marriage. Lord Cromer possessed of boundless opportunities of making a colossal fortune while in Egypt, but he refused those elastic ethics which govern society in the present day. But his lofty sense of honor prevented him from ever taking any such advantage thereof, and he has returned from the land of the Nile after restoring its prosperity and enriching it, both immediately and prospectively, by millions of dollars, a poorer man than when he first went to Cairo.

Her grandson was for many years French ambassador at Vienna and occupied the post of minister of foreign affairs at the time of the outbreak of the French war with Germany in 1870. Indeed, at first he was denounced as partly responsible for this, to France, so disastrous a conflict; but subsequent revelations have shown that the Gramont would have been powerless under any circumstances to prevent this struggle, so necessary to Bismarck's plans for the organization of the present German empire. He was a handsome man and bore a striking resemblance to his cousin, the famous Count d'Orsay. His wife was a Scotchwoman, a Miss McKinnon daughter of a member of Parliament of that name, and it is perhaps on this account that her three sons, the present Duc de Gramont and his brothers speak English so perfectly and with such musically-toned voices. For there is no more musically-toned voice in the world than that of the Scotch woman, no matter what her rank. Indeed, it is on this account that Scotch nurses are in such great demand among all the reigning houses of Europe and in the principal families of the continental aristocracy.

The Dukes of Gramont hail from the extreme south of France, that is to say, from the Pyrenees, and must not be confounded with the Burgundy Gramonts, who spell their name with two "e"s instead of one, and who include among the most famous actions of their family St. Theodule, who was Bishop of Sion under Emperor Charles V. The Roman house of Ruspoli, into which the Duc de Gramont has now married, has quite recently been described in these letters. Its head holds the hereditary office of Master of the Sacred Hospice and of grand chamberlain to the pope, and it traces its ancestry to the ancient Scotch house of Marischal, members of which came to Italy in the train of Emperor Frederick I, where one of them, John Francis Mariscotti, married in 1652

Victoria Ruspoli, the last survivor of the old Siennese house of Ruspoli, obtaining from the papacy the authority to adopt her name and armorial bearings, along with her vast possessions. There is no Roman house that has a larger number of matrimonial alliances with Americans to its record.

From Lake Placid, N. Y., I receive a marked copy of the New York Herald of Sunday, Aug. 7, in which the name of one of the visitors there is given as "The Hon. Miss Emily Bird, third daughter of the Earl of Carrick," who is recorded as staying there with Mr. and Mrs. J. B. Lyman, of New York, and I am asked if the lady in question is really entitled by English usage to the prefix of "Honorable." I am afraid that there must be a mistake somewhere. For the family name of the Earl of Carrick is not "Bird," but "Butler," and Lord Carrick has but one daughter, Lady Kathleen, born thirty-one years ago, who married in March, 1897, Walter Charles Lindsay, by whom she has several children. She is now known as Lady Kathleen Lindsay. The present Lord Carrick is the sixth earl, and as both the fifth and fourth earls died unmarried, and as the third earl, who died as far back as 1838, left three daughters, who all married and are now dead, I do not see how the Miss Emily Bird, regarding whose alleged nobility nature I am questioned, can possibly be third daughter of Lord Carrick, or entitled as such to the prefix of "Honorable." I may add that if she were the daughter of an earl she would be entitled to the prefix of "Lady" to her Christian name, instead of the predicate of "Honorable."

Wilhelmshoe, the palace at Cassel where King Edward recently visited the Kaiser, and where the Empress is now confined to her room for some weeks to come by the rupture of a vein sustained while playing at tennis, is best known as the gilded prison where Napoleon III. was interned from the time of his surrender at Sedan, in 1870, until the end of the war. But it has other associations. It was there that Jerome Bonaparte held his opera bouffe court after being created by his brother King of Westphalia as the American wife, Miss Elizabeth Patterson, of Baltimore, and of his child, the grandfather of the present attorney-general of the United States. So insane were the extravagances of Jerome at Wilhelmshoe, which he christened Napoleonschoe, so startling and oriental his mode of life, that even the great Napoleon was shocked, and was compelled several times to threaten his brother with deposition and disgrace unless he mended his ways. In the hope of keeping him old mother, Mrs. Mere, to stay with him at Wilhelmshoe. But after a few weeks there in 1811, she found things too contrary to her sense of propriety, and took flight.

