PROCLAMATION.

By His Excellency Sir William Lammond Allardyce, Knight Commander of the Most Distinguished Order of St. John Michael and Saint George, Governor and Commander-in-Chief in and over the Colony of Newfoundland.

Whereas it is desirable that occasion should be afforded the people of this Colony to render thanks to Almighty God for the mercies He has been pleased to bestow upon this Colony during the past year, and to rejoice because of our National Blessings:

And Whereas Sunday, the Fifteenth day of November next, would be an appropriate occasion for the said Thanksgiving;

I do, therefore, by this my Proclamation, order and direct that Sunday, the Fifteenth day of November, next; shall be observed, throughout this Colony, as a Day of Thanksgiving, as aforesaid.

And I do further order and direct that Wednesday, the Eleventh day of November, next, being Armistice Day, shall be set apart and observed, throughout the Colony, as a Day of Rejoicing and a Public and Bank Holiday, of which all persons concerned are hereby required to take due notice and govern themselves accordingly.

Given under my Hand and Seal, at the Government House, St. John's, this 22nd day of September, A.D. 1925. By His Excellency's Command. J. R. BENNETT, Colonial Secretary. sept25.29.oct15.14.24.27.nov4.10

"Spring Cleaning"

HARKINS PLAYERS SCORE IN A CLEVER PLAY.

The manner in which the Harkins Players have won the theatre-going public of the city is sufficient testimony to the artistic skill of the performers, the high standard of the plays produced, and the keen insight of the management in gauging to a nicety the dramatic tastes of a St. John's audience.

"Spring Cleaning," performed last night was a type of play not often seen here, and seldom if ever has it been excelled in the manner of its presentation or in the way in which it captured the crowd, keeping everyone in eager anticipation by the intricacy of the tangle, the writer gives no hint of the outcome until the very end, full of sensational situations.

The wife of a writer, Richard Soanes—a very excellent fellow, but somewhat too matter of fact to make her an ideal husband—seeks in the friendship of an easy going lot of friends that warmth of affection which she lacks at home.

The proposed new church at Channel is to be a replica of Saint Mark's Church, Halifax, and when completed will be one of the finest churches in Newfoundland.

Ecclesiastical Visit to Channel

The Lord Bishop of Newfoundland lays the Foundation Stone of the new Church of Saint James at Channel.

Thursday, September 24th, will be a day long to be remembered by the members of the Church in Channel. On that day the Lord Bishop of the diocese performed the ceremony of laying the corner stone of the splendid new building which the Rector, the Rev. H. J. Read, R.D., and his congregation are planning to erect.

The service took place at 2.30 in the afternoon and was attended by a vast congregation. The Rector took the opening part of the service, and the Bishop, who was attended by the Rev. G. K. Malmgren of Bonaville Bay as Chaplain, then proceeded with the simple yet edifying ceremonies with which the Church surrounds such functions.

The blessing proved most propitious and a blast of sunshine at the moment of the blessing of the stone seemed to express the gladness in the hearts of the people at the successful beginning of their great undertaking.

In the evening a large congregation assembled in the old church to take part in the evening prayers of the church and to hear their Father in God speak to them again. This time he spoke to them as to the real meaning of a church in a community and showed them how the worship within the walls was to be expressed in their daily life.

The proposed new church at Channel is to be a replica of Saint Mark's Church, Halifax, and when completed will be one of the finest churches in Newfoundland. Mr. Read is to be congratulated upon this crowning monument of 27 years' work in the parish and the splendid backing which his congregation is giving him in the effort.

His Grace the Archbishop at St. Francis Church

On Sunday, 27th inst., the parish of St. Francis (St. John's East), was in fête in honour of his Grace's visit for the purpose of administering the Sacrament of Confirmation. Several arches had been erected for the occasion, each artistically bedecked with a liberal supply of bunting and kindly words of welcome and loyalty.

As his Grace entered the beautiful church, the splendid organ pealing forth the strains of the Pope's March, the throng (the church being filled to capacity) stood in respectful reverence as the distinguished visitor approached the sanctuary. Within a few minutes of his arrival the Archbishop vested in cope and mitre, and addressed the large congregation. As is usual he spoke very beautifully and eloquently, explaining in chaste diction the meaning and effects of the Sacrament of Confirmation. He referred very fittingly to the loyalty and devotion and faith of the people, and tendered kindly words of sympathy in connection with the fishery failures of the past few years in the parish.

The matter did not even go to the vote, for the sense of the congress was so strong against such a scheme being forced upon them that the General Council was instructed to consult with the executives of all affiliated unions, to discuss the matter in all its bearings and then present its conclusions to a special congress of the executives.

The debate was initiated by Mr. Floyd (Vehicle Builders, Manchester), who asserted that the time was ripe for the council to make such alterations to their rules as would regularize the position.

The matter did not even go to the vote, for the sense of the congress was so strong against such a scheme being forced upon them that the General Council was instructed to consult with the executives of all affiliated unions, to discuss the matter in all its bearings and then present its conclusions to a special congress of the executives.

The decision was not arrived at without some heated discussion, during which Emperor Cook, who had tried one or two of his well-known firebrand tactics, was told by Mr. J. H. Thomas, M.P. (political secretary of the National Union of Railwaymen), not to think that he was the only man who knew what was best for the world.

Emperor Cook's Bad Day

BIG STRIKE POLICY SHELVED—MR. J. H. THOMAS'S TRUNCE.

Scarborough, Sept. 3. — Emperor Cook (the Communist secretary of the Miners' Federation), who with his scheme for a great industrial alliance seeks to dominate the British industrial world, met with a serious reverse to-day when the Trades Union Congress resumed its deliberations under the presidency of Mr. A. B. Swales.

The congress has clearly expressed its dislike of any scheme, no matter in what form it is presented, which has for its object the placing of the destinies of 5,000,000 workers in the hands of a dictator.

A composite resolution from the National Union of Vehicle Builders and the National Brass and Metal Mechanics proposed that the time is ripe for definite powers to be given to the General Council of the congress to impose a levy on all affiliated members and to call for a stoppage of work by an affiliated organization, or part thereof, to assist in union defending a vital trade union principle.

