Are Here Told the Best Remedy for Their Troubles.

Freemont, O.—"I was passing through the critical period of life, being forty-six years of age and had all the symptoms incident to that change—heat flashes, nervousness, and was in a general run-down condition, so it was hard for me to do my work. Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound was recommended to me as the best remedy for my troubles, which it surely proved to be. I feel better and stronger in every way since taking it, and the annoying symptoms have disappeared."—Mrs. M. Gooden, 925 Napoleon St., Fremont, Ohio.

CHAPTER XXVI.
AN ATTRACTIVE BOTANIST.

Floris sat and pondered over this note for some moments; then she went and bodily carried both flowers and note to Mrs. Sinclair.

The old lady listened indifferently enough until Floris came to the flower part of the story, then she woke to interest, and seized the specimens and uttered a cry of delight.

"My dear girl, where did you get these? Who gave them to you? Where did you say? His collection! Whose?"

Floris explained.
"Accept them! Rob the man of such treasures! Impossible, of course! But I must see it! If the rest are anything as good as this it must be priceless! What is his address?"

Floris named the hotel.

"Write to him at once, and ask him to call," said the old lady.

Floris hesitated for a moment then she went to her writing table and wrote a short note, thanking him for the flowers and book, and requesting him to call on Mrs. Sinclair.

She signed the note, of course, with her assumed name, Lillian Wood, and she resolved that if he should accept the invitation, she would not appear.

On the morrow he came, and was shown into the library, and as the door was opened for him Floris passed out into the drawing-room.

When she heard the servant let him out of the house, she returned to the library to find that Mrs. Sinclair was even more fascinated than she herself had been.

"That's a wonderful young man you have discovered, my dear!" she said, with unwonted enthusiasm.

"I discovered!" said Floris, elevating her eyebrows.

"Well, well; it was through you!" said the old lady, impatiently. "At any rate, I am much obliged to you. I don't know when I have enjoyed a visit more. He doesn't know very much about botany, but what he does know he knows thoroughly; and he has traveled. There does not seem to be any place that he does not know. Ah, that is where men have the advantage over our poor women! He is coming here to-morrow to tea, and will bring some specimens with him."

The next evening as the lamps came in, Mr. Oscar Raymond was announced.

Mrs. Sinclair greeted him warmly, but Floris merely inclined her head.

She officiated at the tea table, and gave him a cup of tea, then took a book and went to a remote corner.

He did not speak a word to her for some time, but confined his attentions to Mrs. Sinclair, listening rather than talking, his well-shaped head with its close, iron-gray hair, bent with respectful interest.

Two days passed, and on the third Oscar Raymond came again.

Floris was in the library with Mrs. Sinclair, and scarcely looked up when he came and made his bow.

As before, he devoted himself to the old lady, and did not venture to address Floris until just as he was leaving.

Then he came and stood beside her, with his hat in his hand, and waited until she looked up.

"Are you going, Mr. Raymond?" she said, coldly.

"Yes," he answered with a touch of sadness in his voice; "I am going. I wanted to say 'good-by' instead of 'good-day,' Miss Wood."

Floris looked at the paper spread out on the desk before her.

Mrs. Sinclair having bade him adieu, had turned to her books as if there was no one besides herself in the room.

"You are going to leave Florence?" said Floris, for want of something better to say.

"Yes," he said. "You have driven me away!"

"I?" exclaimed Floris, flushing, but avoiding his intense gaze.

"Yes, Miss Wood, you. Oh, do not think me so blind as not to be able to see that my presence is distasteful to you!"

"Mr. Raymond!" she said, very reluctantly.

"It is true," he continued sadly. "I know that you will be glad when I have gone. You have avoided me so plainly that—"

A vague feeling of remorse seized Floris.

"I am very, very sorry," she quietly murmured.

"No, do not say that! I know so well that you are glad this is the last time you will see me. And yet you do me a wrong, believe me!"

"How?" she asked, in a low voice, though she might have safely shouted so far as Mrs. Sinclair, absorbed in her books, was concerned.

"In this," he said, humbly. "You have heard stories about me; you have heard that I am one whose character is so bad that I am not fit to breathe the same air as yourself."

Floris lowered her lids.

"You do not deny it," he went on. "Would to Heaven that I could say they were false. But I cannot, least of all to you! By!" he sighed, and his voice grew strangely soft and sad—"but it is possible for even such as I to repent and change. And I have done both. Miss Wood, the man who stands before you is a different man to him whom you saw engaged in a vulgar brawl a month ago."

Floris remained silent. Her heart beat fast and furiously.

The soft penitent voice, the humble, pleading words affected her more than she cared to show.

"A month may be a lifetime, and this month has been a lifetime to me! I have learned that all my past life has been wasted, and of no account—worse than wasted, seeing how great a barrier it has raised between such as I am and you."

Floris tried to rise, to speak, but she could not; the soft, musical voice held her bound and enthralled, and as she listened came the old, old questions, "Where had she heard" it before?"

"I cannot tell you how your coldness and avoidance of me affects me," he went on, "but I cannot leave you forever without telling you that the change which has been wrought in me is your work, and has been as much your doing as that writing beneath your hand."

"I cannot listen," murmured Floris, slowly.

"Bear with me!" he pleaded, humbly. "Though I know I risk all by thus prematurely laying my heart bare before you, I must speak! I must bare it! Miss Wood, Lillian! I love you!"

Floris rose, pale and trembling.

"You—you—"

"I love you," he said, white and trembling, even as she was. "There, I have said it, and let it stand. It has been on my mind—on my lips—no hope—of winning you, and yet I must say it. But, before I go, will you let me plead on my behalf?"

Floris was silent.

The witchery, the fascination which this man could exercise by voice and manner was insensibly stealing over her.

His handsome face, the dark eyes glowing with passion of intense love, seemed to sink into her soul.

A kind of mystic glamour seemed to envelop her as in some subtle shroud.

She could not lift her eyes to his, she could not speak.

"I love you," he repeated, and Floris, as she listened, wondered why the words did not ring and re-echo in the ears of Mrs. Sinclair as they did in her own; but the enthusiast was absorbed by her books and heard nothing.

"I love you with all my heart and soul! Send me away from you forever and I shall love you still. While I live I shall carry your image in my heart. I am a changed man. I can scarcely recognize myself! A month ago I was—all that you had been told I was; but now I stand before you a different being, reformed, purified by my love for you. I beg, I implore you to hesitate before you cast me off. Such as I am, my love for you has made me. For Heaven's sake have pity on me!"

His voice grew hoarse and broken, but still the nameless fascination held Floris bound as in a chain.

She panted for breath, like a deer hard pressed by the hounds and held at bay.

"I—I will not listen—I cannot believe. Oh, go—please, go," she panted.

"Will you meet me in the square, under the limes, to-morrow, at seven?" he pleaded. "If it be the last time, meet me there. A soul trembling 'twixt evil and good—I beg for one last word."

AutoStrop SAFETY RAZOR

Mechanical Perfection
There are many reasons why the AutoStrop is the ideal shaver's razor, but one stands out more prominently than the others and will definitely appeal to every "Knight of the Air," that is, its mechanical perfection.

Every aviator knows and appreciates what mechanical perfection means—his plane must be perfect in every detail to avoid accidents. His razor must be perfection itself to give complete satisfaction. The AutoStrop of the one razor that will give continuous service without the annoyance of broken, rusted blades, because it is the only razor that shaves if ever blades automatically—the 15 blades you receive with the AutoStrop will give you at least 50 clean, comfortable shaves.

Her Last Good-Bye to Corns

WHEN a woman once buys Blue-jay, her corn troubles end for good.

She will try one on a corn. The pain will stop instantly. The corn will soon disappear. She will know then that corns are needless. And every corn thereafter will be ended before it fairly starts.

