ESSEX.
The sub-committee of the Windsor public schools has decided that Ada Cooke and William Hughes were the pupils who wrote the indecent letter that was found on Miss Owen's desk, and they are suspended for four weeks.

The Walkerville council at their last meeting decided to pay the $150 due for the school purposes. Dr. C. M. Harter intimated that he was dissatisfied with the position of treasurer and the emoluments connected with it.

HURON.
Drs. Secord and Smith left Kincardine for Goderich on Wednesday. Owing to the condition of the roads they took the lake route, going over the ice. When the boat was about half way across the lake sixteen miles north of Goderich the team broke through the ice and were drowned, the occupants of the cutter escaping without injury.

CHATHAM.
Charles A. Bagwell, of Chatham, died at Los Angeles, Cal., Wednesday, while on his way to the Sandwich Islands, in the hope that that climate would prolong his life. From Kansas City where he was, he was brought to Chatham by a friend, and Mr. Bagwell was very low and not likely to be able to proceed much farther.

LAMBTON.
The Sarnia Turf Club are making preparations for their spring races, which will be held at Bayview Park on Wednesday and Thursday, May 24 and 25. Prizes to the amount of $1,200 will be given, and two days of royal sport may be expected.

Robt. Goodwin is intending to navigate the waters of Lakes Huron and Michigan on his way to the World's Fair in Chicago, in the latter part of May next.

The officials of the city of Port Huron are going to give the streets, alleys, etc., a thorough cleaning up. The Sarnia Board of Health will wake up and give the town as good an overhauling this spring.

There is to be a new electric railway built from Port Huron to Marine City, a distance of twenty miles. A strong company has been formed, and the road will be completed this summer.

The annexation of Port Huron and Fort Gratiot will soon be submitted to the vote of the people, the bill having passed both Houses of the Legislature.

Harry Lindley's Dramatic Company are playing to crowded houses all this week at the Victoria Opera House, Sarnia. The work has been commenced on the brick block to be erected on Leitch street by J. S. Thom and James Kelly. This will be a decided improvement over the old frame buildings which formerly occupied the site.

Randal Kenney is also having a brick block built opposite the Sarnia Board of Health, on Crownwell street.

W. J. Hanna, barrister, will give a course of lectures to Sarnia Tunnell City Business College students on "Commercial Law."

The revival services in the Baptist Church here are increasing in interest every week. Rev. Mr. Fugley, evangelist, is assisting in the work.

The annual election of officers of the Sarnia fire brigade was held on Tuesday evening, March 14, when the following were elected: Chief, John Mahoney; assistant chief, A. McLeod; secretary-treasurer, Wm. Armstrong; Frank Gossley and Wm. Evans, captains.

Sarnia's new rink will soon be completed. The painters are putting on the finishing touches and the gasfitters are putting up the chandeliers.

The West Lambton spring show will be held at Sarnia on March 26.

George S. Sarnia has moved into his elegant new house on Christina street.

The Concor got $25 an hour from the city of Port Huron for breaking the ice in the lake above the ferry landing.

MIDDLESEX.
While reading the Bible on Thursday last, Mr. Isaac Reid, of Exeter, was seized with a stroke of paralysis, to which he succumbed on Monday. He was aged 75 years, was a pioneer settler, with his husband having resided at Crediton some years ago, and was highly esteemed. There survived a husband and one daughter, Mrs. Harriet, of Exeter.

Cooper & Richards' store, Middlesex, was broken into the other night and $150 in cash taken besides about $250 worth of postage stamps and some goods.

OXFORD.
It is stated that the Rev. W. A. McKay, of Chatham, has been elected to the stock, which was the degree of doctor of divinity conferred upon him by the Presbyterian College of Montreal early in April.

PERTH.
On Sunday night some person or persons forced their way into the grocery store of Messrs. J. P. Rogers & Co., St. Marys, and stole about $5 in money, a large quantity of tobacco and some other goods.

An implement house owned by James Twister, Blanchard, was burned the other night. The implements destroyed were valued at $500, and included a binder, mower, seeder, plow, etc., and a binder.

Watford Council has passed a fire limit law which enacts that no frame building shall be erected within 100 feet of each side of Main street, between Erie and Front; that every block shall have a brick wall every 60 feet that shall be at least 12 feet high shall not be less than 8 inches; two or three stories—12 inches first story, 8 inches all above that.

A bottle of Angostura Bitters to flavor your lemonade or any other cold drink will keep you free from dyspepsia, Colic, Diarrhea and all diseases originating from the digestive organs. Be sure to get the genuine Angostura, manufactured by Dr. J. G. B. Siegert & Sons.

In the spring Williams' Royal Crown Remedy and Pills will cure dyspepsia.

AN AWFUL REVENGE.

Extermination of a Band of Pirates by Chinese Villagers.

SAN FRANCISCO, March 16.—A Yokohama paper just received via steamer City of Rio Janeiro prints an account of the extermination of a band of pirates in a Chinese village last January. On Jan. 15 last two piratical craft, having run into one of the inlets in the vicinity of the city of Shepu, called Fan-Tu, for shelter, some of the pirates landed. Fan-Tu had suffered repeatedly from the depredations of pirates along the coast of Chekiang and had lost some of their number at the hands of these desperadoes. Some of the pirates who landed were recognized by the inhabitants, who held a consultation, and as a result the 300 well armed villagers surprised the pirates in the early hours of the morning. The villagers burst open the doors and poured a stream of bullets upon 50 or 60 pirates, who were huddled together for warmth on the lower decks of the junks. Thoroughly taken by surprise, hardly any resistance was made, and all of the pirates but two were almost hacked into mince-meat by the infuriated villagers.

