SIX PEOPLE KILLED AS THEY SLEPT... An Axe The Weapon Used By The Unknown Fiend... TWO HOUSEHOLDS

In One, Mother and Two Little Children and in the Other Husband, Wife and Baby Girl Were Slain

(Canadian Press) Colorado Springs, Colo., Sept. 21.—Butchered in their beds by some one as yet unknown, three in each of two neighboring houses were found yesterday. The heads of all the victims had been smashed in and the appearance of the bodies indicated that they had been dead several days and that death came while they slept. A report says that the murderer has been caught, and he is confessed but that is denied by the police.

Strange it Was Not Known That a crime had been committed in a thickly settled neighborhood and been discovered for three days is incredible. Not even a footprint is to be found on the floor of either house, and no one could be found who had seen anything about the premises since Saturday, when all the murdered persons at different times were in a neighboring grocery.

The British Ambassador to Austria — Reminiscences of the Powerful Crispi— His Home Troubles

(Copyright, 1911, by the Brentwood Company.)

Sir Fairfax Cartwright, the British Ambassador to Austria, who has been, during the last few weeks, the object of such bitter attacks in the German newspapers owing to his remarks criticising Germany's Moorish policy made in a conversation with an Austrian journalist, Dr. Siegmund Manz, and published by the latter in the Vienna "Neue Freie Presse," is persona grata at the court of Emperor Francis Joseph, and in Viennese society.

He has a very strong strain of German blood in his veins. His grandfather, Sir Thomas Cartwright, who died as British minister plenipotentiary at Stockholm, in 1830, was married to Countess Marie von Sandisell, daughter of the grand master of the court of King Maximilian II., of Bavaria. Sir Fairfax's own mother was a German, Fraulein Clementine Gaul, who had been the companion of the first wife of his father, William Cornwallis Cartwright, of Aynho, Banbury.

The Cartwrights have been seated at Aynho ever since the days of Richard Cartwright, a successful lawyer, who bought the property early in the seventeenth century, and whose son married the daughter of the famous parliamentary general, the second Lord Fairfax, who commanded at Marston Moor. It is from this general that Sir Fairfax derives his Christian name.

When he was in Rome he married the youngest daughter of the Marchese Chigi, a member of that historic and princely house of the old Roman patricians and the head of which is hereditary marshal of the Holy Roman church and guardian of the papal conclaves, responsible as such for all the arrangements for the election of popes.

Through his wife and through his grandmother, Sir Fairfax is related not only to most of the great patrician houses of Rome, but likewise to many of the old families of the Austrian mediæval nobility, such as the Sayn-Wittgenstein, Thurn and Taxis, etc.

Not Worried Over Money

While minister at Munich, Sir Fairfax became a great favorite with the Bavarian royal family, especially with Prince and Princess Leopold, and of their sons and daughters, Princess Leopold being the eldest daughter of Emperor Francis Joseph. Indeed, it was the interest which Princess Leopold exercised in his behalf at Vienna that led her father, the emperor, to ask King Edward to have Sir Fairfax appointed as ambassador to his court.

Sir Fairfax is possessed of very ample means, that is to say, a very high allowance from his father, and this, together with the fact that he and his wife are Roman Catholics, renders his position among the diplomatic corps on the banks of the Danube of a very privileged character. Nor is it in the least degree probable that any demand will be made by them for his recall, although it cannot be denied that for so clever a man he has been somewhat unfortunate in his relations with the press.

This is not the first time that he has made the mistake of imagining that he could make use of the continental press for political purposes without his organs being betrayed and himself compromised thereby. Perhaps his tendency to take journalists into his confidence is due to the fact that he has done a good deal of writing himself, being the author of several tragedies, of review articles, and even of one or two books. He has probably inherited his literary gifts from his father, who is the author of a very readable history of the Jesuits, and who for some time was the Liberal member for Oxfordshire.

is now receiving a pension from the Italian government as his widow, but who is excommunicated from one end of the peninsula to the other and throughout Sicily, under the name of Dona Lina. He did not marry by her until the eve of the wedding of the daughter whom she had borne him, and to whom he was devoted, and in order to enable the girl, Giuseppeina, a particularly lovely woman, to become the wife of the fourteenth Prince of Linguaglossa, head of one of the most ancient houses of the Italian nobility.

