THE ARNCLIFFE PUZZLE, BY GORDON HOLMES

Author of "A MYSTERIOUS DISAPPEARANCE."

(Continued.) The American cast a piteous glance toward Hobson, who was eyeing him with malicious enjoyment. No sooner was to be expected from that quarter. The detective had not forgotten certain allusions to "Hobson" and "men with the instincts of a horse-thief." Far from coming to Bradshaw's rescue, he added to the chorus of praise showered upon him.

"You may well say that, Miss Holt," he broke in earnestly. "If you had seen the place where we found this gentleman you would have thought that he had been a battle between two lions. The ground was so torn and trampled that they must have been at it for a quarter of an hour at least. And the blood Mr. Bradshaw had lost!"

The wounded "lion" uttered a queer little cough. It conveyed a warning to Hobson, but the detective was desperate. He would pay of old scores that night, at any rate.

"There is one thing which may give you a clue," said Edith. "Do any of you know a man in the district who carries a black-thorn?"

"Yes, miss," volunteered Wilson, "Bob Leigh, the poacher, him that Master Harry caught and gave six months to last year—he is hardly ever without one in his hand. He would only be out of prison a few weeks, and no doubt he bears a grudge against Master Harry. There's another thing, miss, he is a mortal strong man; there's no one in the village can stand up against him."

"Then that completely proves it!" asserted Edith, calmly, ignoring the first principles of justice. "You had better go and arrest the man at once, Mr. Hobson."

"Oh, dash it all!" broke in Warren, excited, too agitated by his new peril to realize that his mode of address left much to be desired. "You can't arrest a man for having a black-thorn stick."

Except for a contemptuous curl of her lip, Edith appeared so dreadfully beside herself, that she seemed to have lost her wits. "At once, Mr. Hobson," she repeated.

Warren's anxiety on behalf of the poacher was not so much a detective. This development was likely to prove highly embarrassing to himself, however, so he welcomed any diversion.

"Mr. Warren is quite right, Miss Holt," he pointed out. "We require more evidence than that before we are justified in making an arrest. Still, I will institute some inquiries as to the movements, and keep an eye on him generally."

Bradshaw, too, was glad to divert attention from his heroic conduct. "It is absolutely impossible for me to identify the man," he joined in. "Therefore, I could not prove anything against him, even if we were to get hold of the right person by chance. Now, Miss Holt, I think I will go back to the inn. I am ashamed to have given you so much trouble at such an hour."

"Go back to the inn, indeed!" exclaimed Edith, with fine scorn. "I have ordered a room to be prepared for you, and when you have taken this" (this was a huge bowl of chicken broth, one of the invalid delicacies provided for Angier) "you are to go straight to bed."

ter, with tender pity, "he is in pain." "He had better go to bed at once," said the doctor.

He was anxious to learn the true details of the affair. Moreover, he did not find this almost fulsome eulogy of Lord Arncliffe's nephew particularly gratifying.

"Have you a room ready?" he asked. "Thank you—then I will just go up and make the patient comfortable. And as I wish to prescribe bed rest very strictly for you, too, Miss Holt, I will say good-night to you."

His manner was formal, even beyond the austerity which medical men assume, and Edith, unaware that her innocent praise of a courageous action had aroused the demon of jealousy, looked at him in retained reproach. But he kept his eyes steadily averted and walked away, supporting Bradshaw, whose other arm was taken by Hobson.

The detective, who was burning with curiosity to learn what Bradshaw had seen before he took that perilous drop from the tree, when the servants had retired, Hobson locked the door.

"Now, then," he said, "we must speak softly."

"You are right, my friend," agreed Bradshaw. "I am liable to make use of language which will be all the better for being spoken softly. And see here, your grinning ape, if that irritating smile doesn't leave your face mighty quick, I will shoot it off!"

"May I ask what the joke is?" queried Lester mildly.

"You tell him, Hobson. If I do, I shall choke before I am half-way through."

