BEAUTIFUL SLUSH.

BY SEVERAL UNKNOWN AUTHORS.

Oh, the slush, the beautiful slush!
Mix'd with the mud in a savory mush, Soaking thro' rubber, and gaiters and shoes, Tempting to suicide, sorrow and blues!
Visions remorseful o'er memory rush—Once I was soft as the beautiful slush.

Once I believed in Committees of Health; Once I had visions of fairly won health; Sweetly I trusted Inspectors of Streets; Guilelessly thoughtless of sincere beats; Never conceiving the whitewashing brush That can beautify blackest political slush.

Oh, the slush, the beautiful slush!
Even a pavement inspector might blush; Even a mormail might murmur her hate If doomed to a worse than amphibious fate; Ever to paddle and jostle and crush, Half drowned in the beautiful city-made slush.

SELECT TALE.

THE DIAMOND CRESCENT.

BY ESTHER S. KENNETH.

Who is she? asked West, his eyes lighting up Blossy's governess, answered Mrs. Dayton very colly.

Stephanie, all unconscious, went quietly down the garden walk, leading the child by the hand.
Something in that fair young face won West Dayton's heart.

She looks young and sad, mother. I hope you are kind to her.

Certainly, replied Mrs. Dayton, indifferently.
He was lame on a furlough, young Captain Dayton, fresh from the land of Apaches, all courage, strength and happiness. At twenty-four one I, apt to be tender hearted, especially toward women; and if I say that the captain fell in love with Stephanie Allyn at first sight, I shall not be far wrong. He did not know that his mother intended him to marry his cousin Claudia Dare.

Claudia was a blooming rump, but an heiress—The Dayton of Flax Pond were not wealthy.
Stephanie was more properly Blossom's nurse, for she took the whole care of the child, besides teaching her. Mrs. Dayton was busy trying to keep up the appearance of her former station, which had once been of importance. But they were only in moderate circumstances now, and Mrs. Dayton's life was consumed in heart-burnings of envy at the prosperity of others.

But she was determined that West should make a wealthy marriage—that he should marry his cousin Claudia Dare.

West would as soon have married one of Blossy's rag dolls. Claudia had no more sense or sensibility.
Her only attractions were, her blooming health and animal spirits.

But this quiet governess of his little sister, sweet voiced, brown-eyed, tender and calm, she suited his mercurial blood-temperament to a charm.

Judge of Mrs. Dayton's horror when Blossy stole into her chamber one evening, and revealed that West was walking with Miss Allyn in the garden, and that he had kissed her!

She ran to the window and peeped out. Yes, there was Stephanie's white dress under the lindens tree, and West's tall, dark shadow figure close beside it. Mrs. Dayton's dark eyes scintillated.

He'll never rest now until she marries him!— He's like his father. I know him! What is to be done must be done quickly.

Mrs. Dayton slept little that night. The next morning her sharp black eyes saw a plain gold ring on Stephanie's hand. After breakfast she went to her room, sat down, and thought deeply.

She went to her dressing table at last, and unlocked a private drawer. From thence she took an old pencil-case, and unslipped it. Something flashed and dazzled within. It was a diamond crescent attached to a ribbon of blue silk.

But the diamonds were false. This was Mrs.
Dayton's secret. She had sold the jewels to pay off the mortgage, a very heavy one on her property, five years previously. Before that time her diamonds were noted; no one suspected the change.

She looked at the crescent a long time, morning thoughtfully. Yes, that will do, and put it away again.

As she locked the drawer, she seemed to falter for an instant. But just then, in the hall, she heard Stephanie laugh—a low soft laugh, a happy lightness in it such as she had never heard before.
She set her thin lips, turned away her dark eyes, penetrating again.

Shall I be ruined for that chit! she said scornfully.

The next day Claudia Dare was expected on a visit. Blossy and exultation as over, she came, and immediately challenged West's attentions.

She is my cousin, a jolly girl, but I do not love her, you know, said West, whispering to Stephanie in the hall as he went to order his horse saddled; for he was going to ride with Claudia. She delighted in races, adventures, and hairbreadth escapes.

