IMAGE EVALUATION TEST TARGET (MT-3)

CIHM/ICMH Microfiche Series.

CIHM/ICMH Collection de microfiches.

Canadian Institute for Historical Microreproductions / Institut canadien de microreproductions historiques

The Institute has attempted to obtain the best original copy available fer filming. Features of this copy which may be bibliographically unique, which may alter any of the images in the reproduction, or which may significantly change the usual method of filming, are checked below.

Coloured covers/
Couverture de couleur
Covers damaged/
Couverture endommagéeCovers restored and/or laminated/
Couverture restaurée et/ou pelliculéeCover title missing/
Le titre de couverture manqueColoured maps/
Cartes géographiques en couleur
Coloured ink (i.e. other than blue or black)/
Encre de couleur (i.e. autre que bleue ou noire)Coloured plates and/or illustrations/
Planches et/ou illustrations en couleur
Bound with other material/
Relié avec d'autres documents
Tight binding may cause shadows or distortion along interior margin/
La re liure serréé peut causer de l'ombre ou de la distortion le long de la marge intérieureBlank leaves added during restoration may appear within the text. Whenever possible, these have been omitted from filming/
Il se peut que certaines pages blanches ajoutées lors d'une restauration apparaissent dans le texte, mais, lorsque cele était possible, ces pages n'ont pas été filmées.

L'Institut e microfilmé le meilleur exemplaire qu'il lui a été possible de se procurer. Les détails de cet exemplaire qui sont peut-être uniques du point de vue bibliographique, qui peuvent modifier une image reproduite, ou qui peuvent exiger une modification dans la méthode normale de filmage sont indiqués ci-dessous.Coloured pages/
Pages de couleur

Pages damaged/
Pages endommagéesPages restored and/or laminated/
Pages restaurées et/ou pelliculées

Pages discoloured, stained or foxed/
Pages décolorées, tachetées ou piquéesPages detached/Pages détachẹéesShowthrough/
Transparence
Quality of prinz varies/
Qualité inégale de l'impressionIncludes supplementary material/
Comprend du matériel supplémentaire

Only edition available/
Seule édition disponiblePages wholly or partially obscured by errata slips, tissues, etc., have been refilmed to ensure the best possible image/ Les pages totalement ou partiellement obscurcies par un feuillet d'errata, une pelure, etc., ont été filmées à nouveau de façon à obtenir le meilleure image possible.

This item is filmed at the reduction ratlo checked below/
Ce document est filmé au taux de réductlon indiqué ci-dessous.

The copy filmed here has been reproduced thanks to the generosity of:

Library of Congress
Photoduplication Service
The images appearing here are the best quality possible considering the condition and legibility of the original copy and in keeping with the filming contract specifications.

Original copies in printed paper covers are filmed beginning with the front cover and ending on the last page with a printed or illustrated impression, or the back cover when appropriate. All other original copies are filmed beginning on the first page with a printed or illustrated impression, and ending on the last page with a printed or illustrated impression.

The last recorded frame on each microfiche shail contain the symbol $\rightarrow$ (meaning "CONTINUED"), or the symbol $\nabla$ (meaning "END"). whichever applies.

Maps, plates, charts, atc., may be filmed at different reduction ratios. Those too large to be entirely included in one exposure are filmed beginning in the upper ieft hand corner, left to right and top to bottom, as many frames as required. The following diagrams illustrate the method:

L'exemplaire filmé fut reproduit gráce à la générosité de:

Library of Congress
Photoduplication Service
Les images suivantes ont été reproduites avec le plus grand soin, compte tenu de la condition et de la nettets de l'exemplaire filmé, et en conformité avec les conditions du contrat de filmage.

Les exemplaires originaux dont la couverture en papier est imprimée sont filmés en commençant par le premier plat et en terminant soit par la dernière page qui comporte une empreinte d'impression ou d'illustration, soit par le second plat, selon le cas. Tous les autres exemplaires originaux sont filmés en commençant par la première page qui comporte une empreinte d'impression ou d'illustration et en terminant par la derniére page qui comporte une telle empreinte.

Un des symboles suivants apparaîtra sur la dernière image de chaque microfiche, selon le cas: le symbole $\rightarrow$ signifie "A SUIVRE", le symbole $\nabla$ signifie "FIN".

Les cartes, planches, tableaux, etc., peuvent être filmés à des taux de réduction différents. Lorsque le document est trop grand pour être reproduit en un seul cliché, il est filmé à partir de l'angle supérieur gauche, de gauche à droite, et de haut en bas, en prenant le nombre d'images nécessaire. Les diagrammes suivants illustrent la méthode.

R17.

FROMA

PENNSTLVANIA, TOTHE

INHABITANTS
OFTHE
British Colonies.

5

PHILADELP角IA:
Printed by David Hall, and William Seleers. MDCCL XVIII.

T
 4 $A R M E R$, $\begin{array}{lllll}\mathbf{L} & \mathbf{E} & \mathbf{T} & \mathbf{T} & \mathbf{E}\end{array}$

My dear Countrymen,

IA M a Farmer; fetted, after a variety of fortunes, near the banks of the river Delaware, in the province of Pennfylvania. I receivedo a liberal education, and have been engaged in the bufy fcenes of life; but am now convinced, that a man may be as happy without bufte, as with it. My farm is fmall; my fervants are few; and good; I have a little money at intereft; I winh for no more; my employment in my own affairs is eafy; and with a contented grateful mind, undifurbed by worldly hopes or fears, relating to myfelf, I am compleating the number of days allotted to me by divine goodnefs.
Beınó generally matter of my time, I fpend a good deal of it in a library, which I think the muft valuable part of'my fmall eftate; and being acquainted with two or three gentlemen of abilities and learning, who honor me with their friendfhip, I have acquired, I believe, a greater knowledge in hiftory, and the laws and conftituition of my country, than is generally attained by men of my clafs, many of them not being fo fortunate as I have been in the opportunities of getting information.
From my infancy I was taught to love bxmanity and liberty. Enquiry and experience have fince confirmed my reverence for the leffons then given me, by convincing me more fully of their truth and excellence. Benevolence towards mankind, excites wiftes for their welfare, and fuch wifhes endear the means of fulfilling them. Theff can be found in liberty only, and therefore her facred caure ought to be efpoufed by every man, on every occafion, to the utmoft of his power. As a charitable, sut poor perfon does not withhold his mite, becaufe he cannot relieve all the diffreffes of the miferable, fo fould not any honef man fupprefs his fentiments concerning freedom, however fmall their influence is likely to be. Perhaps he " may touch fome wheel, "" that will have an effed greater than he could reafonably expect.

4 I

These being my fentiments, I am encouraged to offer to you, my countrymen, my thoughts on fone late tranfactions, that appear to me to be of the utmoft importance ta you. Confcious of my own defects, I have waited fome time, in expectation of feeing the fubjeet treated by perfons much better qualified for the talk; but being therein difappointed, and apprehenfive that longer delays will be injurious, I venture at length to requeft the attention of the public, praying, that thefe lines may be read with the fame zeal for the happinefs of Briti/h Ammica, with which they were wrote.
With a good deal of furprize I have obferved, that. little notice has been taken of an act of parliament, as injurious in its principle to the liberties of thefe colonies, as the Stump-Act was I mean the act for furpending the legiflation of New-York.
The affembly of that government complied with a former act of parliament, requiring certain provifions to be made for the troops in America, in every particular, I think, except the articles of falt, pepper and vinegar. In my opinion they acted imprudently, confidering all circumftances, in not complying fo far as would have given latisfaction, as feveral colonies did: But my diflike of their conduct in that inftance, has not blinded me fo much, that I cannot plainly perceive, that they have been punifhed in a manner pernicious to American freedom, and juftly alarming to all the colonies.
If the Britijb parliament has a legal authority to iffue an order, that we fhall furnifh a finglo article for the troops here, and to compel obedience to that order, they have the fame right to iffue an order for us to fupply thofe troops with arms, cloaths, and every neceffary; and to compel obedience to that order alfo; in thort, to lay any burtbens they pleafe upon us. What is this but taxing us at a certain fum, and leaving to us only the manner of raifing it? How is this mode more tolerable than the Stamp-Aa? Would that act have appeared more pleafing to Americans, if being. ordered thereby to raife the fum total of the taxes; the mighty privilege had been left to them, of faying how much fhould be paid for an inftrument of writing on paper, and how much for another on parchment?

AN act of parliament, commanding us to do a certain thing, if it has any validity, is a tax upon us for the expence that accrues in complying with it; and for this reafon, I believe, every colony on the continent, that chofe to give a mark of their refpect for. Gregt-Britain, in complying with the act relating to the troops, cautiouly ntiments ly to be. an effect that apifcious of of feeing the talk; onger deattention the fame ere wrote. little nopus in its $-A C I$ was : ormer ą le for the he articles ed imprug. fo far as ut my dife fo much, aifhed in a ning to all an order, ere, and to ght to iffue oaths, and er alfo; in is this but manser of tamp-AR? $s$, if being nighty prild be paid or another n thing, if hat accrues rery colony. refpect for the troops, cautionly
c. tioufly avoided the mention of that act, left their conduct fhould be attributed to its fuppofed obligation.
The matter being thus flated, the affembly of Neiv-York either had, or had not, a right to refufe fubmiffion to that act. If they had, and I imagine no American will fay they had not, then the parliament had no rigbt to compel them to execute it. If they had not this right, they had no rigbt to punifh them for not executing it; and therefore no right to fufpend their legillation, which is a punifhment. In fact, if the people of New-York cannot be legally taxed but by their own reprefentatives, they cannot be legally deprived of the privilege of legillation, only for infilting on that exclufive privilege of taxation. If they may be legally deprived in fuch a cale, of the privilege of legillation, why may they not, with equal reafon, be deprived of every other privilege? Or why may not every colony be treated in the fame manner, when any of them fhall dare to deny their affent to any impofitions, that fhall be directed: Or what fignifies the repeal of the Stamp-A $A$, if thefe colonies are to lofe their otber privileges, by not tamely furrendering tbat of taxation ?
There is one confideration arifing from this fufpenfion, which is not generally attended to, but fhews its importance very clearly. It was not neceffary that this fufpenfion fhould be caufed by an aet of parliament. The crown might have reftrained the governor of Neru-York, even from calling the affembly together, by its prerogative in the royal governments. This ftep, I fuppofe, would have been taken, if the conduct of the affembly of New-York had been regarded as an act of difobedience to the crown alone; but it is regarded as an act of + "difobedience to the authority of the British lecislature." This gives the fufpenfion a confequence vaftly more affecting. It is a parlimentary affertion of the fupreme authority of the Britijb legifature over thefe colonies, in the point of taxation, and is intended to compel New. York into a fubmiffion to that authority. It feems therefore to me as much a violation of the liberties of the people of that province, and confequently of all thefe colonies, as if the parliament had fent a numiber of regiments to be quartered upon them till they fhould comply. For it is evident, that the fufpenfion is meant as a compulfion; and the metbod of compelling is totally indifferent. It is indeed probable, that the fight of red coats, and the hearing of drums, would have been moft alarming; becaufe people are generally more influenced by their eyes and ears, than by their reafon. But whoever ferioufly confiders the matter, muft perceive that a dreadful ftroke is aimed at the liberty of thefe colonies. I fay, of thefe colonies; for the caufe of one is the caufe of all. If the parliament may lawfully deprive Nevv-York of any of ber rights, it may deprive any, or all the other colonies of tbeir rights; and nothing can
$t$ See the aet of fufyenfion.
can pofibly to much encourage fuch attempts, as a mutual inattention to the interefts of each other. To divide, and thus to defroy, is the frrt political maxim in attacking thofe, who are powerful by their $u$ ion. He certainly is not a wife man, who folds his arms, and repofes himfelf at home, viewing, with unconcern, the flames that have invaded his neightour's houfe, without ufing any endeavours to extinguifh them. When Mr. Hampden's hip money caufe, for Three Sbillings and Four-pence, was tried, all the people of England, with anxious expectation, interefled themfelves in the important decifion; and whent the nightelt point, touching the freedom of one colony, is agitated, I earnefly wifh, that all tbe neft may, with equal andor, fupport their fifter. Very much may be faid on this fubject ; but I hope, more at prefent is unneceffary.

With concern I have obferved, that two affemblies of this province have fat and adjourned, without taking any notice of this act. It may perhaps be akked, what would have been proper for them to do ? I am by no means fond of inflammatory meafures; I deteft them. I fhould be forry that any thing should be done, which might juftly difpleafe our fovereign, or our mother country: But a firm, modeft exertion of a free firit, fhould never be wenting on public occafions. It appears to me, that it would have been fufficient for the affembly, to have ordered our agents to reprefent to the King's minitters, their fenfe of the fufpending aft, and to pray for its repeal. Thus we fhould have borne our teftimony againf it; and might therefore reafonably expect that, on a like occafion, we might receive the fame affitance from the other colonics.

Concordia res parvae crefcunts.
Small things grow great by concord.

- Nov. 5. 1767 AFARMER.
*The day of King Wifblam the Third's landing.

L E T-

[7]

$\begin{array}{lllllll}\mathbf{L} & \mathbf{E} & \mathbf{T} & \mathbf{T} & \mathbf{E} & \mathbf{R} & \text { II. }\end{array}$

My dear Countrymen,

7RERE is another late act of parliament, which appears to me to be unconftitutional, and as deffructive to the liberty of thefe colonies, as that mentioned in my laft letter ; that is, the act for granting the duties on paper, glafs, foc.
The parliament unqueftionably poffeffes a legal authority to $r$ cgulate the trade of Great-Britain, and all her colonies. Such an authority is effential to the relation between a mother country and her colonies; and neceffary for the common good of all. He, who confiders thefe provinces as flates diftinct from the Britifo Em . pire, has very flender notions of jufice, or of thcir inter chfs. We are but parts of a whole; and therefore there wufl exift a power fomewhere, to prefide, and preferve the connection in due order. This power is lodged in the pailiament; and we are as much dependant on Great-Britain, as a perfectly free people can be on another.
I have looked over cevery fatute relating to thafe colonics, from their firt fettlement to this time; and I find every one of them founded on this principle, till the Stam - -AEI adminitration ${ }^{*}$. All before,

- For the fatisfaction of the reader, recitala from the former sets of parlisment relating to thefe colonies are added. By compstiog thefe with the modern acta, he will perceive their great difference in exprefion and intention.
The 1ath Cba. Chap. 18, which ferme the exprefion and intention.
co, our trade, by enacting that certain productions of the colonies thows relating ried to England only, and that no goods fhall be imported from thould be carhut in Mips belonging to England, Ireland, Wales, Berted from the plantation E'c. begine thus: "C For the increafe of Bieping, Berwick, or the Plantationg, gation of shie mation, wherein, under fhipping, and encouragomaith of ibe navi GOD, theath, wherein, under the good providence and protection of cerned," wealth, fafety, and Aeength of this kingdom ls fo much con
The ${ }^{1} 5$ th Cba. II. Chap, 7 enforcing the fame regulation, affigns thefe reafont for it. "In regard his Majefty's plantations, beyond the feas, are inha maineaining peopled by his fuhjeets of this his kingdom of England; for the maineaining agreater corrofpondence and kindaefs between sbem, and keeping them vantageous unto it, in tbe furtber and rendering them yet more heneficial and advantageous unto it, in the furtber employment and increafe of Engligh foipping and feamen, vent of Engli/ß woollen, and other manufatures and commodities, rondering tbe navization to and from tbe fame more fafe and cbeap, and making this kingdom a faple, not only of the commedities of thofe plantations, but alfo of the commodities of other countries and places for tbe fupplying of tbem; and it being the afage of other nations to keep their plantations trade to themfelves,": E'c. The 25 th Cba. II. Chap. 7, made exprefly "for tbo better focuring tbe plantacolony to another, mentions this caufe for impolinmoditiea exported from one cil, paffed in the meth year of your Majefty seign, them : "Whereas by one act, paffed in the 12th year of your Majeftys reign, intituled, An aft for encouragamens of pigping and mavigation, apd by feveral other laws, paffed fince

［ 8 ］

before，are calculated to regulate trade，and preferve or promote a mutually beneficial intercourfe between the feveral conftituent parts of the empire；and though many of them impofed duties on trade， yet thofe duties were always impofed with defign to reftrain the commerce of one part，that was injurious to another，and thus to promote
that time，it is permitted to 仿ip；©fc．fugarr，tobacco，Eff．of the growth，©゚c． of any of your Majefty＇s plantationa in America，©f．from the places of thei growth，sir．to any other of your Majefty＇s plantations in thofe parta，©ic and that wuitbout paying cufom for tbe fame，either at the lading or unlading the faid commodities，by meana whereof the trade and navigation in thofe commo－ ditict，from one plantation to another，is greatly increafed，and the inhabitants of divers of thofe colonies，not concunting tbemfelves zvitb being fupplied witb thofe commoditios for rbeir own ufe，free from all cufoms（while the fabjecta of thio your kingdom of England have paid great cuftoms and impofitions for what of them hath been（ipent here）but，conerary to tbe exprefs letrer of＇tbe aforefaid lawn，bavé broagbt into divers parts of Eurnpe great quantities thereof，and do alfo vend great quantities thereof to the Chipping of other nations，who bring them into divers parts of Europe，to the great hurt and diminution of your Majefty＇s cuftoma， and of the trade and navigation of this your kingdom；FOR THE PELVENTION thearof，©゚c．
The 7th and 8th Will．III．Chap．22，intituled，＂An att for preventing frauds，and regulating abufet in the plantation trade，＂recites that，＂notwith－ fanding divera atts，effe．great aburea are daily committed，to abe prejudice of tbe Englifh navigation，and tbe lof of a grat part of tbe plantation trade to thia king－ dom，by the artifice and cunning of ill difoofed perfons；Fon $2 厶 M R \mathrm{DY}$ WHRRX－ dom，by the artifice and cunning of ill difpored perfons；Fon a $\angle \mathrm{mRDY}$ WhxRx－ or mifconftruction bas arifen upon the before mentioned act，made in the asth or miiconitruction has arifen upon the before mentioned act，made in the 25 th year of the reign of King Cbarles II．Whereby certain duties are laid upon the commodities therein enumerased（which by law may be traniported from one plantation to another，for the fupply of each othere wants）as if the fame were， by the payment of thofe duties in one plantation，difcharged from giving the fecuritics intenóci by the aforefaid acts，made in the 12th，22d and 23 years fecurities intenoct by the aforefaid aets，made in the 12th，22d and 23d years of the reign of King Cbarles II．and confequently be at liberty to go to any of the reign of King Cbarles II．
fortign matket in Europe，＂
ac． orrtign matket in Europe，＂©c．
The 6 th Anme，Chap．37，reciting the advancement of trade，and encourage－ ment of hips of war，© c．grants tu the captors the property of all prizes car－ ried into America，fubjeet to fuch culoms and duties，as if the fame had been frft imported into any part of Greac－Britain，and from thence export to E6c．
Thia was a gift to perfons aesing under sommifions from tht srown，and there－ fore it was reafonable that the terms prefcribed in that gift，thould be complied with－－－more efpecially as the payment of fuch dutiea wat intended to give a preference to the productions of Britijh colonies，over thofe of other colonies． However，being found inconvenient to the colonies，about four yeara afterwards， thia act was，for tbat reafon，fo far repealed，that by another aet＂cll prize goods，imported into any part of Great－Briatin，from any of the plantations， were made liable to fuch duties only in Great－Britain，as in cafe they had been f the growth and produce of the plantations．＂
The 6th Geo．11．Chapo 13，which impofes duties on foreign rum，fugar and melaffes，imported into the coloniet，thews the reafons thus．．．．＂Whereas the welfare and profperity of your Majetty＇s fugar colonies in America，are of the greatet confequence and importance to the trade，navigation and firengtb of thio kingdom；and whereas the planters of the faid fugar coloniet，have of late years fallin into furb grrat difcouragements，that they are unabie to improve of carry on the fugar trade，upon an equal foorive with the foreign fugar colonies， witbout fome advantage and relirf begiven to tbem from Great－Britain t Fon ar－

[ 9 ] $]$

e or promote a onftituent parts utics on trade, to reftrain the $r_{1}$ and thus to promote e places of their thofe parts, © ${ }^{\circ} \mathrm{c}$. ig or unlading the in thole commoid the inhabitants upplied with e thofe jects of thia your for what of them orefaid laws, bave do alfo vend great them into divert Hajefty's cuitoms, Iajeity suman et for preventing thet for preventiag abe prejudice of the abe prejudice of tbe SMEDY WHERz. AMEDY WHzRz: antations, a doubt made in the 25 th. are laid upon the Iported from one if the fame were, $d$ from giving the 22d and 23 y years
erty to go to say $y$ of all prlaes car. he fame had been e export ${ }^{\circ} \mathrm{E}$. crown, and thereShould be complied intended to give a of other colonies. if years afterwards, er aet "e all prize of the plantations, cafe they had been ign rum, fuger and Wh Whereas the America, are of the and firengtb of this onier, have of late thje to improve or eign fugar colonies, Britaini Foz ex -

MEमV
promote the general welfare. The raifing a revenue thereby was never intended. Thus the King, by his judges in his courts of juftice, impofes fines, which all together amount to a very conffderable fum, and contribute to the fupport of government: Butthis is merely a confequence arifing from reftrictions, that only meant to keep peace, and prevent confufion; and furely a man would argue very loofely, who should conclude from hence, thatthe King has a right to levy money in general upon his fubjeets. Never did the Britifb parliament, till the period above mentioned, think of impofing duties in America, por the ruapose of raising a revenue. Mr. Greenville firt introduced this language, in the preamble to the 4 th of Geo. III. Chap. 15, which hae. thefe words-.." And whereas it is juft and neceflaty that a revenueberaised in your'Majesty's said domintons inAmeRIcA, for defraying the expences of defending, proteding, and fecuring the fame: We your Majelty's moit dutiful and loyal tubjects, THE commons of Great-Britain; in parliament affembled, being defirous to make fome provifion in this prefent feffion of parliament; towards raising the said revenuein America, bave refolved to give and crant unto your Majefty the fevcral rates and duties herein after mentioned," ${ }^{\circ} \mathrm{C}$.

A few months after came the Stamp-AE, which reciting this, proceeds in the fame Arange mode of expreflion, thus....... And whereas it is juft and neceffary, that provifion be made for ras sing a further revenue within your Majesty's domiNions in America, torvards defraying the faid expences, we your Majefty's mont dutiful and loyal fubjects, the commons of

The laft aft; granting duties upon paper, Eic. carefolly purfues thefe modern precedents. The preamble is, "Whereas it is expedient that a revenue should be raisedin your Majesty's dominions in America, for making a more certain and adequate provifon för defraying the tharge of the adminiffration of juffice, and the fupport of civil government in fuch provinces, wobere it 乃all be found neceflary; and towards the further defraying the expences of defonding, protecting and focuring the fuid dominions, we your Majetty's molt dutiful and loyal fubjectic, the commons of Great-Britain, Elc. give and orints," Eic. as before.
${ }^{\text {" Hibe we may obferve an authority exprefyy claimed and exerted }}$ to impofe duties on thefe colonies ; not for the regulation of trade ;

> B
not
MEDT WHEATOF, AND YOR THE COOD AND WILFARE OY YGUA MA:

 The 2gth rsa. II. Chap; 26, and the Ift Geo. II, Chap; 9, whien coninue the 6 th Geo. .II. Chap. ${ }^{13}$, declare, that the faid act hath, by experience, been found ufeful and beneficial, Ef.: Thefe are all the moft confiderable fatues pefound ufoful and beneficial, Go. Thefe are all the moft confiderable fiatures relating to the commerce of the colonies; and it is thought to be utterly unneceffary to add any obfervations to thefe cxtracts, to prove that they were all ceffary to add any obfervations to thefe cxtracts, to prove that they were all intended folely as regulations of traft.
not for the prefervation or promotion of a mutually beneficial in tercourfe between the feveral confituent parts of the empire, heretofare the fole objefts of parliamentary inflitutions; but for the , fingle purpofe of levying money upon us.
This I call an " innovation; and a mof dangerous innovation. It may perhaps be objected, that Great-Britain has a right to lay what duties the pleafes upon her $\dagger$ exports, and it makes no difference to us, whether they are paid here or there.