Dona Lina was a woman of particularly unfortunate antecedents, and not satisfied with the scandals in which she had become involved prior to knowing Crispi, some of them figuring on the police records of the Sicilian town of Syracuse, she continued, after becoming first his companion, and then his full-fledged wife, to incriminate herself in affairs of the consequences of which she was saved by her husband's name.

He was rendered responsible for most of these misdoings of hers, especially those of a financial character, whereas the fact since he has been found a letter, written on the official paper of the French president of the council of ministers and the handwriting of the French statesman de Freycinet, who was prime minister of France at the time when he affixed his signature to the document. In this letter de Freycinet entreats Crispi, as a personal favor, to bestow the cordons of the Order of St. Maurice and Lazarus upon his friend Herz, for whom he himself had already obtained the Grand Cross of the Legion of Honor.

The production of this letter so many years after Crispi's death, has had the effect of causing a well known Italian editor, Vice Mantegazza, to regard himself as released from a promise which he gave to Crispi, to maintain silence about it, and in an article just published in the Roman "Corriere della Sera," he relates that once, when Crispi was lying ill, not long before his death and after he had retired from office, he had shown Mantegazza the letter in question, extracting from him a pledge to make no mention of it, and explaining at the same time that if he had never used it to exculpate himself from the charges brought against him in connection with Herz, it was because it would have been a breach of confidence towards de Freycinet, capable of ruining one of France's most prominent statesmen; one who seemed likely at the time to become once more premier of the republic.

Crispi added to Mantegazza, that if he were to use the letter in order to clear himself, he would regard himself as having been guilty of giving a stab in the back to de Freycinet.

This is only one of many of such traits of Crispi which are now becoming known, and which explain the insistence of his daughter, Princess Linguaglossa, to have his letters and correspondence published; convinced as she was from personal knowledge, that it would show her father to his countrymen in an altogether new light, and completely clear his fair name.

I may add that the princess is now separated from her husband, for when he found that her father had left no money, and that all the wrongfully acquired wealth imputed to him was a myth, and that he had sacrificed even his restricted private means to save his wife, the prince vented his disappointment on the princess to such a degree that she sought judicial separation.

BAHAMAS EAGER FOR UNION WITH CANADA

To the Editor of the Montreal Witness:— Sir,—Pardon my liberty in writing to you, but after reading a very important article from the Witness, which appeared in our esteemed Tribune, I thought that I would give you a few more points on the Bahamas. To describe the Bahamas is really a paradise dream. It is an old saying, "See Naples and die," but not so now. See Nassau and the Bahamas Islands, then die. I know Mr. S. H. Mortimer and Inagua. What he told of your reputation is as true as sunshine. Mr. Mortimer has been telling you something about Inagua, so I think it is my duty to tell you something about Eleuthera. Eleuthera was once the backbone of the Bahamas, but it is not so now; it has been deserted. Eleuthera is a fruit and vegetable island. The high tariff of the United States has caused our fruit systems to collapse. My fellow planters and self are left in mighty low water. Our chief hobby is raising pineapples—most delicious fruit, known as the scarlet pine. Our people have been pinesapple mad in the past. We used to do fairly well until the Americans raised their tariff on us, and that put us practically on our backs. Union with Canada means a great thing to us planters. Eleuthera can never be what she has been, so many of our people have gone to the State of Florida, and even a few have taken refuge in Canada. But if we should ever have union with Canada, I am of the opinion that all our people will return. We are something like the Japanese on this point—we all love our home. Our pineapple season has just ended. It begins in May and ends in August. Our next article which we are going to cultivate is sisal. We don't use machines; we do it hand cleaned. But at Nassau, the capital, they use machines. I cannot close without mentioning the fact. Union with Canada is a part of our daily prayers. I often wonder, whether we have the good will of Sir Wilfrid Laurier, our prime minister, and I wonder how he takes the suggestion. I sincerely hope it is in the affirmative. I believe that God is with us, and the only thing left for us to do is wrestle, fight and win. We are setting out this month of August, tomato plants for the Canada-Bahama Fruit and Development Co., Ltd., of which Mr. Harold Scudall is manager. Large inducements down here for men in the fruit business. Say a good word for us, sir.