Hobson, nothing loath, described their disastrous attempt to spy upon Mrs. Warren and her son. He told of the American's brilliant idea of explaining his injuries and with loving touch, drew a picture of the unearned increment of glory which had fallen to the amateur detective's lot.

By the time the recital was finished, Hobson and Lester were convulsed with silent mirth, while the fortunate hero of it all sat on the bed and glowered at them.

Lester had been telling himself that there was nothing so wonderful in total blindness as getting the worst of the encounter. But now, when Bradshaw's ridiculous position was made clear, he was not wholly displeased that Edith had chuckled over his phrases so liberally.

A GRIM RECORD

The New York World recently published a striking statement of the number of homicides in that city, and of the proportion of the perpetrators of the crime brought to trial, and the very small number executed. The figures cover a period of ten years, and are as follows:

Table showing homicide statistics for New York from 1896 to 1905, including number of homicides, those held for trial, and those executed.

The World points out that while the increase in the city's population has only been 28 per cent during the ten years, the increase in number arraigned for homicide is 93 per cent, and the increase in number held for trial for homicide 446 per cent.

How large a proportion of the citizens have visited the supervised playground at the Centennial school? The holiday season is drawing toward a close. Very many more than have thus far done so should visit these grounds and see for themselves the value of such a resort for the little ones.

Chancellor Harrison and Prof. Bailey are to be congratulated that after so many years of service in the educational field they are to receive a share of the Carnegie Pension Fund.

It is stated that a man who committed suicide in Seattle, leaving half a bottle of whiskey in his room, must have been temporarily insane. Otherwise, doubtless, he would have finished the bottle.

With a yacht race at Millidgeville, salmon-boat races at Westfield, a band in Rockwood Park, the usual attractiveness of Seaside Park, and other sources of pleasure and amusement, the half-holiday should prove very enjoyable to the citizens of St. John.

The Emperor of Germany stated the simple truth when he told the correspondent of The Nation that anarchy takes no more account of a republican president than an autocratic emperor. History attests the fact.

It is certainly refreshing to see the Kaiser hobnobbing with French naval officers. The European powers, outside of Russia, are in a most conciliatory mood at present.

PECK'S BAD BOY.

THE EVENING TIMES, ST. JOHN, N. B., SATURDAY, AUGUST 4, 1906.

Of Interest to Women.

"There goes my last guest of the Summer," said Mrs. Brown, plumping down dejectedly on the lowest step of the front porch...

playing bridge for money at summer resorts and country houses, women do not as a rule play for monetary stakes.

red silk. This is fitted with a complete bridge set, including a score book bound in red leather, to which a memorandum pencil is attached with a piece of tany ribbon.

"I've at last come to the conclusion that families do not take a country place for their own benefit. If they are simple enough to think that they do it for the beginning, their so-called friends speedily disabuse them of that idea.

Bridge remains as popular a pastime this summer as it was last, and at the summer hotels on rainy days, when outdoor amusements are out of the question, the most accomplished guest is she who organizes little impromptu bridge parties in her rooms.

Some of the most attractive pieces of basket ware are woven of the fragrant sweet grass of the Maine forests which is often intermingled with strips of birch bark.

Automobiles modeled in wicker work which may be decorated either with ribbons or cut flowers make attractive card party prizes.

"Do you think she ever tried to help in any way during her stay here? Not she; she didn't even pretend to make her bed, though my own lonely Bridget had to look after her."

Notwithstanding current gossip and the fact that she is a widow, she is a very capable woman.

It was a mean and pitiful life that Russell Sage dragged and plodded through, and after death he is no more admirable.

Perhaps the selfish and hard old man realized his limitations and trusted to the superior wisdom and sympathy of his wife to make the use of his money of which he felt himself incapable.

"Yes, we have always been more or less pestered with company, but I never appreciated the real trials of the Summer visitor until we came out here.

Then country people go to the city, they feel meek and are easily brought to time if they transgress.