To this I anfwer. Thefe colonies require many things for their ufe, which the laws of Great-Britain prohibit them from getting any where hut from her. 'Such 'are paper and glass.
THAT we may legally be bound to pay any general duties on thefe commodities, relquive to the regulation of tride, is granted; but we being obliged by ber lawy to take them from Great-Britain, any fpecial duties impofed on their exportation to us only, with intention to raife a revenue frent us only, are as much taxes upon us, as thofe impofed by the Stamp- 12 .
What is the difference in fubfiance and right, whether the fame fum is raifed upon us by the rates mentioned in the Stamp-AR, on the ufe of paper, or by thefe duties, on the importation of it . It is only the edition of a former book, shifting a fentence from the ond to the beginning.
Suppose the duties were made payable in Great-Britain?
IT fignifies nothing to us, whether they are to be paid here or there. Had the Stamp-AA directed, that all the paper hould be landed at Florida, and the duties paid there, before it was brought to the Britijh colonics, would the ąt have raifed lefs money upon us, or have been lefs deftructive of our rights ? By no means : For as we were under a neceffity of ufing the paper, we fhould have been under the neceffity of paying the duties. Thus, in the prefent cafe, a like neseffity will fubject us, if this act continues in force, to the payment of the duties now impofed.
Why was the Stamp-AEt then fo pernicious to freedom ? It did not enact, that every man in the colonies foould buy a certain quantity

* "It in worthy obfervation how quietly fubfidies, grasted in forms wfal and accufomabbl (though heavy) are borne; fuch a power hath ufe and cuftom. On the otber fide, what difcontentmenta and difturbances fubfidies frawed in a new mould do raife (IUCMAN INEAED HATAEDNOVELTY DOTM MATCM) is evident by examples of former times.", Lord Cakr's zd Inftitute, p. 33. 4 Some people think that Great-Britaia has the fame right to impole duties oa the exporta to thefe colonies, an on the exports to Spain and Portugal, ©fr. Such perfons attend fo much to the idea of exportation, that they entirely drop that of the connortion betwow abe mother comarry and ber colomies. If Great-Britain had always claimed, and exercifed an authority to compel Spain and Portagal ta import manufacturea from her only, the cafer would be paraliel: But ar the aever pretended to fuch a right, they are et liberty to get them where they pleafo; and if they chufe to take them from her, rather than from other ase fioos, they voluatarily confent to pay the duties impofed on them.
lly beneficial inhe empire, herens; but for the orous innovation. as a right to lay $t$ makes no difnany things for hibit them from and glas. seneral duties on ide, is granted; m Great-Britains, us onily, with in$h$ taxes upon us, whether the fame te Stamp-AR7, on ation of it. It is ntence from the at-Britain? , be paid here or paper fhould be re it was brought lefs money upon By no means: raper, wé fhould . Thus, in the aft continues in reedom ? It did 'd buy a certain quantity inted in forms wfual ath ufe and cuftom. ubidies framod in a гY поти пАтсн) Aftitute, p. 33 ght to impole duties and Portugal, &'c. at they entirely drop Ithey entirciy drop oain and Portugal ta araliel : But is the araliel : But wh the them where they them.
quantity of paper--No: It only directed, that no inftrument of writing hould be valid in law, if not made on famped paper, Efo

The makers of that act knew full well, that the confufions that would arife from the difure of writirgs, would compel the colonies to ufe the ftamped paper, and therefore to pay the taxes impofed. For this reafon the Stamp-AC was faid to be a law that would execute itself. For the very fame reafon, the laft act of parliament, if it is granted to have any forse here, will execute itself, and will be attended with the very fame confequences to American liberty.
Some perfons perhaps may fay, that this act lays us under no neceffity to pay the duties impofed, becaufe we .atay ourfelves manufacture the articles on which they are laid; whereas by the Stamp-A $A$ no inftrument of writing could be good, unlefs made on Britijh paper, and that too Itamped.

Such an objection amounts to no more than this, that the injury refulting to there colonies, from the total difufe of Briti/s paper and glafs, will not be fo affliaing as that which would have refulted from the total difufe of writing among them; for by that means even the Stamp-Aa might have been eluded. Why then was it univerfally detefted by them as flavery itfelf? Becaufe it prefented to thefe devoted provinces nothing but a "choice of calamities, imbittered by indignities, each of which it was unworthy of freemen to bear. But is no injury a violation of right but the greatef injury ? If the eluding the payment of the taxes impofed by the Stamp-AE, would have fubjected us to a more dreadful inconvenience, than the eluding the payment of thofe impofed by the late act ; does it therefore follow, that the laft is no violation of our rights, tho' it is calculated for the fame purpofe the other was, that is, to raife money upon us, without our consent?

This would be making right to cosfift, not in an examption from injury, but from a certain degres of injury.

Bur the objectors may further fay, that we fhall fuffer no injury at all by the difufe of Briti/b paper and glafs. We might not, if we could make as much as we want. But can any man, acquainted with America, believe this poffible ? I am told there are but two or three Glafs-Houfes on this continent, and but very few PaperMills; and fuppofe more fhould be crected, a long courfe of years muft elapfe, before they can be brought to perfection. This continent is a country of planters, farmers, and fifhermen; not of manufacturers. The difficulty of eftablifhing particular manufactures in fuch a country, is almoft infuperable. For one manufacture is connetted with others in fuch a manner, that it may be faid to be impofible to eftablifh one or two, without eftablifhing feve.

$$
\text { B }_{2}
$$

*Either the difufe of writing, or the payment of caxes impofed by otbers witbout our confenf.

$12]$

ral others. The exporience of many nations may convince us of this truth.
InExpressyafi therefore mult be our diftreffes in evading the late acts, by the difufe of Briti $\beta$ paper and glafs. Nor will this be the extent of our misiortune, if we admit the legality of that ad. Great-Britaic has prohibited the manufacturing iron and fied in thefe colonies, without any objection being made to her right of doing it. The like right the muft have to prohibit any other manufacture among us. Thus the is poffefed of an undifputed precodext on that point. This authority, The will fay, is founded on the original intention of fettling thefe colonies; that is, that fhe fhould manufacture for them, and that they fhould fupply her with materials. The equity of this policy, fhe will alfo fay, has been univerfally acknowledged by the colonies, who never have made the leaft objection to flatutes for that purpofe; and will further appear by the mufual benefts flowing from this ufage, ever fince the fettlement of there colonies.
Our great advocate, Mr. Pitt, in his fpeeches on the debate concerning the repeal of the Stamp-AA, acknowledged, that GreatBritain could reffrain our manufactures. His words are thefe--"This kingdom, as the fupreme governing and legillative power, has always bound the colonies by her regulations:and resstrictions in trade, in navigation, in manufactures---in every thing, except that of taking tbeir. money, out of tbeir pockets, wirtyout their consent." Again he fays, "We may bind their trade, confile their manupactures, and exercife every power whatever, except tbat of taking their money out of their. pockets, without their consent."
Here then, my dear countrymen, rousi yourfelves, and behold the ruin hanging over your heads. If you ONCE admit, that Great-Britain may lay duties upon her exportations to us, for the purpofe of levying money on us only, The then will have nothing to do, but to lay thofe duties on the articles which fie prohibits us to manufacture---and the tragedy of American liberty is finifined. We have been prohibited from procuring manufactures, in all cafes, any where but from Great-Britain (excepting linens, which we are permitted to import direetly from Ireland.) We have been prohibited, in fome cafes, from manufacturing for ourfelves; and may be prohibited in others. We are therefore exactly in the fituation of a city befieged, which is furrounded by the works of the befiegers in every part but one. If that is clofed up, no ftep can be taken, but to furrender at dijcretion. If Great-Britain can order us to come to her for necefflaries we want, and can order us to pay what taxes he pleafes before we take them away, or when we land them here, we are as abject fleves as France and Poland can thew in wooden hoes, and with uncombed hair ${ }^{\circ}$. PER-

- The peafints of France wear wooden hioet ; and the valfals of Poland ars remarkable for matted hair, which never can be combed.

$\left[\begin{array}{ll}13\end{array}\right]$

convince us of in evading the Nor will this lity of that att. aring iron and lg made , to her to prohibit any 1 of an undifhe will fay, is lonies ; that is, y fhoüld fupply te will alfo fay, ies, who never rpofe; and will this ufage, ever on the debate jed, that 'Greatids are there--gillative power, and restric-Res----in every pockets, Withmay bind their exercife every of their pockets, relves, and beONCE admit, ations to us, for 11 :have nothing oh the prohibits serty is finithed. factures, in all g linens, which We have been ourfelves ; and actly in the fituhe works of the up, no ftep can ritain can order can order us to ay, or when we and Poland can

Per-Iffals of Poland an

Perhaps the nature of the neceffities of dependant ftates, caufed by the poligy of a governing one, for her own benefit, may be elucidated by a fact mentioned in hiftory. When the Cartbaginians were poffeffed of the ifland of Sardinia, they made a decree, that the Sardinians thould not raife corn, nor get it any other way than from the Carthaginians. Then, by impofing any duties thay would upon it, they drained from the miferable Sardinians any fums they pleafed; and whenever that oppreffed penple made the leaft movement to affert their liberty, their tyrants ftarved them to death or fubmiffion. This may be called the moft perfect-kind of pelitical neceffity.

From what has been faid, I think this uncontrovertible conclufion may be deduced, that when a ruling ftate obliges a dependant fate to take certain commodities from her alone, it is implied in the:nature of that obligation; is effentially requifite to give it the leaft degree of juftice; and is infeparably united with it, in order to preferve any thare of freedom to the dependarit fate; that thofe commodities foould never be loaded with duties, fOR THE sole purpose of lavying money on the dependant STATE.
Upon the whole, the fingle queftion is, whether the parliament can legally impofe duties to be plaid by the people of ibefe colonies Only, FOR THESOLEPURPOSE OF RAISING A REVENUE, OM COMmodities which foe obliges us to take from ber alone, or, in other words, whether the parliament can legally take money out of our pockets, without our confent. If they can, our boafted liberty is but

Vox. et preterca nibil.
$A$ found and nothing elfe.
A FARMER.

L E T.

L. $\quad \mathbf{E} \quad \mathbf{T} \quad \mathbf{T} \quad \mathbf{E} \quad \mathbf{R}$ III.

My dear Countrymen,

IRE JOICCE to find that my two former letters to you, have been generally received with fo much favor by fuch of you, whofe fentiments I have had an opportunity of knowing. Could you look into my heart, you would intantly perceive a zealous attachment to your interefts, and a lively refentment of every infult and injury offered to you, to be the motives that have engaged me to addrefs you.
I am no further concerned in any thing affeeting Americ , than any one of you; and when liberty leaves it, I can quit it much more conveniently than moft of you: But while Divine Pr svidence, that gave me exiftence in a land of freedom, permits ary head to think, my lips to fpeak, and my hand to move, 1 fhali fo highly and gratefully value the blefling received, as to take care, that my filence and inactivity hall not give my implied affent to any aet, degrading my brethren and myfelf from the birthright, wherewith heaven itfelf " bath made us free *.".
Sorry I am to learn, that there are fome few perfons, who thake their heads with folemn motion, and pretend to wonder, what can be the meaning of thefe letters. "Great-Britain"" they fay, "is too powerful to contend with; fhe is determined to opprefs us; it is in vain to fpeak of right on one fide, when there is power on the other; when we are ftrong enough to refift, we Thall attempt it ; but now we are not flrong enough, and therefore we had better be quiet; it fignifies nothing to convince us that our rights are invaded, when we cannot defend them; and if we fhould get into riots and tumults about the late act, it will only draw down heavier difpleafure upon us."

What can fuch men defign? What do their grave obfervations amount to, but this-...-" that thefe colonies, totally regardiefs of their liberties, fhould commit them, with humble refignation, to cbance, time, and the tender mercicic of miniferrs."

Are thefe men ignorant, that ufurpations, which might have been fuccefffully oppofed at firtt, acquire frength by continuance, and thus become irrefiltable? Do they condemn the conduct of thefe colonies, concerning the Stamp-AZt? Or have they forgot its fucceffful iffue? Ought the colonies at that time, inftead of acting as they did, to have trutted for relief, to the fortuitous events of futurity ? If it is needlefs "to fpeak of rights" now, it was as needlefs then. If the behavior of the colonies was prudent and glorious then, and fucceffful too; it will be equally prudent and glorious

III.

st you, have y fuch of you, of knowing. tlly perceive a refentment of motives that

Americ i, than quit it much ine Pr svidence, its $\pi$.y head to thali fo' highly ecare, that my rent to any act, ght, wherewith perfons, who end to wonder, -Britain," they ermined to op, when there is $h$ to refift, we , and therefore ince us that our nd if we fhould will only draw we obfervations lly regardlefs of refignation, to uch might have by continuance, the conduct of $e$ they forgot its nttead of acting :uitous events of now, it was as vas prudent and ally prudent and glorious glorious to act in the fame manner now, if our rights are equally invaded, and may be as fuccerfful. -Therefore it becomes neceffary to enquire, whether " our rights are invaded." To talk of "defending" them, as if they could be no otherwife "defended" than by arms, is as much out of the way,' as if a man having a choice of feveral roads to reach his journey's end; fhould prefer the wort, for no other reafon, but becaufe it is the worf
As to "riots and tumults," the gentlemen who are fo" apprehenfive of them, are much miftaken, if they think, that grievancés cannot be redrefled without fuch affiftance.
I will now tell the gentlemen, what is "the meaning of thefe letters." The meaning of them is, to convince the people of thefe colonies, that they are at this moment expofed to the moft imminent dangers; and to perfuade them immediately, vigorouly, and unanimouly, to exert themfelves, in the moft firm, but moft peaceable manner, for obtaining relief.
The caufe of liberty is a caufe of too much dignity, to be fal lied :by curbalence and tumult. It ought to be malntained in a manner fuitable to her nature. Thofe who engage in it, fhould breathe a fedate, yet fervent fpirit;' animating them to actions of prudence, juftice, modefty, bravery, humanity and magnanimity.
To. fuch a wonderfal degree were the antient Spirtains, ws brave and free a people as ever exifed; infpired by this happy temperiture of fonl, that rejecting even in their battles the ufe of trumpets, and other inffruments for exciting heat and rage, they mitirched up to fcenes of havock, and horrof ", with the found of flutely, to the fays, "at once a terrible and delightful fight, and proceeding with a deliberate valor, full of hope and good affurancet, az if fome divinity had fenfibly affifed them.'
I норв, my dear countryineh, that you will, in every colony, be upon your guard againft thiofe, who may at any "tivere endeavor to fir you up, unider pretences of patiootifm, to any meafiures difrefpectul to our Sovereigh and our mother countiry. Hot, rafh, diforde'ly proceedings, injure the reputation of a people, as to wifdom, valor and 'virue, 'without piocouring' them the leaft benefit. I pray GOD, "that he may be jleaftd to infpire yba' and your porterity, to the' latef ages, 'with's fpirit of which 1 and youre an idea, that I find a difficulty to exprefs. To exprefs it in the beft manner I can, I miean a fpirit, that fhall ro guide yoü, that it will be impoffible to deterninine whether an American's character is moft diftinguihable, for his loyalty to his Sovereign, his duty to his mother country; his love of freedom, or his affection for his native foil.
Every government at fome time or other falls into wrong meafures.

- Plutarch in the life of Lycurgut. Archbithop Potrer's Archzoologia Grece.

[16]

fures. There may proceed from mitake or paffion. But every. fuch meafure does not difolve the obligation between the governors and the governed. The miftake may, be cotredied; the paffion may fubfide. It is the duty of the governed to endeavor to rectify the miftake, and to appeafe the palfion. 'They have not at firf any other right, than to reprefent their grievances, and to pray for redrefs, unlefs an emergence is fo preffing, as not to allow time for receiving an anfwer to their applications, which rarely happens. If their applications are difregarded, then that kind of oppofition becomes juftifiable, which can be made without breaking the laws, or difturbing the public peace. This confifits in the provention of the opprefors reaping aduantage from tbeir opprefions, and not in their punifhment. For experieace may teach them, what reafon did not ; and harfh methods cannot be proper, till milder ones have failed.
Ir at length it becomes undoubted, that an inveterate refolution is formed to annihilate the liberties of the governed, thie Englifs hiftory affords frequent examples of refiftance, by force. What particular circumfances will in any future cafe juftify fuch refiftance, can never be afcertained, till they happen. Perhaps il may be allowable to fay generally, that it uever can be juftifiable. uncil the people are PULLY CONVINCED, that any, further, fubmifion will be deftructive to their happinefs.
WHSN, the appeal is made to the (word, highly probable is it, that the punifment will exceed the offence; and the calamities attending on war out-weigh thofe preceding it. Thefe confideran tions of juftice and prudence, will always have, great influence with good and wife men.
To thefe reflections on this fubjet, it remains to be added, and ought for ever to be remembered, that refiftance, in the cafe of colonies againft their mother country, is extremely different from the refiftance of a people againtt their prince: A nation may change their king, or race of kings, and, retaining their antient form of government, be gainers by changing. Thus GreatBritair, under the illuftrious houfe of Brunfwick, a houfe that feems to flourifh for the happinefs of mankind, has found a felicity, unknown in the reigns of the Stewarts. But if once we are feparated from our mother country, what new. form of government fhall we adopt, or where fhall we find another Brituin, to fupply, our lofs ? Torn from the body, to which we are united by religion, liberty, laws, affedions, relation, language and commerce, we muft bleed at every vein.
In truth--the profperity of thefe provinces is founded in their dependance on Great-Britain; and when fhe returns to her " old. good humour, and her old good nature," as Lord Clarendon expreffes it, I hope they will always think it their duty and intereft,

But every a the goverd; the pafto endeavor ley have not ices, and to not to allow which rarely that kind of out breaking tis in the proprefions, and them, what $r$, till milder terate refoluned, thie Engforce. What fify fuch rePerhaps it be juftifiable. ; further Gub-probable is it ${ }^{18}$ the calamities hefe conifidera? reat influence to be added, ce, in the care mely different A nation may g their antient Thus Great2 houfe that found a felicity, nce we are feof government tain, to fupply ted by religion, commerce, we ounded in their ns to her " old d Clarendon exhty and intereft, as
as it moft certainly will be, to promote her welfare by all the means in their power.
We cannot act with too much caution in our difputes. Anger produces anger; and differences, that might be accommodated by kind and refpeetful behavior, may, by imprudence, be enlarged to an incurable rage. In quarrels between countries, as well as in thofe between individuals, when they have rifen to a certain height, the firt caufe of diffenfion is no longer remembered, the minds of the parties being wholly engaged in recollecting and refenting the mutual expreffions.of their dillike. When feuds have reached that fatal point, all confiderations of reafon and equity vanih; and a blind fury governs, or rather confounds all things. A people no longer regards their intereft, but the gratification of their wrath. The fway of the *Cleons and Clodius's, the defigning and deteltable flatterers of the prevailing pafion, becomes confirmed. Wife and good men in vain oppofe the form, and may think themfelves fortunate, if, in attempting to preferve their ungrateful fellow citizens, they do not ruin themfelves. Their prudence will be called bafenefs; their moaieration will be called guilt; and if their virtue does not lead them to deftruction, as that of many other great and excellent perfons has done, they may furvive to receive from their expiring country the mournful glory of her acknowledgment, that their counfels, if regarded, would have faved her.
The conflitutional modes of obtaining relief, are thofe which I wifh to fee purfued on the prefent occafion; that is, by petitions of our affemblies, or where they are not permitted to meet, of the people, to the powers that can afford us relief.
We have an excelleut prince, in whofe good difpofitions towards us we may confide. We have a generous, fenfible and humane nation, to whom we may apply. They may be deceived. They may, by artful men, be provoked to anger againt us. I cannot believe they will be cruel or unjuft; or that their anger will be implacable. Let us behave like dutiful children, who have received unmerited blows from a beloved parent. Let us complain to our parent; but let our complaints fpeak at the fame time the language of aftiction and veneration.
$I_{F}$, however, it hall happen, by an unfortunate courfe of affairs, that our applications to his Majefty and the parliament for redrefs, prove ineffectual, let us then take another fep, by withholding from Great-Britain all, the advantages the has been uffed to receive from as. This let us try, if our ingenuity, induftry, and frugality, will not give weight to our remonfrances.' Let us all be united with one fpirit, in one caufe. Let us invent---let us

C

* Clenn was a popular firebrand of Aibent, and Clodius of Remes; each of whom plunged his country into the deepeft calamities.

[ 18 ]

work----let us fave-----let us, continually, keep up our claim, and inceffantly repeat our complaints-----But, above all, let us implore the protection of that infinitely good and gracious being, $\dagger$ " by whom kings reign, and princes decree juftice."

Nil depperandum.
Nothing is to be defpaired of.

> A FARMER.
$\dagger$ Prov. viii. ${ }^{15}$

$\begin{array}{lllllll}\mathrm{L} & \mathrm{E} & \mathbf{T} & \mathrm{T} & \mathrm{E} & \mathrm{R} & \text { IV. }\end{array}$

My dear Countrymen,

AN objection, I hear, has been made againft my fecond letter, which I would willingly clear up before I proceed. "There is," fay thefe objectors, " a material difference between the Stamp-Act and the late att for laying a duty on paper, छ'c. that jultifies the conduct of thofe who oppofed the former, and yet are willing to fubmit to the latter. The duties impored by the Stamp-AEZ were internal taxes; but the prefent are extcrnal, and therefore the parliament may have a right to impofe them."
To this I anfwer, with a total denial of the power of parliament to lay upon thefe colonies any "tax" whatever.
THis point, being fo important to this, and to fucceeding generations, I wifh to be clearly underfood.
To the word "tax," I annex that meaning which the conflitution and hiltory of England require to be annexed to it; that is-.. that it is an impofition on the fubject, for the jole purpofe of lerying money
In the early ages of our monarchy, certain fervices were rendered to the crown for the general good. Thefe were perfonal *: But,

* It is very worthy of remark, how watehful our wife anceftors were, left their fervices thould be encreafed beyond what the law allowed. No man wat bound to go out of the realm to ferve the King. Therefore, even in the conbuering reign of Henry the Fifth, when the martial fpitit of the nation was querilg enflamed by the heroic courage of their Prince, and by his great fuchighly enm itl carefully guarded againt the eftablithment of illegal fervices. "efs, Whey till care (fyys "When this point (fays Lord Chicf Juftice Coke) concerning maintenance of wars out of England, came in queftion, the commons did make their conimmal claim of their antient freedom and birtbrigbt, ${ }^{24}$ in the firt of Henry ${ }^{\text {ibr Fift }}$ and in the feventh of Henry tbe Fifib, \&c. the commoni made a PROT EST, that they were not bound to the maintenance of wat in Scotland, Ircland, Calicy, Francs,
our clain, all, let us ious being,

M ER.
V.
my fecond efore I pro-- a material or laying a fe who opthe latter. xes ; but the have a right ff parliament eceeding ge-the conflitut; that is--ve of lerying were renderfonal * : But,
in Afors were, left - No man was ven in the con-the nation was the nation was illegal fervice. maintensnce of et their continual flenry tbe Fiff PROTEST, PR OT EST,
Ircland, Calict, , Irrlama, Calict,
in procefs of time, fuch inflitutions being found inconvenient, giffs and grants of their own property were made by the people, under the feveral names of aids, tallages, talks, taxes and fubfidies, Eoc. Thefe were made, as may be collected even from the names, for public forvice upon "need and neceffity t". All thefe fums were levied upon the people by virtue of their voluntary gift $\ddagger$. Their defign was to fupport the national bonor and intereff. Some of thofe grants comprehended duties arifing from trade; being impofts on merchandizes. Thefe Lord Chief Juftice Coke claffes under "fubfidies," and "parliamentary aids." They are alfo called "cuftoms." But whatever the name was, they were always confidered as gifts of the people to the crown, to be employed for public ufes.

Commerce was at a low ebb, and furprizing inflances might be produced how little it was attended to for a fucceffion of ages. The terms that have been mentioned, and, among the reft, that of "tax," had obtained a national, parliamentary meaning, drawn from the principles of the conflitution, long before any Eng lijhman thought of impofition of duties, for the regulation of trade.
Whenever we fpeak of "taxes" among Englifomen, let us therefore fpeak of them with reference to the principles on which, and the intentions with which they have been eftablifhed. This $\mathrm{C}_{2}$ * will Frante, Normandy, or other forcign parts, and caufed their PROTESTS to be entered into the parliament, rolls, where they yet remain; which, in effect, agreeth with that which, upon like occafion, was made in the parliament of 25 th Edward I." ad Inf. P. 528.

