POETRY.

When to be Happy.

Why do we cling to the skirts of sorrow,
Why do we cloud with care the brow,
Why do we wait for a glad to-morrow,
Why not be glad to-day?
Eden is yours! Would you dwell within it?
Change men's grief to a gracious smile,
And thus have heaven here this minute,
And not far off in the afterwhile.
Life, at most, is a fleeting bubble,
Gone with the puff of an angry breath.

Why should the dim hereafter trouble
Souls this side of the gates of death?
The crown is yours! Would you care to win it?
Plant a song in the hearts that sigh,
And thus have heaven here this minute,
And not far off in the by-and-by.
Find the soul's high place of beauty,
Not in a man-made book of creed,
But where desire enables duty,
And life is full of your kindly deeds.
The bliss is yours! Would you fain begin it?
Pave with love each golden mile,
And thus have heaven here this minute,
And not far off in the afterwhile.

SELECT STORY.

A Life for a Love.

BY L. T. MRADE.
CHAPTER LII.
TWO YEARS AFTER.

Augusta Wyndham was pacing up and down the broad gravel walk which ran down the centre of the rectory garden in a state of great excitement. She was walking quickly, her hands clasped loosely before her, her tall and rather angular figure drawn up to its full height, her bright black-eyes alert and watchful in their expression.

"Now, if only they are not interrupted," she said, "if only I can keep people from going near the rose-walk he'll do it—I know he'll do it—I saw it in his eyes when he came up and asked me where Lillias was. He hasn't been here for six months, and I had given up all hope; but hope has revived to-day—hope springs eternal in the human breast. Tra la, la—la, la. Now, Gerry, boy, what do you want?"

A sturdy little fellow in a sailor suit stood for a moment in the porch of the old rectory, then ran with a gleeful shout down the gravel walk towards Augusta. She held out her arms to detain him.

"Well caught, Gerry," she said. "It isn't well caught," he replied with an angry frown. "I don't want to stay with you, Auntie Gussie; I want to go to my—my own suit. Let me pass, please."

"You saucy boy, Auntie's busy; you shall stay with me."
"I won't. I'll best you—I won't stay."
"If I whisper something to you, Gerry—something about Auntie Lill, now be quiet, mannikin, and let me say my say. You love Auntie Lill, don't you?"

"You know that; you do talk nonsense sometimes. I love father in heaven; and mother, and Auntie Lill." "And me, you little wretch."
"Sometimes. Let me go to Auntie Lill now."
"I want to whisper something to you, Gerry. Auntie Lill is talking to someone else, anyone much better than you or me or anyone else in the world, and it would be very unkind to interrupt her."

Gerry was sitting on Augusta's shoulder. From this elevated position he could catch a glimpse of a certain gay dress, and a quick flash of chestnut hair, as the sun shone on it—that dress and that hair belonged to Auntie Lill. It was no matter at all to Gerry that someone else walked by her side, that someone was bending his dark head somewhat close to hers, and that as he listened her steps faltered and grew slow.

Gerry's whole soul was wounded by Augusta's words. His Aunt Lillias did not love anyone better than him. It was his bounden duty, his first duty in life, to have such an erroneous statement put right at once.

He put forth all his strength, struggled down from Augusta's shoulders, and before she was aware of it was speeding like an arrow from a bow to his target, Lillias.

"There, now, I give it up," said Augusta. "Awful child, what mischief he may be making! Don't I hear his shrill voice even here! Oh, I give it up now; I shall go into the house."

The full heat of the sun in July does not suit me, and if in addition to all other troubles Lillias is to have a broken heart, I may as well keep in sufficient health to nurse her.
Meanwhile Gerry was having a very comfortable time on Carr's shoulder; his dark eyes were looking at his Aunt Lillias, and his little fat hot hand was clasped in hers.
"Well, he said suddenly, "which is it?"
"Which is what, Gerry? I don't understand."
"I think you are stooped, Auntie Lill. Is it him or me?"
Then he laid his little fat hand on Carr's forehead.
"Is it him or me?" said Gerry, "that you love the most of all the people in the world?"
"It's me, Gerry, it's me," suddenly said Adrian Carr; "but you come next, dear little man. Kiss him, Lillias, and tell him that he comes next."
"Gerald's dear little boy," said Lillias. She took him in her arms and pressed her head against his chubby neck.
"Dear, dear little boy," she said, "I think you'll always come second."
She looked so solemn when she spoke, and so beautiful was the light in her eyes when she raised her face to look at Gerry, that even her most desperate of little mortals, could not but feel satisfied.