It is a philanthropist, drying his hair after a swim, said of a banker: "Brown is a mean man. Once I made him shell out, though. Listen."

"My office is in the same building as Brown's bank, and a few minutes later Brown's name dawned for only a dollar, I was mad."

"The truth of the matter is, far as it seems to be from their knowledge, that everything they enjoy comes out of some one's bones.

"I have just learned," I said, "that you could only afford to give a dollar to the children's fresh air fund."

"It's all I can afford," he whined. "My office is in the same building as Brown's bank, and a few minutes later Brown's name dawned for only a dollar, I was mad."

"He says it's all he can afford, eh?" I began. "Well, ladies, just wait here a minute."

"And I called my head clerk, ascertained my balance in Brown's bank, and wrote a check there and there in the clerk's name for $273,840—the entire amount."

"I pointed to the ladies' subscription list."

DOWIE AND RUSSELL SAGE

Two Human Types Subjected to Caustic Criticism by New York Paper.

NEGLEE ATTIRE NOW AFFECTED BY MEN

Judging by the latest importations in men's warm weather attire, the summer girl does not enjoy an exclusive monopoly of leading fashion. The summer man's flights of fancy may not soar to the dizzy heights of "peek-a-boo" waists and Vesta Ties, but they take in a good many dainty fads nevertheless.

And speaking of fads brings to mind the new hat of light grey straw which is very latest cry in men's head-gear. This innovation has just been introduced across the water by King Edward, and it is the only real novelty in the line of straw hats that mankind has seen in years.

Vacation time always brings bathing and outing garments to the fore, and this year proves no exception to the rule. Some of the new bathing suits are made of heavy mercerized cotton, fast dyed in dark blue or red. They are waterproof, easy to wear, and as they are more easily rinsed free of sand and sea water than woollens, many men prefer them.

Just the thing for a summer lounging robe or to wear during the trip to or from the bath house, is the light weight bath robe of undyed pongee or toweling. In the latter material there are many pretty color combinations. White is striped with pale tones of blue, pink or tan, is a daintily flowered with blue pink roses.

One of the most tasteful of these robes is made of plain pongee-colored toweling and bound around all the edges with brown flannel, a girle of brown silk cord completing the decoration. All of these robes are finished with Capri hoods, and there are Turkish bath slippers to match them. Some men, however, prefer the Japanese hoodless slippers made of fine cotton, which are at once cooler and firmer bearing the feet than the Turkish footwear.

The most comfortable negligee shirt is made in coat effect and buttons down its entire length. This, like all other outing shirts designed, is made up in pongee, this silk and fine soft flannel, as well as in madras, percale and mercerized cotton chevrot.

These latter goods are shown in Jacquard and fancy weaves, and in many attractive color combinations. Shantung in pale blue, pale lavender, pale green and tan is especially attractive. For wearing with these negligees the makers have now produced a decorative collar which comes in most of the soft outing materials.

The safety collar pin is one of the special fads of the present summer. Time was when a man would have thought and probably uttered contemptible things at the suggestion that he should wear a collar with a safety pin; but nowadays this useful article is quite inseparable from the up-to-date negligee outfit. It is worn with the soft negligee collar and narrow four-in-hand tie, and besides being used for fastening the collar in when run through the under part of the tie, thus holding both securely together.

The plain gold pin dressers prefer the collar with the soft setting of bayonet rose quartz. When a high starched collar is worn a small bow is generally accompanying it, and the pin is omitted.

Another fad of the present summer is the crocheted four-in-hand, after long confinement to the deepest oblivion, has reappeared in the form of a necktie. It is crocheted in heavy silk, in a firm close stitch. The most popular color just now is the Jacquard red, maroon, silver grey, and the familiar Albee blue.

One of the season's novelties that is distinctly worth mentioning is the comforter. The bell-shaped comforter, returning from Paris are rousing the envy of the less fortunate friends with these ingeniously devised goods, which are yet not for sale on this side of the water. These very smart girdles are nothing more or less than a very low cut vest of the same material as the comforter, and cost, fastening at the back with a regular belt.

