ANOTHER BOY SEIZED

But the Latter Was Able to Shake Off His Grasp—Coroner Decided That Inquest Was Unnecessary.

Willie Jones, a 10-year-old charge of the Protestant Orphans' Home, was drowned in the north branch of the Thames at the foot of Regent street yesterday afternoon at 2:30. The little lad, who was with James Dean, a 16year-old boy, who lives at 903 Richmond, could not swim, and while in the water with Dean, slipped off a large stone, and pulled Dean under the water with him. His companion, who is not a very good swimmer, freed himself and struck out blindly for the other bank of the river, and just reached there in time, as he felt a cramp coming on as he reached the bank. As soon as he was able he notified the people of the neighborhood, who immediately 'phoned the police, but the body was not found until four minutes

Went for a Swim.

The little Jones lad had been delivering parcels for Mrs. Skinner, who has a store at the corner of Richmond and Louisa streets, and where young Dean lives. Yesterday was the usual half-holiday, and after finishing his delivery, he asked Dean to take him to the river for a swim. They arrived at the river about 2 o'clock, and immediately entered the water, but as it was very cold, the little boy commenced to cry, and Ed. Jury, of West London, who was fishing on the same bank of the river as the boys were on, told Dean to hurry and dress the boy and to take him home. The boys left the water, and the last that Jury saw the river bank. It seems that Jones the institution, has tendered his resignaof them they were building a fire on asked to be taken in again, and the flon, and will leave shortly for Vantwo boys hand-in-hand entered the water again. He The step came as a great surprise to the rose to the surface again, but several members of the board of education. Dr. the river, made no effort, it is alleged, to help rescue him. One of them, however, walked several feet into the water, hack saving that he could not see the body.

Police and Friends Were Notified. A 'phone message was sent to the police station from the residence of Mr. John Trott, in West London, and the city police notified the fire department and High Constable Hughes, who immediately dispatched County Constable Corsaut to the scene with grappling irons. Corsaut arrived at the scene of the drowning about 3:15, and commenced trolling for the body. Wm. Cushing and Dean entered the water and looked for the body for nearly an hour, but without avail. Fred Bryan. a member of the fire department, soon arrived on the scene and assisted the others in the search for the body.

Chief Aitken, along with Firemen Tom Tozer and Putherbough, soon arrived, bringing with them a boat from Whit. Lancaster's boathouse at the foot of Dundas street, and the chief and Tozer commenced dragging the riverbed near the spot where Jones was said to have disappeared.

Search for the Body. Putherbough, John Brennan, and Wilkinson entered the water and assisted in the search. At four minutes to seven Tozer brought the body to the surface, nearly 60 feet up the river from the spot where the boy was stated to have sank. The body was carried to the shore and placed in a wagon of the fire department, and Coroner Maclaren was notified. Much time was lost in the search owing to the statement that the accident happened at the north end of Wellington street, and also the wrong directions given to the searchers by the spectators. The body was found lying between two large stones, and it seemed as if the boy had been caught between them after he disappeared for the second time. The water at the point where the body was discovered was comparatively shallow, being about four feet deep, and twenty-five feet from the east bank of the river.

No Inquest. Dr. Maclaren, after hearing the story of young Dean and consulting with the crown attorney, decided that an inquest was unnecessary, as death was due to accidental drowning. The body was removed to the undertaking parlors of John Ferguson & Sons. funeral arrangements have not yet been

The Jones boy had been a resident of a local home for the past four years. His father was killed in an accident some years ago in the Grand Trank yards, and his mother. Mrs. Next, who is married a second time, is a resident of Strathroy. The official guardian Mr. Harcourt, of Toronto, looked after his interests. A brother and sister of the boy are also inmates of the link.

SENSATIONAL STATEMENTS MADE IN NEW YORK GAMBLING CASE

Gun Men Now Offer to Confess-Would Have Shot Rosenthal Sooner but for Accident-Paid Grafters Over Ten Million a Year to Keep Quiet.

[Canadian Press.] New York, Aug. 1 .- Steps toward the plicating Police Lieutenant Becker in the murder of the gambler, Herman Rosenthal, are to be taken carefully and slowly that, as District Attorney Whitman says, the "whole truth of the relations between the gamblers and the oolice will come out."

Satisfactory progress is being made by District Attorney Whitman in supplying the missing links in the confes-sion of "Bald Jack" Rose, "Bridgle" and Talbot street, has been the cause of much unfavorable comment for several months, and numerous complaints have been made to City Engineer Wright regarding it. He has been in communication with the War-condition at the present time."

Tived today, and will be put to work as soin as Jack Rose, Bridgie Webber and Harry Vallon, who, in their stories to the public prosecutor, said that Becker instigated them in the killing of Rosenthal, that the gambler might be silenced before he could be provided the present time.

