LOCAL VETERANS GRATEFUL FOR HELP ON 'POPPY DAY'

VEETERANS THANK I.O.D.E. FOR AID IN POPPY DRIVE

Harry Wray, G. W. V. A. President, Hopeful of Much Larger Parade Next Year.

WORK HANDICAPPED

For their generous help in connection with "Poppy Day," the Daughters of the Empire who stood on cold street corners and performed the somewhat thankless job of exchanging poppies for pennies, the G. W. V. A. through its president, Harry Wray, thanks them most sincerely. "The Daughters of the Empire," he said today, "have done us a very good turn in the way they helped us in this work and one that is in keeping with all their efforts on behalf of the ex-service men all the way through. We are grateful for their support."

"We are also pleased that so many veterans turned out for the parade and to General King and his staff and all those who took part in the parade on Sunday, we are extremely thankful, adding that they did to the success of the celebration."

"Next year, however, we hope to celebrate Armistice Day on a much larger scale, to make it a matter of two or three days of commemoration and to bring the "Day of Remembrance" idea to the fore with greater insistence. There is just one thing that I would like to stress at this time. There are in London some two or three hundred ex-officers and the association would greatly appreciate their presence in such a parade as was held on Sunday. If they will turn out next year as the rank and file turned out this year we will have a parade second to none in the province."

In this connection Mr. Wray remarked on the well known boast of Toronto that in the Queen City one out of every twelve men enlisted. "I believe," he said, "we have a better record than that in London and I think that we in London have every bit as much right to pride ourselves on our war record as they have in Toronto. There is only one way that I know of in which Toronto is ahead of London in the position of its war record, and that is that the veterans in Toronto have a clubhouse of their own, while the London veterans who have been without rooms for many months are now housed in a basement below the city hall, which they only obtained by the kindness and courtesy of the city."

"The work of the G. W. V. A. is tremendously handicapped in London by this lack of the social unity of the ex-service men is destroyed by the fact that they have no suitable meeting place where they can get together."

"In the spring though we are going to start a campaign among those Londoners who are friends of the veteran and from what we know already, hope to be able to make more progress next year than in any previous year since the association was formed."

MAY CARRY TAX CASE ON APPEAL TO HIGHER COURT

Street Railway Company Not Decided Yet as to Assessment Case Action.

OTHER CASES

Hyman and Jarvis Appeals the First Test of Income Assessment Bylaw.

As a result of Judge Macbeth's action in upholding H. J. Bennett's city assessment commissioner, regarding income assessment levied on Hon. C. S. Hyman and W. P. D. Jarvis, all taxpayers in future will have to pay taxes on their income regardless of what other losses they might have suffered.

The throwing out of the Hyman and Jarvis appeals sets a precedent in London. It was the first time the statute providing for income assessment had been tested in court. According to Mr. Bennett the basis of the Hyman and Jarvis appeals was that income could not be legitimately taxed when the business was used for the purpose of covering industrial losses. The court decision, however, that even if income proceeds from a certain business are put back into that business for expansion, repairs or any other purpose, the income tax must be paid just the same.

The "clause covering this had never been appealed before," Mr. Bennett said. Judge Macbeth's decision, therefore, sets an important precedent.

The city commissioner was also sustained in raising the assessment of the London street railway from $5,000 to $7,500 a mile for linear trackage and to $10,000 a mile for curved sections of its roadway. In former years it had been assessed at $5,000 a mile. Mr. Bennett raised that assessment in connection with straight trackage to $10,000 a mile, and on appeal to the court for curved sections. On appeal to the court of revision the $15,000 assessment was reduced to $10,000 and the $10,000 to $7,500.

The street railway then carried their appeal to Judge Macbeth on the ground that they were not assessable for that or any other sun in regard to their trackage. J. C. Elliott, former crown attorney, represented the local transit corporation, while City Solicitor Meredith, assisted by Mr. Bennett defended the city's cause, which concluded before Judge Macbeth on Saturday afternoon.

Railway May Appeal. "It's purely a matter of law," Richard Ivey, vice-president of the London Street Railway, said with reference to Judge Macbeth's decision on the city's appeal, which concluded before Judge Macbeth on Saturday afternoon. "I cannot say whether the verdict will be appealed."

C. E. King, manager of the London Street Railway, usually retires when questioned as to the company's probable future action. "Whether the case will be brought to another court or not depends entirely on our solicitors," he said. "They will have to determine that themselves."

The appeals of Smallman & Ingram, Kingmill's, Limited, and the Canadian National Express Company were heard and decision was reserved.

POULTRY AND STOCK SHOW ATTRACTS MANY FANCIERS

Although Saturday night was the big night at the London Poultry and Pet Stock Association show, held in the poultry building at Queen's Park, a large number journeyed there yesterday and looked over the many birds on display.

Many of the fanciers spent hours closely inspecting the various birds, while many sales were made, good prices being secured. The birds were removed this morning, the show having officially closed last night.

TWO MONTHS JAIL FOR YOUNG THIEF

Norman Tucker Gets Light Sentence For Robbing London Stores.

Norman Tucker, aged 16, who last week in police court admitted that he stole various articles from the stores of W. H. Todd, Grafton's and Oak Hall, was sentenced to two months in jail by Magistrate Graydon today. Tucker was apprehended with another boy, a juvenile, whose case is still before Judge Quinton Warner of the juvenile court.

"Have you anything to say before I pass sentence on you?" asked Mr. Graydon when Tucker stood up in the prisoners' box. "No, sir."

"I made up my mind that the proper place for you was the reformatory," continued the court, "and not the industrial school. However, Mr. Warner and other gentlemen have interested themselves in you, and you have been in trouble on five different occasions, and have had many chances to change your way of living."

"I am going to send you to jail for two months, and if you come before me again you will be shown no consideration. You are heading for the reformatory unless you change your ways," concluded the court.

"Thank you," said the youth, as he sank impassively to his seat.

YOUTH SHOOTS AT AUTO, JUST MISSES TOURISTS

Harold Tanton, City, Tells of Prank of Hamilton Minister's Son.

Harold Tanton of this city, while motoring on the Hamilton mountain yesterday with Hamilton people, narrowly missed being shot by a small boy, who deliberately aimed a 22-calibre rifle at the passing motor car. The boy evidently intended hitting the tire, but the bullet pierced the rear end of the car, a few feet above the gasoline tank. Had it been aimed a few feet higher it undoubtedly would have hit one of the occupants.

As soon as the boy fired the shot he began to run. The motorists gave chase and managed to catch the youngster in a few minutes. He told them he was the son of a prominent minister in Hamilton. The gun was taken away from him, and his father, who was not home yesterday, will be in for a meeting of the commission set for this afternoon of the lad's prank.

- 36 will be dead.
- 54 will be dependent upon friends, relatives or charity.

Facing These Facts

Can you afford to go along without a definite plan of saving and investment, uncertain whether you will be well-off or an object of charity?

There need be no such uncertainty about your future if you adopt the safe and definite plan of setting aside a deposit regularly each year for a Canada Life "Endowment at 65."

It will guarantee you in cash at age 65 the sum of $2,000—$5,000—$10,000 or more.

Special to The Advertiser.
Parkhill, Nov. 12.—Tom Bloomfield, driver for the Imperial Oil Co. in this district, was yesterday arrested and charged with assault, laid by Charlie Lee, the Chinese proprietor of the Grand Cafe.
It is alleged that Bloomfield entered the cafe, and after some argument

Bloomfield attempted to resist arrest, but was taken to jail. He was admitted to bail. The trial is to be held during the week.
After being released, Bloomfield lodged a counter-charge against the restaurant proprietor, that of keeping a gambling house. Charlie was also arrested and was released on bail.

LOEW'S PRESENT SPLENDID SHOW TO BIG AUDIENCE

Fine Vaudeville and Two Good Feature Pictures Offer Fine Entertainment.

WESLEY BARRY STAR

Standing room was at a premium at Loew's Theatre all day yesterday, and although some discomfort may have been experienced by the huge crowds in finding seats, this was soon forgotten in the excellence of the bill, which is being shown until Wednesday night.

The palm for the bill certainly goes to Shelly and Hett, who have lost nothing since their last appearance here, but rather have they gained. Shelly himself is a scream, and his expression as well as his antics make the laughter spontaneous. Emma Hett has a nice voice and sings well, while the other three members of the company are well up to par. The radio dance is something new in London and the effect of it is good. The Kirkwood Trio present some novel roping stunts, while Gales and Finlay offer a pleasing song number. As a finale to the vaudeville, however, the whole ten performers combine in one number which was allowed to go, only after several curtain calls had been made. It was good.

The feature picture, "The Printer's Devil," starring Wesley Barry, is a pleasing comedy romance of a small town. Wesley Barry as "Brick," the reporter, printer, errand boy and general staff of the Briggsfield Gazette, is supported by a notable cast, and the picture unfolds the story well. Laughs follow one another quickly, while there is also the human interest to leave the comedy. The photography is good, and the story well told.

With the feature there is another picture, that is also above the ordinary. "The Fighting Spirit," is also a story of a small town with a streak of humor and love running through it. While it is not as good as the first, it is complete in itself, and will undoubtedly be followed with keen interest until the final picture unfolds the story well. Taking everything into consideration, the offering at Loew's is indeed one that citizens who patronize the theatre should see, as it offers all that is needed to turn the dull day into one of the brightest.

"LET'S GO" IS BEST SHOW IN MONTHS

Delighted Audience Greeted With Sparkling Comedy and Splendid Singing.