He ran away presently to announce to all and everyone within reach that Mr Carr had kissed Auntie Lill like anything, and the newly-bathed pair were left alone.
"At last, Lillias," said Carr. She looked shyly into his face. "I thought I should never win you," he continued. "I have loved you for years, and I never had courage to tell you so until to-day."
"And I have loved you for years," replied Lillias Wyndham.
"But not best, Lily. Oh, I have read you like a book. I never came before Gerald in your heart."
"No," she said, setting little to his hand, and moving a step or two away, so that she should face him. "I love you well, beyond all living men, but Gerald stands alone. His place can never be filled."

The tears sprang into her eyes and rolled down her cheeks.
"And I love you better for loving him so, my darling," answered her lover. He put his arms round her, and she laid her head on his breast.
For a long time they paced up and down the Rose-walk. They had much to say, much to feel, much to be silent over. The air was balmy overhead, and the rose-leaves were tossed by the light summer breeze against Lillias' grey dress.
Presently she began to talk of the past. Carr asked tenderly for Valentine.

"Valentine is so noble," replied her sister-in-law. "You don't know what she has been to me since that day when she and I looked together at Gerald's dead face. Oh, that day, that dreadful day!"
"It is past, Lillias. Think of the future, the bright future, and he is in that brightness now."
"I know."

She wiped the tears again from her eyes. Then she continued in a changed voice:—
"I will try and forget that day, which, as you say, is behind Gerald and me. At the time I could scarcely think of myself. I was so overcome with the wonderful brave way in which Valentine acted. You know her father died a month afterwards, and she was so sweet to him. She nursed him day and night, and did all that woman could do to comfort and forgive him. His brain was dreadfully clouded, however, and he died at last in a state of unconsciousness. Then Valentine came out in a new light. She went to the insurance office and told the whole story of the fraud that had been practised on them, and of her husband's part in it. She told the story in such a way that hard business men, as most of these men were, wept. Then she sold her father's great shipping business which had all been left absolutely to her, and paid back every penny of the money."

Since then, as you know, she and Gerry live here. She is really the little of my old father's life; he and she are scarcely ever parted. Yes, she is a noble woman. When I look at her I say to myself, Gerald, at least, did not love unworthily."

"Then she is poor now?"
"As the world speaks of poverty she is poor. Do you think Valentine minds that? Oh, how little her father understood her when he thought that riches were essential to her happiness. No one has simpler tastes than Valentine. Do you know that she housekeeper now at the rectory, and we are really much better off than we used to be. Alack and alas! Adrian, you ought to know in time, I am such a bad housekeeper. Lillias laughed quite merrily as she spoke, and Carr's dark face glowed.

"It is a bargain," he said, "that I take you with your faults and don't reprobach you with them. And what has become of that fine creature, Esther Hays?" he asked presently.
"She works in East London, and comes here for her holidays. Some times I think Valentine loves Esther Hays better than anyone in the world after Gerry."
"That is scarcely to be wondered at, is it?"
"Just then their conversation was interrupted by some gleeful shouts, and the four little girls, no longer so very small, came flying round the corner in hot pursuit of Gerry.
"Here they are!" exclaimed the small tyrant, gazing round at his devoted subjects, and pointing with a lofty and condescending air to Adrian and Lillias.
"Here they are!" he said, "and I suppose they'll do it again if we ask them."
"Do what again?" asked Lillias innocently.
"Why, kiss one another," replied Gerry. "I saw you do it, so don't tell stories. Joan and Betty they wouldn't believe me. Please do it again, please do. Mr Carr, please kiss Auntie Lill again."

"Oh, no, Gerry," replied Lillias. She tried to turn away, but Carr went up to her gravely, and he kissed her brow.
"There's nothing in it," he continued, looking round at the astounded little girls. "We are going to be husband and wife in a week or two, and husbands and wives always kiss one another."
"Then I was right," said Betty. Joan and Rosie wouldn't believe me, but I was right after all. I am glad of that."
"I believed you, Betty. I always believed you," said Lillias.
"Well, perhaps you did. The others didn't. I'm glad I was right."
"How were you right, Betty?" asked Carr.
"Oh, don't ask her, Adrian. Let us come into the house," interrupted Lillias.
"Yes, we'll come into the house, of course. But I should like to know how Betty was right."
"Why you wanted to kiss her years ago. I know it, and I said it. Didn't you, now?"
"Speak the truth," suddenly commanded Gerry.
"Yes, I did," replied Carr.
When Adrian Carr left the rectory that evening he had to walk down the dusty road which led straight past the church and the little village school-church to the railway station. This road he walked slowly, thinking of past scenes, thinking of God for his present blessings.

