

"My Hands Trembled and I Could Not Sleep"

Mr. Thomas Honey, Brantford, Ont., writes—
 "When I began taking Dr. Chase's Nerve Food, I was so nervous that when I picked up a cup of tea my hand would tremble like a leaf. I could not sleep well, could not remember things, and there were neuralgic pains through my body. After taking seven boxes of Dr. Chase's Nerve Food, however, I am in perfect health."

DR. CHASE'S NERVE FOOD

Under False Colors

Lord Somerton's Ally.

CHAPTER XXII.
 MY DARLING—I am in great trouble and need your assistance. Mr. Vallance is dead, and Lord Somerton has been appointed joint guardian in his place. I am dreadfully annoyed about it, as my wishes were not consulted at all. His lordship now hints at terrible things, and threatens to hurl upon me and my dear father an avalanche of ruin unless I consent to marry him. I do not scruple to tell you these things, because I know that you are quite ignorant of the secrets of the great trouble that has come into my life. My enemies, and yours, never tire of calling you hard names, and I am determined to show them that I am not a helpless coward.
 Oh, Colin, my dear love, come to me soon. I am but a silly girl, after all, though I feel brave while I am writing to you. Do you remember your promise that you would write to me every day? Why do you not do so, my darling? Are you also beset by troubles? But for the knowledge of your truth and goodness, and the possession of your love, I feel that I should have no strength to face my enemies. They threaten to treat me as a child—to dismiss my servants, and make me appear ridiculous in my own household. Oh, how despicably mean and contemptible has Lady Helena proved herself to be!
 I shall wait in wretched suspense until I see you. Yours forever,
 ELISIE.
 P. S.—Colin, my love, do you know that some one exactly like you haunts the Park? One of the gamekeepers declares that it must be you. What am I to make of it?
 By the time it was written and taken to the post by Annette, the footman had returned with the carpenter, and Elsie ordered him to at once open the iron-clamped door of her father's bedroom, while Lady Helena fussed about with words of strong disapproval.
 "It is sacrilege!" she said, "and I must beg of you to desist until Lord Somerton has been consulted. Remember dear Sir John's last commands, and think how angry he will be when he returns home to find his private papers upset."
 "Open the door as quickly as possible, Macer," Miss Sterne said to the carpenter. "Lady Helena, will you kindly attend to affairs that concern yourself!"
 Her face scarlet with anger and mortification, her ladyship hurried away to send a messenger with a telegram to Lord Somerton, who had ridden to Scarslake, a town a dozen miles away, to dine with friends.
 The carpenter put bit and brace to work with his muscular hands and shoulders. He seemed to realize that he was helping Miss Sterne by getting through the job quickly, and the perspiration rolled from his brow in great beads when the last clamp dropped to the floor with a loud ring.
 All this while Elsie had stood watching him, and when the door was thrown open she stepped into the dear, familiar room.
 cause it was partly hidden by the great branches of a grand old oak which Sir John highly prized.
 Macer screwed up the door again, grumbling and growling the while.
 "What be the use o' my ingenuity when the maister makes plans, an' leaves 'em 'yln' about? Nobody could open the panel without 'em!"
 Elsie retired to her room very much disappointed; but she resolved nevertheless to go to London and have an interview with Mr. Grant, the lawyer.
 CHAPTER XXIII.
 Elsie was downstairs at an early hour next morning, after a night of unrest and misery.
 She wandered out into the freshness of morning and mechanically her steps took her in the direction of poor Zeba's cottage.
 As she neared the spot where the little home had recently stood she paused suddenly, and her face blushed.
 The tones of Lord Somerton reached her ears, and his voice was raised in anger. The man's very presence was as bad as a pestilence to her.
 She crouched back and saw his lordship pacing slowly to and fro, accompanied by a tall, shabbily-dressed man, of whose face she could only see a side view.
 "I will not stand any more of it," Lord Somerton said, "and it is like your infernal impudence to follow me down here, Castlemoan."
 "Needs must when the devil drives," was the sententious reply, and Elsie noticed that the tones were those of a gentleman. At that moment the speaker half-turned, and she saw that he had a bronzed, handsome face, though the chin was weak and the eyes shifty. Of whom did he remind her?
 "Needs must when the devil drives!" repeated Somerton. "Confound it, sir, you have already anticipated nearly half of the sum agreed upon. See here!" he hissed, in the sibilant tones that Elsie knew so well—tones that seemed to chain her to the spot. "See here! How long is this kind of thing to go on? Do you know that you have no right in England at all? That you are a deserter, an outlaw? If you will agree to quit here at once I will give you five hundred pounds now and forward a check for the balance to anywhere abroad one week after my marriage with Miss Sterne."
 Elsie reeled, and clutched at the branch of a tree for support.
 "I don't know that I can agree," was the dogged reply; "indeed, I am sure that five hundred will not satisfy me now. I was a fool to consent to such terms when you came to me out there." He shrugged his shoulders and a laugh at the time, and when you dived into my identity, pretty much cut up. I wondered who and what you were. However, as I am working against my own flesh and blood, I have ventured to England with one object in view, and that is to insist upon better terms."
 He folded his arms, and looked at Somerton steadily in the eyes.
 "You scoundrel!" ejaculated his lordship.
 "Ho! ho! I like that," the man called Castlemoan laughed. "Scoundrel, oh, from the lips of a creature like you? Well, you are privileged because you are rich and I am poor. However, I shall not accept one iota less than I have arranged in my own mind, and the sooner we come to terms the better. I have travelled thousands of miles for this interview, knowing well that writing to you was a mere waste of time and postage stamps. I could not find you at your club, or your town house, and it must occur to you that after running such risks I am not to be frightened off by sour looks. I guessed that you were billing and cooing down here at Blairwood, and stopped at the Blairwood Arms' last night, from whence I sent my note to you."
 He paused, and Somerton said: "Pray, go on! Let me know exactly what you want."
 "Well, considering that I am making off myself an alien and an outcast, partly to gratify your desires, I must insist upon five thousand pounds down, and an annuity, say of three thousand a year. This is the chance of my life, and I am tired of my precarious existence. You can well afford it independent of Sir John's. Somerton cast upon him a glance of withering scorn.

Stories For all Moods

ENGLISH AND SCOTTISH JESTS.
 By HARRY FURNISS, in John O'Leary's Weekly.

Perhaps there were not two men with surnames so similar and yet so different in every other way as that great man of business Sir Christopher Furness, afterwards Lord Furness, and myself. He had an eye for business, but not one for my name, but two for all only. When Mr. Furness was first returned to Parliament, plain Mr. Furness, neither a knight nor a millionaire, he asked to see me alone in one of the Lobbies of the House of Commons. He held a note in his hand, strangely and nervously so I knew at once it was not a bank-note.
 "I—sh—am very sorry—you are a stranger to me, I—a stranger to the House. This note from a stranger was handed to me by a strange official. I—before I noticed the mistake. It is addressed to you."
 "Oh, that is of no consequence, I assure you," I said.
 "Oh, but it is—it must be of consequence, and so brief. I feel extremely awkward in having to acknowledge I read it—a pure accident, I assure you!"
 He handed me the note and was running away, when I called him back. It read:—
 "Meet me under the clock at 2—Lacy."
 "I must introduce you to Lacy."
 "Oh, no! Not for worlds!"
 But I did. "She" was Sir Henry Lacy, better known as Roby, M.P.

MAX O'RELL.
 Max O'Rell, the famous French satirist, joked to the end. When he was lying on his death-bed, and after the doctors had informed him that there was no hope, he wrote: "I fear that I am doomed. The doctors give me a few months, but I believe I shall last longer. At any rate I shall try, for I'd rather wear a hat than a halo."
 Max O'Rell, like all professional men, was occasionally imposed on with regard to hospitality, his hostess having invited him to an at home as a guest and then expected him to perform, in other words to "tell a few stories."

Once when this happened, he left the drawing-room hurriedly and went down to the hall, from whence he returned in a few seconds in a state of great excitement, and approaching his hostess whispered excitedly into her ear: "Madam, what kind of people have you here? The cheque you placed in my overcoat-pocket—my fee for to-night—has been stolen!"

Some time ago, in a parish in Arrisshire, a beadle was examined, and dismissed for gross ignorance in spiritual matters, as well as for not walking according to the light which he should have had. Some time after he applied for restoration of privileges, on the plea that he had learned and amended.
 "Well, John," said the minister, "I will ask you a few plain questions. What is baptism?"
 "Dead, sir," replied John, "I cannot well tell you what baptism is, new-born, new laws—but in my time it was tounce to the beadle and sixpence to the preacher."
 In days gone by, when I lectured here, there, and everywhere, night after night, I sometimes was afraid I might repeat myself. So on one occasion when arriving in a Midland town, I called at the Town Hall to see if the platform arrangements were satisfactory for the evening, and I asked the guardian of the hall what I had given the last time I spoke there. His information was to the point.

 "Five shillings, sir."