CLEAN PERFORMANCE

From start to finish, dancing, singing, comedy, individual and ensemble numbers, "Let's Go" is certainly an attraction well worth seeing. If as some people say, "laughing is good for the human system," then a series of shows such as this would soon do away with the ills which the flesh is heir to. Through the packed house roar after roar of laughter sounded and encores were the order of the day.

Whom to award the palm to is a difficult decision. Manny King with his violin and Pat White, comedienne of no mean reputation, nobly fulfill their appointed task, that of keeping the audience in good humor. They do it and do it well. There is nothing risqué about their joking. With Pat White in a "single" is his dog, a beautiful specimen, who could give lessons to many in the art of terpsichore.

Jim the wrestling bear, is easily one of the headliners. He is a huge brute mauls the would-be wrestlers, never hurting them, the watchful audience in good humor. They do it and do it well. There is nothing risqué about their joking. With Pat White in a "single" is his dog, a beautiful specimen, who could give lessons to many in the art of terpsichore.

Sonny Thompson's orchestra, with Sonny himself at the drum, encores until the ceiling almost fall with the applause. A wizard with the sticks is Sonny and that he enjoys himself is evidenced by the hearty laugh which he breaks out with. He is also "some" dancer. Mabel Kemp who sings and dances in connection with this number, is good-looking and entertaining, having a pleasing voice.

The dancing by Flamingo Dixie, is of a well worth visiting the theatre for itself. Hawaiian, Egyptian, and other dances, she does them both well.

SUB FOR "LET'S GO"
"Let's Go," which opened at the Grand Opera House last night, is easily one of the best attractions seen there in many months.

The singing of Nan Paion, the prima donna is good, her voice being clear and reaching the top notes without any visible strain. Several of her songs are new to London audiences. Kitty Madison and Florence Kane also possess pleasing voices, while harmony as rendered by several of the male members of the company satisfied the crowded house.

The last ensemble, "Pink Shoulders," is probably one of the most effective, the shoulders of the chorus being thrown into startling dissonance against a background of black velvet. The costumes of the girls are good, and in only one case do they approach the scout, and that in the Hawaiian number. The costumes, however, are offset by the grace itself, which was well done. The scene in Bakinland, while not as good as one seen here some time ago, was more than passable. The dance of the "Telephone Dolls" and another by "The Telephone Dolls" were of the machine-like movements of the eight chorines in the latter number being marked with precision and smartness.

On the whole, the show is clean and snappy, the costumes are new and attractive, the scenery good, and the music of the best.

CHOIR VISITS THAMESFORD

The Knox Church choir recently visited Thamesford, where they presented a very fine concert. The numbers included anthems, vocal solos by Fred Kester, Stuart Kennedy, R. Patterson, Stanley Chadwick, Miss Phillipp, Miss Myrtle Rouson, Miss Gladys McEvoy, and Miss Margaret Campbell; duet by Miss M. E. Eason and Lawrence Westland, and readings by Mrs. Ed. Westland and Mr. Crawford. A feature of the visit to Thamesford was the holding of a chicken supper.

STRAIN WHILE LIFTING RESULTS IN MAN'S DEATH

Special to The Advertiser.
Wallaceburg, Nov. 12.—Internal injury caused the death of Warren Pease, a respected citizen of this town, on Sunday morning in the Chatham Hospital.

He did not take much notice of his injury Thursday, but Saturday he was seized with violent pains, and medical aid was hurriedly called. Dr. Rowland, Cowan and Taylor, arrived an immediate operation and he was operated on at Chatham, but died following the operation.

STRESSES GRATITUDE OF CHRISTIAN RACE

Rev. Bruce Hunter, Speaking in St. Andrew's Church, Lauds Puritans.

Stressing the gratitude which the Christian people on the American continent owe to their Puritan forebears, Rev. D. Bruce Hunter addressed the united Presbyterian congregations of the city at a Thanksgiving service at St. Andrew's Church yesterday morning.

Mr. Hunter took his text from the epistle to the Hebrews, making it the basis of his address, "The Thanksgiving for the story of Thanksgiving, as originated by the Puritans, who set the day aside as one on which to emphasize the sovereignty of God, the accountability of man to God, and the communion of man with God. He stated that much of what we are today, even the result of the spirit of those men and women, who had devoted everything to the service of God, and in concluding, he urged the people to give thanks for having had such ancestors, as well as for the many benefits and gifts of God which the people of today receive.

SAVED HER FROM AN OPERATION

So Thinks Mrs. Tracey of Ontario, Regarding Lydia
E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound

Knightsbridge, Ontario.—"I took Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound at the change of life for troubles that women often have at that time. I had not been well for a year and was not really able to do my work. A friend who had taken the 'Vegetable Compound' recommended it to me and I think it has saved me from an operation. I highly recommend it to all women who have troubles like mine, and am willing for you to use my testimonial."—Mrs. DANIEL J. TRACEY, Knightsbridge, Ontario.

Some female troubles may through neglect reach a stage when an operation is necessary. But the more common ailments are not the surgical ones; they are not caused by serious displacements, tumors or growths, although the symptoms may appear the same. When disturbing symptoms first appear take Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound to relieve the present distress and prevent more serious troubles.

Wind—Dust—Germs

THE swirling fall winds stir up the germ-laden dust. The delicate mucous linings of the nose and throat become irritated until inflammation is set up and it only requires sudden changes of temperature to start a cold.

With many people this means more or less trouble all winter, and besides there is always a considerable proportion of colds that develop into bronchitis, pneumonia or consumption.

Bronchitis is the test of what a treatment for colds will do, and because Dr. Chase's Syrup of Linseed and Turpentine affords quick relief from bronchitis you may be sure that it makes short work of ordinary coughs and colds.

It is all very well to talk of others neglecting a cold, but what about your cold? What are you using to prevent serious results? Are you taking Dr. Chase's Syrup of Linseed and Turpentine? Do you have members of the family use it or are you satisfied to take whatever new and untried mixture that may be offered to you?

Medicine for coughs and colds should be selected with just as much care as medicine for any other serious and dangerous disease, for there is scarcely a limit to the ailments to which a neglected cold may lead.

The best time to use Dr. Chase's Syrup of Linseed and Turpentine is when you begin to feel a dryness or tickling in the throat. You can then head off the trouble before it reaches the bronchial tubes or lungs.

But you must be ready for prompt action, and for this reason it is wise to always keep Dr. Chase's Syrup of Linseed and Turpentine at hand in your medicine chest. Ask for the large bottle. It is more economical and ensures an adequate supply in case of emergency.

LINSEED AND TURPENTINE

FIREMEN'S UNION NOT OPPOSED BY UNDERWRITERS

Their Annual Statement Does Not Support Recent Silly Story in Local Paper.

MERELY ON RECORD

In its annual statement to the city the Canadian Fire Underwriters' Association does not oppose the existence of the firemen's union, contrary to the recent announcement in a local paper.

Clause 14 of the report deals with the strength of the local department, and the only reference in the entire report to the firemen's union is as follows: "All members of the department, exclusive of the chief, belong to the International Firefighters Association through a local union." That is all. No comment, contrary or favorable, is offered.

But the report does deal with one important matter which the local paper did not choose to comment upon for obvious reasons: the reopening of No. 4 (North London fire hall). Clause 13 reads: "No. 4 fire hall at the corner of Colborne and St. James streets, north of the C. P. R., which was closed on June 1, 1922, has been reopened as recommended in our report of last year."

This hall was closed during the stewardship of J. Cameron Wilson, ex-mayor, who initiated the famous 10 per cent wage and salary reduction for all civic employees. A number of the junior firemen were temporarily retired and the hall was closed.

Whether this action was advisable was thoroughly debated from the public platform in the last municipal election. Mayor Wenige adopting the contrary attitude and promising that the hall would be reopened should he be successful at the polls. This clause of his platform has been accordingly put into effect. His opponents during the last campaign championing ex-Ald. H. J. Childs, bitterly opposed any suggestion to place No. 4 hall in service.

SCHOOL CHILDREN BACK FROM LONG HOLIDAY

The Average Attendance This Morning Was Good—Winsor Teachers Visit.

School children of London today started back to the institutions of learning after the longest Thanksgiving holiday in many years, lasting from Wednesday last until this morning.

Although the holiday really fell on Monday, the extra days were granted owing to the fact that the annual meeting of the London Teachers' Institute was held on Thursday and Friday, necessitating the closing of the schools. On Friday, however, some of the classes in certain schools were running in order that the teachers from Windsor might inspect the methods of instruction.

Reports from the principals of the various schools show that the pupils returned well on time. With few exceptions, the school attendance is up to the mark set last month, when 95.4 per cent of the total enrollment attended.

BELIEVE VANCOUVER CLERK WAS MURDERED IN ROOMS

Canadian Press Despatch.
Vancouver, B.C., Nov. 13.—William W. Bailey, 23 years old, bank clerk, found dead in his room in a suburban branch of the Bank of Commerce on Saturday morning, apparently was murdered. It is stated. At first it was believed to be a case of suicide, and, pending the coroner's verdict on Tuesday, nothing definite can be established.

It is thought that he was shot by would-be robbers, who disturbed him and brought him downstairs to the bank office in pyjamas and overcoat.

It was in this attire that the body was found face downward on his own bed, with a bullet in his brain and a revolver on the floor beside him. The shot apparently was fired from behind him.