WM. T. CANGINO.

The Evening Chit-Chat
By RUTH CAMERON

My small niece Rosalie had been kept awake several hours one night by a mosquito in her room.

In the morning her mother was comforting her, and armed with the witch hazel, was hunting for the little warrior's wounds which seemed to be surprisingly few.

"Why, Rosalie," she finally objected, "he doesn't seem to have bitten you more than two or three times. I don't see how that could have kept you awake so long."

"But, mother," protested Rosalie, "he buzzed on. It wasn't what he did so much as what he acted as if he was going to do."

It seemed to me that poor, little, sleepy Rosalie quite unknowingly described an outlook on life that does more harm than all the other species of mental cross-eyedness put together.

For the most part, it isn't what our troubles do to us that makes us so unhappy. It's what they act as if they were going to do.

We could stand the few real attacks they make upon us, the few real injuries they inflict, if it were not for the attacks and injuries we think we are going to suffer.

Suppose you could see all the mental energy your possible troubles have cost you in one total, and that which your real troubles have taken out of you in another—what do you think would be the target?

The first I fancy, for most people don't fret at all about real troubles—they just endure them.

And remember this, all you who want to succeed in the business of life—and I suppose that is equivalent to saying everybody—who is constantly finding ghosts is seldom capable of fighting any of the real battles on the highway to success, which require all a man or woman's full powers.

Buster Brown has a resolution on the subject of the needless unhappiness caused by the buzzing of that mosquito which seldom bites, which I'm sure you'll appreciate, whether you are a victim or not.

"Resolved" that worry is work. People who worry have got a life job with no pay envelope on Saturdays. Worry is crossing the bridge before you come to it, and while you're on it and after you're over. The way he never thinks about it, until he gets there and if the bridge is down he swims the creek. I guess we can't worry if we stop saying "if."

Buster Brown.

ALLOWED TO GO.

In the police court yesterday afternoon Arthur Craft, charged with assaulting Jeanne Craig, was allowed to go on suspended sentence on furnishing securities to keep the peace. Margaret Sullivan, charged with keeping a lawless house, was committed.

(Montreal Witness, editorial.)

The letter from Mr. Cangino, a pineapple and sisal planter on the Island of Eleuthera, one of the Bahamas, is very informative as to the present condition of those islands commercially, and reveals an enthusiastic desire for union with Canada. The islands are at present shut out from the United States market by high duties. Should reciprocity be adopted they would, as part of Canada, be free of the United States market for the greater part of their products. This is a prospective feature of the change which has not occurred to our correspondent, who seems to place his hopes of trade regeneration in free commerce with what would in case of union be the rest of Canada. The Bahama problem is certainly a very interesting one, and will probably come up at an early date after the new parliament gets under way. It would, if nothing else, be a great advertisement for the islands thus to become a part of Canada.

SHE ASKS DIVORCE

Vienna, Sept. 20.—Proceedings for divorce have been begun by Frau Hofrichter, whose husband, Lieutenant Hofrichter, was found guilty of sending poisoned "patent medicine" to several of his officers (one of whom died), and was sentenced on June 25, 1910, to twenty years' rigorous imprisonment.

Frau Hofrichter has been living in a state of poverty and decided that it would be better for her son, who was born while his father was awaiting trial, and for herself that she should obtain a divorce and live with her mother, a shopkeeper in a modest way of business.