The palace, which occupies the fairest site, and can boast of the most lovely and picturesque surroundings of any royal or imperial abode in the old world, was built in 1606, on the foundation of the then 500-year-old monastery of Weissenstein, which had been razed to the ground by Langrave Maurice, of Hesse, in order to make way for his chateau. The latter was to a great extent reconstructed by his great-grandson, Charles of Hesse, the most jovial of his line, under the direction of the famous Italian architect, Francesco Guarnieri. This was in 1717. It is he who is responsible for those huge fountains and lakes, in which King Jerome used to play the role of Neptune in the midst of a court of mermen and mermaids.

Another ruler of Hesse who greatly contributed to the beauties of the place was Elector William I, who, on the morning of the battle of Jena, summoned his court Jew and steward, Meyer Amschel Rothschild, and confided to him his great hoard of specie chiefly derived from the sale of Hessian soldiers to George III, of England, for use in fighting the Americans in their war of Independence. How Rothschild restored this fortune after the war with all the accumulations of interest at a high rate to the elector and at the same time was able through its use to lay the foundations of the colossal fortune of the great banking house which he then founded, has been related in every history of the Rothschild family.

After the fall of Napoleon and the expulsion of Jerome from Germany, the electors of Hesse once more held the court at Cassel, and their mode of life and their domestic arrangements were such as to render Wilhelmshoe virtually closed to the other reigning houses of Europe. Oriental conditions in matters matrimonial continued to prevail until 1866, when the last elector of Hesse was arrested by the German plenipotentiary, Gen. Von Roeder, who intimated to the prince the fact that he had forfeited his throne, that his dominions would henceforth form part of Prussia, and that he would be interned in the fortress of Stettin until the end of the war in consequence of his failure to observe the treaty obligations to Prussia and of his having taken up arms against the latter on behalf of Austria.

There was a certain kind of pliancy in this, since only a short time previous the elector had rudely refused to give his consent to a marriage between one of his morganatic sons, Prince Philipp of Hanau, and Jennie Von Roeder, the daughter of the general, on the ridiculous and insulting plea that it would constitute a mesalliance, although the general belonged to one of the oldest houses of the German aristocracy and had himself married as his first wife on a footing of perfect equality a member of the sovereign house of Lippe.

Since 1866 the palace of Wilhelmshoe has been the property of the Prussian crown; but save for the historic sojourn there of Napoleon III. as a prisoner of war in 1870, it remained unoccupied until the advent to the throne of the present Kaiser, who like his consort, is fond of the place, and makes a point of spending several weeks there each summer with his family. He likes Cassel, for it was there that he received his education at the public school of the place with his brother, Prince Henry.

The Right Hon. Alfred Lyttleton, who was secretary of state for the colonies in the last unionist administration, leaves England this week, bound for America, and it is illustrative of the amenities of political life in England that he will make his headquarters while in Canada at Rideau Hall, Ottawa, in the executive mansion of a Governor-General who represents the views of a cabinet policy of which is diametrically opposed to those of his distinguished guest. Alfred Lyttleton, besides having achieved fame as a statesman, of considerable ability, is, perhaps, the best known of non-professional athletes in the British Isles, and is familiarly known as "Alfred," pure and simple, on every cricket ground and tennis court of the United Kingdom. His prowess in the football field, in running and at tennis, although it is celebrated not only in England, but also in her colonies, is surpassed by his success as a cricketer, and there is no member of the aristocracy, and certainly no man in public life in England, who is more thoroughly identified with the national game in the minds of the people.

A feature in his activity is the so-called "children's holiday fund," which owes its existence to his initiative and organization, and which, like the fresh air fund in so many American cities, secures a fortnight's holiday in the country each year for thousands of unfortunate children whose homes are in the poorest tenement districts and in the London slums.