Only Link With MacMillan Is Via Barnsley's Station

Amateur Radio Operator Has Practically Solved Mysteries of Arctic Air Communication.

Jack Barnsley, amateur operator, has solved mysteries of Arctic air communication and has established virtually permanent communication, despite adverse conditions, with the schooner Bowdoin, frozen in eleven degrees from the North Pole. Jack Barnsley, more than any other radio amateur in America, has helped to solve the mystery of the missing schooner. He has been in constant communication with the Bowdoin since it was last seen, and he has been able to reach it almost at will.

What Barnsley's work means to MacMillan and his party is shown by this message sent from the Bowdoin, which lies in Refuge Harbor, Greenland, latitude 75.30 north, longitude 72.30 west.

"Accept sincerest thanks from myself and party for your interest in our expedition and for your valuable help in transmitting messages. Your loyalty will not be forgotten upon our return from the Arctic."

Barnsley's station is peculiarly well placed for North Pole reception, being situated at the western terminus of the Canadian National Railways 500 miles north of Vancouver and 100 miles south of Ketchikan, Alaska.

A few years ago Barnsley was working for the Marconi company as wireless operator on coastwise steamers and finally on the liner Empress of Russia, running to Japan, China and Manila. A recruiting sign for the Royal Air Force attracted his attention in 1917 and there followed a hitch as instructor in the army.

Since he recently re-established communication with the MacMillan Arctic vessel, he has received scores of messages from members of MacMillan's crew and sent them on to relatives in the states by means of the traffic system of the American Radio Relay League, of which he is a member. He uses an improved type of regenerative receiver with two-step audio amplifier.

His station is WNP. Previous to working WNP Barnsley's best long distance record was Canadian amateur station 3NI, located at Fort William, Ontario. He has also been heard in Hahama, N. Y., and worked one amateur near the Mexican border.

When Sir Henry Thornton, president of the C. N. R., made his first visit to the Pacific coast, he received a radio message of welcome from the mayor of Prince Rupert through Barnsley's amateur station. Barnsley has participated in several official Canadian radio tests.

He is working Mix of WNP on a regular schedule and handles messages to and from the Bowdoin almost daily, or at such times when atmospheric conditions do not materially interfere. He also handles practically all amateur radio traffic between Alaska and the United States.

LOST HUNTER PICKED UP HALF DEAD FROM HUNGER

Canadian Press Despatch.
Prince Rupert, B.C., Nov. 13.—Half dead from hunger and cold, Bert Herstrom was found by Indians in Grenville Channel yesterday aboard an improvised craft. Hedstrom lost himself while hunting on Pitt Island. He tore his overalls to shreds and bound a few small logs together, then set out into the channel in the hope of flagging a passing ship. When a ship hove in sight he fired his last two cartridges, only to see the boat continue on its way unheeding.

When he was found he was half unconscious, but is now recovering in Prince Rupert hospital.

PLANS TO FREE COMRADES IN PRISON TALKED BY I.W.W.

Associated Press Despatch.
Chicago, Nov. 13.—Plans to free scores of their comrades held in Leavenworth Penitentiary and state prisons in Washington, California and other states, was the chief topic for discussion by the fifteenth annual convention of the I. W. W., which convened here yesterday. About 35 delegates, most of them in their working clothes, and having arrived from lumber camps, harvest fields and various shipping points, were in attendance.

URGES GREECE TO RETAIN PRESENT CONSTITUTION

Associated Press Despatch.
Athens, Nov. 13.—Great Britain has informed Greece, says the newspaper Eleutheria, Vima, today, that although it has not changed its attitude regarding Constantine and Constantism, it is of importance that Greece should avoid any change in her constitution, inasmuch as it considers King George of Greece is the natural tie between Greece and Great Britain.

CANADIAN SUGGESTION FOR TEAM RULED OUT

Rifle Association Council Not To Change Methods in Cup Entry.

Associated Press Despatch.
London, Nov. 13.—After considering the question raised during the last Bisley meeting by General Swift, commandant of the Canadian team competing in the National Rifle Association's annual shoot, with regard to the selection of the team to represent the mother country in the competition for the Rajah of Kolapore's challenge cup, the council of the association has decided that it is inadvisable to make any change.

General Swift suggested that the mother country's marksmen for team matches should be selected on the basis of form shown at the previous Bisley meeting. Instead of subsequently, Canada's team virtually is selected a year ahead of the Bisley meeting as General Swift pointed out, and if the suggested change were made, it would place both countries on terms of more equality.

However, as stated, the council of the National Rifle Association decided against this.

BELGIUM SEES WORLD PEACE ENDANGERED

Cabinet May Address Allied Powers On Their Moral Duties.

Associated Press Despatch.
Brussels, Nov. 13.—The question of addressing the allied and associated powers "recalling their moral duties" is under consideration by the Belgian cabinet. It may also bring the matter before the League of Nations, as it considers the peace of the world is becoming increasingly endangered.

In connection with the return of the ex-crown prince to Germany, Belgian cabinet opinion holds that close cohesion of the allies is necessary with a view to the strict application of the treaty of Versailles, both as regards the punishment of war criminals and reparations.

RECOVERS FROM ILLNESS.

F. B. KILBOURNE ELECTED TO HEAD ELMWOOD CLUB

Bowlers Have Had One of the Best Seasons Since Start of Club, Meeting Discloses.

F. B. Kilbourne has been elected president of the Elmwood bowlers for another year. The annual meeting of this club disclosed the fact that the past season had been the most successful since the club's commencement. A. M. The election of Charlie Speiran to the secretaryship makes his tenth year at the post.

The club has rescheduled its fifteen bowling greens, and they will be even better next season. The upper greens have been lengthened to the regulation size, and the new sod now looks as if it were mid-season, so great has been the catch of grass.

The following officers have been elected:

Honorary presidents, A. MacQueen, John Dunkin, G. T. Mitchell, C. H. Ward, Hon. C. R. F. U. chairman, Ingram, George Grant; president, F. B. Kilbourne; vice-president, R. P. Hackett; second vice-president, Percy Robinson; treasurer, H. F. Hartry; secretary, C. E. Speiran.

Canadian Press Despatch.
Toronto, Nov. 12.—Toronto Canoe Club qualified to enter the next round of the Junior O. R. F. U. eliminations by whitewashing St. Catharines at Scarborough Beach today by 56 to 0. The Canoe Club had all the play and practically scored at will.

T. C. C. baffled the visitors with their extended runs and gained yards every time they tried the passing game. The local plungers met with little opposition on the line, and had big holes to walk through.

Associated Press Despatch.
New York, Nov. 12.—Late today Major August Belmont, chairman of the Jockey Club, had not received the challenge cable from France for a three-cornered international thoroughbred race next May at Longchamps between 4-year-olds of France, Great Britain and the United States.

Lacking official details of the challenge, Jockey Club officials withheld comment, but there were indications that the invitation would be favorably received.

DYSPEPSIA WAS SO BAD Could Hardly Eat Anything

Mrs. C. Stone, Nanticoke, Ont., writes:—"Some time ago I had a very serious attack of dyspepsia, and was also troubled with gas on my stomach. I could hardly eat anything, and very often had pains after meals. I had used different medicines, but they didn't seem to do me any good. At last I happened to run on the track of Burdock Blood Bitters, and after using it for a short time I felt a lot better. I continued its use until I was completely relieved and now I am ready to recommend it to anyone troubled as I was."

DECIDES TO ESTABLISH CLINIC AT ST. JOSEPH'S

Catholic Women's League Hears Father Forristal Talk On Capt. Dormer.

Rev. Father L. Forristal gave an interesting account of the life history of Captain Dormer at the meeting of the Catholic Women's League, held Sunday afternoon, in St. Peter's Parish Hall.

Captain Dormer, who is to be canonized shortly by the Roman Catholic Church, is buried in St. Peter's Cemetery. He was an English army officer, coming to London 57 years ago, and spent nine months here with his regiment before his death.

An interesting feature of the meeting was the presentation to Mrs. B. C. McCann, of a life membership pin, the badge of the life membership having been given to her by the league of the diocesan convention a few weeks ago. Mrs. J. Frezeli, diocesan secretary, made the presentation.

The establishment of a free clinic at St. Joseph's Hospital was decided upon, Mrs. J. J. Roach, social service convenor, has received the permission and co-operation of the hospital authorities for this undertaking. The report of this department also showed that relief had been given to many needy families.

No-No-No!

Events in Germany have been moving in strange channels during the last few days. The ex-kaiser, thought to have been tied up at Doorn, is reported to be now in possession of passports that will permit him returning to the country from which he fled when his armies were defeated.

In the larger sense of the word it is not the business of the outside world how the German people choose to govern themselves. That is their matter and their affair.

But the outside world is very much concerned in how that form of government is going to find expression when dealing with the rest of the world outside of Germany.

If that form of government is going to make as its chief aim the standing of uniformed men shoulder to shoulder in order that the will of that country can be inflicted on the rest of the world, then that form of government becomes the concern not only of Germany but of the rest of the world.

And having become the concern and business of the rest of the world, it is the business of the rest of the world to take notice of what is going on right at the start.

If Hohenzollern senior goes back to Germany he goes back as an apostle of the old school of dead men and a graveyard that sprawls its way all over Europe. He has no desire to work with the nations that are trying to bring out of the chaos of after-war an order of things that recognizes the rights of small nations, and that will allow the world to go to bed at night without an armed watchman standing in the tower.