The two pirates who were not killed this way were saved to be made away with in a different manner. It seemed as if among the villagers who had been killed by the pirates was a son of the patriarch of the village. At daylight the two pirates, escorted by the whole community, were led to the grave of the young man, and being secured to a couple of stakes put up for the purpose, two of the nearest relatives of the dead man plunged knives into the breasts of the two men, and, having opened their bodies, extracted their livers, which were then put smoking hot on a plate and placed on the table upon which already lighted candles and incense burnt. The female relatives of the deceased dressed in mourning colors of white, gathered by the side of the grave, crying and calling out to the spirit of the dead to receive the sacrifice that was being offered in his name. The offerings were then left on the grave, and the villagers then ransacked the piratical junks, after having first thrown the bodies overboard into the sea. The plunder from the junks, gold, silver, silks, satins and rice, was equally divided among the families who had previously offered at the hands of the pirates, and the junks were towed into the stream and burned to the water's edge. The bodies of the two victims of the sacrifice were also thrown into the sea.

INFORMATION FOR A YOUNG AUTHOR.

A writer wonders why so many young mothers lack the grand quality of cheerfulness. Evidently the young and rising author is not thoroughly acquainted with domestic affairs, and does not know of their trials and tribulations of the mother. It is thoroughly posted in domestic matters there would not be any cause for wonder and amazement.

In the large majority of cases the young mother's lack of cheerfulness is owing to the fact that baby is cross and fussy day and night. This is worry and is a sure sign for any mother; indeed, such mothers deserve sympathy.

Let us make at this point a bold and plain assertion—an assertion that is strongly supported by facts. It is as follows: "Baby is fed daily with common and badly prepared artificial foods, which irritate the stomach and intestines and impair digestive vigor."

Little wonder, then, that babies are peevish, cross, and disagreeable, and that young mothers are void of cheerfulness. There is a grand remedy for this condition of things wherever it may exist. The remedy lies simply in the use of a feeding food, which gives the baby strength and health, with perfect digestion, and makes it happy, bright and contented.

When Lactated Food is regularly used for babies there can be no careworn, weary, irritable and unhappy mothers. Joy will take the place of sadness, and perfect peace will reign.

THE ORANGEMEN.

Closing Session of the Grand Lodge—Motion to Censure Grand Master Wallace—Election of Officers.

ORANGEVILLE, March 16.—Yesterday's session of the Grand Orange Lodge during a full in the proceedings Bro. John Campbell, of Toronto, got the floor and moved, seconded by Bro. Thomas Plunkett: Resolved, that we Orangemen to full force protest against the proceedings of yesterday as being irregular according to the rules of order of the Grand Lodge; and that we also protest against the brutal and insulting language used by Grand Master Clarke Wallace against two brother clerical members of the Grand Lodge here assembled.

It appears that in the discussion of the day before two estimable clergymen, Rev. John Morgan, of Hillsdale, and Rev. Wm. Stout, of Sarnia, spoke out pretty plainly against Bro. N. Clarke Wallace. Bro. N. Clarke Wallace waxed wroth, and in reply also used plain language.

Bro. Campbell's resolution was ruled out of order on a technicality.

A pleasing incident took place, being the passing of a resolution congratulating Past Grand Master W. M. Fitzgerald, of London, Ont., who was appointed to the same time his promotion. He was at the time presented by a full complement of judicial robes by the Grand Lodge. Bro. Fitzgerald made a feeling reply.

There was an unexpected closing of the grand mastership, the nominees being Bro. James L. Hughes and Wm. Bell. Bro. Hughes was entitled to the office by a majority of 200 votes, but Bro. Bell was not present, and the vote stood 200 to 258 for Bell; majority for Hughes, 41.

Bro. W. M. Lockhart, of Sarnia, was elected deputy grand master, and Bro. D. M. Jernyn, of London, was elected grand secretary.

Grand Chaplain—Rev. W. C. M.P.P. Grand Treasurer—E. F. C. Grand Secretary—Wm. Bell. Grand Lecturer—C. C. Grand Director of Ceremonies—Robert Burns, Toronto.

Deputy Grand Secretary—H. Scott, Kincardine. Grand Auditors—L. C. M. W. H. Cooper.

SENSIBLE HINTS.

Don't growl About the weather. For easier 'tis, you'll find. To make your mind to weather Than weather to your mind.

Don't growl About "the sermon." And show your lack of wit. For like a boot, a sermon hurts. The closer it doth fit.

Don't growl About your neighbor. For in your neighbor's view His neighbor is not faultless— That neighbor being you.

Departing Missionaries.
TORONTO, March 16.—Miss Florence G. Wickert, of this city, and Mrs. Rednor, of Hastings county, who are about to proceed to British Columbia to engage in missionary work among the Chinese and Indians, were the center of a farewell gathering last night at Berkeley Street Methodist Church.

