Legal Decisions

1. Any person who takes a paper regularly from the Post Office—whether directed to his name or another's or whether he has subscribed or not—is responsible for the payment.

2. If a person orders his paper discontinued, he must pay up all arrearages, or the publisher may continue to send it until payment is made, and collect the whole amount, whether the paper is taken from the office or not.

3. The courts have decided that refusing to take newspapers and periodicals from the Post Office, or removing and leaving them uncalled for is prima facie evidence of intentional fraud.

POETRY.

An Inner Meaning.

There has come to my mind a legend, a thing I had half forgot, And whether I read it or dreamt it, ah, well it matters not. It is said that in heaven, at twilight, a great bell softly swings, Heartache and weary longing that throbs in the pulses of life— If he thrust from his soul all hatred, all thoughts of wicked things, He can hear in the holy twilight how the bell of the angels rings. And I think there lies in this legend, if we open our eyes to see, Somewhat of an inner meaning, my friend, to you and me. Let us look in our hearts and question, can pure thoughts enter in To a soul if it be already the dwelling of thoughts of sin. So then, let us ponder a little—let us look in our hearts and see If the twilight bell of the angels could ring for us—you and me.

To-day.

Beswift to love your own, dears, Your own who need you so; Say to the speeding hour, dears, "I will not let this go Except thou give a blessing;" Force it to hide and stay. Love has no sure to-morrow, It only has to-day. Oh, hasten to be kind, dears, Before the time shall come When you are left behind, dears, In an allegoic home; Before in late contrition, Vainly you weep and pray, Love has no sure to-morrow, It only has to-day. Swifter than sun and shade, dears, Move the feet wings of pain; The chance we have to-day, dears, May never come again. Joy is a fickle rover, He brooketh not delay. Love has no sure to-morrow, It only has to-day. Too late to plead or grieve, dears, Too late to kiss or sigh, When Death has laid his seal, dears, On the cold lip and eye. Too late our gifts to lavish Upon the buried joy; Love has no sure to-morrow, It only has to-day.

SELECT STORY.

HOW?

Click, click, click! "Some one in the composing-room setting type, evidently. Just my luck!" Fired and nervous, unable to sleep or rest, I had started out for a walk. Unconsciously I had turned toward the office, and, letting myself in, had gone to the editorial room, hoping to be able to read and write. A strange, restless feeling had been over me all day, and now at midnight when I was hoping for quiet and forgetfulness, it was aggravating to hear that annoying click, click of the type-setter. Who can be fool enough to work at midnight, when it is not necessary? I wonder.

For a few moments all was quiet, and I leaned back in my chair, forgetting all my surroundings in a dream of the past. Again in a small, crowded composing room of a country office, I stand by a fair-haired girl. Again I catch the perfume of the lilacs at her throat. Again I see the blush tinting her face as she begins to speak; then, as she goes on, forgetting herself in her eagerness, the color fades away, leaving her white as the dead.

All this I note, and again the sting of words so earnestly spoken cuts into my heart. "And so you are going away again," the voice says. "Well, I don't think you use yourself well. You might make a good deal of yourself if you would only try. You have much more ability than the people you meet every day. I don't think you ought to go tramping about from place to place, throwing away your youth, your strength and your ability." I don't think you ought to drink the way you do, if you will excuse me for saying so. You say you have no friends; I am sure you must know that you are not taking the right course to get them. What do you think the end will be? Oh, yes! I know it is none of my business, but if you were my brother—

Then the proprietor comes in with my pay envelope in his hand and I smile a beautiful "Thank you" to the brave little girl who has turned away to hide the tears. Then I leave the office knowing that it is all true, feeling angry and hurt, all the same. How long ago it all was!

How imperceptibly that sharp, metallic sound breaks in on this bitter old memory!" I'll close the door and shut it out for the memory has a fascination for me to-night. With my hand on the door I glance in. The room is still—as only so large a room can be when the life and activity are gone and only inanimate things remain. It is comparatively light for an electric lamp shines just outside. Copy, held in place by the guides, gleams white on some of the cases, and "Live forms" are confronted by "Dead" in bold letters. On one case is a galley with the last line half paid. All this I notice in a dreamy way as I look toward the case from which the sound of type had come. It stands full in the light—no copy on it, no one before it, only the stick and rule laid over the space box! With a smile I go back to my chair and my memories.

Again I live over the bitter moments that followed those cutting words, feel the need of the fiery drink to help me forget them, feel the fusing at my heart of an impulse to try again, and finally turn from the very door of the saloon to go to my room, lock the door and think.

