IDEALS IN RANKS OF BRITISH LABOR

League of Faith and Labor
Seeks Harmonious Development of Social and Industrial Life.

(Special Correspondence of the Christian Science Monitor.)
London, England—What Labor is thinking about religion was indicated at the annual meeting of the League of Faith and Labor held at the City Temple, London, when messages of good will were sent by numbers of prominent men. Mr. Cramp, president of the National Union of Railwaymen, presided. The league aims at uniting those who accept the Christian faith within and without the Labor movement, in the hope of finding a solution of present day problems in harmony with spiritual truths, and at securing "the best obtainable system of democratic control and administration of the means of production and of an equitable distribution of the fruits of industry."
All the messages expressed the conviction that the Labor movement and the religious world were charged with heavy responsibility for the harmonious development of social and industrial life, that the present hour was "making spiritual demands on mankind, and that Labor was standing at the crossroads—one leading to a materialism unparalleled in the history of man, the other to an unprecedented spiritual development."
"Where there is no vision the people perish," quoted one writer. "We cannot get the right thing the 'wrong way,' wrote another; 'religion should offer its inspiration to Labor.' 'Religion and Labor—the world needs both and the best of both.'"
Labor's Tendency.
Mr. Cramp said that while Labor had no defined attitude today toward religion, he thought the tendency of the movement was toward religion. Most of the pioneers had used the opportunities offered in the early days of the Labor movement to further the ideals of the League. Although the movement as a whole seemed to be materialistic it formed a combination of men and women inspired by a fine idealism. He thought that what was called materialism was rather indifference due to the fact that there was a complete divorce between commercialism and religion and because "religion" had always seemed to the workers to offer the works no hope in the present world. They were ready to suffer for the sake of evolving a better system, and he felt that at the back of it all their Labor movement was a religious movement seeking to

MANY MINISTERS EXCHANGE PULPITS

Several exchanges of pulpits were made by the city clergy yesterday morning. Rev. Neil MacLaughlan of the Portland Methodist church exchanged with Rev. George F. Dawson of the Exmouth street church and Rev. George Morris of the Queen square church with Rev. Thomas Marshall of Fairville. The regular monthly pulpit exchange was made by the Baptist ministers. Rev. Dr. D. Hutchinson of the Main street church preached in Fairville; Rev. J. H. Jenner of the Charlotte street church in Main street; Rev. A. S. Bishop of Fairville, in Victoria street church; Rev. W. R. Robinson of Ludlow street church in the Tabernacle church; Rev. Isaac Brindley of the Tabernacle

WOMEN'S CANADIAN CLUB IS AGAINST HEARST PAPERS

A meeting of the executive of the Women's Canadian Club was held on Saturday at the residence of the president, Mrs. L. P. D. Tilley. The president occupied the chair and those present were: Mrs. W. H. Shaw, Mrs. James L. McAvity, Mrs. F. C. Beattie, Mrs. Courtland Robinson, Mrs. E. Barbour, Miss Thayer, Mrs. W. P. Bonnell, Miss C. McGivern, Miss Mary L. Harrison, Mrs. D. C. Dearden and Mrs. G. A. Kahring.

eliminate personal gain and to benefit the community. Marx had taught them economics, but they had learnt also from Ruskin, Kingsley, Edward Carpenter, and other leaders whose religious spirit had entered deep into their hearts. He believed there was a great field for the co-operation of religion and labor. Miss Maude Boyden said that the old teaching which relegated the kingdom of heaven to another world had been for the workers merely a counsel of despair. Russia had been spoken of as a delightful place, she continued, but she was not sure that the Bolsheviks were such agreeable people as they were described by some to be; at any rate she was sure that violence and repression would always provoke reaction. The lesson they all had to learn was to exclude the domination of fear, for "perfect love casteth out fear," and every trouble, every injustice could be traced back to fear. The fear of the cheap, unorganized labor of

Opening of The Busy Bee

An agreeable surprise awaits the public of this city when they visit our modern crystal palace of a bakery—the Busy Bee, at 143 Charlotte Street.

We feel that this model and modern bakery will meet with the immediate approval of those who desire the very best in food stuffs; as inquiries by the public directed to us would indicate that they are sure to support this innovation.
We will carry only high class and high quality home made cakes, etc.
A feature which will quickly appeal to the public is the fact that we have been very fortunate in obtaining the services of Mr. Winters, who has been closely identified with the food conservation activities in the United States. Mr. Winters might be termed "the wizard" in the baking line as he has many new discoveries in his art to his credit. This expert has taught many domestic science teachers the tricks of his trade and his products at our store are sure to gain the endorsement of the particular.

TRINITY SCOUTS CONSECRATE COLORS

Impressive Service in Church Yesterday With Striking Sermon — Large Attendance.

