Western Premiers To Be Con- No Action on Storm Sewerssulted, as Their Provinces Are Deeply Interested.

[Special to The Advertiser.] Ottawa, Feb. 23 .- Any bill to aid the Canadian Northern will not be brought down to Parliament until near the close of the session. The attitude of R. B. Bennett and some other members ary city hall, and advised the board of on the Government side, and the refusals of the Liberals to approve of construct a fire escape on the building further aid to the Mackenzie & Mann undertaking has been so manifest during the past week that the application for a $25,000,000 loan has not been made formally to the Government.

The proposal was laid in a tentative way before some members of the Government, but on their advice it has been decided to carry on an education of the factory inspector. The latter howbeen decided to carry on an educational campaign and endeavor to show members on both sides of the House that further aid to Mackenzie & Mann is justified. It is claimed that the C. N. It is intimated that the premiers of the four western provinces, which are heavily interested in the undertaking, will be called into conference. These provinces have backed the bonds of the company to the extent of $122,000,-000, and are concerned in seeing it put upon a sound basis. It is claimed they would be financially injured should the Canadian Northern system be rushed and allowed to get into difficulties.

The position of the Grand Trunk Pacific is being made use of. It is said that the G. T. P. will refuse to take over the Winnipeg to Moncton line, and that the Government will have to operate it, and it is further claimed that Government could not take over the Canadian Northern system, as two new roads would be more than the Government could handle at one time. The only thing to do, it is claimed, is to give Mackenzie & Mann enough Thermometer Drops to Seven Below During Night, Leaving Trail of Frozen Ears in Its Wake.

"In the revised catalogue of "comebacks," the cold snap will have to be accorded a prominent place. Last night or this morning, that is to say, sometime previous to 8 o'clock this bright February day, the thermometer touched seven degrees the other side of nowhere.

The automatic recording apparatus at the local observatory doesn't show the exact time the lowest record was reached, but those who missed the last Sunday cars and had to ambulate back over the icy-icies to their nocturnal hangouts, declare that they just guess they got their ears pinched when the elevator-man that runs the climateric elevator-man that runs the climateric hoist sang out, "seven below, going down." And today it was just notice-able that the majority of pedestrians kept on the sunny side of the street, although the thermometer behaved quite decently after Old Soi started to play Beau Brummel with Miss Mer-

Today's cold spell knocked the steam roads passenger schedule into a cocked hat and the trains were running anywhere from ten minutes to one hour and 50 minutes late. "Impossible to keep up steam on a cold day like this;" was the excuse given by more than one engineer.

All Can Find Work on the Farm Declares Major Morris, of the Salvation Army - Men Frightened by Prospect.

"There isn't any reason," said Major Frank Morris, of the Salvation Army, this morning, "why a single able-bodied man should be out of work in London if he is only willing to go to work on a farm."
Major Morris added that the Sisters of the League of Mrcy, of the Salvatin Army, were particularly busy these days investigating a great many cases of hardship and distress reported to them, and that a large amount of help is being given by the Cases of families in need are immediately investigated and help is given, but where able-bodied men apply for help, and after being provided in many cases with a meal or a night's lodging, refuse to go to the country, where the Army employment bureau has plenty of work for all comers, no further attention is wasted on them. Assistance is freely given to needy families, however, even though it is through the fault of the father or husband that they are suffering. Organize Club to Stop Worthless Slaughter of Outdoor Life.

Prevention of wanton destruction of the smaller wild animals has recently made rapid strides to the fore in Clandeboye, where the owners of a tract of land embracing 14,000 acres have banded together under an agreement which forbids the killing of the small quadrupeds of the forest, and quail, partridge and other members of the bird family.

Eslie Carter, a resident of Clandeboye, who is interested in the abolition of needless killing of animals, was in London Saturday and outlined the plan to The Advertiser.

The rapid disappearance of game and small furred animals has caused consternation among those interested in their propogation, and prohibitory measures were adopted to stop the needless destruction. It was found, however, that where several men would see that the law was enforced, there were others who were not adverse to allowing shooting on their premises. To overcome this difficulty, the club was founded, and on this large tract of land at least the "aborigines of the wood" are assured of safety. The movement is meeting with widespread popularity, and it is expected that several other residents will place their land within the "safety belt."