REAL ESTATE IN TORONTO AND WINNIPEG (Toronto News). The deal was closed yesterday by which Samuel G. Beatty purchased the property at the corner of Bay and Melinda streets, and embracing numbers 83, 85 and 87 Bay street, for the sum of $75,000 from Mrs. Jane Carmichael and Mrs. Marion Somerville. The property has 50 feet frontage, and the price, $1500 per foot, is considered a good one for property of Yonge street.

(Winnipeg Free Press). Another transaction in Portage avenue frontage is announced as indicating the growing interest of investors in this main thoroughfare of Winnipeg as a future business street. The eighty-eight feet immediately adjoining the Globe block and fronting on Portage avenue, lying between Ouelton and Edmondson streets, has been purchased by an eastern investor for a figure in the neighborhood of $50,000. The purchaser is T. D. J. Farmer, head of the legal firm of Farmer & Gould, of Hamilton, Ont.

BOUQUETS FOR CANADA. "You've got the best country in the world. If I were a Canadian, I tell you, I would be proud of it." These were the words spoken by Rev. Father P. A. O'Leary, of St. John's, who, with Rev. Father A. J. Ross, of Boston, has just returned from a month's vacation along the Georgian Bay, and near the King Edward, Toronto, last week.

"If I were a Canadian I would never vote for annexation," continued Father O'Leary. "You have a good country, without very many of the great social evils or much of the business and political corruption that characterize some other countries. You have a splendid government system and boundless natural wealth. Certainly Canadians have every reason to feel satisfied with their lot."

to make Senor Bringsas as comfortable as possible and to see that no one of his family contract it. I try to keep myself immune, of course, because it would make added danger for the family.

The box springs of Mexico have been noted for a long time as a sure cure for skin diseases. Don Jose tried them, but, to no effect. He even journeyed to the wild interior of the Yagui country, where the aborigines look upon every word as a charm. He had a company of guards along and enough laborers to build his own hut. There he stayed for a year, sleeping on the ground under a blanket, but to no avail, though the springs are fabled in Indian lore as being possessed of qualities that will cure anything.

Finally Don Jose came home discouraged. He tried to make up his mind to the inevitable, but he was attacked by some of the most terrible skin afflictions made by European specialists. He resolved to try one more last fight, for life before giving up.

But it is not easy for lepers to travel. A poor leper would be sent to the nearest port, where he would take a steamer, and cross from there and travel without let or hindrance. Don Jose's millions came in his rescue and did him some good at last. No leper would be seen in a berth in a sleeping car, nor even a stateroom. It is a far trip from Guaymas to Europe, but even a leper can do it, if he has money.

Don Jose hired a special train. He took along his private car, which he brought inside the car, so that he might travel. In it are rooms for his family and himself, a dining room, a parlor and a drawing room. The baggage cars loaded with the family effects made up the train. His steamer for Europe sailed from Vera Cruz, Mexico, to reach Vera Cruz the millionaire leper had to pass through the United States. This took a lot of care, and the representative of the marine hospital service was detailed to meet the millionaire's train at Nogales, the border town between Mexico and the United States. There, in Mexico, he stayed aboard through Arizona and New Mexico until it reached El Paso, in Texas, and then crossed over the border for the sea. To Dr. Edward Alexander, the marine hospital surgeon at El Paso, fell the task.

He refused to allow a soul to enter the train at any station. The rich Mexican was asked to keep to his stateroom and to get up only when necessary. Between stations he was allowed to catch a bit of fresh air on the observation platform, but at the stops he was held inside the car for some careless person might jump aboard the platform, touch the afflicted man and perhaps infect a whole community afterwards.

At Vera Cruz, Don Jose found the steamer awaiting him which is to take him and the family to Europe. He had already made his terms with the company. He agreed to take an entire deck of cabins for himself. He agreed not to leave his rooms during the voyage and contracted to pay for new bedding, upholstery, hangings, carpets and the like, which are to be destroyed at the end of the voyage. He will also pay for the fumigation of the ship when he leaves it.

