Diseastrons Fire and Lees of Property in Mantreal:

It is with deep regret we call the attention of the public to the details of the late calamitous fire. The origin thereof has been traced to the carelessness of some persons, who, while smoking in a house hard-by the Protestant Church, near the Gas Works, threw the matches among some shavings, which quickly ignited. The result was in the fullest sense of the word disastrous,—it was ruinous. Out of the thickly peopled district of Griffintown, 600 persons have been sufferers, having lost, by this wide-spreading misfortune, house, home, and goods, and all these able-bodied men and of matured years. If we estimate the number of persons thrown upon the world by this event, we yould conclude that treble that number have been the sufferers. Nor is this statement the result of anxiety to pre-occupy the attention of our readers; it is, upon the contrary, the candid stafement of those who are desirous that the lamented occurrence should be pourtrayed in the and a short black with the finding states of the word distance of the word of the word distance of the word distan where the catastrophe had its origin; secondly, to the crowded plan upon which the greater part of the property consumed was erected, and in some the property consumed was erected.

Toronto, June 14, 1850.

The Mirror has gone over to the Ministry, bag and baggage. It is regularly soid. It gives evidence this morning of a determination to become a service tool of the Administration. It gravely informs us, "that the country will not much longer endure the kind of opposition offered now." No doubt the Mirror has been placed under the control of Mr. Ryan by a stratagem of the Inspector General. Hyan was lately brought up here, no doubt, for the purpose, and stuck into the Inspector General's Office, The Clerk-Editor will of course, obey the instructions of the master on all occasions. all occasions.

Another document to which I will refer honorable members, is the Report of the Commission named on that subject in 1841. That Commission was composed of Measure. Buchanan, Tascherena and Smith; two of those gentlemen are now Judges, the other is known as one of our first juris-consults. I will also refer this House to the opinion of Chief Justice Sewell, who was consulted by the Governor on the merit of Petitions addressed to him by persons complaining of the very same abuens. It seems to me, that with such opinions, there was no doubt that such was the law, and that the Courts of Justice, aithough very competent to decide the merit of in those complaints, have put saide the real intention of the law, and that was the opinion of the third Commissioner that I have mentioned; let

The only subject that occupied the attention of the House, last in ght, was the Seigniorial Tenure and a ship question is of gr at interest in Lower Canada, I have thought the better way would be to any on a bir fry part of the doba e.

On motion of Mr. Lafortaine, the House ward committee, the committee of the cliented in the committee of the cliented in the committee of the cliented in the cliented are activated that by the genut of the Fromena Lagorian would be to eligible that without fixing those rentes; left us adolation of the rights of property. The seignification of the rights of property, was a normal form of the significant through the seminary of the search of the seignification of the rights of property. The seignification of the rights of property, was a normal form of the significant through the seminary of the search of the seminary of the se time—he owed it to an accident—to be a Seignior. He thought there was always dauger in interfering with private rights; but there were various kinds of danger, and we must take into account the temper of the times, and inquire into the popular prejudices as a general rule, he thought there were occasions on which attention should be paid to it. He differed from those members who thought that the amount of rent to be paid by the Censituires had been fixed by the Kings of France. Out of the 240 Seigniories, the rent was specified in but one of the grants. The grants were made uncensitutionally up to a certain time. Subsequently conditions were imposed. First, the Seignior was to pay fealty and homage to the King, or to his Representative; next, he was bound to give a statement of his lands, the number of his Censitaires, and all the rights he beld under the grant. No conditions were imposed if 1763, when the amount of rent was fixed for the Seigniory of Two Mountains. He denied that under the custom of Paris the Seigniors were bound to grant their land to any one who should demand it. He agreed with the member for St. Maurice, that the fendal tenure was the best that could have been devised for the settlement of the country. The road have under the feudal tenure had required every man to make a road in the front of his farm, and the good effects of this practice was yet visible. He believed that if Lower Canada had not been under that tenure, in the first although he thought this an admirable tenure for the settlement of a country, he thought the time had now come when that tenure, with its folds et center, was a drag upon the march of civilization. He believed this tenure must go by the board. But while he thought the march of civilization. He believed this tenure must go by the board although he thought the march of civilization. He believed this tenure must go by the board and it on this point he must differ from the member for St. Maurice. Although he did not agree with those whose y that the Seigniors as not

This conduct was never the research to the Seigniors, as it had been stated, had affixed to the Seigniors as it had been stated, had affixed to the Seigniors as it had been stated, had affixed to the Seigniors as it had been stated, had affixed to the Seigniors are that wrong. As to the ulleged reaximum for tent, there existed no such maximum. He conceived that the Found Tenure in Lower Canada was not the same as that in France. The only obligations on the Constitute were to pay his rente, the tods of ventes, and to go to the Seignior's mill. No men, he bed-eved, would be more glad to get rid of the ienu e, for a fair compensation than the Seigniors themselved. The imputation of motives, to thich they were constantly subjected, was so galling, that they would make some sacrifice to be restored to their position in society. Air.
