By GEORGE FITCH,

Author of "At Good Old Siwash." The Rocky mountains form the most prominent feature of America. Even man, who in this thunderous country has built 800-foot skyscrapers, 1,000acre factories and private residences so large that the butler answers the door-bell on roller skates, stands abashed and considerably impressed when he views these mountains, and does not even try to figure whether it would pay to remove them and plant the ground to turnips.

The Rocky mountains begin in Alaska and end at Cape Horn. The southern half, however, are under different management, and are incorporated under the name of the Andes. The Rocky mountains proper are confined mostly to the western part of the United States, and for many years were about the only proper things in that section. They are not as well advertised as the Alps, and tourists 1 not spend so much time in passionate endeavours to climb them. But they are much more expensively built. In fact the material used in constructing the Rocky mountains is of the very highest grade. Millions of tons of gold and silver have been worked into the designs of the various peaks regardless of expense. This has made the Rocky mountains very popular among miners of all nations and some of their majestic flanks in Colorado are so badly pitted with prospect holes as 'c make the casual tenderfoot wonder nountains are subject to smallpox.

The Rocky mountains first begin i awn upon the casual traveler at the vestern edge of Kansas and Nebraska at which point they look like strips of baby ribbon on the horizon. As the traveler aproaches they become more prominent until they finally congest the landscape and infringe considerably upon the zenith. Colorado is iil of snow-covered peaks from two to almost three miles in height and the rankest amateur can go out from hi hotel in many a Colorado town and climb far enough in a few minutes to fall 800 feet in no time at all. The Rocky mountains occupy a great deal of what would otherwise be valuable farm land in this country and compel the transcontinental railroads to climb around their dizzy sides like cats unon a tin roof. But they keep the na tion supplied with pocket money, wild vest literature, grizzly bears, ozone and scenery and now that the government is harnessing up the mountain streams, we may expect to see the day when the Rockies will do most of the heavy work for the nation. Much use be made of a mountain if it is Suitability is the thing?

The great thing in investing money is suitability. 'What are my needs?' That is the question which, before all else, is bound to be considered.

Determining his clients' individual needs is what the investment banker cannot do. Tell him what those needs are and he can pick out suitable securities. But not otherwise.

For instance, there are thirty-eight different securities listed in our December "Investment Offerings." All of these are good—yet only a few of them will suit YOUR particular needs.

But if you will frankly tell us what your needs are we can best help you pick out the RIGHT investment. And we will gladly furnish this advice without implying any obligation to pur-

ATLANTA CITY, Dec. 28. Bulkheads smashed, tons of lum per washed up on the beach, and other damage of a minor character has been raging here. For five miles the meadows between this city and the mainland resembled a turbulent sea all day. The tide was three feet above normal. Hail, snow and rain fell; thunder pealed forth and lightfell; thunder pealed forth and lightning flashed. During the storm's progress the sea-foam piled like snow drifts along the water front. "What a small bottle of Stafford's Essence of Ginger Wine can do." From the 10th of this month up to the 24th we sold 1,000 bottles of Esence of Ginger Wine.

This is an average of 66 bottles day. One 10 cent bottle of this Essence of Ginger Wine makes 3 qrts.

Now "Just a minute," please. 3 quarts makes 120 ounces. A wineglassful holds 2 ounces.

Therefore you obtain 60 glasses Ginger Wine from one little 10 cent bottle of the Essence, so that by our having sold 1,000 bottles we have provided 60,000 drinks for persons, supposing that only one drink had been taken by every person. This is utterly "impossible" we mean (one drink for each person) because once a person having taken one drink nothing in this world would prevent them form having 5 or 6 more.

The reason is simple. "They know a good drink when they taste it."

The sales for Stafford's Essence of Cingge Wine her exceeded all other. Ginger Wine has exceeded all other previous years, just the same as:-

In a short time the uninjured and the faint had been pulled from the tangle of human beings and placed in front he bodies of the dead and nelpless from the stairway and lay them in a ! row beside the building. The authorities have so far been unable to trace a man who is said to have gone up the stairs of the hall supposed to have started the panic which led to the fearful crush in the stairway and caused the death of children, there seems to be little hope he will be apprehended.