If Hohenzollern senior thinks he has any right to go back to Germany and plan and plot for a return of the power which he so wantonly abused in 1914-18, the Allies have a perfect right to deal with him now, because they failed to deal with him in 1918.

Our Duty to the Veterans.

The procession in London on Armistice Day was impressive, particularly that portion of it that was made up of veterans of the world war. There was nothing of the tin soldier about them.

When the nation faced its greatest crisis between 1914 and 1918 the country asked much of these men, and they gave much.

There was no reservation about the gift they made—they were prepared to go to the limit and place their lives on the altar of sacrifice if need be.

We honor Armistice Day; we buy a red poppy, and we stand at one side in admiration of the war veterans as they pass by.

But is that all? There are many of these men who have never regained the standing they had when they went overseas. There may have been some few cases where the soldiers' button was exploited, but these were far in the minority. Even the soldiers who may have used the button as an open door were not as much in the wrong as many others who have discriminated against the men wearing the button.

The general public has a short memory; it is willing to applaud parades, but it forgets that each man who went through the great war has a problem that he may have solved, or the solution of which may have been too baffling and too great for him.

Canadians who stayed at home in the world war have a duty to the men who did not stay home—it is a duty not easily discharged, because the obligation is great and sacred. It is just as binding now as it was in the stirring days of war when we were tumbling over each other in an effort to show appreciation in some form or other of the men who were coming forward and putting on the uniform.

A Ruling That Hurts.

The Woodward department stores of Vancouver bought from the Dominion Sheet Metal Products of Toronto a shipment of aluminum-ware.

The Toronto firm shipped it via New York and the Panama canal because it is much cheaper to do so than sending it on the long trans-continental rail haul.

These goods are in Vancouver now, and will not be released unless a duty of 35 per cent is paid on them. The duty is asked because Ontario goods left the country and came back again.

British Columbia believes the reason is that the rail haul must be maintained so that the railroads will not lose business.

It means that so far as eastern firms selling and shipping to British Columbia are concerned, the Panama canal does not exist.

If there is a good explanation for the continuance of the charging of duty on Ontario goods going to British Columbia, the customs department at Ottawa should make that explanation very quickly and in plain language.

Without such explanation, the department ruling looks as though it had not a leg to stand on.

A Growing Force.

Some of the leading men of United States are speaking plainly about the position of that country in world affairs.

Myron T. Herrick, American ambassador to France, speaking at the dedication of a monument to American soldiers who fell in the Champagne district, said:

"We have put our hands to the plow, and we are willing to run the furrow through."

The Los Angeles times says that "this statement will find an echo in the hearts of the American people."

The issue is plainly drawn to right-thinking people. It is an obligation of honor and of common sense.

"We could," says the Times, "if we wished, stand aside, in ostrich fashion, and pretend that this was not our war; that we are not one of the great powers of the world and that it is none of our business. But of course that would not, in any way, alter the fact that it was our war and that we are one of the great responsible powers and that it is very much our business."

"Responsibilities are very seldom deliberately chosen. They come with the evolution of time and human destinies."

"It is true that we did not deliberately choose to go into the war. But it is not probable that Europe hankered for it. They got into the war because of their 'best interests' backed by moral indignation; and, as Ambassador Herrick points out, we went in for the same reason."

"We did not rush in hastily. We waited until there was no longer any honorable way to stay out."

"But once in, our responsibility does not cease until every force that we can bring to bear has been exerted toward the accomplishment of a real and lasting peace."

"The fact is that Europe was left in a condition at the end of the fighting that called more poignantly for America's help than the condition of desperation of the Allies when the Yanks sailed for the battlefields of France."

"There is a common but mistaken notion that peace is merely an absence of war; a negative condition of no conflict."

"But in reality peace is a positive condition—gates that are securely locked and hatches that have been battened down upon the forces of discord; a forceful agreement by great military and moral powers against disruption and strife. Such an agreement that is ignored by the strongest war power in the world, which is the United States, is a childish absurdity. There can be no real peace and no safety from a renewal of the fires of another war until the last ember has been stamped out and the debris made safe."

Absolutely right. It is encouraging to know that some of the greatest papers in United States are talking in such plain terms to their own people that there is not any room to doubt what they mean to say.

The Northern Life.

There have been various reports in circulation regarding the affairs of the Northern Life, and in recent weeks there has been an active campaign on by two factions to buy enough stock in the open market to secure control of the company.

An arrangement was under consideration a short time ago to dispose of the company to a larger existing insurance corporation, but this fell through because the authorities would not consent to it.

The Northern Life has been pretty well looked over and investigated in the last few months. Through it all it has demonstrated that it is sound and in good shape, able to go ahead and make further progress.

In the interests of the company its future control and standing should be settled as soon as possible, and the latest report of a settlement out of court is the best way out for all concerned.

The turkey that is alive today to strut around the barnyard is simply living on borrowed time.

Sixteen nations owe United States the total of $7,058,575,905. A staggering figure, no doubt, but not so staggering if 15 of them don't pay their share.

Rarebits by Rex

Oh, I'll not bring you presents. That change as change the sands, that you shall have a part of me, the warm and pulsing heart of me. To hold in your two hands.

And you shall have the visions that I have dreamed and spun. And you shall have the whole of me, the heart of me and soul of me, And you shall share with none.

Let others bring you presents, The earthbound; as for me, My purse has small extensiveness To meet their great extensiveness. But, oh, my heart is free.

It seems appropriate that a card sharp should refer to the game of poker as fish and chips.

To see ourselves as others see us may be all right, but it must play the deuce with an oyster's vanity.

Our wealthy relations are the only distant ones we have.

The hunters are abroad in the land, and unfortunately some of them won't mistake each other for deer.

Marriages are still fashionable and a stock salesman could make quite a profit dealing in bonds of matrimony.

In this connection it might be satisfactory to institute a sinking fund for bridegrooms at the altar.

A HAPPY EVENING. If it were not for the lamentable fact that increased population is strongly inclined to organization, which has for its purpose the extermination of youthful parents. They are thorns in every bachelor's side.

Take the Smiths, for instance. In an unguarded moment we accepted an invitation from the Smiths to see their baby. After gushing the usual platitudes regarding the baby's physical resemblance to his father (which caused the baby to cry out in anguish), the child was placed on our knees.

Our pained smile was apparently lost on the Smiths, and Smith, junior, indicated his resentment by attempting to pull our mustache out by the roots. He administered a tremendous thwack on our nose while the parents laughed fiendishly, as cannibals do when their missionary begins to boil.

Then the family hound licked the baby's hands lovingly. This was a tongue with obvious intention of feeding it to the dog. Fortunately it was securely attached and this caused the brat to screech with indignation.

Mrs. Smith, eyes flaming malevolently, took the infant from our arms.

"Did big, ugly man hurt 'little snookums'?" she babbled. Junior stepped on the gas and put all his 12 vocal cylinders into operation.

"Really, you want to be more careful," Smith said, "Babies are human, you know."

We tried to grin, but the effort was futile. A brilliant idea hit us. We would restore ourselves to the mother's good graces by paying compliments to the baby.

"How delightful to hear the baby's voice," we said. "It is so like your's, Mrs. Smith."

Mrs. Smith gurgled inarticulately and left the room. Smith glowered. "You've forgotten my wife," he cried. "Probably you've been drinking. You'd better go home. And don't ask to see the baby again."

They were the most superfluous words Smith ever uttered.

To the Editor

36 CENTS FOR 102 HOURS. Contented Laborer States Why He Believes It Would Be Wrong To Keep Down Production of Food.

Editor of The Advertiser: Sir,—When I wrote my last letter I did not write it for a controversy, neither am I writing this for such, as this will be my last letter on the subject, by your permission. I would like to reply to one who has had 30 years' experience on the farm. I am doing so, because he thinks I would make a lovely manager. He seems to have the two laborers mixed. For my benefit I will let him know I have been a laborer for 70 years, and am still working, and hope I shall be for a few years yet. I can plow and reap and mow and hoe and sow the seed and I can do it all the year round. I have done it many days in the past—17 hours for less than a dollar. Would he like that time to come to waste? But I brought up a family on that wage, and today we can walk down the street, four generations. Yes, Mr. Farmer, I am a lovely manager all right. I own nothing to the state, nothing to the baker, or butcher, or grocer, tailor, shoemaker, coalman or farmer. I have a deed without encumbrance, and something to put by to cover me up when I pass hence, so that the dandelions can grow over one out of debt. Do you wonder why I am contented?

Now, Mr. Farmer, tell me if you will, should I be wise or foolish if I had two fat pigs to kill this fall if I was to sell them to the butcher for 8 cents a pound, then buy them back at 25 cents, with an empty pork barrel in the cellar all the time?

As far as I can see, the farmer grows all he needs in the living way, except a few groceries, and Mrs. Farmer will look after them, never fear.

Now, I will answer Mr. Farmer's question where I got about withholding corn, and with pleasure I will tell him I got it from the same book I got this from: "Him that hath plenty of this world's goods, and seeing his brother hath need, and shutteth up his bowels of compassion against him, how dwelleth the love of God in him?" I believe in living and letting others live also. City people want to live as well as the people in the country. It is not very long ago when every back yard was turned into a garden, and now there are some who advocate less production to boost up the prices if they can.

Mr. Fifty-Year Farmer, you have had the Grange and the Patrons of Industry, Farmer Clubs, and a Farmers' government. In that time have more do you want? You have been going to show all the world and the Yanks how to run a country economically. Now I do not care how much money the farmer makes, but I do not want the blame for the high cost of living if they can.