1 4th Inft. R. 28.
$\ddagger$ Reges Anglize, wibil tale, nifi convocatis primis ordinibws, "t affentience populo fufcipiunt. Phil. Comines. ad Inf.
Thefe gifts entirely depending on the pleafure of the donort, were propoztioned to the abilities of the feveral ranke of people who gave, and were reguInth year a tbirtictb from the laity, a twenties. Thus Edward $\downarrow$. had in his year a tentl, from the laify, a fixtb from London, and other corporate lowns, balf of their beneficas from the clergy ; in his a3d year an eleverntb from the barons and others, a sentb from the clergy, a fcumib from the burgefli, EOc. Hume's Hiff. of England.
reigns. In the
In the famovs fatute dt sallagio non concodondo, the king enumerates the fove-rax-...6 nullum tallapium confent, he and his heirs never thould fet or levy any tax-..." nullum tallagium, vel auxilium per nos, vel bareden nofiros in regno noffro ponatur fen levetur, fine voluntate et afinfu arebiepifcoporum, apifcoporum, comilum, baronum, militum, burganfiwm, et aliorum liberorum com. de regns nofro." 34ch Edruard I.
Lord Chief Juftice Coke, in his comment on thefe worde, fays...."* for the quieting of the commons, and for a perpetual and conftamp lave for ever after, both in this AND OTMERLiKE"CABEs, this aet was made." Thefe worde are flain, WITHOUT ANY ©CRUPIE, abfolut, without ANY SAviNG." ad Coke's Int. P. 532, 533. Little did the venersble judgeimagine, that of otber Like cafes would happen, in which the fpizit of this law would be defpifed by Einglifomen, the pofterity of thofe who made it.

[20]

will give certainty to our exprefion, and fafety to our conduct : But if, when we have in view the liberty of thefe colonies, wo proceed in any other courfe, we purfue a guno \| indeed, but fhall only catch a cloud.
In the national, parliamentary fenfe infifted on, the word " tax $\S$ " was certainly underthood by the congrefs at New-York, whofe refolves may he faid to form the American "bill of rights."
Th third, fourth, fifth, and lixth refolves, are thus expreffed.
III. "THAT it is injeparably efintial to the frecedom of a people, and the undoubted right of Englifpuen, that *NO TAX he impofed on them, but wuith their ousen confeut, given perfonally, or by their reprefentatives."
IV. "That the people of the colonies are not, and from their local circumftances, cannot be reprefented in the houfe of commons in Great-Britain."
V. "That the only reprefentatives of the peopic of the colonies, are the perfons chofen therein by themfelves; and that NO TAXES ever lave been, or can be conftitutionally impofed on them, but by their refpective legiflatures."
VI. " That all fupplies to the crozun, oing free gifts of the people, it is unreafonable, and inconfifent ith the principles and ppirit of the Britifh confitution, for the peo grant to his Majefty the property of the colonies."

Here is no diftinction made between internal and external taxes. It is evident from the hort reafoning thrown into theie refolves, that every impofition "" to grant to his Majefty the property of the colonies," was thought a "tax;" and that every fuch impofition, if laid any other way, than " with their confent, given perionally, or by their reprefentatives," was not only "unreafonable, and inconfiftent with the principles and fpirit of the Briti/b conttitution," but deftructive " to the freedom of a people."

Tris language is clear and important. A." tax" means an impofition to raife money. Such perfons therefore as fpeak of internal and external "raxes," I pray may pardon me, if I objet to that expreffion, as applied to the priviluges and interefts of thefe colonies. There may be internal and external impositions, founded on diffrent principles, and having different tendencies; every "tax" being an impofition, tho' every impofition is not a "tax." But all taxes are founded on the fame principle; and have the fame tendency.
# The Goddefs of Empire, in the Heathen Mythology
§ In this fenfe Montefquieu ufes the word "tax," in his $13^{\text {th }}$ book of Spirit of Laivs.

* The rough draught of the'refolves of the congrefs at Nequ-York are now in my han andifom fome notes on that draught, and other particular reafods, fam faisfied, the the congrefs underfood the word "tax" in tenfe bere oniended fos.
conduct : colotiles, wo ed, but Thall

1, the word I Nequ-York, ll of rights." us exprefed. nof a people, X he impored , or by their nd from their of commons

Ic of the coes ; and that nally impored e gifts of the principles and eat-Britain to external taxes. theie refolves, proefty of the impofition, if en perfonally, rable, and inconttitution," x" means an e as fpeak of a me, if I obnd interefts of mpositions, ziencies ; every not a "tax." have the fome Exter according to an th book of Spiris
u-Tork aze now in particular reafons, in the fenfe here

Extrrnal impofitions, for the regulation of our tratie, so not " grant to his Majefty the property of the colonies." They only prevent the colonies acquiring property, in things not neceflary, in a manner judged to be injurious to the welfare of the whole empire. But the laft Itatute refpecting us, "grants to his Majefty the property of the colonies," by laying duties on the manufactures of Great-Britain which they must take, and which fhe fetted them, on purpofe that they should take.

What - tax can be more internal than this? Here is money drawn, without their confent, from a fociety, who have conftantly enjoyed

- It feems to be evident, that $\mathrm{Mr}_{\mathrm{s}}$. Pitr, in his defence of America, during the debate concerning the repeal of the Stamp-AA, by "intermal taxes," meant any duties " for the purpofe of raifing a revenue "" and by "cxirrnal taxto," meant dutices impofed "for the regulation of trade." His exprefions ore thefe-.." If the gentleman does nol underftand the difference between internal and external taxee, I cannot help it ; but there is a plin difinction between tazes levied foathepurfuszs or anisino a aidzave, and duties impofed rok thz azgulation of thadz, for the accommodation of the fubject; altho', in the confequencet, fome revenue might incidentally arife from the latter."
Thefe words were in Mr. Pirs's reply to Mr. Greenville, who faid he could nut underftand the difference between external and intermal taxes.

In every other part of his fpeeches on that occafion, his wards confirm this In every other part of his (peeches on that occafion, his wards confirm this conftruction of his exprefions. The fullowing extraets will thew how pofitive conftuction of his expreffions, The fnllow and general were his affertions of our right.
"It is my opinion that this kingdom has no atont to lay a tax upon the colonies."..."The Americans are the sons, not the zastands of England. Taxation is no ifart of the governing or legiflative power"....-" The caxes are a voluntary gift and grant of the commond ALONE. In izzoisiaTION the THAEE eftates of the realm are ALIEX concerned, but the concurrence oi the Pzesas and the caown to a TAX, is only neceffary to clofe with the rorm of a law. The girt and GaANT is of the commons alone.".... "Tbe difinezion beeween Legaslation and taxation is efintially meefiary ta liberry."-...."The commung of America, zeprefented in their feveral affemblies, have ever been in pofieffion of the exercife of this their conititutional right, of giving and granting their own money. Thry would bave been SLAVES, if sbey bad not enjogrd is." "The idea of a virtual reprefentation of America in this houfe, is the moft contenaplible idea that ever entered into the head of man.--.lt does not deferve a ferious refutation."

He afterwards thews the unreafonablenefs of Greas-Britain taxing America, thus-..." When I had the honnr of lerving his Majefty, I availed myfeif of the means of information, which I derived from my office, I speak thzazFOAE FXOM KNOWLgDGE. My materials were guod. I was at paina to col-- liEt, to digeft, to confider them; and $I$ will be bold to affrm, that the profit to Croat-Britain from the trade of the culonies, through all its branches, is тwo Militions A YEAR. Tbis is the fund that carried you triumphantly through the laft war. Tl!: eftates that were rented at two thoufand pounds a year, threefcore years ago, are three theufand pounds af prefent. Thofe eftatea fold then from fifteen to eighteen years purchafe; the fame may now be fold fur thirty. You owethisto America. ThisisthepricetyatamzRICAPAYS YOU FOZ HERYROTRCTIUN."...." I dare not fay bow much bigher thefe profits may be augraented."..." Upon the whole, I will beg leave to tell the houfe what is really my opinion; it is, that the Stamp-AII be reto tell the houfe what is really my opinion; it is, that the $S t a m p-A E z$ be repealed abfolutely, totally, and immediately. That the reafon for the repeal be afigned, becaufe it was founded of an Ezinoneous paincipiz."
enjoyed a conflitutional mode of raifing all money among themfelves. - The payment of this tax they have no poffible method of avoiding; as they cannot do without the commodities offwhich it is laid, and they cannot manufacture thefe commodities themfelves. Befides, if this unhappy country fhould be fo lucky as to elude this adt, by getting parchment enough, in the place of paper, or by reviving the antient method of writing on wax and bark, and by inventing fomething to ferve inftead of glafs, her ingenuity would ftand her in little ffead; for then the parliament would have nothing to do but to prohibit fuch manufactures, or to lay a tax on bats and zvoollen clotbs, which they have already prohibited the colonies from fupplying each otber with; or on inftruments and tools of feel and iron, which they have prohibited the provincials from manufacturing at all $\dagger$ : And then, what little gold and filver they have, muft be torn from their hands, or they will not be able, in a fhort time, to get an ax $\ddagger$, for cutting their firewood, nor a plough, for raifing their food. In what refpect, therefore, I beg leave, to afk, is the late att preferable to the Stamp-ACI, or more confiftent with the liberties of the colonies? For my own part, I regard them both with equal apprehenfion ; and think they ought to be in the fame manner oppofed.

Habemus quidem fenatus confultum,----------tanquam gladium in vagina repofitum.
We have a flatute, laid up for future ufe, like a fword in the fcabbard.

A FARMER.

t "And that pig and bar iron, made in his Majefty' colonies in America, may be vurther manuractuzedin this king iom, be it further enacted by the authority aforefaid, that from and after the twenty-fourth day of Fune, 1750 , no mill, or orber engine, for fitting or rolling of iron, or any plating forge, 10 work with a tilt Lammer, or any furrace for making feet, mall be creeted; or, after fuch ereftion, continued in Anvor his Majsity's coloniza in Amraten." $23^{\mathrm{d}}$ George II. Chap. 29, Seat. 9 .
$\ddagger$ Tho thefe particulars are mentioned as being abrolutely neceffrry, yet perhaps they are not more fo than glaft in our fevere wintern, to keep out the cold from sur houfts ; or than paper, without which fuch inexprefibible confufions muft effue.

L E T-
ey among themoffible method of lities oflwhich it dities themfelves. ucky as to elude ice of paper, or and bark, and , her ingenuity arliament would ures, or to lay a ready prohibited inftruments and $d$ the provincials e gold and filver will not be able, - firewood, nor a therefore, I beg $m p-A c t$, or more my own part, I hink they ought quam gladium in like a fword in

R MER.

colonies in America, , be it further en: wenty-fourth day of iroon, or any plating Acel, thall be erectMajegtres coleneceffary, yet per-- keep out the cold prefiible confufions

L E T-

${ }^{\prime} L \cdot \begin{array}{llllll}\mathbf{L} & \mathbf{T} & \mathbf{T} & \mathbf{E} & \mathbf{R} & \mathbf{V}\end{array}$

My dear Countrymen,

PERHAPS the objection to the late act, impofing duties upon paper, E'c. might have been fafely ref.ed on the argument drawn from the univerfal conduct of parliaments and minifters, from the firf exiftence of thefe colonies, to the adminifration of Mr. Greenville.

What but the indifputable, the acknowledged exclufive right of the colonies to tax themfelves, could be the reafon, that in this long period of more than one hundred and fifty years, no fatute was ever paffed for the fole purpofe of raifing in revenue on the colonies : And how clear, how cogent muft that reafon be, to which every. parliament, and every minifter, for fo long a time fubmitted, without a fingle attempt to innovate?
Encland, in part of that courfe of years, and Great-Britain, in other parts, was engaged in feveral fierce and expenfive wars; troubled with fome tumultuous and bold parliaments; governed by many daring and wicked minifters ; yet none of them ever ventured to touch the Palladium of American liberty. Ambition, avarice, faction, tyranny, all revered it. Whenever it was neceffary to raife money oh the colonies, the requiftions of the crown were made, and dutifully complied with. The parliament, from time to time, regulated their trade, and that of the refl of the empire, to preferve their dependence, and the connection of the whole in good order.
The people of Great-Britain, in fupport of their privileges, boaft much of their antiquity. It is true they are antient; yet it may well be quetioned, if there is a fingle privilege of a Britijb fubject, fuppoited ly longer, more folemn, or more uninterrupted teftimony, than the exclufive right of taxation in thefe colonies. The people of Great-Eritain confider that kingdom as the fovereign of thefe colonie, and would now annex to that fovereignty a prerogative never heard of before. How would they bear this, was the cafe their own? What would they think of a new. prerogative claimed by the crown ? We may guefs what their conduct would be, from the tranfiports of paffion into which they fell about the late embargo, tho' laid to relieve the moft emergent neceffities of flate, admitting of no delay; and for which there were numerous precedents. Let our liberties be treated with the fame tendernefs, and it is all we defire.
Explicit as the conduct of parliaments, for fo many ages, is, to prove that no money can be levied on thefe colonies by parliament, for the purpofe of raifing a revenue, yet it is not the only evidence in our favor.

Eviry

Every one of the moft material arguments againft the legality of it e Stamp-Act, operates with equal force againt the aft now objected to; but as they are well known, it feems uninteflary to repeat them herc.
This $^{\text {gencral one only fhall be confidered at prefent: That }}$ tho' thefe colonies are dependent on Great-Britain; and tho' he has a legal power to make laws for preferving that dependence; yet it is not neceffary for this purpofe, nor effential to the relation between a mother country and her colonies, as was eagerly contended by the adrocates for the Stamp-diz, that fhe hould raife money on them without their confent.
Colonies were formerly planted by warlike nations, to keep their enemies in awe ; to relicve their country, overburthened with inhabitants; or to difcharge a number of difontented and troublefome citizens. But in more nodern ages, the firit of violence being, in fome meafure, if the expreflion may be allowed, fheathed in cominerce, colonies have been fettled by the nations of Europe for the purpofes of trade. Thefe purpofes were to be attained, by the colonies raifing for their mother country thofe things which the did not produce herfelf; and by fupplying themfelves from her with things they wanted. Thefe were the national objeats in the commencement of our colomies, and have been uniformly fo in their promotion.

To anfwer thefe grasid purpofes, perfect liberty was known to be neceniary; all hiftory proving, that trade and freedom are nearly related to each other. By a due regard to this wife and juf plan, the infant colonies, expofed in the unknown climates and. unexplored wilderneffes of this new world, lived, grew, and flourifhed.
THE parent councry, with undeviating prudence and virtue, attentive to the firf principles of colonization, drew to herfelf the benefits fhe nightr reafonably expect, and preferved to her children the bleflings, on which thofe benefits were founded. She made laws, obliging her colonies to carry to her all thofe products which The wanted for her own ufe; and all thofe raw materials which the chofe herfelf to work up. Befides this reftriction, fhe forbad them to procure manufuctures from any other part of the globe, or even the products of European countries, which alone could rival her, without heing firt brought to her. In fhort, by a variety of laws, She regulated their tade in fuch a manner as the thought mof conducive to their inutui 1 advantage, and her own welfare. A power was referved to the crown of rcpealing any laws that fhould be enz.eted: The executive authority of government was alfo lodged in the crown, and its reprefentatives; and an appeal was fecured to the crown from all judgments in the adminiftration of juftice.
For all thefe powers, eftabliihed by the mother country over the colonies; for all thefe immenfe emoluments derived by her

[^0]
[ 25 ]

ft the legality : the act now unneceffary to refent: That and tho' the : dependence ; :o the relation s eagerly cone fhould raife tions, to keep urthened with ted and trouit of violence owed, fheath lations of Euto be attain$y$ thofe things ing themfelves national objeczs n uniformly fo was known to dom are nearswife and juft climates and rew, and fouand virtue, atto herfelf the o her children d. She made roducts which rials which the te forbad them globe, or even uid rival her, ariety of laws, ught moft conare. A power Ihould be enalfo lodged in was fecured to of juftice. country over derived by her from
from them; for all their difficulties and diftreffes in fixing themfelves, what was the recompence made them? A communication of her rights in general, and particularly of that great one, the foundation of all the relt----that their property, acquired with fo much pain and hazard, fhould be difpoted of by none but * themfelves--or, to ufe the beautiful and einphatic language of the facred feriptures $\dagger$, " that they mould fit every man under his vine, and under. his fig-tree, and none should makethem afraid."
CAN any man of candor and knowledge deny, that thefe inftitutions form an aflinity between Great-Britain and her colonies, that fufficiently fecures their dependence upon her? Or that for her to levy taxes upon them, is to reverfe the nature of things? Or that the can purfue fuch a meafure, without reducing them to a flate of vaffalage?
If any perfon cannot conceive the fupremacy of Great-Britain to exift, without the power of laying taxes to levy money upon us, the hiftory of the colonics, and of Great-Britain, fince their fettlement, will prove the contrary. He will there find the amazing advantages arifing to her from them-.--the conflant exercife of her fupremacy---and their filial fubmiffion to it, without a fingle rebellion, or even the thought of one, from their firit emigration to this moment----And all thefe things have happened, without one initance of Great-Britain's laying taxes to levy money upon them.

How many $\ddagger$ Britifb autbors have demonftrated, that the prefent wealth, power and glory of their country, are founded upon D
" The power of taxing tbemfelves, waa the privilege of which the Englif wete, withexazon, particularly jealous." Hume's Hiff. of England.
$\dagger$ Mic.iv. 4.
$\ddagger$ It has been faid in the Houfe of Commona, when complaints have been made of the decay of trade to any part of Europe, "That fuch things were not worth regard, as Great-Britain was poffeffed of colonies that could confume more of her manufactures than the was able to fupply them with."
"Aa the cafe now ftands, we fhall thew that the plantations are a fpring of wealib to this nation, that they woork ior wat that the plantations are a fring of Allhene, and that the laws have tied them faft enough to us; fo that it muit be through our own fault and mifmanagement, if they become indemust be through our own fault and mifmanagement, it they become inde"It is better that the iflands thould be fupplied from the Northern Coloni than from England; for this reafon, the provifions we might fend to Barbados, Famaica, Ecc. would be unimproved product of the earth, as grain of all kinds, or fuch product where there is little got by the improvement, as malt, falt beef and pork; indeed the exportation of falt fifh thither would be more advantageous, but the goods which we fend to the Nortbern Colonite, are fuch, whofe improvement may be junly faid, one with another, tos be near four ffibs, of the value of the wbole commodity, as apparel, houfhold furniture, and.maky other thinga."
${ }^{1 d \mathrm{~d} \text { cm. }}$
" Neiv-England is the moft prejulicial plantation to the kingdom of Eng. land; and yet, to do right to that moft induftrious Englifh colony, I nuft confefi, that though we lofe by their unlimited trade with other foreign plantationa, yet

［ 26 ］

thefe colonics ？As conftantly as freams tend to the ocean，have they been pouring the fruits of all their labors into their mother＇s lap． Good heaven！and thall a total oblivion of former tenderreffes and bleffings，be fpread over the minds of a good and wife atation， by the fordid arts of intriguing men，who，covering their felfifh projects under pretences of public good，firf enrage their country－ men into a frenzy of paffion，and then advance their own influence and interell，by gratifying the pafion，which they themfelves have bafely excited．

Hitherto

we are very gteat gainers by their direct trade to and from Old England．Our yearly exportationa of Englifh manufactures，malt and other goods，from hence thither，amounting，in my opinion，to ten times the value of what is imported from thence；which calculation I do not make at random，but upon mature confideration，and，peradventure，upon as mucb experience in obis very trade，as any other perfon will pretend to；and therefore，whenever reformation of our cor－ refpondency in trade with that people fhall be thought on，it will，in my poor judgment，require GRIAT TENDRRNRss，and veay seaious circum－ apection．＂Sir JosiahChild＇s Difoourfe on Trade．
＂Our plantation：fpend moftly our Englij manufactures，and thofe of all forts almoff imaginable，in egregiour quanrities，and employ near two thirds of all our Englifh Bipping；fo that we have more people in England，by rear
Sir Josiah Child fays，in another part of hia work，＂That not more than fifty families are maintained in England hy the refining of fugar．＂From whence， and from what Davenant faya，it is plain，that the advantages here faid to be derived from the plantations by England，muft be meant chiefly of the conti－ iental colunies．
＂I I thall fum ip my whole remarks on our Americon colonies，with this ob－ fervation，that as they are a certain annoal revenue of severac miciione steating to their mother country，they ought carefully to be protected，duly encouraged，and every opportunity that prefents，improved for their increment and advantage，as every one they can poffibly teap，muft at laft retorn to us with interch．＂

Beawrs＇i Lee Dierc：Red
＂We may fafely advance，that our trade and navigation are greatly encreafod by our colonies，and that they really are a fource of treafure and naval power to this kingdom，fince they work for us，and their theasuticentixa mine．Before their fettlement，our manufactures were few，and thofe but in－ different；the number of Englifo merchants very fmall，and the whole thip－ ping of the natiun much inferios to what now belongs to the Northern Coloniea only．＊Tbefe are cerfain facto．But fince their eftablifhment，our condition has altered for the better，almoft to a degree beyond credibility．．．－OUR MANUYAC－ tungs are prodigioully encieafed，chiefly by the demand for them in the plan－ many valuable commodities for exportation，which is as great an emolument to the mother kingdom，as to the plantations themfelves．

Postiethwayt＇s Univi，Diff．of Trade and Commerce，
＂Moft of the nations of Europe have interfered with us，more or lefs，in divers of our ftaple manufactures，within half a century，not only in our wool－ ien，but in our lead and tin manufactures，as well as our fifterles．＂

Postcethwayt，ibid．
＂The inhabitants of our colonies，by carrying on a trade with their forrigs meigbboure，do not only occafion a greater quantity of tbe goodd and mercbandizat of Europe being fent from bence to them，and 2 greater ouantity of the product of Amorica to be fent from them hither，wobicb would athervoife be carried from，
n, have they iother's lap. tenderreffes wife station, their felfin eir countrywn influence mfelves have

Hitherto England. Our ds, from hence hat is imported at upon mature ry trade, as any tion of our corill, in my poor ous ciacum. urfe on Trade. and thofe of all twe thirds of all yy reafon of ous dem. t not more than "From whence, bere faid to be y of the conti-

3, with this obAL mited, duly protected, duent their increment eft Merc: Red. jreatly encreafod d naval power to ORE CENTEKS ad thofe but inthe whote thiporthern Colonies ur condition has ur manurac. em in the planfupply us with n emolument to Hitherto Great-Britain has been contented with her profperity. Moderation has been the rule of her conduct. But now, a generous humane people, that fo often has protected the liberty of firangers, is enflamed into an attempt to tear a privilege from her own children, which, if executed, muft, in their opinion, fink them into flaves: And for what ? For a pernicious power, not eceffary to her, as her own experience may convince her; but horribly dreadful and deteftable to them.

D 2
IT
and brougbt to Europe by foreigners, but in increafe of the feamen and navigasion in thofe parts, which is of great frength and fecurity, as well as of great advantage to our plantations in general. And though fome of our colonies are not only for preventing the importations of all goods of she fame fpecies they produce, but fuffer particular planters to keep great rucis of land in tbeir pofeffion uncultivared, with defign to prevent new fettlements, whereby they imagine the prices of their commodities may be affected; yet if it be confidered, that the markety of Great-Britain depend on the markets of ALr. Europe in general, and that the Ruropean markets in general depend on the propostion between the annual confumption and the whole quantity of each fpecies asnually produced by ALL nations; it muft follow, that whether we or foreigners are the producers, carriers;' importers and exporters of American produce, yet their refpective prices in eacb colony (the difference of freight, cuftoms and importations confidered) will always bear proportion to the general confumption of the whole quantity of each fort, peoduced in all colonies, and in all parss, allowing only for the ufual contingenties that trade and commerce, agriculture and manufactures, are liable to in all countrade and commerce, agriculture and manuractures, are liable to in all countries." trits."
"It is certain, that from the very time Sir Walter Raleigb, the father of our Englif colooies, and his affociates, firf projected thefe efablifhments, there have been perfons who have found an intereft, in mifreprefenting, or leffening the value of them----The attempts were called chimerical and dangerous. Afterwards many malignant fuggeftiona were made about facrificing fo matay Englifomen to the obftinate defire of fettling colonies in couhtriea which then produced very little advantage. But as thefe difficulties were gradually furmounted, thofe complaints vanifhed. No fooner were tbefe lamentations over, but otbersarofe in their tead; when it could be no longer faid, that the colonies. were ufelefs, it was alledged that they were not wfeful enougb to their mother country; that while we were loaded with taxes, they were abfolutely free; that the planeers lived like princes, while the inhabitants of England laboured hard for a tolerable fubfittence."