SCOTTISH TRIFLE.
 How many jokes turn upon the supposed meanness of the Scot? Personally I have invariably found Scotsmen to be the reverse. They may at times be ultra careful, perhaps now and then over-shylockian, when demanding their due. For instance, the sequel to a card-playing journey from Aberdeen to London, at which the Englishman had lost every penny to the Scot, and approaching London, he began to empty his pockets.
 Englishman: "Let me see, I owe you four pounds nineteen shillings and one penny. There are the four pounds and here is nineteen shillings, feeling in all his pockets. 'Ah, I have not got a copper!'"
 Scotsman continues to hold out his hand.
 Englishman: "Sorry—I cannot find a penny."
 Scotsman still holds out his hand.
 Englishman again: "Not a brass farthing, I assure you. I've searched all my pockets."
 "A' then," replied Scotty, leaning forward. "Then I think I'll just take your morning paper."

A SCOTCH HORSE.
 Which, in its turn, reminds me of a letter received from Edinburgh a few days ago. My correspondent, observing a crowd in the streets, joined the throng to find out the reason for the attraction. And all he saw was a stubborn horse standing with its four legs firmly planted to the ground. In spite of all the efforts of the driver, the police, and the crowd, the horse refused to budge an inch. Two of the bystanders discussed the situation.
 "Mon, that horse must be a mule, they canna move him, pull him, or push him or dog him as they may."
 "Nay, mon, that's no mule—that's a Scotch horse!" "An' what is a Scotch horse?" "I'm a Scot, but nae comprehend your meaning." "You just abide over and see." At that moment some straw and rubbish were placed under the Scotsman in search of a LIGHT.

 Which reminds me of the Scotsman travelling, and after filling his pipe says to A, "Can you oblige me with a match?"
 "Sorry, I do not carry them."
 He appeals to B, who replies, "Just used my last one." Sandy turns to C, who shakes his head. D is snoring in a corner of the carriage. D feels in all his pockets and searches his handbag in vain.
 A long pause. Sandy looks wistfully round at all the occupants of the carriage, and then, taking a box of matches out of his pocket, says, "Well, gentlemen, I just must use one of my ain."
 "My friends, it is all very blue-flooded. To talk of your all-blue-flooded line; but living and red is the blood that is shed."
 For Honour, and Woman, and Wine!
 I was running my eyes over the above lines at a second-hand bookstore the other day, and brought to mind the sequel of the ancient joke concerning the Scotsman and the step-pot.

 "The milk that good cooks use"

 teaspoons of butter fat in every can

YOU can get it now—milk that will give your cooking greater richness and flavor.
 Libby's Milk—cow's milk made double rich!
 Good cooks everywhere are using it. So many of them, in fact, that it is now generally known as "the milk that good cooks use."

3/4 teaspoons of butter fat in every can
 The reason for its popularity is simply this: there are 3/4 teaspoons of pure butter fat in every 16 oz. can of Libby's Milk! And it is butter fat you know that makes butter and cream such great enrichers of food.
 You wonder, perhaps, how Libby's Milk can contain so large a percentage of this enriching substance.
 As you know, there are certain sections of this country which are famous for their dairy products, where fine pasture lands encompass wooded hills and fresh streams that flow through grassy valleys. Cows naturally produce their finest milk where nature and man combine to help them.

 And you know, too, that certain kinds of cows give richer milk than others.
 Libby gets milk only from selected herds in these favored sections. Then we make it double rich by evaporating more than half the moisture from it. Nothing is added to it; none of its food values taken away. Libby's Milk is just the finest cow's milk in the land, made double rich, then carefully sealed and sterilized in air-tight cans so you can get it fresh and pure no matter where you live.
 Greater richness, finer flavor
 Order a can of Libby's Milk from your grocer today. See what new richness, what delightful flavor it gives to your soups and sauces, your cakes, breads, puddings and to anything you make with it.

 Dab a few drops on the top of the next loaf of biscuits you bake—just before you put them into the oven. Note what a tempting brown the crusts take, and how tender they are.
 You'll actually find new joy in cooking when you use Libby's Milk and heard what your family and guests will say.
 It's here in the stores now—Libby's "the milk that good cooks use." Try it.

Write for free recipe folder
 We have had printed in a convenient folder some exceptionally good recipes sent us by good cooks that use Libby's Milk. You'll find them a fine introduction to the pleasure and economy of using Libby's Milk. Write for a copy today—extra ones for your friends, if you wish. Sent free.

Scientists Start On Long Voyage To Antarctic.

New London. (A.P.)—While Capt. George Philby Simmons has been scouring the country for a staff and crew to take the schooner Blossom to the South Atlantic and Indian Oceans, the ship itself has been prepared for one of the longest cruises ever undertaken by a vessel her size.
 The expedition to the Antarctic islands which starts from New London this week for the Cleveland Museum of Natural History is said to be one of the largest ever undertaken for purely scientific purposes. Every one of the 16 men aboard ship, except the three ship's officers, is trained in some line that will aid in the collecting of animal and bird specimens and in taking notes on the geology, plant life, sometimes human life, and climatic conditions in the regions that will be visited.
 The Blossom will visit the least known portions of the world on her two year cruise. Explorers have gone over the Pacific islands and other tropical regions with fair thoroughness. Even the polar regions have been visited in recent years by men who have taken accurate observations of the lands through which they travelled. The South Atlantic Islands, however, have been visited only by seal and sea elephant hunters, who brought back romantic stories of scientific value.
 At the helm of the ship will be John de Lomha, a Cape Verde Portuguese, who has sailed the seven seas for 32 years under one master, Capt. John Cleveland, of New Bedford, said to be the "last of the old sealing captains." De Lomha is reputed to know "every rock in the Atlantic," and has made several voyages to the islands which he will now visit for the purpose of aiding in a search for knowledge of the world we live in.
 As the head of the ship's staff is E. H. Gray, sailing master, who carries a certificate as master of sail and second mate of steam in any ocean and for any tonnage. Capt. Simmons will command both the navigating and scientific personnel of the vessel. Members of the crew are all college-trained men, who will, in between their duties of holding sail and scrubbing decks, carry out their additional duties of surveyor, ship clerk or whatever additional capacity they were selected to fill.

 The Blossom is a three-masted, built originally for the coasting cargo. The expedition will spend the coming Antarctic summer in the South Atlantic, then cruise along the West African coast visiting the islands of that region, and then make for the Indian Ocean. She will re-stock twice at Cape Town, possibly a third time on the return voyage and at each stop will ship home the specimens already collected.

BACK ACHED TERRIBLY

Mrs. McMahon Tells How She Found Relief by Taking Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound

Chatham, Ont.—"I took Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound for a run-down condition after the birth of my baby-boy. I had terrible pains and backache, and was tired and weak, not fit to do my work and care for my three little children. One day I received your little book and read it, and gave up taking the medicine I had and began taking the Vegetable Compound. I feel much better now and am not ashamed to tell what it has done for me. I recommend it to any woman I think feels as I do."
 Mrs. J. R. McMAHON, 125 Harvey St., Chatham, Ont.
 Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, made from roots and herbs, has for nearly fifty years been restoring sickly women to health and strength. It relieves the troubles which cause such symptoms as backache, painful periods, irregularities, tired, worn-out feeling and nervousness. This is shown again and again by such letters as Mrs. McMahon's. These women know, and are willing to tell others, what it did for them; therefore, it is surely worth your trial.
 Women who suffer should write to the Lydia E. Pinkham Medicine Co., Coburn, Ontario, for a free copy of Lydia E. Pinkham's Private Text-Book, "Use of Aliments Peculiar to Women."

OTTAWA, Oct. 29. Further consideration of the case of the two Eskimos condemned to die on Herby Island on December 7th will probably be given by the Cabinet this week. A petition for stay of execution was presented to the Justice Department this morning, and it is understood several more are to follow.

WASN'T WORKING FOR MONEY.

SCHENECTADY, N.Y., Oct. 29. It was learned to-day that the late Dr. Chas. P. Stelmetsky, who died suddenly at his home here last Friday, left an estate consisting only of a 1912 model electric auto and a fifteen hundred dollar life insurance policy as is issued to all veteran employees of the General Electric Co. The ward, as he was called, could have made millions had he wished, but drew only enough money from the company to enable him to live.

THREE OF CREW DROWNED.

PANAMA, Oct. 29. Three members of the crew of the United States submarine ODXI were drowned at daybreak yesterday when the vessel was sunk in collision with the steamer Abangarez at the Atlantic entrance to the Panama Canal. Seven other men went down with the submarine in six fathoms of water, but one rose to the surface eight minutes later. Six were reported still in the submarine last night and efforts are being made to raise the craft with the hope of finding them alive.

Large Audiences Attend the Popular Star

This theatre again, last evening, was the scene of packed audiences, and all were highly pleased with the entertainment. The film, showing the manufacturing of Uneda Biscuits, was very interesting in its every detail, and each patron on entering, was given a free package. Fawnette and Tesori were as usual up to their high standard, and at both performances were obliged to respond to two encores. It goes without saying that these talented artists are in a class to themselves, and their appearance is the signal for long applause. For Wednesday there is a complete change, when Fawnette will dance, "Out Yourself a Piece of Cake"; whilst Wanda Hawley will be seen in "The Trustful Lion," a Paramount production in six parts.