His mother was a younger sister of the late Mrs. Gladstone. Indeed, the late Lord Lyttleton and William E. Gladstone married the two sisters of Sir Stephen Glynne on the same day, and in the same church, and the relations of the Lyttletons with the Gladstones have ever since been extremely close and intimate in all matters save politics. Mrs. Alfred Lyttleton was a Miss Balfour, and is a sister to that young lawyer whose engagement to Miss Vivian Sartoris, granddaughter of President Grant, was broken off on the eve of the day appointed for the wedding. Alfred's first wife, a most gifted woman, was the elder sister of "Dodo" Asquith.

The Lyttleton family is an ancient one, being descended from Thomas Tyltshire, who was sheriff of Worcestershire in the reign of King Henry III. King James I. conferred a barony upon the Lyttletons of his day, and King George III. advanced Sir William Henry Lyttleton to the rank of Lord Lyttleton for his services as Governor of South Carolina. The fifth and present Lord Lyttleton—that is to say, the elder brother of Alfred Lyttleton—inherited the viscounty of Cobham, whose death the late Duke of Buckingham and Chandos without male issue. This was by virtue of the special remainder, according to the terms of which the viscounty of Cobham conferred upon Sir Richard Temple of Stowe in 1718 was to pass, in default of heirs male of his body, to the heirs male of his sister, married to Sir Thomas Lyttleton. The highest and most ancient of the dignities inherited by the present chief of the house of Lyttleton is the one by which he is known, when he sits in the House of Lords. Let me add that the Lyttletons claim to have royal blood in their veins, being descended in the male line from that John of Gaunt, Duke of Lancaster, who was son of King Edward III.

Mrs. Valentine Prinsep, whose marriage to George Ball-Greene, has just been announced from London, is the wealthy widow of the late Val Prinsep, the painter and Royal Academician, who was portrayed by Du Maurier as Taffy in his popular novel, "Tribby." She is the sister of the late Sir Herbert Naylor Leyland, sister-in-law of the lovely Lady Naylor Leyland, who was Miss Jennie Chamberlain, of Cleveland, Ohio, and daughter of the Frederick Leyland, founder of the Leyland line of steamers and the man who commissioned Whistler to paint the famous Peacock room. Old Leyland was accidentally shot while out deerstalking in the highlands by his only son who was ever afterwards known in London society by the nickname of "Bagdad."

Lord Stadbrooke, who has been in Canada superintending the work of the British artillery team there. The chief of the old Suffolk family of Rolles, one of the best known members of which in modern times was the famous Admiral Rous, of Jockey club and celebrity. Lady Stadbrooke was prior to her marriage one of the most admired beauties in London society, where she was known as "Baby" Fraser, daughter of the universally popular Gen. Keith Fraser, inspector-general of cavalry, and granddaughter of that wonderful old woman Mme de Falbe. It is owing to the intimate friendship which existed between Mme. de Falbe and Queen Alexandra that the latter makes so much of a favorite of Lady Stadbrooke and is the godmother of her little boy, Viscount Dunwich.

Lord Stadbrooke, though he is a soldier and an A. D. C. to the King, is vice-admiral of Suffolk and as such exercises the prerogatives of lord lieutenant of the county, besides enjoying all sorts of old prerogatives with regard to the coast and the fisheries and jetties. He makes his home at Henham Hall, a beautiful place of some 12,000 acres, a feature of the park being an old tree in which Sir John Rous, the first baronet was hidden and fed by his wife, the lovely Elizabeth Knevit, as long as the Roundheads of Cromwell were searching for him throughout the district.

Later on Sir Robert Rous and other kindred Jacobite spirits used to meet around the tree to drink to "the king over the water." The mansion dates from the eighteenth century, when it was built on the site of a much more older house destroyed by fire. Lord Stadbrooke has a number of sisters, one of whom, Lady Augusta Fane, is a frequent visitor to the United States, and a familiar figure in New York society and in the Berkshires. Another sister, Lady Hilda McNeill, lost her life while endeavoring to rescue a little boy from drowning.