Postietwifyt, ibid.
"Before the fettlement of thefe colonies," fays Pofiletioway", "c cur manufactures were few, and thofe but indifierent. In thofe days we had not only our naval fores, but our thipe from our neighbours. Germany furnifhed us with all thinga made of metal, even to oails. Wiac, paper, linens, and a thoufand other things, came from France. Portugal fupplied us with fugar; all the producta of America were poured into us from Spain; and the Venetians and Genoefe retailed to us the commodities of the Eafi-Indies, :t their own price."
" If it be afked, whether foreigners, for what goods they take of us, dn not pay on tbat confumption a great portion of our taxes? It is admitted they do."

Postlethwayt's Geeat-Britain's True Syfem.
"If we are afraid that nne day or othet the colonies will revolt, and fet up for themfelves, as fome feem to apprehend, let as not drive them to a neceffiry to feel themfelvea independent of us 3 as they will do, the moment they perceive that THET CANBESUPPLIED WITH ALI, THINGSFROM WITHIN THEMSELVES, and do not need our affiftance. If we would keep them fill dependeat upon their-mother country, and, in fome refpects, fubfervient

Ir feems extremely probable, that when cool, difpaffionate pofterity, thall cumider the affentionate intercourle, the reciprocal benefits, and the unfuppecting confidence, that have fubfilted between thefe colonies and their parent country, for fuch a leng. of tic: B ,
fubfervient to her viewt and welfare; let us make it their intzrzst always to bubfervien

Our colonies, while they have Englif, blood in their veins, and have ielatioas in England, and while Ther Can ofror and kingdom will got by. the fronger and greater they grow, the more this crown and king them defperate, them; aud nothing but fuch an arbitrary power as thall make tantation Trade. an bring them to rebel.
upon the fame footing as thofe of the "The Northern colonies are not upon the fame footing as rempence South; and having a worie foil to improve, the and dominion : Upon which fome other way, which only can be in properiy and dominion thould be cautifcore, any INNOVATIONS in the form of government bere, thour the induftry oully examined, for fear of entering upon mealures, by which the inte for of the inhabitants he quite difcouraged. a people, either by consint, or upon compulsion, to depart from their pasmitive ingtitutions, and thoserundanimntem.
whe colu. a is to make it their common The moft effectual way of uniting the colv...a, is to mak intereft to oppofe the defigns and attempts of Great-Britain.
"All wife frates will well, confider how to preferve the advantages arifing from colonies, and avoid the evils. And I conceive that there can be but rwo ways in nature to hinder them from throwing off their dependence; one, to keep it out of their power, and the otber, out of their will. The firf muft be by force; and the latter, by ufing tbew well, and keeping them employed in fuch productions, and making fuch manufactures, as will fupport themfelves and families comfortably, and procire tbem weallb roo, and at leatt not prejudice their. mother. country.
"Force can never be ufed effectually to anfwer the end, without defiroying the colonies themfelves. Liberty and encsuragement are neceffary to carry people chither, and tokeep them together when they are there; and violence will hinder both. Any body of troops, confiderable enough to awe them, and keep them in fubjection, in fubjection, under the direction tifance from any application for redrefs, will make his fortune, and at fuch a dintance from any applo the foldiers alone, and foon put an end to all planting, and leave the country Tor this reafon, arbitrary if it did not, would cat up all tbe profit of tbe colony. Foling colonies with free ones; countries have not been equally fuccersful in pianting con by force, at a vaftexand what they have done in that kind, has either been by force, pence, or by departing from the nature of ibeir government, and giving fucb privivileges to planters $2 s$ were denied to tbeir otber fuegecti. Ahd I dare fayy that a few peudent laws, and a little prudent conduct, would ioon give us far the greater thare of the riches of all America, perhaps drive many of other nations out of it, or into our colonies for thelter.
"'There are fo many exigencies in all fates, fo many foreign wars, and domofic difurbances, that thefe colonies CANNEvEAWANT OPPOATUNITIES, if they watelı for them, to do what tbey fall find tbeir interef to do; and therefore we ought to take all the precautiong in our power, that it thall never be tbeir insereff to act againft that of their native country; an evil which can no otherwife be averted, than by keeping them fully employed in fuch trades as will increafe tbeir own, as well as our wealith; for it is much to be feared, if we do not find employment for tbem , they may find it for us; the intereft of the mother cuuntry, is always to keep then dependent, and fo employed; and it requires. all her addrefs to do it ; and it is certainly more eafily and effectually done by gentle and infenfible methods, than by power alone."

Cato's Letters.

$\left[\begin{array}{ll}29\end{array}\right]$

faffionate pothe reciprocal : fubfifted be :h a leng. of tic: - , ceneat always to kEA on Trade. ns, and have reing witn us, gdom will $g e t$ by them defperate, lantation Trade. as thofe of the the recompence n: Upon which fhould be cautiich the induftry -OATUNATE for onare from their s, by which they e it their common
tages arifing from be but two waya e; one, to keep it muft be by force $;$ d in fuch produc. felves and families adice their mother.
thout dofirgying the y to carry people violence will hinmi, and keep them ten fent thither to n for redrefa, will foldiers alone, and is reafon, arbittrary es with free ones; force, at a vaft exgiving fucb privilare fay, that a few us far the greateft ther nations óut of arr, and domefic diUNitiEs, if they. UNITIES, if they Il never be tbeir inwhich can no otherwhich can as oilher- will in-
: trades :h tracet at will no feared, if we do not feared, if we do not ereft of the mother ereft of the mother. ed; and it requiren.
effectually done by Cato's Letrers.
time, they will execrate, with the bittereft curfes, the infamous memory of thofe men, whofe peftilential ambition unneceffarily, wantonly, cruelly, firft opened the fources of civil difcord between them; firft turned their love into jealoufy; and firf taught thefe provinces, filled with grief and anxicty, to enquire--.-

Mens nbi materna eft ?
Wherc is maternal affection?
A FARMER.
$\begin{array}{lllllll}\mathbf{L} & \mathrm{E} & \mathbf{T} & \mathbf{T} & \mathbf{E} & \mathrm{R} & \mathrm{VI} .\end{array}$

My dear Countrymen,

IT may perhaps be objected againft the arguments that have been offered to the public, conccrning the legal power of the parliament, " that it has always exercifed the power of impofing duties, for the purpofes of raifing a revenue on the productions of thefe colonies carried to Great-Britain, which may be called a tax on them." To this objection I anfwer, that this is no violation of the rights of the colonies, it being implied in the relation between them and Great-Britain, that they fhouid not carry fuch commodities to other nations, as ihould enable them to interfere with the mother country. 'The impoition of duties on thefe commodities, when brought to her, is only a confequence of her parental right; and if the point is thoroughly examined, the duties will be found to be laid on the people of the mother country. Whatever they are, they mult proportionably raife the price of the goods, and confequently muft be paid by the confumers. In this light they were confidered hy the parliament in the 25 th Cbarles II. Chap. 7 , Sect. 2, which fays, that the productions of the plantations were carried from one to another free from all cuftoms, " while the fubjects of this your kingdom of England have paid great cuffoms and impofitions for what of them bave been SPENT HERE,". छci.
Brsides, if Great-Britain exports thefe commodities again, the duties will injure her own trade, fo that fhe cannot hurt us, without plainly and immediately hurting herfelf; and this is our check againt her aeting arbitrarily in this refpect.

* Ir may be perhaps further objected, " that it being granted that Itatutes made for regulating trade, are binding upon us, it
* If, any one fhould obferve that no oppofition has been made to the legality of the 4th Geo. III. Chap. $\mathbf{1 5}$, which is the Fiast act of parliament that ever impofed duties on the importations into America, for the expreffed purpofe of xailing a revenue there; I anfwer----Fift, That thu' the act expreny mentiona will be difficult for any perfons, hut the makers of the laws, to determine, which of them are made for the regulating of trade, and which for raifing a revenue; and that from hence may arife confufion.'

[ 30 ]

To this I anfwer, that the cbjection is of no force in the prefent cafe, or fuch as refemble it; becaufe the ad now in queftion, is formed exprefy for the sole purpose of raising a revenue.

However, fuppofing the defign of parliament had not been expreffed, the objection feems to me of no weight, with regard to the influence which thofe who may make it, might expect it ought to have on the conduct of thefe colonies.
It is true, that impofitions for raifing a revenue, may be hereafter called regulations of trade: But names will not change the nature of things. Indeed we ought firmly to believe, what is an undoubted truth, confirmed by the unhappy experience of many flates heretofore free, that unless the most watchfulattention be exerted, a new servitude may be shipped upon us, under the sanction of usual and respectableterms.
Thus the Cafars ruined the Roman liberty, under the titles of tribunicial and diftatorial authorities---old and venerable dignities, known in the moft fouriming times of freedom. In imitation of the fame policy, James II. when he meant to eftablifh popery, talked of liberty of confcience, the moff facred of all liberties; and had thereby almoft deceived the Diffenters into deftruction.
AlL artful rulers, who frive to extend their power beyond its juft limits, endeavor to give to their attempts as inach femblance of the raifing a revenue in America, yet it feems that it had as much in view the "improving and fecuring the trade between the fame and Grat-Brizain," which wordiare part of itit title 1 And the pramble fayd, "Whereas it is expedient that new provifiont and regulations fhould be effablified for improving pedier revenue of this kinglom, and for extending asd fecuring tbe navigation and Cermectec bervouen Great-Britain and your Majefy's dominiont in A merica, which by the peace have been fo happily extended and enlarged," ©ic. Secondly, All the dutier mentioned in that att are impored folely on the produciann and mannfre fofeure of our mother country. Thirdly, The authority of the provincial affouliee is not therein fo plainly attacked as by the laf aet, which makee prorembier is nor hereth arger of the " adminiftration of juffice," and "the vifion for defraying the charge, " Fourthly, That it being doubtfful, whether the fupport of civil governmentil. fupport of civil governmenti. Frourthy, wat no as much to regulatt trade, as to intention of the 4th Geo. of the people here were wholly engrofied by the ter or raife a revenke, the mindz of the peoppe here were whoty engronetion co which of the Stamp-Aat, then there enuld be no doubr. difinguin the 4th Geo. IIII. Chap. 15, from the laft at, Thefe rexpon! fo far diftinguinh the th Gee. M. Chap. 15, from the lant a, that it in not to be wondered at, that the enfrt hnould haited oppontion. For tbis tho' the laff thould excite the mof univerfal and fiprited opporition. For th it will be found, on the fricteft exumination, to be, in the principle on which it in founded, and in the confequerces that muff attend it, if poffibe, more deftruchaving one Britifh feature.

[ 31

of legality as poffible. Thofe who fucc:: $: d$ them may venture to go a little further; for each new encroachment will be ftrengthened by a former. " + That which is now fupported by examples, growing old, will become an example itfelf,", and thus fupport frefh ufurpations.
A free people therefore can never be too quick in obferving, nor too firm in oppofing the beginnings of alteration either in form or reality, refpecting inftitutions formed for their fecurity. The firf kind of alteration leads to the laft : Yet, on the othe hand, nothing is more certain, than that the forms of liberty may be retained, when the fubfance is gone. In government, as well as in religion, "The letter killeth, but the Spirit giveth life $\ddagger$."
I will beg leave to enforce this remark by a few inftances. The crown, by the conflitution, has the prerogative of creating peers. The exiftence of that order, in due number and dignity, is effential to the conftitution; and if the crown did not exercife that prerogative, the peerage muft have long fince decreafed fo much as to have loft its proper influence. Suppofe a prince, for fome unjuft purpofes, fhould, from time to time, advance fo many needy, profigate wretches to that rank, that all the independence of the houfe of lords fhould be deftroyed; there would then be a manifeft violation of the conftitution, under the appearance of ufing legal prerogative.

THE houfe of commons claims the privilege of forming all money bills, and will not fuffer either of the other branches of the legiflature to add to, or alter them; contending that their power fimply extends to an acceptance or rejection of them. This privilege appears to be jult: But under pretence of this juft privilege, the houfe of commons has claimed a licence of tacking to money bills, claufes relating to things of a totally different kind, and thus forcing them in a manner on the king and lords. This feems to be an abufe of that privilege, and it may be vaftly more aburfed. Suppofe a future houfe, influenced by fome difplaced, difcontented demagogues---in a time of danger, fhould tack to a money bill, fomething fo injurious to the king and peers, that they would not affent to it, and yet the commoms fhould obftinately infift on it; the whole kingdom would be expofed to ruin by them, under the appearance of maintaining a valuable privilege.

In thefe cafes. it might be difficult for a while to determine, whether the king intended to exercife his prerogative in a conftitutional manner or not; or whether the commons infifted on their demand factiounly, or for the public good: But furely the conduct of the crown, or of the houfe, would in time fufficiently explain itfelf.

Ought not the people therefore to watch ? to obferve facts? w. fearch into caufes ? to inveftigate defigns? And have they not a right of judgina from the evidence before them, on no flighter points than their liberty and happiness? It would be lefs than trifling, wherever a Britifo government is eftablifhed, to make ufe of any arguments to prove fuch a right. It is fufficient to remind the reader of the day, on the anniverfary of which the firf of thefe letters is dated.

[ $3^{2}$ ]

I will now apply what has been faid to the prefent queftion.
The nature of any impofitions laid by parliament on thefe colonies, muft determine the defign in laying them. It may not be eafy in every intlance to diicover that defign. Wherever it is doubtful, I think fubmifion cannot be dangerous; nay, it murt be right; for, in my opinion, there is no privilcge thefe colonies claim, which they ought in duty and prudence more earnelty to maintain and defend, than the authority of the Britifl, parliament to regulate the trade of all her doninions. Without this authority, the benefits fhe enjoys from our commerce, muft be loft to her: The bleffings we enjoy from our dependence upon her, muft be loft to us. Her frcugth muft decay; her glory vanifh; and the cannot fuffer without our partaking in her misfortune. Let us therefore cheribh ber interefts as our own, and give ber every thing, that it becomes freemen to give or to reccive.
The nature of any impofitions the may lay upon us may, in general, be known, by confidering how far they relate to the preferving, in due order, the connection between the feveral parts of the Britifh empire. One thing we may be affured of, which is this----Whenever the impofes duties on commodities, to be paid only upon their exportation from Great-Britain to thefe colonies, it is not a regulation of trade, but a defign to raife a revenue upon us. Other inflances may happen, which it may not be neceffary at prefent to dwell on. I hope thefe colonies will never, to their lateft exiftence, want underflanding fufficient to difcover the intentions of thofe who rule over them, nor the refolution neceffary for afferting their interefts. They will always have the fame rights, that all free flates have, of judging when their privileges are invaded, and of ufing all prudent meafures for preferving them.

2 2ucirca vivite fortes
Fortiaque adverfs opponite pectora rebus.
Wherefore keep up your finits, and gallantly oppofe this adverfe courfe of affairs.

A FARMER.

L E T-
 lefs than trito make ufe of ent to remind ch the firt of nt queftion. t on thefe co-
It may not Wherever it is ; nay, it muft thefe colonies e earnefly to tifl/ parliament out this authonuft be loft to ipon her, mult y vanifh; and isfortune. Let give ber every ve. on us may, in ate to the preeveral parts of $d$ of, which is ies, to be paid thefe colonies, a revenue upnot be necefwill never, to to difcover the lution neceffary the fame rights, ivileges are inving them.
allantly oppofe

R MER.

LET:

$\begin{array}{lllllll}\mathbf{L} & \mathbf{E} & \mathbf{T} & \mathbf{T} & \mathbf{E} & \mathbf{R} & \text { VII. }\end{array}$

My dear Countrymen,

TH I S letter is intended more particularly for fuch of you, whofe employments in life may have prevented your attending to the confideration of fome points that are of great and public importance: For many fuch perfons there muft be even in thefe colonies, where the inhabitants in general are more intelligent than any other people whatever, as has been remarked by ftrangers, and it feems with reafon.
Some of you, perhaps, filled, as I know your breafts are, with loyalty to our moft excellent Prince, and with love to our dear mother country, may feel yourfelves inclined, by the affections of your hearts, to approve every action of thofe whom you fo much venerate and efteem. A prejudice thus flowing from goodnefs of difpofition, is aniable indeed. I wifh it could be indulged withour danger. Did I think this poffible, the error fhould have been adopted, and not oppoferi by me. But in truth, all men are fubject to the frailties of nature; and therefore whatever regard we entertain for the perfons of thofe who govern us, we Chould always remember that their condact, as rulers, may be influenced by human infirmities.

When any laws, injurious to thefe colonies, are paffed, we cannot fuppofe, that any injury was intended us by his Majefty, or the Lords. For the affent of the crown and peers to laws, feems, as far as I am able to judge, to have been vefted in them, more for their own fecurity, than for any other purpofe. On the other hand, it is the particular bufinefs of the people, to enquire and difcover what regulations are ufeful for thenifelves, and to digeft and prefent them in the form of bills, to the other orders, to have them enacted into laws. Where thefe laws are to bind themfilves, it may be expected, that the houfe of commons will very carefully confider them: But when they are making laws that are not defigned to bind themflelves, we cannot imagine that their deliberations will be as * cautious and ferupulous, as in their own cafe.

E

Iam

- Many remarkable inftances might be produced of the extraordinary inatention with which bills of great importance, concerning thefe colonies have paffed in parliament; which is owing, as it is fuppofed, to the bills being brought in by the perfons who have points to carry, fo artfully framed, that is 6 not eafy for the membere in general, in the hafte of bufinefs, to difcover their tendency.
The following inftances fhew the truth of this remark. When Mr. Greenvill,, in the violence of reformation, formed the 4th Geo. III. Chap. igth; for regulating the American trade, the word "Ircland"" was dropt in the claufe re-

$34]$

I am told, that there is a wonderful addrefs frequently ufed in carrying points in the houfe of commons;' by perfons experienced in thefe affairs.-..-That opportunities are watched---and fonetimes yotes are paffed, that if all the members had been preient, would have heen rejected by a great majority. Certain it is, that when a powerful and artful man has determined on any meafure ar inft thefe colonies, he has always tucceeded in his attempt; "haps therefore it will be proper for us, wheneyer any oppre . act asfecting us is paffed, to attribute it to the inattention ' he memhers of the houfe of commons, and to the malevoler or ambition of fome factious great man, rather than to any $\mathrm{a}^{*}$ - caufe.
Now I do verily believe, that the late act of parliament, impofing duties on paper, E̛e. was formed by Mr. Greenville, and his, party, hecaufe it is evidently a part of that plan, by which he endeavoured to render himfelf popular at home; and I do alfo belicve, that not one half of the members of the houfe of commons, even of thofe who heard it read, did perceive how deflruative it was to American freedom. For this reafon, as it is ufual in Great-Britain, to confider the King's speech as the fpeech of the minintry, it may be right here to confider this act as the act of a party $-\ldots$ - perhaps I fhould feak more properly, if I was to ufe another term.

There
lating to our iron and lumber, fo that we coald fend thefe asticles to no part of Eurnpe, but to Great-Britain. This was fo unreafonable a refriction, and contrary to the fentiments of the leginature for many years before, that it is conraizing it hould not have been taken notice of in the houfe. Hotiover the furp pafied into a law. But when the matter was explained, this refrncion was bill paneed into aubrequent aet. I cannot pofitively fay how long after the taking caken of by aidion, as I have not the aft, but I think, in lefs than 18 months, off this rellricion, aniament pafficd, in which the word "Ireland" was left out, another aft of pariiament palied, in which being a fecond time explained, was a juft at it had been befo
Now if it be confidered, that the omifion mentioned fruck off with onir
Now if it be confidered, that the omimon ment, it mun appear remarkable; word so vEAY GAEATAPART OF oUR CRADE, and equally fo is the method, by which (faya Mr. [a] Gee) by one Cole, a Cap"The enumisation was obtained (raya Mr. (a) Gee) Carone for feveral tain of a Saip, el ployed by a company then trading en thips going from Kingland thither, and purchaling rice for Portuga, peffefed one the aforefois Crytais of a loading. Upon his coming home, he pplayed to preMr . Lexpunder, a member of parliament (wbo way very frequenoly employed a prepare bills) with an opinion, that carrying rice directiy to claufe into an aet, to judice to the trade of England, and paivataly, got a claure inta an a ar, make it ann enumerated commodity ; by whicb mean! be fecured a frigbo
But Thaconsequinceracion I find that this claufe, "privatriy got into an ace" ron the foifed into or Captain Cole, to the vast Losi "An for granting to her Maor $3^{d}$ and 4 th Ann, Chap. sth, intituled, "An act for granting to her Maiefy a further fubfidy on wines and merchandizes imported, with which, is has no mure conneetion, than with $344^{\text {th }}$ Edward 1. the 34 th and 35 th of

[a] Gue on Trade, page 32.

[ 35 ]

Tuere are two ways of laying taxes. One is, by inpofing a uently ured in ns experienced and fonetimes pretent, would g, that when a reafure ar inft mpt. .haps spré . act afis, the memor ambition & caufe. lianient, impoenville, and his y which he enand I do alfo houfe of comceive how dereafon, as it is ch as the fpeech is act as the act if I was to ufe

There
ticles 10 no part of hicletiotion and fo befor , that it is befor, that it . However the this reftriction was ng after the taking if than 18 months, land " was left out, cuck off with ow E $t$ appear remarkable; nerated commodity. ,y one Cole, a Cap. Carolina $;$ for feveral Portugal, prezented ac, he poffeffed one vently employed 10 prePortugal, was a prePortugal, was a preleufe inta an aet, to a freigbt to bimfalf. c NATION:" COE THEMANEPIT 10 N, " is foifted into granting to her Mated,"' with which it red," with which, it he $34^{\mathrm{th}}$ and 35 th of THATATIE certain fum on particular kinds of property, to be paid by the ufer or confumer, or by rating the perfon at a certain fum. The other is, by impofing a certain fum on particular kinds of property, to be paid by the feller.

When a man pays the firf fort of tax, he knorvs wuith certainty that he pays fo much money for a tax. 'The confideration for which he pays it, is remote, and, it may be, does not occur to him. He is fenfible too, that he is commanded and obliged to pay it as a ta.x; and therefore people are apt to be difpleafed with this fort of tax.

The other fort of tax is fubmitted to in a very different manner. The purchafer of any article, very feldom reflects that the feller raifes his price, fo as to indemnify himfelf for the tax be has paid. He knows that the prices of things are continually fuctuating, and if he thinks about the tax, he thinks at the fane time, in all probability, that he might have paid as much; if the article he buys had not been taxed. He gets fomething vifible and agrecable for his money; and tax and price are fo confounded together, that he cannot feparate. or does not chufe to take the trouble of feparatiing them.
This mode of taxation therefore is the mode fuited to arbitrary and oppreffive governments. The love of liberty is fo natural to the human heart, that unfeeling tyrants think themfelves obliged to accommodate their fchemes as much as they can to the appearance of juftice and reafon, and to deceive thofe whom they refolve to deffroy, or opprefs, by prefenting to them a miferable picture of freedom, when the ineftimable original is lof.
This policy did not efcape the cruel and rapacious NERO. That montter, apprehenfive that his crimes might endanger his authority and life, thought proper to do fome popular acts, to fecure the obedience of his fubjects. Ainong other things, fays' $\tau_{a}$. citus, " he remitted the twenty-fifth part of the price on the fale of flaves, but rather in Bew than reality; for the fellier being ordered to pay it, it became part of the price to the bujer II."
This is the reflection of the judicious Hiforian'; but the deluded people gave their infanous Emperor full credit for his falfe generofity. Other nations have been treated in the fame manner the Romans were. The honeft, induttrious Germans, who are fettled in different parts of this continent, can inform us, that it was this fort of tax that drove them from their native land to our woods, at that time the feats of perfect and undiflurbed freedom.
Their Princes, enflamed by, the luft of power, and the luit of avarice, two furies that the more they are gorged, the more hungry they grow, tranfgreffed the bounds they ought, $\cdot$ n regard to themfelves, to have obferved. To keep up the deception in the-minds of fubjects, " there mult be," fays $\dagger$ a very learned author, " fome proportion between the impof and the value of the commodity; wherefore there ought not to be an exceffive duty upon merchandizes of little value. There are countries in which the duty exceeds feventeen or eighteen times the value of the commodity. In this cafe the Prince removes the illufion. His fubjects plainly fee they are dealt with in an unreafonable manner, which renders them mof exquifitely fenfible of their flavih fituation." From hence it appears, that fubjects may be ground down into mifery by this fort of taxation, as well as by the former. They will be as much impoverifhed, if their money is taken from them in this way as in the other; and that it will be taken, may be more evident, by attending te a few more confiderations.