Encourages Boy Emigrants

Household Notes.

Add a few raisins to the chestnut stuffing for turkey. A luxurious delicacy indeed is the turkey basted with cream. Serve peas in a depression made in a mound of hot mashed potatoes. A cranberry ice is quite appropriate to serve with the game course. It is not too soon to bake the fruit cake for the Thanksgiving feast. Spiced cranberry butter is very good. Use cinnamon, clove and ginger. Have a special basket to carry small cleaning tools from room to room. Add a sprig of mint when cooking peas that are to be served with lamb. To give soup an especially savory taste, add a little freshly soured cream. Cucumber sauce is nice served with a salmon loaf or salmon croquette. Pour egg custards into ramekins and cover with buttered paper and steam until firm. To give additional nourishment to griddle cakes or muffins, use some sort of cereal. Thicken pimento bisque with rice, putting both it and the pimentoes through the sieve. For that light Sunday supper either toasted bacon or cheese sandwiches are excellent. Bread and butter pudding is quite nice when served with a sauce flavored with cranberry jelly. Candied cranberries make a tempting confection and an attractive decoration on loaves of cakes. If you use pineapple juice in a gelatin combination, use one and a half times the ordinary amount of gelatin. Toasted cheese crackers are a happy thought for tea-time. Season with salt and a dash of paprika.

"The House of Lies"

The Mac Edwards Company began the final week of their engagement with a three-act comedy, entitled "The House of Lies" which afforded the performers full scope to display their histrionic talents, and at the same time their ability to entertain thoroughly the large audience. Miss Edwards, as Claudia, the daughter of a designing mother, Mrs. Bennett, and sister of a waster called Walter, is married to a millionaire with the intention of enabling them to live in luxury at his expense ever afterwards. No sooner is the marriage over, than they launch out in the most extravagant fashion, until their designs are exposed by the secretary, Hylan with the co-operation of his bride, decides to upset their plans, and a series of amusing scenes, which kept the audience in roars of laughter, follow in rapid succession. The acting throughout was splendid, the play developing in a way that keeps the audience guessing as to the result, and the end is dramatic and satisfactory. Miss Mac Edwards, as Claudia, played her part to perfection, and Mr. Malcolm Murray in the role of the plotter against his sister's happiness was at his best.

"The House of Lies" will be repeated to-night. On Wednesday and Thursday the company will present "Dope," depicting the evils of the drug habit, which has become so prevalent in the great cities. On Friday and Saturday "Idle Wives" will bring to a close what has been a very entertaining repertoire. At the matinee on Saturday afternoon "Uncle Tom's Cabin" will be presented, and the part of Topsy will be taken by a little girl from the city.

The Aspirin Peril

CURES HEADACHE BUT ROBS YOUTH—HABIT WHICH IS BECOMING A PUBLIC MENACE.

Those ladies who are wont to rush to aspirin as a cure for headache and other ills will be gravely discomfited by the warning just uttered by a well-known doctor. The habit of taking aspirin tablets, he declares, is becoming a menace to the health of the nation.

Women and girls are taking the little white tablets in ever-larger quantities. Bottles of them are to be found in almost every home. Chemists sell more aspirin than any other article. Nine people out of ten have become accustomed to taking the tablets for all sorts of minor ailments. It is to this belief in the harmlessness of the drug that its extraordinary popularity is mainly due. "But," declared a prominent doctor, "aspirin is by no means harmless. It may become absolutely dangerous to a great many people." The habitual use of aspirin has grown to such an extent that women drug themselves with it now, a touch of neuralgia, or a cold, but merely when they feel tired or out of sorts. It is becoming common for girls who have tired themselves out at a dance to ask the waiter to bring them—not a glass of champagne as in the old days, but a dose of aspirin. One of the consequences of the aspirin habit is that the more the victim becomes used to the drug the more it becomes hard to do without. The one tablet that at first stopped a headache falls eventually to produce appreciable relief, and the dose has to be doubled. "It is most difficult to make people realize their danger," observed another doctor. "They do not regard themselves as 'dopers,' and hardly realize that they are drugging themselves. The trouble is that danger may arise quite suddenly in the case of a person who has been accustomed to taking aspirin for months without any apparent ill-effect. Sometimes such a person will unexpectedly develop a condition in which aspirin may act as a serious poison. Then it shows itself in such symptoms as swelling of the face, rashes, pains and giddiness. Women and girls are far more addicted to the use of the drug than men. They should be warned that always it has the effect of prematurely ageing those who use it regularly. The golden rule, of course, is that which applies to any other drug—that it should only be used on medical advice, notwithstanding its cheapness, its unrestricted sale, and its popularity."

General Election in England Seen

BALDWIN EXPECTED TO PROPOSE DRASTIC FISCAL POLICY CHANGES.

London, Oct. 28.—The Daily Express this morning leads its first page article with the sentence "Is a General Election Imminent?" It continues that Premier Baldwin in his speech at the Unionist Party conference at Plymouth on Thursday is expected to make proposals for a drastic change in the fiscal policy.

This program, it finally adopted by the Government will involve a general election. The journal forecasts the proposals to be submitted to include the all round protection of British home industries by means of a scientific tariff. It is not anticipated that he will suggest a tax on imported wheat or meat in which the Dominions should get a preference, but that the revenue raised by a tariff on imported manufactures should be devoted to subsidizing shipping so as to reduce freight rates for goods coming from Australia and New Zealand, and giving a bounty on corn production, such bounty to be measured by the actual amount of grain raised and not by the acreage placed under wheat cultivation.

Further it will provide for the subsidizing of cotton growing within the Empire and the shipment of raw cotton to Britain.

Some significance attaches to the statements made by Sir Montague Barlow, Minister of Labor, that the development of Imperial preferences now being successfully worked out is entirely within the pledge made at the last election by Bonar Law that no fundamental change would be made in the fiscal policy in the life of the present parliament, and by Ronald McNeil, under-Secretary of State, that if the Government allows grain to come in free and put a duty on flour it would give employment here and would not raise the price of bread.

He added "Our people should be led to see the folly of the hide-bound principles which are allowed to govern us to-day." At least it is evident that a political crisis of some magnitude is within sight.

Foreign Policy, Empire Defence Still in Doubt

Tariff Preferences Only Result of Imperial Conference So Far—Indian Representatives to Make Strong Fight for Equal Rights.

London, Oct. 28. (Special Cable to Canadian Press.)—Empire defence in its varied forms in air, on sea and land was again discussed by the Imperial Conference yesterday but at the time of adjournment no definite decision as embodied in a formal resolution had been reached. And like Foreign policy the question of Empire defence has gone, sine die.

With most of the British ministers probably going to Plymouth on Thursday for the Conservative conference and Wednesday's meeting of the Imperial Conference to be devoted to the status of Indians in the Empire, it is unlikely that either foreign policy or Empire defence will be discussed again this week. The conference will by then have entered on its fifth week without a formal decision on two of the most vital questions before it.

Indeed the only major question on which there is an indication so far of concrete action is that of tariff preferences. Here the British Government made the proposals. They were submitted to the Economic Conference but discussion was deferred to permit the representatives of the Dominions to study the proposals in detail. That was a fortnight ago and they still have to be discussed.

More Preferences.

Rumors have been constant that the Baldwin Government intends to make further preference proposals and it is assumed that the Premier intends to consult the party at the Plymouth conference before so doing. Whatever the cause of the delay the question is being asked whether the Imperial Conference is liable to result in the definite achievements hoped for. On the other hand the point is taken that the discussions have brought out all the points of view that are necessary preliminary to action.

The Indian representatives are preparing to press their case strongly at Wednesday's meeting. Basing their attitude on the resolution adopted by the Premier's Conference of two years ago which affirmed that the rights of natives of India to citizenship should be recognized, the Indian representatives will urge that they are entitled to the franchise in the Dominions and Crown Colonies and will protest against any disabilities such as segregation or denial of their right to hold property in the Dominions.

Before Dominion Premiers.

Sir Tej Sapru on behalf of the Indian delegation has seen each of the Dominion Premiers and has pressed India's claims. On Wednesday, it is intimated, Sir Tej will suggest that each Dominion form a small committee, the British Government forming one for the Crown Colonies. The Indian Government would then form its own committee which would visit each of the Dominions and Crown Colonies to study the situation with the assistance of the local committee. Present indications are that this suggestion is likely to be adopted by the conference.

Combat that dingy film

Your dentist this week has these trial tubes. Go get one and watch the result.

Dainty people—millions of them—now use a new method of teeth cleaning. It brings them whiter, cleaner, safer teeth. It will do you no harm.

All must fight film

All people who want prettier teeth must fight the film. Film is that viscous coat you feel. In old-way brushing, much of it clings and stays. Soon it becomes discolored, then forms dingy coats.

Film also holds food substance which ferments and forms acid. It holds the acid in contact with the teeth to cause decay. Germs breed by millions in it. They, with tartar, are the chief cause of pyorrhea.