Important Confirmation. District Attorney Whitman says has obtained some important testimony confirming parts of Rose's and Webber's story, that they met Lieutenant Becker by appointment after the murder. Two restaurant employees, according to the state's attorney, have given the information that they saw Becker talking with Rose and Weber on Forty-second street after the kill-ng. District Attorney Whitman, who has been advised by several supreme court justices to go slow, said today that, in addition to the testimony of the restaurant employees, he had received information from other sources tending to corroborate Rose, Webber and Valion. The prosecutor said:

"I am confident that the whole truth positively identified as one of the gun-

"The court of appeals has held that there must be some corroboration of the testimony of accomplices. tablishment of a motive is corroboration. There is no doubt in my mind that the motive has been established. "The intimate relations between Becker and Rosenthal, their quarrel, the fear of Rosenthal of Becker, the accusations against Becker, the killing itself, the meeting of Becker and Rose after the killing, all point to one thing."

Assumes Full Charge.

The whole conduct of the investigation by the district attorney has been assumed by himself, and he is not con-ferring with the police officials. The prosecutor is using his own staff and private detectives to supply him with ecessary information. The grand jury will probably not continue its investigation into the Rosenthal case for a few days, or until such time as the district attorney has more needed testimony in hand. Whitman is investigating stories that Becker is worth nearly a million dollars.

Important Witnesses. "Dago Frank" Cirofici and Shapiro, the chauffeur and joint owner of the murder car, were taken before the grand jury today. The inference was that "Dago Frank" had confessed, as has been reported, and that his statements were of sufficient importance to warrant his being taken immediately before the grand jury. Mr. Whitman said that "Dago Frank" has been

May Reach $10,000,000. New York, July 31.—Further sen-sational developments in regard to gombling conditions have developed and it is now believed that the graft-ers were getting between $10,000,000 and $12,000,000 every year for winking at the proceedings.

Rose did his best to convince the district attorney that the total profits of the graft game in the whole city would astonish anybody if the figures could be obtained. He insisted that most of the money Becker raked in came from above Fourteenth street in Manhattan alone, and that clean-up from all the boroughs would run into many millions. There were other hard-handed crooks than Becker, said Rose. Convinced that all hope of assistance from policemen or politicians had vanished, the three whose confessions trought about the indictment and imprisonment of Lieut. Becker for murder, told the dirict attorney that the lieutenant not only drove them to the crime, but that he forced Bridgie Webber to pay for it. A few minutes after Resenthal was killed, Webber, threatened by Becker, gave Rose $1,000 in large bills. Rose turned the blood money over to Sam Schepps, and Schepps handed it to Gip the Blood and Lefty Louie on the Seventh avenue side of the Times building on the Tuesday afternoon after the killing.

Previous Attempts Failed. They revealed also a story which had never been hinted at. Ten days before the murder an attempt was made to kill Herman Rosenthal while he sat-at dinner with his wife in the garden following them. So they sneaked back to Becker and told him that the Becker says Rose and Webber, damned them for cowardly rats, and said he would have to do the job alone.

Perhaps the most distinct advance that was made today was Sam Schepps' offer to surrender to the district attorney and to tell the truth about the murder. They even showed their books to convince the collectors that Bridgie Webber told Mr. Whitman that he paid $200 a month, but that only $125 of it went to Becker. Rose got $50, and $25 went to another man who had to be pleased. Webber said that the rake-off ran from $200 to $250 a month from the smallest kind of games, even the cheap crap rooms, to $1,000 in the big "and high-class houses."

SHOT BECAUSE SHE REFUSED ICE CREAM

Man Wanted to Treat, But Woman and Her Friends Refused Offer.

LONDON THURSDAY, AUG. 1. ANOTHER CHICAGO DRAMA.

The stage is being set at Chicago for unother political drama. Many in the iudience-which is the whole Amerian people-look on it as farce comedy. That there will be a touch of meloone of the greatest social and po- brotherhood is there. can compare with it in importance.

The Republican party, the party of method successful. It may be that she unless they had their way and the Lincoln, the offspring of the anti- is herself the chief part of her system. popular opinion is grossly deceived. gave birth to the Republican party, is from an examinational, inspectorial, not a long-drawn process, but has come with the suddenness of an explosion. A year ago it was undreamed of unless it lurked in the mind of one man. Even man, two months ago the organization of a new party by Theodore Roosevelt was not contemplated by the public.

Students of politics will ask if this phenomenon is built on nothing more substantial than the egoism of a single person. Roosevelt, of course, vehemently denies this, and contends that it is the product of long-decloping forces suddenly finding political expression. He claims to be the prophet of the majority who have been ruled and exploited by the minority. His sincerity Henri Bourassa, would be less open to question if he showed a disposition to attack the abuses of the tariff, which have been the root of much of the evil. But millions of his countrymen are dazzled by his superhuman energy and selfconfidence, and are not in the frame of mind to critically examine his po-

"Against the steady, ceaseless economic strain of the hungry markets from which the Canadian farmer is artificially debarred, neither the empty parade of a pre-ference which offers him less than nothing, nor the Jingoism of a po-litical creed with which he has nothing in common, can prevail in the long run. But their failure seems more imminent and more generally anticipated than at the moment of the general election anywould have ventured to imagine.'