The Secret of Good Digestion

In perfect health with regular and healthful action of the liver and kidneys, you need not know there is such a thing as digestion or indiges-tion. Unfortunately, however, mod-ern life is artificial, and not many people avoid suffering more or less from troubles of this nature. The great secre lies in keeping the liver and kidneys in health and vigor, for then the food is passed quickly along the alimentary canal, the nutritive portions being assimilated in the blood stream and the poisoned waste materials are passed out of the body. When the liver and kindneys get wrong you will obtain relief most promptly and effectively by using Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills. If chronic indigestion is to be cured it must be by enlivening the action of these filtering and excretory organs. To presons who have hought only of the stomach as being the offending organ this may seem strange, but any competent physician will tell you this is

Their children they could scarcely call their own. How often we start off in our Christian life crippled by habits and in bondage to our posessions, but God breaks our chains! God gave the Israelites at first only the general outlines of the land they were to possess. They were not to know the details until later. It was to be a land of hills and valleys, a land with some variations; monotony had been for so long the great burden of their existence.

No Monotony in Goodness.
"The statement is wrong that being good takes the charm out of life. Wherever duty is, there is freshness, there is romance. Struggle there is to be true, but there is no monotony. Heaven is a land of infinite variety as typified by this earthly Canaan. Pernaps the Israelites may have cried: 'Oh, if God had but spared us these barren hills!' But these hills gave rise to the streams that watered the valleys and protected from the winds the valley vineyards. "Are there hills in your life that you would wish out of the way? But per-haps these features that you would wish out of your life are set like the hills to give you some harvests in the valleys. There are lilies of the valley that would never bloom about you were it not for the hills, the difficulties, that you have to face. God put the difficulties as hills in your way, perhaps to make you wary. But in the valleys there are shadows, too, and troubles and trials. We are apt to forget them where we are on the hills of triumph. One thing Jesus never did was to forget the valleys, though he was on the hills sometimes. There is joy on the hill-top, there is vision and song there, only remember the valley is coming. It is the wise man who prepares for that Street Methodist Church Sunday morn- valley. Often some unsuspected habit, such as tea or coffee drinking, is the root of the trouble. The average tea or coffee drinker who suffers from sleeplessness, headache, indigestion, nervousness or heart trouble usually says, "Tea and coffee don't hurt me," until some day Nature hauls him up with a jerk. THE BURDEN AND THE BACK. T was a serious warning uttered by the British Foreign Secretary the other day, when he acknowledge "a foreboding that the competition in armaments will eventually lead to disaster, and sink the ship of European prosperity and civilization." The demand for increased and increasing armaments is based on the assumption that without them disaster is liable to occur. But Sir Edward Grey thinks, and many sober-minded and intelligent people think with him, that disaster will come if the nations follow their present course. If it is to be a choice between disaster with armaments, and disaster without, common sense would seem to suggest that the

of the disaster which will prove least burdensome. As a matter of fact there is no certainty that without the building of dreadnaughts and the expenditure of vast sums in preparing for war, disaster will come. But there is a certainty that if the nations go on competing with each other in extravagant expenditures, disaster will be unavoidnipping and in places the walking was able. It may not come to the dealers in arms and armaments, for the more they can make and sell, the better for theselves. It may not come to Govment officials, whose salaries will be paid as usual. But when the day of bankruptcy, of commercial and political crises dawns; when the relations between labor and capital, strained to their utmost by increasing wealth on one side and poverty on the other, are suddenly ruptured in some social catastrophe, then any personal benefit to a few will be lost in the ruin of the many. The back of the masses is broad and strong, but there is a limit to the burdens it can bear.

The Bishop said that today there was in Uganda a really native church, self-governing and self-supporting, with its own church conference and its own ministers. The process consists of forcing cement hrough pipes sunk into the underlying peds of sand and gravel, and so far as can be seen at present it appears to have amalgamated with the various strata and to have produced a solid and homo-geneous concrete, which it is hoped will be bound to continue down to the London clay. Winning Goal Was Scored on Shot That Glanced Off Dubeau's Glove Into the Nets.

N. H. A. STANDING. Toronto, Feb. 22.—Torontos defeated anadians in Toronto last night by 3 to 2,

The game was not as brilliant as some seen in this city during the present season, but in this city during the present season, but was witnessed by an immense crowd. Close checking by both teams was a feature of the play and in this respect the local team had a little advantage of the Canadians. Toronto's third and last goal was won on a fluke. Dubeau tried to stop a shot from Walker with his hand, but the rubber deflected off his glove into the corner of the net. Vesina was caught off his guard, and had no opportunity to off his guard, and had no opportunity to make the stop. The teams:

Charles W. Murphy, the most talked of and most hated man in the sporting world today, likewise is one of the most interesting. Whatever Murphy does it is interesting, and he has created more trouble, put over more deals, caused upheavals in the baseball world than all the other club owners combined.