The late Lady Stadbrooke was a frequent contributor to the London World, and it was one of her unfortunate paragraphs concerning the alleged and purely imaginary elopement of Lord Lonsdale with Lady Grace Fane, now Countess of Lonsborough, that led to the criminal libel suite of Lord Lonsdale against the paper, culminating in the sentence of its editor, Edmund Yates, to a year's imprisonment, owing to his refusal to give the name of the author. The authorship of the paragraph which had been inserted during his absence from England, became known through other sources than Edmund Yates before he had served six months, and the remainder of his sentence was remitted, nor were any steps taken against Lady Stadbrooke, beyond the late Queen Victoria declining to receive her any longer at court.

WOMEN IN BRITISH POLITICS

THEY WORK AS INDIVIDUALS, ALSO IN VARIOUS LEAGUES.

Among the notable women in British politics, a fine speaker with a clear voice, and the author of various books, political and biographical.

Mrs. Cornwallis West, formerly Lady Randolph Churchill, is described as "a politician to her fingertips," says the World Today. She has both canvassed and spoken frequently in behalf of her son, Winston Churchill. She was also the founder and editor of the Anglo-Saxon Review.

The Primrose League was organized in 1883 by Lord Randolph Churchill and others in memory of Benjamin Disraeli (Lord Beaconsfield). It has become a great conservative body, with more than a million members—men, women and children. At its annual festival the leaders of the party make known their political purposes and enlist its assistance in carrying them out.

A rival organization was instituted by Mrs. Gladstone in 1886—the Women's Liberal Federation—which has developed some strong women speakers. It draws together women of all ranks and is a large educational force politically.

In 1888 the Liberal Unionists followed suit in establishing a federation which differs from the other mainly in its opposition to home rule. It has 36 branches and a membership of from fourteen to fifteen thousand. These three organizations are influential factors in political affairs in Great Britain.

The Ladies' Land League was founded by Michael Davitt in February of that year as an auxiliary to the Irish Land League. When the latter was suppressed by Mr. Gladstone the women took entire management of its work, until Mr. Parnell's release from prison, $350,000 passing through their hands in eight months.

Japan's settled accounts for the year ended March 31 show a surplus of revenue over estimates, while outlays have decreased owing to the rapidly with which the army and navy are being reduced to a peace footing. No further loan will be necessary this year and perhaps not next.

The Morning of Life

Make youth nappy by making it strong. Help it to pass on to middle life, the vigor that commands success. Hard study at school and rapid growth weakens the system, and so it is necessary to develop a strong constitution early, that prepares you to enter manhood and womanhood equipped for any work. Girls especially need to build up vigor for the strain, wear and tear of life.

Then build up by taking Ferrozone; it is the very essence of health, and produces a healthy, that gives strength and mental clearness. Ferrozone clears the skin by purifying the blood, and gives you color by making the blood rich and red. It not only removes nervousness, but builds up the nerves, too.

For buoyant good health and feeling of strength and vigor, nothing gives such lasting results as Ferrozone. Every sickly child, every boy and girl, in fact any persons in failing health, it will rebuild and restore. Sold in 50-cent boxes at all dealers.

The Pull of The Salmon

IT MAY SEEM LIKE 60 POUNDS TO THE ANGLER, BUT IT ISN'T.

Strain Put on a Rod by a Fighting Fish—Deceptive—Practical Tests Which Showed the Extreme Tension To Be Less than Ten Pounds.

Gaspé Basin, Canada, Sept. 7.—At one of the clubhouses up the river they were discussing a remarkably handsome twenty-eight pound salmon which one of the men had just taken. "Never had such a struggle in my life," he said. "I had scarcely any control over him, as he had risen short and got hooked in the back, between the tail and the adipose fin. He led me up and down the big stretch pool, made me get out of the canoe and rush like a maniac down the shallows into Debreit's hole, and I only got him at last through a miraculous lunge of old Sandy's with the gaff as he was making for a lower part of the stream."

"He kept me going for over an hour and left me tired to death. I should say he never pulled less than sixty pounds."

"Two friends, old hands at the game, chuckled. "Easy old man," said one of them. "Easy with the avoirdupois of the strain."

"I don't exaggerate a little bit," replied the angler. "I know what I can pull very well and am sure that I put not a pound less than sixty pounds into my fight."