To avoid expense and painful scenes she appealed to her husband to set her free and to let her obtain a divorce by consent, but he has replied that he is anxious to start a fresh life when he comes out of prison in nineteen years' time and relies on her help. Comparatively few prisoners, however, survive so long a sentence in Austria, and Frau Hofrichter intends to proceed with her suit.

AN OLD CRY

The bogey of disloyalty which Mr. Borden would frighten the Canadian people is not new but old. It has done duty in Canada before. It has done duty in England. In every great fight for reform, in every great fight of the people against privilege, this ancient cry has been dragged into service. When the English Reform Bill of 1832 was mooted—the Reform Bill that disfranchised many rotten boroughs and enlarged the number of holders of the franchise—the chief cry made against it was that it was disloyal. Its opponents used no other arguments against enlarging the franchise in England, as now Mr. Borden uses no other argument against the removal of restrictions from trade in Canada.

They assured the English people that they could not give the middle class any large and direct share in the government of the country without administering a violent shock to the most cherished institutions of the nation. They said that the "laboring classes of England could not safely be trusted with the right of electing members of the House of Commons. The Reform Bill, they insisted, would produce a destructive revolution. "The people will believe those who flatter them and distrust those who serve them," was one of the cries: "they will be ungrateful, credulous, eager for immediate relief, heedless of remote consequences."

Mr. Borden used almost exactly such language when he appealed to his audience at Megantic last week, not lightly to throw away their British citizenship to the first people who made a bid. Nothing will satisfy patriots of that type but a plea and an opportunity of taxing and exploiting the people for their own advantage. The people to whom Mr. Borden is talking, the people of all parties, are at least as loyal and as disinterested as he is.

The Reform Bill proved to be the best security against revolution and the greatest bulwark of the throne. The opponents of Reform had said that monarchical and aristocratic institutions had no hold on the public mind of England; that they were regarded with aversion by a majority of the middle class, and that their representatives would abolish royalty. Is there anything other than this in Mr. Borden's present contention? Is it not a fair inference from his argument that the farmers and the public generally are loyal only because they are restricted and bonded in their trade? If they are given full opportunity to grow and expand—they will throw off British connection.

Did every crazy radical utter a swifter slander against British connection? Is not the King popular in this country? Is not British connection popular? Who wishes to dethrone the King? Who wishes to throw off British connection? And who wishes to argue that the popularity of the King and of British connection depends on a fiscal system that England herself long ago discarded? Apparently Mr. Borden does. The King, Mr. Borden seems to think, is only tolerated in this country because we have a tax on hay, logs and cattle, and because the United States keeps a tax on similar articles.

Who are anxious to retain those taxes on natural products? The trusts, monopolies, combines and special interests, and all those who have grown wealthy by exploiting the industries of the country. The people regard these taxes with aversion, yet Mr. Borden would attain power by assuring them that these taxes are essential to British connection! There is no possibility of doubt that the Liberal leaders would infinitely prefer to fall with such a measure as this than to succeed with the cry that British connection is detrimental to the best interests of the people.

RAILWAY PROGRESS

It is evident that the Canadian Pacific Railway is destined to become a factor of increasing importance in the transportation business of Canada, and that it has not been disturbed by any fears that government policy would in any way interfere with its prosperity. That it expects to do a constantly increasing business at the Atlantic ports is proved by the money it is expending at the port of St. John. It is worth while to note what the company is doing in the west to secure traffic for its through lines. The company is displaying greater activity in the west this year than ever before. When it has carried out its plans, and the Grand Trunk Pacific and Canadian Northern have completed their through lines from coast to coast, with branch lines as feeders, the transportation system of Canada will be the admiration of the world. With regard to the Canadian Pacific and what it is doing in the west, we may quote the following from the Montreal Gazette.