The preference mentioned by the Daily News is the one offered by the British tariff "reformers." It would unless it raised the price of their classes which the tariff reformers asif it happened, the British market could not take care of one-quarter of the wheat that will be produced in Canada within five years. Great Britair buys 200,000,000 bushels annually from all the countries of the world. Canada last year produced 205,000,000 bushels, and this year will produce between 250,000,000 and 300,000,000 bushels. Great Britain will continue to import freely from Australia and India, and even under a preferential system would still draw to some extent upon Russia, Argentina and foreign countries. In no, circumstances could Canada hope to sell even 100,-000,000 bushels annually to Great Britain.

The Daily News is, therefore, perfeetly accurate in saying that a British preference would be ineffectual against "the steady ceaseless economic strain of the hungry markets from which the Canadian farmer is artificially debarred." And it is equally accurate in saying that the prospects of the adoption of reciprocity between the United States and Canada, and of the success of the Canadian Liberal party, are brighter than at the moment of the Canadian general election anyone would have ventured to imagine. For that is what the Daily News means in the last sentence of the paragraph quoted.

A NEW METHOD OF TEACHING. The talk of the hour in educational circles is apt to be "the Montessori method." Dr. Maria Montessori, of Rome, has been well known in Europe for some years. Now her fame has filtered over amongst us.

Her method of teaching follows lines already suggested by a French educationalist, Edward Seguin. Its keynote is liberty, the spontaneous development of the child. It requires close observation, and an intimate knowledge of experimental psychology Its main deviation from Freehel's method is that while Froebel encouriged concerted action Dr. Montessori endeavors to secure individual action

Her special work has been the education of neglected and even "idiot" children up to the standards required of normal public school pupils. She got them to pass the usual primary examinations. Of course she found it necessary to teach more than the regulation five hours a day. She had to get a more complete hold of the children, planting her school in the home itself, and training from 8 in the morning till 7 in the evening-the whole day. The home thus becomes, he school, and any evil influences are warded off. There is a recognition here that environment is mightier than tendencies in the blood. Eugenics is put on the defensive by Dr. Montessori's success. The "Children's House" was the transformation by day of great barracks in which the working poor live by night. THE BATTLE IN ENGLAND.

[Toronto Star Weekly.]
This then is the real battle in England—the redistribution of property. Over here in Canada, where we play politics for small points, it is hard to understand the big stakes and the big moves in the life-and-death game across the water. The Asquith Governthe children to be ment is trying to help the people. If it moves slowly it is because it has to move that way or not at all. If it bends to class pressure it is because bending is better than breaking. It would not mend matters to have a Lib-eral Government out and a Unionist Government in. All it has been able to do so far is to render first aid to the injured. The battle is a long way from being won. Victory will be in sight only when manhood franchise has been achieved.

vould even welcome war as a diversion from the pending reforms is not to be doubted. In time of war the people of a nation will stand together and do-mestic grievances be forgot. But the Asquith Government is handling the present situation, and there will be no war unless Germany makes it.

INSULTING TO CANADIANS.

[Winnipeg Free Press.]
Mr. Bourassa, in a word, is seeking to realize his ambition of being a power at Ottawa by veiled threats that unless he is recognized and his terms acceded to, it will be the worse for British connection. In this he is but following the example of the opponents of reciprocity who in the Dominion general election campaign last year made use of representations that it would be the worse for British connection. If we are to have this continual setting forth, in various ways, of the doctrine that Canada's national what is the end going to be? Every self-respecting Canadian should regard it as the first duty which he owes his country to do his part in making and patriotism of Canadians.

ACTION AND BUNKUM. [Toronto Star.]

The London Daily Express, we are nformed, makes great play with Hon. G. E. Foster's telling message to England from Canada, delivered at a great when he asked: "Why give the children's bread to trangers

One is tempted to ask whether imperial trade is likely to be advanced by action, or by bunkum rhetoric About fifteen years ago, after a flow of bunkum rhetoric, a quiet, businesslike man named William S. Fielding came to the House of Commons and announced that British manufacturers would be admitted into Canada at rec-fourths of the regular duties. Two years later the British preference was increased to two-thirds. At once the question of preferential trade, which had been an elegant p. time for gentlemen of leisure, became practical. Son ething had been dore. British trade with Canada,

What in the name of truth and common sense does Mr. Foster mean by "giving the children's bread to strangers"? Great Britain refuses to tax her children's bread. Mr. Foster wants it taxed for our benefit, as he imagines-probably still more for the benefit of wealthy Apparently, in Mr. Foster's opinion the children to be considered are not the poor little whaifs of London, but the wealthy, thriving colonies and the British landowning peers. We are the children. We are placed by Mr. Foster in the position of the big boys of the family howling for favors, howling for taxation on the bread of the little children of England. This is his conceptio to do so far is to render first aid to the injured. The battle is a long way from being won. Victory will be in sight only when manhood franchise has been achieved.

ANDREW LANG ON JOHN KNOX

(By Special Arrangement With the Winnipeg Telegram.]