He is a small, plump man, quick of wit, brilliant in repartee, quick of temper, quick to forgive, even quicker than he is to seek forgiveness. Murphy has been the monkey wrench in baseball machinery since 1906, and, now that the effort to drive him out of baseball is on in carnest, his history is interesting.

Oldfashioned Game on Lake Erie Between Two Teams From Port Stanley-Bankers Won.

Teams representing the Canadian Bank of Commerce and the village of Port Stan-1 ley provided the amusement for fully an hour and a half, and the final tally was 6 to 4, with the bankers on the large side of the score. the game. A Dangerous Pastime. The game was not without a large element of danger, for near the players ice-tuting operations had recently been conducted, leaving only a thin sheet of ice, which would not bear the weight of a man, tA several junctures of the game the puck was knocked over to this thin ice, and then it was necessary to get poles to rescue it. Had one of the players, moving with sped and unable to check himself in time, drifted onto the thin surface, there might have been serious results.

KILLARNEY GIRLS MADE HIT

Played to One of Biggest Audiences of Season at the Auditorium Saturday.

At the Auditorium Saturday night the Killarnev Girls and Miss Rita Rich entertained one of the biggest audiences that has gathered for an Affiliated Society course this winter. Irish plays and Irish music have been carrying everything before them of late, but in their particular line of entertainment the Killarney Girls are unsurpassed. Saturday night's concert was rich in those songs of the "Emerald Isle" that so instantly grip the heart patriotism, pathos and humor, bringing the tears and smiles in rapid succession. Attired in Irish costume, Miss Rich rendered a number of folk lore songs that won instant favor and applause. Miss Rich is a vocalist of high merit, an impersonator second to none, while her playing on a real Irish harp showed her as an artist in still another line. Miss Laura Werno is the reader and accompanist of the organization and presented a number of Irish Islanda that are lines that account the reader and accompanist of the organization and presented a number of Irish Islanda that are lines that account the reader and accompanist of the organization and presented a number of Irish Islanda that are lines that account the same of Irish Islanda that are lines that account the same of Irish Islanda that are lines that a substitute of the pathology of the same of Irish Islanda that are lines that a substitute of the pathology of the same of Irish Islanda that are lines that so instantly sloped dejectedly.

Miss Marguerite Anderson, Miss Elma Kinniston, and Miss Martha Stelzel are most capable artists, and in part pieces and solos contributed heavily towards the enjoyment of the evening.

"Why tell her?" she inquired, rising.

A long time after a door closed stealthily in a distant part of the house-the sun-parlor door, she knew by direction. A few minutes later an upstairs door reaked on its hinges. Someone had come in from the mellow night and someone had been left outside. Many minutes passed. She sat there by her father's writing table and waited for the other to come in. At last quick, heavy footfalls sounded on the tiled floor outside, and then came swiftly down the hall toward the small remote room in which she sat. She looked up as he unceremoniously burst into the room

He came across and stood over her, an expression of utter bewilderment in his eyes. There was a ghastly smile on "Damn it all, Sara," he said shrilly, 'she—she turned me down!"

He sagged deeper in the chair.

"I—I can't get it through my head," he muttered.

"As I said before, you did it badly," she said. "You took too much for granted. Isn't that true?"

"I didn't expect her to refuse me," he exclaimed, glaring at her. "Would I have been such a fool as to ask her if I thought there was the remotest chance of besallowed hard.

"You really love her?" she demanded. "You really love her?" she demanded. "Love her?" There was a sob in his "Love her?" There was a sob in his throat. He without her. And the worst of it is, I love her now more than I did before. Oh, it's appalling! It's horrible! What am I to do, Sara? What am I to do?"

"Be a man for a little while, that's all," "Be a man for a little while, that's all," "Don't joke with me," he groaned.

"I can't get it through my head," had sald, watched. He had come to the conclusion that a long walk would prove settling; and moreover, it wasn't a stupid idea to go over and have his drink with Brandon Booth. The longer he walked the more springy his stride. Sara was quite right; he had gone about it badly. He'd go about it differently next time. Half way to Booth's cottage his pace slackened. A disconcerting thought struck him, almost like a dash of cold water in the face: Was she in love with Booth? He sat down on the rugged stone fence to ponder. A cold perspiration broke out all over him. When he next resumed his walk, his back was towards Booth's cottage. He attributed the perspiration to the violence of his exercise.