Thus cloudy teeth and tooth troubles became almost universal.

Dental science has now found and proved out ways to fight that film. One disintegrates the film, one removes it without harsh scouring.

Many careful tests proved these methods effective. Then a new-type tooth paste was created to apply them daily. The name is Pepsodent.

Now, the world over, that tooth paste is bringing a new dental era. Careful people of some 50 nations are employing it today.

Multipled helps

Pepsodent also multiplies the alkalinity of the saliva. That is there to neutralize mouth acids.

PAPRUS SMOOTH SHOES, ZEVS SHOES CALLED... NEW YORK, Oct. 29—Wise old hoosmen, who saw the smooth plating on the feet of the English horse today and considered the soft track, said in advance that Paprus was doomed. They counted for the best, with Paprus smooth shoe, had a tremendous advantage. "Man o' War," remarked an old timer, "couldn't beat a steeplechaser under that handicap." Still that choice was up to trainer Jarvis, who stuck to the English fashion, which may work well enough upon turf. FRENCH HORSEMEN THINK EPINARD FASTER THAN ZEV... PARIS, Oct. 29—The Jockey Club, France's most exclusive club, was crowded this evening with French citizens of high rank, numerous English lords and foreign diplomats, awaiting the result of the race between Zev and Paprus at Belmont Park. When Zev's victory was announced, the English visitors were crestfallen, but the French blandly remarked that the French horse Epinard was the best in the world, and that this would be proven at the forthcoming Cambridge stakes, to be run Oct. 31 at Newmarket. French racing circles seem to be convinced that Epinard, which is owned by Pierre Wertheimer, is faster than Zev. WHAT STEVE DONOGHUE SAID... Your crowd was magnificent. I've never been greeted more warmly. They were so friendly, it seemed, excepting for the dirt track as if we were out on Epsom Downs. It was almost as if Sande were the stranger, not I. I have raced before bigger crowds, but never a better one. I want to thank all the officials, among them, of course, Starter Casady, for their fairness. But my warmest feeling goes to the public which has treated me so splendidly. Hotspur, the noted English racing writer, who came over to witness the race, says: "The starter gave our horse every chance. If anything he favors us, for as soon as they came to the barrier with Paprus in position he released the tapes. The race has taught us some useful lessons, from which to profit in the future. It has proved that the disadvantages under which Paprus labored were such that should not be imposed on any visiting horse in future, whether in America or England. On the other hand I suggest that it has been worth while to have the race, as it has made and though we have been beaten, well, it takes good sportsmen, I suggest, to take defeat in the right way. International sport of this kind seems to be more important a factor in bringing the two people together. And so I say that it has been worth while. It only remains to add that all associated with Paprus are immensely conspicuous of the almost embarrassing kindness and warm feeling shown toward them. I have shared it, especially from the courteous and more than kind press friends in New York, and on Tuesday we go back without honors in substance but with the knowledge that something has been done to promote good-fellowship between people who can see some ideals worth attaining to sport."

The Development of the Thomson Route

WOULD BE NEWFOUNDLAND'S OPPORTUNITY.

The Canadian Grain Enquiry Commission has just completed a searching investigation in the United States in connection with the charge that Canadian hard wheat while in transit to Europe through American ports has been de-graded by being mixed with American soft wheat. The proceedings were initiated by the London Corn Exchange, after complaints covering a considerable period had been received from the Liverpool buyers. The seriousness of the alleged practice is apparent when it is stated that about 80 per cent. of the grain exported from Canada finds its way to market through the United States ports, and that in the shipments complained of by the Liverpool buyers, there was a percentage of soft American wheat that the difference in price under the grade would have been not less than thirty cents a bushel.

This affair has emphasized strongly the advantages of a deep waterway up the St. Lawrence by means of which Canada could ship her products to market direct. The expense incurred, the delays due to transshipments, and the dissatisfaction caused by having to pass the grain through American territory have all tended to focus the attention of the Canadian authorities on the proposed deep water route, and will probably lead to a speeding up of the project.

On Thursday last Mr. H. C. Thomson laid before the Board of Trade the details of a plan to establish at Mortier Bay a transshipment depot, which would form a halfway house for goods enroute to the markets of the world, from the St. Lawrence basin and the Western Provinces; raw material and other commodities destined for these countries would also be collected there awaiting shipment. The plan was based on the advantages of water transport over conveyance by land, and it was claimed that it would obviate such drawbacks as transshipments, the high port charges and the congestion in the American ports.

In view of the dissatisfaction expressed by the Canadian Grain Enquiry Commission over the manner in which the grain has been handled between Buffalo and the ports of New York and Baltimore, Mr. Thomson's scheme appears to have much to commend it. If it materializes, it will certainly prove of the greatest benefit to Newfoundland, for it will at once open a market for our fresh fish in the inland towns of Canada and the States. The vessels which are to be used on the St. Lawrence will be equipped with cold storage, and at a minimum of expense to this country the facilities to handle fresh fish will be available.

We publish below an article which outlines the possibilities that such a route would offer to Newfoundland for the disposal of fresh fish, and we thank the writer who forwarded it just in time to enable it to go to press with our editorial on the same topic.

Boston is the home port for a considerable fleet of "craft" engaged in supplying the American seaboard cities with fresh fish. But, even in Boston, the best of the fresh fish served, even in expensive hotels, would by us be considered poor. Our palates are educated to a critical appreciation of what constitutes really fresh fish. Our humblest homes can be served at any hour with fish that is unavailable, even to millionaires, in the large European and American cities. The fish supplied to the Boston market is generally from two to four days in ice on the crafts engaged in catching it, and the water from the melting ice in which the fish is packed softens the fibre of the fish and carries off the palatable juice and leaves the flesh comparatively fibreless and tasteless. By the time a fish of a given catch reaches cities remote from the seaboard it has a far from inviting appearance and flavor.

In the great cities of the American Middle West there is an absolute dearth of sea fishes and there would be an instant and colossal demand for such, were a supply available. For many years we have been endeavoring to create a Cold Storage fish business. Our efforts have not been well directed and the results, of course, have been disappointing. We failed to grasp the underlying principle that also is the key to success. All our frozen product has been dumped into seaboard cities of England and the United States, the very places where the home supply of these countries was greatest, and where it came into competition with fish in the natural state. It must be so kept until it goes into consumption. Our frozen fish could not be sent inland from landing points as fresh fish, as the home-catch fish of the English and American cities. The ice would de-frost the fish and then it would rapidly deteriorate.

Once fish is frozen it must be so kept until it goes into consumption. Our frozen fish could not be sent inland from landing points as fresh fish, as the home-catch fish of the English and American cities. The ice would de-frost the fish and then it would rapidly deteriorate. We failed to realize the necessity for perfecting transportation facilities that would land our frozen fish at inland sources of demand where scarcity would ensure profitable prices. The writer knows somewhat of the American fresh fish business, and has for years known that the Middle West of the United States would give us the ideal market for our product, but the perfecting of the requisite transportation facilities was beyond our reach.

Now it would appear that the clever conception of a scheme for giving to the great American Middle Western States an efficient and speedy waterborne freight route to the Atlantic by specially constructed steamers for its enormous volume of exports will, if we grasp the opportunity, incidentally also give us access for our frozen fish to the most coveted source of demand, the Middle West of the United States—the home of over thirty millions of the world's most prosperous people.

The writer has not even a remote connection with the project conceived by Mr. Thomson and recently submitted to him, but he realizes the immeasurably great advantages it opens to us for the revolutionizing of our fish business, if we have the courage to finalize the proposed arrangement. Should we avail of the proposition it will not cost us a dollar until our fish has left our shores for the market, and the scheme will open to us, and even then we need only pay in proportion to the volume of fish marketed.

A Distinguished Statesman Passes On

The announcement of the sudden departure of Britain's former Premier, Andrew Bonar Law, will be the occasion of general and wholehearted regret. His term of office, short though it was, was still of sufficient duration to earn for him the esteem and respect not only of Great Britain, not only of the far-flung Empire, but of the whole world.

Weddings

SMITH—TESSIER.

The marriage of Miss Annie Isabel Ruby, third daughter of Mrs. Charles Tessier, to Mr. Lewis Smith, Member of the Provincial House of Assembly, New Brunswick, only son of Mr. and Mrs. Nelson Smith, of Coverdale, Albert County, N.B., took place at the home of the bride's parents, Gormondale at 3 o'clock this afternoon. The ceremony was performed by the Rev. R. J. Power, M. A. The ceremony was held in the southern end of the spacious drawing room, which was a veritable bower, with its arch of lilacs and statice, from which hung a wedding-bell of smilax and mimosas; the rest of the room was prettily decorated with ferns and yellow chrysanthemums.

The bride was charmingly gowned in white crepe de chine. She wore a tulle veil and carried a bouquet of white roses and carnations. The groom, Miss Elsie Crowley, was attired most becomingly in a Georgette gown of sage blue, with black velvet hat and carried a bouquet of pink roses and pink carnations. The flower girls were Misses Lorraine Crowley and Jean Tessier, nieces of the bride who wore pale blue crepe de chine, with black Dutch caps. Acting as best man was Mr. W. H. Harder, and as father giver Mr. Cyril Tessier. The wedding march was "Pledgy" by Miss Elsie Trait, while at the close of the ceremony Miss Elsie Herder sang "Because."