To begin where I left off yesterday. let me add that in his History of Scotland Mr. Lang does not strike me as being fair to John Knox and the preachers of the Reformation. Whenever he gets a chance he brings down his hammer on the hard head of Knox. He dwells with delight on the saying of a correspondent of Cecil that Knox grew more "bytter" in his sermons after he married his young wife, Marjory Bowes, of Berwick. Mr. Lang also tells with wicked glee the story of Knox as a suitor for the hand of the fair Marjory. It seems that Mrs. Bowes, the elderly mother, a weman of fifty or thereabouts, a lady given up to fits of the religious blues. called in the celebrated divine when he was stationed in Berwick, to consult him about her spiritual welfare. But while the estimable mother blew off her religious vapors in solemn conversation with the great preacher, Mr. Lang declares that the man of God was more interested in the beauty of the daughter than in the melancholia of the mother. Anyway, he married the young girl when he himself was verging on fifty. And, says Mr. Lang maliciously, "The older Knox grew. the younger did he like his wives to

This is scarcely the comment that we should expect from a scientific historian, who carefully eliminates his own personal likes and dislikes from the printed page, But, as I have said, wherever Mr. Lang can get in a crack at Knox or his stormy associates, he eagerly seizes the occasion. He even goes so far as to accuse Knox of cowardice, asserting that, while upon occasion he could be brave enough, at other times he kept in a safe place himself, although advising others to step into the breach. I cannot imagine that this charge can be proved against the old Scottish lion. I am sure that Mr. Lang has not given the reformers credit enough for their honesty of purpose and consistency in policy in their dealing with the other party.

Mr. Lang is at his best in his biography of Prince Charles Edward. mal consent of the other Christian He has steered the middle course She began with of impartiality here, where in all of his writings it must have been most failed to show herself equal to the difficult. Mr. Lang, like so many of job. She has caught a tartar and cantions, honored Prince Charlie, because he was the object of so much love and devotion from brave men and women, rather than because of the prince's rille was the first person in Bell own claim to love. Consider the love county to procure a hunter's license. Of the Highlanders for their young prince when it is remembered that afably kills more squirreis than any one hunter in the county. He is always accompanied by his wife; when the price was put upon his head, a price was put upon his head, a price was put upon his head, a price was put upon his head. has ever placed on the head of any enemy of the crown, the young Chevalier wandered through the Highlands for five months and three days, and was never betrayed by his own.

In his early career, down to the time when he escaped to France, Prince Charles Edward was most attractive in manner and person, the very embodiment of chivalry and grace. Mr. Lang shows that the prince was a brave man. "He had," he says, spirit, personal courage, and when he chose, an accomplished address, and distinguished manner." When he was a youth in Italy the prince practiced walking in his bare feet in order that he might be able to endure long military marches, and we find that, later on, when he was striking for a throne, he surprised his loyal clansmen by being able to walk farther and drink more whiskey than the Highlanders themselves. In his campaign in Scotland and England, Prince Charles was all dash and optimism and generosity; he carried himself like a true prince, but in his after career, when he settled down to the life of a sot and a royal beggar, his character lost all its gathering of peers and members of chivalric brightness, its greatness, and parliament at the Constitutional Club, glory. And his is where Mr. Lang's bravery is shown. Jacobite as he was, he told the stern truth about the miserable later years of Bonnie Prince Charlie. It was a hard task for a Scot, but he did it in the interests of truth; he even wrote a book, "Pickle, the Spy," in which he tried to prove that the Chevalier and Pickle were one and the same person. Devotion to truth could carry a lover of the House of Stuart into no sadder duty than this. Thanks to Andrew Lang, however, we know Queen Mary and Prince Charlie in a more intimate and human way than our grandfathers before us or any previous generation.

Names of Cloth

Muslin is named from Mosul, a city on the banks of the Tigris; Cambrid from Cambria, a town of France. Gauze is probably derived from Gaza in Syria, although some authorities hold to the Hindu "gazi," meaning thin cloth.

Baize, which is commonly thought of as being of green hue, was named frem its original color, a reddish brown. The word is really the plural of "bay," and the color is that of the horse which is known as "bay." A form of the word is common in many ongues. Damask, quite obviously, is derived rom Damascus. Silk and serge are both derived from the Latin Seres, meaning the Chinese. These fabrics were first imported from that portion of Asia which is now

Southern China. Velvet is from the Italian velluto, meaning woolly, this from the Latin vellus, a fleece. Vellum is a derivative of the same root—a pelt or hide. Bandanna is from the Indian word meaning to "bind or tie," and has reference to the manner of tying knots in the fabric to prevent he dye from reaching every part thereof. In this way spots are left white and a rude pattern remains in the cloth.

Alpaca comes from the animal of he same name in Peru. It is of the llama species, and its wool is used to nanufacture the fapric employed in the making of summer garments. Calico got its name from Calicut, a towa in India, once celebrated for its

We could see her, the Society Woman and I, as we stood yeserday at a second-story window on Richmond street—could see into the estaurant kitchen in which she worked-the cherries she had been canning and the pile of doughnuts on the table. Prosaic, plain, and uninteresting! urned away.