"German Syrup"

Here is something from Mr. Frank A. Hale, proprietor of the De Witt House, Lewiston, and the Tontine Hotel, Brunswick, Me. Hotel men meet the world as it comes and goes, and are not slow in sizing people and things up for what they are worth. He says that he has lost a father and several brothers and sisters from Pulmonary Consumption, and is himself frequently troubled with colds, and he often coughs enough to make him sick at Consumption's stomach. When ever he has taken a cold of this kind he uses Boschee's German Syrup, and it cures him every time. Here is a man who knows the full danger of lung troubles, and would therefore be most particular as to the medicine he used. What is his opinion? "Listen! 'I use nothing but Boschee's German Syrup, and have advised, I presume, more than a hundred different persons to take it. They agree with me that it is the best cough syrup in the market.'"

Under the present system there is an unjustifiable waste of men, means and effort. The differences between most of the existing denominations are no greater than the differences, natural to thinking men and women, to be found in every congregation. Even those Christian bodies supposed to be the farthest apart, the Protestant and the Roman Catholics, have more of belief that is common than of belief that is antagonistic. To the laity the differences between the various Protestant denominations are microscopic. For various reasons the clergy, even when, as is true of the best of them, they favor Christian Union, are not in a position to be as outspoken as the laity.

London, Friday, March 17.

MR. MCCARTHY'S RESOLUTION.

Mr. D'Alton McCarthy's resolution denouncing the high tax policy, and calling for an immediate reduction in the tariff, was voted down by the followers of Sir John Thompson in the House of Commons.

No other result was expected. Anyone who has sat in the galleries of the House knows how difficult it is to change votes on the floor of the chamber.

The Liberals, agreeing almost entirely with every declaration in Mr. McCarthy's resolution, voted for it; but the Conservative members, with the exception of Messrs. McCarthy, O'Brien and Hodgins, voted in favor of the programme that meets with favor by the combines.

In fact, members of Parliament who have themselves large interests in the cotton, sugar, and other rings by which this country is cursed, were the chief speakers in opposition to Mr. McCarthy. Their principal plea was the "not that in its early stages the member for North Simcoe was himself a supporter of the National Policy, and that his judgment was not to be trusted now. As if it were the duty of a public man to live a life of deception, to life that party interests might be served, while the majority of the people suffered—all because at one time he had thought differently from what the logic of events compels him to think now!

Though the resolution was voted down, we are satisfied that its main features meet with the approval of the large majority of Canadians. Its defeat gives no discouragement to tariff reformers. They know that the present majority does not represent the sentiments of the country, and are confident that when the time does come for a general election they will have the assistance of thousands of men like D'Alton McCarthy and Mr. Hodgins, who have discovered the fallacy of attempting to make people prosperous and contented by taxing the many for the benefit of a few already rich.

A CORRESPONDENT of the Detroit News, who has just visited Ottawa, suggests that the mice be used to kill dull and prolix orators. Is the motion seconded by Dr. Sproule?

SOUTH MIDDLESEX ELECTION.
On Wednesday next the election of a member of Parliament, to take the seat occupied by the late James Armstrong, will be held in South Middlesex.

The constituency is a Liberal one. The majority of the electors have always been in favor of tariff reform and progressive legislation. There have been occasions, however, when relying on the knowledge that the normal Liberal majority was large, many Liberals did not take the trouble to go to the polls.

In a bye-election the tendency is to take things easy.

But in view of the important issue at stake it is the privilege, nay, it is the duty, of every elector to go to the polls and register his vote for those principles which he believes will most effectively tend to his individual welfare and to the prosperity of the whole community.

There are two candidates in the field. Reeve Boston, of Lobo, is the candidate of the Liberals of the riding, as chosen in convention.

Mr. Gray is the candidate of the Conservative party, chosen in the same manner.

Mr. Boston's platform cannot be mistaken. It is for a radical reduction of the present tariff. He takes the ground that even so strong a Conservative as Mr. McCarthy has been denounced by the Conservative leaders for holding that no Government can help the farmer or wage-earner by adding to his taxation. The only way in which the farmer can be helped is by reducing his taxes, by combating the combines, by giving him new markets in which to sell his products. The wage-earner will prosper just as the farmer prospers. "The farmer feeds us all" is a true saying.

Mr. Gray, on the other hand, professes to repudiate the party which brought him out. Off the platform, in the side lines, he is a no-party man—if his hearer is a Liberal. On the platform, he would fain ask for votes as a man who would go to Ottawa unallied with parties. Mr. Gray undoubtedly is the Conservative candidate, and as such he must stand or fall by the determination of the leaders of that party to uphold a "protective" tariff which presses most heavily upon the farmers and wage-earners. Even were he to go to Parliament pledged to tariff reduction, as Dr. Roome, as Mr. Ingram, as Mr. Marshall were, what guarantee have the electors that he would not succumb to the seductive wiles of Sir John Thompson and the combine agents, as did these men. Dr. Roome pledged himself to support the Patrons of Industry platform. Is it not notorious that when tax reduction, called for by the Patrons, came before the House, he joined Sir John Thompson in opposing it every time? The other Conservative M.P.s mentioned also went back on their pre-election promises to the farmers and wage-earners the moment that the bosses at Ottawa demanded that humiliation.

With these examples before them, how can the electors of South Middlesex take stock in the protestations of the candidate who is daily groomed by so pronounced high tariff advocates as Messrs. Chisholm and Thomas?

As it is, the only tax which Mr. Gray would consent to have reduced is that on binder twine, as if there were not a hundred and one taxes on other necessities to life and happiness in this Dominion that are altogether too excessive.