"Well, you are modest after all," said the first man. "I got my first big fish, a forty pounder, in a very quick Norwegian river. The water was high and particularly strong, and he was hooked, too. He gave me nearly an hour's hard fight and tired my arms."

"When my guide, a fine young Irish-Swede, gaffed him in midair I was nearly wild with fatigue and excitement."

"He must have pulled a good hundred pounds. I panted as I lay on my stomach at the edge of a snow pile admiring my fish. I very nearly quarreled with the best guide man ever had when he replied: "Give pounds, more like. Never did I know one to pull more," and I found he was right, too."

"What nonsense," said the successful angler. "Excuse my positiveness, but I do a bit of rowing and gym work and I really do know something about the weight of a pull. I am sure that salmon of mine, head on against me, unhindered by any restraint about his mouth, was certainly pulling not less than sixty pounds."

"Ever try what was the straining power of your rod?" asked the other as he lighted a fresh cigar. "You could not put on more than the rod would hold, could you? You would never believe the difference there is between lifting by the hands and lifting at the end of a supple eighteen foot fishing rod."

"Well, there is something practical about that. I will get my rod and try it right here," said the other. "I should like to get this thing right, you know."

"Say, bring your best leader along with you, will you?" broke in the quiet man, "and we will work out these strain tests right to a finish, if you don't mind."

The young man soon returned with his handsome salmon rod and reel and also one of those weighing scales often found in fishing bags, which work by pulling down a graduated spring. The hook of this was stuck in a door cleat on the floor and he fastened his line to the ring at the other end of the scale.

"It only weighs up to fifty pounds," he remarked. "I expect that will be about enough," said his friend, as the angler, from the other side of the room, wound up the slack, and began lifting steadily with the rod.

The well-made joints arched themselves and the angler panted: "Now see what I'm pulling."

"Six, say seven pounds, if the scales are right. Better than I expected," said the examiner. "Stuff," was the reply. "Here, you put on the strain to just about breaking point, but don't smash it, and let me read the scale."

It seemed incredible that so much apparent strain was caused by a weight of less than ten pounds, but so it was, and the angler wondered. "Now test your salmon leader and get a good working idea of the amount of pull in a big fish."

fish weighed certainly less than a pound in the water.

"You take a pound weight and fasten it to the end of your line and see how it feels in the water and out. Remember that the fish are very little heavier than water. Indeed, some of them, not salmon, however, will float on top as soon as they are dead."

"Of course there is the fighting power, the fin resisting power, of the fish to be considered. This you had to contend against, and I dare say met a strain of perhaps four pounds. It is felt more than that, of course, and fishermen won't believe that it's not more until they are convinced against their will. But there is the fact."

"That is, of course, the art of fishing—to graduate your tools to your work so that you may just be within the breaking point, whatever you are fishing for."

"I had a friend at Lake St. John after the ouananiche once. He had heard of their pulling power, and brought along a thick sea bass short rod. Of course he got his fish. "I rather think with his thick lines and double leaders he swung them out over his head. I don't see that there is much fun about this," he said, and I quite agreed with him."

"I was fishing in a Scotch river one year, when a friend of the owners came up to join me. Where in the world he got his outfit I couldn't say. But he had a prodigious, heavy, unbending rod and a reel of heavy line as big as a bucket."

"The salmon were plentiful and large, and my companion caught several. As soon as they bit he pulled them to the side by main strength. "Sometimes their mouths held firm and sometimes they broke away. But the only fun he had out of it was the amusement of holding them still while the gillie stuck a big gaff into them and lugged them out. That is not angling, you know."