And all this voyage is builded upon hope alone. If the specialists of Europe fail, then Don Jose M. Bringsas will return with his family to old Mexico. There, with the magnolia and the orange trees, he will live out the life which has been worse than death for all of fifteen years.

"But there are millions for the man who can give me back my life," says Don Jose hopefully.

The new constitution of the Pattern-makers' League of North America provides for several important changes, including the division of the Pattern-makers' League into two districts, an increase in the per capita tax from 50c to 75c, a month and a graded system of death benefits.

The international convention of the Stone Molders' Union was held in Cleveland recently. The next convention will be held in Chicago. The election of officers resulted as follows: President Daniel W. In the first three months of the present year the average earnings of 333,000 workmen employed in factories, stores, hotels, railway service, construction work and other occupations in the United States were $2.33 a day, or $72 for the quarter. The American Federation of Labor wishes money to carry on its political campaign. Appeals are being sent out to 3,000 labor unions for the money. An intelligent campaign looking to the election of members, state legislatures and to the national congress, who are friendly to the interest of labor, cannot be effected, it is argued, without incurring some expense.

A London, Ont., despatch says—"The first police court case growing out of the street railwaymen's strike was heard this week, when Magistrate Love fined John Boyce $2 with $2.50 costs for shooting 'scab' at a motorman. Boyce's plea was that the motorman was an old friend; the term 'scab' had only been used in a joking way, and he (the offender) had apologized for his conduct.

The magistrate notified all present that the street cars must be run, whether they carry passengers or not, and the men who run the cars and all citizens who ride will be protected to the utmost extent of the law. He considered the name 'scab' as insulting and abusive, and would punish anyone who uses it toward other people. Any person guilty of riotous conduct as took place during the last strike will be put down in short order."

CANADA'S FUTURE (Toronto World).

Those who see at once more or less remote date the absorption of Canada into the United States are not every Canadian nationalist. By the constitution of the United States, as it now exists, Canada cannot enter as a federated state, but only by provinces, which would then become states of the Union, and the federal name would be a mere geographical expression. These are the conditions which would have no meaning, for history would cease and her flag be buried forever.

A Midsummer Day's Dream.

By WEX JONES. O MERMAID free, from the deep, cool sea, Wont you stay ashore and change with me? Oh, come to the heat of the breathless street, And let me dive to your dim retreat— Though here, my dear, I fear, my dear, You'd find our ways amazing queer, With our landmaids cinched in corsets, pinched, I'll even an eel had winced and finched; And our landmen strangled in collars fangled To cut their necks where the things are angled— All jammed in flats like burrowing rats, And the open air left to birds and bats. S O Mermaid, please, let us find the sea, Where you never swelter and never freeze, Where this mad July may frizzle by, As in glaucous coolth we lazily lie, And tell the crabs they should ride in cabs, And call the elegant flounder "Slabs!" And hear the tales of the travelled whales, And learn to what port the nautilus sails, And hourly swell the ocean knell For good sailors drowned—"Hark!— Ding, dong, bell." —No mermaid there? This dopey air Gives one midsummer fancies and dreams for fair!

GLORY OF PAINT AND NEW CARPET

To Soothe the Judge After the Odors of the Court Room.

The painters have recently completed work on the office of Police Magistrate Ritchie, at the central station, and it will be said that the apartment never looked better. The wood-work is beautifully grained in oak, so well, in fact, that it would require careful scrutiny to distinguish it from the real wood, and the appearance of the work is enhanced by a high varnish finish. The walls are in flat finished maroon, with deep lines, forming a very pleasing contrast, and the picture moulding is nicely done in correspondence with the wall, and the appearance of the work is enhanced by a high varnish finish.

The graining was done by William Martin's present with Mr. Pullen, and reflects much credit on his skill.