E 2
| Taritu's Ann. Book 13, §. 31.

[ 36 ].

The merchant or importer, who pays the duty at firf, will not confent to be fo much money out of pocket. He therefore proportionably raifes the price of his goods. It may then be faid to be a contelt between him and the perfon offering to buy, who fhall lofe the daty. This muft be decided by the nature of the commodities, and the purchafer's demand for them. If they are mere luxuries, he is at liberty to do as he pleafes, and if he buys, he does it voluntarily: But if they are abfolute necefarics, or conveniences, which ufe and cuftom have made requifite for the comfort of life, and which he is not permitted, by the power impofing the duty, to get elfewbere, there the feller has a plain advantage, and - the buyer muf $f$ pay the duty. In fact, the fether is nothing lefs than a collector of the tax for the power that impofed it. If thefe duties then are extended to the neceffaries and conveniences of life in general, and enormoufly encreared, the people muft at length become indeed " mof exquifitely fenfitle of their flavifh ficuation." Their happinefs therefore entirely depends on the moderation of thofe who have authority to impore the duties.
I shall now apply thefe obfervations to the late act of parlia- ${ }^{-1}$ ment. Certain duties are thereby impofed on paper and glafs, imported into thefe colonies. By the laws of Great-Briain we are prohibited to get thefe articles from any other part of the world. We cannot at prefent, nor for many years to come, tho' we fhould apply ourfelves to thefe manufactures with the utmof induftry, make enough ourfelves for our own ufe. That paper and glafs are not only convenient, but abfolutely neceffary for us, I imagine very few will contend. Some perhaps, who think mankind grew wicked and luxurious, as foon as they found out another way of communicating their fentiments than by fpeech, and another way of dwelling than in caves, may advance so whimfical an opinion. But I prefume no body will take the unneceffiry trouble of refuting them.

From
$\dagger$ Montefquieu's Spirit of Laww, Bnsict 13, Chap. 8.
ed author, " fome the commodity ; y upon merchan hich the duty exe commodity. In bjects plaigly fee hich renders them

From hence it mifery by this fort ill be as much imin this way as in re evident, by at-$y$ at firft, will not He therefore prolay then be faid to to buy, who fhall pature of the comIf they are mere nd if he buys, he eceffaries, or conveite for the comfort ower impofing the in advantage, and ler is nothing lefs pofed it. If thefe onveniences of life ple muft. at length r flavifh ficuation." the moderation of late act of parliaaper and glafs, im-reat-Briain we are part of the world. me, tho' we fhould e utmoft induftry, paper and glars are for us, I imagine ink mankind grew out another way of , and another way imfical an opinion. $y$ trouble of refut

From thefe remarks I think it evident, tha~ we muft ufe paper and glafs; that what we ufe, muft be Britif; and that we muf pay the duties impofed, unlefs thofe who fell thefe articles, are io generous as to make us prefents of the duties they pay.

Some perfons may think this act of no confequence, becaufe the duties are fo fimall. A fatal error. That is the very circumftance moft alarming to me. For I am convinced, that the authors of this law would never have obtained an act to raife fo trifling a fum as it muft do, had they not intended by it to eftablifh a precedent for future ufe. To confole ourfelves with the fmallne/s of the duties, is to walk deliberately into the fnare that is fet for us, praifing the neatne/s of the workmanship. Suppofe the duties impofed by the late act could be paid by thefe diftrefled colonies with the utmoft eafe, and that the purpofes to which they are to be applied, were the moft reafonable and equitable that can be conceived, the contrary of which I hope to demonftrate before thefe letters are concluded; yet even in fuch a fuppofed cafe, thefe colonies ought to regard the act with abhorrence. For who are a freepecple? Not thofe, over whom government is reafonably and equitably exercifed, but thofe, who live under a government fo confitutionally checked and controuleds that proper provifion is made againft its being otherwife exercifed,

The late act is founded on the deftruction of this conftitutional fecurity. If the parliament have a right to lay a duty of Four Shillings and Eight-pence on a hundred weight of glafs, or a ream of paper, they have a right to lay a duty of any other fum on either. They may raife the duty, as the author before quoted fays has been done in fome countries, till it "exceeds feventeen or eighteen times the value of the commodity." In fhort, if they have a right to levy a tax of one penny upon us, they have a right to levy a million upon us: For where does their right fop? At any given number of Pence, Shillings or Pounds ? To attempt to limit their right, after granting it to exift at all, is as contrary to reafon---as granting it to exift at all, is contrary to jultice. If they have any right to tax $u$-- then, whether our own money fhall continue in our o.wn pockets or not, depends no longer on us, but on them. $\ddagger$ "There is nothing whirh" we "can call our own; or, to ufe the words of Mr. Locke-...-What troperty have" we "in THAT, WHICH , NOTH:SR MAY, yY RIGHT, TAKE, WHEN, HE pleases, to himsthfi"

Thefe duties, which will inevitably of levied upon us-uwhich are now levying upon us---are exprefly laid for the sole purpose OF TAKING MONEY. This is the true definition of "taxes." They are therefore taxes. This money is to be taken from us. $W_{c}$
FROM
$\ddagger$ I.ord Cambden's fpeech.

$\left[\begin{array}{ll}3^{8}\end{array}\right]$

We are therefore taxed. Thofe who are taxed without their own confent, expreffed by themfelves or their reprefentatives, are flaves. We are taxed without our own confent, expreffed by ourfelves or our reprefentatives. We are therefore-....-§ $\subseteq L A V E S$.

Miferabile cuulgus.
A miferable tribe.
A FARMER.
6 "It is my opinion, that this kingdom bas no right to lay a tax upon the col-nies."-.-" The Americans are the sons, not the BABTA2DS of Engiand." -... The diftinction between iEGIBLATION and TAXATION is efterir feveral cefliay to liberty."..." The commons of America, reprefented in their risera affemblies, have ever been in poffefion of this their They would have been giving AND GRANTING THEIR OWN MONEY SLAVES, if they had mot enjoyed it. tion of America in this houfe, is the mont contempiole idea, that inato the head of man,----It does not deferve a

Mr. Pitt's Spectb on the Sraty ...t.
That great and excellent man Lord Cambden, mantaina the ior of a His (peech in the houle of peers, on the declaratory hill or papers. The iol-Great-Britain over the colonies, has lately appeared in our paper. avowed in Grawing extracta fo perfectly agree with, and confirm the fentiments avowed in lowing extracta for peris hoped the inferting them in this note will be excufed there letters, "flair is of the $u$ (moft importance, and in its confequences may in-
"olve the Sate of kingdomi, I took the frietef review uf my argumente; 1 revolve the sate of king domit I tooklly determined, if I found myfelf minaiken, eramined all my authoifake, and give up my opinion : But my fearches have publickly to own my mifake, and give up my optioment have NO RIGHT more and more convinced me, that the Britijb pariamene $;$ it is as old as the conftitution; it grew up with it; indeed it inited. GOD hath joined them : and anprainctation are infeparablem : To endeavour to do it, is to flab No Britifo.,
"My pofition is this----I repeat it-...-I will maintain it to my laft hour-... taxation end representation are infeparable-.-this pofition in founded on the laws of nature it is more, it isfelf an mternal laiv of naTURE; for whatever is a man'o own, is abfolutely his own i NOMANHATA
 preffed by himfelf or reprefentative; ruboever attempts co do it, atcmptr an injuw prefferven dors it, COMMITSAROBBERT; ME THROWA DOWN TME Dlade of graft, in the mont obfcure corner of the kingdom, which is not, a blade of gas not ever reprefented, fince the contitution began a Thers is not a blate, of grafi, which, when taxed, was not taxed by the confont of tbe propriesor." of graft, which, jeet themfelves to every danger and diftrefs, TO BE nidocso ro a datz jeet themines. They did not give up their righta: They looked for protection, or slaviny. and mot for chains, from their mothor conty, and not to be deprived of it: For defended in the pol power continue, thenisis nothino which thiycin thould the prefent power continue, THERE of Mr. Lockr, "WHAT PROCALE THEIN own; or, trent PERTYHAVETHET NTHAT, HE PLEASES, TO HIMBYRIG out their own ves, are flaves. by ourfelves or VES.

R M E R.

- A tax upon the aps of Engiand." N is effentially need in their feveral itutional right, of would have been would wirtual reprefentewirtual reprefentathat." ion. the Srampans the bime of $a$ the torrignty papers. The tolwill be excufed. will be exculed.
ifequences may inIfequences may in-arguments; I reargumento; re-myfelf miftiken, myfelf miftuisen, $t$ my fearches have NO RIGHT we NO RIGHT
it is as old as the it is as old as the -..." Taxation ath joined them $:$ to do it, is to ftab to my latt hour-e.pofition is faunded AAL lativ or na; NOMANHATH NsINT, either exNsENT, ottempti an injury; , attemplıan injury; ETHAOWs DOWN
"-.."There is not , m, which is not m, which is not, Thers is not a blade "t of the proprietor." e country, and fubICEDTOABTATE oked for protection, hey expected to be deprived of it : For WHICHTHEYCAN WHATPRO. VOTHER MAY, ES, TO HIM

$\begin{array}{lllllll}\mathbf{L} & \mathbf{E} & \mathbf{T} & \mathbf{T} & \mathbf{E} & \mathbf{R} & \text { VIII. }\end{array}$

My dear Countrymen,

IN my opinion, a dangerous example is fet in the laft act relating to thefe colonies. The power of parliament to levy - money upon us for raifing a revenue, is therein avorved and exerted. Regarding the aet on this fingle principle, I muft again repeat, and I think it my duty to repeat, that to me it appears to be unconfitutional.
No man, who confiders the conduct of the parliament firce the repeal of the Stamp-AEt, and the difpofition of many people at home, can doubt, that the chief object of attention there, is, to ufe Mr. Greenville's expreffion, " providing that the dependence and OBEDIENCE of the colonies he afferted and maintained."
UNDER the influence of this notion, inftantly on repealing the Stamip-Afz, an act paffed, declaring the power of parlizment to bind thefe colonies in all cales zubatever. This however was only planting a barren tree, that caft a 乃bade indeed over the colonies, but yielded no fruit. It being determined to enforce the authority on which the Stamp-AZz was founded, the parliament having never renounced the right, as Mr. Pitt advifed them to do; and it being thought proper to difguife that authority in fuch a manner, as not again to alarm the colonies; fome little time was required to find a method, by which both thefe points fhould be united. At laft the ingenuity of Mr. Greenville and his party accomplifhed the matter, as it was thought, in "an act for granting certain duties in the Britifb colonies and plautations in America, for allowing drawbacks," ${ }^{\circ} \mathrm{C}$. which is the title of the act laying duties on paper, $\underbrace{\circ} \mathrm{c}$.-
The parliament having feveral times before impofed duties to be pais in America, it was expected, no doubt, that the espatition of such a measure would be passed over, as an usval thing. But to have done this, without exprefy " afferting and maintaining" the power of parliament to take our mosey without our confent, and to apply it as they pleafe, would
not

It is impoffible to read this fpeech, and Mr. Pitt's, and not be charmed with the generout zeal for the rights of mankind that glows in every fentence. Thefe great and good men, animated by, the fubject they feeak upon, feem to rife nbove all the former glorious exertions of their abilities. A foreignet might be tempted to think they are Americans, afferting, with all the ardure of patriotifm, and all the anxiety of apprehenfion, the caufe of their native land--. and not Britom, Ariving to fop their miftaken countrymen from opprefing others. Their reafoning is not only juft-oit is, as Mr. Hume fays off the elo quence of Demofbenes, "vehement." It is ciifdain, anger, boldnefi, freedom, involved in a continual fream of argument.

[ 40 ]

not have been, in Mr. Greenville's opinion, fufficiently declarative of its fupremacy, nor futiciently deprefive of American freedom.
Therefore it is, that in this menorable act we find it exprcfly " provided," that money fhall be levied upon us without our cons fent, for purposes, that render it, if poffible, more dreadful than the Stamp-Act.
That aet, alarming as it was, declared, the money thereby to be raifed, fhould be applied "towards defraying the expences of defending, protecting and fecuring the Briti/h colonies and plantations in America. "And it is evident from the whole att, that by the word " $B r i$..$j$," were intended colonies and plantations jettled by Britifh peop? , and not generally, thofe fibject to the Britifh crown. That act therefore feemed to have fomething gentle and kind in its tention, and to aim only at our crun revelfare: But the act now fetted to, impofes duties upon the Britijh colonies, " to defray expences of defending, protecting and fecuring bis Majefy's dominions in America."
What a change of words! What an incomputable addition to the expences intended by the Stamp-Aiz! "His Majcfy's dominions" comprehend not only the Britifh colonies, but alfo the conquered provinces of Canada and Florida, and the Britifh garrifons of NovaScotia; for thefie do not deferve the name of colonies.
What juftice is there in making us pay for "defending, proecting and fecuring". these places? What benefit can we, or lave we ever derived from them? None of them was conquered for us ; nor will "be defended, protected or fecured" for vs.
In faet, however advantageous the fubduing or keeping any of thefe countries may be to Great-Britain, the acquifition is greatly injurious to thefe colonies. Our chief property confifts in lands. Thefe would have been of much greater value, if fuch prodigious additions had not been made to the Britijh territories on this contineit. The natural increafe of our own people, if confined within the colonies, would have raifed the value till higher and higher every fifteen or twenty years: Befides, we fhould have lived more compaatly together, and have been therefore more able to refift any enemy. But now the inhabitants will be thiniy fcattered over an immenfe region, as thofe who want fettlements, will chufe to make new ones, rather than pay great prices for old ones.
These are the confequences to the colonies, of the hearty affiftance they gave to Great-Britain in the late war---2 war undertaken jolely for ber owun benefit. The objects of it were, the fecuring to herfelf the rich tracts of land on the back of thefe colonies, with the Indian trade; and Nova-Scotia, with the fifhery. Theff, and much more, bas tbat kingdom gained; but the inferior animals, that hunted with the lion, have been amply rewarded for all the fweat and blood their loyalty coft them, by the honor of having fweated and bled in fuch company.

[41]

tly declarative can freedom. find it exprely thout our con> dreadful than ney thereby to 1e expences of nies and planle att, that by untations jettled Britihh crown. and kind in its ut the act now s, " to defray g bis Majefy's addition to the dominions" : conyuered proions of Nova-efending, profit can we, or was conquered d" fer us. keeping any of tion is greatly mfifs in landst uch prodigious $s$ on this conconfined withher and higher ave lived more ole to refift any ttered over an chufe to make of the hearty --a war undere, the fecuring there colonies, finery. Thefs, nferior animals, ded for all the nor of having

I wale.

I will not go fo far as to fay, that Canada and Nova-Scotia are curbs on New-England; the cbain of fort: through the back woods, on the Middle Provinces; and Flurida, on the reft: But I will venture to fay, that if the products of Canaia, Norva-Sotia, and Florida, deferve any confideration, the two firlt of them are only rivals of our Northern Colonies, and the other of our Southern.
Ir has been faid, that without the conqueft of thefe countries, the colonies could not have been "protected, defended and fecured." If that is true, it may with as much propriety be faid, that Great-Brittin could not have been " defended, protected and fecured," without that conqueft: For the colonies are parts of her empire, which it as much concerns ber as them to keep out of the hands of any other power.
But thefe colonics, when they were much weaker, defended themfelyes, befure this Conqueft was made; and could again do it, againft any that might properly be called tbeir Enemies. If France and Spain indeed fhould attack them, as members of the Britif empire, perhaps they might be diftrefied; but it would be in a Britijh quarrel.
The larguf account I have feen of the number of people in Canada, does not make them exceed 90,000 . Flori.ia can hardly be faid to have any inhabitants. It is computed that there arc in our colonies $3,000,000$. Our force therefore muft increafe with a difproportion to the growth of tbeir frength, that would render us very fafe.
Tris heing the ftete of the cafe, I cannot think it juft that thefe colonies, labouring under fo many misfortunes, thould be loaded with taxes, to maintain countries, not only not ufeful, but hurtful to them. The fupport of Canada and Florida coft yearly, it is faid, half a million tterling. From hence, we may make fome guefs of the load that is to be laid upon Us; for we are not only to "defend, protet and fecure" them, but alfo to make "an adequate provifion for defraying the charge of the adminiftration of juffice, and the fupport of civil goverrment, in fuch provinces where it thall be found neceffary."
Not one of the provinces of Canada, Nova-Scctia, or Florida, has ever defrayed thefe expences withinin iffelf: And if the duties in-pofed by the laft fatute are colletted, all of them together, according to the beft information I can get, will not pay one quarter as mucb as Pennfylvania alone. So that the Bititif colonies are to be drained of the rewards of their labor, to cheriuh the fcorching fands of Florida, and the ify rocks of Canaca and Nova-Scotia, which,never will retuin to us one farthing that we fend to them:
Great-Britain---I mean, the miniftry in Great-Britain, has cantoned Canada and Florida out into five or fix governments, and may form as many merr. There now ze fourteen or fffteen regjments on this continent; and here foon may be as many mere. To make "an adequate provifion" por all these expences, is, no doubt, to be the inberitance of the colonies.

$42]$

Can any man believe that the duties upon paper, छoc. are the laff that will be laid for thefe purpofes? It is in vain to hoide, that becaufe it is imprudent to lay duties on th- ins an of manufactures from a mother country to colonies, as it may proniote nanufactures among them, that this confideration will prevent fuch a meafure.
Ambitious, artful men have made it popular, and whatever injultice or deftruction will attend it in the opinion of the colonifts, at home it will be thought juft and falutary*.
THE people of Great-Britain will be told, and have been told, that they are finking under an immenfe debt----that great part of this debt has been contracted in defending the colonies---that thefe are fo ungrateful and undutiful, that they will not contribute one mite to its payment---nor even to the fupport of the army now kept up for their "defence and fecurity"---that they are rolling in wealth, and are of fo bold and republican a fpirit, that they are aiming at independence---that the only way to retain them in "obedience," is to keep a flrict watch over them, and to draw off part of their riches in taxes---and that every burden laid upon them, is taking off fo much from Great-Britain.---Thefe affertions will be generally believed, and the people will be perfuaded that they cannot be too angry with their colonies, as that anger will be profitable to themfelves.

In truth, Great-Britain alone receives any benefit from Canada, Nova-Sotia and Florida; and therefore fhe alone ought to maintain them. The old maxim of the law is drawn from reafon and juftice, and nevar could be more properly applied, than in this cafe.

2ui jentit commodum, fentire debet et onus.
They who feel the benefit, ought to feel the burden.
A FARMER.
" So credulout, as well as obfinate, are the people in believing every ebing, "So credulous, as well as obfinare, which flatters their prevailing paffion."

Hume's Hiff. of England.

$\begin{array}{lllllll}\mathbf{L} & \mathbf{E} & \mathbf{T} & \mathbf{T} & \mathbf{E} & \mathbf{R} & \mathbf{I X} .\end{array}$

My dear Countrymen,

IHAVE made fome obfervations on the purposes for which moacy is to be levied upon us by the late act of parliament. I hall now offer to your confideration fome further reffections on that fubject : And, unlefs I am greatly miftaken, if thefe purpofes are accomplifhed according to the exprefed intention of the act, they will be found effectually to fuperfede that authority in our refpetive affemblies, which is effential to liberty. The queftion is not, whether fome branches fhall be lopt off---The axe is laid to the root of the tree; and the whole body muift infallibly perinh, if we remain idle fpectators of the work.

No free people ever exiftcd, or can ever exift, without keeping, to ufe a common, but frong exprefion, "the purfe ftrings," in their own hands. Where this is the cafe, they have a confitutional check upon the adminiftration, which may thereby be brought into order without violence: But where fuch a power is not lodged in the people, opprefion proceeds uncontrouled in its career, till the governed, tranfported into rage, feek redrefs in the midft of blood and confufion.
The elegant and ingenious Mr. Hume, fpeaking of the Angio Norman government, fays-L-." Princes and Minitters were too ignorant, to be themfelves fenfible of the advantage attending an equitable adminiftration, and there was no eftablithed council or afombly, which could protect the people, and by withdrawing supples, regularly and peaceably admonilh the king of his duty, and ensure the execution of the laws." Thus this great man, whofe political reflections are fo much admired, makes this power one of the foundations of liberty.

The Englifb hiftory abounds with inftances, proving that this is the proper and fucceffful way to obtain redrefs of grievances. How often have kings and minititers endeavored to throw off this legal curb upon them, by attempting to raife money by a varicty of int ventions, under pretence of law, without having recourfe to parliament? And how often have they been brought to reafon, and peaceably obliged to do juftice, by the exertion of this conflitutional authority of the poople, vefted in their reprefentatives?
The inhabitants of thefe colonies have, on numberlefs occafions, reaped the benefit of this authority lodged in their afiemblies.
Ir has been for a long time, and now is, a conftent infruction to all governors, to obtain a permanent fuffort for the sifices of government. But as the author of "the adminititration of the colonies" fays, " this order of the crovn is generally, if not uriverially, rejected by the legiflatures of the colonies."

F 2
'i'hey

[ 44 ]

They perfectly know bow much their grievances would be re-garded, if they had no otker method of engaging attention, than by complaining. Thofe who rulc, arc extremely apt to think well of the conftructions made by themfelves in fupport of their own power. Theje are frequently erroncous, and pernicious to thofe they govern. Dry remonflrances, to thew that fich contructions arc wrong and oppreflive, carry very little weight with them, in the opinion of perfons who gratily their own iaclinations in making thefe conftructions. They cannot underfland the reafoning that oppofes their power and defires. But let it be made their intereff to undertand fuch reafoning----and a zwoiderful light is inftantly thrown upon the matter; and then, rejected remonftrances lecome as clear as *" proofs of holy writ."
THE three mof important articles, that our affemblies, or any legillatures can provide for, are, Firtt---the defence of the fociety: Secondly---the adminiftration of juftice : And thirdly --the fupport of civil government.