Removing All Worries. He—Dad, today I've insured my life for $20,000. She—Oh, isn't that fine! Now I needn't worry any more about you!

THE NEW HUMILITY.

I say to every man " * * * to think of himself more highly than he ought to think—Romans xii, 3.

There are fashions in virtue, as in all other things, and the new is forever ousting the old, only to be cast out in turn when the old returns in a slightly different guise.

When Christianity praised the lowly mind as one of the noblest qualities in man, the pagan philosophers rejected it as unworthy, and the proud Roman world made mock of it in learned satires and in crude caricatures scrawled on barrack walls.

Then humility won the day, and was carried to excess in ascetic abasements and monkish meanderings.

A new paganism came and exalted the superman, the machine maker, in his own esteem. Nietzsche despised Christianity as a morality for slaves.

Now science teaches a new humility based upon the insignificance of man, a mere speck in the vast universe, an infinitesimal passing figure in the eternal show of things.

Is the new humility superior to the old? Was not St. Paul nearer the mark when we warned us to think of ourselves soberly, and Pascal when he wrote of the grandeur and misery of man?

Man is not a sublime achievement, but a great possibility. (Copyright, 1923, by The Republic Syndicate.)

living. What I wonder at is that everything did not go flat when the war stopped, as after every war since I can remember. You can keep your cows and your boys, and your 40-year-old cows, all up your own barrel, and forget the profit the butcher would make if he sold it back to you.

I shall not take your advice, "Mr. Dubb" and go to see the city laborer. I know he does not get any too much for his labor, but I might get dissatisfied myself, and you are a stranger to me, and you may be a "Bolshevik" for all I know. I want to have nothing to do with that class. I do not like the breed.

Mr. Editor, it was very hard times when I was a lad, and my mother needed all the dimes she could get. So I had to go to work very young to help feed the rest, so my education is limited, so please correct any mistakes I may have made, for everybody reads The Advertiser, or they ought to. The first situation I had I worked 17 hours a day for three pence (6 cents) for a rich old farmer, who owned his farm of 700 acres, lots of money besides. When I took my first for 17 hours I was paid 26 cents.

My father said I cannot tell today whether her tears were tears of joy or sorrow, but I have not forgotten her.

NOT THE BRITISH WAY.

Writer Points Out That Local Paper Has the Wrong Attitude on One Great Principle.

To Editor of The Advertiser: Sir,—In Saturday's issue of a local paper I read with disgust an article on the editorial page, "Premier King and the Canadian History Society."

The article, to my mind, was a distorted reflection of a British way of thinking. The idea was, and is, casting direct insinuations on the premier because his grandfather had the misfortune to make a bad mistake. Here is what to many people a form of private glory to cast upon a child because its great or present parents made a mistake. Far too much of this sort of thing is made into cheap political potatoes, a thing that is not characteristic of British people, or the "sweet reasonableness" of England, and the errors of the past of some of its great or near great men.

Why in the name of common sense cannot the people of this calibre of mind forget that way of thinking? It never made, or did anyone any good. Why should my child or anyone's suffer because my forefathers strayed from the narrow path? It is not a Christian spirit by any means. If he thinks it will cut any ice towards gaining any adverse votes, I think he has another thing coming to him, as I know all right thinking people will not be impressed in the slightest by such talk.

He says in part, "Canada owes its present position to the spirit of loyalty which pervaded and still pervades both the English and French-speaking people of the country, to the 'sweet reasonableness' of England, who whenever she is convinced that either her acts or her agents are in the wrong, hastens to put in effect some radical remedy."

Correct. That's what has always been and still is the case. She does not cast reflections on the children of those who have in the past made mistakes. That's the glory and righteousness of the greatest empires' achievements through all the ages, and I take my hat off to the right thinking people as the British race. Yours truly,

ARTHUR JACKSON.

Alas! A Lass.

The clergyman was walking through the village when he met one of the richest men in the district. "Ah!" he exclaimed. "It is a great pleasure to see you, Mr. Hilton. How do you do?"

"Not at all up to the mark," replied the other, disconsolately.

"Why?" asked the clergyman.

"What is the matter?" replied Mr. Hilton. "That scoundrel of a son of mine has run off to London and got married without my permission."

"Alas!" said the clergyman, sympathetically.

"A lass! A lass!" retorted the other, irritably. "Of course it was a lass! I've thought the boy would run away with his grandmother!"

No Improvement. A salesman for the corn syrup products company received the following letter from a woman customer:

"Dear Sirs,—I have taken seven cans of your syrup and my feet hurt just as badly as before."

DENNY BROOKS A STORY OF COURAGE

By ELENORE MEHERIN

CHAPTER XVI.

Denny's Chance.

"What does it mean, Denny?" From the pocket of her voluminous pink skirt Aunt Josie drew a pale pink envelope, shoved it across the kitchen table to Denny. "Why did she do that?"

Denny read the pathetic sentences twice. Aunt Josie peeled an apple without breaking the coil of skin. "Dear Mother, Violet wrote. 'I would have written sooner but I wasn't settled. Don't worry about me. I have a job here, so I'll be all right. I hated to leave without seeing you, but you know you made me do this. He's always wanted to hurt me—I guess he's done it now. I'm not blaming you, mother, but I didn't deserve to be treated this way. I always tried to do the best I could. I have you all I ever earned. And he ran me out in the middle of the night. All I had was fifty cents. Well—don't think about it, mother, because you won't. It's passed now. I'll get along.'"

"I wish I knew what happened to Denny. I ran out as they were suffering. Did he strike him? Sometimes I wake up dreaming that I'm Denny. And I feel like a murderer because it was my fault. You don't know how frightful this fear is, mother."

"I read the papers from San Francisco every day. I wish Denny would put in a personal and tell me he is all right. Ask him to, mother. In a few days I'll write again. Tell Katy I miss her. This is a little collar I bought for you. Love, VIOLET."

"Why did she go there, Denny?" The envelope was marked "San Diego."

"Well, there's not many jobs here. I guess some one must have told her there was a chance in a store there."

"That's not the reason, Denny. What does she mean when she says he 'always wanted to hurt me, and he's done it now?'"

"Well, he threw her out. That's hurting her, isn't it?" She rubbed her hands together in a dumb helplessness. "Violet was a good child. There wasn't a selfish bone in her body. . . . She got up suddenly, went to the stove and shoved back a pot of soup. When she turned tears streaked to her lips, fell unheeded down the rough, broad chin.

"Do you think she went with him, Denny? Tell me the truth."

"She says she's got a job, Aunt Josie. I guess she has. If she was with him, wouldn't they stay here in the city?"

It was slight comfort. Denny wanted to say, "Sure, she's all right; I know she didn't go with him." He couldn't force the words to his tongue. Aunt Josie took the letter and the dainty lace collar, folded it with a measured quietness. Her chin was shaken.

"What a terrible thing to be a mother, Denny—a mother like I am—"

"Aw, see, Aunt Josie, if it wasn't for you, she'd have gone long ago. She often said so. Say, I think she's all right. The letter sounds good. And she sent you the collar."

The broad face puckered: "That's just it, Denny—just it—the collar."

She stuffed it quickly in her pocket. Lizzie came in. She was a broad, heavy girl of 17, yet she affected mincing little ways that were as ridiculous, Denny thought, as maidenly around a big, white turnip.

Lizzie wore her streaked, yellow hair done up with an immense red bow, and her pug-nose was thickly powdered.

"Oh, hello, Denny. How's Katy? I'm coming to see her. Well, are you crying, ma? It's getting tiresome."

"I'm not crying, Lizzie."

"Humph, I suppose it's about Violet. Let her see—disgrace the whole family."

"Hush, Lizzie. I should think you'd feel sorry for your sister."

"Oh, yes, I suppose it's my fault. Violet ran away, I suppose it's my fault she stayed out till morning! She had no right to make papa mad. She was just too stuck up over her looks."

"Aw, dry up, Lizzie—if you were ever half as sweet as Vee—"

Denny turned his back: "I have to go, Aunt Josie."

She followed him to the door: "Could you put in the personal, Denny? The poor girl! Sent out with fifty cents? Gawd pity us!"

Denny clenched his teeth. As he went from the grimy kitchen to himself: "The big bully!" He longed to meet Matt Borley, longed to come smashing against the huge fellow. But he had only a consuming pity for Violet.

He went to the newspaper office and inserted the personal.

"Vee—I'm fine, Katy and I are living on Oak street. 'Do you need money? Please write me at Aunt Josie's, Denny.'"

It occurred to him that Violet might be in need. Maybe she was hungry. He could see her dark, enormous eyes haunting the white, wilful prettiness of her face. Poor Vee! She could have been so happy—so beautiful.

Yet people like his uncle and that mean Lizzie would force her out in the night. Why was such cruelty permitted? Why was Matt Borley allowed power? Why was such a brute ever created? Denny grappled with the ancient, yet burning problem of evil, and like who he would before, all who will come after, failed to vanquish it.

Though he found no answer to his questions, Denny regarded all the pitiless indifference of life as a thing that would pass. He left Matt Borley's home, taking refuge in dreams. There'd be a day when he, Denny, would have power; when he would be rich, generous as a king. He would atone to Violet; to Aunt Josie; to Katy.

In this image, the great Denny was a man of wealth, of great achievements, of vast learning. He had been through college—he had traveled—yet the Denny of seventeen went on cleaning bricks.