After the ceremony a reception was held, at which, only the immediate friends and relatives were present. Mr. and Mrs. Smith will spend their honeymoon at points around Conception Bay, and will leave by the Schemon on Saturday for their future home in Coverdale, N.B. The bride's going away costume was a navy blue suit. The only out of town visitor was Mrs. P. W. Turner, of Charlottetown, sister of the groom.

The bride is a graduate of the Western Hospital, Montreal, and served three years overseas at Netley Hospital, Southampton.

WALSH—GREENE.

A quiet but pretty wedding was solemnized on October 24th at the Corpus Christi Church, Kilbride, when Miss Nellie Greene, daughter of the late Richard and Mrs. Greene, Kilbride, was married to Mr. A. J. Walsh of Holyrood. The Rev. J. J. Rawlin officiated. The bride looked charming in a gown of white canton crepe and overlace, with bridal veil to match. The bridesmaid was Miss Annie Greene, sister of the bride, while acting as best man was Mr. W. Greene. After the ceremony, a banquet was held at the residence of the bride's parents. The groom's present to the bride was a gold piece, to the bridesmaid a pendant; and to the best man, cuff links, while Mr. and Mrs. Walsh received the presents of many valuable and useful articles. The honeymoon is being spent at Holyrood.

Highlanders "At Home"

SEASON'S DANCE TO-MORROW NIGHT.
The big attraction for this week will be the Newfoundland Highlanders "At Home" which event takes place in the C. C. Hall to-morrow night. For some weeks past the various committees in charge have been working energetically together to complete the necessary arrangements, and in this they have been successful. The dance hall besides being thoroughly renovated and cleaned from top to bottom has been artistically decorated for the occasion, and the scene on the night of dance will undoubtedly prove to be most spectacular. An important dance programme has been prepared, the music for which will be furnished by the well known Prince's Orchestra. With this in view the success of the "At Home" can be readily anticipated. The ladies of the Highlander's Association who have at all times responded nobly to the good of the cause, have again undertaken to look after the catering. Invitations have been extended to a number of prominent citizens, as well as to representatives from the sister brigades. Judging by the number of tickets already disposed of the affair promises to eclipse all former records.

Last Night's Concert

The Mt. Cashel Band gave another of their very interesting band concerts at the Prince's Rink last night, and upwards of three hundred people were in attendance. The dance programme which consisted of the latest musical airs proved quite popular and was thoroughly enjoyed by all.

Ping Pong Tournament

The first of a series of Ping Pong Tournaments for the season will be played on Thursday night next in the Masonic Temple, when a team of Masons will try conclusions with Dunfield Club.

ACKNOWLEDGMENT.

I beg to acknowledge the sum of $28.00, taken on October 14th. MRS. GRILLS.—oct30/11

Supreme Court.

(Before Mr. Justice Kent.)
In the matter of the petition of Bowring Bros., Ltd., merchants, alleging that Thomas Burton, of Bay East, general dealer, is insolvent and praying that he be so declared—Mr. H. Winter, petitioner moves for a declaration of insolvency. It is ordered that Thomas Burton be declared insolvent and that Walter Wilby be trustee.

Magistrate's Court.

A seaman belonging to Carbonar was charged with the larceny of one overcoat, valued at $14.00, the property of another man who resides in the same settlement. The coat was stolen from a schooner in August last, and was identified by the owner in court this morning. The accused upon being convicted was fined $20.00 with the option of 30 days.

C. Y. M. L. A.

While it is to be regretted that so many of our young men are leaving the country it is encouraging to know that those who are standing by the "old ship" are manifesting a keen interest in her welfare. The Association is evidently not afraid to tackle some of our most serious problems, and last night's debate was resolved: "That Civil Service positions be filled on a strictly competitive examination basis with men incompetent for their duties. The end could only be the minimum service at a maximum cost. Reform is absolutely necessary and that immediately. Reference was made to the systems of England and the United States. While education was necessary it was felt that it must also be added practical ability and health as the passports to the service."

St. Joseph's Sale

The parishioners of St. Joseph's are holding their annual sale of vegetables in the Parish Hall this afternoon at 4 o'clock. A splendid display of all kinds of vegetables have been stocked in the various stalls and it is hoped that the prospective buyers will come early and avoid the rush. During the afternoon and evening, the ladies of the parish will serve tea. The sale will be continued to-morrow, and will terminate with a concert at night.

Meat Inspection Work

For some time past the Health Authorities have been given their attention to imported meats and quite a lot of barrels salt meat and cuttings intended for sausage making has been condemned. Some of this meat bears the stamp of approval of both Canadian and American Agricultural Boards. Inspector Courtney is doing good work in this line and is determined that all meats which are not fully up to standard will be destroyed.

Fishing Boat Dismasted

According to a message received by the Assistant Collector of Customs from Inspector Dee a boat owned by George Brake of Maryatova, became dismasted off Burin yesterday. The boat was rescued by the revenue cruiser and towed into Maryatova.

Digby Sails

S. S. Digby sailed for Liverpool at 11 a.m. to-day taking a very large outward cargo. In addition to the seven guns salvaged by the Strandhill from the H.M.S. Raleigh, 7000 barrels of apples were put on board at Halifax. From here the ship took a large quantity of fish and oil.

Sable I. Outward

S. S. Sable I. sailed at 10 o'clock last night for Halifax direct taking a part freight of berries, oil, salmon and herring. The following passengers were also by the ship:—Mr. and Mrs. G. Grant, Miss Elsie Harris.

Waste of Coal

Attention is called to the waste of coal by carters during the transfer from the sheds to householders along the streets and may watch coal falling from the box carts in which it is conveyed and the loss in many instances is considerable. A number of these carts it is noticed are small size and many have badly fitting loads. The addition of wash boards would remedy the first trouble.

SCHOONER RACES DELAYED OWING TO WEATHER CONDITIONS.
HALIFAX, N.S., Oct. 30.
With the sun struggling to break through a dense fog bank and scarcely a breath of wind, the conditions this morning were unfavorable for the second of the International Schooner Race series, and the Committee ordered a postponement of one hour in the start. At nine o'clock there was no wind, but the fog had lifted considerably and there was a slight possibility that the boats would get away at ten, but both schooners remained at their wharves.

TRAGEDY CAUSED BY EXPLOSION OF GASOLINE.
TITESTVILLE, Penn., Oct. 30.
One man is known to have been killed and several persons, including two women, were seriously injured yesterday when a tank car of gasoline exploded at the American Oil Works.

HALIFAX, N.S., Oct. 30.
James S. Walker, 40 years of age, of 56 Almon Street, was instantly killed at Fort Clarence on the eastern side of the harbor yesterday when a six inch shell from which he was helping to remove the detonators and powder exploded. Two companions Henri Ryan and William Hall escaped with minor injuries.

SIDNEY MACHINE RUNNER ELECTROCUTED.
SYDNEY, Oct. 30.
Patrick Prenty, a machine runner at Mackay mine near Sydney mines was killed yesterday when going through a crosscut containing considerable wax. He took hold of an overhead electric wire. Ordinarily there was insufficient current in the wire to kill but it is presumed the water made it fatal.

BARON RYNG OFFICIATES AT OPENING OF DOCK.
ST. JOHN, Oct. 30.
With elaborate ceremony the world's largest dry dock at St. John, N.B., was opened yesterday by his Excellency Baron Ryng of Vimy.

Oporto Stocks.

The Oporto market for the week ending Oct. 29th, shows a rather unusual feature in that there is no Norwegian fish on hand. The following report was received to-day by the Board of Trade:—

British	2,572
Consumption	4,467
Norwegian	172
Consumption	172

It will be noted that the Consumption of Newfoundland here is nearly double that of the stock on hand. There are, however, about 12 cargoes on the way and nearly as many more, loading so that stocks will be considerably increased within the next week.

Flanders Poppies

Members from the G.W.V.A. Remembrance Committee have been despatched to the various outposts for sale on Remembrance Day—Remembrance Day. The committee is hoping that many of the larger centres who have not yet ordered Poppies will do so as soon as possible. It is felt that the sale of the Poppies will be a most successful one and it is hoped that in any place where they are sold as soon as possible, and the sale of Poppies. The object of the sale is to raise money for the purchase of Poppies for the boys who served during the War, and who, through unfortunate circumstances, are in need of assistance. Poppies are sold for five cents or more, and it is hoped that all will help by buying a Poppy on Remembrance Day, November 10th.

Bumper Show at the Crescent Theatre

PICTURES AND EXCELLENT MUSIC.

Everybody was delighted with the exceptionally good programme which was provided at the Crescent Theatre. Robert Ghisla was heard to great advantage in a group of pictures that he rendered with such sympathetic understanding that he was received with the hearty applause of his auditors. In his language "He went over big" "Brothers Under the Skin" the six-episode drama which formed the features of this show, is one of those pictures that come along in an age and are always received with delight. The story tells of the similar domestic difficulties encountered by two husbands in widely divergent layers of society—one a general manager at $30,000 a year, the other a typing clerk at $30.00 a week in the same big corporation.