Trinity church was thronged for the 11 a.m. service yesterday when the consecration of the colors of the Trinity troop of Boy Scouts took place in an impressive ceremony. Canon R. Armstrong, the rector of the church, consecrated the colors and made the formal presentation of them. Rev. D. H. Loweth, scout master of the troop, in an inspiring sermon spoke of the aims of the scout movement and of its splendid work in training the young to follow the teachings of Christ and to become a brotherhood and sisterhood with wonderful comradeship for service. Trinity Girl Guides, Trinity Wolf Cubs and did also representatives of the Boy Scout troops of Coburg street, Christian church, under Scout Master Dunlop; St. Paul's under Scout Master Bets; Centenary, under their leaders, Mission church, under Scout Master Hoyt and Mr. Morye, assistant scout master, and the Prince of Wales troop under Scout Master Belyea. The members of the local executive were also present, among them Commissioner A. C. Shelton and Commissioner Richard Ingletton.

Commissioner Ingletton was in command of the united troops of Boy Scouts when they formed up at Trinity school room and marched in a body into the church and he led them when, after the service, they again marched down Germain street up King and along Charlotte to the school room door and were dismissed. The girl guides, twenty-seven in number, did not march with the scouts but entered the church from the school room. The guides were under the command of Mrs. D. H. Loweth and Miss Zela Lamoureux and were seated on the south side of the main aisle while the scouts had a large block on the north side reserved for them. The assistant scout masters of Trinity troop, Charles Upham and Christie Belyea, were ushers for the troops from both guides and scouts were brisk and smart in their marching and their bearing was the admiration of the whole congregation. It was not only a solemn occasion for the Trinity troop, but it was also one in which they could take a peculiar and justifiable pride. The fine colors were presented to Canon Armstrong for consecration by the troop leader, Paul Walsh, were earned by the troop itself. Roland Krant, one of the members of the troop, from his personal savings gave the Scout flag of green with a fleur de lis and the motto, "Be Prepared" and the Union

KING'S DAUGHTERS ELECT OFFICERS

Jack was bought with the troop funds. After the consecration Percy Johnson and Edward Walsh had the honor of being the color bearers. The consecration ceremony took place immediately after the reading of the second lesson, and it was a particularly happy one that while the impressive ceremony was being carried out, the congregation standing and the Trinity troop of scouts gathered in correct formation in the chancel, the brightest sunshine of a bright day flooded that part of the church showing up the colors and lighting on those who took part in the ceremony.

Colors on Altar.
Receiving the colors from Paul Walsh, Canon Armstrong placed them upon the altar and read the appointed service for the consecration of Scout colors, asking the blessing of God on the colors, "which are to represent to us our duty towards our sovereign and our country, and to be a sign to those who follow them of the presence of God in all dangers and distresses." The Lord's prayer was repeated by the clergy and congregation and the prayer for the king was read by Canon Armstrong, who then pronounced the solemn words of consecration laying his hands upon the colors. Having consecrated the colors he then prayed that the favor of God might rest upon those who followed them and that they might walk worthily of the vocation to which they were called. A blessing was pronounced and with the assistance of Rev. Mr. Loweth, Canon Armstrong then presented the colors to those chosen to bear them, Percy Johnson and Edward Walsh, who received them kneeling, and then carried them triumphantly to the front of the chancel holding them aloft while the members of the troop marched through to their places in the body of the church. The singing of the National Anthem concluded a ceremony that had been followed with earnest and appreciative attention and reverence.

Rev. Mr. Loweth took for the text of his sermon the words, "Now thanks be to God who always causeth us to triumph in our Lord Jesus Christ."

POSSIBLE RELIEF MEASURE.
(Montreal Gazette.)
To what influence will be due a return of easier money is questionable, market opinion showing a wide divergence of opinion in the matter. It is pointed out by some observers that the existing stringency, while probably more pronounced than in former years, when market requirements were not so extensive as now, is a seasonal one, which is likely to be ameliorated when navigation opens. With the latter development will come, in all likelihood, the release of funds tied up during the winter in goods held for export which, at the moment, are believed to be far in excess of normal volume.

Heavy shipments of flour, cheese and other commodities, it is stated, await the advent of the first steamers to St. Lawrence ports, which event is expected before the close of the present month.

PROHIBITION
A meeting of the executive of the New Brunswick Temperance Alliance was held in St. John. A good deal of important business was transacted. The secretary, Rev. F. E. Boothroyd, presented his report which was accepted as quite satisfactory.

In almost every county in the province there is an organized county branch of the New Brunswick Temperance Alliance.

In visiting a community I have been careful to see as many as possible of the local clergy and leading laymen of all denominations. The absolutely unsectarian character of the alliance has added much to the pleasure of the work, and also to its success. Indeed it has been most encouraging to note how many of the Catholic priests are in favor with our work.