"I was here, by the trustee, I first saw Lillias," he said to himself. "She and Marjory were standing together, and she came forward and looked at me, and asked me if Mr Carr. She of hers if I were not her brother, whom I just barely knew. It was a fleeting likeness, seen more at first than afterwards."
"Here, by this little old school-house, the villagers stood and rejoiced the last day Gerald came home. Poor Wyndham—most blessed and most miserable of men. Well, he is at rest now, and even here I see the cross which throws a shadow over his grave."
Carr looked at his watch. There was time. He entered the little orchard-yard. A green mound, a white cross, several wreaths of flowers, marked the spot where one who had been much loved in life lay until the resurrection. The cross was so placed as to bend slightly over the grave as though to protect it. It bore a very brief inscription:—
IN PRACE,
GERALD WYNDHAM,
AGED 27,
—THE END.

Little Things of Life.

Why is it that we so easily forget that the little things of life are what makes it easy or hard? A few pleasant words, a warm hand clasp, a cordial letter, are simple things, but they are mighty in their influence on the lives of those about us, adding a ray of hope to many disconsolate hearts, giving a bit of courage to disappointed, weary ones and helping to make our own lives sweeter at the same time. Few people realize how much the little attentions of everyday life mean to their associates in the home, the church, the business place. It is generally a lack of consideration which makes one forget the tiny pleasures, but lack of consideration is really one form of selfishness, and selfishness is not considered a desirable quality. Remember that the little things in life, either good or bad, count for more with those we love than we ever knew, and we should be watchful in our actions and our words.

Putting up Pumpkins.
Pumpkins can be canned or dried. To can, fill the cans with the stewed and sifted pumpkin, cook 20 minutes in a kettle of water and seal. To dry, store the pumpkin down as dry as possible, so dry that when stirred away from the bottom of the kettle water will not gather. When cool, sift and spread on plates, one-fourth of an inch thick. Place around the stove. When the top has dried a little, take a knife and turn the pumpkin over, breaking in small pieces. Care must be taken that it does not get too dry or it will stick to the plates. Then finish drying and pack in stout bags. So use, take one-third of a teaspoonful of the dried pumpkin and soak over night in a cup of milk. In the morning put on the back of the stove to warm and mash the lumps out. Add more milk and heat hot; one egg beaten with three tablespoons of sugar, one-fourth teaspoon of cinnamon and a little ginger; add to the milk and pumpkin just before putting into the crust. Bake until thick and light. This is for one pie.

NO TIME TO LOSE.
VARIABLE AUTUMN WEATHER
OFTEN SEALS THE FATE OF RHEUMATIC SUFFERERS

Victims of Rheumatism find a cure in Paine's Celery Compound.
NOTHING LIKE IT FOR BANISH-ING THE AWFUL DISEASE.

Old and Chronic Sufferers are Made Hale and Strong.

Mr William McWilliams, of Bradford, Ont., writes as follows about his case:—
"Unsolicited, I forward this testimonial as to the value of Paine's Celery Compound. I am well up in years and was sorely afflicted with rheumatism. I purchased and used six bottles of your medicine, and am now perfectly well. I have no rheumatism left."
The above is just an ordinary sample of the proof that careful people furnish every week.

Let us utter a few words of warning to all who feel the pangs of a disease that makes life a misery and burden. The most dangerous season of the year is now with us; there is no necessity to enlarge upon this fact. Chilling winds, damp weather and heavy impure atmosphere, aggravate every condition of rheumatism, and brings many a sufferer to the grave.

Take courage all victims of rheumatism. If you have failed with doctors and the ordinary medicines of the day, remember, you have not yet given Paine's Celery Compound a trial. This marvellous medicine has made new men and women of thousands who were pronounced incurable by physicians. It can and will do the same good work for you, if you fairly and honestly use it for a time. Mr McWilliams' case was one that baffled all other medicines but Paine's Celery Compound, which proved victorious at every point, giving him a new and better life. God is and follow his example.

Word from Kootenay.
Good Mining Prospects for the Year and Increased Facilities to Miners.