The wives of both are young, beautiful, charming, but luxury-loving and irresponsible. Both keep their husbands in eternal debt and externally worried. But "ally well that ends" "ally don't let Friday night's big" "ally Contest slip your mind. A" "ally discourse of contestants are" "ally for this week. "Watch" and

AN UNQUALIFIED SUCCESS.

The first of a series of monthly entertainments for the season took place last night in the Knights of Columbus rooms. The affair, which took the form of a card party and dance, was attended by over 400 people, and a most enjoyable evening was spent by all. A large number of players participated in the card tournament, and close play followed throughout. The Council Chamber, where the dance was held, presented a very pretty scene. The music by the Prince's Orchestra was well rendered and highly commended on. At 11 p.m. supper was served by the Colonial Ladies' Association, under the direction of Mrs. McKay and Mrs. V. Duddy. The dance was then continued until early this morning. The prizes for the card tournament were won by Mrs. Atkinson and Mr. Povung. In the elimination dance the winners were Miss Dorothy Ellis and Mr. Robert Kent.

Black Sea Pirates
Drive Ships to Port.

Varna, Bulgaria, Oct. 27. (A.P.)—The Black Sea is fast winning an unenviable reputation for piracy and lawlessness upon its waters. Seafaring men are terrified by two acts of violence in the past fortnight, and in some cases have declined to take their ships out of the harbors.
 The tale of the destruction of the Bulgarian sailing ship Biala was hardly out of men's mouths, when there came the recital of how the crew of the Amon were done to death by Turkish marauders from the coast of Asia Minor. The Amon sailed from this port for Constantinople, laden with turpentine. A few miles out she was approached by two large motor boats. The Captain, not liking the appearance of these strange craft, crowded on all sail in an effort to get back to port, but the motor boats were too quick for him. One approached him from starboard and the other from port, and ranging alongside with grappling irons soon had a strong hold.
 When armed men went aboard the sailing vessel and made her their own, they overpowered the crew and lashed them to bulwarks and boat davits. Torture made them disclose the whereabouts of the ship's treasure, 28,000 golden Turkish pounds.
 This was quickly gathered in, and the pirates made a quick getaway, but before they cast off they set the Amon on fire. She was soon doomed, and so were her crew, still lashed to the deck stanchions.
 Only one man succeeded in working himself loose. He dove overboard and swam to the Bulgarian shore, where he related the story.

Cockatoo on Guard

New York, Oct. 28.—For weeks the police of the narcotic squad had tried in vain to make arrests in an apartment on Eldridge street, in Chinatown, where they said opium was being smoked. When at last they succeeded they found a white cockatoo, which hung in a cage outside the apartment door had been trained to shriek the Chinese word for "police" every time a white man appeared. The Chinaman, thus warned, escaped. The cockatoo guard is now in custody along with four Chinamen found in the place.

Adventurers Start Trip

NO WHITE MAN HAS YET COMPLETED.

HONOLULU, Oct. 24. (A.P.)—A breath of romance—limpid lagoons—boiling through the ocean, with all sail set, as a speed of an average steamer—life among the natives in a far-off South Sea isle—of the beginning of a 600-mile trip up a river on which many white men have set out, but none returned—is contained in a letter received here from Myrry N. Fay, commander of the "Narwhal Expedition," an adventurous group of men, who sailed their own vessel out of San Francisco Bay about a year ago to cruise among the South Seas, drifting from port to port with whatever cargo might be picked up.
 The miscellaneous cargo, including a large shipment of dynamite, that the Narwhal carried from San Francisco, was delivered safely at its South Sea destination, according to the letter which was received by A. P. Taylor, Honolulu newspaperman and author.
 The letter was dated "Latitude 15-54; longitude 180, July 27, 1923," and spent more than seven weeks reaching its destination.

"The Narwhal Expedition" is still on the map, or rather moving around on the map," it said. "Right now we are passing through the channel between the island of Tikombia and Vanua Levu of the Fiji group. We also are crossing the 180th meridian, where we jump a day. We have had a wonderful time in the Samoan islands. I think I saw as much of them as any white man has ever seen. While at Upolo, I went on a trip with the New Zealand Governor and visited native villages along the shores. We were feted in each village. We lived in their grass huts and I was able to get pictures of some of their celebrations that have never been photographed before. I stayed in Apia several weeks and went to Pago Pago where I made two trips—one to the Manua group where we lived with the natives for a week. The Samoans on these islands appear to be far ahead of the others, because the white man very rarely gets to Manua.
 "Our next stop will be Noumea. We will spend a week or two there getting the final touches for the real adventure. For we intend to go from there to New Guinea where we hope to ascend the Fly river for about 600 miles. We realize that we are taking a long chance as two expeditions have gone up this river, and not a man has returned from them. We hope to benefit by their mistakes. We have a very fast whale boat and we are guarding ourselves against diseases that play havoc with the white men in these countries and we will be always careful. About the time this letter reaches you we will be starting up the river and I feel sure, with the precautions that we are taking, that we will get through safely."
 "These South Seas are surely the place for a fellow to get Romance under his skin. It seems to be a sort of disease that every one gets down here. This old sailing vessel of ours only adds to that romantic feeling that steals over us. Right now we are boiling along as fast as the average steamer goes, all sail set, and every time a gust of wind hits us, the old ship gives a graceful swoop, that sort of reminds me of a racehorse."
 "The enthusiasm that prompted us to go on this trip has only been intensified by the wonderful experiences we are getting."
 Fay said that the Narwhal expected to be in Honolulu on its return trip to the mainland in seven or eight months.

End of Sinecures

BRINGS DISMAY TO SPANISH OFFICIALS.

Madrid, Oct. 26. (A.P.)—The public pulse of Latin countries is beating true to form in Spain. The Government has been overthrown by a coup d'etat, yet the excitement soon was over and to-day the mind of the crowd is busy as ever with its distractions and pleasures.
 The cafes are crowded, and one can rarely find an empty seat at the outdoor tables. Bull fights are to the fore and will continue to attract crowds until the weather breaks. A roulette table, it is rumoured, is to be installed at the Ice Palace by permission of the dictator, Primo Rivera, who is said to be not insensible to the attractions of the game. The well-to-do residents of Madrid have begun their exodus from San Sebastian, returning to the capital as fast as the limited train can bring them.
 Probably nothing has caused as much excited comment and speculation as the famous decree, the purpose of which is to make government employees do some work. It has been a veritable bombshell. It requires that all such men report at nine in the morning and be on duty until two in the afternoon. As a result the government buildings are overrun with strangers, standing over each other, asking where their offices are located, and when they find them, wondering what to do. A caricaturist suggests that concentration camps be established.

Thousands of Government officials, in the enjoyment of a mere pittance, learned in the past how to reduce their output of energy to a minimum, often not exceeding the mere act of signing the monthly pay sheet. Thousands more by means of an occasional "act of presence," as it is picturesquely called, in various departments managed to derive a multiplicity of incomes from as many sources. Under this system sinecures for the relatives of cabinet ministers, down to the most distant degree, were easy to obtain and by a series of compromises often maintained while the party was out of office. Room on every pay sheet was found for a host of party supporters.
 One particular instance, much commented upon, is worth mentioning. The hero, the man known in his proper sphere of operations as a journalist, slyly a party man, has recently progressed so rapidly in his departmental connections that he might, but for his dismissal, now be faced with the problem of daily attendance in fifteen different offices, from all of which he drew an unearned salary. Another journalist's pay had for many years been accounted for as "fodder for a mule."
 The new decree has not spared those in high stations of life, and as a display of Draconian justice, the initial act of Millan de Priego who, on taking over the duties of the home office, dismissed his own brother from a sinecure in the post office, calls

CAUSES ANXIETY IN BRAZIL.
 RIO DE JANEIRO.—In spite of the fact that approximately two-thirds of Brazil's 3,000,000 square kilometers of territory is uninhabited wilderness, this country is feeling serious effects from deforestation. Axe and fire are stripping the land to an extent that constitutes a national problem.
 Enormous quantities of timber were burned as fuel by the railways and river steamers during the war because of the shortage and high cost of fuel. Still greater quantities are cut and destroyed by the settlers who are pushing the frontier back from the Atlantic coast.
 It is not unusual in the interior of this country to see railway ties roughly hewn from mahogany, peroba, rosewood, or any of the hundreds of species of precious hard woods that are worth almost their weight in gold in the United States.
 The agitation against this destruction, however, is becoming greater every day with the public and press clamoring for preventative measures.

SKIM MILK FOR CREAM.

It is a trouble out to Illinois on a motor trip. Did you know that the great of the summer put herself out to return their hospitality in good measure? Not at all. She excused herself on the score of housecleaning milk in return." from any other entertainment than dinner one night for the Eastern tourists who were forced to put up at the hotel for their brief stay in her city.