Even so far away as this night seems, the sweat stands in large drops on my face as I live over that struggle. I did not know then, as I do now, that that was the first step, and that the victory was won that night, though there were many hard struggles and many disappointments before I became one of the partners in the great house where I sat.

And the little girl in that country office. Where is she? "Click, click, click!" Again that sound. It must be the watchman. I wonder dreamily if he is trying to learn the business.

Yes, where is she? So often I ask myself the question as I peer into the faces of the passers by. Always the sweet scent of lilacs brings these haunting memories to me, brings back the bitterness of the day I returned to the little office, hoping to look on her sweet, brave face again, hoping to tell her of the courage her words had given me, and hoping, perhaps, if her life were still unchanged, to tell her of the struggle and ask her help to victory.

Alas for so bright a dream! Her mother had died and she had gone with an uncle, no one knew whither. Since then she is only a memory, but one that is always urging me to do my best. "Click, click!"

Surely the watchman should be in the press-room now. Is he neglecting his duty? This time I go out into the room, only to find the same silence, the same weird light—everything exactly the same. But is it? The stick on that case is empty. Now there are three lines in it. Holding it to the light, I read:

Lee, Laura.—In this city, Jan. 25, of heart failure. Funeral services at the residence, 612, Post street, at 3:30 Sunday. Interment at the Masonic cemetery.

Dazed and stunned, I read twice and ever again. The words convey no meaning. What is it? A death notice? Yes; it must be, but how? Laura Lee—my Laura—my sweet-faced helper—she who had saved me from the life of a miserable tramp by her womanly pity and the bravery with which she had put aside all her shyness to tell me those sharp truths. Laura dead and that day buried, and in this city? What does it all mean?

How come those words in that stick? Again I read them over, and then go almost against my will, to the desk, take up the Morning Call and turn to the deaths.

"There it is, word for word. My brain begins to reel, and I suffer. Never until now have I known how strong was my love of finding her at last.

I bow my head on the desk and groan in agony. Dead! dead! I have been so near to her—to have lived less than a week from her—and then to find her dead! The odor of lilacs comes to me, and again I see the little eastern office and hear the type drop into the stick—click, click. Am I mad? Surely there are no lilacs on Montgomery street at midnight; but, surely, that sound is not a dream.

"Click, click, click, click, click." Almost before the sound dies a ray I stand before the case and read; "Come quickly. Laura. Mad I may have been, but certainly I had no power to resist the forces that took me to the telephone, made me order a carriage and wait impatiently for it to come.

Was it I who gave the order: "To the Masonic Cemetery?" At least the order was given, to the evident astonishment of the driver. The door banged and we were off.

At the gate, still impelled by a force I could not withstand, I knocked at the door of the pretty little cottage and asked for the sexton.

After what seemed to me an endless time, he came to the door, very cross and very sleepy. Still without knowing what or why I began to question him.

"Was there a burial here to-day?" "Yes, two of them."

"One a young lady?" "Yes."

"Will you show me her grave?" "With that he shut the door in my face.

At that moment, his son, a young man with a frank and honest face, came to the door. I don't know what words or signs I used, but after a moment he told me she had been placed in the vault and he would get the key and guide me there.

Mad by this time I certainly was; but even now I can close my eyes and see the road leading from the cottage to the vault; can smell the odor of the eucalyptus trees that border the fountain, can hear the splash of its waters; can feel the impulse to pluck a spray of it as we pass a great clump of the snowy blossoms. I even remember of wondering, vaguely, how one can bear to have even a bronze statue, bearing the face and form of a loved one, standing out all the long, cold night with the fog from the ocean drifting around it.

Just as we came in sight of the vault the awful hush was suddenly broken by the sound of breaking glass, and of something falling among the fragments on the stone floor.

The hackman, who had driven along behind us, stopped his horse suddenly, and while my companion said: "My God!" and stood still; but I rushed on to the great door.

"Laura—Miss Lee—don't be frightened. We will be there in a moment." I spoke as calmly as possible but my voice did not sound like my own.

A groan was the only answer, and as the key turned in the lock I went in with my heart still for fear and dread of what I might find. It was perfectly dark inside, and I called for one of the carriage lamps, but before it came I was beside the coffin. I found the cover off and the glist'ning. Placing my hand on the side, I felt it clasped by a hand as cold as death, in another second a pair of arms were around my neck and a voice—her voice—was saying: "O, Louise! I knew you would come!"

threw her arms to beg for him to remain. Then she heard my voice and fainted. And—yes she does now admit that when the tramp left the office he took her heart with him.—Bessie Gordon.