Never again will she pare corns, and never use harsh treatments. She will never wear corn pads. Nor ever again will she let a corn spoil one joyful hour.

Blue-jay is keeping millions of women entirely free from corns. The way is simple, easy, sure, modern and scientific. It will keep you free if you let it. Prove this on one corn tonight. You will laugh at a corn after that.

FRENCH TAKE OFFENSIVE

PARIS, July 18.—The French this morning believe an attack along the line from River Aisne as far as the region of Belleu, a front of about 25 miles, made progress at certain points of between a mile and a half and three miles, the war office announced today. The situation on the Marne and Champagne fronts is unchanged.

ATTACK BELIEVED MAKING PROGRESS

LONDON, July 18.—News received in London indicates that the attack started by the French this morning on the front between Chateau Thierry and Soissons is of considerable scale. The attack is believed to be making good progress.

BIG OFFENSIVE.

LONDON, July 18.—Reports received in London show the situation up to noon all along the line of attack begun by the French this morning to be excellent. The attack is the biggest offensive made this year by the Allies.

PRISONERS ARRIVING

PARIS, July 18.—Early in the movement the prisoners taken in the advance began coming in on the northern point of the attack in the town of Fontenoy, nearly a mile north of the Aisne. In the fighting of the front of the offensive the French last night stopped the Germans in the face of violent attacks which the enemy launched southwest of Mautheil-La-Fosse, between the Marne and Rheims, the front beyond Rheims east of the Vesle River an attack by the German Guards units was completely repelled. The text of the statement received. The French attacked German positions from the region of Fontenoy on the Aisne, as far as the region of Belleu this morning. We have made progress at certain points from two to three kilometres. The capture of prisoners is reported. On the front of the Marne and Champagne this night brought no change. Southward of Nantouil-La-Fosse we arrested powerful and violent attack by the enemy. North of Presnes an attack by German Guard units broke down completely.

FRENCH GAIN.

LONDON, July 18.—The French have gained from twelve to four miles everywhere on the 25-mile front of their offensive to-day between the Aisne and the Marne.

FRENCH TAKE OFFENSIVE.

PARIS, July 18. The French this morning delivered an attack along the line from the River Aisne as far as the region of Belleau, a front of about 25 miles, and made progress at certain points of between a mile and a half and two miles, the war office announced today. The situation on the Marne and Champagne fronts is unchanged.

LONDON, July 18. Reports received in London showed the situation up to noon all along the line of attack begun by the French this morning to be excellent. The attack is the biggest offensive move made this year by the Allies.

PRISONERS ARRIVING.

PARIS, July 18. Early in the movement the prisoners taken in the advance began coming in on the northern point of the attack in the town of Fontenoy, nearly a mile north of the Aisne. In the fighting of the front of the German offensive the French last night stopped the Germans in the face of violent attacks which the enemy launched southwest of Nanteuil-La-Fosse, between the Marne and Rheims. On the front beyond Rheims east of the Vesle River an attack by the German Guards units was completely repulsed. The text of the statement reads: The French attacked German positions from the region of Fontenoy on the Aisne, as far as the region of Belleau this morning. according to reports reaching London this afternoon. Several thousand prisoners and about 20 guns have been captured.

ENGAGED IN COUNTER ATTACK.

ON THE FRENCH FRONT IN FRANCE, July 18.—The Allied forces to-day are engaged in an important counter attack between the Aisne and the Marne north of Chateau Thierry. The attack is progressing favorably.

FRENCH ATTACK MAKING GOOD PROGRESS.

LONDON, July 18. The French attack is making good progress. Advances this afternoon stated that the Germans had made further attacks east of Rheims and that the French at various points of the front had regained ground. The French, the reports state have recaptured Montville, south of the Marne at the point where the Germans had advanced furthest toward Epernay and Chemin-La-Belle to the west of these villages overlooking the Marne.

A SURPRISE TO THE GERMANS.

LONDON, July 18. The French move this morning appeared to have been a surprise to the Germans. The manner in which the surprise was accomplished may best be judged from maps which show a great area of forest covering the ground behind the French lines. Under cover of these forests General Foch has been preparing for some time for the present movement. All the way from Baillieux to the Aisne the French attack was launched at day-break to-day. It was what the British call "full dress show" with every department, every weapon available in play including the new French mosquito tanks. These tanks did excellent work in some of the most difficult points. Military men attach great importance to the late railway lines around Soissons, and say that if General Foch can get his artillery into place to keep these lines out of action he will make the movement of the Germans in the whole sector between Rheims and Chateau Thierry impossible. On the extreme of the German offensive the French have reoccupied their old lines for a distance of three or four miles. North of the Marne the French have regained the whole of the Boiswood and the village of Ventuel. This is the moment Foch has been looking for, said a military authority here to-day, and if all goes well his splendid executed counter attack should bring the whole German offensive on the Rheims sector to a halt immediately. The French have reached a point menacing the most important German railway centres which feed the entire front west of Rheims. The French artillery is now within easy shelling distance of these railways and should be able to make life miserable for a large section of the German army.

AMERICAN CAPTURES.

LONDON, July 18. An American division, co-operating with the French troops in the counter attack to-day, have captured the town of Broleroy, about six miles south of Soissons, and have advanced three miles beyond the town, the advices add. The Americans operating in the region west of Soissons, the despatch adds, have taken 4,000 prisoners, 30 guns and much other material, which has not yet been estimated.

WITH THE AMERICAN ARMY IN FRANCE, July 18.—As the whole German left flank is menaced, the enemy must draw in his troops from the Marne front or risk their being caught where they are. This means that the finishing blow possibly has been administered to his dying offensive. The towns of Torcy and Glory and the Glory Wood were taken by the Americans in their advance. The final objectives in the Glory and Torcy sectors were reached in two hours of hard fighting. The troops on this part of the front did equally as well as those on the front further north, taking quantities of material and prisoners who continue to stream back to our lines. In one town alone on the south part of the front under attack the Franco-American forces captured 18 guns. Hastily organized counter attacks against the Americans developed here and there, but all were broken up, and our troops continue to advance. Probably the most stubborn resistance to the Allied advance developed in the region west of Chaudun, which is four and a half miles west of Soissons. The Americans and French, fighting side by side, however, refused to be checked. The American machine guns mowed the enemy down and then our troops went on. The fighting still continued in the region this p.m. and seems likely to become heavier when the German reserves arrive. In the region of Soissons, where the attack was especially successful, the Americans carried all before them by storm. Early this afternoon they had passed their final known objective. From the second to the third objectives they swept behind a third barrage. The second objectives were usually taken by troops of the first units who had dug in at the first objectives. The resistance to these troops was especially vicious. At some places the American advancing troops were held, but only temporarily.

FRENCH CAPTURE HEIGHTS.

LONDON, July 18. Up to one o'clock this p.m. French troops had captured the heights overlooking Fontenoy on the extreme left, and had progressed to Monte-De-Paris within a mile of the city of Soissons.

SURPRISE ENEMY.

PARIS, July 18. The front upon which General Mangin attacked this morning measures about twenty-one miles. The enemy was totally surprised. The attack was made virtually without artillery preparation. Our infantry supported by many tanks advanced rapidly under the protection of a barrage fire which was extended before the advance. The forest of Villers Cotteret is now virtually cleared.

GENERAL GOURAUD ADDRESSES HIS MEN.

ON THE FRENCH FRONT, July 17.—In stirring phrases imploring them to stand firm General Gouraud in command of French and American troops east of Rheims and in Champagne appealed to his men before the German offensive began. In an order issued to the soldiers he said: "We may be attacked at any moment. You all feel that a defensive battle never has been engaged in under more favorable conditions. You were warned and are on guard with powerful reinforcements of infantry and artillery. You will fight on the ground you have transformed by your hard work into reputable fortresses which are invincible if the passages are properly guarded. The bombardment will be terrific, but you will stand it without weakening. The assault will be violent clouds of smoke, dust and gas, but your position and armament are formidable. In your breasts beat free men's brave, strong hearts. Nobody will look behind nor recede a pace. Each of you will have one thought, to kill and kill many until they cry 'enough.' For this reason your General says you will break this assault, and it will be broken gloriously."