"I am sorry for him, Sara. He was so dreadfully in earnest. But, thank God, it is over!" She threw back her head and breathed deeply. "That horrible horrible nightmare is ended. I suppose it had to be. But the mockery of it—think of it, Sara!—the mockery of it!"
"Poor Leslie!" sighed the other. "Poor leslie!" "Assure her that she is to feel no ompunction for what she has done, that you are content to be her loyal, devoted riend to the end of your days."

They were silent for a long time, the girl lying still and almost breathless against the other's shoulders. Dr. Chase's Syrup of Linseed and Turpentine owes much of its great popularity to the fact that it positively cures bronchitis, and this is about as severe a test as can be made of medicine of this kind.

Mr. W. H. Walker, Calmar, Alta. Writes: "I am pleased to say that Dr. Chase's Syrup of Linseed and Turpentine has done much good to myself, wife and children. My eldest girl, seven years, had bronchitis, and the doctor who attended her did not seem to do much good. We got Dr. Chase's Syrup of Linseed and Turpentine for her, and she soon got well. We always keep this medicine in the house now ready for use, and find that it soon cures coughs and colds."

ing his wife that he was going down town for a few minutes and would be right back. It was on his way home that the man met his death and just how the accident occurred is not known. The switch engine, in charge of Engineer Herbert Hunter, was shunting passenger cars on the north track west of the crossing and was pulling a baggage car and two coaches east when the engineer heard a shriek. The locomotive was stopped on the east side of the crossing and Mann's body was found mangled beyond recognition between two of the cars. It had been dragged from the west side of the crossing over to the east. No Eye-Witnesses.

The gates were down for a number of minutes before the ergine pulled onto the crossing and as there were no eyewitnesses to the accident it is believed that Mann went under the gates and as he stepped onto the tracks he was struck by the engine.

The late John Mann was an employe of the Cook, Fitzgerald Shoe Company and came to this country from Cogenhoe, Northamptonshire, England. He is not questioned by American officials, and survived by his wife, three sons, John, William and Horace, of this city, and one daughter, Annie. Coroner IcLaren was summoned and ordered the body removed to Smith, Sons & Clarke's undertaking establishment where the coroner's jury viewed the remains this morning and adjourned to meet Thursday night at 8 o'clock, when an inquest will be held at the central police headquarters.

It will be a twodays' game, to be played in the Armories, and will be for brigadiers and ferring to await word from them before brigade majors, and officers commanding units. Two more games are scheduled for February, one at Woodstock on the 24th, when Col. Hodgins, Lieut.-Col. McDonnell, Major Shannon and other officers will be present at a game between officers of the Twentysecond Regiment.

Lieut.-Col. McDonnell and several officers of the First Hussars and the Sixth Field Battery wil also journey to St. Thomas on the 27th, where the officers of the Twenty-fifth Regiment will indulge in a contest. The London officers will participate, several on each side, in command of artillery and cav-

A feature of the games has been that an artillery officer, cavalry officer and a medical officer has been attached to tank schooner Kineo, seven days out each side in order to assist the commanders, as far as possible, by having expert advisers in those arms, so that those branches of the service were well

Was Court Martial Held Before or After His Death?

[Canadian Press.] Washington, D. C., Feb. 23 .- The Mexcan situation, especially the somewhat tense aspect which it has assumed as a result of the execution by General Villa of William S. Benton, a British subject, continued uppermost in the White House here today.

Detailed reports containing General Villa's personal explanation to United States Consul Edwards at Juarez were ing shortly after due to reach here by mail today. or the safety of Gustav Bauch, Roger Laurence and an Englishman named Curtis, as well as other missing foreigners served to emphasize the extent to which the United States Government had become involved in securing protection for foreign residents in Mexico. A Difficult Task.

Especially difficult is the task of the American Government in undertaking to care for foreigners in Northern Mexico where European powers have no consular representatives. A general disposition has existed among European nations for some months to leave the United States. as Mexico's "nearest neighbor," free to handle the situation alone. One direct effect of this is that, although Benton was a British subject, the United States feels called upon to render to Great Britain & full explanation of the circum stances under which he met death. Such details as have been received already have been communicated to the British ambassador, Sir Cecil Spring-Rice. It is understood, has expressed appreciation of before daylight, the snowplow and the the prompt solicitude shown by the big sweeper were sent over the lines, United States Government for the welfare so that there was nothing to block the of British subjects.