But presently a whoop of childish glee wafted to us. A patter of tiny feet on the courtyard path, and in a trice the big woman was crushing in her arms a rosy little chap of some five years. What tender caresses they exhanged as he prattled to "muvver" of "p'ayg'ounds and teeters." As we turned away again, not wishing to pry too closely, I caught a slimpse of the mother's face. Prosaic and homely now? Not a bit of it. Love had wrought an almost unbelievable transformation. Looking up suddenly, I saw tears in the eyes of the Society Woman, and realized that her motherheart was hungering for one other lit-tle boy who had flown from her arms into the Angel-land above. Verily, it is each heart that knows its own sorrows, and a full purse is one of the least of ife's possessions.

This charming hat for a young girl is both smart and dainty, and is well suited to its youthful wearer. The shape, a deeply-slooping mushroom effect, with crown and brim blending into one, is faced with dark velvet, and the trimming of moss roses seems to emanate from the centre of the crown, where is a big crisp bow of pink flowered Dresden ribbon. The brim is divided at the back and there is an opening, which shows the young miss's black velvet, faced with green, at the only trimming.

The other hat is a French design, made of lace and trimmed with white ribton. Around the inside of the ribton. Around the inside of the brim is a row of pink roses and brim is a row of pink roses and sample. Story of a Drudge-Husband By Winnifred Black.

[Copyright: 1912.]
"My husband is a good man. He has never said an unkind word to me since I've been his wife. He is hard working, devoted, honest, but he is a drudge—just a plain every-day drudge, and he never will be anything

"My school girl companions who married when I did have gone on and on with their husbands. One of them has an automobile, one has a beautiful home of her own, and one has just gone to Europe on a pleasure trip and here I am tied down to the drudge in the same house we took when we were married.

"My girls go to a public school and learn public school ways. I don't mind for myself, I am not mercenary, but I do hate to see my poor daughters grow up in this mismable must in this miserable rut.

"I simply can't stand it. I have a chance now to go into business for myself. It will take me away from home, and I am going o put my girls in school and go, wouldn't you?"

Nice confidential letter, isn't it? And the worst of it is that it is miserably, undeniably true, every single word of it, and then some more. I know a dozen just such cases. They differ in particulars—one man has a pretty home, one draws a salary, one gets wages; one man has girls to support; one has boys, and one has only his wife, who despises him for being what she loves to call a "drudge." It is sad, isn't it?

And yet, somehow, I always wonder how much better the woman who prides herself on her "ambition" is than the drudge who irritates her so.

It is very easy to be ambitious for someone else. I wonder how much headway that same woman would make with the work the "drudge" does so faithfully and well.

faithfully and well.

BELIEVE IN HIM. What does your husband have to make him "ambitious," dear woman? How do you help him, pray tell? By nagging him and making fun of him? That's a good way, isn't it? Why don't you try another one for a change? I've seen a very commonplace man made over into a comparative success just by the faith him wife heal in him.

ess, just by the faith his wife had in him.

Have you tried believing in the drudge to see what that would do? You Have you tried believing in the drudge to see what that would do? You can't nag a man at home and expect him to bear himself like a man away from home. It takes courage and spirit and will power to fight a way up in the world, and if you take all these things out of a man before he leaves the house, what weapons has he to make the fight "Ambitious!" How do you know whether he's ambitious or not? What do you call ambition anyway? The wish to get rich?

Fine, noble work that is, isn't it? Selling the body and the soul and the heart and the mind to leave a fine monument and a rich widow? It's all heart and the mind to leave a fine monument and a rich widow? It's all well enough to get rich, but, why make yourself believe that you have "high ideals" just because you want an automobile and want the drudge to get it, Don't be too sure that you are so much cleverer and so much finer in ment will be your greatest need in the group way than the drudge. He may have his own ideas on the subject even though he does not think it necessary to nag you about them.

LOVE BETTER THAN WEALTH.

What shall you do? Why, what in the name of common sense is there for you to do but to stick to your bargain and make the best of it? It's good morals, good sense, and good religion, nothing else will do at all.

Your children! What do you expect to make of your children if you run way from their father because he doesn't "get on?"

I'd rather give my children their start in life in a happy home, a home where there's love and trust, and faith, and courage, and patience, and nobility of heart, than to send them to the finest school on earth and pay for that nooling in the bitter coin of estrangement from all that really counts. You can get "schooling" in the books-lots of it-and books come cheap You can't learn patience, and love, and truth, and forbearance in any book in the world but the good old book of life, and home is the very best place to study that.

Here's today—fresh, hopeful, wide-awake today, splendid today, glorious today—full of promise, full of possibilities; let's make those promises come true, every one of them.

Forget all this "higher ideal" twaddle; stop thinking of the automobile we can't get and go to work—here—in the place where we belong, in our own home, with our own children and the man who loves them. Get the poor drudge the best breakfast you can buy with the money you have to spend; serve it as prettily as possible, with a smile, too; that counts—oh, how much does it count! Put your heart in the coffee: Put your brain into those biscuits, send your little girls off to school with the "common" children with an "uncommon" song in their happy hearts.