TALK BEFORE THE BATTLE.

PARIS, July 18. Southeast of Villers Bretonneux, Colonel De Thomassin, a military writer, in concluding his article on the battle situation to-day says he cannot resist the pleasure of quoting a passage concerning the Americans from the semi-official Norddeutsche Allgemeine Zeitung. The German paper declared that "the American soldiers are cannon fodder. They are incapable of standing up to our seasoned troops. America has been powerless to train the forcibly enlisted men who had shipped to Europe." The way the Americans treated a crack German division at Fossler, says the writer, perhaps may give the German writer food for reflection.

EMPEROR WATCHED ATTACK.

AMSTERDAM, July 18. The Emperor watched the opening of the latest German offensive from an advanced observation post northwest of Rheims, his favorite correspondent, Karl Boser, reports in a despatch to the Berlin Lokale Anzeiger.

BRITISH OFFICIAL.

LONDON, July 18. Southeast of Villers Bretonneux, south of the Somme, the British lines has been advanced on a front of more than one mile, says to-day's official statement from British headquarters in France. The British headquarters to the east of Hebuterne also were improved somewhat. South of Bucquoy on the fronts southeast of Arras, a German raiding party was driven off. The German artillery showed considerable activity during the night on the Flanders front north of Baillieux.

ENEMY ENTIRELY DRIVEN FROM SOUTH BANK.

WASHINGTON, July 18. General Pershing's communique for yesterday reports that in the American sector on the Marne the enemy has been entirely driven from the south bank.

GREAT DESTRUCTION OF U BOATS.

LONDON, July 18. Within the past three months the number of German submarines destroyed has been greater than any during any similar period since the beginning of the war. Depth charges have played an important part in putting an end to the activities of the U boat.

CAREY ALL BEFORE THEM.

WITH THE AMERICAN ARMY IN FRANCE, July 18.—(By the A. P.)—The American troops carried all before them by late in the afternoon and had proceeded so fast that cavalry was thrown into action. All the American headquarters staff to-night were well inside the territory which the Germans held this morning.

TWENTY VILLAGES CAPTURED.

PARIS, July 18. More than twenty villages have been recaptured by the French and American troops in the offensive begun yesterday morning, according to the official announcement to-night which reports also the occupation of the plateau dominating Soissons on the southwest. The text follows: After breaking the German offensive on the Champagne and Rheims mountain fronts on the 15th, 16th and 17th the French troops in conjunction with the American forces attacked the enemy positions on the 18th, between the Aisne and the Marne, on a front of 45 kilometres, approximately 28 miles. The front comprises Amblenay, Longpont, Troesnes and Bourneches. We have made an important advance into the enemy lines and have reached the plateau dominating Soissons. On the southwest and the region of Chaudun, Villers, Heion and Noroy Ourcq, violent engagements have been in progress south of the Auroc. Our troops have gone beyond the general line of Marisy Saint Genevieve, Hautevesnes and Belleau. More than 20 villages have been retaken by the admirable dash of the Franco-American troops, as well as several thousand prisoners and important war material.

At the City Hall.

The Municipal Council held its regular weekly session last evening. The Mayor presided and Councilors Morris, Brownrigg, Ayre, Vinicombe and Tait were present.

After reading and confirmation of minutes the following matters were disposed of:—

A. Carnell was granted permission to connect his house on the Torbay Road with the water main.

George Summers wrote regarding purchase of houses by the Council some time ago.

John Gunn wrote he was not prepared to go to any expense in connection with the extension of the main on Toppal Road.

The Hon. Secretary Church of England Orphanage wrote thanking Council for giving water connection to Steer's Farm on the Long Pond Road. C. W. Johnson asked Council's permission to install a motor in shed rear of Theatre Hill. No objection.

R. J. Walsh asked Council to repair the wall near his house. Repairs will be made.

Michael Hickey called the attention of the Council to the tank near his house on Barter's Hill.

Tessier and Company will be asked to submit plans of proposed repairs to their building. Plans of repairs to Bisoap, Sons

"Traction"—The Tire Beautiful—

WE hear so much about the "lines" of the automobile that we are apt to forget the "lines" of a tire.

Surely if beauty is an essential in automobile construction, it is likewise an essential in tire construction.

Examine "Traction" for beauty—no unnecessary lines, no distorted "treadlets," no ugly, unsymmetrical gouges—just one powerful, resilient, beautiful balance. And all this is extra—extra over and above the greatest road mastery ever obtained in a rubber tire.

The Reason Why.

Much speculation has been evinced in many quarters, not the least having arisen in Ireland itself, why Germany has gone out of her way, as it were, to impress upon the Irish people why their future is assured through German help. It has not been a part of Hun policy to render assistance anywhere out of pure philanthropy, and it is plain there is a motif in the offers of help which the enemy have made to Ireland. Unfortunately there were some misguided persons in that unhappy isle who were simple enough to be misled by the wiles of the seducer and who listened to and accepted his overtures without enquiring into their real nature. But it sometimes happens that truth will out. It cannot be concealed for ever, and the real reason for Germany's new-born friendship toward Ireland has at length been revealed. Dr. Karl Goldschmidt, who lectured before the German-Irish Society on St. Patrick's Day last, is the declarant of the German object in the proffered friendship to Erin. The lecturer prefaced his address with the now well known words of the Kaiser, "Germany's future is on the water," and the acquisition of Heligoland from the English Government was identified with this policy, for with Heligoland continuing to be a British possession, Germany, Doctor Goldschmidt declared, would hardly have been more than Greece or Portugal. Germany acknowledges a similar policy in the extension and development of her Colonial Empire, in the promotion of her merchant marine and in the creation of her fleet. The future of Germany therefore depends on the "freedom of the seas" from the German standpoint, that is for German commerce and trade only, for it must be borne in mind that this is the German view. The Allied powers are combating that view to-day by force of arms and it will be an evil day for the world if through any treason within the gates, they fall of their purposes. German friendship (?) for Ireland, according to Dr. Goldschmidt, is based on the exigencies of her geographical position, for he says: "Since the Russian menace is past and France is no longer a terrible opponent, the danger to Germany to be feared in the West rests in the geographical position of England, which enables her to cut off from all intercourse with the world, not only Germany, but all Central and North Eastern Europe. Should Germany succeed in this way to free the Irish from the English yoke and to create an independent Ireland, England's communications with the Atlantic and America would be restricted; and as England could not endure a year of such isolation as she has imposed upon Germany in the present war, she would be compelled to come to an understanding with Ireland. Thoughts Upon the Times

