TO SPARE FRIEND (Courier Leased Wire) NEW YORK, Jan. 27.-In order to spare his old friend, General Daniel E. Sickles the humiliation of ar rest, Sheriff Harburger held a conference with counsel for the General to-day, with a view to arranging bail. This would obviate the necessity of locking General Sickles in the Ludlow street jail, pursuant to an order from the Supreme Court issued after the old soldier had failed to account for more than $20,000 of the New York monuments' committee.

ARE INVESTIGATING (Courier Leased Wire).

NORTH BAY, Ont., Jan. 27.— Mining Inspector Corkhill, has been investigating a number of accidents which have cost the lives of workmen in the mines about Sudbury. Mike Wazny, a trammer at the Creighton Mine, was standing by his car in the open pit when a huge piece of ice hanging on the wall about 70 feet above him became detached and fell, striking Wazny on the head, killing him instantly. The drop into the shafts from the surface freezes in hanging stalacites and the weather has been responsible for several accidents of the kind that caused Wazny's death.

Giovano Busato was killed at the uartz mine while loading ore buckets in the open pit. A large boulder on the surface became loose as a result of the thaw and falling forty feet struck the unfortunate Italian on the head causing instant death. Yalemer Norme, another miner, a Finlander, was killed at Frood Exension Mine, while working at the 450 foot level. A block of wood falling from the surface with terrific force, crushed his head like an egg shell, Norme was 26 years old.

SUBSTITUTION AND WEDDINGS 1

Billy's Scheme Was Daring, I and It Won.

By MARTHA McCULLOCH-WILLIAMS

Elizabeth crossed the turf so loathly. so laggardly, she left a waving trail of deep green footprints athwart the dew grayed grass. The line was blotched here and there where she had stopped and half turned about, but from the last and lightest of the blotches it ran straight to the wicket gate in the hedge. The path to the gate led around almost under, the library windows Therefore she had avoided it. She did not want to be spied upon, and, though the library commonly was empty until long after sunrise, she had come to be lieve there was no counting on where Miss Prudence Weir would be at any special hour. The wicket gave upon a lane shady and secluded, yet a public passway notwithstanding both sides of it beonged to Elizabeth's Uncle Dan. He had been trying to close it ever since he bought the old Mears place, but his rustic neighbors had held stoutly to their right of way. So the young man walking slowly along the lane was no trespasser, albeit he walked warily. keeping close to the hedge. Elizabeti smiled shamelessly to see him. Now that she had really brought herself to a clandestine meeting she was all in a happy futter and amazed at her own esitancy. Yet she said, smiling up at her tall sweetheart: "You must go right back, Billy-must. Do you hear? Miss Prudence Weir sleeps with both ears and one eye open. Besides, she gets up early more than half the time. And you know she can make Dandy believe anything in the world, except that he ought to marry her."

"H-m! That's a pity! Skepticism an any other point would be less in-convenient," Billy Medwin panted, hurrying Elizabeth along the lane toward the woods beyond the main traveled road. It was not at all the way he should go to go home, but some how Elizabeth made no protest.

Soon they were walking through dew sweet shade, with birds singing thin and sweet above their heads. And presently Billy had his arms about Elizabeth and was saying, with his lips in her hair: "Honey girl, I've been thinking-hard. Miss Weir is the lion in our path, and there's just one way to get sound her"-

"What?" Elizabeth interrupted, lifting her head a little. Billy looked up among the leaves and colored faintly as he answered: "Oh, we must show as he answered: "On, we must show Dandy how deceitful she is. She's made him believe it would be sin to let me have you. Don't you think it would shake his faith in her if he knew she was willing to take me herself?"

"Billy." Elizabeth exploded, shaking with laughter, "you wouldn't dare processe to her. Can you live through a pose to her. Can you live through breach of promise suit? If only you could do it! But you never in the world can." "Sure you won't be jealous?" Billy

She made a face at him as she anif the worst happened—if you got tan-gled past getting out—I should have at least the heavenly satisfaction knowing she had showed herself Dandy the cat she is." "Trust me not to get tangled," Billy otested. What else he said is not strictly material to this narrative, al-though it sent Elizabeth home at last with happy eyes and the color of a wild rose. Ofttimes fortune favors the daring.

The execution began with his rescue of the pudgy Miss Weir from a runaway which was not in the least danger but which gave her a mortal scare. Of course he went back with her to the gate, stopping there to explain elaborately that he had somehow incurred the displeasure of Mr. Daniel Good wood and been forbidden the premis That, of course, gave him excuse to ask if he might inquire by letter after Miss Weir's health. One letter quickly and easily bred another, and from writing it was but a step to meeting either in the lane or in the wood beyond and talking of many things.

Miss Weir was rising thirty, justave years Billy's elder, but so light colored and plump she flattered herself it looked the other way. She loved ease and consequence—witness that for five years past she had been trying deficately to marry Uncle Dandy. She had only succeeded in becoming after a sort his social watchdog.

He had a great opinion of Elizabeth, his heiress, and wanted to match her well if she was to be matched at all.

well if she was to be matched at all Miss Weir had about lost hope of Uncle Dandy when Billy came on the scene. Billy knew pretty well all there was to know of lovemaking. This time he chose to make it in hypothetical fashion. He began impersonally by de-scribing a young fellow who had set his eyes and beart upon one so far above his deserts he had become quite hopeless of winning her and had de-seended to triffing with mere ordinary girls by way of filling an aching void be pictured the lady. Her eyes were heaven blue, her skin all lily and ose, ber hair like spun sunshine, be roice a flute. But that was as nothing beside her loftler charms—her soul, he pirit, her angelic nature-which made mere ordinary sinner grovel in dust whenever he let himself feel what te-

Billy got by the end of the second week. Naturally it was but little later that the lady was forced to discover herself in the fair unknown.