FOOD SUPPLY IN STRIKES.

The resolution also proposed that the council should have powers to arrange with the Co-operative Wholesale Society to make provision for the distribution of food and other supplies in the event of a strike or action calling for a strike.

Finally the resolution proposed that the congress should call on all organizations to make such alterations to their rules as would regularize the position.

The matter did not even go to the vote, for the sense of the congress was so strong against such a scheme being forced upon them that the General Council was instructed to consult with the executives of all affiliated unions, to discuss the matter in all its bearings and then present its conclusions to a special congress of the executives.

The decision was not arrived at without some heated discussion, during which Emperor Cook, who had tried one or two of his well-known firebrand tactics, was told by Mr. J. H. Thomas, M.P. (political secretary of the National Union of Railwaymen), not to think that he was the only man who knew what was best for the world.

Plain Speaking at Last

ABOUT THE CINEMA CAMERA MENACE.

"In the old days when the ballad was at its zenith, Fletcher of Saltoun said that he knew of a very wise man who believed it a man were permitted to make all the ballads he need not care who should make the laws of a nation. Apply that saying to the films!"

"Let the Government realize the subtle influence of the pictures upon the impulsive receptive minds of those who sit and look at them. If the State ignores the cinema it will only do so at its peril."—The Daily Telegraph.

Public opinion has been keenly alive to the cinema film menace, and we welcome the letter sent to the Premier asking for a Committee of Inquiry. Important as the question is from the point of view of industry, it is even more vital as a moral force. The famous men and women who sign the letter state:—

"Important as is the commercial aspect of this problem, high national and patriotic interest are involved. No one who has followed the development of this new form of popular entertainment can be in any doubt as to the immense importance of films as a subtle means of propaganda, none the less powerful because it is indirect. Films have an atmosphere of their own."

"The bulk of films shown in this country have, to say the least of it, a non-British atmosphere. These films are shown in our Dominions, Colonies, and Dependencies, and in all the countries of the world outside the British Commonwealth of nations. Many of them are inferior productions, neither healthy nor patriotic in tone, while the psychological influences which they convey may have far-reaching consequences."

"What is the explanation of this state of things, which we venture to describe as deplorable? It is precisely because there is as yet no authoritative reply to this question that we are venturing to address you and to make a public appeal to the Prime Minister to institute an inquiry and, at the same time, permit a judgment to be formed as to the measures which should be taken to establish a film industry in this country on a sound foundation."

"In making this appeal for an authoritative inquiry, we purposely refrain from discussing the many explanations and suggestions which have been canvassed; but, in our judgment, the very variety of these suggestions supplies an unanswerable argument for an impartial examination of the whole of the facts affecting the present state and future of the film industry in this country."

"Seeing how much films matter, socially and commercially, and have been maturing for at least the last fifteen years, this position is certainly serious, and if a Government inquiry will set people thinking seriously about it, we all assure you that we have that inquiry with all speed," says the Manchester Guardian.

"But it is worth pointing out that one of the things which have contributed to the gravity of the position in regard to British film-producing has been for long enough the very slight interest taken in the cinema by influential sections of the public. For a good many years it has been our own custom to treat the cinema as something which led to be seriously considered and criticized, and this habit of serious attention has latterly become more general in the press."

"No doubt inquiry will show that all the craft and subtlety of business monopolists have been used to freeze British films out of the market," asserts the Manchester Guardian. "But Rockefeller himself could not confine us to American music, American books, or American pictures, schemed as ever so wisely."

Hindoo Ascetic Alive

LONDON, Sept. 24.—The Evening News correspondent at Allahabad, British India, chronicled a peculiar case in which two Hindoos were charged with aiding a Hindoo ascetic to commit suicide by refilling a grave into which he had voluntarily descended. The accused men admitted their part in the affair, but said they were disciples of the Ascetic and were bound to obey his instructions. It was also pleaded in their defence that the holy man had not committed suicide, but merely performed the religious rite of "samadhi"—that of being buried alive while in a state of suspended animation.

The court accepted the defence and the two men were acquitted.

The Absent Minded

THE MAN WHO WANTED WAKEN-ING UP.

Three times have I thrown my pipe in the fire and stuck the match between my teeth.

One night when I should have been going to a dance I went upstairs to change, but I got into bed and went to sleep instead. Once, when I came home rather late, I hung my hat on the gas-bracket and burnt the hat-peg, but my life's companion would not believe that it was pure absent-mindedness.

Even Sir Isaac Newton was guilty of absent-mindedness. In a moment of abstraction he used one of his sweet-heart's fingers instead of his own to ram the tobacco in his pipe. But why the maiden allowed him to do such a thing is one of Cupid's secrets.

Then there was a well-known poet who was preparing for a journey and could not find his watch. He ransacked the room, turned out the drawers and boxes, and swore his wife had moved it.

(Had it happened in America she would have had sufficient grounds for a divorce.)

Finally, and almost in despair, he glanced at the watch safely strapped on his wrist, and exclaimed: "The just time for another look before the train time." What his wife said afterwards will be given in his next poem—Laurid Women.

The Limit. Holiday makers are so busy that they frequently fall victims to absent-mindedness. A bathing superintendent recently complained that among the things left in the tents were six sets of false teeth. The unfortunate who had left these would quickly realize it when they attacked the landlady's chops—those on the menu, I mean. Pipes, buttons, powder-puffs, and a pair of braces were other things among his salvage. The man who left his braces must have been unstrung.

Perhaps the palm for absent-mindedness goes to a married man, reputed to be a Yorkshireman. On going to bed one night he turned to his wife, and pulling his lips blew a well-directed blast in her astonished face. Then he suddenly turned over to kiss the candle good-night.

Hoping His Cold May Last Forever. AGRAM, Croatia.—Two murderers, Swidario and Sever, whose execution was set for Monday morning, were taken from their cells to the scaffold. They were standing under the gallows within the shadow of the rope, and apparently resigned to their fate, when the warden of the prison informed them that the husband had just telegraphed that he had caught a cold and would be unable to do the job until Tuesday morning.