(By PATRIOT.)
Time and again the press has warned the authorities of the dangers to the young outport volunteers of the Florida Water dens on New Gower Street and other places in the town. Somewhere should be taken to stop the sale of such vile stuff, especially to the lads of the Regiment. The proprietors are protected by the freedom which these abuses and Prohibit they could not get elsewhere. It is really sad to see youths of 18 and 19 reeling about the streets under the influence of this dope. Worse still to see a lad who has returned home to his friends, wounded, becoming a habitue of one of these dens. He has done his duty and escaped the German bullet, only to return home to become a slave to a habit which undermines his manhood and destroys his vitality and character. Where are the temperance people in this matter? What are they doing to try to keep down the sale of this Water as a beverage? It is ten times more injurious than whiskey or rum. The authorities, assisted by every decent citizen in the community should unite to stamp out these dens of iniquity. If the proprietors cannot earn their living in this country in a more honourable way let them get back to their own country and sell such dope to their own people. We want our young men to grow up healthy, with clear brains and pure bodies. We do not want them poisoned before they arrive at manhood. It would be interesting to compare the importations of Florida Water for the past twelve months with that of 1916. Instead of its being admitted at an ad val. duty of 50 p.c. it should be 500 p.c. or prohibited altogether. The fishery to date around the whole coast is only about half of what it was at the corresponding date last year, yet the fishermen have been seriously handicapped for the want of it. This does not speak well for the management of Shipping for which the Dominion has to pay to the tune of twenty thousand dollars. Profound appeals have been pouring in from the fishermen along the South West Coast for salt, but the situation does not seem any better now than it was a month ago. There seems to be a great deal of dissatisfaction on the part of the Coast with the present disorganized coastal service. The people are not at all pleased with the head-cooker arrangement of having the Clyde and Dundee running between Port Union and Lewisporte. It only answers one purpose and that not conducive to the public good. The Sisu, too, is not giving the satisfaction on the Cook's Harbour route as was given in former years by the Earl of Devon. The Coastal Service, as we have known it in the past, was an institution which took years to arrange and build up, and the people had come to look upon it as something which could not be uprooted or interfered with, no matter what else had to be sacrificed. But they have had a rude awakening and they bitterly resent the unjustifiable interference. There will be something doing when the people get a chance to express their opinions on the way our public utilities have been handled by the present makeshift politicians. That fact is apparent enough to anyone who has travelled on that part of the coast.

Disgrace to City.

Yesterday afternoon what was about the most disgraceful sight seen in the city for some years was witnessed by Buckmaster's Field. Three young boys, their ages ranging from 8 to 13, had obtained 23 bottles of lemon extract, which they mixed with alcohol, ale, and drank. Many people saw the young boys, who were so drunk as to be incapable of standing or walking, and a crowd of people gathered to see them. We understand this morning that all three of them are very ill, suffering from the effects of the vile concoction. Young boys of tender age can and may buy the lemon extract, Florida water and perfume nearly all the shops owned by foreigners that exist in different parts of the city, but chiefly on New Gower Street. It should be stopped.

Those I.O.U.'s.

The flippant manner in which the Advocate explains, and dismisses from further thought the Customs House Scandal, in its issue of yesterday, will not be accepted as convincing proof that the cloud of suspicion which hangs over those I.O.U. transactions has been lifted. As a matter of fact the Advocate tacitly admits that there is something faulty in an accounting system which permits officials to borrow from the Department funds, ahead of pay day. That is the very point for which the Telegram has been contending, and having now received corroboration from the senior Government newspaper, the next step is to effect a change. The Minister of Finance who is, (see Advocate), too anxious to occupy himself with mundane daily affairs, will no doubt come down from his superior altitude, now, and efficiently administer his Department by first of all introducing either a new system of accounting or a new system of auditing. Newfoundland wants neither her Revenue Service nor her Finance Minister "up in the air."

TAKES OVER SALT.—The Government has taken over all supplies of salt in the country. "Salt" will be dealt with as if it were a commodity of the outboard dealers, so we are informed, are charged as high as $8 and $10 a ton, which is going some, compared with the city price of $4.70.

TO SPEAK ON ROUSING PROBLEM.—Sometime in the early part of next week, it is expected that the Hon. John Anderson and M. P. Gibbs will address the members of the N. I. W. A. on the Housing Problem, and a special meeting of the Association will be called for that purpose.

PERSONAL.—Miss Edith Bright, daughter of Mr. Stephen Bright, who has spent the past eight months on the Labrador, teaching school, returned by the S.S. Sagons. Miss Bright speaks highly of the Labrador, and its inhabitants, and is to be commended on her work in the North, which she liked very much and was greatly taken up with it. Miss Bright is looking exceptionally fine, and that argues well for the Labrador.

PERSONAL.—Miss Edith Bright, daughter of Mr. Stephen Bright, who has spent the past eight months on the Labrador, teaching school, returned by the S.S. Sagona. Miss Bright speaks highly of the Labrador, and its inhabitants, and is to be commended on her work in the North, which she liked very much and was greatly taken up with it. Miss Bright is looking exceptionally fine, and that argues well for the Labrador.

"The Glory Dies Not."

The subject of the appended extract is a son of Mr. J. W. Aitken, of Bot-wood, and nephew of Mr. R. Aitken of this city. This gallant lad enlisted as a private in the 11th Regiment on December 1st, 1914; embarked for England with C Company in February, 1915; was transferred to transport service in July of the same year; received his Sergeant stripes May, 1917.
 Sergt. Aitken is expected home on furlough very shortly, and we wish him a pleasant time. Nothing is too good for the men, who by such deeds have brought much honor to Newfoundland.

Mr. John W. Aitken, Botwood,
 Dear Sir,—The following extract from Honours and Awards is quoted in connection with the deed for which No. 642 Sergt. E. F. Aitken won the Military Medal:

"On the night of the 9th October, 1917, the transport officer and four of his men were killed on their way to Battalion Headquarters with rations. Immediately upon receipt of the news, Sergt. Aitken volunteered to attempt to reach Headquarters with a fresh supply of water. Taking four men with him he started for transport lines at 1.30 a.m. on the 10th and after meeting with considerable amount of shell fire, safely delivered supplies at Brigade Headquarters."

I wish to congratulate you on the conduct of your son, which reflects credit, not only on himself, but on his Regiment.

Yours faithfully,
 W. F. RENDELL, Lieut.-Col.,
 Chief Staff Officer.

Coal Operations.

(Western Star.)
 Coal mining operations continue at the Howley-Grand Lake areas, under the direction of Capt. McClish, for the A.L.D. Co. of Grand Falls. A drift of 500 feet has been driven. In this drift are three coal seams. The upper seam runs from two to three inches, the middle seam averages about six inches, while the bottom seam, which dips, runs from 18 to 20 inches of the finest kind of bituminous coal, which burns with a blue flame leaving a white ash and no clinkers. The coal is being used at the works, and is giving excellent results as a steam as well as a domestic article. A shaft will now be sunk from the end of the drift, which is on the east or opposite side of the brook to the old workings, and about two miles from Howley station.
 Twelve men are employed there, working two eight-hour shifts daily.

The World's Holidays.

According to statistics drawn up by the Guaranty Trust Company of New York, during the present year there are only eighty-four days on which banks are open everywhere in the world. On every one of the other two hundred and eighty-one days some nation somewhere it will be celebrating a civil or religious holiday, or observing the Sabbath. Only one of these holidays is universal.
 This is New Year's Day, and eleven different dates are observed by various countries as the beginning of a new year. Some countries observe more than one during the calendar year. Five Christian countries do not observe Christmas as a legal holiday.
 Brazil leads the nations in the number of its holidays. It has eighty-four, and the United States is second with fifty-four. Although such days as New Year's Day, Washington's Birthday, Independence Day, Christmas, and others are generally celebrated throughout the United States,
 there is no national legal holiday.
 France observes eighteen formal holidays during the year, and Italy twenty-three. Among the other belligerents, Germany, it is presumed will observe twenty days; Great Britain sixteen, Japan fifteen, and Russia seventeen. In most of these countries numerous local holidays ordinarily observed have been abandoned during the war.

November—Holiday Month.
 Among the favourite months for holidays the world over, November leads, with twenty-six out of its possible thirty days. May comes next with twenty-five.

Christmas Day is not so generally observed as New Year's Day. It has, however, only three different dates.
 The only country whose holidays reveal little of its political, racial, or religious origin is Portugal. This is its calendar: January 1st, dedicated to universal brotherhood; January 31st, dedicated to the memory of all those who fought and died to establish the republic of Portugal; May 8th, in memory of the discovery of Brazil by the Portuguese; June 19th, municipal holiday at Lisbon; June 24th, municipal holiday at Oporto; 25th, the date of the establishment of the Portuguese republic; December 1st, Flag Day, to commemorate the independence of the country; December 25th, family day.