Nothing can properly regulate the expence of making provifion for thefe occafions, but the necefitities of the fociety; its abilities; the conveniency of the modes of levying moncy in it; the manner in which the laws have been executed; and the conduct of the officers of government : All rubich are circumftances, that cannot poffibly be properly known, but by the society itfelf; or if thcy fhould be known, will not probably be properly conffidered but by that fociety.
$\mathrm{I}_{\mathrm{F}}$ money be raifed upon us by otbers, without our confent, for our "defence," thofe who are the judges in levying it, muft alfo be the judges in applying it. Of confequence the money faid to be taken from us for our defence, may be employed to our injury. We may be chained in by a line of fortifications---obliged to pay for the building and maintaining them----and be told, that they are for our defence. With what face can we difpute the fact, after having granted that thofe who apply the money, had a right to levy it? For furely, it is much eafier for their wifdom to underfland how to apply it in the beft manner, than how to levy it in the beft manner. Befides, the right of levying is of infinitely more confequence, than that of applying. The people of England, who would burf out into fury, if the crown fhould attempt to lery money by its own authority, have always affigned to the crown the application of money.
As to " the adminiftration of juffice"----the judges ought, in a well regulated ftate, to be equally independent of the executive and leginative powers. Thus in England, judges hold their commiffions from the crown "during good bebavior," and have falaries, fuitable to their dignity, fettled on them by parliament. The ces would be re. 5 attention, than apt to think well ort of their own rnicions to thofe fuch contiructions ht with them, in linations in maknd the reafoning be made their inderful light is inted remonitrances ffemblics, or any ce of the fociety: rdly ---the fupport of making prothe focicty; its money in it; the and the conduct of ftances, that canitfelf; or if they r confidered but by
: our confent, for ying it, muft alfo e money faid to be our injury. We obliged to pay for old, that they are ate the fact, after $y$, had a right to wifdom to underhow to levy it in of infinitely more of England, who I atempt to kery $d$ to the crown the judges ought, in t of the executive es hold their comand have falaries, parliament. The purity

45 ]

purity of the courts of law fince this cflablifment, is a proof of the wifdom with which it was made.
But in thefe colonies, how fruitlefs has been every attempt to have the judges appointed "during good bebavior $?$ " Yet whoever confiders the matter will foon perceive, that fuch commilfions are beyond all comparifon more neceflary in thefic colonies, than they were in England.
The chicf danger to the fubject there, arofe from the arbitrary defigns of the crooun; but bere, the time may come, when we may have to contend with the defigns of the crown, and of a mighty kingdom. What then muft be our chance, when the laws of life and death are to be fpoken by judges totally dependent on that crowu, and that kingdom---fent over perhaps from thence--.-filled with Britifl projudices---and backed by a STANDING army---fupported out of our own pockets, ed out of our own pockets, to "alfert and maintain" "OUR own " dependence and obedience."
Bur fuppofing that through the extreme lenity that will prevail in the government tbrougb all future ages, thefe colonies will never behold any thing like the canipaign of chief juftice feffergys, yet what innumerable acts of injultice may be conmitted, and how fatally may the principles of liberty be fapped, by a fuccefion of judges utterly independent of the people? Before fuch judges, the fupple wretches, who cheerfully join in avowing fentiments inconhoneft and brave men, whin difdain to facrifice fineirs ; while the honeft and brave men, who difdain to facrifice their native land to their ewn adiantage, but on every occafion boldly vindicate her caufe, will conflantly be regarded with frowns.
There are two other confiderations relating to this head, that deferve the moft ferious attention.
By the late act, the officers of the cufloms are " impowered to enter into any house, warehoufe, fhop, cellar, or other place, in the Britif colonies or plantations in America, to fearch for or feize prohibited or unaccuttoned goods," EEc. on "writs granted by the fuperior or fupreme court of juilice, having jurifdiction within fuch colony or plantation refpectively."
If we only reflect, that the judges of thefe courts are to be during pleafiure--t-that thry, are to have "adequate provifion" made for them, which is to continue during their cour that they may be fransers to during their complaijaut bebavior---that they may be frangers to thefe colonies---what an engine of oppreffion may this authority be in fuch hands ?
I AM well aware, that writs of this kind may be grarted at home, under the feal of the court of exchequer: But I know alfo, that the greateft afferters of the rights of Englifmen have always Arenuounly contended, that fuch a porwer was dangerous to freedom, and exprefly contrary to the common law, which ever regarded a man's boufe as his calle, or a place of perfect fecurity.

If fuch power was in the leaft degree dangerous there, it muft be utterly deftructive to liberty bere. For the people there have two fecurities againft the undue exercife of this power by the crown, which are wanting with us, if the late act takes place. In the firt place, if any injuftice is done there, the perfon injured may bring his action againit the offender, and have it tried before indeprndent judees, who are * no parties in committing the injury. Here he muft have it tried before dependent judges, being the men who granted the writ.
To fay, that the caufe is to be tried by a jury, can never reconcile men who have any idea of freedom, to juch a power. For we know that fheriffs in alnooft every colony on this continent, are totally dependent on the crown; and packing of juries has been frequently practifed even in the capital of the Britijb empire. Even if juries are well inclined, we have too many inttances of the influence of over-bearing unjuft judges upon them. The brave and wife men who accomplificd the revolution, thought the independency of judges effential to freedom.

The other fecurity which the people have at home, but which we fhall want here, is this.
If this power is abufed there, the parliament, the grand refource of the oppreffed pedple, is ready to afford relief. Redrefs of grievances muft prccede grants of money. But what regard can we expect to have paid to our affemblies, when they will not hold even the puny privilege of French parliaments---that of regittering, before they are put in execution, the edicts that take away our money.
The fecond confideration above hinted at, is this. There is a confufion in our laws, that is quite unknown in Great-Britain. As this cannot be defcribed in a more clear or exact manner, than has been done by the ingenious author of the hiflory of Neww-York, I beg leave to ufe his words. "The ftate of our laws opens a door to much controverfy. The uncertainty, with refpect to them, RENdrrs propertyprecarious, and greatly expóses us to the arbitrary decision of bad judges. The common law of England is generally received, together with fuch fatutes as were enafted before we had a legiflature of our own ; but our courts exercise a sovereign authority, in determining what parts of the common and flatute law ought to be extended : For it muft be admitted, that the difference of circumfances neceffarily requires us, in fome cafes, to REJECT the determination of both. In many inftances,' they have alfo extended even acts of parliament, paffed fince we had a diftinct legillature, which is greatly

* The writa for fearching houfes in England, are to be granted "under the feal of the court of exchequer," according to the ftatute--and that feal ia kept by the chancellor of the exchequer. 4tb Inf. :104.
there, it muft ple there have power by the a takes place. perfon injured e it tried before COMMITTINO e deprndent號 an never reconower. For we continent, are juries has been empire. Even nces of the inThe brave and ht the indepen-me, but which grand refource Redrefs of grieregard can we will not hold t of regiftering, take away our is. There is a t-Britain. As inner, than has of New-1 ork, I ws opens a door to them, RENXPOSES US TO he common law uch 'ftatutes as own ; but our in determining , be extended : nftances neceffanination of both. acts of parliawhich is greatly adding anted " under the ad that feal is kept adding to our confufion. The practice of our courts is no lefs uncertain than the law. Some of the Englif/ rules are adopted, others rejected. Two things therefore feem to be absolutely necessary for the public security. Fiff, the paffing an act for fetting the extent of the Englifh laws. Secondly, that the courta ordain a general fett of rules for the regulation of the practice."

[ 47 ]

How eafy it will be, under this "Alate of our laws," for an artful judge, to act in the moft arbitrary manner, and yet cover his conduat under fpecious pretences; and how difficult it will be for the injured people to obtain relief, may be readily perceived. We may take a voyage of 3000 miles to complain ; and after the trouble and hazard we have undergone, we may be told, that the collection of the revenue, and maintenance of the prerogative, muft not be difcouraged----and if the mifbelavior is fo grofs as to admit of no juftification, it.may be faid, that it was an error in judgment only arifing from the confufion of our laws, and the zeal of the King's fervants to do their duty.

If the commifions of judges are during the pleafure of the crown, yet if their falaries are during the pleafure of the people, there will be fome cbeck upon their conduct. Few men will confent to draw on themfelves the hatred and contempt of thofe among whom they live, for the empty honor of being judges.' It is the fordid love of gain, that tempts men to turn their backs on virtue, and pay their homage where they ought not.

As to the third particular, "the fupport of civil government," flanding muft know, then the till Every man of the leaft underflanding muft know, that the executive power may be exercifed in a manner fo difagreeable and harraffing to the people, that it is abfolutely 'requifite, that they fhould be enabled by the gentleft method which human policy has yet been ingenious enough to invent, that is, by foutting tbeir bands, to "Admanish" (as Mr. Hume fays) certain perfons "of their duty."
What fhall we now think when, upon looking into the late act, we find the affeinblies of thefe provinces thereby itript of their authority on thefe feveral beads $\rho$ The declared intention of the aet is, "t that a revenue fhould be raifed in his Majesty's DOMINIONS in Amprica, for making a more certain and adequate provifion for defraying the charge of the administration of justice, and the fupport of civil government in fuch provinces where it fhall be found neceflary, and towards further defraying the expeaces of perpindino, protecting and securing the SAID DOMINIONS.'
Ler the reader paufe here one moment---and reflect---whether the colony in which be lives, has not made fuch "certain and adequate provifion" for thefe purpofes, as is by the colony judged fuitable to its abilitiss, and all other circumftances. Then let him reflectwhether if this act takes place, money is not to be raifed on that colony

$4^{8}$ ]

colony without its confent, to make "provifion" for thefe purpofes, which it does not judge to be fiutable to its abilitioss, and all other circumfances. Lailly, let him reflect---whether the people of that country are not in a flate of the mott abject flavery, wobbif property may be taken from them under the notion of right, woben they bave refufed to give it.
FOR my part, I think I have good reafon for vindicating the honor of the affembliss on this continent, by publicly afierting, that thisy bave made as "ertain and adequate provifion" for the purpofes abovermentioned, as they ougho to bave made, and that it thould not be prefumed, that they will not do it hereafter. Why then hould thefe moft important trufts be wrelted out of thcir hands? Why fhould they not now be permitted to enjoy that authority, which they have exercifed from the firtt fettlement of thefe colonies? Why thould they be fcandalized by this innovation, when their refpective provinces are now, and will be, for feveral years, laboring under loads of debt, impofed on then for the very purpofe now fpoken of? Why hould all the inlabitants of thefe colonics be, with the utmoft indignity, treated as a herd of defpicable flupid wretches, fo utterly void of common fenfe, that they will not even make "adequate provifion" for the "adminiftration of juftice, and the fupport of civil governinent" amor em, or for their own "dcfence"---though without fuch " 1 n" every people muft inevitably be overwhelmed with ana 1 deftruction? Is it poffible to form an idea of a havery more compleat, more miferable, more difgraceful, than that of a people, where juftice is adminifered, goverument exercifcd, and a fanding army maintained, at the expence of the people, and yet withojt the least dependence upon them? If we can find no relief from this infamous fituation, it will be fortunate for us, if Mr. Grenvilll, fetting his fertile fancy again at work, can, as by one excrtion of it he has ftript us of our property and liberty, by another deprive us of fo much of our underf/anding; that, unconfcious of what we bave been or are, and ungoaded by tormenting reflections, we may bow down our necks, with all the flupid ferenity of fervitude, to any drudgery, which our lords and mafters thall pieare to command.

WaEn the charges of the ", adminiftration' of juftice," the "fupport of civil government," and the expences of "defending, protecting and fecuring" us, are provided for, I fhould be glad to know, upon what occafions the crown will ever call our afiemblies together. Some few of them may meet of their own accord, by virtue of their charters. But what will they have to do, when they are met? To what fhadows will they be reduced ? The men, whofe deliberations heretofore had an influence on every matter relating to the literty and bappinefs of themfelves and their confituents, and whofe authority in domeftic affairs at leaft, might well

[ 49 ]

well be compared to that of Roman fenators, will now find their $\mathrm{d}-\mathrm{liberations}$ of no more confequence, thai thofe of comfithles. Thiy may perbaps be allowed to malve laws for the yoking of bogs, or pounding of firay cattle. Their influence will hardly be permitted to extend jo bigh, as the keeping roads in repair, as that buffinefs may more properly be executed by thofe who receive the public cafh.
One moft memorable example in hitory is fo applicable to the point now infifted on, that it will form a juft conclufion of the obfervations that have been made.
Spain was once frece. Their Curres refembled our parliaments. No money could be raifed on the fubjet, without their confont. One of their Kings having received a grant from them, to maintain a war againtt the Moors, defired, that if the fum which they had given, thould not be fufficient, he might be aliowed, for thet emergency only, to raife more money witbout afombing tbr Corres. The requeit was violently oppofed by the beft and wifeft men in the affembly. It was, however, complied with by the votes of a majority; and this fingle concefion was a pricedent for other conceffions of the like kind, until at liat the crown obtained a general power of raifing money, in cafes of neceffity. From that period the Cortes ceafed to be uffeful,-wthe people ceafed to be free.

Venienti occurrite morbo.
Oppofe a difeafe at its beginning.
A FARMER.

$\begin{array}{lllllll}\mathbf{L} & \mathbf{E} & \mathbf{T} & \mathbf{T} & \mathbf{E} & \mathbf{R} & \mathbf{X} .\end{array}$

My deat Countrimen,

F
HE confequences, mentioned in the laft letter, will not be the utmof limits of our mifery and infamy, if the late aat is acknowledged to be binding upon us. We fee! too fenfibly, that any minififrial meafures "relating to thefe colonies, are foon carried fuccefffuly through the parliament. Certain pre$G$ judices

* "The gentleman muft not wonder he was not contradiEted, when, aa mijjper, he affezted the ripht of parliament to tax Americe. I know n. st how it is but there is a mooss y in in ths houfe, wbich does nit cboofo to contradiat a miniffor. 1 wifh gentlemen would get the better of this midefy. If thay Do NOT, apictronthinepaisentative." . Mif. Piti's Spech.

50 ]

judices operate there fo ftrongly againt us, that it may be junty queftioned, whether all the provinces united, will ever be able effectually to call to au account before the parliament, any minifier who thall abufe the power by the late act given to the crown in America. He may divide the fooils torn from us in what manner he pleafes, and we Joll bave no way of making bim refjonfible. If he fhould order, that every governor fhall have a, yearly falary of 5000 l. fierling; every cbief juftice of 30001 ; every inferior officer in proportion; and fhould then revard the moft profligate, ignoreant, or needy dependents on hinfelf or his friends, with places of the greateft truft, becsufe they were of the greateft profit, this would be called an arrangement in confequence of the "adequate provifion for defraying the charge of the adminiftration of juftice, and the fupport of the civil goverument:" And if the taxes thould prove at any time infufficient to anfwer all the expences of the numberlefs, offices, which minifters may pleaife to create, furely the members of the boure of commons will be fo "modef," as not to "contradift a miniter" who fhall tell them, it is become neceffary to lay a new tax upon the colonies, for the laudable purpoles of defraying the charges of the "adminiftration of juftice, and fupport of civil government" among them. Thus, in fact, we fhall be + taxed by minifters. In fhort, it will be in their power to fettle upon us any civil, ecclisiastical, or military eftablifhment, which they choole.
We may perceive, $\mathrm{L}_{j}$ the example of Ireland, how eager miniTers are to feize upon any fettled reveniue, and apply it in fupporting their own power. Happy are the men, and bappy tbe people whe grow wife by the misfortunes of others. Earneflly, my dear countrymen, do I befecch the author of all good gifts, that you may grow wife in this manner; and if I may be allowed to take fuch a liberty, I beg leave to recommend to you in general, as the beft method of attaining this wifdom, diligently to fudy the hifories of other countries. You will there find all the arts, that can poffibly be practifed by cunning rulers, or falfe patriots kmong yourfelves, fo fully delineared, that, changing names, the account would ferve for your own times.
Ir is pretty well known on this continent, that Ireland has, with a regular confiftency of injufice, been cruelly treated by minitters in the article of penfions; but there are fome alarming circumftances

+ "Within this aet (Rature de tallegio non comededendo) are all new office erected with neww fees, or old offices with new feet, for that is allage put upon the fubject, which cannoe be done without common affent by aet of parliamont. And this doth notubly appeer by a pectition in parliament in anno is H. IV. where the commons complain, that on office wat erected for maturag of cloths and canvan, with a new fee for the fame, by colowr of the king leters patents, and pray that there letters patenti may be revoked, for and the king could ereat no officet with new feet to be takun of the people, whe may not fo be charged but by parliament." ad Inf. p. 533.

[ 51 ]

may be junty ever be able nt, any minilier to the crown in n what manner $\pi$ refiponfille, If yearly falary of every inferior moft profigate, $s$ friends, with e greatef profit, of the " adedminiftration of And if the taxes the expences of toc create, furcly 10 "modeff," as $n$, it is become or the laudable Iminifration of them. Thus, t , it will be in isiastical, or 1ow eager minitply it in fup. Id bappy the peonettly, my dea gifst, that you allowed to take in general, as ly to fudy the ad all the arts, or falfe patriots ing niames, the hat Ireland has relly treated by e fome alarming circumfances

are all new offices at is a tallage put rent by ack of pat Cat for mearureg Howr of the king't : revoked, for that of the people, whe 13.
circumftances relating to that fubject, which I wih to have better known among us.
: $\ddagger$ The revenue of the crown there arifes principally frum the Excife granted "sor pay of the army, and defraying otber PUBLic charges, in defence and prefervation of the kingdom"-..-from the tonnage and additional poundage granted st for protelling the trade of the kingdom at fea, and augmenting the PUBLIC revenue "---from the hearth money granted--as a " PUBLIC revenue, for PUBIIC charges and expences." There are fome other branches of the revenue, concerning which there is not any expre/s appropriation of them for public fervice, but which were plainly fo intended.

Of thefe branches of the revenue the crown is only truftee for the public. They are unalienable. They are inapplicable to any other purpofes, but thofe for which they were eftablithed; and therefore are not legally chargeable with penfions.
T'YERE is another kind of revenue, which is a private revenue. This is not limited to any public ufes; but the crown has the fame property in it, that any perfon has in his eftate. This does not amount, at the mof, to Fiffeen Thoufand Pounds a year, probably not to Seven, and is the only revenue, that can be legally charged with penfions.
Ir minifters were accuttomed to regard the rights or happinefs of the pebple, the penfions in Ireland would not exceed the fum juft mentioned: But long fince have they exceeded that limit; and in December 1765 , a motion was made in the houfe of commons

$$
G_{2}
$$

$\ddagger$ An enquiry into the legality of penfions on the Irijbeftablifhment, by Alhxander M'Aulay, Efq; one of the King's council, E'r.
Mr. M ${ }^{\text {A }}$ 'hlay concludea. hia plece in the following beautiful manner." "c If any pomfions have been obtained on that eftablifiment, to azave tras conzurt purposia or ammitiousmenc.---If his Majefty's revenuen of Irland have been amployed in penfioni, to dzEavcuhit Majeetr'saujectiof hoth kingdoms.----If the treafure of freland has been expendod in penfions, por CORRUPTING MEN OT THAT KINGDOM TO BETRAY THEIR COUNTRY; and men of the neighbouring kingdom, to betray hoth.---If Irifh penfions have moting a vice which threateni national ruin....If penfions have been purloined out of the national treafure of Irdand, under the mask of saianifi ANnaxid to pualic orfices, usxieas to the nation; newly inveoted, coit the suapoazs of, goinuption.---If Ireland, juf beginning to recovge fiom the devatationa of maffacre and rebellion, be obftructed in the progrefs of hem che devarationa of mamacre and rebeilion, be obfructed in progrels of viraye, If, by fquadering the national fubtance of Priend in a. Ic 2 N vit axa,---l, by fquadering the national fubrance of phana, 2 a nouribhing and improving her infant pgiculyurt, trade and manufaftwres, or in mof amiable, mon valuable, mof, worthy of public attention)--.-.lit, by such qurts bedaefs, popery, depppulation and barbarim, nill maintain their ground; Aill deform a country, aboundligg witb all ebeericbes of mature, yet hicherto deltined to beggary. ...If sucu z ENAions be found un the Jrife eftablifiment; let fuch be cut off: And les the perfidious advifera be branded with indelible chatactera of ${ }_{2}$ public infamy $;$ adequate, if pofible, to the dihonor of their crime.'

[ 52 ]

in that kingdom, to addrefs his Majefty on the great increafe of penfioas on the lribs eftablinment, amounting to the fum of 158,6851 . - --in the laft two ycars.

Atremets have been made to glofs over thefe grofs encroachments, by this fpecious argument--.-" That expending a competent part of the pualic eevenui in penfions, from a principle of charity or generofity, adds to the dignity of the crown; and is therefore ufeful to the sualic." To give this argument any weight, it muft appear, that the penfions proceed from "charity or gexcrofty only" "--and that it "adds to the dignity of the crown," to ef diroctly contrary to haw..---

Frox this conduct towards Ireland, in open violation of law, we may eafily forefee what wwe may exped, when a minifter will have the wwbole revenus of $A$ murrics in his own hands, to be difpofed of at his own pleafure: For all the monies raifed by the late act are to be " appliod by virtue of warrants under the fign manual, counterfigaed by the high treafurer, or any three of the commiffioners of the treafury." The "e assidus" indeed is to be "paid into the receipt of the exchequer; and to be difpofed of by parliament." So chat a minifter will have nothing to do, but to take care, that there thall be no "refidue," and he is fuperior to all controul.

Besides the burden of penfous in Ireland, which have enormonily enereafed within thefe few years, almoft all the offices in that poor kingdom, have been, fince the commencement of the prefent century, and now are beftowed upon Arangers. For tho' the merit of perfons born there, juftly raifes them to places of high truft when they go abroad, as ail Europe can witnefis, yet he is an uncommonly lucky Irifman, who can get a good poft in his native counctry.
Whem I confider the * manner in which that illand has been uniformly deprefed for fo many years paft, with' this pernicious particularity

- In Cbarles the fecond's time, the houfe of commons, infiuenved by fome fatious demagogucs, were refolved to prohibit the importation of Irip catcle into England. Amang other argaments in favor of Irchand it wio infiftedoce © That by cuteing off almot edtirely the trade between the kingdoms, azz to keep the lris in their duty, but firee sad violowce."
 of the juftnefe of thefe reafoas, that he ufed all his intereft to oppofe the bill, and he openly declared, that he could not give his affeet to it with a fafe cone fcience. But the commone were refolute in their purpofe."...."" And the fplrit of TYRANNT, of wbich wattons are as fufcepilh es INDIVIDUAEs, had animated the Enfilo exicemely to zzEET TuEiz avpezioeity eer yhir dopondewf fatio. No afair could be conduded with greater violence than this by the commong. They even weat fo far in the preamble of the bill, as to declare the impertation of Irifs eattle to be ewviawcz. By this ezprefion weiare the impertation of Irifs eattic to we enviance. By this exprefiion eat increare of to the fum of grofs encroachding a comperom a principle crown; and is argument any from " charity dignity of the olation of law, a minifter will to be difpofed by the late $\grave{a c t}$ he fign manual, of the commif. is to be "paid ofed of by pardo, but to take 3 fuperior to all ich have enorall the offices in acement of the gerr. For tho' n to places of witnefls, yet he good poft in bis fland has been this pernicious particularity affuenced by fome cion of Srib eattle it was infiftedo... te lingdoms, azz Inothing zemained was fo convinsel was oppofe the hill, I with a fafe con.o. And the fplrit pivituass, had loalty oevp thir iol violence than this vioience than this of the bill, as to of the bill, as to

By this expreffion By this expresion
- Aing 's prenegative Aling's prarogativo
a jaws to ful
particularity of their $\dagger$ parliamcist continwing as long as tbe crown pleajcs, I am aftonifhed to obferve jucb a love of liberty ftill animating that loyal and generous nation ; and nothing can raife higher my idea of the INTEORITY and I PUBLIC SPIRIT of people
OF Injustica and sad roisct. The lorde expunged the word, but as the Ling was feofible that no fupply would be given by the commons, onlefs they were gratified in all their pazjubiczs, he was obliged both to emplay his intereft with the peers, to make the bill paft, and to give the royal aficnt ro it He could not, however, forbear expreffing his difpleafure, at the jealoufy to it. eained againft him, and at the intention which the commons difcovered, of retreachiog his prerogative.
 LAND, EUT IT MAB QOCABIONEB TMEIA AYPLYING WITM GEEATEE
 METICIAL TO THAT EINCDOM."
Perhaps the fame renfon necafioned the " barring the kiog's prerogative " in the late act furpending the legillation of Now-Yorh.
of Great-Britais are. We are hit wa are as dear to hia Majofy, as the people jocis; and his Majefty has are hisen fubje日s as well as they, and as faiebful fabvirtue, for any man to think is pofinale, 600 conftent proofs of his piety and jut diftinction man to think it poinible, that fweb a priace can make any unwhether fupplies are raifed in fubjretis. It makes no difference to his Mrjafty, whether fupplies are raifed in Grent-Britaia, or Simerica $;$ hnt it makes fame dif. ference to the commons of that kingdnm.
ToYpeak plainly, as becomes an honef mon on fuch impertant occafione, alt oue misfortunes are owing to a LUST or powta in men of abilities and infurnce. This prompts them to feek popvianst's by expedians profitabis to Such is the accurfed to deftrudtive to their country.
hut melts at the thought l-a-s.Such falfe, deteftable sa and yet...-What heart hut melts at the thought l-o-oSuch falfe, deteftable sataiots, in every fate, have led their blind, confiding country, thouting their applaufes, Into the jawe of fowe and ruin. May the wifdom and goodneff of the pcople of Groct-Britain, fave them from the ufual fate of nations.
"
t The laf Irik parliament eontioued 33 years, during all the late Kingic reign. The prefent, parlisment there has entinued from the beginning of this reign, and probahly will continue till this reign ends.
I I am informed, shat within thefe few yeare, a pecition wat prefented to the houfe of commons, fetting forth, "t that herringe were imported into Irelond from fome foreign parts of the north fu cheap, as to difcourase the Britis herring finery, and therefore praying that fome remedy might be applied in that behalf by parliament."-...