A Giant Mother of Airplanes

DRIBBLE TO ACT AS A HANGER FOR FLEET OF SMALLER CRAFT.

One of the most daring ideas in aeronautics recently was proposed in England. It is that a dirigible shall be built—a dirigible far larger than our own Shenandoah—to carry a small fleet of airplanes. At least three-fourths of the great ship is to be used for hangars.

The executive officer of the dirigible receives a radio message, asking for a plane to call at some outlying post or town. A plane is wheeled out into the central runway until it reaches the release chamber, and with a slight pause for adjustment of engine and wings, she drops off. Returning, the plane lands on the broad, flat top deck of the dirigible, is received by the elevator and restored to the hangar deck, where it is suitably overhauled.

ANGRY EMPEROR. "Notwithstanding what Cook says, the miners have not had the opportunity," was a remark by Mr. Thomas which brought forth a number of protests and an angry "Look after yourself!" from the Emperor.

Quite unperturbed, Mr. Thomas added that he agreed that the General Council should be endowed with all necessary power, but common sense was also sometimes necessary.

He feared that the resolution would eventually lead to disintegration among them.

Turning to where Emperor Cook was sitting, he said: "Don't make the mistake of assuming that you are the best judge of what the world requires"—a shaft which delighted the congress.

Mr. C. R. Clynes, M.P., drove home Mr. Thomas's point. "With great respect for Mr. Cook," he said, "I do not hesitate to tell him that a great deal of what he has said has nothing to do

Wedding Bells

BLYDE—BAIRD.
A very pretty wedding was solemnized at the R.C. Cathedral on Tuesday, September 22nd, by the Rev. Mons. McDermott, when Beatrice May Blyde was united in the holy bonds of matrimony to Mr. John Baird, of the firm of Cashin & Co.

The bride looked charming in a dress of brown crepe de chene, with hat to match, and was attended by Mrs. Philip Blyde, who wore a dress of brown canton crepe. Mr. Philip Blyde performed the duties of best man.

After the ceremony the wedding party motored around Quidi Vid Lake, and then to the home of the Bride's parents, where a sumptuous repast was partaken of. The happy couple received many costly and useful presents. We wish Mr. and Mrs. Baird many years of wedded happiness.

Some say you'll try a tin of B.C. Soap but why not try it now? Just a little rub and it's ready for your pipe.

"The Great Divide" a Film With a Message

LARGE AUDIENCES LAUD SCREEN MASTERPIECE AT NICKEL.

There have been few pictures which have brought so great a message as that which is presented on the screen at the Nickel Theatre, where the Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer production, "The Great Divide," is being shown.

How three men gamble for a girl, with one ultimately coming out victorious, how she is then bought for a string of gold nuggets and how she struggles to regain her freedom by getting possession of the nuggets is told in a forceful way.

The cast is full of interesting names and the performances are all excellent, though perhaps the two which stand out the most are those of Alice Terry, who plays Ruth Jordan, and Conway Tearle, cast as Stephen Ghent. These are the most important parts and the tremendous mental conflict between them is unlike anything that has been witnessed on the screen before.

Wallace Berry as Duke and George Cooper as Sherry are likable heavies, and ZaSu Pitts as Polly brings out a pessimistic part prominently forward, which adds much comedy. William Orlandson as Lon is ludicrously funny while Huntley Gordon, as Philip Jordan, and Alan Forrest as Dr. Winthrop Newbury, have roles of importance which have been justifiably entrusted to them.

Reginald Barker directed the production with a fine hand, and as his aid chose Percy Halliburton to photograph it. Mr. Hibborn did a great job. There has never been a screen offering before with more beautiful photography or more effective lighting than in "The Great Divide."

A Wonderful Story

"A GIRL OF THE LUMBERLOST."
Majestic Patrons Acclaim Last Night's Bill the Season's Best.
The audience at the Majestic Theatre last night acclaim "A Girl of the Lumberlost" which was the feature as the season's best photoplay and all spoke very highly of the excellence of the screening of the masterpiece.

It tells of how the husband sank lower and lower into the treacherous marsh. Inch by inch the fateful bog of the Lumberlost was sucking him down while his wife—like a mad thing—was clawing at the bank in a futile effort to hold back the inevitable! It was not until years afterwards that she learned that Fate had taken a hand to save her from a greater unhappiness and, in the meantime, hate and bitterness filled her heart—a hate and bitterness that nearly wrecked the life of her daughter!

Here is a situation jam-packed with tremendous drama, a situation that is far-reaching in its results, a situation that will stand you on your toes with the tenseness of its realism—and it is only one of many big situations in this vividly human story of real people.

The vivid story of a girl's efforts to secure an education and of a mother's mistaken infatuation for the memory of a worthless man, who forgetful of his bride of a few months, met a horrible death in the quagmire of a swamp as he hurried over an unfamiliar path in an effort to hasten home from a clandestine meeting with another woman.

A wonderful bit of acting is done in this by Arthur Currier, the father in the story. Emily Fitzroy brings to the role of the mother a wonderful understanding that makes the character of gripping sympathy to the audience. To-night is the last chance to see "A Girl of the Lumberlost."

Justice and Equal Rights

SAYS FORMER LORD CHANCELLOR

Montreal.—(Canadian Press)—"To me the British Empire does not merely mean a record of the heroism of our soldiers, or even the undefeated dominion of our fleet; these are on record on the imperishable pages of history. But the flag to me represents something more than that. My feeling is that wherever the flag shall fly in the far corners of the farthest land, beyond the sunset it is a symbol of justice and equal rights for all men, of all classes and all creeds, without regard to wealth or birth."
In these terms Lord Buckmaster, former Lord Chancellor of Great Britain, and present member of the Judicial Committee of the Imperial Privy Council, summed up his impression of the function of the British Empire. Lord Buckmaster was addressing a large and distinguished gathering of the local Bench and Bar, concluding his visit to Canada whence he came to be present at the recent sessions of the Canadian Bar Association in Winnipeg.