ENCOURAGE—DON'T NAG. It takes so little to do that—a new joke, a little story, a word of extra praise. When they come home be waiting for them. You, yourself—not the we want the corners of her mouth drawn down, the one they've seen at the door so often; not the woman who is mad because she hasn't any automobile, not the woman who is sick with envy because she can't go to Europe, mobile, not the woman who is sick with envy because she can't go to Europe, but YOU, the mother they love and understand, the mother they idolize.

At night surprise the drudge with a good dinner, a really good dinner. Give him a smile with it, and the same look you had when you thought he was the One Great man of the earth. Why, even the office boy will notice a different set to the shoulders of the "drudge" when he gets to work tomorrow, the set of the shoulders of a man who is loved and looked up to and believed the Mayle he will ease to be a drudge.

Maybe he will cease to be a drudge. Give him a chance; give him a chance. Forget your dreams and your

Give him a chance; give him a chance. Forget your dreams and your ambitions, forget everything but the drudge and the children. The drudge who stood by you in your hour of agony, the drudge who would cut off his hand at the wrist to make you and the children happy.

Come, come, my dear, life is with you, good, wholesome, sensible, lusty, kindly, generous, simple life—life with its thirsts and the drink to slake them, life with its fatigue and the good rest to relieve it. Life with its tears and its laughter—for you can't spare either of these twin sisters and really live. Live every minute of it, with your heart and your brain and your soul, and win the right to the glory of it every minute you breathe. and win the right to the glory of it every minute you breathe.

And peace go with you, you and the good kind drudge, who may not be such a drudge after all if you give him a chance, and the children who will rise up and call you blessed, as they would never learn to do in any school except the school of a happy and an honest home.

[BY JINX.]

Mr. Knaughty Lee and his splendid collection of antiques, including such rare specimens as J. Methuselah Keenan, Old-Timer Bill Crystal, and the one and only Willie Lane were hauled into town yesterday for a brief sojourn. Just to make it seem like old times, Mr. Barrett and his crowd treated them and a large multitude of the home folks to a real nice ball game at the local hat box across the river, and Mr. Lee and his ancients were handed the thin end of a 4 to 2 score. Just to enliven the doings, Mr. Lee coralled a beautiful line of talk and directed it in bunches at Mr. Bill Peardirected it in bunches at Mr. Bill Pearson, one of Jimmy Fitzgerald's deciders. Result—Mr. Lee beats it for the exit to the accompaniment of slow music from the Hamilton dugout and a few glad cries on the part of the home folks.

BIG LEAD IN FIRST SESSION.

As we murmurad before, it was some pastime, with the home help providing the some. Mr. Bill Crystal, who began his career in the Canadian League back in the old army days endeavored to continue the thems. in the old army days endeavored to southpaw the Hams back onto a winning streak. But Mr. Crystal's peddlings were pounced upon by Mr. Barrett's binglers, and with the aid of some loose work on the rart of the ancient William himself, a large leaf of three healthy markers was accumulated in the opening space. To accumulated in the opening spasm. To Mr. Lee's laundry-workers this looked like a heap, and they were never able to like a heap, and they were never able to overcome it.

Outside of the excitement caused by the bouncing of Knaughty, and the first appearance of Jo Jo Keenan, who is still defying the Aged People's Home, the home folks pulled off some happy stuff in the way of fielding and batting stunts. Mr. Cocash was the mighty swat artist of the afternoon. "Coke" had stunts. Mr. Cocash was the mighty swat artist of the afternoon and in the hit column it will be seen that Mr. Cocash got no less than three safe bingles out of four attempts. This is some pelting with a new stick.

Mr. Fox was another gentleman who introduced some brilliant bits into the occurrence. This boy pulled off a sensational catch in the fourth inning, when he grabbed Crystal's high fly after a long run. Frank went down on his knees to make the grab, but he clutched the ball when it hit his mitt. The catch saved a lot of trouble, for it was in this chapter that Lee's lemons were making their one and only bid for the soirce.

Mr. Oskee Neale also pulled off some scintillating stuff in the ninth inning. Oskee delayed it a trifle late, but it counted just the same. He was one of the best the Tri-State League. He was one of the best twirlers that the Tri-State League ever turned out, and silent old Connie Mack, who, has been accused of kidnapping youngsters from the cradles of the minors and developing them into real ball players, had already east his eye upon him. In 1909 Mack drafted Barrett, and the latter was to report for the training trip of 1910. However, an accident occurred before that time that dashed Barrett's hopes of ever breaking into the big league. He was showing a catcher how to throw to second base one soggy day at Niagara University, and while making the throw with his arm cold, he tore a cartilage in his arm. The injury was a serious one, and it practically put Barrett out of the game for good as a pitcher. Since then he has passed up baseone, and it practically put Barrett out of the game for good as a pitcher. Since then he has passed up baseball as a player, and confined himself to managing the university team. He was negotiating with the Trenton team in the Tri-State League for the management position when the London terms were offered him.