Nelson (Special) Oct. 21—The mining prospects for next year in this locality are excellent, and a large influx of prospectors is expected. Miners and others bringing in have been in the habit of carrying with them large quantities of Dodd's Kidney Pills, a remedy which they have extolled to such an extent, that the druggists throughout the section have become alive to the necessity of laying in large supplies to meet the greatly increasing demand. The remedy is generally regarded as an indispensable part of a miner's outfit both for its portability and a value in preserving health which cannot be overestimated.

A Common Affliction
Permanently Cured by Taking
AYER'S Sarsaparilla

A OLD-DRIVER'S STORY.
"I was afflicted for eight years with Itchiness. During that time, I tried great many medicines which were highly recommended, but none gave me relief. I was at last advised to try Ayer's Sarsaparilla, by a friend who told me that it would cure me. I purchased six bottles, and used them according to directions. I yielded to the temptations of the wine, and took the contents of three of these bottles without notice. My direct benefit, however, I had finished the fourth bottle, my humors were all

Doxology and Overcoat.
A New York clergyman, by an understanding with his organist, had the music suddenly cease in the midst of the final doxology. It was a grotesque scene which the sudden silence revealed. There was a man with his head under the coat looking for his rubbers; there another with arms outstretched working himself into his overcoat; there one reaching for his cane in the corner of the pew; there one stroking affectionately his beaver hat and so on. The joke was quickly seen. The people who were in order glanced with pitying eye upon the friends whose dressing-room performances had been thus awkwardly arrested. A few calm words from the pastor sent the audience out with a new idea of the sacredness of God's house. The rebuke was deserved. Alas, we fear that in most of our churches the closing hymn has little of worship in it. Reader, think of this next Sunday when the concluding act of worship draws near. God is as worthy of the last act of worship as the first.

Sheffield Mills.

DEAR ACADIAN:—Have you forgotten that there is such a place as Sheffield Mills? Then it is owing to the perseverance of your correspondent...

The saw-mill owned and run by Mr. Wilson Sandford has been running to its utmost capacity since the first of April...

The carpenters are also reaping their harvest. Capt. Thomas Perry, from Farmington, who purchased the farm of Joseph E. Ellis, has been putting repairs on the house and has built a carriage house...

Mr. Joseph Ellis, not wishing to leave our pleasant village, purchased the farm of the late A. W. Sheffield and has put the buildings in thorough repair...

Last but not least is the house of Mr. W. E. Eaton, which has been raised from the floor in the first story and the whole inside put in new. It has been a long job and will make practically a new house...

THE WHITE RIBBON.

"For God and Home and Native Land." Conducted by the Ladies of the W. C. T. U.

OFFICERS. President—Mrs R. V. Jones. Vice-Presidents—Mrs Thomas Harris, Mrs R. Reid, Mrs L. Sleep.

Next meeting in Temperance Hall Thursday, Nov. 7th, at 8.30 P. M. The meetings are always open to any who wish to become members.

On Sunday afternoon a meeting for children was held in the first Baptist church, which was packed to the doors.

An illustrated talk was given to the children on the use of alcohol and tobacco, by Mrs Burges, of Woodstock.

After several other addresses, a song by the children preceded the reading of the pledge by Mrs Todd—who asked for signers.

Over one hundred young people responded, and gave their names. At the close of the evening services an immense audience filled the same church.

Mrs Seymour of St. John—superintendent of Evangelistic work in the Maritime Union—addressed the meeting, and gave an account of the work done by the various unions in jail and prison work.

This very interesting address was a surprise to those unacquainted with the W. C. T. U., by the amount and variety of the work performed.

Mrs Atkinson spoke of her own experience in visiting the prisoners. "Buck," who was executed for shooting the officer who arrested him while in the act of burglary, and under the influence of liquor. She said: "When I first heard of his conviction I held him close to God in prayer, but never thought of visiting him."

While Buck was raving and swearing and in a frenzy of passion at his sentence, a fellow prisoner told him he had better send for Mrs Atkinson. He said: "If she is a White Ribbon woman, I will follow as she only one who care for such fellows as you are."

She visited him many times at his own request, and with him at the hour of his execution. He professed a change of heart, which she told him that Jesus was genuine. When she told him that Jesus was his friend, he said he never knew that, but always thought God hated him.

He told her how he was early left unattended for on the street, and had received no training except for vice. His parting advice to Mrs Atkinson was: "Oh, save the boys! Save the boys!"

The Monday morning session was devoted to a school of methods. Excellent papers were read on Narcotics. Minutes of meetings and Press work. Each paper was followed by discussion, which drew out some valuable hints for workers.