"Not for years have the Canadian Pacific Railway had so many miles of new track under construction as they have this year. New lines are being built practically all over Western Canada, and hundreds of gangs of track builders are at work in the various provinces. The C. P. R.'s network of new lines is rapidly extending into new districts, and as fast as they are built they are being opened for traffic. Since the middle of June, five or six new services have been inaugurated, and it is stated that there are several other lines which will be carrying regular trains before the end of November. It is these new lines that are among the greatest inducements to new settlers to open up new districts, as when the services are established they have transportation facilities for getting their produce to the markets. For the incoming settlers of next year it is stated that the C. P. R. will rush to completion nearly four hundred new lines in Alberta and Saskatchewan. These lines include from Moose Jaw, southeast, 33 miles; Kerrobert, northeast, 25 miles; Weyburn branch extension, 21 miles; Estevan branch, 35 miles; Swift Current, northwest, 35 miles; Wilkie, northwest, 32 miles; Wilkie, southeast, 21 miles; Kininow branch extension, 37 miles; Beaman to Kininow Junction, 35 miles, and Kipp branch extension, 27 miles."

The campaign which closes today has been one of the most keenly contested since the national policy campaign in 1878. The people have been intensely interested, and meetings on both sides have had a larger attendance than is usual in a long campaign. A feature of the fight that has been especially noticeable has been the absence of bitter personalities.

The late reports from the state of Maine seem to indicate that prohibition has been defeated by a majority of only a few votes. This result will be held by the opponents of prohibition everywhere as a proof that a prohibitory law does not satisfactorily solve the drink problem. The temperance forces will doubtless undertake a local option campaign in the rural districts, whatever course they may pursue in regard to the cities.

The Times prints today an interesting letter contributed to the Montreal Witness by a citizen of the Bahamas, along with an editorial comment thereon by the Witness. The people of those islands are very eager for union with Canada. Their legislature has approved of such action. Several influential Canadians have given considerable time to advocacy of such a union. The people of the islands would like to have our market for their products, and would also like to have the Bahamas made a winter resort for wealthy Canadians.

By the end of this week the citizens will be able to withdraw their attention from national politics and give some consideration to matters of civic interest. The city council has had a fairly busy summer, and the amount of work done by the street and water departments has been large. Doubtless the bills will also be large, but necessary work has been done, and, if it has been done well, there can be no objection on the part of the taxpayers. This is the last year under the city council system, and it may be hoped that the record of this council will be such as to arouse less criticism than was directed against some of its predecessors.

Canada has a large apple crop this year. Up to September 17th the exports from Montreal amounted to 17,339 barrels, compared with 13,205 bbls for the corresponding period in 1910. The exports to date are also larger than those for the like period in 1909 and 1908. A despatch from Halifax states that a steamer left that port this week for London with 34,000 bbls. of apples, the largest apple cargo ever shipped from that port. A cargo of 19,000 bbls. had gone forward from Halifax on the preceding day. So far as Nova Scotia is concerned, her apple crop this year will run into a very large amount of money. The time should not be very far distant when New Brunswick, which it is claimed has a larger area of good orchard lands than Nova Scotia, will share in the great benefits of a large export apple trade.

A few years ago the suggestion that a train ferry could be operated across the Bay of Fundy would have been received with skepticism. The project has, however, commended itself to even so cautious a man as Mr. D. McNeill, general manager of the Canadian Pacific Railway. If the company are able to carry out a plan for taking freight trains across the bay on steam-propelled barges it will be a great step in advance in the matter of transportation between Nova Scotia and the rest of Canada. Another important change will be made if the company provide at the head of the harbor terminals for the Bay of Fundy passenger service. The C. P. R. has become a very large property owner on the St. John water front, and evidently has great faith in the future of this port.