If the electors of South Middlesex desire to promote genuine tariff reform, and thus take from their backs a portion of the burden they are now called upon to bear, that millionaires may profit and may help political adventurers in return for opportunity to tax the many, they can best secure the reform by defeating the Conservative and high tax candidate by an overwhelming majority.

Let every elector go to the polls.

It is said that Senator Tasse and Mr. Adam Brown, postmaster of Hamilton, will be the paid commissioners of the Dominion Government to the Chicago Exhibition. Does Mr. Carling come in anywhere?

THE CENSUS.

The Opposition are not satisfied with the last census, neither were they with the one before that. It is impossible to please them.—[London Free Press.]

If our contemporary will turn to the debates in Parliament, and to every independent newspaper in Canada, it will find that not the Opposition alone, but a wide section of the Conservative party hold that the census is neither satisfactory nor completed with honesty.

Mr. McCarthy is not a member of the Opposition, yet he holds that the census, so far as it relates to manufacturing industries is absolutely worthless.

Mr. Hodgins, member for Carleton, represents probably the most Conservative constituency in Ontario—one that returned Sir John Macdonald himself—and he, too, has voted want of confidence in the census and the Government under which it was compiled.

We have Col. O'Brien, the stalwart Muskoka representative, speaking out boldly on the same line. In the debate on Thursday night the colonel declared:

"As one who had supported the N. P. since 1878, he now denounced it as having given rise to many evils. He would give the farmers relief by decreasing their expenditure and increasing their purchasing power. He condemned a protection system. He did not think the country was prosperous, and the figures of the census intended to bolster up such a belief were simply rubbish. The figures made him lose confidence in the infallibility of the Minister of Finance. Dealing with Mr. Foster's speech he said that the Government evidently thought itself a little providence. One would think they were gods sitting on Olympus instead of twelve ordinary mortals—very ordinary."

This is the opinion of a pronounced Conservative. It is suppressed in the Free Press report of Parliament, but nevertheless it stands unanswered.

Our contemporary's denunciation is thus altogether too restricted. If it means to see Sir John Thompson through whensoever he gets into a hole, it will have to widen its condemnation to include a large number of persons in and out of Parliament who have up till recently sailed in the same boat as itself, but who, in view of recent revelations regarding the padding of the census, the partnership of the Administration in the combines, and the determination, for party interests, to ignore the public welfare, are like Col. O'Brien heartily sick of the present regime.

ROBERT BOSTON, Liberal, and Alexander Gray, Conservative, were nominated as candidates for the Commons in South Middlesex yesterday. The only question is Mr. Boston's majority.—[Hamilton Times.]

That is so. But nothing must be taken for granted. Every tariff reformer, every man who favors a radical reduction in the tax burdens of the people must see to it that he records his vote for Mr. Boston bright and early next Wednesday.

Selling Tobacco to Minors.

To the Editor of the ADVERTISER:—Is a grocer liable under the Ontario Act respecting the sale of tobacco to minors when filling a verbal order given by a minor for groceries for parents in which tobacco is included, no written order from parent for tobacco having at any time been given requesting the grocer to give the child tobacco when sent for it, but it being customary for the children of said parents to give verbal orders for groceries (tobacco included) and carry the goods home, the groceries and tobacco being charged to parents' account? And secondly, would the grocer be any more liable, providing the child pays for the goods (tobacco included) when ordered, the goods being carried away by the child, who is under 18 years of age? An answer will oblige.

AN INTERESTED PARENT.

London, March 15, 1893.
[NOTE.—The statute is intended to cover both cases presented by you, but in our opinion the grocer would not be liable upon the facts firstly stated because the tobacco is not sold, given or furnished to the minor, but to his parents. When, however, the sale is to the minor, who pays for it, and there is no written request or order of the parent or guardian as secondly stated by you, we are clearly of opinion that the second section of the act applies and that the grocer is liable to the penalty. The statute only came into force on July 1 last, and has not yet been judicially interpreted.]

What Can Cuticura Do

Ask thousands of tortured and disfigured little babies throughout the land. Everything that is cleansing, purifying and beautifying for the skin, scalp and blood of infants and children, the CUTICURA REMEDIES will do. They afford instant relief, permit rest and sleep and point to a speedy cure in the most agonizing of itching and burning eczemas. They clear the skin of the most distressing scaly, crusty, pimply and blotchy humors. They cleanse the scalp of dandruff, scales and crusts, and restore the hair. They purify the blood of simple, scrofulous and hereditary humors. Thus from a simple blemish to the worst case of scrofula they are equally successful. Everything about these great skin cures, blood purifiers and humor remedies inspires confidence. They are absolutely pure and may be used on the youngest infant. They are agreeable to the most refined and sensitive. They are speedy, economical and unfailing. Cures made in childhood are almost invariably permanent.

Sold everywhere. Price: CUTICURA, 75 cts; SOAP, 50 cts; RESOLVENT, $1.00. Prepared by POTTER DRUG AND CHEMICAL CORPORATION, Boston.

Husband and Wife

Both Cured by Hood's Sarsaparilla

Cataract, Kidney Complaint, Heart Failure, Liver Troubles.