Skim Milk Partners.

There are many "skim milk" partners in the game of life. Wives who demand luxuries and never try to make home a restful abode for their careworn husbands in return. Husbands who revel in the comforts of a well ordered house and perfectly cooked food without planning the occasional pleasure trip to the theatre or concert which a wife loves to have offered without having to suggest it or to hint for it.

What is it that Emerson says about friendships—where all the giving comes from one and the other takes but seldom gives? I think he says that no friendship exists in such a case. There must be mutual giving and readings.

No Danger!

She knows very well that she is extending so lavish an offer of hospitality because her host has home for so long a time. Because the trip would be too expensive for them. So at Christmas she gets a pretty little calendar, a small sealie book, or a box of "let's paper and feels that by so doing she cancels all further obligations. The Eastern relatives did not to-day that the furniture was just as it had been left in 1914. He complained that he had been without wages for months but he expected his little account would be satisfactorily settled.

"No, we have had no burglars. There is nothing here to steal," he concluded.

Railroads Despair

At Recklessness Of Motoring Public.

Topeka, Kan. (A.P.)—Railway crossing accidents, increasing at an average rate of 100 per cent. a year, represent one of the most serious problems now confronting American railroads, according to Ishai Hale, of Topeka, chairman of the safety section of the American Railway Association which comprises virtually all the railway companies in the United States. A "Careful Crossing Campaign" of four months, June to September, has just been completed by all the railroads.

"Railroads are eagerly trying out every imaginable means of averting these appalling disasters," said Mr. Hale, "but the persistent disregard of the automobile driving public for its own safety has caused some of us almost to despair. The remedy seems so simple, yet meets such open violation. Epitomized, it is just three words, Cross Crossings Cautiously."

"The railroads are convinced that, within their own organizations, 'safety first' education gets results. Deaths of employees on duty have been reduced from 4,354 in 1907 to 1,446 in 1921. This result has been achieved notwithstanding the much larger force of employees during the year 1921."

"In 30 years our country's population has increased 68 per cent. In that same period railroad highway crossing accidents have increased 345 per cent, and injury cases 652 per cent. These disproportionate increases are due entirely to the use of the automobile. In five years 6,101 persons were killed and 24,308 injured at railway highway crossings in the United States.

The fact that at least 50 per cent of automobile drivers do not look both ways upon approaching a railroad crossing has been demonstrated in a number of tests conducted along the Santa Fe Railroad recently. Mr. Hale pointed out. A count made at a city crossing produced the following results: Out of 250 cars checked, drivers of 98 did not look in either direction; 49 looked to the right only; 17 looked to the left only; one stopped and looked in both directions and 78 looked each way without stopping.

Instances of automobiles being driven into a passing train are almost as common as those in which the automobile is struck by a train. Mr. Hale declared. A typical list compiled by the Pennsylvania Railroad shows an increase of 110 per cent. in crossing fatalities in July this year, as compared with July a year ago.

TRADING IN.

The auto dealer reads his board, his eyes are wet, his thoughts are weird. He has new cars upon his floor, resplendent buxses in his store. They stand there, glittering like stars, the latest thing in motor cars; they're built to save the precious gas, and they have windshields made of glass, the sills are formed of priceless steel, and there's a brake on every wheel. The auto dealer views his boats and sounds some sad discordant notes. "If I could sell my cars for mon," he sighs, "my business would be fun. But every prospect, every jake, has some old junk that I must take. I have to take in ancient cars that broke our rude forefathers' hearts, old chugmobiles of fierce design, that crossed the plains in '48. The man who buys a modern suit can't trade in rag not worth a hoot; the gent who buys a kelly deer can't trade in lids of yesteryear; the guy who buys cigars to-day can't trade in cabbage leaves or hay. In other avenues of trade men know the merchants must be paid, in guilders, kopecks, marks or francs or coin accepted by the banks, but when man comes to buy a bus he makes a most unseemly fuss if I won't take, the same as cash, his worn out van that's gone to smash. And this is why I sometimes tear my shirt, my whiskers and my hair."

Forty-Four Years in the Service of the Public—The Evening Telegram.

Marvels of Everyday Life

The following are some of the many interesting facts revealed at the British Association, which recently held its ninety-first annual meeting at Liverpool.—
The sun pours out energy, but the earth obtains less than one-thousandth part; the great part of it goes into space, and has done so for a thousand million years.

Eight exercises pressure on objects that receive it. The giant stars gain their size like a blown-out football from the pressure of light within them. By the pressure of light it may be possible to create matter.

The cat was unknown in England till the ninth or tenth century, when there was a document stating that a man would be fined fourpence for killing a cat and eightpence if he killed the King's cat.

Among the natives of South Africa there is a general belief in the split soul. One tribe believes in three souls—one in the head, another in the stomach, and a third in the big toe.

There is no such thing as a born criminal, and it is impossible to maintain that criminality as such is inherited to any great extent. Childhood crime is, as a rule, simply an overabundance of constructive energy, blocked or misdirected.

There is by no means the same certainty to-day as a decade ago that the atoms of an element contain hidden stores of energy. It looks as if we shall still want coal.

There need be no fear of the sun "dying" too quickly and of the earth getting cold. The sun's heat will last, at any rate, for another 1,000,000,000 years.

Britain is not over-populated. The population of the whole world could be placed in the smallest English county with room to spare.

Certain features usually regarded as distinctive of man are found in new-born gorillas and chimpanzees, but not in adults. Apes are more specialized than man in adaptation to a particular mode of life; they have lost many primitive characteristics which he has retained.

There is evidence that a new human type is being developed, whose face will be something like an "accoutremented pear drop." This new race shows a disposition for a diet without meat or other coarse foods, is inclined to be playful and mischievous, and shows sympathetic understanding.

Gold was the first metal used by man, and the arbitrary value assigned to it for its supposed magical qualities initiated a world-wide search for it and made it a potent factor in shaping the history of civilization.

Experiments with men and women as to their sense of smell showed that camphor was usually associated with old clothes and cupboards, but with one subject it aroused a sense of fear and a sensation of darkness and suffocation. It was found that this subject had been shut up in a dark wardrobe as a child and had completely forgotten the incident until it was recalled by the smell. Rose oil occasioned a sense of fear in one subject, and this was due to the fact that he had met with a motor accident on a country road in July outside a house where roses were growing plentifully.

First Sight Love Marked Start of Royal Romance.

Brussels, Oct. 25. (A.P.)—The engagement of Prince Humbert, of Piedmont, heir to the throne of Italy, to Princess Marie Jose of Belgium, which is to be officially announced November 4, is the culmination of a love match of long standing.

In 1918, Queen Elizabeth of Belgium, desirous of placing the little princess—who was then 12 years old—outside the range of airplane raids and big guns continuously shelling La Panne, where the Belgian royal family had their modest war home, took her daughter to Florence, when under private teachers she studied English and Italian.

Queen Elizabeth, accompanied by the Princess, spent the 1917 vacation at Venice. There, under the constant menace of Austrian airplane raids and German-Austro offensives, the Prince, a youth in a sailor's costume, and the Princess, wearing a plain white dress, met for the first time. It was love at first sight.

When Prince Humbert visited Belgium last year there were many who noted that although the tour was supposed to be officially conducted, the heir to the throne of Italy preferred the company of the Princess, now a beautiful young woman, to receptions and listening to addresses by Burgomasters.

The engagement has been very popularly received here.

Aged Servants Of Church Will Live In Papal Palace.

Rome, Oct. 27. (A.P.)—The Law of Guarantees, passed by the Italian Parliament in 1871, almost immediately after Rome became the capital of United Italy, regulations between the papacy and the new kingdom, and assigned to the Pope, besides the palaces of the Vatican and the Lateran, the magnificent papal palace of Castel Gandolfo, exquisitely situated on the shores of the Lake of Albano. As is well known, the Pope never acknowledged the Law of Guarantees, nor could they use the great Villa of Castel Gandolfo (as it was intended that they should do) for their summer residence, as, after been elected Pope, they never leave the Vatican.

Pius XI. has made use of the great Villa, with its huge suites of apartments as an orphanage for Armenian girls, pitiful waifs and strays from the world war. The Pope has now decided to have these girls, who are most of them of good birth, educated as teachers, so they are being trained for this vocation. The pontiff now intends to make the palace at Castel Gandolfo an asylum and resting place for aged bishops and priests, who are no longer able to work and need a home and comfort for their declining years. It is difficult to imagine a spot more suitable or delightful for these servants of the church to spend the evening of their days.

Romantic Discovery By Swimmer.

A romantic discovery has just been made by a student of Toulouse University who swam along an underground stream for a mile with an electric torch in his hand, and found some relics believed to be at least 25,000 years old.

In the South of France and in Spain, and to a less extent elsewhere, drawings on bone, and modelling in clay, and painting on rocks have shown that 20,000 or 30,000 years ago men who lived in caves had the knack of representing, by a rude kind of art, the animals they knew.

They scratched on flat bones the outlines of reindeer, bison, mammoths, and other animals, and painted them on the dry walls of caves; and it is interesting and important to know what other animals were roaming about Europe then, as it throws a light on the changes which have taken place in the climate.