Only Villa's Story. Thus far the State Department has learned only Villa's side of the case, which, in brief, set forth that Benton, a high tempered individual, provoked quarrel, was armed and threatened the life of Villa. The right of the Constitutionalist commander to subject Benton to a court martial and execute him if he did make an attempt on Villa's life, is in the absence of satisfactory proof to the contrary, it is known they will consider difficult to reject Villa's version

The story of Benton's friends that he was unarmed, that he was killed by Villa in person, and that the court martial was nothing but an inquest, is being carefully taken into consideration by officials, who are receptive to any vidence that would substantiate these claims. Confidence Shaken. If Villa's story is accepted by the State Department-and there is reason to believe Great Britain will rely upon the judgment of the American Government in the case-there is no question in the minds of close observers that the confidence hitherto felt by the Washington Government in the disposition of General Villa to extend protection to foreigners, will be somewhat shaken. Just as Villa has given satisfactory assurances that he would protect Spaniards at Torreon, and as the United States Government was acquiring a feeling of relief that it would not be worried with perplexing problems in connection with the protection of foreigners in Northern Mexico, the incident has reawakened discussion of the entire Mexican problem.

RECALLS OLD HORSE CARS

'Get-Out-and-Push'' Days of Locomotion Referred To on Early Morning Ride.

One of the first Sunday car passengers yesterday morning was Robert Life of Christ Is the Only Cure Taggart, 591 York street. Mr. Taggart was a passenger on the first electric car operated in London and yesterday morning he decided to lose a little sleep in order to ride on the first seven-day car.

The veteran passenger got on Lyle street, as the P. A. Y. E. pulled out of the barns, and while the car bowled down Dundas street he chatted with an Advertiser reporter on the changes that have taken place in in London's street car service in the years that have passed.

"The first electric car," said Mr. Taggart, "ran from the Tecumseh House to the fair grounds. It was a great curiosity and the company gave a free demonstration ride first. Before that we used to have the old horse cars and many's the amusing experience I've had in riding on them. Men Do Not Conceive God Fully, Says Rev. W. J. Knox.

REAL CLEANSING FORCE

For Sin. He Declares.

"The Cleansing Blood," was the subject of Rev. W. J. Knox's morning sermon in the First Presbyterian Church yesterday from the text, I. John i., 7, "The blood of Jesus Christ, His Son, cleanses us from all sin." For some years, said Rev. Mr. Knox, there had not been so much heard about the blood as formerly. People were becoming more and more sensitive, and regarded this as a rather course feature of Christ's mission, but yet, however, gruesome it was, there was a truth in it. Men fail at two points; to conceive God fully and accurately, and to state their conception of God fully and adequately.

Many Metaphors. Rev. Mr. Knox referred to the use of metaphors, symbols and other figures of speech to state some aspect of the truth. could hardly pull the load. That was is much of error, but some truth. Not only men today, but men who wrote the "When the first electric car was Bible were restricted similarly in their all evil." There is life in the blood, Rev. Mr. Knox pointed out. To the Jewish mind the blood was identical with the life. All primitive peoples looked on the blood as identical with the life. The blood was sacred because life dwelt in the blood. The Jew must not eat flesh from which the blood was not completely let.

The Cleansing Force.
"It is not the physical blood that eanses us from sin," said Rev. Mr. cleanses us from cleanses us from sin, said Rev. Mr. Knox, "that can do nothing. The blood of Jesus Christ is the life of Jesus Christ. It is, therefore, the life of Christ that cleanses us from sin. The blood of Christ was not shed to quench the flery anger of God, but to cleanse us from sin. Christ poured out his life directing that flow towards us, not towards God. The idea of an angry God seeking today to drive sinners towards hell is an utter travesty on Fire supposed to have received its the truth of God. There is absolutely no of God. There was no need for Christ or anyone else to convert the imagined Does Not Cloak Us. "The blood of Jesus Christ cleanses us from sin; it does not cloak us or cover up our sin and make us appear righteous. The life of Christ goes down into the heart of man, and there works out God's purpose, purifying the human heart.

"The blood of Christ cleanses us from sin. It does not avert punishment." Rev. Mr. Knox referred to the hymn which had just been sung, "Thou stoodest in the sinner's place, bearing all ill

"It is by no wave of the hand or turn of the eye that life joins issue with death. It is by the lamb slain from the fourdation of the earth.' You all know, you mothers, you fathers, you true friends if you are going to enter into the life of that erring one child, that erring friend, you must pour out your life."

A Great Difference. According to Mr. Knox it does make a Nougat, hard and creamy, with great difference what view that Christ, crushed fruit flavors, covered with dying on the cross nineteen hundred a thick coating of rich, smooth years ago, paid the debt for my sin.