The Habit of Borrowing.

It is the easiest thing in the world to begin by borrowing a newspaper, then a pattern, then a receipt, then a book; some day a gown is borrowed to look at; another day one is borrowed to try to see if it would be becoming; then a little note goes asking that a fan be lent; and the fan once borrowed it becomes the easiest thing in the world to get either a bodice, a bonnet, or an embroidered petticoat. Now when you begin, if anybody had told you that you were a moral thief, you would have been most indignant; and yet that is just what you are. It would be much more honest to borrow your neighbor's money and never return it, than to keep up a constant borrowing of your neighbor's belongings, getting out of them the wear that is not yours and the pleasure that is by right your neighbor's.

What the mistress does, the maid does. In the kitchen they do not hesitate to borrow a patent coffee-pot, and never return it; a pyroding dish, a little flavoring extract, some baking powder, or some oil. If they were asked if they returned all this they would answer: certainly not, why we would be just as glad to lend them. And the result is that your servants, imitating your example, become systematic plunderers of your neighbors. My friend, do not get into the habit of borrowing. It is one of the most vicious you can acquire.

The Care of Sprains.

Severe sprains require elevation of the limb, support to the foot and a foot bath, so hot as can be borne, to be repeated every three hours. After each bath the ankle should be wrapped generously in cotton batting, over which should be applied a tight flannel bandage or a loose rubber bandage.

After the third day, the stage of active hyperemia (excess of blood) having passed, massage may be used on the parts, and when the swelling has somewhat subsided, a starch bandage may be applied.

The splint should include the entire foot, except the toes, and extend one-half or two thirds up the leg, and when hardened should be cut open down the front and thus made removable. The hot bath should be repeated several times a day, from ten to twenty minutes at a time, the limb being dried and then well massaged during the intervals.

Precaution should be used in working the foot not to turn it in, otherwise the external lateral ligament fibers which were torn and stretched—now undergoing repair slowly because of their low vitality or meager blood supply—may be return, the tender parts bruised, pain caused and repair delayed.—Youth's Companion.

Good Advice.

To use this terse and homely phrase, my friend, let us mind our own business. There is enough to decide in our affairs of others, except in so far as we can be helpful of real benefit. Let us be charitable in all our conclusions, mindful of the fact that we so often need the cloak of charity ourselves. As we would wish to be judged, so let us judge others—always with a kindly spirit, ever with a belief in the better part of self. Strew a flower where others throw a stone. Fill your life so full of sunshine that evil reports will find no place where you are. Stop petty scandals by some pretty story of womanly kindness. Make your life a bright spot in this world, and where you see a frown there throw a smile, and whether it be morn, dusk or night, let the sunny side of your nature always be at full meridian.—Ex.

A New and Popular Nail.

The twisted wire nail—a cross as it were between a screw and the ordinary plain wire nail—is said to be working its way into popular favor, and is believed to represent as great an improvement upon the plain wire nail as that useful invention is over the old cut nail; for while the latter tears and crushes the fibres of the wood as it is driven, and its tapering shape destroys the greater portion of its holding power when it is partially withdrawn, the plain wire nail, on the contrary, being pointed and smooth, does not crush the wood fibres as does the cut nail, but presses them aside; and as the diameter of the nail is the same throughout its length, it fits as tightly and holds as firmly on being partially drawn as when driven home. The twisted wire nail not only crushes the fibres of the wood less than the two other forms of nail, but by its screw shape possesses a much greater holding power than either of the other forms. The nail in question is of English origin; but quite similar to this screw modification of the wire nail is the recent American idea brought forward, viz, the making of a wood screw that will drive nearly as well as a nail, and yet can be withdrawn by means of a screw driver as readily as any screw.

"August Flower"

The Hon. J. W. Fennimore is the Sheriff of Kent Co., Del., and lives at Dover, the County Seat and Capital of the State. The sheriff is a gentleman fifty-nine years of age, and this is what he says: "I have used your August Flower for several years in my family and for my own use, and found it does me more good than any other remedy. I have been troubled with what I call Sick Headache. A pain comes in the back part of my head first, and then soon a general headache until I become sick and vomit. At times, too, I have a fullness after eating, a pressure after eating at the pit of the stomach, and sourness, when food seemed to rise up in my throat and mouth. When I feel this coming on if I take a little August Flower it relieves me, and is the best remedy I have ever taken for it. For this reason I take it and recommend it to others as a great remedy for Dyspepsia, &c."