Then Billy played finer than ever. He would not speak the worshiper's name; she must guess it. But he would with her permission send her a letter unsigned from the worshiper, one in some faint way setting forth all that was in his heart. And she bound herself to reply to it-reply as her heart directed. Billy had hard work to keep from shouting when he heard that, but by holding himself hard in hand be kept a proper face and hurrled off to consult his best chum, also a very anient "complete letter writer." Miss Weir did reply from a full neart. Indeed, the heart slopped over bit-she called names-Billy's name with endearing variations. More, she whistled down the wind his pleas of unworthiness-he was a demigod at east among men-she rejoiced to hail and own him, king of her affections. Marry him? She would be happier as his wife than any crowned queen. His "modest fortune" did not count at all. Her tustes were even more modestand so on, and so on. To do the lady justice she knew Billy had really a handsome competence; also that he was no sluggard. And her own position was far from enviable. Moreover, she was dreadfully crabbed over Prudence's tardy settlement. Here you are a nagging old maid when you ought to be a grandmotheralmost," she said now and then brutally. Really the stars in their course fought for Billy-Billy the unregenerate, who as soon as he got the letter put it in his pocket and bore down on Uncle Dandy.

Just what happened between them is to this day a dark secret. Folks outside heard first a lot of growling from Uncle Dandy, followed later on by shouted laughter, but nothing audible until the pair came out together, with Uncle Dandy slapping Billy on the back at every other step. And this was what he was saying: "We've got to hire you a substitute, Billy, and I know just the man. It's Amos Flackhe needs a wife if ever a man did-a preacher, with five of the worst children going. Any endowed proposition will be tempting to him. Besides, I've already detected him casting sheep's eyes up this way. So you trot along and find Elizabeth while I look him up. And be sure you burn that letter. It must be thought to have got lost in transit. You may tell whoever you see there's going to be a double wedding up this way soon."
"Yes, sir; I will," Billy said obedient

ly. "But I shan't tell 'em I had a hand in bringing on both matches Sure enough, there was a double wedding, with Uncle Dandy playing fairy godfather to both brides.

A Trait of the Burmans. Knowledge of direction seems to be nstinctive with the Burmans, says the author of "A People at School." They always reckon by the needle, not by relative position. They do not say "Turn to the eight," but "Then to the west." If a table in a room has two tumblers on it one of them will be the east tumbler, the other the west, and the table itself will be not the "table near the window." but the "table in the east of the room." So they speak of the north or south side of a street or of a tree, not the shady or sunny side. Even in rain or mist they know the direction at once. An English traveler, walking in the Burman forest on a foggy morning to find all trace of the road wiped out by rain and every apparent means of ascertaining direction gone, was at a loss what to do, but his Burman servants knew at once. "That is north," they said, pointing. "and that is east. Our course lies between," and straight to the northeast they marched unerringly.

Quaint Old Meat Law. Among some amendments to laws offirmed at "ye General Court of assizes held in New Yorke, beginning on ye 5th & ending on ye 8th day of October, 1670," was the following:

"Whereas, divers Complaints have been made of the great abuse of bringing dead hoggs & Porke into this city & it not being discernible how long they have been Kill'd by reason they are too often brought frozen, so not capable of being preserved by Salt which tends much to ye disreputacon of that Commodity when sent abroad, and ye Merchants who Export it into Warmer Climates, for ye reasons afore-said it is Ordered. Colors of the Bluebird.

Of the male bluebird Thoreau said. "He carries the sky on his back." To this John Burroughs added, "And the earth on his breast." The bird's back, wings and tail, chin and throat are a vivid blue, while his breast and flanks are a chestnut brown and his abdomen a dirty white. The female is very much duller in coloring, often having a reddish tone that extends from the iddle of the back over the shoulder. The Seminole Indians say that the male bluebird once flew so high that his back rubbed against the sky, which imparted to him its own azure tint Returning to earth, his wife so admired his new coat that she determined to have a like one for herself and the ext morning flew away to get it. but the day proving somewhat cloudy the color given to her dress was not so prilliant as was that received by her

THE SECRET OF LONG LIFE.

Do not sap the springs of life by neglect of the human mechanism, by allowing the accumulation of poisons in the system. An imitation of Nature's method of restoring waste of tissue and impoverishment of the blood and nervous strength is to take an alterative glyceric extract (without alcohol) of Golden Seal and Oregon grape root, Bloodroot, Stone and Mandrake root with Cherrybark. Over 40 years ago Dr. Pierce gave to the public this remedy, which he called Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery. He found it would help the blood in taking up the proper elements from food, help the liver into activity, thereby throwing out the poisons from the blood and vitalizing the whole system as well as allaying and soothing a cough. No one ever takes cold unless constipated, or exhausted, and having what we call mal-nutrition, which is attended with impoverished blood and exhaustion of nerve force. The "Discovery" is an allaround tonic which restores tone to the blood, nerves and heart by imitating Nature's methods of restoring waste of tissue, and feeding the nerves, heart and lungs on rich red blood.