Benny Speer, One of the Best Catchers in Canadian League

Benny Speer, that broad little bunch of humanity who injects pepper into the London team from the backstop position, is playing a great game these days. Benny drifted into the Canadian League last season with St. Thomas, and his work was not up to the standard. He finished the season with Guelph, and this spring was taken on the spring training trip of the Toronto International League team. This is where Benny began to improve. He showed Joe Kelley and his bunch of Leafs that he had the making of a good catcher, and when Kelley sent him on to London it was with a label of approval. Since joining the London team Speer has improved a hundred per cent, and right now is one of the best catchers in the

Frank Bowerman, one of the greatest catchers of all times, taught Speer many things about the backstop position, and the little New Yorker was quick to pick them up. Benny is having a great sea-son, there is no doubt about that, and he s one of the most popular players on the team. He is full of pepper, and while behind the bat keeps the team on its feet with a continuous line of rapid-fire talk, which not only interests the fans but keeps the players in the game as well. Speer is sudden death on foul flies, and the way he has been pulling them in lately borders on the sensational. The players on the other teams in the league do not despise his throwing arm, and of late very few men have stolen second base on him. His pegging lately has been excellent, and his hitting is also

Mrs. G.: Powder covers up but does not correct complexion faults. Use this simple lotion and your skin will assume its former youthful clearness and take on a charming tint: Dissolve 4 ounces spurmax in half pint witch hazel (or hot water), and pour in 2 teaspoonfuls glycerine. Using the spurmax lotion in place of powder overcomes the shiny, oily appearance and gives to a coarse, lifeless skin an exquisite fineness and healthy look. Even in hottest weather it is only necessary to apply the spurmax lotion once a day, because perspiration does not spot it, and then, too, it is invisible when on.

URGES REFORM IN SCHOOL CURRICULUM

NURSE'S BODY FOUND; MURDER SUSPECTED

Following Identification, Police Fear That Miss Snodgrass Was Poisoned.

Catskill, N. Y., July 31.—The body of a girl found in Catskill Creek was identified today as that of Dorcas Ijams Snodgrass, a nurse, who disappeared July 17 after leaving the home of her sister, Mrs. John L. Crider, in the Chester Hill section of Mount Vernon, for a shopping tour in New York

Afterwards identification of the body was made by Frederick Schmidt, the young woman's flance, an electrical contractor of Mount Vernon, and by Police Lieutennt M. I. Silverton of the same place. How the body came to be in the ant M. creek, a tortuous stream, is a mystery. No marks of violence were found. One theory put forth was that the girl might have been drugged or poisoned, and thrown into the creek. There was no water in the lungs.

District Attorney Howard C. Wilbur decided to order an autopsy in the hope of clearing up the mystery as to the cause of death.

Coroner Branch was inclined to accept the possibility that Miss Snodgrass ended her life. Color was lent to this theory by the statement of Mount Vernon relatives of Miss Snodgrass that prior to her disappearance she suffered greatly from the heat. "bandit"

Ealing and Pottersburg Meetings Agree to the Terms of Annexation to City.

CITY'S CASE IS STATED

Both Suburbs Are To Be Given a Fixed Tax Rate of Fifteen Mills for Fifteen Years.

A large meeting was held in Ealing n connection with the proposed annexation of that district by the city in the Hamilton road schoolhouse Wednesday night, and by a unanimous vote the committee were empowered to continue the negotiations along the line of the proposed annexation.

The agreement in a rough form was read, and Mayor Graham, who was the representative of the city, was asked many questions in regard to the different clauses. The two that brought forth the most discussion were those that referred to the fixed assessment and the school district.

Mayor Graham stated that the city promised to give a fixed assessment at fifteen mills on all real estate at a value that would be fixed by the city assessors next year. The fixed assessment would not cover buildings and other improvements, but real estate only. The city has no power over the assessment of buildings. This matter rests entirely with the assessment de-partment and the court of revision.

by Council. [Canadian Press.] Detroit, July 31 .- Prosecuting Attorney Sheppard announced today that he will not grant the request made last night by the common council for a grand jury to investigate charges of alleged corruption in the municipal legislature. The request was the result of the arrest last week of nine aldermen and the secretary of council committees on bribery charges. The nine aldermen, who are at liberty on ball, voted last night for a grand jury. I am not going to spend $50,000 to exonerate some aldermen who have been under suspicion for years, but who know that we could not get them in the midst of the clamor that surrounds a grand jury," said the prose-

You certainly will lose your heart to "The Swimming Girl," Mr. W. H. Loomis' captivating creation on the first page in the forthcoming number of the Sunday New York Herald, to be printed on Aug. 4. On the last page you will see the society of Newport in the swim at that summer resort. Mr. John Gruelle, of Twee-Deedle made himself quite small and sailed over Bailey's Beach in an aeroplane. At least he says he did, and the picture, a brilliant full page in color, seems to bear out his assertions. New York is to be besieged next wek by the Red Army, Capt. Frank