A parliamentary drill and a question box, closed the meeting. In the afternoon a letter was read from Miss Stirling, lately of Aylsford, and former Co. Supt. of Kings. After relating some of the trials to which she had been subjected during last winter she made the following suggestion to all local unions.

"That at every trial of a woman some white ribbon sister strive to be present at her examination, and in the court room, and that we petition the Legislature to make it illegal for the trial to proceed without the presence of a woman."

Mr T. M. Lewis of the Grand Division, Sons of Temperance, was at this time introduced to the convention and gave an address. At the close of this meeting the provincial delegates separated to elect officers for N. S., N. B., and P. E. I.

The following are the officers for N. S.: Mrs Charles Archibald, Halifax, Pres. Mrs Bowry, Yarmouth, 1st Vice-Pres. Mrs Hibbert, Berwick, 2nd Vice-Pres. Mrs Marshall, Liverpool, 3rd Vice-Pres. Mrs Chesley, Lunenburg, Cor. Secy. Mrs Caldwell, Wolfville, Rec. Secy. Mrs Barnaby, Bridgewater, Treasurer. Mrs Black, Dartmouth, Auditor.

A memorial service for members who had passed away during the year was held on Monday evening. Among others, Mrs Jacob Kempton—our departed sister, was noticed, and a warm eulogy given to Mrs W. W. Hay, of Woodstock, sister of Mrs Burges Wither. A high tribute of praise was paid to Mrs Williams, late President of the Dominion W. C. T. U. After some farewell addresses and several appropriate and finely rendered solos, the convention closed by the white ribbons forming a circle round the Hall and singing "God be with you till we meet again."

A report from Dr Dawson stated that there are a million and a quarter of square miles of territory yet to be explored in the Dominion.

The St. Louis girl wrote: "Don't phob be there. Her Remembrance City hasn't reached yet. I will be there there's no such need as phob."

THE PEOPLE MARAELED

At the Rescue of Mr Metcalfe of Horning Mills.

Badly Crippled With Sciatica and an Intense Sufferer for Years—For Two Years Was Not Able to Do Any Work—Dr Williams' Pink Pills Restores Him to Health.

From the Shelburne Economist.

The completion of the local telephone service between Shelburne and Horning Mills by Messrs John Metcalfe and W. H. Marlett, referred to in these columns recently, was the means of bringing to the notice of the Economist the fact of the remarkable restoration to health some time ago of Mr Metcalfe, the chief promoter of the line. For about two years Mr Metcalfe was a terrible sufferer from sciatica, and unable to work. While not altogether bedfast he was so badly crippled that his bent form, as he occasionally hobbled about the streets of Horning Mills, excited universal sympathy. The trouble was in one of his hips and he could not stand or walk erect. His familiar attitude, as the residents of Horning Mills can found, was a stooped over position, with one hand on his knee. Mr Metcalfe says: "For about two years I was not able to do any work. Local physicians failed to do me any good, and I went to Toronto for treatment, with equally unsatisfactory results. I also tried electrical appliances without avail. I returned home from Toronto discouraged, and said that I would take no more medicine, that it seemed as if I had to die anyway. My system was very much run down and the pains at times were excruciating. I adhered for several months to my determination to take no more medicine, but finally consented to a trial of Dr Williams' Pink Pills strongly recommended by a friend. Before I had taken them very long I felt a great deal better, my appetite returned, and the pains diminished. After using the pills for some time longer I was able to stand and walk erect and resume my work, in the full enjoyment of health and strength. Physicians who knew me marvelled at the change, and on my personal recommendation many have used Pink Pills. This is the first time, however, that I have given the facts for publication."

On being asked if the sciatica had ever returned, Mr Metcalfe stated that once or twice, as the result of unusual exposure, he had experienced slight attacks but he always kept some of the pills at hand for use on such occasions, and they never failed to fix him up all right. Mr Metcalfe, who is 52 years of age, is in the flour and provision business, and works as he ever does in his life, we may state that most of the work connected with the erection of the six miles of telephone line was performed by himself. Mr Metcalfe also mentioned several other instances in which the users of Pink Pills medicine should insist upon getting the genuine, which are always put up in boxes bearing the words "Dr Williams' Pink Pills for Pale People." If you cannot obtain them from your dealer, they will be sent post-paid on receipt of 50 cents a box, or $2.50 for six boxes, by addressing the Dr Williams' Medicine Co., Brockville, Ont., or Schenectady, N. Y.