They galloped away laughing. Stephanie watched them from the nursery window without a thought of envy. Mrs. Dayton, who had also watched their departure from the hall-door, came quickly up the stairs.

A few moments afterwards she sent for Stephanie to come to her chamber.

Her mind was finally set now. She began without finching:
Miss Allyn, I have missed a valuable article.
I have reason to suppose you have taken it.

A flash of the beautiful brown eyes, a blanching of the round cheek, but Stephanie did not, could not speak.

I have no expectation of recovering my diamond crescent, continued Mrs. Dayton. If you would conceive to rob me, you would plot to conceal your booty safely. But I hesitate about putting so young a girl in the hands of the police.

Good heavens! cried Stephanie, what are you talking about? Mrs. Dayton, you must be crazy.
I steal from you! Good heavens!

Those heroes are all wasted on me, Miss Allyn. But, as I said before, I hesitate at sending you to jail.

Stephanie turned deathly faint. She thought of her old parents, whose manstays she had been for years, of her young brothers looking to her for a sister's influence.

I will be merciful to you. Go to your room and pack your trunk. I must send you away, but you need not go without refuge, she heard Mrs. Dayton say.

Blindly she obeyed. What awful fate was this which had fallen upon her? She was bewildered with terror and grief. She hardly knew what she was doing as she mechanically placed her clothing in her trunk and locked it. But soon Mrs. Dayton stood beside her.

Here is a railroad ticket. Go to this address.
The people will receive you. You can hide your shame there until you repent. Go at once. Peter will take you to the depot; the train starts in half an hour.

Utterly broken and speechless, the poor girl passed out of her new paradise. Three hours of railroad travel, and she was set down at an old farmhouse on Mad River, where an aged couple, one blind, the other deaf, permitted her to alight with them.

West Dayton was not satisfied. It was so strange that Stephanie should leave Flax Pond on a visit to her family just then, when their relationship was new and so alluring. He tried to warn himself that perhaps he did not understand Stephanie, their acquaintance had been so brief.

Might she not as Mrs. Dayton intimated be a "light girl"?—had not his head been easily turned by a sybil-like figure, a pair of pale pink cheeks? But those brown eyes were true and pure in their depths; that he would swear to. He was restless, indifferent to his guest, unhappy. By no means could he find out where Stephanie had gone.

She said she wished to go home, said Mrs. Dayton, disapprovingly. I am indifferent about her coming back. I have observed several things in her character that I do not like.

At first he did not doubt that she would come back. One week went by, two, three, and she did not return.

His furlough was short, only two weeks more.
He could not give her up so. He looked wretched. Claudia pouted. Mrs. Dayton grew alarmed.

You surely were not in love with the girl?— she said, affecting amazement.

I do love her, mother! and she must be found!
He dashed forth. Cannot you find out where her home is?

I haven't the least idea, coldly.

He dashed away from her as she sat on the piazza, and strode down the garden. Little Blossy caught his arm and drew him to a seat.

I know where Miss Allyn is, West, and I want you to get her back.

Where is she, Blossom? catching the child on his knee.

Up Mad River, at old Grandmère Allyn's house.
Mamma told her that she stole her diamond crescent, and sent her off. But she didn't; it is in the little drawer now. I saw it. It most killed Miss Allyn. I like her; get her back, West. Mamma is cross to her.

With a cry of exultation, West Dayton tossed the child into the air, and then set her down—At dinner time he was missing.

Mad River brawled sullenly among its stones.
A horseman on its bank looked across with burning eyes. He had just escaped from a railroad disaster. His coat was torn, his right hand cruelly burned by steam, but he pressed on.

We must swim it, Prince. Get steadily, sir!
The noble animal breasted the tumultuous current, struggled up the opposite bank. It was night; a red light came out in the tumble-down old house where Stephanie lay languishing in a low fever, wretched, and longing for death. They were kind to her, the neglected old mother-in-law of the fashionable Mrs. Dayton, and her blind husband prayed for the sick girl night and morning.

The bounding look of a horse, a man's premptory voice, a well-known step—the fainting girl sprang up in her pillow, and was clasped to West Dayton's breast. Almost dying as she was, she yet wept with joy.