In general, I may report that there is in favor of the continuance of the prohibition law a very general consensus of public opinion, which awaits a stirring call to action as the date of the poll draws near. In spite of adverse influences, such as the lenon extract abuse, the bootleggers, the few unsympathetic newspapers, the few disloyal doctors, and free importation of liquor for personal use since January 1, the people generally are so impressed by the very evident improvement in domestic happiness, business prosperity and general wellbeing, all following prohibition, the vote is sure to have a large majority in favor of the law. Practically all the churches have officially declared themselves in support of the act.

While much remains to be done to complete the organization of the rest of the provinces, the prospects are bright that this will be satisfactorily accomplished.

FRENCH PRESS ON BY-ELECTIONS IN DOMINION

La Presse:—The conclusion that we are justified in drawing from the results of the by-elections in the St. James Division of Montreal and in Temiskaming, Ont., is that the Unionist government is unpopular and that its days are numbered.

La Patrie:—Neither in the one election nor the other can the government find the least encouragement. In Temiskaming the result is a straight defeat for the government, while it adds not a little to the prestige of the United Farmers.

LOCAL NEWS

Rev. E. W. McKay of St. David's church addressed the morning service at the Seaman's Institute on yesterday.

Sir Arthur Currie is expected to visit the maritime provinces in the near future and will probably deliver addresses before the Canadian clubs.

The Seven Seas chapter of the L.O.D.E. held a very successful fundraising sale in Clayton's Hall, in Brussels street, on Saturday morning. The sale only lasted two hours and in that time everything was sold and $81 was realized. Miss Dorothy Jones was the convenor of the committee in charge.

An ordination of elders took place in an interesting and solemn service in St. Andrew's Presbyterian church yesterday towards the close of the morning service. Frank B. Hayward and Samuel J. Park Hill were inducted as elders of the church by the Rev. F. S. Dowling, the minister, assisted by the other members of the session.

George Maxwell, formerly foreman at St. John, has been appointed general car foreman at McAdam, succeeding R. McKenzie deceased, according to official advice from the C. P. R. on Saturday. Fred Wilson, formerly assistant car foreman at West St. John, has been promoted to the position of car foreman here.

A meeting of the local members of the original first contingent was held in the Armory yesterday afternoon, with Major Dandely in the chair. It was decided to give a dinner in commemoration of the second battle of Ypres. The committee in charge of the affair is composed of Major Donnelly, Mr. Purdy and "Bad" Tippett.

Executives from all the labor bodies in the city were present at a mass meeting held yesterday afternoon in Odd Fellows' Hall, Union street, in the interest of Fred A. Campbell, the labor candidate for commissioner in today's election. Fred Scurrell presided and outlined the duties of the various officials appointed for the day.

A very successful pantry and apron sale was held on Saturday afternoon in Orange Hall, Fairville, under the auspices of the ladies of Baxter I. O. B. A. The sale was under the direction of Mrs. Oliver Stinson, Mrs. Edward Buss, Mrs. Joshua Cheeseman, Mrs. Samuel Wilson and Mrs. Wm. Catherwood. About forty dollars was realized and this will be utilized by the ladies in procuring suitable clothing for the children in the Protestant Memorial Home in Wright street.

At a special service in Knox church Sunday school yesterday morning, the pastor, Rev. R. M. Legate, assisted by the Highland Boys' Brigade under Sergeant Vail and Piper Hayter, unveiled a memorial tablet in honor of those who made the supreme sacrifice in the war. A collection was taken for the Armenian sufferers.

A congregational social was held in the school room of the Church of the Good Shepherd, Fairville, on Saturday night in honor of Mrs. Henry Arbo, who is going to reside in Vancouver. She was made the recipient of a handsome club bag. The presentation was made by Rev. W. P. Dunham. Mrs. Wilkes and Mrs. W. P. Dunham poured.

William R. Kennedy, brother of Mrs. L. G. MacNeill of Summer street, this city, now commander of the U. S. S. Strada, on the Pacific coast, was detailed to supply the British battle cruiser Renown with oil fuel in order to continue his journey to Australia with His Royal Highness the Prince of Wales on board. Mr. Kennedy is a native of St. John, and will be remembered by many of his boyhood friends.

WOMEN WORKERS IN BRITAIN INCREASE

London, England—A great deal has been written lately about the present surplus number of women and about the large number of unemployed women, and if one conclusion emerges more definitely than any other from the consideration of these facts, it is that more and more women are compelled to earn their own living. It is said that more women are working today than have ever worked before, but it should be remembered that there are a much greater number of women dependent for their livelihood upon their own skill, initiative, and hard work. Their means of maintenance has been reduced or taken away altogether by loss or the change of circumstances caused by the war.