George Earle, janitor of police headquarters, is putting things to rights in a day or two and will have the apartment looking "spick-and-span."

DANCED IN THE MOONLIGHT

Very Delightful Outing Party at Renforth Last Evening.

There was a jolly time at Renforth last evening when a party of young people from the city and suburban villages along the I. C. R. assembled at the summer home of Mr. and Mrs. J. H. Pullen and Mr. and Mrs. A. P. Patterson, and partook of their hospitable repast.

The gathering numbered well over a hundred, and included three backboard parties from the city, besides those who went by train or walked from Riverside, Brookville and Renforth.

A more fitting night could not have been chosen. The moon shone brightly, and there was just enough breeze from the Kennedycassis to make it comfortable for dancing in the open air.

The members of the party tripped the light fantastic to their hearts' content, and toward midnight a dainty lunch was served, the party breaking up in the wee sma' hours, vowing the occasion one of the most enjoyable in their experience.

SASKATOON CROPS WILL YIELD HEAVY

SASKATOON, Sask., July 27.—The Dominion census of 1901 recorded exactly 500,000 people in Saskatchewan. Today there are 5,300. Last year the assessed valuation of the town was $800,000. This year it is $2,000,000. A municipal election was held here, when James Chikaskill, mayor, began a general business here, he was the only business place. Now there are eight blocks of business houses, and building operations record $100,000 worth of stone and brick structures. This year. They don't count the wooden buildings. A daily and tri-weekly paper are located here. Both are making money. The town owns a good water system and has just voted $25,000 for a municipal electric light and power plant, and a sewerage system.

Last year 900,000 bushels of wheat were exported from Saskatchewan, and this year there is exactly twice the acreage, due to the rush of new settlers and the ability of the old farmers to cultivate more land.

Buyers of Saskatchewan Real Estate during the past two years have cleared in most cases over 100 per cent on their investment. The opportunity of purchasing building lots centrally situated in Saskatoon is offered by the Northwestern Land and Investment Co., of Room 42, the Life Building, city, and their advice is to purchase now, as in all probability an advance over present prices will take place soon. See adv. on page 3.

POLICE CLERK HAS AN ARMORY

A formidable collection of shooting irons and other weapons of defence adorn the wall directly in front of Police Clerk Henderson's desk in his office at headquarters; and it is rather amusing to watch the effect of the grim-looking relics upon visitors, many of whom stand aghast for a moment on first entering the office.

Most of the revolvers, which have been taken off prisoners who were brought to the central station during Mr. Henderson's term of office are mounted on a large shield bearing the British coat of arms, while the remainder are affixed to a strip of walnut just beneath the shield. Besides the pistols the collection comprises a number of knives, many of which bear marks of long service. There are also four sets of steel knuckles, a lead sling, and surrounding the whole, a pair of nickel plated air guns taken from unruly boys.

A SHOWMAN'S OPINION

A New York show promoter and manager, writing a business letter to a member of the St. John Exhibition Association, said he had heard of the signing of a contract between the St. John show people and Baulow, the elephant trainer—he who made the New York Hippodrome famous—and asked if it was true. "If this is right," he wrote, "you have signed the best animal feature in the show business today." Along with Baulow's herd of African elephants in their amusing and thrilling feats, the St. John exhibition will have Wormwood's renowned, almost human, monkeys, the great collection of feathered wonders, Montague's cockatoos, and Wormwood's clever dogs. The San Francisco disaster as reproduced photographically by the wonderful Vitagraph motion pictures, the Bostonia Band of ladies and other special attractions will be at this great exposition of commerce, art, science, natural history, etc., from Sept. 1st to 28th next.

REV. A. H. C. MORSE

Rev. A. H. C. Morse, of Brooklyn, N. Y., will supply the pulpit of Brussels St. Baptist church tomorrow at both services and also on the Sunday following.

Mr. Morse is well known in St. John, having supplied in Brussels street church during the time the pastorate was vacant a few years ago.