Government Decides to Deport 50 "Red" Leaders in Britain

OUTCRY OF PRESS AND PUBLIC FORCES ACTION.

LONDON, Sept. 23.—(A.P.)—The persistent outcry of a section of the press and the public for stringent measures against Communist agitators, who, allegedly, long have been stirring up unrest among the British workers and trying to sow a mutinous spirit in the army and navy, seems to have borne fruit and induced the Government to take steps in the direction demanded.

The offenders have been very numerous and it is reported that a general round up of them will take place in a few days. It is said the Government already has decided to deport 50 foreign Reds, allegedly involved in a mischievous propaganda.

As an outgrowth of several conferences between the Home Office officials and the chiefs at Scotland Yard, orders have been given for an energetic campaign to remove the offenders, many of whom are foreigners. The police in the big provincial cities have been called upon to co-operate with the Scotland Yard men. The eyes of the police are to be focussed on "Reds" of British nationality, who are asserted to be working for pay in the interests of the Bolsheviks.

Education's Debt

Boston Globe: No college education is entirely a private investment. A college or university, whether it be a State or a privately endowed institution, which is untaxed, receives subsidies. A tuition fee does not defray the cost of educating a boy or girl; the public helps pay the traffic, and is entitled to some return. No college graduate has the moral right to use his training solely for his own selfish purposes. The recipient of such an advantage is duty bound to give some thought and energy to the advancement of the general welfare.

Toronto Woman Saves Party by Day of Paddling

MRS. W. E. CORK, BABY AND GIRL AT LAKE'S MERCY 27 HOURS.

Taken to Hospital—Three Will Recover Despite Their Terrifying Experience.

TORONTO, Sept. 23.—Missing since Monday afternoon when they set out in a canoe for a short paddle along the shore at Mimico, Mrs. W. E. Cork, 25 years old, her 22-months-old baby girl and 12-year-old Kathleen Conroy, conquered the turbulent waters of Lake Ontario last night, when after being tossed about in a wide area of the lake, cold, hungry and almost exhausted for more than 27 hours, they were snatched from death by the members of the Toronto Life-Saving Crew, culminating a search which enlisted the efforts of some of the finest speed boats in Toronto and adjacent points, a Dominion Government aeroplane and several radio stations. The woman and two children were picked up from their frail canoe at a point given as about eighteen miles southwest of Toronto Island and in the direction of Hamilton. The small party were clothed only in summer garments and were suffering severely from their long exposure.

Throughout the long night, when the Lake was very heavy and threatening to upset them at any moment, Mrs. Cork paddled with all her energy in the hope of making shore at some point, but without success. Several times they sighted the shore lights of St. Catharines and Port Dalhousie, but they were victims to the current and were forced to drift at the mercy of wind and waves. When reached by the life-saving crew in command of Patrol Officer Robinson, Mrs. Cork was still paddling in an exhausted condition, her baby was laughing and cooing, unconscious of its danger and Kathleen Conroy was bordering on collapse. Despite their terrifying experience the three are declared by the authorities at the General Hospital where they are confined, to be suffering from no serious effects and will soon recover.

All Hope Abandoned.

Recovering from her delirium into which she lapsed after being rescued, Mrs. Cork told the Life-Saving Crew of her experience and declared that she had given up all hope of being saved. When the three pushed out into the lake a Mimico opposite Mrs. Cork's summer home there was a heavy swell running. She had intended paddling only a short distance and for a time they made progress unconsciously, only to realize in a short while that a strong off-shore breeze had sprung up and was driving them out into the lake. She piled the mad die with all her strength in an effort to reach shore, but without success. Soon they were out in the middle of the lake and their efforts were confined to keeping the frail craft afloat. The sea was heavy and Mrs. Cork directed the canoe across the waves to keep it from capsizing. During the night they drifted off the shore of Port Dalhousie, but the heavy sea prevented all attempts at making a landing. Then St. Catharines lights came into view with no better fortune. Near Hamilton the wind changed and the canoe was blown back across the lake in the direction of Toronto. When about eighteen miles from the city the canoe was sighted by the life-saving crew and the rescue was effected after experienced water men had voiced the opinion that the run on the lake during the night had been of such a nature that the missing party had "not a chance of being found alive on the water."

ROMANCE, THRILLS, ACTION, COMEDY, DRAMA, ADVENTURE
THE SUPER SPECIAL YOU'VE WAITED FOR. HERE IT IS!

He hurled the denunciation at this woman of the Lumberlost who, for years, had fostered her child on hate and revenge in place of love and understanding. But it was another woman who finally brought the mother to her senses! It was another woman who told her the truth about the dead husband she sorrowed for and turned the devotion she held for his memory to the daughter who deserved it!

All the simplicity, all the drama, all the pathos, all the spirit of the outdoors with which Gene Stratton-Porter's novel is so richly endowed has been transferred to the screen in a manner that will make you love every second of it.

A cast of eminent artists, including such well-known names as Gloria Grey, Emily Fitzroy, Raymond McKee, Cullen Landis, Gertrude Olmsted, Virginia True Boardman, Ruth Stonehouse and many others, has made every character a real human being!

the State Department, on Friday, cabled the American Civil Liberties Union that he would follow the advice of lawyers, "also your public opinion," as to the advisability of making a legal test case of his debarment. The union recently informed him that it would furnish legal aid if he desired to fight his case in the courts.

Saklatvala also said he had mailed "full case of documents and official reports of speeches" to the Union. He asserted that they show the falsity of private reports used by the United States government in arriving at its conclusion to forbid him to attend the Inter-Parliamentary Union at Washington. He charged that the State Department's action was "doing serious damage to my political career, forcibly preventing my legitimate presence at an important world conference."

Great Statesmen Coming to Canada

Four Hundred Delegates Will Attend Inter-Parliamentary Union.

OTTAWA, Sept. 23.—The meeting here on Oct. 13 of the Inter-Parliamentary Union will bring to Canada a most distinguished body. There will be coming here from Europe and Asia 400 delegates representing 39 nations. Among them are many of the most prominent statesmen of Europe. The Union is to meet for five or six days in Washington and conclude with a plenary meeting of one day in Ottawa. Two subjects which have been reserved for discussion here are the rights of minorities and suppression of narcotic drugs.