"I think it my duty to voluntarily tell what Hood's Sarsaparilla has done for myself and wife. Last spring my wife was in a very bad way with kidney complaint; felt and could hardly get around the house. She began to take Hood's Sarsaparilla, and in one week she was improving. When she had taken but three bottles of Hood's Sarsaparilla she was cured of that dreadful disease. As for me, I was troubled with Cataract, Heart Failure and Liver Complaint. Suffered so intensely that

I Could Not Sleep
at night, nor get any rest through the day. As soon as I lay down, my heart would beat so hard that I would have to get up. I had very severe pains in the small of my back and hips in my head. A flock of black birds all singing at once. So you see I was hard up. I also experienced benefit from Hood's Sarsaparilla within a week after I began taking it. I have improved rapidly and can now sleep better than I have for a year, can eat and not bloat as I used to. We praise for we think there is no medicine like it." HENRY C. and MARY E. RICHARDSON, Sloat, Madison County, N. Y.

PROBABLE FATAL FIGHT.

At Grand Rapids, Mich., on Tuesday night Edgar Broome, a white man, and Albert Taylor, alias "Snowball," fought a prize-fight in the old Haymarket building, which is in the heart of the city, not far from police headquarters. The negro was a veteran fighter, while Broome was a novice, and in the third round Broome was knocked out, his head striking heavily on the floor. As he did not rally at the end of the prescribed ten seconds, it was found that he was terribly hurt, and word was passed that he was dead. A hurried stampede ensued. Broome was taken home and still lies unconscious, and may die. The police never knew a thing about the affair, however, until next morning, when they accidentally learned of it, and arrested a man named Emmons and another named Mol. Emmons was timekeeper and Mol was Broome's second. "Snowball" was arrested at Hastings.

I'll say more, but weeping, wish I may some with thy Dearest chaste ashes come to lay.

THE CULINARY ART.

Mrs. Ewing's Cooking Class an Unqualified Success—Bread-Making Explained and Demonstrated.

The unqualified success of Mrs. Ewing's first lesson in the "Y" room yesterday afternoon was an undoubted surprise to even the most sanguine of the promoters of the course. Before the hour for the lesson arrived every available seat was filled, and yet for half an hour afterwards we would have been unable to find a room in which to accommodate the overflow. Seats were hastily improvised, plates being drawn up, upon which ladies sat. Some stood, yielding to the circumstances with the most perfect amiability, & eager to catch every movement and learn no word that fell from the lips of the teacher.

Mrs. Ewing began by expounding the chemistry of bread-making, carefully showing why the yeast, resting and but should be mingled together in certain specified proportions, entering into the minutest details and illustrating the truth of every statement by actual demonstration. She made a special point of adding to the flour at the first kneading, and when the dough was light she kneaded it and the dough was molded without the use of any more flour. She also insisted that all bread should be thoroughly baked, characterizing all undone bread as indigestible and unwholesome. This was beautifully illustrated by the brown crisp rolls being taken from the oven of the gas stove and put into sections and distributed among the class. Mrs. Ewing had previously explained bread should be mixed and raised at a temperature of 75 degrees and baked at a temperature of 375 degrees.

Mrs. Ewing kept up a running talk all the while she was working, and during the hour of the lesson she was proving herself an instructive teacher. Many ladies who had paid a single admission were delighted with the lesson that they took a course ticket before leaving the room. The lesson this afternoon will be at Victoria Hall at 4 o'clock.

PETTICOATS NO PROTECTION.

Georgia's Woman Moonshiner Goes to Jail Just Like a Man.

ATLANTA, Ga., March 16.—A woman moonshiner, Mrs. Malinda Turner, was arrested Saturday morning and brought before United States Commissioner Gaston in default of a $300 bond. Mrs. Turner acknowledged her guilt and throughout the trial was very defiant, refusing to make any attempt at giving bail and ignoring the fact that she could be sworn in her own behalf. She is the mother of John and Will Turner, notorious moonshiners in White county.

Mrs. Turner has been making illicit whisky for over eight years. The two boys, John and Will, are both out on bail now, charged with illicit distilling.

Mrs. Turner appears to be about 50 years old, and talks in a whine. "Don't keener were gotter jail er not," said she to a reporter. "Look like ter me folks won't let yer lone long enough ter let off them dubsins. I reckon I bin making whisky uigh onter a month right the same place. Off Saturday mornin' last and walks into the still 'bout dawn break."

"I up on tol' him that the whole outlay were my own, and said to him 'I didn't believe the judge ud do nothing 'till me no how,' 'case I wuz a woman. Whole outlay's plum runt now, so 'taint no use to me any bond."

"Jes soon as I gits out I'm going to make more whisky moonshine—good, too. Jes made whisky 'cause it wuz needef fer sickness, en you know yerself 'taint no kind er way ter make jis a drop er two."

"Did I sell any? I didn't give none away."

Mrs. Turner was taken to jail.

LADY MOWAT'S FUNERAL.

Conducted Without Ostentation and Largely Attended by Sympathizing Citizens.

TORONTO, March 16.—The funeral of the late Lady Mowat took place this afternoon from the residence of Sir Oliver Mowat, on St. George street, to Mount Pleasant Cemetery. The funeral was of a private nature, but was nevertheless largely attended by those desirous of showing their respect for the Attorney-General and their sympathy with him in the loss he has sustained. The order of the funeral procession was the string of carriages left the residence of Sir Oliver Mowat and was as follows: Sir Oliver Mowat and sons.

Rev. Prof. Mowat, of Kingston. The Lieut. Governor, members of the Ontario Cabinet, relatives of the deceased, departmental officers and friends generally.