That upon this petition, the houfe eame to a refolution, to impore a duty of Two Shillings ferling on every barrel of foreign herrings impore a duty DIBPUTFWITMJAELAND ABOVT TEE AIEET OF TAXINGING IN A So much higher was the oplnion, of Ireland, than of that of thefe colonies the houfe entertained of the fpirit Irciand, than of that of thefe colonies.
the people of Irelond have lately afferted the refolution and firmaef with which ine people of Iredpad have lately afferted their freedom, have been wo alarming in Grear-Brimin, that the Lord Lieutenath, in his fpeech on the 2och of laft Ofiober, "recommended to that partiament, that fuch provifion may he made for fecuring the judges in the enjoymant of theis officat and appointments, puasae frain oood bavavion, as hall be thought moft expedient." Whin oood saravion, as hall be thought mof expedicat."
What an important concefion Is thus obtained, by miking dimands becom.

[ 54 ]

people, who have preferved the facred fire of freedom from being extinguifhed, tho' the altar on which it burnt, has been "overturned.
In the fame manner fhall we unquentionably be treated, as foon 2s the late taxes laid upon us, hall make pofs in the "government," and the "adminiftration of juftice" bere, worth the attention of perfons of influence in Great-Britain. We know enough already to fatisfy us of this truth. But this will not be the wort part of our cafe.
The principals, in all great offices, will refide in England, making fome paltry allowance to deputies for doing the bufinefs bere. Let any man confider what an exhaufting drain this muft be upon us, when minitters are pofferfed of the power of creating what pofts they pleare, and of affixing to fuch pofts what falaries they pleafe; and he munt be convinced how deftrutive the late act will be. The ${ }_{\text {injur }}$ inured kingdom lately mentioned, cau tell us the mifchiefs of absentess ; and we may perceive already the fame difpofition taking place with us. The government of Nenv-York has been exercifed by a depury. That of Virginia is now held fo and we know of a number of fecretaryghips, collectorfhips, and other offices, held in the fame manner.
Tnus it is, that if the people of Great-Britain were not too much blinded by the paffions, that have been' artfully excited in their breafts, againt their dutiful children the colonints, thefe conGderations would be nearly as alarming to them as to us. The influence of the crown was thought by wife men, many years ago, too great, by reafon of the multitude of penfions and places befowed by it. Thefe have been vallly eqcreafed fince \|, and per-
"One of the reafons urged by that great and honeft fatefman, Sir Whilham Temple, to Cbarles the Second, in his famous remontrance, to diffuade him from aiming at arbitrary power, was, that the King "had few offiees to beftow." giming at arbitrary power, was, that the King hadme Fint. of Ergland.
clipt the infuence of the
"Tho' the wings of prerogative have been clipt, hitory. For when we crown is greater than ever it was In any period of our hiftory. For when we confler in how many boroughe the government has the votes at command; when we confider the vait body of perfont employed in the eoliection of the revenoe, in every part of the kingdom, the inconceivable number of piactmen, and candidates for places in the cuttoms, in the excife, in the poft-otice, in and dock-yards, in the ordnance, in the falt-office, in the fampt, in the mavy and vitualling officer, and in a variety of other departments; When we confider again the extenfive influence of the money corporations, fubfeription jobfider again the extens, the endlefs depondencies created by the obligatlons conferbers and contractors, the endlemens familiea throughcut the kingdom, who have red ontions preferred in our navy and numerous Atanding army; when I fay, we confider how wide, how binding a dependence on the crown is created by the confider how wited particulars, and the great, thie enormous weight and infuence above enumerated parteriver from this eztenfive dependesce upon its favor and which the crown derivet from this lord of the bed-chamber, any man may be power, any lord in ppointed miniter. A doctrine to this effet is faid to beve bean the advice of L-... H-..... Late Nowz Raper.
dom from being has been 'tover $^{-1}$.
treated, as foor the " governworth the attenVe know enough not be the worf (ide in Eingland, oing the bufiners rain this mult be wer of creating ofts what falaries aive the late act l, can tell us the already the fame ent of Nerv-Vork is now held fo; llectorfhips, and ain were not too rtfully excited in onifts, thefe conn as to us. The many years ago, ns and places befince $\|$, and per## haps.

tefman, sir Willam to diffuade him from ffiees to beftow: int. of England. he influenee of the ftory. For when we voter at command ; he collection of the number of placemen, n the poft-office, in "tape in the navy ftamps, in the navy fubicriptios job ins, fubicriptioa jobhe obligations conferkingdom, who have my ; when I fay, we own is created by the weight and influence upon ita favor and , man may Nowe Paper.

55 ]

haps it would be no difficult matter to prove that the people have decreafed.
Surely therefore, thofe who wiht the welfare of their country, ought feriouny to reflect, what may be the confequence of fuch : new creation of offices, in the difpofal of the crown. The army, the adminiffration of juffice, and the civil government here, with fuch falaries as the crown fhall pleafe to annex, will extend miniftrial infuence as much beyond its former bounds, as the late war did the Britijh dominions.

But whatever the people of Great-Britain may think on this occafion, I hope the people of thefe colonies will unanimoully join in this fentiment, that the late act of parliament is injurious to their liberty, and that this fentiment will unite them in a from oppofition to it, in the fame manner as the dread of the Stamp$12 z$ did.
Some perfons may imagine the fams to be raifed by it, are but fmall, and therefore may be inclined to acquiefce under it. conduct more daingerous to freedom, as before has been obferved, can never be adopted. Nothing is wanted at home but a "pRaCEDENT, the force of which mall be eftablifhed, by the tacit fubmiffion of the colonies. With what zeal was the ftatute erecting the poft-office, and another relating to the recorery of debts in Aninerica, urged and tortured, as prectedents in fupport of the StampAit, tho' wholly inapplicable. If the parliament fucceeds in this attempt, other flatutes will impore other daties. Inftead of taxing ourfelves, as we have been accuftomed to do, from the firft fectle; ment of thefe provinces, all our ufial taxes will be converted into parliamentary taxes on our importations; and thus the parliament will levy upon us fuch fums of money as they chufe to take, without any otber limitation, than their pleasure.

WE know how much labor and care have been beftowed by thefe colonies, in laying taxes in fuch a manner, that they fhould be moft eafy to the people, by being laid on the proper articles; moft cqual, by being proportioned to every man's circumftances; and cbeapef, by the method directed for colleeting them.
BuT parliamentary taxes will be laid on us, without any confideration, whether there is any eafier mode. The only poixt regarded will be, the certainty of levying the taxes, and not the convenience of the people on whom they are to be levied;"and therefore all fatutes on this head will be fuch as will be moft likely, according to the favorite phrafe, "to execute themfolves."

Taxis

- "Here may be obferved, that when any ancient law or cuftom of parliament is broken, and the crown polfeffec of a procedunt, how diffichls, a thing

ad Colit Inf. p. sag.
"It is aot almoft credible to furfou, when any maxim or fundemental ion of thin resim is alteted (ec alfewhere heth been oblerved) what denaterews inncenvunimsios io follow."

4 Cotici Inf. \%. 4x.

[ 56 ]

Taxes in every free flate have been, and ought to be, as exattly proportionsd as is poffible to the abilities of thofa who are to pay them. They cannot otherwife be juff. Even a 2 Hottentot would comprehend the unreafoinablengss of making a poor man pay as much for "defending " the property of a rich man, as the rich man pays himfelf.
L&T any perfon look into the late act of parliament, and he will immediately perceive, that the immenfe eftates of Lord Fairfax, Lord + Baltimore, and our Proprictiaries, which are amongft his Majefty's other "Dominions" to be "defended, protected and fecured" by the act, will not pay a fingle fartbing for the duties thereby impofed, except Lord Fairfax wants fome of his windows glazed; Lord Balitimore and our Proprittaries are quite fecure, as they live in England.
Imention thefe particular cafes, as friking inflances how fat the late act is a deviation from that principle of juffice, which hai fo conftantly diftinguiked our own laws on this continent, and ought to be regarded in all laws.
This third confideration with our continental affemblies in laying taxes, has been the metbod of collecting them. This has been done by a few officers, with moderate allowances, under the in Spection of the refpective affemblies. No more was rajed from the fubieft, than was ufed for the intended purpofes. But by the late aAd, a minifter may appoint as many officers as be pleafas for collecting the taxes; may affign them rubat jalaries be thinhs "4 adequate;" and they are fubjeat to no infpection but bis own.
Is fhort, if the late act of parliament takes effect, there cololonies muft dwindle down into "common corporations," as their enemies, in the debates concerning the repeal of the StampLA, Arenuoufly infifed they were; and it leems not improbable that fome future hifforian may thus record our fall.
"The eighth year of this reign was diftinguifhed by a very memorable event, the American colonies then fubmitting, for the FIRST time, to be taxed by the British parliament. An attempt of this kind had been made about two years before, but was defeated by the vigorous exertions of the feveral provinces, in defence of their liberties. Their behavior on that occafion rendered their name very celebrated for a foort time all over Europe; all flates being extremely attentive to 2 difpute between Great-Britain, and fo confiderable a part of her dominions. For as the was thought to be grown too powerful, by the fuccefsful conclufion of the late war he had been engaged in, it was hoped by many, that as it had happened before to other kingdoms, civil difcords would at to be, as exactly bo are to pay them. would comprehend as much for "deman pays himfelf. ment, and he will of Lord Fairfax, 1 are amongft his led, protected and bing for the duties fome of his wines are quite fecure, infances how far jufice, which has his continent, and affemblies in layn. This has been es, under the inwas raifed from the was raj/ed from the

[^1]
But by the late pleafos for collect. binks "4 adequate $;$ " effect, thefe coloRPORATIONS," as peal of the Stant ot improbable that guilhed by a very ubmitting, for the nent. An attempt efore, but was de1 provinces, in deoccafion rendered 1 over Exrope $;$ all veen Great-Britain, For as the was effful conclufion of ped by many, that ivil difcords would afford the warment dirpuree, ir Proprietors eftutes elors, than they themfrom tuxationof other people.

[ 57 ]

afford opportunities of revenging all the injuries fuppofed to be received from her. However, the caufe of diffenfion was removed, by a repeal of the flatute that had given offence. This affair rendered the suamissive conduct of the colonies fo foon after, the more extraordinary ; there being no difference between the mode of taxation which they oppofed, and that to which they fubmitted, but this, that by the firf, they were to be continually rominded that they were taxed, by certain marks famped on every piece of paper or parchment they ured. The authors of that fatute triumphed greatly on this conduct of the colonies, and infifted, that if the people of Great-Britain had perfilted in enforcing it, the Americans would have been, in a few months, fo fatigued witb the eforts of patriotifm, that they would have yielded obecience.
" Certain it is, that tho' they had before their eyes fo many illufrioxs examples in their mother country, of the conffant fuccefs attending firmmefs, and perfiverauce, in oppofition to dangerous encroachments on liberty, yet they quietly gave up a point of the last importance. From thence the decline of their froedom began, and its decay was extremely rapid; for as money was always raifed upon them by the parliament, their afomblies grew immediately $u$ felefs, and in a fhort time contemptibe. diately ufelefs, and in a fhort time contemptible: And in lefs than one hundred years, the people funk down into that tamenefs and fupinenefs, of fpirit, by which they fill continue to be ditinguifhed."

Et majores vefiros ©f poficros cogitare.
Remember your anceftors and your pofterity.
A FARMER.

$\begin{array}{lllllll}\mathbf{L} & \mathbf{E} & \mathbf{T} & \mathbf{T} & \mathbf{E} & \mathbf{R} & \mathbf{X I} .\end{array}$

My doar Countrymen,

IH A VE feveral times, in the courfe of thefe letters, mentioned the late act of parliament, as being the foundation of future meafures injurious to thefe colonies; and the belief of this truth I wifh to prevail, becaufe I think it neceffary to our fafety.
a pripertual jealoufy, refpecting liberty, is abfolutely requifite in ali free ftates. The very texture of their conflitution, in mixt governments, demands it. For the cautions with which power is difributed among the feveral orders, imply, that each has that fhare which is proper for the general welfare, and therefore that any further

$58]$

further acquifition muft be pernicious. - Machianvel employs a whole chapter in his difcourfes, to prove that a flate, to be long lived, muft be frequently corrected, and reduced to its firt principles. But of all ftates that have exitted, there never was any in which this jealoufy could he more proper than in theic colonies. For the government here is noi only max:, but dependent, which circumftance occafions a peculiarity in its form, of a very delicate nature.
Two reafons induce me to defire, that this fpirit of apprehenfion may be always kept up among us, in its utmoft vigilance. 'The firlt is this----that as the happinefs of thefe provinces indubitably confifts in their connection with Great-Britain, any feparation between them is lefs likely to be occafioned by civil difords, if every difgutting meafure is oppofed fingly, and wubile it is new: For in this manner of proceeding, every fuch meafure is moft likely to be rectified. On the other hand, oppreffions and diffatisfac. tions being permitted to accumulate--if ever the governed throw off the load, they avill do more. A people does not reform with moderation. The rights of the fubject therefore cannot be too oftion confidered, explained or afferted : And whoever attempts to do this, fhews himfelf, whatever may be the rafh and peevih reflections of pretended wifdom, and pretended duty, a friend to thoje who injudicinufy exercife their power, as well as to them, over whom it is $f 0$ exercifed.
HAD all the points of prerogative claimed by Charles the Firfi, heen feparately contefted ind fettled in preceding reigns, his fate would in all probability have been very different; and the penple would have been content with that liberty which is compatible with regal authority. But $\dagger$ he thought, it would be as dangerous for him to give up the powers which at any time had been by ufurpation exercifed by the crown, as thofe that were legally velted in it. This produced an equal excefs on the part of the people. For when their pafions were excited by multiplied grievances, they thought it would be as dangerous for them to allow the powers that were legally vefted in the crown, as thofe which at any time had been by ufurpation exercifed by it. Acts, that might by'themfilves have been upon many condiderations excufed or extenuated, derived a contagious malignancy and odium from other acts, with which they were connected. They were not regarded according

* Macbiavel' Difcourfst----Book 3. Cbap. x.

The whor is fonfle, that this is puting the genilef confrution on Charie't' cnuduat ; and that is one reafon why he clioofer it. Allowances ought ares andiduet; and that is one reaton why he chioore, it. Allowances ough To made for he eerrors of hore men, who are acknowedged ond have been phented of many virrues. The educailon off hanhppy pill fidence in men not fo good or wife as himfelf, had probably filled him with mi Gaken notions of his own authority, and of the confequences that would atten conceffinns of any kind 10 a people, who were reprefented 10 him , as aiping a pou moch power.
wel employs a ate, to be long $o$ its firf prinnever was any, theic colonies. pendent, which a very delicate of apprehennolt vigilance. grovinces induin, any feparacivil difcords, ubile it is new : re is molt likeand diffatisfac. governed throw lot reform with. not be too often attempts to do neevifh reflec1 friend to thofe is to them, over barles the Firft, reigns, his fate ; and the peoh is compatible be as dangerous te had been by re legally vefted $t$ of the people. rrievances, they low the powers ich at any time $t$ might by'themor extenuated, other acts, with arded according $t 0$ left conftruction on Allowances ought Allow to have been edged to have been rince, and hia con3 that would attend s that would attend him, as aipming at

[ 59 ]

to the fimple force of each, but as patrs of a fyitem of oppreition. Every one therefore, however fmall in itfelf, became alarming, as an additional evidence of tyrannical defigns. It was in vain for prudent and moderate men to infif, that there was no neceffity to abolifh royalty. Nothing lefs than the utter deftruction of monarchy, could fatisfy thofe who bad fuffered, and thought they had reafon to believe, they always hould fuffer under it.
The confequences of there mutual d rufts are well known : But there is no other people mentioned in hiffory, that I recollect, who have been fo conitantly watchful of their liberty, and fo fucceffful in their ftruggles for it, as the Englifh. This confideration leads me to the fecond reafon, why I "defire that the fpirit of apprehenfion may be always kept up among us in its utmolt vigilarice."
THE firit principles of government are to be looked for in human nature. Some of the beft writers have afferted, and it feems with good reafon, that "government is founded on $\ddagger$ opinion."

Custom undoubtedly has a mighty force in producing opinion, and reigns in nothing more arbitrarily than in public aftairs. It gradually reconciles us to ohjęts even of dread and deteftation; and I cannot but think thefe lines of Mr. Pope as applicable to vice in politics, as to vice in etbics.--...
" Vice is a montter of fo horrid mien,
"As to be hated, needs but to be feen ;
"Yet Jeen too oft, familiar with her face,
" We firt evdure, then pity, then embrace."
When an act injurious to freedom has been once done, and the people bear it, the repectition of it is mof likely to meet with fubmilfion. For as the mi/chief' of the one was found to be tolerable, they will hope that of the fecond will prove fo too; and they will not regard the infamy of the lant, becaufe they are ftained with that of the firft.
Indeed nations, in gencral, are not apt to think until they foul; and therefore nations in general have loft their liberty : For as violations of the rights of the governed, are commonly not only

$$
\mathrm{H}_{2} \text { jресіои, }
$$

$\ddagger$ "OPINION is of two kinds, viz. opinion of intremet, and opinion of nicit. By opiniow of interef, I chiefly underftand, tke fenfe of tbe publit advantage tubich is reaped from government; together with the perfuafion, that the vantage qubich is reaped from government; together with the perfuafion, that the particular government which is eftablifhed, is equally advantageous with any other, tbas could be eafly ferted" other, that could be eafily fertled."
'F Rigbt is of two kinda, rigbt to porwer, and rigbl to praperty. What prevalence opinion of the firf kind has over mankind, may eafily be ynderfood, by obferving the attachment which all nations have to their antient government, and even to thofe names which have had the fanetinn of antiguily. Antiquity allways leqets ibe opinion of right."--." It is fufficiently underfood, that the spinion of right to propety, in of the greateft moment in all matters nf government."

Hume's Eflajs.

[60]

- Specious, but fmall at the beginning, they fpread over the multitude in fuch a manner. as to touch individuals but flightly. $\dagger$ Thus they are difreg..ded. The power or profit that arifes from thefe violations, cer ering in fow perfons, is to them confiderable. For this reafon the governors having in view their particular purpofes, fucceff cly preferve an uniformity of conduat for attaining them. They regularly emereafe the firft injuries, till at length the inattentive people are co pelled to perceive the heavinefs of their burthens.---They begin to complain and enquire----but too late. They find their oppreffors fo ftrengthened by fuccefs, and themfelves $f o$ entangled in examples of exprefs authority on the part of their rulers, and of tacit recognition on their own part, that they are quite confounded: For millions entertain no other idea of the legality of power, than that it is founded on the exercije of power. They voluntarily faften their chains, by adopting a pufillanimous opinion," that there will be too much danger in attempting a re-medy,"----or another opinion no lefs fatal,--.-"" that the government has a rigbt to treat them as it does." They then feek a wretched relief for their minds, by perfuading themelves, that to. jield their obedience, is to difcharge their duty. The deplorable poverty of Jpirit, that proftrates all the dignity beftowed by divine providence on our nature---of courfe jucceeds.

From thefe reflections I conclude, that every free frate fhould inceffantlv watch, and inftantly take alarm on any addition being made to the power excrififed over them. Innumerable inflances might be produced to fhew, from what. night beginnings the molt extenfive confequences have flowed: But I fhall feleat two only from the hiftory of England.

Henry the Seventh was the fref monarch of that kingdom, who eflablifhed a standing body of armed men. This was a band of $f f t y$ archers; called yeomen of the guard: And this inflitution, notwithftanding the fmallnefs of the number, was, to prevent difcontent, || " difguifed under pretence of majefty and grandeur." In 1684 the ftanding forces were fo much augmented,

- Omnia mala exempla ox bonis initiia orta funt.

Salivit. Bell. Cat. S. go.
$\dagger$ "The reppblic io always attacked with greater vigor, than it is diffended For the andacious and profigate, prompted by their natural enmity to it, are cafly impelled to at by the luaf nod of their leader: ; Wherean the nowst is know not why, are generally forw and xnwilling to tir ; and neqkefing always the BECINNINGS of tbing, are sever roufd to exert themfelvet, but by the ief neceffiy; So that through inaxiolution and DiLiAy, when they would be glad to compound at laft s- their evist, at the expence even of their he giad they commonly lof them zorni"' Ccicazo's Orat. for Sxxtive.
Such were the fentimente of this yreat and excellent man, whofe vatf abilitiet, and the calemities of his country during his time, enobled him, by mournful experience, to form a juft judement on the conduet of the friends ade seemice exp liberty.
| Rapin's Hiftory of England.
oread over the mul. duals but lightly. ofit that arifes from them confiderable. eir particular purpnduct for attaining s , till at length the e heavinefs of their uire---but too late. - fuccefs, and themority on the part of own part, that they no other idea of the e exercife of power. ng a pufillanimous in attempting a re--" that the governThey then feek a themfelves, that to. y. The deplorable beftowed by divine ery free ftate fhould 1 any addition being numerable inftances beginnings the moft hall feled two only h of that kingdom, o men. This was a guard: And this inle number, was, to tence of majefty and fo much augmented, that

- Bell. Cat. S. so. gor, than it is defended : atural enmity to it, are Whereas the honist, I ir; and neglefting slways it themfelves, but by the ExAY, when they would e expence evon of their o's Orai. for Sextive. man, whofe vant abilities, abled him, by mournful 'the friends and enemics that Rapin fays--." The king, in order to make his people fully fenfble of their nesw תavery, affected 5 mufter his troops, which amounted to 4000 well armed and difciplined men." I think onr army, at this time, conffts of more than feventy regiments.

[ 6r ]

The method of taxing by excise was firf introduced amidt the convulfions of the civil wars. Extreme neceflity was pretended for it, and its Mort continuance promifed. After the reftoration, an excife upon beer, ale ard otber, liquors, was granted to the $t$ king, one half in fee, the other for life, as an equivalent for the court of wards. Upon James the Second's acceffion, the parliament $$$ gave him the firft excife, with an additional duty on wime, tobacco; and fome etber things. Since the revolution it has been extended to falt, candles, leather, hides, hops, foap, paper, pafteboards, mill-boards, fcale-boards, vellum, parchment, ftarch, filks, calicoes, linens, ftuffs; printed, ftained, Ěc. wire, wrought plate, coffer, tea, chocolate, E'c.

Thus a fanding army and excifs have, from their firf flender origins, tho' always hated, always feared, always oppofed, at length fwelled up to their vait prefent bulk.

Thesl facts are fufficient to fupport what I have faid. 'Tis true, that all the mifchiefs apprehended by our anceftors from a fanding army and excife, have not yet bappened: But it does not follow from thence, that they will not bappen. The infide of a houfe may catch fire, and the moft valuable apartments be ruined, before the flames burlt out. The queftion in thefe cafes is not, what evil bais afiually attended particular meafures---but, what evil, in the nature of things, is likely to attend them. Certain circumftances may for fome time delay effects, that were reafonably expected, and that muft enfue. There was a long period, after the Romans itad prorogued his command to * Q. Publilits Pbilo, before that examsple deftroyed their liberty. All our kings, from the revolution to the prefent reign, have been foreigners. Their miniftors generally continued but a thort time in authority $\ddagger$; and they themfelves were mild and virtuous princes.

Abold
$\dagger_{12}$ Cbar. II. Chap. 23 and 24.
I: Jamel II. Chap. 1 and 4.
In the year of the city 428 , "D Duo fingularia hase el viro primum contigere; prorogatio imperit non ante in ullo fatta, et acto honore triumphus." Liv. B. 8. Cbap. 23. 26.
" Had the ref of the Romen citizens imitated the ezample of $\boldsymbol{L}$. Quiniut, $^{\text {n }}$ who refufed to have hls confulaip centinued to him, they had never admitted that cuftom of proroguing of magiftrates, sad then the prolongation of their commands in the army had never, been introduced, wbich very tbing was at leng't the ruin of that commonwealib." Masbiavel's Difcourfar, R. 3. Cbap. 24. I I dont know but it may be faid, with a good deal of reafon, that a quick rotation of minittera is very defirable in Great-Britain. A miniter there has vaft fore of materials $t 0$ work with. Long adminifrations Rre rather favorable to - the refuration of a people abroid, than to their libarty.