The Inter-Parliamentary Union was founded 23 years ago for the purpose of promoting world peace and closer international relations. Since the formation of the League of Nations it has worked in close co-operation with that body. Its membership is composed entirely of Parliamentary representatives and is divided into National groups forming the general body of the Union.

The subjects discussed at the coming meeting at Ottawa and Washington will be made the base of recommendations to the League of Nations and also the Governments of the respective countries represented in the Union. The Canadian group with the consent and co-operation of the Government and Parliament extended an invitation to the Union to hold a couple of sessions here and towards defraying the expense an initial vote of $10,000 has been made. The delegates will be at Niagara Falls and Hamilton on October 11; at Toronto, October 12; Ottawa, October 13; Montreal, October 14; and Quebec, October 15. The carrying out of the Canadian program is in the hands of Senator Belcourt, president of the Canadian group, Sir Henry Drayton, vice-president, Senator Gerald White and Thomas Vien ex-M.P., secretaries. These will go to Washington. Others who are expected to go are Sir Robert Borden, Sir George Foster, Sir James Loughheed, Senator Smeaton White, Andrew MacMaster ex-M.P., Senators McMeans, Casgrain, but the fact that a general election campaign is on will make difficult the attendance of many members of the late Parliament.

Early Days of the Congregational Church in St. John's.

The following sermon was preached by Rev. D. L. Nicholl at the Congregational Church on Sunday evening:

In an earlier study we traced the story of the founding of our Church—the building, of course, but the religious society—by John Jones in 1775. We saw some of the difficulties and oppositions by which he and his friends were faced. We know that he triumphantly surmounted them all, that under his wise leadership the little cause grew in numbers and influence. And when in the year 1800, after an active ministry of 25 years, John Jones passed away, it was to the grief and regret of the whole community, so thoroughly had he earned and won the respect and affection of all the citizens. Not the least sincere mourners at his death were some of those who in the early days had most bitterly opposed him and sought to bring his work to naught; and have him expelled from the country.

But we are not to understand that all difficulties ceased after the successful formation of the church and the building of the first meeting-house. There were difficulties and problems all the way through—some from without and some from within. The whole of that first quarter of a century was a time of stress and strain. And the more we read of the earlier history of those years the more we appreciate the Christian character of Mr. Jones, his patience, perseverance, charity and fairness; the more also we realize the indomitable courage and loyalty of those humble men and women who formed his little flock.

In our last study we saw how the first real home of the Church in a building of its own was the meeting-house erected in 1777—at the foot of what is now Victoria Street. We learned of the rage of the then Governor, Admiral Montagu, when he arrived from England and found a "dissenting chapel" in the town, and of his threat to pull the place to pieces. But as the building stood on which the Governor could not carry out the threat. Although this effort to injure the cause failed, another effort made two, and a half years later was more successful. On his return from England in 1779 as an ordained minister Mr. Jones sought from the Magistrates a license to preach. One of the two Magistrates, Mr. Gill, gave a hearty consent. The other, the Rev. Edward Langman, who was also the Church of England clergyman in St. John's, refused, and threatened that if Jones ventured to preach in public he would send constables to stop him. This did not intimidate Jones or the Church! The members assembled for worship as hitherto, and John Jones led the worship and preached the gospel of redeeming grace. A further letter came from Langman in the most emphatic terms ordering Jones to cease from preaching or he would be visited with the utmost penalties of the law! The minister and elders determined to bring the matter before a higher authority, they would "appeal to Caesar"—Caesar in their case being represented by the Governor. Accordingly they did so. The Governor received Jones and the two elders who accompanied him in the cabin of his ship with violent and abusive language and forbade him in the sternest terms to continue public services in their meeting-house—Jones might do what he liked in his own lodgings but he must not preach in public! The appeal to Caesar failed!

Forbidden to worship in public how could a Church of Christ be built up? It seemed like the end of everything and for once Jones was thoroughly disheartened. What could he do? It seemed as though the door to service in St. John's had been shut in his face, and not only shut, but banged, barred and bolted! In his disappointment he actually proposed returning to England. But the church members would not hear of retreat—they were not going to be beaten; they would not give in; they would not suffer the cause of Christ to be crushed out of existence by any man! They were of the same stuff as the Apostles. They thanked God that they were counted worthy to suffer for the Name's sake; they said they must obey God rather than man. Seeing their faith and courage the heart of Jones was made strong and glad within him. He gave up the idea of returning to England and pledged himself anew to the immediate task which claimed him.

For the moment the Church yielded to the order of officialism. But they only retreated in order to prepare for a big advance; they only drew back a little in order to take a great leap forward! So for a time the little house of God, erected with such joy and hope and at such a sacrifice, stood empty and derelict. It was no longer filled with the sound of praise or echoed to the glorious promises of the gospel. But the Church itself went on. The little company met as they had done at the very beginning four years previously in the lodgings of their minister. But there was no break in the continuity. Just as the early Christians in Rome were forced by persecution away from the light of day, underground to the catacombs, so his little company was forced by illegal and arbitrary persecution from worship in public to worship in private: from the House of God to the house of John Jones. Ah! but the house of John Jones became to them none other but the House of God and the very gate of Heaven!

But they were not content to meet thus in secret. They were not altogether without resources. They were British subjects, and if justice could not be obtained in Newfoundland then it could be obtained in England. And in England they had friends, even powerful friends. And to them they turned for help in this time of trial. They wrote a letter to the great Evangelical Society for Promoting Religious Knowledge, laid their case before the officials of the society and begged them to take up their injured cause.

This S. O. S. was sent off in the late summer and they had to wait until the following spring, 1780, for an answer. And all that time they continued their services without a break. They were a persecuted Church—but as so often has happened in history "the blood of the martyrs has been the seed of the Church" and times of persecution have been times of growth. So it was here. In the records of this time I find the entry "The Lord was pleased to add unto them."