August approached; the schools were reopening with half-day sessions. Denny had six months to finish. He lay awake, scheming, wondering how he might earn enough working in the afternoon to pay $35 to Mrs. Traynor and still have a little for clothes and the few things Katy would need. He figured $45 would do it.

Though he thought of a thousand jobs none would pay the required wage. Hope wouldn't down. When Denny had exhausted every practical chance he took to visions. There must be some way—gee, there must! Other fellows could do it.

But one morning after he had spent two days looking for the golden job, he pulled his necktie viciously, saying to himself:

"I'll go back next time. I can always save up. In six months I'll have enough."

The building contractor for whom he had been working offered him a chance at $50 a month.

"You'll make good," he told Denny. "You might even be a plasterer."

Denny, the great—a plasterer! He thought of Emmet Goss, the grocery clerk with the polished skull, whose place he might have had, and the same indignant resentment burned him. He'd show them!

He saved—went without his lunch that he might have money when the next term opened. In the middle of the year Aunt Josie was ill. Denny saw her suffer, suffering, lying on her side as she stood at the stove. "I haven't much longer here, Denny," she said. "I'll be glad to go, glad to go—"

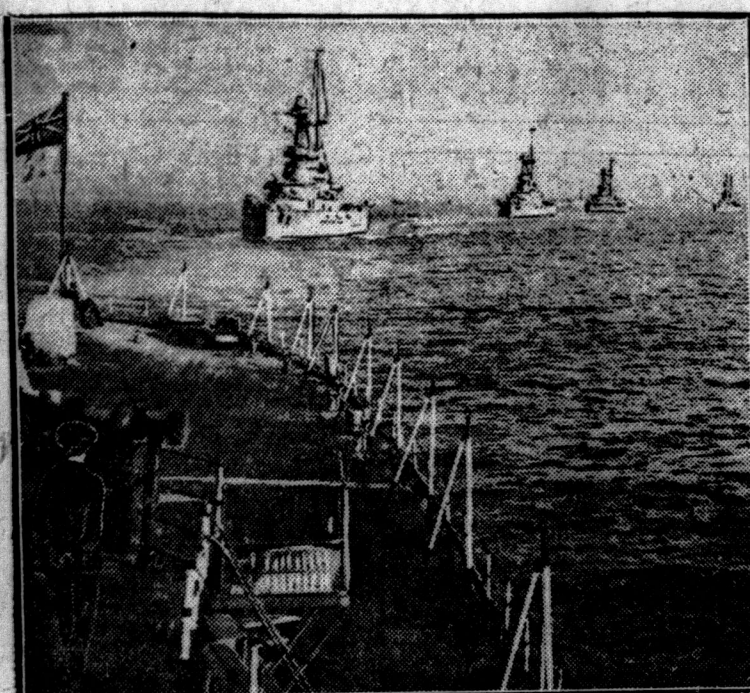

A few days later he found her in terrible pain. Denny went for a doctor. And he put in Aunt Josie's hands all the money he had saved. There would be no school this term!

"Not going back?" Katy asked, the red lips all trembling.

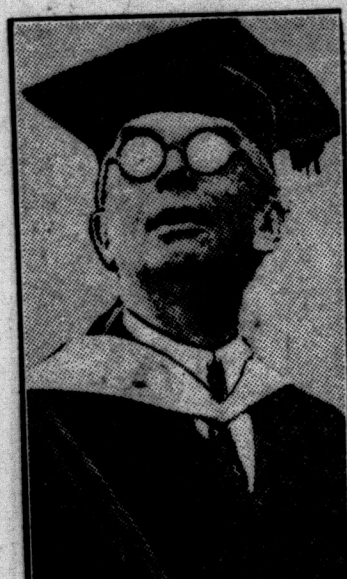

"Not this term, Katy. I've lots of time."

Default of Rugby Club Brings Harsh Criticism From City Fans

Rugby Committee To Blame For Default More Than Team Is Opinion of Fans

Petrolia Hard Oils Are Left In Financial Lurch When Game Is Called.

London's default of the scheduled rugby game in Petrolia yesterday was an unfortunate ending to what local gridiron enthusiasts had fondly deduced themselves into thinking was rugby's come-back year as far as London and the old three-cornered rivalry which has produced so many football championships were concerned.

It was no fault of the majority of the members of the team, but was traceable to the committee in charge of rugby affairs. A meeting called Tuesday night to shake up rugby interest for yesterday's game and to arrange details of the trip produced two lone members of the committee, both incidentally members of the team. Certain members of the team, although workouts were called, apparently had officially declared the season closed with the game at Sarnia as far as they were concerned.

Appeared Certain.

Even under these happy circumstances it appeared certain that a team would go down to Petrolia, and the time for meeting was broadly hinted at 10 o'clock yesterday morning. By noon a team was on hand, not the regular crew, but a squad which on paper would have given Petrolia a battle and not disappointed the fans.

Two players, Lawrence and Loveless, were already enjoying the Petrolia scenery. However, while the team was assembled here, neither committee men, cars nor anything in the shape of transportation that looked as if it might be routed for Petrolia turned up, and the decision was finally made not to attempt the trip. Petrolia was notified of this decision.

Could Mean Suspension.

Reports indicate that quite a large portion of the citizenry of Petrolia and the surrounding country who associate rugby with thanksgiving day rather than turkey was disappointed with this turn of affairs. It may be fairly surmised that they probably doubted the sportsmanship involved in the matter.

It could mean suspension for the London Rugby club, but it is believed that Petrolia will not press for that for the good of the game, and because the officials of the Hard Oil club realize that the fault does not lie with the members of the London team. However, some amendments are due the Petrolia club, and not a few to the local fans, who have a right to demand, in return for their patronage, that the team should be the game through with credit to the city.

THE PETROLIA ANGLE.

Special to The Advertiser.

Petrolia, Nov. 12.—The action of London Rugby team in failing to appear for their scheduled game at Greenwood Driving Park this afternoon is one beyond all expectations of even the Hard Oil youngsters, who may or may not know the correct meaning of true sportsmanship, but who sense at least some idea of honor. The Hard Oils had nothing to gain by fulfilling their obligations with Sarnia a week ago. They were as far as general opinion went, out of the running, and also due for overwhelming defeat, with its cuts, bruises and lameness to individual players. Despite all this, they played their game and played it well, and in doing so tried at least to show a spirit of sportsmanship.

This is not the first instances in which London has failed to appear on the Hard Oil gridiron, but is merely a repetition of last year's performance.

Down the Line In All Sports

It is unfortunate that bad work on the part of a committee may bring not only the city into sporting disrepute but also bring down criticism on the L. A. A. A. and even on the rugby team itself, when it is undeserved.

Even the rugby fans, critical as they are over the Thanksgiving Day development, still believe in the L. A. A. A. and the idea behind it. The L. A. A. A. itself, it was shown at the last meeting, has already realized that its committee must be broadened out to include people who will work and who know the games they would be asked to interest themselves in.

Not all of the committee are to be blamed, but those who have worked must unfortunately share the blame with the rest.

The unfairness of the thing is shown by the cases of two players, both railroaders. Both married men, they made a money sacrifice to go down to Petrolia and take chances of injury which would mean still more financial sacrifice. One gave up a $30 trip; the other a day's pay, besides going without sleep in order to be on hand.

London needs the L. A. A. A. badly enough, but the L. A. A. A. needs committees which will function on holidays as well as at home fixtures.

The stand taken by the O. R. F. U. in the Parkdale-Hamilton Rowing Club fiasco was wise in the extreme. All-Toronto combinations such as Parkdale attempted to pull off would pretty nearly confine all competition to Toronto.

Toronto teams, birth certificates would bear out, are mostly all-Ontario combinations at any time.

J. O. Davis, Australian tennis star, has withdrawn from the Davis Cup competition. His last trip cost him $600 quid more than his official allowance. Very sporting, but very hard on the pocketbook, and with that amount a much better time could be had than chasing halfway across the world to chase a tennis ball and undergo the mental strain of such competition.

There seems to be plenty of shifting around of baseball managers this season. It is rather unfair to expect a baseball manager to do much toward the building of a machine in a year's time, especially with his resources limited by a bank roll that cannot be loosened. Chance had the Red Sox for one year after the team had been depleted of players. Donie Bush had the Senators and the Senators were nothing much to manage. Both are out in the cold world again.

When Miller Huggins took charge of the Yankees he was criticized caustically. But Col. Jacob Ruppert gave him a handful of blank checks and half a dozen years with which to bring home a championship. He brought it home finally—a little late, his critics said, but he brought it home. A baseball manager needs time and a certain amount of money to achieve success. Most of the owners who are hiring and discharging managers so frequently merely are working to establish alibis for themselves. They attempt to conceal their own parsimony and lack of knowledge of baseball and business by blaming the managers.

Financially this year has been a failure for the Petrolia Rugby Club, and they had looked forward to a good Thanksgiving game to put them on their feet. London's action today means that Petrolia will have considerable trouble to get financial support to enter a team next year. What has London to gain by their action today? Was it to save their skin or their pocketbook? In either instance the Green and White, if asked, would gladly have been lenient toward London. But old London have been playing Rugby for at least twenty-five years, or more, and at that time we suffered many blows from their hands, but never one like that of today.

GRID GOSSIP

The size of the crowd at the De La Salle-St. Thomas game at Sunshine Park on the holiday shows what could be done if school rugby was fostered more than it is at present.