The funeral services were conducted by Rev. Principal Cavan, of Knox College, Rev. Prof. Mowat, of Kingston, and the Rev. Dr. McLaren.

WHO ARE THE MEN FOR THE OCCASION?

(By G. G. Pursey, Toronto, in the Canada Farmer's Sun.)

On looking round and taking note of the present unsettled state of the nations of the civilized world, it does not require, I think, a very great degree of shrewdness or penetration to perceive that society is on the eve of a great awakening. Monarchies, republics, political parties, capital and labor—even the church itself—all seem to be looking for an earthquake whose rumblings they hear from beneath, loud, distinct and unmistakable.

The world is, doubtless, in a state of transition. Every man of thought is anxiously watching for new developments. The wheels of progress are moving at such a rapid rate that our old-established institutions—civil, military, political, social and religious—have every now and again to change front in order to keep in touch with advancing thought. The notions of our fathers do not satisfy their children, customs and conventionalisms of a quarter of a century ago have become antiquated and must be laid aside for something more in harmony with modern ideas.

But there is an evident desire and an attempt on the part of some in certain departments of our social edifice, to check this onward march by interposing some petty conservative ideas and last century notions for the sinister purpose of maintaining their hold on privileges obtained by their fathers or grandfathers, it may be, by very questionable methods, but which long possession has, in their opinion, conferred as God-given rights. This disgraceful though time-honored practice of haggling over constitutionality and vested rights must yield and give place to the old, but still new, themes of justice, humanity, brotherhood, involved in that new commandment, "Love one another," which we are slow to obey.

The men at the helm, the leaders of thought, those whom we appoint to execute our will in the commonwealth, must be men, thoroughly in sympathy with the so-called masses, who are only now beginning to assert themselves after centuries of all but tyrannical, inhuman, servitude; as leaders of burden rather than brothers in one common family. We have had enough of pig-headed obstructionism; killing time for a purpose not always generous, by amending, paring down, and mutilating out of all recognition any measure brought forward by the friends of justice, and endeavoring to improve the condition of the wage-slave. Let there be an end to that.

We don't want men to represent us who are educated up to that point when they can clothe common sense in such ambiguous terms that it needs a constitutional lawyer to read it; so that those who are getting impatiently remonstrated for framing our laws and statutes they must be supported in affluence for explaining in our courts of equity (7) what they had previously written.

We don't want men who are first and last members of a fraternity whose sole object is to strengthen a constitution, and then, throughly banded together to prevent us from using common-sense methods of curing ourselves when we are sick, or from dying without running up a big bill of costs, and even from getting buried without their permission.

We don't want men whose only recommendation is that their uncles, fathers or grandfathers made their names famous.

We do want men with brains enough to make a name for themselves; not men who can merely point to the headbook—sired by the Rev. or Hon. Sir This or Sir That—but men of native worth, whose pulses beat in unison with the great heart of humanity—men capable of grasping the situation as a whole, and in detail; who can distinguish effect from cause—men who, before they are called to be the people's standard-bearers, were called by Almighty God to stand for a principle, invincibly persuaded of the justice of that principle in themselves, so that when we look on them we behold a positive quantity—men capable of resisting every temptation to barter the trust reposed in them to further any personal interest.

I am not finding fault with our Provincial Government. As governments go in this age of boodle and sham, it has done surprisingly well. Economy and a $5,000,000 surplus are much to be preferred as bedfellows to extravagance and $17,000,000 debt. Still, however, favorably we compare with other provinces and nations, the condition of our people demands that something more be done.

So long as our farmers—the backbone of our country—are falling behind year after year, through no fault of their own, and are being practically exiled by the score; so long as our young men—the flower of our country—are forced to leave the home of their childhood to gain subsistence in other lands; so long as our labor market is glutted with men anxious and willing to do the meanest work for the sake of dependent wives and helpless children, who are perhaps in a state of semi-starvation, not knowing where to-morrow's bread will come from, and so long as there are thousands of acres of fertile lands lying idle, locked up by avaricious speculators, who are still entertaining the foolish hope of realizing fortunes upon which they may live in idle luxury on the fat of the land without contributing one stroke towards producing that which they covet, which effort they may evade by cleverly manipulating the thumb-screws which have been placed in their hands and which governments have afforded them every facility for using; so long as these anomalies exist—and they are but a fractional part of the evils arising out of the pernicious social system in which we live—just so long will there be a heavy demand for men of more progressive faith, who, having sought out the cause, have little difficulty in finding the remedy, and are determined by the help of God to carry their point.

"You must vote, Jawkins," urged Smith. "Every vote counts." "Mine don't," said Jawkins. I vote one way, but my coachman and gardener vote the other."

Stern Realism.

CHARLOTTE, Mich., March 16.—Januszek played in "Macbeth" before a packed house in Charlotte the other night. She had just got along to the point where she says that a whole ocean could not wash away her stain, when the roof sprang a leak and a ton or so of rain water poured in on the house, causing the actors to scatter. After some delay the damage was repaired and the performance went on.

Virgie's Inheritance.

On the following day Lady Linton was so ill that she was unable to leave her room. The shock she had received, and the terrible restraint to which she had afterward subjected herself, was too much for her strength, and she was unable to get up, while her proud spirit was crushed to the earth.