THE ACADIAN

WOLFVILLE, N. S., OCT. 16, 1891.

The weather thus far this season has certainly been beyond that of recent years. The ornamental trees on our streets are yet clothed in their green apparel, while frequently they are bare of leaves by this time. The frosts of this week were the first of any account this season.

We would again ask the aid of our friends and patrons, both in Wolfville and throughout the county, in collecting matters of news for the ACADIAN. We want good, live news items from all parts of the county. In every town and village there are matters of interest, and all that is wanted is some one to gather them up and send them in. We already have many kind friends, who are giving a valuable assistance in this way; but still there are many localities that we do not hear from. Let each part of the county be heard from through the press, and remember that you are doing good to your neighborhood as well as the paper by letting the outside world know what is transpiring there. Keep your town or village before the public, and it is bound to go ahead.

The advisability of naming the streets of Wolfville has often been referred to in the columns of ACADIAN, both editorially and by correspondents. This matter is one of the greatest importance, and would prevent a great amount of confusion and inconvenience. In the present order of things barely two persons use the same title in designating the different streets, and consequently much confusion prevails. In our work of reporting news items we find it very inconvenient to locate the places, and often we are at a loss as to the manner in which we are to make our readers understand us. We trust that some action will be taken at once. All that is required is that a public meeting be called and a committee appointed, who shall make a list of suitable names, and report at another meeting, when the naming can be done. Will not some of our influential citizens make a move in the matter?

Our fire company is now domiciled in their new rooms, which are well fitted up and excellently suited to the requirements of the company. Quite a large number, embracing many of the most enterprising and best men of the town, are enrolled on the books of the company, and when they get fully down to work we have no doubt but that the "Wolfville Fire Brigade" will be a most useful organization. This is now about the only public institution in the possession of the town, and we hope to see our people taking the interest in it that they should. The members are now trying to raise money to fit up a gymnasium in connection, and are also planning to have their meeting room furnished in a manner reflecting credit on the town. This will require quite an amount of money, and as yet the company has very little at its disposal. We would suggest that any of the ladies of Wolfville, who have a few nice pictures to spare, donate them to the company to beautify their room. We feel sure that anything of this kind would be much appreciated by the company, although the announcement is not made by the request of the members.

How many Canadians are acquainted with the names of the men who make their newspapers? And yet there is no more important and no more earnest and influential body of men in the Dominion. Walter Blackburn Harte, who served a long apprenticeship on the press of this country, will contribute an article, "The Journalists and Journalists of Canada," to the New England Magazine for December. It will contain portraits of all the men who have made, and are making their mark in Canadian journalism. There will be no politics in the article, and Conservatives, Liberals and Independents alike should read it. It is the first time in the history of American periodical literature that an attempt has been made to give an adequate account of Canadian journalism. Mr. Harte is admitted even by those who disapprove of his attitude in politics, to be, at least, a perfectly candid writer, and in this article, merely the abilities of the journalists treated of have been considered; friends and opponents have been judged as men, and from a literary standpoint only, without the least reference to their political affiliations. The leading French Canadian journalists are included with their English counterparts, and the article is prefaced with an interesting review of the methods of Canadian journalism. It is an article which should interest a very wide circle outside of journalists for all the world is curious about the mysterious "we," who discuss the affairs of the nation and the world in every morning's newspaper.

Merry Wedding Bells.

The Baptist church, of this town, was the scene of a pretty wedding on Tuesday afternoon, when one of Wolfville's most popular young ladies, Miss Ella M., daughter of the late J. G. Patriquin, was united in marriage to Mr. Lorain F. Blenkhorn, of Canning. The day was one of the most beautiful of the season, foreboding, we trust, a happy life for the young couple. Under the loving hands of kind friends the church had been tastefully decorated with beautiful flowers and evergreen arches, and was filled by a large assembly of acquaintance, and friends as the hour appointed drew near—Messrs J. E. Hales and A. C. Johnson gracefully acting as ushers. At 4 o'clock the groom entered the church, accompanied by Mr. John W. Jones, and took his place under a handsome floral umbrella which had been arranged for the purpose—illustrating, we presume, the wish that the happy couple should be sheltered from the storms and misfortunes of life. Shortly after the bride appeared leaning on the arm of her brother, Mr. C. A. Patriquin. She was tastefully dressed in a travelling costume of gray with hat to match, and was attended by Miss Bliss Franklin. The ceremony was performed by Rev. Dr. Higgins, the organ, under the skillful manipulation of Mr. H. N. Shaw, furnishing sweet and appropriate music. After congratulations the bridal party drove to the depot, where amid showers of rice and good wishes the newly married couple embarked on the express for Halifax, en route for a short tour through the eastern part of the Province, after which they will live at Summers, where Mr. Blenkhorn is engaged in business. The presents were pretty and numerous, testifying to the esteem in which the bride is held. The ACADIAN extends congratulations, and best wishes for a long, happy and prosperous life.

