On 8kates. "You see," said my friend Reglet, as he cut a "pigeon's wing" on the glassy surface at the rink, went off on one foot and came circling around on the other, you see it is an exercise which brings all the muscles into play, and must be healthy. In fact Dio Lewis says it is better than riding on horseback. It looked so easy and so nice that ATLANTIC SERVICE winked at the boy who had skates to lend "That's right, old boy!" called Reglet as he sailed around with a haudsome girl on each arm and a lovely blonde hanging t his coat tails-"I'll bet a hundred dollars you'll learn all the flourishes within an EMIGRANTS I was highly gratified at this express of confidence in my ability, and I kept hurrying up the boy as he fastened on the skates. The impudent sauce-box said I'd skates. The impudent sauce-box said I'd better strap a pillow on the back of my head before I started out, but I passed the insinuation by in silent contempt.

"Now then," said Reglet, circling up with a dozen French flourishes, "the main thing is to have confidence in yourself. Strike right out, like a pioneer getting away from a troop of wolves, and I'll bet a hundred to one you'll make a skater."

I struck out. I struck in several other directions besides out. One footwent to the left, the other to the right, and I wnirled around and sat down. The blonde young lady came up and said that I had made a capital hit, and the other two said that I was certain to combine grace with muscular effort when I got fairly started.

I didn't feel much like starting out again, but I had to do it. Reg'et helped me up, said that he could already see an improvement in my health, and he warned me to shove my feet as I saw him do.—I obeyed. The left-foot shot out, leaving the right some rods in the rear, and intrying to even up the race a little some thing struck the ice. It was myself. The back of my head struck first, and there were five distinct shocks before the wole of my body got down.

Reglet sailed up and said he never saw that beaten, and the blonde declared her belief that I was an old skater, and was just playing off on them. The rink danced round and round as I sat up, and the small how who was argumined.

smile; and they all edged off to give me a fair show.

"Come, dart right off," yelled Regiet, and I carefully darted my feet out on an exploring voyage. They hadn't travelled over six inches before they got ahead of my body. I reached out for something to support me, clawed around, and the back of my head made a hole in the ice. I shought the roof of the rink had fallen in, and that twenty eight tons of boards and shingles had struck me in a heap, but I was deceived.

a hair's breadth of cutting one of the grandest flourishes known on icc, and they wanted me to try once more. I told tem I had got to go to a funeral, and that I would be back in half-an-hour, but it was no use.
"See how easy it is," exclaimed Reglet as he pushed out and swung one leg as he pushed out and swung one leg around.

I pushed out and swung one leg, 1 couldn't pull it back. I tried to and I yelled to Reglet that I'd give him fifty dollars to grab me. He was too late. I clawed and waved and tottered and fell, and when I came to my senses again Reglet said that if I would go through the same performance every day for two months he'd warrant me that I could eat a hundred hot biscuits per day and never have a touch of the dyspepsia.

I am in bed yet, and a friend has written this from dictation. The doctor says that two ribs on my left side are fractured, the collar bone is broken, the bones of one elbow smushed and the spinal column is three inches out of true, but he is labouring away in hopes of mending me up by spring.

Hurrying and stumbling up into the organ loft he sat down before the instrument and in his demoralized mental condition commenced playing a dirge under the impression, probably, that he was officiating at a funeral. The bride's big brother was seen to rush up the gallery stairs in a great state of excitement. The Judge remarked in court the next day, that although the provocation was sufficient to merit strong remonstrance, the prisoner was not justified in beating the organist as he did. as one of the most effectual remedies ever discovered for cleansing the sys-tem and purifying the blood. It has stood the test of ears, with a con peneficial to children, and yet so searchings to effectually purge out the great couptions of the blood, such as the scrofulous and syphilitic contamination. Impurities or diseases that have lurked in the syste or diseases that have lurked in the system for years, soon yield to this powerful antidote, and disappear. Hence its wonderful cures, many of which are publicly known, of Scrofula, and all scrofulous diseases, Ulcers, Eruptions, and eruptive disorders of the skin, Tumors, Blotches, Boils, Pimples, Pustules, Sores, St. Anthony's Fire, Rose or Erysipelas, Tetter, Salt Rheum, Scald Head, Ringworm, and internal Ulcerations of the Uterus, Stomach, and Liver. It also cures other complaints, to which it would not seem especially adapted, such as Dropsy, Dyspepsia, Fits, Neuralgia, Heart Disease, Female Weakness, Debility, and Leucorrhoea, when they are manifestations of the Spring. By renewing the appetite and vigor of the digestive organs, it dissipates the depression and listless languor of the season. Even where no disorder appears, people feel better, and live longer, for cleansing the blood. The system moves on with renewed vigor and a new lease of life.