Lillian was also in a very unhappy state of mind, although, to her credit be it said, she exerted herself, for her uncle's sake to make everything as pleasant for him and Lady Heath, as she was able to do under the circumstances. She had spent the night in serious thought, and had wisely resolved to make the best of what she could not help, and in spite of the pain in her heart over her disappointed hopes, she was won by the beauty and sweetness of Rupert's betrothal after a day or two spent in each other's society, it was safe to predict that the two young girls would eventually become firm friends.

On the third day after his return Sir William visited his sister in her room, and had a long and serious talk with her, deeming it wise to come to an understanding regarding their future relations without further delay.

She knew by the expression on his face, the moment he entered her presence, that she had nothing to hope from him; that he would not spare her for her part in the vile plot which had caused the misery of his past life.

He made a brief but very comprehensive statement of the whole matter, charging her with all her treachery and falsehood and crime, and she was forced to acknowledge her guilt.

But when he gave her the diary, portions of which he had read, and she saw that it had been examined, something of her old haughty spirit and arrogance blazed forth.

"Talk to me of falsehood," she told me, "the seal had never been broken," she cried, with bitter scorn, a spot of vivid scarlet settling upon each cheek.

"And she told me the truth," Sir William replied, sternly, and then he told her how he had happened to discover the nature of its contents, after which he felt justified in reading enough to confirm the suspicion that she had been guilty.

"You have proved yourself a very unwomanly woman, Miriam," said her brother, with cold gravity. "Your nature, aside from the affection which you have for children, is wholly selfish; it has become warped—degraded. You have not only hardened yourself against all honor and sisterly affection, but you have committed the most reprehensible crimes to further your miserable schemes."

"The wrong you did my young wife years ago, the insults you offered her, the falsehood, even theft, of which you were guilty in sending that ill-dressed woman to her death, in interpreting of our letters, are things that I can never overlook."

"Do you dare to accuse me of theft?" interrupted Lady Linton, bridling. "You gave me that hundred pounds for charitable purposes."

"I gave you that hundred pounds to use for the poor girl that was injured in that railway accident, and you used it to insult to injury. You mocked and scorned a woman who was your superior in every way."

"In whose veins there was as good blood as in your own, notwithstanding your boasted pre-eminence, and I grew cold with shame and horror every time I think of that paltry sum you sent her, when I had brought back thousands of her money with me to England. Mr. Alexander left a small fortune to his daughter and I have had it in my possession ever since."

Lady Linton looked up at this information. It was the first she had ever heard of the matter.

"You begin to appreciate something of what I have suffered," he continued as he noticed the look, "but you can never begin to realize the misery which you brought upon two loving hearts so long separated, and to think that for more than eighteen years I was a father and never once looked on the face of my child. Miriam, I can never overlook it. You have forfeited all respect from me, all claim upon me, and Heathcliff can no longer be your home—you must go elsewhere to live, for I will not subject my wife to the constant companionship of one who has done her such irreparable wrong."

"William Heathcliff, will you turn me out from my home where I was born?" cried the woman, almost fiercely.

"Your home," he said, "is wherever I choose to live. For how many years have you cheated my dear ones out of their home—out of the love and sheltering care which should have been theirs? While my wife was toiling to earn her own support and to make provision for my child, you were spending money which rightfully belonged to them, with a lavish, almost reckless hand, and rearing your children amid the luxury of which you had maliciously deprived them. I have family pride enough to provide for your needful support, for I cannot see you suffer; so I will fit up Fernleigh Lodge while you live, and settle upon you an annuity of £200 a year."

"Two hundred pounds?" interrupted Lady Linton, in a tone of horror.

"Yes. With economy, that will be sufficient for your individual needs," replied Sir William, coldly. "I will give Lillian as much more until her marriage, when I hope to add something to the sum."

His sister's face was almost convulsed with rage at this announcement. She had never imagined any descent in the world so dreadful as this. She had spent three times the amount now offered her in a single year upon her own wardrobe, and now she was expected to provide her whole support out of £200.

"Do you suppose Lillian and I are going to be able to live on a paltry sum like that?" she demanded with quivering lips.

"My wife and child lived on far less than that for years after you succeeded in ruining her faith in me," was the stern response.

"It was no sum settled outright upon her, either; she had to toil for it with her own hands. She was not only the provider for the household, but nurse, and governess, and seamstress as well; while your children had their maids and tutors, to say nothing of the bills which I have paid sewing-girls and milliners for them. We will reverse the order for awhile, and the sum which I have named will have to answer your purpose, unless you fertile brain can invent some way to increase it."

TEACHERS AND TEACHING.

Annual Meeting of the E. M. T. Association.

Interesting Papers on Educational Methods by President Bryant, Government Inspector Houston, and Others.

The meeting of the East Middlesex Teachers' Association opened in the County Buildings this morning with a large attendance of teachers, Mr. B. L. Bryant, Hyde Park, the president, in the chair. The Rev. Mr. Talling, R.C., conducted devotional exercises. The secretary, Miss C. A. Jeffery, then read the minutes of last meeting, which were confirmed. She also submitted a letter from the North York Teachers' Association, asking co-operation in petitioning the Government to direct township councils to appoint township truants officers. The letter was referred to a committee consisting of Messrs. Fox, Dearness and Liddicott.