Darling! my precious! poor little bird, so cruelly used! he cried. But you are safe now, Stephanie. I stand between you and the world.

She was cherished back to life and strength—But she had been cruelly wounded, and she was so timid that he almost feared sometimes that her reason was affected. But she gained confidence with happiness, and they went out alone into the world together, husband and wife.

Mrs. Dayton read their marriage in a Washington paper, and turned very white. Claudia went home; with her disappeared all prospect of the Dare fortune.

Encounter with a Gorilla.

BY PAUL DU CHAILLU.

He was about twenty yards off when we first saw him. We sat once gathered together, and I was about to take aim and bring him down where he stood, when Malouen stopped me, saying, in a whisper, "Not time yet."

We too, then, for, in silence, gun in hand. The gorilla loomed at us for a minute or so out of his evil gray eyes, then beat his breast with his gigantic arm—and what arms he had!—then he gave another howl of defiance, and advanced upon us. How terrible he looked! I shall never forget it.

Again he stopped—not more than fifty yards away. Still Malouen said "not yet." Good gracious! what is to become of us! our guns miss fire, or if we only wound the huge beast?

Again the gorilla made an advance upon us.
Now he was not twelve yards off. I could see plainly his ferocious face. It was discolored with rage; his huge teeth were ground against each other, so that we could hear the sound; the skin of the forehead was drawn forward and back rapidly, which made his hair move up and down, and gave a truly frightful expression to the hideous face. Once more he gave out a roar which seemed to slush the woods like thunder; I could really feel the earth trembling under my feet. The gorilla, looking up in the eyes, and beating his breast, advanced again.

"Don't fire too soon," said Malouen; "if you do not kill him, he will kill you."

This time he came within eight yards of us before he stopped. I was breathing fast with excitement as I watched the gorilla come up. Then he stopped. Malouen said "now!" and before he could utter the roar for which he was opening his mouth, three musket-balls were in his body. He fell dead almost without a struggle.

He was a monstrous beast, but not, I think, not among the tallest. His height was five feet six inches. His arms had a spread of seven feet two inches. His broad, brawny chest measured fifty inches round. The big top of his foot measured five inches and three quarters in circumference. His arms seemed like immense bunches of muscle only; and his legs and claw-like feet were so well fitted for grasping and holding that I could see how easy it was for the negroes to believe that these animals, when they conceal themselves in trees and watch for prey, can seize and pull up with their feet any living thing, leopard, ox, or man, that passes beneath.

The face of this gorilla was intensely black.
The vast chest, which proved his great power, was bare, and covered with parchment-like skin. His body was covered with gray hair.
While the animal approached in its fierce way, walking on its hind legs, and facing us as but few animals dare face man, it really seemed to me to be a horrible likeness of man—

BORAX AS A CURE FOR COLDS.—During our changeable seasons, when there is an alteration of cold, warm, rainy, and foggy days, it is worth while to know that the Medical Record cites a number of cases in which Borax has proved a most efficient remedy in certain forms of colds. In sudden hoarseness or loss of voice from colds, sprains and singers have often obtained relief by slowly dissolving and partially swallowing a lump of borax the size of a pea before speaking or singing. This produces a profuse secretion of saliva, or "watering" of the mouth and throat, probably restoring the voice or tone to the dried vocal cords, just as "wetting" brings back the missing notes to a flute when it is too dry.

Is Pat Fleming on board this ship?
I rounded Nelson, during a fall in the firing at the battle of the Nile. "I'm here, my lord," said Fleming's son, showing himself on deck. "Then," said the gallant Nelson, looking satisfied, "the battle proceed." This victory is Pat's.

The Election Court.
The Election Court, which lately met in Montreal, adjourned until 21st inst. in order to hear counsel on certain points raised by Judge Mondrelet, arising out of the 92nd and 101st sections of the British North America Act. They are as follows:—

By the Imperial Act of 1867 the Provincial Parliaments have the exclusive power of organizing the local administration of justice. The judges are to be appointed by the Federal Government almost exclusively.

Can the Federal Parliament do indirectly what by the Imperial Act they cannot do directly—that is to say, by the Act of 1873, cap. 28, viz. appoint an election judge the judge of the Superior Court?