Petrolia possibly feels that a code of ethics ought to be passed around among the O. R. F. U. rule books are annually sent out.

Lionel Conacher did not get a chance to thrill Canadian football fans with his great runs, but he was the indirect cause of more excitement than he could have dreamed of. He was seen in many a day. Many of the fans went to the U. of T. stadium hoping that Conacher would play, yet doubtful whether or not his inclusion in the lineup was according to the rules, and fair to Hamilton Rowing Club.

The decision to use the former Argonaut star was unanimous among the Parkdale players. "Dutch" Brophy and Joe Breen were two of the locals who preferred to meet Rowing Club in the deciding game without the services of Conacher. In the last quarter, Breen ran off the field when Conacher made his appearance, and declined to continue if Conacher played. Coach Reid then sent Sirs on to advise Conacher to return to the bench, and Breen ran out and shook hands with the former Argonaut backfield star. It was not a personal affair.

A few minutes later Breen was painfully injured, and it was after this that Parkdale insisted on Conacher taking part. Breen, despite a previous injury, had played remarkable football. He went down fighting cleanly and cleverly, just as he has always done. Injuries alone keep him from being one of the outstanding stars of Canadian football.

Last night Manager Ernie Broderick of the Parkdale team was assured by Mr. Frank Hughes, K.C., of the firm of Hughes & Agar, that, according to the rules, Conacher was eligible to play.

Whatever the outcome of the national semi-final and final, the Intercollegiate Football Union has reason to chortle just a little when the season's card of exhibition games is reviewed. Queen's are now announced to play Argonauts next Saturday. There is now little likelihood of Bellefonte Academy performing against Argonauts this season.

Queen's have already beaten Ottawa of the Interprovincial Union, and are likely to make a close game with Argonauts. McGill took the measure of Hamilton Tigers and Montreal of the Interprovincial, while Toronto accounted for both Hamilton teams, Tigers of the Interprovincial, and Rowing Club of the Ontario Union. Exhibition games are not always true tests of strength, but, anyway, the intercollegiate is entitled to its smile of satisfaction.

Some of Frank Shaughnessy's critics received food for thought when the youthful McGill team defeated the Tigers, University of Toronto and M. A. A. A. all in nine days. "Shag" is on his way to another reign of supremacy and he is still the best coach in Canada.

M'GRAW WANTED TO AID "BIG SIX" HENCE BIG DEAL

Sails With Jennings for Europe
As the Deal Is Made.

PLANS TO REBUILD

Associated Press Despatch.

New York, Nov. 12.—On the eve of his departure today for Europe to spend a month, Manager John J. McGraw of the New York Nationals completed one of the biggest deals of his career which sends Dave Bancroft, his captain and shortstop, to the management of the Boston National League club, besides involving other players.

While the deal is as important to Boston as to New York in the strengthening of both teams, it is more the fruition of a declared policy here than in the former city, which lacks the material that the Giants have for trading purposes. After his loss of the world's series last month McGraw said he would rebuild his team; Christy Mathewson, president of the Braves, has been trying to rebuild his for a year.

For Bancroft the Giants receive Outfielder Billy Southworth, the captain of the Braves, and one of the outstanding gardeners in the major leagues. It was officially announced that this deal was man for man without a money bonus, but the Giants manager made no secret of his purpose to perform a service for his old pal and premier pitcher, Mathewson.

By the remainder of the deal Pitcher Joe DeScherer comes back to the Giants, where he tarried for a short time in 1919, in exchange for Charles Stengel, the immortal "Casey" whose home runs won the Giants' only two world's series victories this year, and Bill Cunningham, Stengel's alternate in center field.

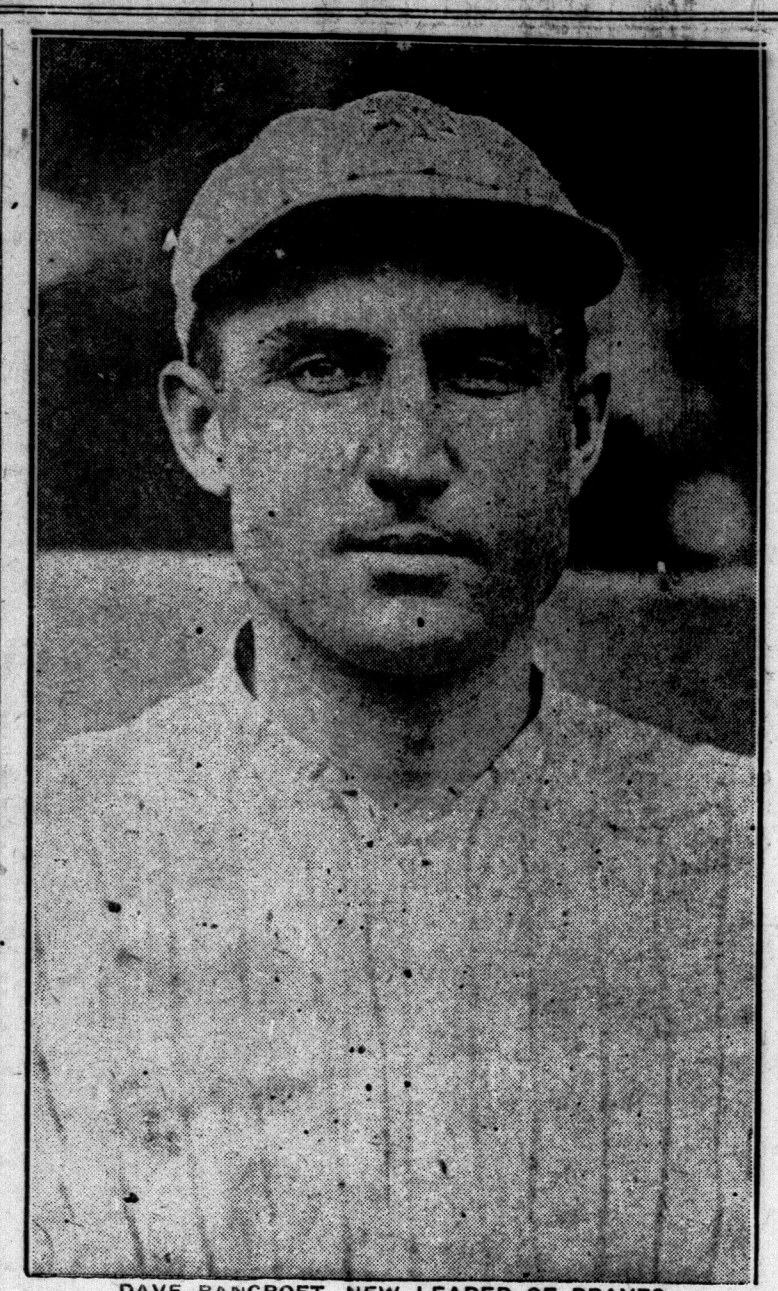

McGraw, with Hughey Jennings, his chief coach, and Mrs. Jennings, was a passenger on the George Washington, sailing for England and Germany. He intended to return in time for the December meeting of the major leagues to swing other deals, but Mr. and Mrs. Jennings may remain abroad all winter.

SPORT SNAPSHOTS

No surprise was occasioned in well-informed circles by the announcement that Dave Bancroft of the Giants had been appointed manager of the Boston Braves, to succeed Fred Mitchell, former Toronto pitcher and catcher.

Fred Yapp, who had a colorful career in baseball, had commenced as a bat boy for the Harvard University team 30 years ago, and finally became a catcher in independent baseball and afterward in small major leagues. From catching he went to pitching, and made his way to the National League as a finger with the Phillies. He went to Toronto in 1907 as a pitcher, realized that his arm was failing him, and went back to catching, at which position he was a star in the International League. His work attracted the attention of the New York Americans, and he was bought from Toronto. Later he went to Boston as first lieutenant to Manager Stallings of the Braves, and got much of the credit for the four straight victories of the Bostonians over the famous Athletics in the 1914 world series. Chicago Nationals eventually signed him as manager, and he won a pennant there. For several seasons he has been at Boston in the capacity of manager.

COLLEGIATES NOT UNIT ABOUT COMBINATION TRACK TEAM

Claimed London South C. I. Withdrawing Track Men For Basketball.

The mustering of a combined London Collegiate team to take part in the proposed tri-school track meet between Hamilton C. I., Buffalo Lafayette High and London is meeting with a few obstacles.

London South Collegiate members of the track team have been withdrawn, it is claimed, because it would interfere with their basketball. At London south, the track men apparently are the backbone of the cage team.

The same question practically had to be threshed out over rugby, whether London would combine or play individual collegiate teams in a local group. Combined, the London Collegiate team managed only to make a fair showing against St. Thomas.

This is somewhat different in that London South Collegiate apparently has adopted the policy that athletes cannot successfully compete in two sports at once.

Bill Wanless and others, it is claimed by those who are working for a combined track team, produce evidence that basketball does not necessarily interfere with track athletes.

One thing is certain, London, if it is to make a showing against Hamilton and Buffalo teams, will have to muster the very strongest team the city is capable of producing.

London South Collegiate soccer eleven will work out every day this week in preparation for their game at Windsor Saturday. The South-erners are not a bit downhearted over their chances in the Border City, and believe they'll be returned "Woss" champs.

Central C. I. plays a return game with Ingersoll C. I. here Wednesday afternoon. The locals defeated Ingersoll 4 to 0 in the first, and this game will give the squad good training for their meeting with Hamilton in the Mountain City on Friday.