Rotten Spots.

By RUTH CAMERON.

RUTH CAMERON

A rather successful young lawyer was telling me about his feelings toward another young lawyer from his college who is, if anything, a shade more successful than himself.

"Do you know," he said, "when I see his name in the paper in connection with one of these big cases I feel bad,—unhappy, blue, I don't know what to call it. Now isn't that rotten? Why shouldn't I want him to have the work? I have all I want. Why shouldn't I want him to succeed, too. It's a rotten spot in me somehow, that's what it is. Sometimes I make myself sick, I do."

I couldn't help laughing.

But I knew just how he felt and just how he hated to feel himself feeling that way.

For I've found rotten spots in myself sometimes, too.

Have you?

You understand what I mean, of course—feelings, states of mind that you know are perfectly despicable, and yet you can't seem to help having.

Some Rotten Spots Where Antagonisms Flourish.

Unreasonable antagonisms are one of my worst rotten spots. There are certain perfectly good people for whom I find that I have conceived antagonisms. Often these people are usually nice people, as the world sees it; sometimes they are people who have been unusually nice to me. And yet "I do not like thee, Dr. Fell," and that's all there is to it. In vain I argue with myself. I find that, though I can manage to treat them decently and even speak them fair, there is some mean rotten part of me that makes me grudging of credit where they are concerned, no matter how unjustly they are due; ready to misjudge them where misjudgment is possible and actually pleased when they do show up in a bad light.

And, as the young lawyer said, when I catch myself at that business I make myself sick, I do.

Her Feeling for her Mother-in-Law a Rotten Spot.

I should perhaps be afraid to confess this, if a very sweet, conscientious woman had not once told me that that was just the way she felt about her mother-in-law, though the latter had been very kind to her. "I think people are more apt to feel that way about their in-laws than about anyone else," she said. "I know several wives that have admitted to me, in private, that that was the way they felt."

Wouldn't it be splendid if a scalpel could be invented with which we could cut the rotten place out of ourselves?

I should surely buy one. Wouldn't you?

I fell from a building and received what the doctor called a very bad sprained ankle, and told me I must not walk on it for three weeks. I got MINARD'S LINIMENT and in six days I was out to work again. I think it the best Liniment made.

64 Flags of the Empire.

BOYS AND GIRLS AT ST. PAUL'S.

The Duke of Connaught and Princess Patricia attended the Empire Day service of the League of the Empire in St. Paul's Cathedral.

On arrival, the Duke of Connaught inspected the guard of honor, which was composed of a detachment of the London Diocesan Church Lads' Brigade. The boys, bearing the 64 flags of the Empire, were drawn up in two rows on the steps of the Cathedral, and dipped their flags to the Duke while their band gave the Royal salute.

Lord Meath and other officers of the League met the Duke, who was received at the west door by the Archbishop and Canon Alexander. As he passed up the nave his Royal Highness inspected the brigades assembled there, including the Boys' Brigade, London Diocesan Church Lads' Brigade, Boys' Life Brigade, Church Lads' Brigade, Navy League, Boy Scouts, Imperial Maritime League, Girl Guides, Girls' Life Brigade, Church Nursing and Ambulance Brigade, Foundling Hospital children, and the Newport Market Army Training School.

Following the Duke came the procession of the flags. The Union Jack was laid on the altar, while the other flag-bearers took up stations under the dome. The mayors of several London boroughs were present, and when the service began the congregation numbering 4,000.

The address was given by the Bishop of Willesden, who spoke in simple language of the development of the Empire and the duty the children owed it.

The hymns "Eternal Father, strong to save," "O God, our help in ages past," "Onward, Christian Soldiers," and "Lord of our life" were sung, and the flag-bearers proceeded to the sanctuary steps, where the 64 flags were blessed. Afterwards the Union Jack that had been placed on the altar was carried down the nave accompanied by a guard of honor of the Church Lads' Brigade.

The service concluded with the singing of the first verse of the National Anthem.—The Times.

Soper & Moore

As the order is given every head is bared, and the padre, with a smile on his fine fresh face and with his plume perched upon his nose, appears on deck in the vestments of his office. He glides to his place beside the musical midshipman and announces the number of the hymn. One soft chord is touched and 'hundreds of voices, led by the band, break into harmony.

I cannot imagine a more picturesque or inspiring sight—a perfect day, a blue sky, a calm, soft, sighing wind, and just abaft the muzzles of the huge turret guns the padre in his white surplice, surrounded by the men, bareheaded and in working rig, all lifting up their voices in supplication to the Almighty.

The last chord has been struck, the last note sounded. Heads are bowed, and the padre's voice, mild and meli- low, steals softly over the peaceful waters.

Preserve us from the dangers of the sea and the violence of the enemy, that we may be a safeguard to our most precious sovereign.

The grace of our Lord . . . be with us evermore.

"Amen," deep and devout, from the men, and the padre is gone. "Shun! On cape, right turn, dou-

HELPING TO WIN.

Breathes there a man with soul so dead who never to himself hath said, "I'll dig up money every chance, if that will help our boys in France. If coin will I'll help to squash the Hun, I have no use for hoarded mon. The hat I've worn since '93 will do another year for me; the shoes I bought three years ago will serve to bear me to and fro; and the pants I drew in father's will are fit for ample service still. I root for Uncle Sam at bat, so come along and pass the hat." It's hard to understand the state who's scheming early, scheming late, to see how little he can give; he ought to be ashamed to live. Committee call at his abode, and kindly ask him to unload. He backs and fills and hums and haws, and shows some puffs through his jaws: "I dug up fifty cents last May; I can't spare anything to-day." And he can face himself, that guy, who ought to hunt a hole and die. But in the long and years to come he'll find this world is out of plumb; he failed to whoop for liberty, and while he lives on earth he'll be as lonesome as the yellow dog that hangs around the city morgue. Oh, we must give until it hurts, until we've soaked our Sunday shirts, and when we've given all we own, still strive to give another bone.

The Navy Daily Prayer

In the tranquil waters of the anchorage a battleship is at rest. The morning sun mounting in a cloudless sky, sheds its golden light upon sea and ship. The ripples sparkle as they dance. The steel flanks of the great guns gleam.

It is a workaday morning. The inspection of the sailormen (all of whom are in working rig) at divisions on the upper deck is just over, and each man has been handed a card on which is printed a number of hymns, selected from "Hymns Ancient and Modern." A murmur of talk goes on at the "Stand easy." It stops suddenly.

"Toll the bell." The order comes from the commander, and is no sooner uttered than the long lines of men face aft at the right turn. A marine sentry tolls the bell. This is the summons—according to the King's Regulations—to the ship's company (those of it who belong to the Anglican faith) to morning prayers on the quarter-deck.

The band plays. The divisions each led by an officer, march smartly aft to the strain of a well-known hymn. The men form up on the port and starboard sides of the quarter-deck, with faces turned inboard. The officers line up in front. A midshipman presides at a somewhat weather-beaten harmonium which occupies a central position. A short silence ensues. Then—

"Cape off."

As the order is given every head is bared, and the padre, with a smile on his fine fresh face and with his plume perched upon his nose, appears on deck in the vestments of his office. He glides to his place beside the musical midshipman and announces the number of the hymn. One soft chord is touched and 'hundreds of voices, led by the band, break into harmony.

I cannot imagine a more picturesque or inspiring sight—a perfect day, a blue sky, a calm, soft, sighing wind, and just abaft the muzzles of the huge turret guns the padre in his white surplice, surrounded by the men, bareheaded and in working rig, all lifting up their voices in supplication to the Almighty.