Mr. B. L. Bryant, the president, was then called upon and gave a very interesting address on "Order in the Schoolroom." Order, he said, is only the doing of the right thing at the proper time, but it included thorough industry on the part of the pupils and complete control on the part of the teacher. It was the willing obedience to duty and right. Order was also necessary to gain the attention of the pupils to get the greatest amount of work possible in the least possible time, and because it is an important instrument in the formation of proper habits. Here the speaker dwelt on the importance of cultivating habits which help to mould character. A good order and the rules of the school would develop into habits of self-control, of attention, of industry and of obedience to law in general. He then showed how the teacher, not the pupils, was the cause of much disorder, and that if the teacher would spend more time in removing the causes of disorder there would be less need for many punishments. To promote order the speaker held that the assistance of the scholars in making rules of order was necessary, they would then be more loyal. In conclusion, he urged the teachers to make no arbitrary commands, but to be natural, firm, just, kind, patient, sympathetic, and above all interesting.

Inspector Dearness paid a high compliment to Mr. Bryant's practical and interesting address, and indicated his plan of having the scholars assist in making rules of order.

Mr. Amos, ex-president, and Miss McColl also took part in the discussion, and expressed their pleasure in listening to the address.

Mr. Houston, Government inspector of teachers' institutes, followed in the teaching of arithmetic. It is usually taught as a deductive subject. His view is different from the ordinary one. Induction and deduction are two terms that are very often misunderstood, he said. Deductive reasoning was exemplified by picking out the nouns in a sentence, or by selecting a botanical specimen after learning its peculiarities. Inductive reasoning, he said, was exemplified by finding the laws of the plant by examining its peculiarities. Inductive reasoning, he said, should be taught to children especially, on purely inductive methods. I. e., they should follow in the steps of a discoverer.

The association assembled in the afternoon at 3 o'clock. The roll was called; nearly all were present. The division answered.

Mr. Dearness remarked on the one of McGillivray, the most remote of the inspectors, by the fact of its teachers was absent.

Mr. Wm. Houston resumed the teaching of arithmetic to show in detail the subject may be taught inductively. He disclaimed any purpose of the solution of problems, but instead how the pupils are to discover every operation.

All inductive teaching must be known to the unknown. The first duty to the learner is to tell the child knows. Guard against the long on the concrete stage.

Mr. Liddicott mentioned the importance of the positions taken by Mr. Houston, Sir Davidson, Telfer, and others on the last meeting of the Association.

He recounted briefly the efforts made by the Central Association to improve the educational system of the Province, and gave a resume of the papers bearing on public school work. The report interested the audience upon the merit of the report and work engaged our most advanced educationalists.

Mr. Houston then illustrated how he would lead a child to discover the principles involved in the addition, subtraction, multiplication and division of large numbers. He added, for example, 36 and 49, it would indicate the law that the sum of two more numbers is the same as the sum of the component parts of each of the numbers the child would then add three tens and four tens and six and nine. Multiplication in mental arithmetic should come next to addition and before subtraction. Subtraction, he said, and division, although more difficult, can be taught by the use of the same principles.

At the evening session Mr. A. McQueen was nominated to offer an opportunity to review his connection to twenty years as a private and an officer of the East Middlesex Teachers' Association.

Mr. Houston was introduced to an audience composed largely of teachers, partly of the lay friends of education. His subject was the purpose and method of teaching poetical literature. His remarks were based on Tennyson's "Break, Break, Break," and Kingsley's "Three Fishers." These two poems had been printed and a copy of them placed in each person's hands. Mr. Houston favored the abolition of text books of selections in literature. In place of these the department should, from year to year, select and sanction the reading of a few complete poems, bound in cheap form. One purpose of literature is recreation. The taste of a child should be cultivated to seek and enjoy moral, wholesome ennobling recreations. Another purpose is the means it affords for the enjoyment of the taste for beauty.

In reviewing the forms of art as sources of pleasure, he showed the right of poetry to take the highest place. The principles laid down were illustrated by references to the two poems mentioned above.

About a year ago I took a very severe cold, had a violent sore on my lips, was bad with dyspepsia, constipation and general debility. I tried almost every remedy, but nothing outwardly and inwardly, to cure the sore but all to no purpose. I had often thought of trying Northrop & Lyman's Vegetable Discovery, so I got a bottle and when I had read about one half the bottle I had decided signs of healing. By the time that the bottle was done it had almost disappeared and my general health was improving fast. I was always of a very bilious habit and had used quinine and lemon juice with very little effect. But since using three bottles of the Vegetable Discovery my general health is excellent. I am 60 years old. Parties using it should continue it for some time after they think they are cured. It is by far the best health restorer I know." 3

Rheumatism Cured in a Few Hours

—BY THE—

ALKALINE TREATMENT

All Schools of Medicine are taught that there can be but two causes of disease, Acids and Alkalies, and where there is one cause of alkalinity there is a million of acidity. The Alkaline Treatment discovered by Professor Brunton, the Canadian Chemist, neutralizes the acid which is the cause of every known disease. Stimulates the blood vessels, restoring circulation. Rheumatism, Catarrh, Paralysis, Eczema, Four Stomach, Kidney Troubles, Indigestion, Debility, any form of Blood Poisoning, etc., are treated successfully. There are two preparations, internally to purify the blood through the stomach, externally to absorb the impurities through the pores of the skin; they are each 50c. Any information free, either by letter or personally. DR. BRUNTON, Office 1, 208, Masonic Temple, Chicago.