Supreme Court.

Supreme Court opened at Kentville on Tuesday, 13th October, at ten o'clock, Mr. Justice Weatherbe presiding. Beside the legal gentlemen of Kentville there were present, E. S. Crawley, of Wolfville, and H. A. Lovett, of Truro. There were seven cases entered for trial but three of them had been settled or continued to another term. The grand and petty jurors were present, but as the grand jury did not find a true bill in only jury case, they were both dismissed before noon. The case of the Queen versus Turner was first called. This was an action for injuries done to a slave in the dam at the defendant's mill, on the Black River. It was an appeal from the magistrate's court where judgment was given for the Crown. The judge confirmed the decree of the court below. The next case was Woodworth et al against Thomas et al, an action for trespass. A number of witnesses were examined and the trial was not concluded till Wednesday morning. Judgment was reserved. The last case was Amburgh versus Colman, for attaching a horse for rent. A motion was made by the defendant's counsel for a continuance on the ground that a material witness was absent through sickness, but it was overruled. After trial the court gave five dollars damages for the plaintiff. A few motions were then made and the Court adjourned, at half past one on Wednesday.

Billtown Jottings.

A handsome new organ has been lately procured by "Lake" Division, which will add much to the enjoyment of their meetings. The Division is making fine preparations for holding an "apron and necktie sociable" next Thursday evening, at their hall. Mr. Woodworth has put a machine for threshing in his mill this summer and has been doing a rushing business. His mill has now become an established industry in the place, and is a great convenience to the people of this locality. Business around the river now has a brighter look than for some time back. The carpenter and paint shops are to be occupied and all are hopeful of an increased activity.

Wealth of Queen Victoria.

An act was recently passed enabling Queen to make a will, as she was not the possessor of any property, and the impression prevails that she has effected large savings. This is not the case, writes Henry Labouchere in the October Forum. Although she has for many years lived in retirement, her expenditure has not materially decreased, for the mise en scene of grandeur is still kept up. She has expended considerable sums upon the purchase of the estates of Osborne and Balmoral, and their maintenance falls on her. She has, too, made considerable monetary presents to her daughters on their marriages, so that although she inherited $250,000 from a silly person who left this amount, her private fortune is comparatively small. Two years ago Lord Salisbury's government submitted to parliament a proposal to endow her grandchildren. A committee of the house of commons was appointed to consider this demand, when it was decided that provisions ought only to be made for the children of the Prince of Wales. The committee was informed, under a pledge of secrecy, of the total value of her majesty's investments. I cannot, of course, violate the pledge, but I do not think that I am breaking confidence in saying that the amount was surprisingly small.

Berwick Gleanings.

Of the High School pupils who attended the July examinations, two succeeded in obtaining a grade B, ten grade C, and four grade D, license. Mr. L. K. Bennet, of Windsor, is moving to Berwick this week, having bought the house and business lately owned by the Rev. D. O. Parker. Three weddings on in Berwick on Wednesday last and rumors of similar happy events in the near future. It is expected that a prominent citizen of Wolfville will lead one of our fair maidens to the altar on a distant day. A very interesting farewell service in connection with the departure of the Rev. L. D. Morse and wife to the Baptist Mission field, was held in the Baptist church on Friday night. Mr. and Mrs. Morse left on Saturday for Halifax, and sailed on Monday per S. S. Legion for London en route for India, the scene of their future work.

A Calamity Howler.

Prophets of evil are not unknown in this Province. Some of them are disappointed office-seekers, others are defeated candidates, and a third portion is composed of political dyspeptics who do not enjoy life themselves and do not want to see any one else enjoy it. Now and then one of these prophets takes his flight across the border, but change of flag has little effect in his utterance. He is a prophet of evil just the same, and fills about the same position in the republic as he did at home. He is a chronic croaker, and of no use in the land of his adoption. A recent writer in an American exchange thus illustrates what live, progressive people think of the Canadian croaker: "Before we knock the barrel out from under you," said the leader of the band of Arizona regulators, "we'll give you a chance to say a few words." "What is the use?" replied the man with the rope round his neck. "You wouldn't listen to me."