The last chord has been struck, the last note sounded. Heads are bowed, and the padre's voice, mild and meli- low, steals softly over the peaceful waters.

Preserve us from the dangers of the sea and the violence of the enemy, that we may be a safeguard to our most precious sovereign.

The grace of our Lord . . . be with us evermore.

"Amen," deep and devout, from the men, and the padre is gone. "Shun! On cape, right turn, dou-

Just Folks

Is it just a job that is yours to hold. A task that offers you so much gold, just so much work that is yours to do.

With never a greater goal in view? What do you see, at your desk or loom.

Or the spot you fill in life's busy room. With a flickering lamp that burns with a sticky light as the mill wheel turns.

And the same old grind in the same old way.

With all the to-morrows like yesterday?

Is it just a job, just a task to do. So many pieces to build anew? So many figures to add, and then Home for a while and back again? Are you just a clerk in a gaudy shop. Pleas'd when a customer falls to stoop.

Finding no joy in the things you sell. Sullenly waiting the quitting bell? Are your thoughts confined to the narrow space.

And the dreariness of your present place?

Is it just a job, or a golden chance? The first grim past of a fine advance. The starting place on the road which leads.

To the better joys and the bigger deeds.

Do your thoughts go out to the days to be.

Can your eyes look over the drudgery and see in the distance the splendid glow.

Of the broader life that you, too, may know?

What is your view of your circumstance?

Is it just a job or a golden chance?

Why Not Bare Feet?

The shortage of leather may prove a blessing in disguise, and dear footgear the beginning of that blessed time when corns and bunions—the result of tight or ill-shaped boots and shoes—will be a thing of the past.

Watch sailors running about the deck and swarming into the rigging, hanging on to perilous places like monkeys. Sailors are trained to that callousness of the foot which enables them to "kick ropes" with impunity, and to walk over surfaces which would be agony to the feet used to the encasing and cramming shoes of ordinary life.

Watch, too, the street gamins, and say, if there is not a grace of movement and a happy carelessness which may be envied.

Why does the grave citizen as well as the little kiddy thankfully doff shoes and socks on the sands in the summer? Simply because the joy of running about barefooted is one of the great joys of life.

Fancy a Greek god or goddess, a Diana or Daphne, or a Venus in high-legged boots with high heels, to match! You simply can't! Yes, our climate is a good deal against the idea of barefoot walking, but experience is still a good teacher and necessity still a stern schoolmaster. If it comes to it, we shall quickly get used to it, or at least to some simple form of sandal.

And with simple footgear will come simpler dress. It will be impossible for a woman to don a Paris confection, or a man a silk hat, when the feet are bare.—Ex.

L. W. W. IN SOUTH AFRICA.

JOHANNESBURG, To-day.—At a preliminary hearing of S. P. Bunting, former Provincial Councilor, S. Hanscomb and a man named Tinker, who were arrested July 7th for complicity with the threatened uprising of the natives in South Africa, held here to-day, it was testified that Bunting presided at various meetings at which the natives were urged to organize against the Capitalists. It was also stated that a branch of the Industrial Workers of the World had been established among the natives of Durban.

NOTHING TO REPORT.

LONDON, To-day.—Haig's official Yorkshire troops carried out a successful raid this afternoon southeast of Rebecq, and captured 30 prisoners. Beyond artillery actions on both sides, in different sectors, there is nothing to report from the British front.

WAR REVIEW.

LONDON, To-day.—(By A. P.)—From the region West of Soissons, and Northwest of Chateau Thierry, American and French armies have begun a strong offensive against the Germans which possibly may have a marked influence on the future of the world war. In its initial stage the movement has been rewarded with great success and all along the 25 mile front the French and American troops have dashed in brilliant fashion across positions held by the Germans, killing, wounding or capturing thousands of the enemy and taking towns, villages and large quantities of guns and other war material. Nowhere according to last reports from the front has the enemy been able to stay the progress of their assaults, although counter attacks were resorted to on some important sectors after the first stages of surprise occasioned by the unexpected attack had worn away. To the Americans alone in the region West of Soissons came 4,000 prisoners, thirty guns and much war material. Additional large numbers of captives and further great stores of guns, ammunition and other war necessities were taken by the French. Before all the positions of the Americans and the French, their guns and machine guns cut to pieces the flesh of the enemy or his hands which tried to withstand the onslaught. The blow, probably long in its inception, is being aimed at territory vital to the Germans: territory, the capture of which, would not only mean the forced retirement of the Germans from the entire salient, extending S. E. across the occupied region from Soissons to Rheims, with Chateau Thierry its southern apex, but possibly would result in the capture of thousands of Germans operating there, many of them comprising the best soldiers of the German Emperor's army. (By A. In its initial stage the movement has been rewarded with great success and all along the 25 mile front the French and American troops have dashed in brilliant fashion across positions held by the Germans, killing, wounding or capturing thousands of the enemy and taking towns, villages and large quantities of guns and other war material. The blow, probably long in its inception, is being aimed at territory vital to the Germans: territory, the capture of which, would not only mean the forced retirement of the Germans from the entire salient, extending S. E. across the occupied region from Soissons to Rheims, with Chateau Thierry its southern apex, but possibly would result in the capture of thousands of Germans operating there, many of them comprising the best soldiers of the German Emperor's army. Six miles, apparently, was the deepest point of penetration made by the Allied troops in the first day's fighting: this was at Buzancy, South of Chateau Thierry, which they captured and passed through East and at several other points distance of from 4 to 5 miles were reached. From the original starting line at Soissons, the Americans and French came to within a mile of the city and altogether more than 20 villages fell into the hands of the Franco-American troops. Along the front of both sides of Rheims, the Entente troops continue to hold the enemy wherever they have seen fit to launch an attack. East of Rheims the French have recaptured Prunay, but south of the Marne in local fighting they have lost some further ground. The German official statement asserts that in this region success attended the German efforts. Southwest of Villers-Bretonneux, in the Amiens sector, the Australians again have smashed into the German line, this time on a front exceeding a mile in length, capturing guns and prisoners. East of Hebuterne, the British also improved their positions. The Germans are continuing the bombardments of various sectors held by the British in France and Flanders.

OPERATIONS IN THE EAST.

PARIS (Official) To-day.
Eastern Theatre.—On the Struma, patrol encounters took place, in the course of which the Greek troops captured prisoners. In Albania our advanced guards pushed forward on the Geratop ridge to Colde Lunga. Allied aviators bombed airdromes at Sudeva and Namaleroi. In the course of aerial combats one enemy plane was brought down and two were forced to land.

ITALIANS BOMB POLA.

ROME (Official) To-day.
On the whole of the front there has been moderate fighting by both armies, and the usual activity by our reconnoitering detachments. Tuesday night and Wednesday morning the military works in the fortress of Pola were bombed. Three hostile aircraft were downed.

NO GERMANS ALLOWED.

LONDON, To-day.
Germany recently asked permission of the Russian Government to send a battalion of German troops to Moscow to guard the German Embassy. The Bolshevik Government in reply declared it wouldn't permit any foreign troops to enter the capital.

EFFECT OF AIR BARRAGE.

LONDON, July 18.
(Via Reuter's Ottawa Agency.)—The Press Bureau issues a striking photograph of the damage caused by the raids of the British independent air forces on the German railway systems at Metz and Cambons. It shows exceptionally destructive burst in the engine sheds and workshops, the remains of two incinerated trains and great damage to the network of lines. A significant feature is the almost complete absence of rolling stock, thus showing that the twenty-one raids, since June 21, upon this important junction has materially reduced the enemy war traffic.

Tribute to England.