The Governor, while he might be an autocrat in Newfoundland, was himself subject to authority in England. And when that distinguished divine, the Rev. Dr. Sifford, one of the officials of the Society for Promoting Religious Knowledge, waited upon him in London, His Excellency was most accommodating. The persecution of the Independent Church in St. John's was not his doing, not at all! It was all due to the jealousy and bigotry of Mr. Langman, magistrate and clergyman. On his return to Newfoundland he would take steps to keep Langman in his place and also see that Jones and his congregation were reinstated in their building. "To his credit he carried out his word and in August 1780 the congregation re-took possession of their meeting-house with great joy and gladness of heart seeing that the Lord had done such good things for them."

That is one example of the persecution to which our fathers were subjected—persecution by the authorities. It is not to be wondered at that the rough and rowdy elements followed the example of their social betters. Even officers of His Majesty's navy from ships in the harbour thought it fine sport to disturb the dissenters at their prayers. Their favourite diversion seems to have been dropping gunpowder down the chimney of the church, at the imminent risk of explosion and fire. Thus encouraged, the rabble of the town took a hand in the game. One night they wrenched the shutters off their hinges, smashed all the windows and did much other damage. Baiting the dissenters was a favourite amusement! Once there was quite a riot. "The lewd fellows of the baser sort" attacked the building with stones, did much destruction and more or less seriously injured members of the congregation. The authorities were compelled to interfere. The ringleaders of the mob were identified, brought to trial and condemned to be flogged. Here Jones showed his Christian spirit of forgiveness and goodwill, he interceded with the magistrates on behalf of the prisoners and prayed that the sentence might not be carried out. He harboured no hatred against the men, he had no anger for them, only pity, and at his intercession the men were liberated.

This incident seems to have marked the end of the period of bitter persecution. A new Governor, John Campbell, Esq., a Scotsman and a very different man from his predecessor, arrived in St. John's. He was very favourably inclined toward the Dissenting Church; he saw and approved all Mr. Jones' efforts for the spiritual and moral improvement of the people. His attitude and protection restrained the more violent forms of persecution. Says the old record, "His conduct was beyond expression—gentle, mild and good-natured," and in answer to an address from the Church he declared "that so far from preventing he would do all in his power to further it."

All the way through the arch-persecutor had been Edward Langman, the magistrate. His hatred had been as implacable as it was unreasonable. His efforts to injure Jones and his work had been prompted by a jealousy that was almost insane. Poetic justice was meted out to him. In 1784 in circumstances of great disgrace, he was dismissed from all his public offices and was an object of contempt to the entire population. Under the indignity his pride was broken, probably also his heart, for he died very soon after. Henceforth the little church was free, with but little interruption, to develop along its own lines. It steadily grew in numbers and influence. But increasing prosperity did not breed spiritual pride, for we find many references to "days of humiliation and fasting before the Lord."

In the light of the recent educational advance made in this Colony by the inauguration of the Junior University College, it is not without interest to discover that the Independent Church was one of the pioneers of education in this city. For in the year 1786 there is a reference to the school kept by Mr. Jones in the vestry of the church—a school of 20 scholars. At the time it was the only school in St. John's apart from one conducted by the Roman Catholic priests who had been allowed to settle and build a church and school in 1784.

Although the Church increased greatly in numbers it was never, in Jones' time, rich in this world's goods. Many of the congregation, moreover, were only "birds of passage," coming over here in the summer for the fishery and returning to England at the close of the season, for those were days when permanent residence in the island was discouraged. The Governor himself only resided here during the fishing season and returned home every fall. During the winter months the numbers of the little flock must have been very small, and it was a great strain on them to maintain the cause and keep it free from debt. Indeed, they would not have been able to do this but for the generous help from England. From the very beginning right on to the present moment this Church has been associated with those of our faith and order in England and not with those in America or Canada. And to-day the missionary work initiated by the Church in Fortune Bay just 50 years ago, and so ably carried on by Rev. Hugh Macdonald for the past 21 years, is almost entirely financed by the English Colonial Missionary Society. And however desirable on grounds of policy and even of principle, affiliation with the United Church of Canada may be, ties of sympathy lasting 150 years link us very closely to the Congregational Churches of the Motherland. Our outlook is toward the East rather than toward the West. The ties which bind us to English Congregationalism can only be broken, and that very reluctantly, at the bidding of a higher loyalty.

In view of the fact that the majority of the Protestant population of the country is of West of England stock, it is only natural to find that in the early years there existed the closest connection possible in the circumstances between this Church and the Independent Churches of Devonshire and Dorsetshire. Many of the masters of the fishing vessels coming here year after year were sturdy Independents, and to their home churches in the West Country they told the story of this Church, its difficulties and its needs. A generous response was the result—gifts of books and magazines for winter reading as well as gifts of money were constantly arriving. By the living sympathy and spirit of fellowship, of which these gifts were the outward expression, the Church in St. John's lost its sense of isolation, for behind it were the spiritual and material resources of the home churches. Some of them ought to be mentioned by name—Wareham, Sherborne and Poole in Dorsetshire, Teignmouth and Plymouth in Devonshire. Without their practical help this Church could not, humanly speaking, have survived its infancy. Perhaps the greatest individual friend the Congregational Church in St. John's ever had on the other side was the Rev. Dr. Samuel Greathead of Newport Pagnell in Cambridgeshire, where he was tutor in the Academy for the Education of Congregational Ministers. It was to him more than any other that Mr. Jones and his people turned for counsel in all their difficulties, and when Jones died it was to Dr. Greathead that his Church turned to find them successful. He was also instrumental in obtaining for the cause many hundreds of pounds from sympathizers in England. Never once did he fail them.

Of the early years of the Church the most striking features are—

1. The steadfastness and loyalty of the little persecuted flock.
2. The practical sympathy and help of the home churches in England.

We to-day should be proud of the spirit in which those who went before us met and conquered opposition, and we may still be grateful to the Congregationalism of the Old Country for the help and support which have been so generous and so continuous.