"If you are going after fish which weigh twenty pounds ashore and pull say, three pounds in the water, you should in all fairness reckon your reasoning power as a factor and go equipped with tackle which will stand a strain of a trifle less than that."

bounds it may not be long before the postoffice department will be self-supporting in spite of the immense sums paid to the railroads for transportation. Every cross roads store now has a case full of the picture postals; they are a part of the equipment of every summer hotel; on the trains they sell in sets; in the larger cities they are the sole stock of some of the stores; the street peddler makes a living out of them; they are the continuous chain between the vacationists and the stay-at-homes; albums are filled with them by the artistic as well as by the sentimental; they flood the land with a mighty tide of color; the works of the old masters, the conceits of comic artists, the solicitations of the advertising tribe, everything pictorial that may hit the popular taste or fill "a long-felt want" is now exploited by the cheap and convenient postal card, which at the same time may carry a message or a salutation from the sender on the address as well as on the picture side. There is a great subject for the industrious literary hack in the rise and spread of the illustrated postal card. In time it will have a literature of its own.

WILLIAM LE QUEX'S DARING TRIP

the Lapps at Hammerfest we shall return to England, and the expedition proper will start about the middle of November. The journey throughout will be done by reindeer, sleds. We shall have eighteen of them, each drawn by six reindeer. Altogether we shall use between 1,200 and 1,500 of them. We shall take a six months' stock of provisions with us, and fuel, too, for the same period, as none is obtainable in the country.

In addition to our Lapp attendants we shall have with us a mineralogist, a photographer, and two friends who will go along for the fun of the thing.

"One result of the expedition, I suppose, will be a book."

"Of course, and an interesting book it ought to make, for of the remote Laplanders—their manners, customs, modes of life, etc.—little is known. But there are other objects in view besides the production of a book. One, which may prove to be of great practical importance, is to ascertain whether the reports of huge deposits of tin and petroleum said to exist from Lake Enare eastward, to Archangel, are correct. That, especially, is where the mineralogist will come in."

"How long do you estimate it will take you to make the journey?"

"Probably between four and five months, but, as I have said, we shall go provisioned for six months. The route taken will be approximately as follows: From Atten Fjord, Norway, to Kamsjok and south to Kautokelino, then to Menesjarvi. From Menesjarvi we shall make our way to Ahokla, and Sodankyla, taking in Enare, a large reindeer station. From Sodankyla we shall proceed to Kola, mapping and exploring the Kola peninsula. The region is uninhabited and our journey through it is likely to be beset with many difficulties. From Kola our route will lie south to Kem on the shores of the White Sea. That will be the hardest part of our journey on account of the deep snows and furious blizzards that there prevail. From Kem to Archangel it will be fairly easy going, we expect.

"The distance covered will be about 2,800 miles. A few weeks after we start we shall find ourselves in the Arctic night and shall probably have to lay up for six weeks until the sun makes its appearance above the horizon again and gives us a little light, or the Aurora Borealis supplies sufficient illumination to enable us to make headway. We have a stiff job before us; we are going where white men have never been before, we don't know just what difficulties and dangers we may encounter, but I am looking forward to the prospect with huge delight and so is De Windt."

Short, of moderate build, dark, with a thick brown, almost black mustache, strongly marked eyebrows, Mr. Le Queux bears some physical likeness to Rudyard Kipling. The resemblance, however, is only superficial, for his complexion is olive, not mahogany while the glance of his eager brown eyes has none of the intensity of Kipling's gaze. But like Kipling he gets his inspiration from real life. He believes in seeing things as they are about. The marvel is that he has been able to do and see so much and at the same time write so much. "The ordinary reader," he says, "who imagines that I simply sit down and write my stories as hard as I can, and think they cost me no effort, would be surprised if he knew the years of toil and patience I have gone through and the dangers I have encountered in getting together the material which I use in my novels."

His last search for material, from whence he has just returned, carried him to Macedonia and northern Albania. He was the first Englishman to visit the brigand tribe of the Skrelli who live in "The Accursed Mountains" north of Macedonia. He is an uncommonly interesting man and has an uncommonly interesting career. Born in London, 43 years ago of a French father and an English mother, a nomad by birth and education, he has been a wanderer all his life.

"My youth," he said, "commenced in Paris, where I became one of a crowd of merry, easy going students of the Quarter Latin. I tried art, but failed ignominiously. I preferred to play students' pranks to studying, and at last, by reason of my youthful buoyancy getting the better of me, my father—my dear mother was dead—cast me off as utterly incorrigible. I was a ne'er-do-well, he declared, and so I became one of the flotsam and jetsam of student life in Paris."