[ 62 ]

A sold, ambitious prince, poffeffed of great abilities, firmly fixed in his throne by defcent, ferved by minifters like bimfelf, and rendered either venerable or terrible by the glory of bis fuccefles, may execute what his predeceffors did not dare to attempt. Henry the Fourth tottered in his feat during his whole reign. Henry the Fifth drew the ftrength of that kingdom into France, to carry on his wars there, and left the commons at home, protefing, " that the people were not bound to ferve out of the realm."
It is true; that a ftrong fpirit of liberty fubfints at prefent in Great-Britain, but what reliance is to be placed in the temper of a people, when the prince is poffefid of an unconftitutional power, our own hiftory can fufficiently inform us. When Cbarles the Second had ftrengthened himfelf by the return of the garrifon of Tangier, "England (fays Rapin) faw on a fudden an amazing revolution; faw herfelf fripped of all ber rights and privileges, excepting fuch as the king thould vouchfafe to grant her: And what is more aftonißing, the Engli/ß themfelves delivered up thefe very rights and privileges to Cbarles the Second, which they had fo paffornately, and, if Imay fay it, furioufly defended againft the defigns of Charles the Firft." This happened only thirty- $\delta x$ years after this laft prince had been beheaded.

Some perfons are of opinion, that liberty is not violated, but by fuch open aets of force; but they feem to be greatly miftaken. I could mention a period within thefe forty years, when alnoof as great a change of difpofition was produced by the secret meafures of a long adminiftration, as by Cbarles's violence. Liberty, perhaps, is never expofed to fo much danger, as when the people believe there is the leaft ; for it may be fubverted, and yet they not think fo.

Public difgufting acts are feldom practifed by the ambitious, at the beginning of their defigus. Such conduct filences and difcourages the weak, and the wicked, who would otherwife have been their advocates or accomplices. It is of great confequence, to allow thofe who, upon any account, are inclined to favor them, fomething fpecious to fay in their defence. Their power may be fully eftablifhed, tho' it would not be fafe for them to do whatever they pleafe. For there are things, which, at fome times, even flaves will not bear. Fulius Cacjar, and Oliver Crommell, did not dare to affume the title of king. The Grand Seignor dares not lay a neru tax. The king of France dares not be a proteflant. Certain popular points may be left untouched, and yet freedom be extinguifhed. The commonalty of Venice imagine themfelves free, becaufe they are permitted to do what they ought not. But I quit a fubject, that would lead me too far from my purpofe.
By the late act of parliament, taxes are to be levied upon us, for "defraying the charge of the adminifiration of juftice----the fupport of cirvil government----and the expences of defending his Majefty's dominions in America."
abilities, firmly iike bimpelf, and bis fuccefles, may npt. Henry the Henry the Fifth :arry on his wars that the people ls at prefent in the temper of a itutional power, Cbarles the Sethe garrifon of an amazing rerivileges, except$r$ : And what is up thefe very they had fo paffainft the defigns $t y-f x$ years after tot violated, but atly miftaken. I n almoft as great RET meafures of .iberty, perhaps, e people believe hey not think fo. y the ambitious, filences and dijotherwife have confequence, to to favor them, :ir power may be n to do whatever ome times, even iromzoell, did not nor dares not lay protefiant. Ceret freedom be ex: themfelves free, ight not. But I y purpofe.
e levied upon us, t of juffice---the of defending his

[ 63 ]

If any man doubts what ought to be the conduet of thefe colonies on this occafion, I would alk him thefe queftions.
Has not the parliament exprefy avowed their intention of raifing money from us for certain purposes? Is not this fcheme popular in Great-Britain? Will the taxes, impofed by the late act, anfwer thofe purpofes? If it will, muat it not take an immenfe fum from us? If it will not, is it to be expeffed, that the parliament will not fully execule their intention when it is pleafing at bome, and not oppofed bere? Muft not this be done by impofing new taxes? Will not every addition, thus made to our taxes, be an addition to the power of the Britijb legiflature, by increafing the number of officers employed in the collection? Will not every additional tax therefore render it more dificult to abrogate any of them? When a branch of revenue is once eftablifhed, does it not appear to many people invidious and undutiful, to attempt to abolifh it ? If taxes, fufficient to accomplijb the intention of the parliament, are impofed by the parliament, what taxes will remain to be impofed by our affemblies ?. If no material taxes ,emain to be impofed by them; what muft become of them, and the people they reprefent?

* "If any perfon confiders thefe things, and yet thinks our liberties are in no danger, I wonder at that perfon's fecurity."
One other argument is to be added, which, by itfelf, I hope, will be fufficient to convince the moft incredulous man on this continent, that the late act of parliament is only defigned to be a preCEDENT, whereon the future vaffalage of thefe colonies may be eftablifhed.
Every duty thereby laid on articles of Britifh manufacture, is laid on fome commodity, upon the exportation of which from Great-Britain, a druwback is payable. Thofe arawbacks, in moft of the articles, are exacfly double to the duties given by the late act. The parliament therefore might, in balf a dozen lines, have raifed much more money, only by fopping the drazubachs in the hands of the officers at home, on exportation to thefe colonies, than by this folemn impofition of taxes upon us, to be collected here. Probably; the artful contrivers of this act formed it in this manner, in order to referve to themfelves, in cafe of any objections being made to it, this fpecious pretence--.-" that the drawbacks are gifts to the colories, and that the late act only leffens thofe gifts." But the truth is, that the drawbacks are intended for the encouragement and promotion of Britifh manufactures and commerce, and are allowed on exportation to any foreign parts, as well as on exportation to thefe provinces. Befides, care has been taken to fide into the aet, fome articles on which there are no drawbacks. However, the whole duties laid by the late act on all the articles therein fpecified are fo fimall, that they will not amount to as much as the drazwacks which are allowed on part of them only. If therefore, the fum to be obtained by the late aff, had been the fole object in forming it, there would not have been any occafion for "the commons of Great-Britain, to cive and crant to his Majefty rates and duties for raifing a revenue in bis Majefy's, dominions in America, for making a more certain and adequate provifion for defraying the charges of the adminittration of juftice, the fupport of civil government, and the expence of defending the faid dominions ;"---nor would there have been any occafion for an $t$ expenfive board of commiffioners, and all the other new charges. to which we are made liable.

[^2]
[ 64 ]

Upon the whole, for my part, I regard the late act as an experiment made of our di/pofition. It is a bird fent out over the waters, to difcover, whether the waves, that lately agitated this part of the world with fuch violence, are yet fubfided. If this adventurer gets footing here, we fhall quickly find it to be of the $\ddagger$ kind defcribed by the poet.......
"Inflix vates."
A direful foreteller of future calamities.
AFARMER.
† The expence of this board, $I$ em informed, is between Four and Five Thoufand Pounds Sterling a year. The eftablithment of officers, for colleeting the revenue in America, amounted before to Seven Thoufand Six Hundred Pounds revenue in America, amounted eeforer of "The regulation of the colonies," per the whole semittance from all the taxen in the colonies, at en everage of tbiry yoars, has not amounted to One Thoufand Nine Hundred Pounda a year, and yoars, has not amounted to mitted from Nortb-America."
mitted from Nortb-America.
 that they were intended only as and a perfon be fo blind to truth, io dullo of &pprebeafion inard of commiffioners lately importance to his country, so to imagine, that the boird of comm One Thoufand aftablifhed at fuch a charge, ia inithe trifling duties impofed by the late ate ? Nine Hundred Pounds year, or thuat perceive, that they are eftablifted for Surely every man on this con or azveñe, which is but now begua.

[65]

ad been the fole my occafion for grant to his in bis Majefty's n and adequate ration of juftice, of defending the occafion for an ther new charges.
e act as an expeit over the wagitated this part If tbis advento be of the IRMER.

our and Five Thoufor collecting the iix Hundred Pound: n of the coloniec," $t$ on average of tbirty Pounds a year, and Pounds a year, and only, have beea semorica, demonftrates or: And can any atter of unfpeakable commiffiosera lately Aing One Thoufand red by the late aet? $y$ are eftablified for now begua.

LET-
$\begin{array}{lllllll}\mathbf{L} & \mathbf{E} & \mathbf{T} & \mathbf{T} & \mathbf{E} & \mathbf{R} & \text { XII. }\end{array}$

My dear Countrymen,

SOME flates have loft their liberty by particular accidents: But this calamity is generally owing to the decay of virtiu. A people is travelling faft to deftruction, when individuals confider their interefts as difinct from tbofe of the public. Such notions are fatal to their country, and to themfelves. Yet how many are there, fo weak and fordid as to think they perform all the offices of life, if they carneftly endeavor to encreafe their own wealth, power, and credit, without the leaft regard for the fociety, under the protection of which they live; who, if they can make an immediate profit to themfelves, by lending their affiftance to thofe, whofe projects plainly tend to the injury of their country, rejoice in theip dexterity, and believe themfelves entitled to the character of able politicians. Miferable men! Of whom it is hard to fay, whether they ought to be moft the objects of pity or contempt : But whofe opinions are certainly as deteftable, as their practices are defiructive.
Tho' I always reflect, with a high pleafure, on the integrity and underftanding of my countrymen, which, joined with a pure and humble devotion to the great and gracious author of every bleffing they enjoy, iwill, I hope, enfure to them, and their pofterity, all temporal and eternal happinefs; yet when I confider, that in every age and country there have been bad men, my heart, at this threatening period, is fo full of apprehenfion) as not to permit me to believe, but that there may be fome on this continent, againft whom you ought to be upon your guard---.-Men, who either"

I
hold,

- It in not intended, by thefe wordr, to throw any refiection upon zentlemen, becaufe they are poffeffed of officen : For many of them are certainly men of virtue, and lovess of their country. But fuppofed obligationa of gratiuude, and bonor, may induce them to be filent. Whether thefo obligationa ougbe to be regarded or nut, is not fo much to be confideried by others, In the judgment they form of thefe gentlemen, as whether tbey tbink they oughe to be regarded. Perhapa, therefore, we thall act in the propereft manner towards them, if we neither roiroacb nor imitate them. The perfona meant in thia letter, are the bafis spirined vurectbes, who may endeqyor to diffinguibs sbemfelves, by their fordid zeal in defending and promoting meafures, which ibey know, bryond all quefion, to be dofruafive to the juf rigibs and true interefts of their country. It is fcercely poffible to fpeak of tbefo men with any degree of patience-...Ie is fearcely poffible to speak of them with any degree of propriefy---For no words can truly defcribe their guilt and meann.ft----But every hoseft bofom, on thvir being mentioned, will feel what cannot be expreffid.
If their wickednefa did not blind them, they might perceive slong the coant of thefe colonies, many men, remarkable laftances of wrecked ambition, who, after difinguijbing themfilves in the fupport of the Stamip-At, by a courageous contempt of their country, and of juftice, have been left to linger out their miférailit ng examples of to the employrenius, ferve as lares. It is not effir themfelves felion of their ve adopted, this d themfelves to quable a thing it fat St. James's, range. Specious on, to perfuade inbecoming conof great men at itle their afiffants tc awakened. It n of wijdam and ----how dangerow etual incantation in cold, inactive rade, compliance fety. Our neglibey are warfo. in the benumbing fillinefis

sererearymip, or eny Off of virute nd $r$ ein theff colonite on iovented, to be thus rimpt muhitades to poft.....

A##, had the unguel-or thewing hit Lind. fow muft thut greit dow muntoniec could not fpofition towarde us ipolition towarde ase Ye perch mide pextit cefraby ion wid the leent Some of our coon, will never be parfat any of theme cat their own time ; but om havios any coafiinto total NEOLECT fes the cuaftitutional fillnefs of averwucening Jotb, and the feverifh activity of that ill informed eeal, which bufies ittelf in maintaining little, mean and narrow opinions. Let us, with a truly wife generofity and cbarity, banim and difcourage all illiberal difinations, which may arife from differences in fituation, forms of government, or modes of religion. Let us confider ourfelves as MEN--PREBMEN---CHRISTIAN FabBMEN---fefarated from the reft of the world, and firmly bound tagetber by the fame rigbts, interefts and dangers. Let thefe keep oun. Ittention infiexibly fixed on the creat objects, which we muft continually rzoard, in order to preferve, tbofe rigbts, to promote thofs interefts, and to avert thofe dangers.

[67]

Let thefe trutbs be indelibly impreffed on our minds----tbat we canzot be hapry, without being pres---that we cannot be free, woitbout being fecure in our property----that we cannot be fecure in our property, if, witbout our. confent, otbers may, as by rigbt, take it away---that taxes impoffed on us by parliament, do thus take it away---that duties laid for the fole purpofe of raijing monvy; are taxes---that attempts to lay fuch duties foould be infantly and frrmly oppofed-.--that this coppofition can never be effectual, unlefs it is the united effort of thefe provinces---that therefore $\operatorname{BENEVOL} \mathrm{ENCE}$ of temper towards each orber, and UNANImity of counfels, are effential to the welfire of the whole----and lafly, that for this reafon, every man amongt us, who in any manner would encourage either diffenfion, diffidence, or indiffivence, between thefe colonies, is an enemy to bimfelf, and to bis country.
The belief of thefe truths, I verily think, my countrymen, is indifpenfably neceflary to your happinefs, I befeech you, therefore, $f$ " teach them diligently unto your children, and talk of them when you fit in your houfes, and when you walk by the way, and when you lie down, and when you rife up."

What have thefe colonies to $a / k$, while they continue free? Or what have they to dread, but infidious attempts to fubvert their freedom ? Their profperity does not depend on miniferial favors doled out to particular provinces. Thoy form one political body, of which each colony is a member. Their happinef is founded on their confitution; and is to be promoted, by preferving that conftitution in unabatted vigor, througbout, every purt. A fpot, a fpeck of decay, however fmall the limb on which it appears, and however remote it may feem from the vitals, fhould be alarning. We have all tbe rigbts requifite for our profperity. The legal antbority of Great-Britain may indeed lay hard reftrictions upon us; but, like the fpear of Telepbss, it will cure as well as wound. Her unkindnefs will inftruet and compel us, after fome time, to difcover, in our indufry and frugulity, furprifing renicdies ----if our rights continue unvielated: For as long as the prodetts of our lubor, and | Deuteron. vi. 7.

[68]

the reveards of our care, can properly be called our own, fo long it will be worth our while to be indufrious and frugal. But if when we plow---fow---reap---gather---and threlh---we find, that we plow .--fow---reap---gather--and threfh for others, whofe P LE A SURE is to be the SOL E LIMITATION bow much they fhall take, and bow much they fhall leave, wHy fhould we repeat the unprofitable toil? Horjis and oxer are content with that portion of the fruits of their work, which their oouners affign them, in order to keep them flrong enough to raife fucceffive crops; but even thefe beafs will not fubmit to draw for the.: mafers, until they are - fubdued by whips and goads.

Let us take care of our rights, and we therein take care of our profperity. *"SLAVERY IS EVER PRECEDED BY SLEEP." Individuals may he dependent on minifters, if they pleafe. Stateg should scornit;---and if you are not wanting to yourfolves, you will have a proper regard paid you by thofe, to whom if you are not refjectable, you will be contemptible. But with unexampled unanimity, to exert ourfelves two years ago-.--if our zeal for the public good is woorn out before the homefpun cloaths, which it caufed us to have made---if our refolutions ate $\rho \circ$ faint, as by our prefent conduct to condemn our own late fuctef/sful example--if we are not affected by any reverence for the memory of our anceftors, who tranfmitted to us that freedom in which they had been bleft----if we are not animated by any regard for pofterity, to whom, by the moft facred obligations, we are bound to deliver down the invaluable inheritance---THEN, indeed, any minifer-... or any tool of a minifter---or any creature of a tool of a minifter ---or any lower $\dagger$ infrument of $\ddagger$ adminifration, if lower there be, is a perfonage whom it may be dangerous to offend.

Ishall
1 Moneffyien'z Spirit of Lawa, Book 84, Chap. ${ }^{13}$.
+. "Inttrumenta regni." Tacitu's Ann. Book 12, 666.
If any perfon thall imagine that he difcovera, in thefe letters, the leaft difike of the depeadence of thefe colonies on Grat- Britain, I beg that fuch perfon will not form any judgment on partizular exprefilion, but will confider the uenor of all tbe lutern caken trgetber. In that cafe, I fatter myrelf, that every unprejudiced reader will be convineded, that the true intereft of Great-Britain are at deer to me , an they ought to be to every good fubject.
if 1 am on Enibufiaf in any thing, it is in my zeal for the perpetual dependence of thefe colonies on their mother country.---A dependence founded on mutrual benefitu, the continuance of which can be fecured only by murual affecionn. Therefore it it, that with extreme apprehenfion I view the fmalleff feeds of difcontent, which are unwaily fattered abroad. Fifity or Sixty yenrs will make aftoninining alterations in thefe colonies; and thit confideration fhould render it the bufinfe of Gret- Brizin more and more to cultivate our good difpofitions towards her: But the misfortune 1 t, that thofe great men, who are wretiling for towards her : But the misemune h, very flightly interefted in the prof perity of their coury fify or Sixty yerse hence, but are decely concerned in blowing up a popular clamor for fuppofed immediate advantages.

[ 69 ]

own, fo long it But if when d, that we plow PLEASURE they fhall take, peat the unproat portion of the em , in order to : but even thefe til they are - fub
:ake care of our RECEDED on minifters, if if you are not ord paid you by 1 be contemptible. ns that urged us, o years ago----if bome/pun cloaths, are 10 faint, as efsful example... nory of our an. th they had been or pofterity, to round to deliver , any miniffer---ol of a minifter lower there be,

Ishali
fe letters, the leaf an, I beg that fuch but will confider the my felf, that every elta of Great-Britain ie perpetual dependence e founded on mutual by munual affezions. fmalleft feeda of difixty years will make tion fhould render it ur good difpofitions vho are wrettling for vho are wrefting for in the profperity of erned in blowing up

I shati be extremely forry, if any man miftakes my meaning in any thing I have faid. 'Officers employed by the crown; are, while according to the laws they conduct themelves, entitled to legal obedience, and fincere refpect. Thefe it is a duty to render them ; and thefe no good or prudent perfon will withhold. . Buit when thefe officers, thro' rafhnefs or defign; defire 'to enlarge their authority beyond its due limits, and expect improper conceffions to be made to them, from regard for the employments they bear, their attempts hould be confidered ats equal injuries to the crown and people, and thould be courageoufly and conftantly oppofed. To fuffer our 说eas to be confounded by nawes on fuch occafions; would certainly be an inexcufable weaknefs, and probably an irremediable error.
We have reafon to believe, that feveral of his Majefty's prefent minifters are good men, and friends to our country; and it feems not unlikely, that by a particular concurrence of events, we have been treated a little more feverely than they wifhed we fhould be: They might not think it prudent to ftem a torrent. But what' is the difference to us, whether arbitrary acts take their rife from minifters, or are permitted by them ? Ought any point to be allowed to * a good minifter, that fhould be denied to 2 bad one? The mortality of minifters, is a very frail mortality. A --...... may fucceed a Sbelburne---A --...-- may fucceed a Conway.

Wz
For my part, I regard Great-Britain as a Bulwark, happily fised between thefe colonies and the powerful nationa of Europe. That kingdom remaining fafe, we, under ita protedion, enjoying peace, may diffufe the bleffinge of religion, fcience, and liberty, thro' remote wilderneffes. It is therefore inconteftably our duty, and our intereft, to fupport the ftrength of Great-Briain. When confiding in that Atrength, fhe begins to forget from whence it arofe, it will be an eary thing to thew the fource.' She may readily be reminded of the loud alarm fpread among her merchants and tradefmen, by the univerfal affociation of thefe colooies, at the time of the Stamp-AE, not to import any of her manupacturea.
In the year 1718; the Ruflianr and Swedes entered into an agreement, not to fufter Graat-Briacin to export any Naval itonge from their dominions bot in Ruffian or Sewedibs hipa, and at their own pricen. Greal-Britain was diftref. red. Pitch and tar rofe to Tbrea Pounds a barrel. At length the thought of getting thefe articles from the colonies; and the attempt fucceeding, they fell down to Fifteen Sbillings. In the year 1756, Great-Britain was threntened with an invafion. An eafterly wiad blowing for fir weeks, the could not man her feet, and the whole nation was thrown into the ntmooft confternation. The wind changed. The American fhips arrived. The flect failed in ten or fifteen days. There are fome other refiections on this fubject, worthy of the moft deliberatu attention of the Briti/b parliament; but they are of fuch a nature, that I do not choofe to mention them publicly. I thought it my duty, in the year 1765, while the Stamp-Aat was in furpence, to write my fentimenta to a gentleman of great influence at home, who afterwards diftinguifhed himfelf, by efpoufing our caufe, in the debates concerning the repeal of that act.

* Ubi imperium ad ignaros aut minus bonos pervenit; novum illud exemplum, ab dignis & iduncis, ad indignos & non idoneon zranyfertur.

Sall. Bell. Cat. $$ 50$.

70 1

We find a new kind of minitter lately fpoken of at hame---"THB Minsetse or thb housp or, compons." The term feems ito have peculiar prapriety when referred to thefe colonies, quitb a difforme mocening amexed se it, from that in which it is taken there. . By the ward "miniftes" we may undertand not only a forvene of the sroum, but a man of infuence among the commons, who regand themselves at having a hare in the foucreigmt, over us: The "minifer op the houfe", may, in a point refpecting the colonies, be fo fuopg, thet the miniftar, of the crown in the houfe, if he io a difinat perfon, may not choofe, even where his fentiments are favarable to :us, to gome to a pitched battle upon our account. For tho $0^{\circ}$ I have the bighef opinion of the deference of the houre for the King's minifter, yet he may be fo good natured, as not to put it to the reft, esucept it be for the nere and immediate profit of his mafter or himfalf.
Bur whatever kind of mimifier he is, that attempts to innovate a fingle iota in the privileges of thefe, colonies, him I hope you will andauntedly oppofe; and that you will never fuffer yourfelves to be either cheated or frigbtened into any unrwortiy objequioufiuefs. On fuch emergencies you may furely, without prefumption, believe, that ALMIGHTY GOD himfelf will look down upon your righteous conteft with gracious approbation. You will be a "band of brothers," cemented by the deareft ties,---and frengthened with inconceivable fupplies of force and conftancy, by that fympathetic ardor, which animates good men, confederated in a good caufe. Your bowor and welfare will be, as they now are, moft intinately concerned ; and befides----you are affigned by divine prowidence, in the appointed order of things, the protefors of wnborn ages, whofe fate depends upon your virtuc. Whecher they fhall arife the gencrous and indifputable beirs of the nobleft patrimonies, or the daffardly and bereditary drudgos of imperious talk-mafters, you must determine.
To difcharge this double duty to yourfelves, and to yoor poferity, you have nothing to do, but to call forth into ufe the good feuffe and fpirit of which you are poffeffed. You have nothing to do, but to conduct your affairs peaceably-n-prudently---firmly---jointly. By thefe means you will fupport the character of freemen, without lofing that of faitbful fubjeass---a good character in any govern-ment---one of the belt under a Britijh government.---You will prove, that Americans have that true magnanimity of foul, that can refent injuries, without falling into rage ; and that tho' your devotion to Great-Britain is the moft affectionate, yet you can make proper distinctions, and know what you owe to yourfelves, as well as to ber----You will, at the fame time that you advance your interefts, advance your reputation----You will convince the world of the juftice of your demands, and the purity of your intentions.---While all mankind muft, with unceafing applaufes, con-

71]

fefs, that you indeed deserve liberty, who fo well underffund it, fo pafionately love it, fo temperately enjoy it, and fo wifely, bravely, and virtuoully afert, muintain, and defend it.
"Certe ego libertatem, que mibi a parente meo tradita eff, experiar: Verum id frufira an of rem faciam, in vefira mamu fitwm off, quirites."
For my part, I am refolved to contend for the liberty delivered down to me by my anceftors; but whether I Shall do it effectually or not, depends on you, my countrymen.

- How little foever one is able to write, yet when the liberties of one's country are threatened, it is fill more difficult to be filent."

A FARMER.

Is there not the frongen probability, that if the univerfal fenfe of thefe colonies is immediately expreffed by arsolvzs of the affemblies, in fupport of their rights, by instructions to their agents on the fubject, and by petitions to the crown and parliament for redrefs, thefe meafures will have the fame fuceefis now, that they had in the time of the Stamp-ARe.
D.

The E $N$ D.

[^0]:    - from

[^1]:    + Marylaad and Penafytuania have been engaged in the warmett difputen, in order to obtain an equal and juft taxation of their Proprietors aftates But thia late ad of parliament does more for thofe Proprietors, than they themfelven would ventere to demand. It rotally exumpors them from taxation--

[^2]:    - Demofthenes's ad Philippic.