The student of Toulouse University, Cartaret by name, discovered what might be called the studio of an artist in the cave-dwelling period.

On the walls of the cave were rough drawings of animals, and around were models made in clay, some in the early stage of being shaped and others more fully formed.

Among the animals represented were lions, tigers, wolves and bears. This is the first time lions have been found among the animals known to the cave artists who once lived in France.

The animals of the prehistoric sculptor appear all to be wounded, and it is believed the hunters must have damaged the models before setting out on a hunting expedition, believing that in doing so they were rendering the real animals vulnerable to their own weapons.

Ancient Craft Unearthed in Harbor On Pacific Coast.

Los Angeles, Oct. 24. (A.P.)—The framework and planking of a craft which has withstood the stress of years and which is believed to have been used centuries ago by Chinese or Spanish explorers or pirates, have been uncovered many feet beneath the earth's surface at Los Angeles harbor in excavations for an oil storage tank.

The boat, less than forty feet in length, with high sides, is built of a heavy thick wood. Some of the timbers are half rounded, as is the case in many old Oriental vessels. Metal used to fasten pieces of the craft together had rusted away. The construction of the ship indicated that it was not built by Indians.

tended much farther inland than today, and mariners say they believe the vessel entered, became fast in a mud bank and was abandoned by the crew.

What is believed to be the task of a mastodon was uncovered near the timbers.

That a Chinese master brought the craft across the Pacific Ocean; that it crossed the Behring Sea and sailed down the coast to California, and might have been brought ashore by the horn by Spanish explorers or pirates are theories advanced to account for its presence here.

(Trade Review.)
 Almost each day the past week arrived here with cargoes of Labrador fish, and as we have had much labor along the coast in the larger exporters, it is stated that there was no decline in the prices in Europe and here, as a matter of fact, a decline, except in the United States. They were glad to be able to place orders for fish, and they were everywhere and hoped to continue. The figures, however, are not so high as they were at any particular time, and the price of this class of fish is not so high as it was in the European market. It is not definitely known whether the price will be higher or lower, but there is no doubt that the price will be higher than it was at first. The price of this class of fish is not so high as it was in the European market. It is not definitely known whether the price will be higher or lower, but there is no doubt that the price will be higher than it was at first. price of oil in Norway, but as the value of the Kroner is not actually equal to the sterling equivalent in London therefore the price has not been advanced to any material extent in England. The exportation from Norway from the first of the year up to September 15th, 1923, amounts to $8,623 barrels. As there was nearly 80,000 barrels manufactured this year, and a considerable surplus carried over from the previous year, it is safe to say that Norway has quite a surplus stock still on hand.

Common Cod Oil—The boom that we were looking for so long has gone flat. The price for Cod Oil is so much higher than other kinds of fish oils that wholesale dealers are not disposed to stock up. The prices offered by the tanners in New England markets, attracted a considerable quantity of cod oil from Iceland and this has caused the decline in price. Quite a large quantity has reached St. John's and is sufficient for the present. It is difficult to say how the market will go in the future, but as there is only a very small supply to be had in Newfoundland this year we don't anticipate any difficulty in disposing all at fair prices.

Lobster—The lobster market continues practically as it was last week, and dealers are very pessimistic over the outlook. Some goods are coming in in small lots, but there is no life in the trade, as the demand from Europe is almost nil. The price as compared with the first of the season has gone away below par. Some small shipments were made during the week, but they were hardly worth mentioning.

Flour—Flour continues to be purchased in large quantities for October and November delivery, in Canada and the United States, and each incoming steamer is laden mostly with this article. If the present ratio of purchase continues it is likely we will handle more of this article this year than last. The market is firm and there is no sign of a drop, and there may not be for some time to come. Though the market does not warrant it some dealers, especially among the retailers, have started the game of cutting prices, owing to the trade jealousy. Most people are holding off on December delivery as crops are large and they fear buying on anything like an extensive scale. It is pretty certain that flour will hold its present prices for another month at least, but importers say it is impossible to forecast what will occur after that. Judging from present appearances there will be no drop in quotations during the month of November. Most of the large mills are now completely sold up for October and November delivery. The figures quoted are the same as last week, $7.90 to $8.40, wholesale. The imports this week were 1,805 sacks by the S.S. Rosalind from New York and some fairly large shipments by the Canadian Sapper from Montreal.

Pork—The market in this article still remains very strong, and the grade known as fat back is still running up in price. There is a heavy demand in the European markets for this grade of pork, and packers on this side cannot keep pork in stock owing to this and they have been thoroughly cleaned out of this quality. The heaviest purchasers are Germany and the Scandinavian countries, whose demands are as heavy as packers and it is almost impossible to keep these markets supplied. Not necessarily a country like this, under these conditions, will not get much of such goods. It is thought by importers that the price of fat back will steadily advance from now forward. The figures quoted this week are: Fat Back, $30; S. C. Clear, $30; Bacon Pork, $27.50; Ham Butt, $28; Spare Ribs, $24. This week's exports were small, a few barrels coming by the Rosalind from New York, and some small shipments by the Canadian Sapper from Montreal.

Beef—Like pork, there is a big demand also for beef, and packers in the United States find their stocks almost totally depleted as a result. The consumption locally has also considerably increased, and but for the shipments received last week, this market would have been almost bare of this particular line of goods. The wave of prosperity which is sweeping through the United States is another factor which contributes to the cleaning out of this market. The ordinary worker is receiving very high wages and eats far more meat than he did heretofore, so there is far less available for export, and the prices are being steadily driven upwards. Quotations on the local market are $22 to $26.50. Shipments received this week were 420 bris. by the Rosalind from New York, and a few barrels by the Sapper from Montreal.

Sugar—The sugar market still continues steady with a pretty fair demand in evidence. The new crop of sugar, it is understood, will be harvested in November, and dealers say they would not be surprised to see lower prices prevail by the middle of November or early in December. Though it is rather early to give an estimate as to the possible volume of the new sugar crop, people who follow this market closely believe that the crop will be up to or possibly a little better than last year and should yield 3,800,000 tons. The figures in the local market are practically the same as those of last week, and the imports during the week were small.

Fifteen Cameramen Used to Screen Big Scenes of Flood

More than fifteen cameramen were used to photograph the sensational storm and flood scenes in the William Fox special production, "The Town That Forgot God," which was directed by Harry Millard, creator of the famous screen play, "Over the Hill." Placed at advantageous locations throughout the village, which was constructed for the express purpose of destroying it by a raging torrent, the cameramen recorded what probably is the most spectacular screen thrill of its kind ever seen in motion pictures.

Six of the cameramen, who were placed inside the flood area, were swept from their platforms and were carried down stream by the raging torrent. Houses, barns, livestock of all kinds and scores of people were caught in the grip of the raging torrent during the making of these scenes.

The use of small armies of expert cameramen for the making of big, spectacular scenes for motion pictures has become an absolute necessity. For instance when a picture shows a whole town being destroyed by flood, as in "The Town That Forgot God" or a city being demolished by flames as in "Nero," or huge mass scenes as in "The Queen of Sheba," it is absolutely necessary that the picture be perfect the first time the scene is enacted. To rebuild a town, after it had been destroyed, would involve such a tremendous expenditure that no chances can be taken in the filming. "The Town That Forgot God" opened a three days' engagement at the Majestic Theatre yesterday to a delighted audience.

Vanishing War Front

"The change in the appearance of the old battlegrounds of the British front from Amiens to Ypres is amazing, almost incredible, to anyone who knew the country at the end of the war," writes Boyd Cable in the Times.

"I have found it easier to trace on the ground the story of the Battle of Waterloo than to follow the course of the fighting on the Somme, although I was there for nearly six months, went over most of the ground again and again, studied it on the maps, often scores of times a day. This is not because the battle-ground of Waterloo is a tiny spot compared to the Somme, because I found it just as difficult to trace out one corner of a battlefield as Planders personally familiar to me and not as big as Waterloo.

"It is rather because all our old familiar landmarks have almost disappeared, because where we could once see from a thousand yards up to five miles without anything to obstruct our view, there are now clusters of farms, rows of houses, complete villages growing the heights, low but dense clumps of wood and bush where we used to know only few mounds of brick and stone, shaly naked tree stumps. Where we picked our way and recognized a route to the front line through, say, Caluchy village by remembering to turn to the right at a bit of three-foot broken wall, to the left over a tumbled pile of bricks, across a road where a trench cut in, left again into a foot-track over the remains of a garden, past some bricks and an iron post-stake sticking out of them, we now find a trim, orderly street of brand new cottages, estaminets, farm-houses, a full width of cobble-stoned strength, fields without a sign of a trench in sight.

"I was able there to place approximately, and with difficulty, the new cottages which stand now where the Guards early in 1918 had their officers' mess in the cellar and their signallers housed in a sandbagged serra behind the wrecked cottage; but I could not find even approximately the spot where my battery once had an observation post in the village, although I had made my way to and from that spot every other day for perhaps a