For a year he lived the life of the road. Then he entered the service of a firm of silk manufacturers as clerk. Quickly tiring of such a humdrum occupation, he knocked about for another year, experiencing all sorts of strange ups and downs, but generally "downs."

He returned to Paris and betook himself to scribbling for some weary months, barely making enough to keep him. At last he got a position on a paper. A somewhat sensational story he wrote, founded on his own experience, attracted the attention of Zola. Zola advised him to stick to journalism with the idea of eventually becoming a novelist. He came to England, and for several years combined newspaper work with fiction. At last his success in the latter field enabled him to give up the journalistic bread and butter grind altogether.

He crossed the Sahara from Algiers in Salah, with a French military expedition, the result being his novel "Zoraida." He wandered through Spain. He crossed Russia and Siberia to Tomsk. He visited Tunis and Egypt, Norway, Sweden, Poland and Italy in succession. Three countries supply most of the hops that go into the channels of international trade. These countries are Germany, the United States and Austria-Hungary. London, Nuremberg and New York are the world's three leading hop markets.

THE UNREST IN ENGLAND

[Sidney Whitman in Fortnightly Review.]

The British Empire has reached an unprecedented height of power; it enjoys almost unequalled consideration abroad. Within the memory of men scarcely past middle age, England has nearly doubled the area of her possessions, so that today she holds sway over something like one-fifth of the inhabited globe. As an adjunct to the unique political status, she wields practically unchallenged the social hegemony of the world—that is to say, the English gentlemen's social habits, their standards of conduct, their ideas of conventionality are admired, accepted and imitated, as were once those of Italians and Spaniards, and more recently those of the French—everywhere in polite society—from New York to St. Petersburg. London has displaced Paris as the center of luxury and fashion to which come during the season the rank and wealth of the whole world as once they flocked to Imperial Rome, or at a later date to the Paris of Louis XIV. CATS AS FISHERMEN.

"Cats," said a naturalist, "are very fond of fishing. I have personally known three feline fishers. One was a mere acquaintance and used to fish in a trout stream. The other two were adornments of a country house in which I lived, and during the summer months used to fish in a nearby lake every morning. They would crouch on the shore and suddenly jump into an advancing wavelet, very frequently bringing out a small fish. When they had kittens I have sometimes seen them bring up to the house three fish in the space of an hour."

"I know of a cat whose home was close to a stream, that was a regular and accomplished fisher. She was a half Persian. Her daughter belongs to friends of mine, and I have myself seen this latter watching the goldfish in the children's aquarium, which at that time was open at the top and had a broad window seat. Puss put in one paw and stirred the water violently, then sat down to watch with apparent satisfaction the terror of the fish, which she could not on that occasion reach. Once the family found she had caught one and killed a second, so the aquarium was afterward always covered by wire or net."

"One of this cat's kittens belonged to me, and during her short life of under a year, was very dependent on human companionship. She came up to my bedroom frequently the first thing in the morning, and always took great interest in my wash basin, from which she would fish out the sponge or soap, and liked to have her paw in the water. She had to be kept out of the bathroom, as more than once she deliberately jumped into the bathtub when it had in it a depth of two or three inches of water. If this daughter and granddaughter of the original fisher had lived near water I think the fishing instinct would have developed, as the three generations all showed a fondness for this element, which cats, as a rule, are supposed to avoid."—Philadelphia Ledger.

IN HAWAII.

Yesterday, on one of the King street cars, a Japanese woman got off backwards and hit the pavement with a distinct chug. The car was stopped with a jerk and the conductor got of frontwards, notebook in hand, to ask the usual questions. The astonishment of the woman over so much attention was grotesque, but when the meaning of it all finally dawned upon her she bowed very low to the conductor and said humbly, "Excuse me, I not know." The ripple of laughter in the car unnered her, and shaking a kimonoed arm at the motorman, she added, "You go 'long now." As there was a shyster on board who showed signs of getting off to interview the woman on the subject of a damage suit, the car was sent full speed ahead. Unhappily, the shyster did not try to jump off backwards.—Hawian Gazette.