Can the Federal Parliament assign to additional judges duties different from and additional to those assigned to them by the Provincial Legislatures?

Quid as to section 101 of the Union Act—Additional Courts—are such courts to be any court, or courts connected with the Superior Courts only?

Are the election laws such laws as are called Dominion laws by section 101 of the Imperial Act, for the carrying out of which such additional courts may be necessary?

Is the Election Law of 1873 a confederated law—a law for the confederation such as mentioned in section 101 of the Imperial Act; or is it merely a sectional law, a law of a sectional character, creating sectional courts, i. e., Division of Quebec—Division of Montreal?

Can the appointments of judges by the Federal Legislature be constitutional and valid which require the authorization of the local Government?

If such appointments require such authorization are they those which the Federal Government alone and exclusively can make?

If judges are partly appointed by the Local Government and partly by the Federal Parliament (not by the Federal Government), is such appointment constitutional?

Could the Imperial Parliament interfere in any way with the provincial organization of the administration of justice and its judge?

THE EARLIEST STEAM BOATS.

Robert Fulton must be credited with the first successful application of steam to the propulsion of boats on the water. In 1807, after repeated trials and failures, he completed the experiment which so much astonished the simple minded people who witnessed the strange movements of the little "Clermont," as she slowly moved against the tide of the Hudson. This novelty in marine appliances was of 150 tons burden, her engine having been imported from Birmingham, England.

Though an unquestioned triumph, and one that has conferred lasting benefits upon mankind, a bolder conception was soon to follow, having its origin in Canada. The "Clermont" was only intended to navigate the placid waters of the Hudson river, but John Molson, of Montreal, launched, in 1809, the "Accommodation," of greater dimensions and capable of braving the turbulent St. Lawrence between that city and Quebec. This boat was finished with considerable elegance, and caused a sensation when she first appeared on her natural element. It is reported that she carried ten passengers on the trial trip, who were regarded as the bravest spirits in the city, willing to peril their lives for the experience of so novel a mode of travelling. When the boat reached Quebec all the inhabitants flocked to the river in order to obtain a view of the saucy craft, which glided through the water like a thing of life. Her safe arrival and successful working was celebrated as an event worthy of special regard, and the remainder of the day was given up to hilarious rejoicing. The fare for this pleasant "accommodation" was eight dollars down and nine dollars up, and the boat was well patronized. The "Accommodation" was the second boat propelled by steam built in America. It took her thirty six hours to sail from Montreal to Quebec, and considerably longer time to return. [From an article entitled "Canada's Early Marine," in New Dominion Monthly for March.]

MARRIAGE FOR MONEY.—An extremely sharp and intelligent American gentleman from the West once walked into the office of Dr. C. T. Jackson, the alchemist. "Dr. Jackson, I presume?" said he. "Yes, sir." "Are you alone?" "Yes, sir." "May I look the doctor?" "And he did so; then, having looked behind the sofa and satisfied himself that no one else was in the room, he placed a large bundle, doped up in a yellow handkerchief, on the table and opened it. "There, doctor, look at that!" "Well," said the doctor, "I see it, "What do you call that, doctor?" "I call it iron pyrites." "What?" said the man; "isn't that stuff gold?" "No," said the doctor "it's good for nothing; it's pyrites." And putting some over the fire in a shovel, it soon evaporated up the chimney. "Well," said the gentlemanly man, with a woebegone look "the doctor's a fellow up in our town has a whole bill full of that, and I've been and married her."

The pretty playfulness with which little children clear away the cares of their parents is illustrated by a touching occurrence in Indiana. A boy of six years, after watching the laundry proceedings, and especially the way in which the wrinkles in the linen disappear as the flatiron retired to meditate in the room where his father was taking his afternoon nap. There gazing upon the furrows which years of struggle had made upon the marble brow of his parent, he was seized by a beautiful idea. In less than a minute that devoted little boy was smoothing out those marks of time and sorrow with a very hot flatiron. Life doesn't seem so happy to his young heart now as it used to be.