"We'll listen for just five minutes," rejoined the chief, pulling out his watch. "If you want to shoot off your mouth. If not, up you go." The condemned wretch looked with dogged, sullen hate at the crowd before him. "It won't do any good that I know of," he said, "for me to make any remarks, and it won't help me any, I reckon, to kick against the proceedings. It's nothing more than I expected, anyhow. I'm used to being knocked around, and I'm used to seeing everybody else knocked around. Your turn will come some day. You ain't a bit better than I am as fast as it can go. Been going to the devil for years and years. There ain't a chance for a man to amount to anything here, and it's not worth while for him to try. Every man's doing what he can to down every other man, and it doesn't make much difference which comes out on top. The fellows that get on top generally stay there, and the poor fellows that are under can squirm and squirm and it won't do them any good. They have got to stay there and—"

Methodists in Council.

Bishop Hart, of Washington, delivered the address of welcome to the delegates at the second ecumenical conference in that city on Wednesday last. He addressed himself in order here named to the delegates from the southern and northern states, Canada, the West Indies, Ireland, Wales, Scotland, England, France, Germany and Australia. The Canadian delegates he said: "Brethren from Canada, we welcome you with the true spirit of Christian reciprocity. We rejoice in the union of the Methodists which you have effected, and your heroic efforts to build up your great 'educational system.' It is at a conference of this kind that the strength of the Methodist churches of the world may be comprehended. Their combined membership has been estimated at more than five and twenty millions of people, and the delegates now at Washington number among them some of the greatest thinkers and teachers of aggressive Christianity. Methodism is the youngest of the religious denominations. The possibilities that await its future, cannot be estimated while it is yet in its youth; but, when we remember that even now it has made tremendous strides toward the goal of unity, we cannot doubt its wisdom of purpose, nor its dominating influence in the furtherance of common Christian fellowship. It is setting a wholesome example by its own tendency towards union, not only in particular countries, but in the holding of ecumenical conferences, such as the one, now in session at Washington.

New Discovery.

The telephone is one of the "modern conveniences" which we would find very inconvenient to do without after having known its usefulness, and it is with pleasure we read in an English paper that it is about to have a new application that of forestalling storms. A new discovery has been made as to one of the properties of transmitting sound. By placing two iron bars at seven or eight metres distant from each other, and then putting them in communication on one side by a copper wire covered with rubber, and on the other side with a telephone, a storm can be predicted at least twelve hours ahead through a dead sound heard in the receiver. According to the storm advances the sound resembles the beating of hail stones against the windows. Every flash of lightning, and of course every clap of thunder, that accompanies the storm produces a shock similar to that of a storm cast between the diaphragm and the instrument. This if it can be depended upon, would prove of great use in telling the course of a storm, and give time for preparation.—Oritic.

WOLFVILLE, N. S., OCT. 16, 1891.

Local and Provincial.

Thursday, November 12th, has been set apart by the Government as a day of general thanksgiving throughout Canada.

Mrs Thomas Harris, of Dunedin College, Horton Landing, is spending a few days with her sister, Mrs Hugh McCallum, Walker street.—Truro News.

Prof. C. G. Frazier, well known in this country as a horseman and farmer, died a few days ago at Eagle Bridge, N. Y. He was 50 years of age and died in poverty.

Pat Scaterie Herring at F. J. Porter's.

The last two weeks in September show that 450,000 bushels of new wheat was sold and delivered in elevators along the line of railroad in Manitoba, which is nearly double the quantity moved during the same period last year.

W. W. Clark, of Annapolis, who at the age of his own life, rescued young Goldsmith from drowning in Digby Gut a short time ago, will be presented by the Dominion Government with a handsome pair of binocular marine glasses.

"Lightning" Hay knives, to cut hay cutters mow at Brown's.

Claude Barnes, the W. & A. R. news agent, was thrown from the train near Rockingham on Friday evening last, and seriously if not fatally injured. His skull is severely fractured. At last account his condition was slightly improved, but his recovery is doubtful.

We understand that the trustees of our public schools are about to open a primary department, which will be held for a time in Witter's Hall, until more school accommodation can be provided. An effort is to be made to get a Kindergarten teacher to take charge of it.

Two schooners are being fitted out at Mainland for the Balaing Sea Seal fisheries. Capt John Brown and Thos. Lawrence are the owners of one. Captain Brown will command. Douglas & Eaton are the owners of the other. They will be ready for sea in about one month.

Flat Table Ware, in steel and silver plate, a fine assortment, at Brown's.