Our fathers were high-minded men who firmly kept the faith: To freedom and to conscience true, In danger and in death;

Great names had they, but greater True heroes of their age, Who like a rock in stormy seas Defied opposing rage.

As faithful as our fathers were May we their children be; And in our hearts their spirit live That gained our liberty. God help us all to do and dare Whatever can be done. Till for the good old cause of truth The victory shall be won.

St. Patrick's Memorial School

FREE OF DEBT.

The pleasing announcement that the Memorial School on Denary Avenue is entirely free of debt, was made by Rev. Dr. Kitchin at Last Mass on Sunday. In making the announcement, Rev. Dr. Kitchin heartily thanked the people of the parish for the generosity they displayed in raising the necessary funds. The school, which is erected to the memory of the men of the parish who fell in the Great War, was opened three years ago. It contains twelve class rooms and two music rooms, and cost about $53,000.

The Inez G. Calamity off Lingan.

"Oh My God" Last Despairing Cry.

Six men were drowned when the 55-ton Newfoundland schooner Inez G. capsized some three miles off Lingan about nine o'clock on Friday evening. Two men fought their way to safety in a dory, struggling through raging seas, and landed at Lingan.

The men drowned were: Captain Joseph Vatcher, master of the schooner, of Burgeo, Nfld., married, survived by a wife and eight children.

Robert Strickland, of Burgeo, married, survived by his wife and a number of children.

Edward Harris, of Burgeo, single.

John Hiscock, of Codroy, Nfld., single.

R. Strickland, of Burgeo, married.

James Wheeler, of North Sydney, married, survived by a wife and eight children.

The men saved were: George Bungay, of North Sydney, Kenneth Bragg, of Burgeo.

Bungay and Wheeler, swordfishermen, operating out of North Sydney, had been taken on board the Inez G. on Friday afternoon, when heavy weather was too much for the motor vessel from which they were fishing.

Capt. Vatcher was at the wheel when the ship went down a few moments before the vessel capsized under the force of a terrific squall of wind. Bragg, one of the two men saved, heard Captain Vatcher say: "If she goes down I'll go down with her."

None of the men who were lost were seen by Bragg or Bungay after the Inez G. turned over.

The last words heard, as the six were swept down with the vessel, were an agonized shout: "Oh, my God, oh, my God."

Bungay and Bragg were chilled to the marrow and nearly exhausted when their dory drove up on the shore at Lingan. They made their way, however, to the home of Menzies Forward, where they were cared for, given dry clothing, and looked after for the night. On Saturday morning they came to Sydney and went on to North Sydney.

Miscellaneous chance and Bungay's quick thought combined to save Bragg from meeting the fate of his comrades of the schooner.

When the vessel was thrown over on her side by a sudden mighty squall, Bungay tore at a dory which was lashed on the deck. Frantically he ripped off the lashings and the boat dropped into the sea. Bungay jumped into it from the rolling side of the schooner.

As the Inez pitched and rolled Bragg was swept off the vessel's side and carried beneath the water.

When he came to the surface he found himself at the side of the dory which he clutched with his hands and Bungay pulled him into the boat.

Together they fought their way to Lingan though momentarily the angry sea threatened to overturn the boat.

The Inez G., a rum runner which sailed from North Sydney for Demerara on January 17th and since her return from the south had been in the Cape Breton "Rum Row", started for North Sydney on Friday afternoon, having disposed of most of her cargo. Fierce winds drove her off her course.

During the afternoon she picked up Bungay and Wheeler who were having a hard time in their swordfishing boat. At night the schooner dropped anchor but in the heavy weather she began to leak and Captain Vatcher decided to head for North Sydney.

Not long after the anchor had been pulled up there came a terrific blow and suddenly, without warning, the schooner capsized.

Capt. Vatcher's tragic fate is made the more tragic by the fact that he intended to leave the Inez G. and retire as soon as the remainder of the vessel's cargo had been disposed of.

Capt. Vatcher was formerly in command of the steamer Herbert Green, well known in Sydney harbor. He was also the owner of the schooner Julia F.C.—Sydney Record.

ST. BON'S FOOTBALLERS ELECT OFFICERS.

A meeting of St. Donavente's College football team was held yesterday afternoon, when arrangements were made for the forthcoming Inter-Collegiate games. The election of officers resulted as follows:—
 Captain—M. Monahan.
 Vice-Captain—J. Cowley.
 Secy.—Treas.—F. Donnelly.
 The St. Bon's boys are fast rounding into shape, and they have every confidence of placing a strong line-up in the field. The first Inter-Collegiate game will take place about the middle of October.

WOMAN AND MAN IN THE ATHLETIC FIELD.

Hill, of University College, London, England, before the British Association recently that woman is inferior to man in athletics, Miss Fanny (Bobby) Rosenfeld, of this city, who recently set a new world's record for the 220 yard dash, said: "It is unfair to compare the athletic prowess and durability of women with that of men because women are just coming into their own in athletics. I would say that in a distance up to 220 yards a woman is able with proper conditions and training to sprint the whole distance. People who can condition themselves to attain a certain distance be they male or female, can attain that distance. Why, in Prof. Hill's home town of London, Eng., long distance races are in vogue now for women, as well as for men. In these races it is not so much speed that counts as stamina and condition."

TORONTO, Sept. 23—(C.P.)—In discussing the statement of Prof. A. V. Hill, of University College, London, England, before the British Association recently that woman is inferior to man in athletics, Miss Fanny (Bobby) Rosenfeld, of this city, who recently set a new world's record for the 220 yard dash, said: "It is unfair to compare the athletic prowess and durability of women with that of men because women are just coming into their own in athletics. I would say that in a distance up to 220 yards a woman is able with proper conditions and training to sprint the whole distance. People who can condition themselves to attain a certain distance be they male or female, can attain that distance. Why, in Prof. Hill's home town of London, Eng., long distance races are in vogue now for women, as well as for men. In these races it is not so much speed that counts as stamina and condition."

AUSTRALIAN LADY TENNIS PLAYERS HAVE ARRIVED IN U.S.A.