The public are cautioned against imitations and substitutes said to be just as successful as the genuine. Beware there is a larger profit for them in the imitation. There is no other remedy that can successfully take the place of Dr Williams' Pink Pills, and those who are in need of it should insist upon getting the genuine, which are always put up in boxes bearing the words "Dr Williams' Pink Pills for Pale People."

THE TURNING POINT TO HOME COMFORT AND SUCCESS IS GAINED BY THE USE OF DIAMOND DYES.

These wonderful dyes save thousands of dollars annually to happy homes in Canada. At this season, old, faded and soiled dresses, capes, jackets, and mens' and boys' suits can be re-dyed, and made to look as well as new, at a cost of ten cents.

Diamond Dyes are the easiest to use; they are the brightest, strongest and most durable. Ask for the "Diamond" and refuse all others.

They say that Gertrude's husband is a drunkard. Well, he signs a check beautifully.

I see you have a glass eye, Pat. Yes, yer 'nner; but it's a swindle, sir. I can't see nothing out of it.

CHEROKEE VERMIFUGE kills worms every time. You say that horse isn't afraid of anything. Can my wife drive him? I don't know, sir. I have never seen your wife.

MINARD'S HONEY BALSM is a sure cure. "This reminds me of my school days," remarked Fogg, as he dropped into his low easy chair. "Can't rest, you know."

Laura—George, look at that dog! Will he bite? George—If he's a dog of any judgment, Laura, he'll try to eat you. Get out, you brute!

Mrs Sweet—Do you find it economical to do your own cooking? Mrs Curmen—Oh, yes; my husband doesn't eat half as much as when we had a cook.

MINARD'S HONEY BALSM once tried, always used.

Harry—Come, Johnny, let's play horse. Johnny—Oh, you're kidding the times, you don't play horse any more. If you want to play bicycle I'm with yer.

Western—Do you think a young man can safely marry on $10 a week? Eastern—Why, that depends a good deal on how much the girl's father is worth.

Young Lady (on the grand stand)—The umpire calls a foul, but I don't even see a feather. Her escort—But you must remember this is a picked nine.

Miss Eider—I will bet you anything you like that I will never marry. Mr Easy—I'll take you. Miss Eider (rapturously)—Will you, really. Then I won't bet after all.

MINARD'S FAMILY PILLS are purely vegetable.

Miss East (touring in Oklahoma)—Where were the remains of your late husband interred, Mrs Lackman? The Widow Lackman (sadly)—There wasn't any remains—he met a bear.

Ayer's Sarsaparilla is the quickest cure for all blood diseases. Its effects are always beneficial.

Accepted. She (coldly)—I hardly know how to take your proposal. You know I am worth a million, of course. He (diplomatically)—Yes—worth a million other girls. She (rapturously)—Oh, Jack!

Hall's Hair Renewer contains the natural food and color matter for the hair, and medicinal herbs for the scalp, curing greyness, baldness, dandruff, and scalp sores.

Hogan—Garrity tells me his apartment is heated with steam. What do ye think of that for a liar!

Gregan—Sure the man tells the truth. His wife is takin' in washing since he lost his job.

Waite—Guests usually remember the waiter, here, sir.

Uncle Sil—Do they, I wad! I'll take a good look at ye. You ain't got no marks, but I guess I'll know ye again when I see ye.

If you do not know how good a remedy Gardol Tea really is for constipation and sick headache, send a postal card to D. Deansmore & Co., 271 Queen Street, West, Toronto.

Oh Sagely—Young man, when I was your age I thought, like you, that I knew it all; but now I have reached the conclusion that I know nothing.

Yeanna Swift—Hah! I reached that conclusion about you a long time ago.

I would give the world to call you mine, he said ardently. No, Harold, may I thank you, but you would not. You couldn't buy the world on eighteen hundred dollars a year, you know.

A lady who kept one of those curly poodle dogs for her pet called upon a detective to find it. The next day the officer came with the dog, which was wet and dirty. The lady snarled and asked forty silly questions, among others: Where did you find the dear darling? Why, marm, said the officer, a fellow had hid him up to a pole and was washing windows with him.

Elder George Champlain, was a colored preacher, who exercised his calling for many years in Rhode Island. He was a man of excellent common sense and no little wit. At one time some of his hearers complained that he had been rather unpersonal and severe in one of his sermons.

"When I am preaching, responded the elder, with a shrewd glance from his sharp eyes at the remonstrator, "when I am preaching, I try to show right at the between me and the devil, why, of course, brethren, he will be liable to get hurt."