R. McCoy, U. S. A., in a signed article discourses on the new invasion. There is also an intimate and most informative talk with Col. Daniel Apinformative talk with Co pleton on how the gallant Seventh Regiment takes the field. "Soft Drinks That Are Hard to Eat" is a diverting story concerning the evolution of the soda squad and cooling draughts that look like shore dinners. Merchants and shippers will be greatly interested in the graphic story of how the great express companies. which have been brought to book, were evolved from a carpet bag. Every minister and every church member will find instruction and profit in an article bearing on the Korear situation, entitled "What Manner of Man Is the American Foreign Missionary?" It is from the facile pen of Edgar Allen Forbes, a well-known tra-veller, author of "The White Helmet.' Mr. J. Pierpont Morgan built a house for a church organist. Read all about this princely gift and picturesque dwelling on the marge of Greenwood Lake. "When the Bull Moose Fell" is not what you think it is at all, It is a stirring romance of the Maine woods with a palpitating heart interest. Mr. J. A. Fitzgerald gives us John Franklin Baker's infallible recipe for a home run, one of the best in the sprightly "Batter Up!" series, which has made such a hit with the "fans." Mrs. Woodrow Wilson, wife Democratic presidential candidate, tells how to rear girls to be homemakers. This is the leader of the best Woman's Page in the United States. The forthcoming number of the Sunday Herald is filled with information, and sparkles with human interest.

NEW YORK, Aug. 1.—Wall street, noon.—Stocks displayed a strong and at times buoyant tendency today. Business was far in excess of recent periods, trading in the first hour approximating 200,000 shares. The movement was regarded as an earnest demonstration of bullish confidence, the most pronounced, in fact, this summer. Gains of a point or better were made by all important active issues, while Canadian Pacific added 4 points to its record price of the previous day, and American Tobacco as much, the latter, however, receding maprevious day, and American Tonacco as much, the latter, however, receding materially before noon, when the market became dull. BRITISH NAVY WANTS MEN; BERESFORD SECONDS ALARM

Says It Is Useless to Build Ships When They Cannot Be Manned.

New York, Aug. 1.—A London cable says: The article printed in the London Daily Express yesterday, affirming that Germany is secretly building nine new battleships is regarded seriously by Admiral Lord Charles Beresford, as is evidenced by a letter to the editor of that paper, printed this morning. He says: "Sir,—Our position is much more serious than the First Lord of the Admiralty (Winston Churchill) dare confess. He cannot find crews for eight additional battleships; there are not enough men now for active service in the fleet alone. The first lord's statements on the subject

"On June 11 last he informed me in answer to a question that there was a deficiency in the navy's personnel on March 31 of 2,400 men. On July 22, following, he told the House of Commons that we started 2,000 short. He is now trying to recruit 5,000 men this year. It is exceedingly doubtful if he can get them; but if he does, and if he was speaking the truth on July 22, and another thing on June 11, the actual increase will be only 3,000, and these cannot be sen to the fleet until they are trained. "It is useless to build ships without entering men; but that is exactly what has been done for the past seven years. The results are colossal expenditure, large collection of empty ships, and the immediate menace of great and increasing danger.

"There is one thing which can be done by means of suspending the present or-ganization and by using all the men available, and that is to man the fitet, and

Christian Guardian Speaks of Methodist Church in Canada and Its Progress.

According to a table of church membership just issued by Rev. Dr. Cornish, general conference statistician of the Methodist Church, no less than the Methodist Church, no less than 9,189 people have ceased to be members during the year. No reason is advanced by Dr. Cornish for this, but the Christian Guardian, in deploring the altogether serious and unprecedented proportions of the leakage affords some explanation.

"It may indicate a growing lack of appreciation of the value of church membership on the part of Methodist membership on the part of the people," observed the Guardian, "but we fear it also indicates a growing carelessness and lack of system in our ods of transferring members who emove from one part of the country to another, and chiefly from the east to the west. To whatever cause this large leakage is due, its startling size surely demands that thorough-going investigation be given to the matter. It is not that this loss reduces our favorable showing at the end of the year by such an amount, but that the church should allow any such number of mem-bers to slip carelessly through her hands seems to show a serious and un-pardonable neglect. This item of loss will have to be considered, and we believe with care, it can be very largely reduced. The table reveals the fact, however, that the net gains for the year were 6,622, which is considered a very good showing. A total of 19,770 were received on probation during the year, but what proportion of the new members were received through the agency of the Sunday school Dr. Cornish does not say. The total membership is given as 351,710.

Springbank Park Is To Be Made More Beautiful—River Drive Will Not Be Built Just Yet.

At a special meeting of the parks board, held Wednesday afternoon, it was decided to name Mayor Graham, Mr. Philip Pocock, chairman of the water commission, and Mr. John Marr, chairman of the parks commission, committee to interview City Solicitor Meredith as to the steps to be taken for the issuing of debentures for $15,-000 for permanent improvements to the various parks in the city.

Superintendent Dilger submitted a report, showing the work he had in hand, not only for the present year, but for a period of years. A new road was being constructed at Springbank, roads were being built in other parks, and he had plans for eight miles of driveway, covering both sides of the river. It was impossible to do this work out of the ordinary revenues, and it was thought that debentures would have to