NEW YORK, Sept. 21—Four members of the Australian women's tennis team, which is to engage in a number of matches in this country, arrived yesterday on the Franconia from England. The team was defeated in matches against English and French teams. The players are to open their tour in Philadelphia and close in San Francisco.

N. A. A. MEETING.

A well attended meeting of the Nfld. Amateur Athletic Association was held yesterday afternoon, in the office of C. J. Cahill, M.H.A., who was moved to the chair. The purpose of the meeting was to consider the matter of sending runners to compete in the Halifax Road Race, which takes place on October 17th. The Association felt that it would be very desirable to send a representative team to compete, but the cost was great and funds were too low to do anything. The annual outdoor sports, which is the only means of securing funds, were not patronized as well as in former years, and when the expenses are paid and the medals are paid for, there will be practically nothing left. Several suggestions were made as to means to raise funds but nothing was found practical. An offer was made by an outside organization to pay part of the cost of sending four runners and a trainer and this received much consideration. After looking at the matter from all sides, it was decided that to accept this offer would be departing from the spirit of the Association; but it was decided to inform the organization that should they be prepared to undertake the whole cost of sending a team, the N.A.A.A. would give all necessary help and would give the runners all credentials. The meeting adjourned at 6:15.

BORROWED VALISE TO CARRY WINNINGS.

British Turfman Wins Over 1,000,000 Francs On His Winning Horse At Paris.

PARIS, Sept. 24—Captain Jefferson Davis Cohn, noted British turfman, has to borrow a valise yesterday to bring back to Paris his winnings, amounting to over 1,000,000 francs, when his three year old Ptolemy won the Gold Cup race at the Maisons Laftite course.

The big black son of Teddy, out of Macedonia, which was a favorite for this year's English Derby, came through with a victory which no one except those connected with his stable expected. As a result he was neglected in the betting and 6 to 1.

Captain Cohn wagered 200,000 francs and his earnings were paid him mostly in small bills.

Captain Cohn in 1923 headed the Galshad defeated the famous French race horse, Epinar.

Extraordinary Attraction Playing The Nickel Now!

WE TAKE PRIDE
in Presenting America's most famous romance

For years the public has asked: "When will they put 'The Great Divide' on the screen?" The immortal stage play by William Vaughn Moody was one of the biggest theatrical successes of history. It is a mighty achievement.

Faith in Quacks

A story comes from Ohio that a woman who wanted her thick ankles made slim had to have both feet amputated, and is now suing the quack who gave her the treatment. There is something pathetic and also tragic in the case. There was nothing wrong with this woman's ankles; they were just as she got them at birth. She had used them for about 35 years, when she walked, and they worked all right. At that age she got the foolish notion that they were a trifle thick according to style as it is acknowledged to-day so she went to some fakir who promised that he would trim them down to the size desired. To-day that woman has two stumps of legs; her ankles and her feet are gone. A reputable surgeon had to do this to save her life. The case is pathetic because the victim will be a cripple for life. It is tragic because in this age of enlightenment a sane person will believe what she hears from a quack and fakir who wants to whittle down thick ankles to thicken his own purse.—London Advertiser.

SIDE TALKS.

By Ruth Cameron.

THE ULTIMATE FEAR.

Stevenson (I think)

I found that quotation in my scrapbook the other day and copied it to put over my desk. For I think it strikes at one of the commonest of all fears—the fear of living.

A successful professional man I know is afraid of his success. I do not think he needs to be for he has not won it by luck but by ability plus the hardest kind of work. His recipe is never to let up on himself until he has done his work as well as he can possibly do it. Yet he often says: "What should I do if I lost all this? I could never be happy again." And in the fear of surrendering himself to the happiness of his success, he loses part of that happiness.

She's Afraid To Be Too Happy.

Again I know of a woman whose husband is unusually devoted to her, and yet through all her pride and pleasure in his unusual tenderness runs this thread of fear: "I am afraid that perhaps when he gets to be about 45 or 50 he will stop loving me. When I was a girl I had a dear friend older than myself to whom that happened. Her husband was a high school principal, and he fell in love with one of his young teachers and left his wife. And they had been one of the happiest couples I ever knew. My mother said then that things often happen like that and that nothing you could do would stop them if they were going to come to you. And ever since then I've had that fear deep down in my heart that that would happen to me; and whenever I'm too happy I think of it."

She seemed to think her case was an unusual one. I wonder if it was. I wonder if these are not a great many more women like her who "harken too intently for the threat that runs through all the moving music of the world."

Sometimes a man or woman fears to let himself love lest the love shall be too absorbing, too overpowering. As if he who loses himself in love did not truly find himself! As if the rose were not infinitely well worth the chance of the thorn.

The Fear of Parenthood.

Of course nowhere does the fear of living show itself more than in the fear of parenthood. A woman who has never had any children told me that she was glad, she felt it too great a responsibility, and she was afraid she would not measure up to it. Yet she is far superior to the ordinary woman—except in this fear.

The courage for living is the finest kind of courage, especially if it is not the unthinking courage of those who have never known unhappiness, but the courage that comes from knowing what unhappiness is and yet never "reckon danger too seriously, never listen too intently for the threat that runs through all the moving music of the world, or hold back their hands from the rose because of the thorn, or from life because of death."

United Mine Workers of America

PLANNING A NATION-WIDE WALK-OUT.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 23.—(Canadian Press)—Officials and mine operators are waiting with intense interest the outcome of the strike in the West Virginia coal mines which has been called for Saturday. President John L. Lewis, of the United Mine Workers of America, and other officials of the organization, will be at Fairmont, W. Va., Saturday, and a great demonstration is planned to draw the miners out of the non-union mines as far as possible.

West Virginia produces a quarter of the bituminous coal mined in the United States, and the strike there is a test of the power of President Lewis and the United Mine Workers to block or partially block production of substitutions for anthracite.

At the present time there is an enormous production of soft coal in non-union mines, and if it continues the hard coal strike is predicted by many to fail. If the West Virginia strike is a failure it will be looked on here as meaning an early end of the hard coal strike.