Mr D. R. Munro handed us a fine fine duck on Tuesday. Mr Munro is an "upright shot" and is acknowledged to be a "king of sportsmen." He has already succeeded in getting upwards of forty ducks so far, and says the season is now only well begun. We return hearty thanks.

We understand that Acadia Lodge, I. O. G. T., is making arrangements to celebrate its anniversary on Saturday evening, Oct. 24th. The Lodge, which has been somewhat low during the summer months, is now on the up grade, and is making preparations for doing good work during the winter.

We noticed the new three-masted schooner Bismarck, lately launched at Canning, out on a trial trip on Monday. She cruised around the Basin for some time, and as well as could be seen from Wolfville, acquitted herself admirably. She is a fine vessel and a credit to her enterprising owners.

Mr W. A. Dams, junior partner of the Truro Daily News establishment, died at his home at Truro on Saturday afternoon last, aged 21 years. The deceased was highly esteemed in Truro, and a large concourse followed his remains to their last resting place. The cause of his death was typhoid fever. We extend our sympathy to the News staff in their severe bereavement.

"Unity" Tyre Cement, for bicycles and penambulators, at Walter Brown's.

While attending camp at Aylesford the last fall Mr. Jephtha Harrison, of Macoon, found an old coin. Those who have examined it pronounced it very rare. The date is 1711. The coin is of silver, not as large as a English shilling. On the obverse side are the pillars of Hercules surrounded by a crown. On each side of the pillars are the fleur de lis. The letters around the outside are N. A. V. Rex 1711, L. V. D. XIII, D. G. On the reverse side of the centre is a cross; at each end of the arms of the cross are three stars, and in the corners next the upright are the same figures as on the obverse side. The letters and figures on this side are REBE De XXX, Deniers W. Mr Harrison would be pleased to correspond with anyone familiar with this coin. The coin was found on the old French road adjoining the Bishop Inglis farm.

Local and Provincial.

Rev. J. W. Manning, of Halifax, was in Wolfville over Sunday, and occupied the pulpit of the Baptist church.

The potato bugs are so numerous in some parts of P. E. Island that they even enter the cellars and are swarming the roadsides.

The steamer Washington, which has been loading potatoes at Kingsport for Havana, sailed on Saturday last, with a cargo of 5,000 barrels.

Mr Geo. H. Patriquin is pushing along his house. He has the frame up and will have it completed in a short time. It don't take long to build a house in Wolfville now.

Mr Geo. K. Thompson, of Annapolis, was married on the 26th. ult., at Boston, to Miss Adelaide Capt. Miss Eagles is a daughter of Capt. Augustus Eagles, and at one time resided in Wolfville.

Mr James Wallace, of this place, died at his residence on Monday morning last. The previous Friday he was enjoying his usual health. On Saturday he was taken ill of cholera which resulted in his death as stated.

It is understood that the Canadian Pacific and Commercial Cable company have secured a controlling interest in the Halifax and Bermuda cable with a view to extending the system to the British West Indies.

Oats and Potatoes wanted in exchange for Groceries, at F. J. Porter's.

As will be noticed by our adv. columns an agency of Ugar's Steam Laundry, of Halifax, has been established in our town, at Messrs Rockwell & Co's. This will be a great convenience and should receive a liberal patronage.

Miss Jessie Beattie, an estimable young lady, daughter of Mrs Thos. Beattie, of Grand Pre, died at Ipswich, Mass., on the 3d inst. of typhoid fever. She was brought home for burial. The Acadian tenders sympathy to the bereaved family.

After next Saturday, October 17th, the Yarmouth Ste. ship Co., will discontinue running four trips a week, and will run two trips, leaving Yarmouth every Wednesday and Saturday, and Boston every Tuesday and Friday.

Mr Wm King accidentally covered up a hen while pitching off a load of hay some time ago. Twenty-seven days after she was found still alive, but died three days after, although every effort was made to prolong her life.—Windsor Tribune.

Carpet Felt is an excellent thing to put under carpets in the fall.—at Brown's.

The rains of the past week or two have worn an unsightly and inconvenient gully through the sidewalk near the store of Prat & Collins and down Wharf street. The water won't run up hill, Messrs Commissioners, and you might as well give in and make some preparations towards giving it a chance to run the other way.

The pastor, Rev. Dr Higgins, was absent on a vacation during the month of September, and his pulpit was supplied in his absence by Rev. A. Martell, who, with his wife, has come to reside in Wolfville. Dr Higgins resumed his place the first Sunday in October, and administered the ordinance of baptism. The College Y. M. C. A. gave a reception to the new students on Saturday evening, Oct. 3d.—Messenger and Visitor.