"On the French Invasion." was the subject of a sermon preached by the volunteers by the Rev. Sydney Smith in the summer of 1804. The worshippers were greatly troubled over the future of their native land, but Sydney Smith "stood for his country's honor fast" and bade his hearers be of good cheer in the noble words of the following tribute to England: "I have a boundless confidence in the English character; I believe that they have more real religion, more probability, more knowledge, and more genuine worth than exists in the whole world. Besides they are the guardians of pure Christianity, and from this prostitute nation of merchants (as they are in derision called), I believe more heroes will spring up in the hour of danger than all the military nations of ancient and modern Europe have ever produced. Into the time any doubt of the authorship of the outrages, we cast ourselves, and wait in humble patience the result. First we ask for victory; but if that cannot be, we have only one other prayer—we implore for death."

"Lusitania"

(From the Philadelphia Public Ledger.)

When the spirit of battle rattle expression, only some cogent word or brief phrase will satisfy it. "Remember the Maine!" was the cry that inspired our men in the Spanish War. Back of it there was doubtless some remembrance of the wrongs of Cuba; but it was a treacherous attack on an American warship in time of peace that moved them most, nor had they at the time any doubt of the authorship of the outrages. The Americans who went into the fight at Hamel with the Australians found a watchword of the justice of which is unquestionable. There is no doubt who sank the Lusitania, and that name rose to their lips as by instinct and nerved them as they rushed forward with fixed bayonets to a righteous vengeance. From a purely historical point of view, no doubt it is as easy to make too much of the great crime committed off the coast of Ireland on an afternoon in May. Yet the instinct which makes "Lusitania!" a rallying cry is none the less sound. For the lives sacrificed when that fine ship went down are in truth a conspicuous and fitting symbol of the kind of conflict to which Germany forced the world. We are fighting for other things than to avenge our dead, but it is the memory of them that most stirs the heart.

The Perfect Spy.

Among the papers found on a German spy captured recently was an interesting list of the qualifications necessary for a good spy.

"The principal gift of a German spy," we are told, "must be secrecy. He must observe with care and have a good memory to enable him to retain the dates and particulars of events. He must be exact, patient, and must not betray anxiety or hurry in procuring information. He must destroy all writings and never throw them into the waste-paper basket, not even torn into little pieces. It is advisable that he should use a conventional language, which is certainly preferable to ciphers, which give rise to suspicions and mistakes.

"The German spy must have a good general education; he must know languages, but sometimes pretend not to know them. He should confine himself to ascertaining facts rather than opinions. For secret conversation solitary places are to be preferred, avoiding pavements and restaurants, especially those at the railway stations.

Among the instructions given by the German Government to its spies, it is stated that English officers, both of the Army and Navy, are to be regarded as "incorruptible."

"Bipp."

Do you know what Bipp means? It is formed from the words: bismuth, iodoforn, and paraffin paste, which, perhaps, does not make you very much the wiser!

Many of our wounded men are acquainted with Bipp and its wonderful curative effects. It was discovered by the famous surgeon, Mr. Rutherford Morrison, and it is one of the most important relievers of suffering that the war has produced. By this process the infected portion is excised, a thorough drenching of pure spirit is given, and the wound surface is sewn up again after a thin layer of Bipp has been applied.

The preparation acts so quickly and so effectively that it almost has the effect of a charm. One extraordinary cure has just been recorded in a London military hospital. A bit of shell had entered a soldier's chest and to his way cruelly through his body. The track of the missile was excised, and Bipp was applied. The cure was absolute.

Published by Authority.

On recommendation of the Minister of Shipping and under the provisions of the War Measures Act, 1914, and Acts in amendment thereof, His Excellency the Governor in Council has been pleased to approve the following regulations respecting the sale of household (Soft) Coal.

W. W. HALFYARD,
Colonial Secretary,
Colonial Secretary's Department,
18th July, 1918.

- (1) Because of the present serious condition in the Coal producing centres and the limited stocks held here, it is hereby ordered that no Coal Vendor in the City of St. John's shall sell or deliver to any person more than One-half Ton (1120 lbs.) of Soft Coal per fortnight until further notice, without a written order from the Department of Shipping.
- (2) Such order may in the discretion of the Department of Shipping be given to any person who, being a householder, shall satisfy the Department that the allowance herein provided is insufficient for his needs, or to any owner of a factory or industrial plant who shall satisfy it that the said allowance is insufficient to carry on his ordinary trade or business. Any such order may be revoked, cancelled or varied from time to time as the Department of Shipping may determine.
- (3) Any person receiving a supply of Coal under these Regulations shall not transfer it or any part thereof to any other person.
- (4) Any person obtaining or attempting to obtain a larger supply of Coal than he is entitled to under these Regulations shall be guilty of a breach of the same.
- (5) Every Coal Vendor shall furnish on Monday morning of each week to the Department of Shipping a full list duly certified by him in writing of the names and addresses of all persons to whom he has sold or delivered Coal during the previous week, and the quantity sold or delivered.

(6) Every Carter of Coal shall be supplied by the Vendor with a delivery note for each lot of Coal stating the name and address of the person to whom the Coal is to be delivered. No Carter shall deliver Coal to any person other than the person named on his delivery note.

(7) No person having a supply of Coal on hand or in stock shall be entitled to or shall purchase or obtain a further supply until his stock is less than one quarter of a ton.

(8) The penalty for a breach of any of these Regulations shall not exceed $500.00, with or without imprisonment not exceeding Three months, and may be imposed and recovered upon summary conviction before a Stipendiary Magistrate or a Justice of the Peace in the name of the Minister of Shipping.

(9) The Minister of Shipping may from time to time suspend the operation of these Regulations or any of them and for such periods as he may think fit by notice in two daily papers, and may from time to time revive and bring the same again into force by notice in the manner hereinbefore set out.

(10) During the suspension of any regulation as provided in Section 9, the Department of Shipping may permit any Coal Dealer to sell or deliver, or any person to receive, a quantity of Soft Coal not exceeding ten tons, and if such person shall satisfy the Department of Shipping that ten tons is insufficient for his needs the Department may, by written order to that effect, allow such persons to receive a larger quantity.

(11) The provision of Chapter 1 of Consolidated Statutes (2nd Series) relating to the construction of Statutes shall so far as the same are applicable apply to these Regulations. Jly18, 21

Public Notice!
Regarding Household Coal.

The Minister of Shipping requests those able and desirous of laying in their winter supply of coal to do so at once as stocks are now sufficiently large to permit the removal for a limited period of the present restrictions of half ton per fortnight.

Accordingly it is ordered under the powers conferred upon the Minister of Shipping by clause 9 of the Coal Order dated 18th July, 1918, that clause 1 of that order be suspended until further notice, and that the following clause be substituted for same:—

"No Coal Vendor in the City of St. John's shall sell or deliver to any person more than ten (10) tons of soft coal until further notice without a written order from the Department of the Minister of Shipping."

In all other respects the coal order of the 18th July, 1918, made under the War Measures Act, 1914, shall remain in force.

It is hoped that the Public will stock as much coal as is possible under existing circumstances and thus assist the Department in dealing with the coal problem.