A man in Yates county, N. Y., who has been an inveterate smoker for fifty years has suddenly and permanently given it up. He knocked the ashes of his pipe into a keg of blasting powder.

A young man in Indiana sued his father for loaned money, which the father claims was his own property. The latter's counsel, in summing up the case of his client, remarked:
"Twice has the prodigal returned to his father's house; twice has he been received with open arms; twice for him has the fattest calf been killed; and now he comes back and wants the old cow."

The Aldine

AN ILLUSTRATED MONTHLY JOURNAL, UNIVER-SALLY ADMITTED TO BE THE HANDSOMEST, PERIODICAL IN THE WORLD, A REPRESENTATIVE AND CHAMPION OF AMERICAN TASTE.

Not for Sale in Book or News Sticks.

THE ALDINE, which is issued with all the regularity, has none of the temporary or timely interest characteristic of ordinary periodicals. It is an elegant miscellany of pure, light and graceful literature; and a collection of pictures, the rarest specimens of artistic skill, in black and white. Although each succeeding number affords a fresh picture to its friends, the real value and beauty of THE ALDINE will be most appreciated after it has been bound up at the close of the year. The possessor of a complete volume cannot duplicate the quantity of fine paper and engravings in any other shape or number of volumes for ten times its cost; and then, there are the chromos besides!

ART DEPARTMENT, 1874.

The illustrations of THE ALDINE have won a world-wide reputation, and in the artistic circles of Europe it is an admitted fact that its wood cuts are examples of the highest perfection ever attained. The common prejudice in favor of "steel plates," is rapidly yielding to a more educated and discriminating taste which recognizes the advantages of superior artistic quality with greater liberty of production. The wood-cuts of THE ALDINE possess all the delicacy and elaborate finish of the most costly steel plate, while they afford a better rendering of the artist's original.

In addition to designs by the members of the National Academy, and other noted American artists, THE ALDINE will reproduce examples of the best foreign masters, selected with a view of the highest artistic success and greatest general interest. Thus the subscriber to THE ALDINE will, at a trifling cost, enjoy in his own home the pleasures and refining influences of true art.

The quarterly tinted plates for 1874 will be by Thos. Moran and J. D. Woodward.

The Christmas issue for 1874 will contain special designs appropriate to the season, by our best artists, and will surpass in attractions any of its predecessors.

PREMIUM FOR 1874.

Every subscriber to THE ALDINE for the year 1874 will receive a pair of chromos.
The original pictures were painted in oil for the publishers of THE ALDINE, by Thos. Moran, whose great Colorado picture was purchased by Congress for ten thousand dollars. The subjects were chosen to represent "The East" and "The West." One is a view in the White Mountains, New Hampshire; the other gives The Cliffs of Green River, Wyoming Territory. The difference in the nature of the scenes themselves is a pleasing contrast, and affords a good display of the artists scope and coloring. The chromos are each worked from thirty distinct plates, and are in size (12x16) and appear as exact fac-similes of the originals. The presentation of a worthy example of America's greatest landscape painter to the subscribers of THE ALDINE was a bold but peculiarly happy idea, and its successful realization is attested by the following testimonial over the signature of Mr. Moran himself.

NEW YORK, N. Y., Sept. 20th, 1873.
Messrs. JAMES MUTTON & Co., Publishers of THE ALDINE, New York.
Gentlemen,—I am delighted with the proofs in color of your chromos. They are wonderfully successful representations, by mechanical processes, of the original paintings.
Very respectfully,
THOS. MORAN.
(Signed.)

TERMS.

$5 per annum in advance, with bill chromos free.
For 50 CENTS EXTRA, the chromos will be sent mounted, varnished and prepaid by mail.

THE ALDINE will, hereafter, be obtainable only by subscription. There will be no reduced or club rate; cash for subscription must be sent to the publishers direct, or handed to the local canvasser, without responsibility to the publishers, except in case where the certificate is given, bearing the ac-simile signature of JAMES MUTTON & Co.

CANVASSERS WANTED.

Any person wishing to act permanently as a local canvasser will receive full and prompt information by applying to JAMES MUTTON & Co., Publishers, 28 Maiden Lane, New York.

secretions of the liver, and generally restor-