We had a pleasant call on Monday from Rev. A. J. Lockhart, new of Cherryfield, Me., who has been on a visit to his old home at Lockhartville. Some twenty-five years ago Mr Lockhart was a resident in Wolfville, and was at one time a compositor in the old Acadian office. Since then he has achieved considerable fame in the literary world, and is now one of our best known writers, both of prose and verse. It was a real pleasure to us to have a call from him.

Call and see T. A. Munro's (Tailor) new stock of Fall and Winter Goods, for Suits, Overcoats and Pants.

A Type of Canadian Beauty. A Type of Canadian Beauty, A Study from Life, is the title of an oil painting executed specially by the celebrated artist, J. W. L. Forster, R. C. A., of Toronto, for the Christmas number of the DOMINION ILLUSTRATED. This painting is considered to be one of Mr Forster's best works, and will form one of the four splendid supplements to be given away with the unrivalled Christmas number which the publishers of the DOMINION ILLUSTRATED have now in preparation.

Wolfville, October 16th, 1891.

Local and Provincial.

A daughter of the late Judge Hahburton died on Sunday at her residence, Torquay, England.

Mr C. R. Burgess has another fine vessel on the stocks at Kingsport—a barquentine—which will probably be launched in the spring.

Prof. D. G. S. Conroy, B. A., the famous eclectician of Queen's College, Kingston, will give a choice literary recital, in College Hall, Friday evening, Oct. 23d. The reading of the Prof. will be varied by local talent.

The traffic earnings of the Canadian Pacific Railway from the 21st to the 30th September, were $581,000 against $493,000 for the same period last year, being an increase of $88,000.

The new barquentine, Winifred, which was loaded with potatoes at Port Williams by Messrs W. H. Chase & Co. for Havana, was towed out yesterday morning. Quite a number of vessels have been loaded or are now being loaded for the same port.

We desire to extend our sympathy to Rev. M. P. Freeman and family, of Gasperau, who have sustained a great loss this week in the death of a fond wife and mother. Mrs Freeman was an estimable lady, and her death will be greatly felt in the community.

We learn that Mr Jehiel Davidson, of Gasperau, met with a serious accident one day last week. He was coming down the mountain with a load of apples, when the breeching came unfastened, causing the horse to start. Mr Davidson was thrown out and severely bruised. No bones were broken, however, and we trust he may soon recover.

Butter and Eggs wanted at F. J. Porter's.

Ship Bree, English hand bell ringers, gave an entertaining performance in College Hall, on Tuesday evening. The hall was not filled, largely owing to insufficient time being given to advertise, but a goodly number attended, and thoroughly enjoyed the entertainment. The bell ringing was good and the music produced by the zither and banjos was much enjoyed. The company is a first class one, and should be well patronized. They were brought to Wolfville by Mr J. F. Herbin.

Miss Elsie Anderson DeWolf, author of an article in the Oct. Comopolitan, "Three Women of the Comedia Francese," is one of the Nova Scotia DeWolfs. She has been considered one of the foremost amateur actresses in the United States for a long time, and has lately made her debut as a professional. Her brilliant appearance in the Comopolitan—Overland Leader. The young lady referred to is a niece of the late Jas. Edw. The County Council in April Term, 1891, passed the following resolution: "Whereas it is believed that the present site of the said buildings is unsuited for the same and can be sold for a large sum of money. Therefore resolved that an advertisement be inserted in the County papers inviting tenders for the whole of the said lands with the buildings, and for portions of the same with or without the buildings, and for buildings separately."

Tenders for the whole of the above property, or any portion thereof, with or without buildings, or for buildings separately, as per above resolution, will be received at this office until November 30th, 1891, exclusive envelopes to be marked "Tenders for County Grounds."

The Council reserve the right to accept or reject any tender or all of the tenders. By Order, L. DAV. CHIPMAN, County Clerk. Municipal Clerk's Office, Kentville, Aug. 12th, '91. nov30.

A Newspaper Directory.

A certain newspaper not 1000 miles from Detroit was once owned and operated by a syndicate of lawyers, business men and politicians. About half of the board of directors at first wanted the fun and honor of running the paper. So whenever one of them fancied he had an idea in his head he would run up to the office and interview the managing editor.

To Have a Bright Lamp.

In these days when lamps are used so much the care of them is quite an important matter, writes Maria Parlos, in her department in the October Ladies Home Journal. If the lamps be good and have proper attention one cannot wish for a more satisfactory light; but badly cared for they will be a source of much discomfort.