By Order of the Minister of Shipping,
july19, 11

Ethie Brings Good Fishing Reports,

FROM THE STRAITS.
(Western Star.)
Fishermen are doing what they like with cod along the North West Coast, such is the report brought here by the s.s. Ethie, Capt. Ed. English, which ship reached Curling Thursday evening from the Straits of Belle Isle. The Ethie made the trip to Battle Hr. and return calling at the various ports; she experienced considerable fog and east wind in the Straits.
At Henley two traps had 10 and 15 qts. cod each on Monday, and one trap on Saturday had 25 qts.
Very little doing at Chateau, while at Pleasure Hr. and Chimney Tickle cod seemed to be just striking in.
At West St. Modest there was some cod, but not very plentiful, boats get from two to ten qts. a day. The day the Ethie was there Sam and Bob Winsor's two boats loaded, and they were doing that daily.
At Lance au Loup there is plenty of cod, but it won't trawl well.
Mr. Short, of the schr. Cave, is getting all the fish he can attend to at Forteau with trap.
At Battle Hr. cod had not struck in

When the Ethie was there, but salmon were plentiful.
At Red Bay daily catches range from five to ten qts. while the biggest catch amounted to twenty qts.
Grant, at Blanc Sablon, had 100 qts. the day the Ethie was there, the fish had then slackened off somewhat, and the weather was bad.
At Flower's Cove there was an abundance of cod, but salt was scarce. There was also plenty of cod at Daniel's Hr.
At Currant Island there was not much doing with cod.
There had been good cod fishing at Brig Bay, but was slackened some the day the Ethie was at that port.
At both Old and New Ferrole cod-fish were very plentiful.
At Port au Choix and also at Cow Head there was a scarcity of salt, but there were lots of cod going.
With the Rod.
J. A. Paddon, manager of the St. John's branch of the Bank of Montreal, secured eleven salmon and two grise, the result of a week's fishing at Grand River, Codroy. The heaviest fish weighed 15 pounds. Mr. Paddon returned to St. John's yesterday.—Western Star.

Executive Members as Government Contractors

Dear Sir,—The Herald editor informed the public last evening that Hon. W. J. Ellis had been awarded the contract for a new addition to the Asylum. Mr. Ellis' contract figure being $3,000 under that of Mr. E. Kennedy. Pretty close figuring that!
It strikes me that Hon. Mr. Ellis has done very well for himself out of the National (?) Government, but the point I wish to ask the Herald editor is this, does he think it right for members of the Executive to be suppliers of labor and material to the Government.
Does the Herald editor think that we can have an independent Parliament when such practices prevail?
Awaiting Mr. McGrath's opinion on these points, and with thanks for space,
Yours,
July 18th, 1918. M. H. A.

Help to Win the War by Using Less Flour

Oaten Bread Recipe:

TAKE
1 sifter full of Ogilvie's "STANDARD" Flour and 1 sifter full of Ogilvie's ROLLED OATS
THEN
Scald the Rolled Oats with 2 cupfuls of boiling water. Make sponge with 1/2 yeast cake and one cup of Ogilvie's "Standard" Flour; then add the Rolled Oats—after allowing sufficient time for them to cool.
ADD
1 tablespoonful of Butter,
2 teaspoonfuls of Salt,
1 1/2 tablespoonfuls of Sugar.
Knead well, adding Ogilvie's "STANDARD" as required to give it the proper texture before proceeding to bake.

The above recipe will make a Wholesome and Delicious Bread.

Coal Regulations Temporarily Suspended.

The coal committee have again temporarily suspended the coal regulations of only allowing one half ton of coal per fortnight and will permit coal dealers to sell not more than ten tons of soft coal to any person without a written order from the Department of the Minister of shipping.

It is hoped that those who can will make an effort to get in as much coal as they require for the winter so as the less fortunate people can be assured of their supply during the long fall and winter months.

The Home Office and the Huns.

Our failure to deal in an energetic and statesmanlike manner with the enemy alien question constitutes a danger to the State in more ways than one. The danger of allowing enemy subjects to live in prohibited areas simply because the people in question have not been discovered to that of the "overt act" is, of course, plain to everyone but a Home Office official. But there is another aspect of Hun dodging which is, in its way, even more important.

The whole attitude of our rulers towards alien enemies, enemy alien banks, prisoners of war, and so forth, is distinctly antagonistic to that of the nation, and the result is a loss of that confidence without which no Government can carry on. The permanent officials by whose advice Ministers allow themselves to be swayed care nothing for the public or what it thinks, but Ministers cannot afford to adopt this Olympian pose. They are the servants of the people, and to disregard the intense and growing irritation which results from a failure to deal with our enemies in a common sense fashion is a very serious blunder.

If we look back, we find that practically every step in the right direction has been taken as the result of popular pressure. It may suit the official apologists to represent the agitation as "Press manufactured" and "Press organized." It is nothing of the kind. It is the expression, frequently through the Press, of a nation's anxiety and growing anger, and though we believe that official stupidity and failure to realize facts is at the bottom of the trouble, there are many who are being driven into accepting a less pleasant explanation.

The nation is satisfied—and it has abundant evidence to back its belief—that our uninterred Huns constitute a grave danger to the State. It is to put it mildly, growing more and more unympathetic to those Ministers who persist in taking an opposite view. We have suffered too much in this war to allow us to treat this aspect of it lightly.—Daily Mail.

Will Finland Declare War.

What has Finland to gain by declaring war, as rumor says she will, against the Allies? Absolutely nothing. If, however, the question be asked as to what Germany stands to gain thereby, the answer is definite.

For one thing, the access to Russia by way of Sweden would be cut off and the opportunity to exert an influence over the Russian chaos would be correspondingly lessened. The former Allied emissaries at Petrograd or Moscow just at present, the better Berlin will be pleased.

Another and more important point, is that such a declaration of war might give Germany a sea base on the northern coast at the head of the Murmansk railway. The port which the Kaiser covets is now occupied by a small Allied force for the protection of the supplies landed there for Russia.

The presence of this force, in fact, is the excuse Finland is giving for getting on her dignity. She has already demanded its withdrawal and has been told in diplomatic language that there is "nothing doing" unless she can give satisfactory guarantees that the supplies would not find their way to Germany.

As this Allied force can be supported from the sea, the job of turning it out may easily prove tedious. But the attitude of Finland in the matter, throws a bright light on the real character of her "independence."—Vancouver Daily Sun.

War Shipping Marvels.

Steamers built on the Great Lakes are to carry to the Atlantic fabricated material sufficient to increase their length by thirty-six feet after passing through the Welland Canal. That plan has been adopted so that large steamers can be built on the great lakes for ocean service. Measuring 4,200 tons in size when they leave the yard at Great Lake ports, the vessels will go into service on the Atlantic measuring 6,300 tons. The lake yards are to complete the ships to a length of 260 feet. At the Welland Canal they will be cut in two and at the Atlantic coast a new section, 96 feet long, will be inserted in their middle, giving them an ocean-going length of 356 feet. Each vessel is to carry its own fabricated material for the additional 96 feet.

A German helmet brought $100,000 when it was auctioned off at the Liberty Loan meeting on the steps of the Custom House, New York. Charles E. Hall, an American ambulance driver who was at the battle of Verdun told of German atrocities. He presented the German helmet which he brought to America with him, having found it one of the Hilltops about Verdun during the 1917 battle. Thos. E. Rush, Surveyor, bid $30,000, but his bid was more than tripled by the Surveyors of Customs Welfare Association which won the helmet with a $100,000 subscription to the Third Liberty Loan.

Late Importations
American Floor Cloths,

2 yards wide,
 CONGOLEUM and other makes, $1.35 yard.
 For your advice, if not for your comfort, we may say, the price of Congoleum will be much higher shortly.

Table Oil Cloths,
 Large variety of patterns, 45c. yard.

Oil Cloth Shelving,
 12 inches wide, nice patterns, 13c. yard.

Stair Oil Cloths,

This is a lot of seconds, but they are not bad, and we are glad to get them, as it is very difficult to obtain Stair Oil Cloths at present. Prices 20c. and 22c. yard.

Grey Wool,

Soft Canadian make, five knots to the pound, 60c. knot.

Khaki Wool,

Five knots to pound, 50c. knot.
 The Khaki Wool is not as soft as the Grey. Prices are high to-day, but you will find on the whole by comparison that our prices are low.

HOWEVER, TO GET LOWER PRICES

We Shall All Have to Buy

Victory Bonds

and keep on buying them until at last our soldiers shall win the victory for us, and then prices will be easier.