Nevertheless, many women today find their efforts to obtain employment balked in one or two ways. The trade or profession which they wish to enter is closed to them by narrow-minded prejudice, or they find themselves untrained for the work—sometimes because they surrendered to war work the period of their lives that would normally have been devoted to training. The ministry of labor's training scheme for women, recently published outlining of work and training for unemployed women, comes, therefore, at a critical time and is welcomed as an indication that a necessary step has been taken toward solving the problem of unemployment.

The details announced in the present only outline the basis of the scheme. It is to be hoped that there will be no bureaucratic delay, and that the women committee will have their plans carried out immediately, so that shortly women may be actually training for the various professions forehadowed in the ministry of labor's announcement. It is interesting in this connection to note that the Nottingham women's department of the ministry of labor is not confining its energies to the domestic servant problem. It encourages the woman with industrial capacity to continue that career in the interests of production. If the example of that town were followed more generally, it would probably be found that the conditions of women's work would improve all the way round.

"MARRIAGE" IN RUSSIA.

A Russian wife is required to support her husband if she is able to do so and he is unable to work and in need of her support, under the marriage laws of Soviet Russia. A copy of this code, translated into English, has just reached London from the Russian people's commissariat of justice.

It provides that married persons shall be expected to support each other. Should one refuse and the other be what is classed as a "needful" unit to work, the latter has the right to apply to the department of social security to compel the husband or wife, as the case may be, to pay support.

Mutual consent of husband and wife or merely the desire of one of them to be freed from the other may be considered as grounds for divorce. Local judges are authorized to hear divorce cases but their decisions are subject to appeal.

The matrimonial age is fixed at eighteen for men and sixteen for girls. Both must be of sound mind and mutually desirous of marriage. Differences of religion or vows of celibacy are no impediment. Married persons may choose to bear the surname of the bride or of the bridegroom or their joint names.

Marriages contracted in accordance with religious forms are not binding there unless the union is registered under the prescribed form of civil or Sovietist marriages. Old forms of marriage law or, as it is termed, "the legalized forging together of men and women," are abolished.

Under the laws of succession in the Soviet code none of the "needful" and the state may inherit property. The estates of emigrants and of rebels are subject to confiscation by the state.

NEW AMBASSADOR IS A REAL

A giant mentally and physically (6 feet 2½ inches), a scholar, a doctor, a soldier, an orator, a member of the British cabinet, head of Britain's board of trade, an ex-resident of America and Canada, the husband of an American wife of Irish descent, a native of Scotland, and only forty-one years of age—that is the impressive list of qualifications and advantages possessed by the man Britain is sending to Washington as her ambassador, Sir Auckland Geddes. Where could a happier combination of desirable qualities be found? Scotland will be pleased, because he was born and educated there; Ireland will be pleased, because his wife is of Irish extraction and he worked in Dublin for a time; England presumably will be pleased because he has performed prodigious labors there during the war; South Africa will be pleased, because he served in the Boer War; Canada will be pleased because he has lived and worked there as professor of anatomy at McGill University; the United States will be pleased, because we can lay claim to his "better-half," because he knows and understands us, because he did not disguise the fact that he was eager to come here, and because he is ideally fitted to deal with the multitudinous and multifarious economic questions which will arise during his tenure of office. Add to this the fact that both he and his wife are notably hospitable, that they are extremely democratic in their mode of life, and that they are both given to humor—and again one asks, where could a happier choice of ambassador have been found?

CANADA MAY GET DANISH POTATOES

The effect of the decline in European requirements of potatoes, coupled with the influence of the exchange situation, is illustrated in the recent shipment of 100,000 tons of Danish potatoes to the British market and the report that the remaining exportable surplus of 700,000 tons will likely be shipped to this continent if a favorable rate of exchange continues. It was expected that most not far from the site of what is believed to have been the Roman market place. This is now occupied by the Norman castle, in the building of which much Roman material was used.

A receptacle for drainage, which apparently marks the line of one of the old Roman streets, has also been found, and this appears to be the first Roman road to be discovered inside the walls of Colchester. Numerous interesting objects also brought to light include a number of coins of the period of Constantine, tessellated pavement, Roman pottery, and two complete urns buried upright on a level with the footings of the walls of the house. Another similar urn, found to contain the remains of an animal, may, it is thought, have been an offering when the house was built. It is hoped ultimately to bring the foundations to the present level of the ground.

ROMAN HOUSES IN ENGLAND.

(London Times.)

Some remarkable discoveries of the Roman occupation are being made at Colchester, the one-time important Roman city of Camulodunum. By permission of the Colchester town council the Morant Club are excavating the Castle Park, where, during the very dry summer of 1906, the complete plan of a Roman villa revealed itself on the grassy surface.

The foundations of several buildings, surmised to have been important or possibly official Roman houses, have been brought to light. The walls of these buildings have been traced over a considerable area, leaving a network of trenches to show their plan. They are