LD SKIPPER DIES AS RESULT OF ARGUMENT
There Had Been a Heated Quarrel Over Latitude and Longitude

New York, Sept. 21.—Captain Henry Collins, of the little launch which plies the quiet Lower Bay, between Midland and South Beach, on Staten Island, is dead from violence as a consequence of a quarrel over latitude and longitude. The captain went to Marselli's bar at West New Brighton, Marselli told the police his companions were Joseph L. Graham, Frederick G. Hood and William McGrath, all of New Brighton. There had been an altercation. An hour later a passerby found Captain Collins unconscious and bleeding from a wound in the head. The old skipper died before a physician arrived. Graham and Hood were arrested, and McGrath was held on bail as a witness as to the whereabouts of the other two. The captain was shown to have been about navigation and latitude and longitude with the captain, and that he (Graham) had struck him. Hood admitted that he also had dealt a blow. The prisoners were held in $3,000 bail.

OUTBREAK OF PLAGUE
Fourteen Deaths in Isolation Hospital in Chapei District of China

Shanghai, Sept. 20.—The reappearance of plague in the Chapei district, immediately outside the northern boundary of the international settlement, serves to call attention once more to the wretchedly insanitary condition of that quarter and the constant menace that it constitutes to the general health of Shanghai. Some fourteen deaths have occurred and five cases are undergoing treatment at the Chinese Public Isolation Hospital, established by the Chinese early this year in consequence of the outbreak of plague last autumn. All the cases of plague have come from Chapei with the exception of one death which took place in the French concession, and one just inside settlement limits, in which the victim was shown to have been lately moved in from Chapei, apparently with the seeds of the disease in him. As a result of the outbreak a meeting was held at the Taotai's yamen between representatives of the Isolation Hospital, including the two foreign doctors attached to it, the Chinese constabulary, and the Taotai, when it was decided that the infected quarter should be surrounded with an isolating fence of galvanized iron, and an extensive scheme of rat-trapping and trapping should be undertaken, and that a supply of Hoffman's serum should be available for all who were willing to be inoculated. It is only fair to add that a full need of praise must be given to the Chinese doctors and inspectors of the Isolation Hospital, whose energy in detecting and reporting cases of plague has been conspicuous.

THE CLOSE OF THE CAMPAIGN
A highly successful meeting was held yesterday afternoon in Lorneville, with H. W. Robertson, James Lowell and Hon. Wm. Pugley as the speakers. They were given a hearty reception. Andrew Wilson occupied the chair. In Fairville last evening a big rally was held in the interests of James Lowell, and hundreds attended into Temperance Hall to hear able speeches from Dr. Silas Alberry, K. C., Rev. J. J. McQuillan, J. McAlpine, Dr. M. L. Macfarland presided.

AT MOUNT ALLISON
A Sackville despatch states that it has been decided to move Lindsey Hall to the university athletic field. Dr. McKay, professor of physics, has resigned and steps are being taken to secure a successor. Professor Lawrence Killam, of Yarmouth, is appointed dean of the science faculty in place of Dr. Andrews, who left to become president of Regina College.

The young couple received many beautiful and costly presents in cut glass and silver. Mr. and Mrs. Hughes will reside at 90 Portland street.

THEY WANT WATER Panama Canal Zone Governor is Notified That Drastic Action Will be Taken. Panama, Sept. 21—During the last few weeks there has been a deficiency in the water supply, causing despair among the inhabitants. The trouble is due to the lowering of the amount of water used at the Pedro Miguel Locks of the canal. During the day there is seldom any water pressure in the town. The city officials complained to the governor of the Panama Zone, and informed him that unless the situation was remedied, Panama would allow a reopening of the wells, intimating that the danger resulting from the supply was preferable to a water famine.

It is planned to have another bowling league organized, play to take place on the gymnasium alleys, which have been thoroughly renovated. The indications are that the thirteenth year of the existence of the association will be successful and prosperous, and that the roll of members rejoicing in the same will be considerably larger than heretofore.

It Is Good to Meet a Man With An Unshakable Belief In Something

Yesterday I spoke to a man of that type. He is the chief of our Men's Clothing Store, and the belief which he holds so firmly is this: That if the men of St. John knew what he knows about Oak Hall Men's Clothing and about other clothing, the only men who would buy any but Oak Hall Clothing would be men who "don't care" and of course you must know that men who "don't care" don't count.