Hamilton Rowers Quit Over Conacher But Are Awarded Title

MORTON LOSES HAMILTON RACE TO U. S. RUNNER

Zuna, New York, Finishes First in Round-the-Bay Marathon.

DELLOW IS THIRD

Canadian Press Despatch. Hamilton, Nov. 12.—Frank Zuna, Millrose A. A., New York, repeated his performance of 1922 this morning, when he led home a field of 16 starters in the Hamilton Herald's 27th round-the-bay race. Zuna's time for the 19 miles 168 yards was 1:52:24, compared to the winner's last year's mark of 1:50:50.

Charlie Morton, Y. M. C. A., Hamilton, broke the tape in 1:53:27, just one minute and three seconds behind the winner. Morton came strong at the finish, but failed to overtake the American runner, who finished first. Jimmie Dellow, Gladstone A. C., Toronto, took third honors. Dellow was an early leader, but was passed by Zuna with only a few miles to go. Dellow was forced to clear the way for Morton with the Dundurn was reached. His time was 1:54:55. Conditions were favorable, but the time was far behind the record of 1:46:15 made by the late Jimmie Duffy in 1912. Zuna, however, was struck by a bicycle on the route, and Morton bumped by a car.

Many Delays. The highway was blocked with cars, and runners suffered many delays. The interest which made the long-distance run a feature in former days was not lacking this year. Hundreds thronged the starting post, and the route was lined. Scores of automobiles followed the runners around the sand strip, and many careless drivers interfered with the progress of the competitors.

The field held well together until the city limits were reached, and the weaker members were forced to fall back in rear positions. Zuna, Morton and Dellow moved forward and opened up a gap large enough to center the interest in their performance. Zuna took an early lead. Morton was in close pursuit, and moved to the front after the canal was chalked off.

Passes Morton. Dellow was well up, and only about 50 yards separated the trio. The Hamilton boy was unable to hold the lead, and Zuna began to overtake him near the end of the beach, and Dellow came up to pass Morton. It appeared as if Dellow and Zuna were left to fight it out for the honors, as Morton slackened his pace considerably. Dellow then took the commanding position, and remained on top until Holy Sepulchre Cemetery was reached, when the game Zuna again started his move forward in the final few miles. Zuna passed Dellow at the center for the honor, and was seen speeding up in the rear.

At the Dundurn he overhauled Dellow, and in a burst of speed chased the American down York street to the home post. The wide gap opened by the winner was too much for Morton to overcome. Both runners were fresh and completed the final mile in fast time.

The Panorama of Baseball

What boy's pockets in the past have not contained the ingredients of a baseball—bits of twine and rubber! How many of us in our youth have not gone to stores and begged for rubber bands for the good cause of the game? The ball in the corner? The ball in the early days was a very crude affair. Henry Chadwick, the pioneer sport writer, describes the ball of 1858 as weighing 6½ ounces and measuring 10½ inches in circumference. That it was "lively" was due to the 1½ ounce rubber heart it had, covered with yarn and enveloped outwardly with leather. This was better than the ball of 1842, which was made of yarn.

Between these there came a larger ball, covered with sheepskin sewed on in four sections according to the specifications of some unknown shoemaker. You'll see how a blacksmith gave some other specifications later on.

The ball of 1854 was designated by the baseball powers then governing the game to weigh from 5½ to 6½ ounces and to be from 2½ to 3½ inches in diameter. But in 1909 the cork centre ball came into being.

We present here a picture of an old-time ball—One used in the historic match, the first intercollegiate match, between Amherst and Williams colleges. Those were the days when colleges used to play with the famous clubs which were the forefathers of professional baseball. Amherst's ball weighed 2½ ounces and was 6 inches in circumference. It was made at North Brookfield by Henry Hebard. Williams' ball was 7 inches round and weighed more than 2 ounces. According to local accounts, it was covered "with light-colored leather so as to be seen with difficulty by the batter." The ball is the very soul of the game. Its lively center of rubber became a bone of contention in the 70's; whenever it touched a rough surface it could be easily deflected and according to Spalding such a ball was held responsible for unhealthy scores such as 101 to 11, which were not uncommon in early days. Then came the dead ball, and it is often quoted that soon after its adoption Harvard played a game lasting 24 innings, with a score of 0-0.

Hundreds of thousands of eyes during a season are centered on the leather sphere. It is watched carefully by the umpire so that no tricks may be played with it. Different pitchers, with the aid of saliva or resin, have made the ball perform miracles; but such processes are not now countenanced. No doctoring is allowed, though some creeps in. In the past pitchers had their formulas: Russell Ford's emery ball was guarded for years, like some quack's prescription. There are still tricks—outward incantations and gestures, which means something to the out-ward covering of the ball—to give it peculiar and unexpected breaks. Vaseline, licorice, tobacco, have been spread on the pitcher's glove or in the mouth and he whispered to the ball. So, likewise, there was the shine ball, the pitcher rubbing the leather sphere so as to create a polish which would flash deception to the man at the plate as it sped toward the bat.

Tomorrow: When the first college teams met.

HISTORIC BASEBALLS.

The lower two were used in the first intercollegiate match, between Amherst and Williams, in 1859, when good pitching kept the total number of runs down to 105. That was 100 more than in the 1916 game, in which the upper ball was used.

Siki, Tamed, Now In Hard Training

Terror of Parisian Boulevards Behaves in Exemplary Manner.

Associated Press Despatch. New York, Nov. 12.—Training is what Siki is doing "nothing else, but" these days, according to word from his manager, Bob Levy, who has had the singular Senegalese under lock and key at a health farm on the outskirts of Summit, N.J., for the last two weeks. During that time, according to Levy, Siki has taken off a dozen pounds and has put himself in good shape for his bout with Kid Norfolk at Madison Square Garden on November 29. Siki has been doing five or six miles on the road every morning and boxing ten or twelve rounds each afternoon.

This news of the exemplary behavior of the terror of Parisian boulevards is no startling as to have resulted in the organization of an expedition of boxing writers to Siki's camp today.

In order that the spectators who came in the expectation of seeing him perform would not be disappointed.

Close Game.

The game was another close affair. Parkdale scoring one point in the second period, and both teams scored in the third. Early in the fourth period Hamilton tied the count on a rouse. Earl Douglas of Parkdale had been injured early in the game, and Brophy could not stand the going after two minutes' trial. Breen, also of the Paddlers, entered the game, and played well until carried off in the fourth quarter when he injured ankle. Archie Thomas had been injured, and then Miles, the strong man of the inner portion of the line, was hurt and retired. This put Parkdale strictly up against it, and they sent Conacher in, but took him out before he had participated in a play. Soon afterwards he was sent on, but again taken off. This procedure followed several times, Hamilton objecting each time to him playing.

Once again Connie came on, but he asked the Hamilton players if they objected, and when they answered in the affirmative he went off on his own accord, but was immediately sent back by the Parkdale management. Referee Rogers decided that it was time to stop the nonsense, and he gave the two teams 30 seconds to decide if they would play. At the expiration of that time, Rowing Club refused to play with Conacher on the field, and Parkdale refused to play without him, so the referee called the game off.

Rowing Club left the field, and after waiting around for a few minutes Parkdale lined up, and after scrambling the ball, went over for a touch. On the way back the Paddlers were rushed by some of the fans, and soon there was a general melee, in which the raiders came off worst. The spectators hung around for a while, but gradually departed after the announcement was made that the game would not be continued.

Toronto, Nov. 12.—At a meeting of the Canadian Rugby Football Association here tonight it was arranged that Hamilton Rowing Club, champions of the senior O. R. F. U., play Hamilton Tigers, winners of the Big Four, on the Tigers' grounds in Hamilton next Saturday afternoon. The two clubs agreed upon the officials. Ben Simpson will referee, with Billy Mallett umpire and Bob Ileson head linesman. They are all Hamilton men.

TO ASK WEAKER TEAMS BE GIVEN PREFERENCE

Majors To Consider Changes in Rules At December 12 Meeting.

Associated Press Despatch. Chicago, Nov. 12.—Strengthening of weaker teams in the major leagues through giving a team of lower standing preference to players upon whom waivers have been asked, will be one of the subjects to be brought to the rules to be submitted for action at the joint meeting of the major leagues here Dec. 12, Commissioner Landis announced today.

Another important suggestion to come up before the December meeting will be one giving major league umpires the right to appeal to the commissioner, who may finally determine any dispute in which a major league umpire is party.

Amendment of the rule dealing with the number of eligible players on a team also will be proposed. The rule states that the manager is to be excluded from the list of 40 players permitted to each team. It is suggested that the word manager be changed to non-playing manager, and that coaches also be excluded from the list.

Another suggested change to this section of the rules would be that no club shall directly or indirectly "negotiate for or employ" a player who is under contract or who has accepted terms with another club.

GIANT CLUB PRESIDENT IS RE-ELECTED FOR YEAR

Associated Press Despatch. New York, Nov. 12.—Reports that Charles A. Stoneham, president of the New York National League Club, was about to retire were set at rest today when he was re-elected unanimously by stockholders to head the organization for another year. Seven directors, including John J. McGraw, manager and vice-president, and Francis X. McQuade, treasurer, also were re-elected.

Election of other officers was deferred until the return from Europe of McGraw.

Landlord Kills Soccer Player

Associated Press Despatch. Birmingham, England, Nov. 12. Thomas Ball, center halfback for Aston Villa, one of the leading clubs of the English Football League, was shot dead last night at Perrybar, a suburb of Birmingham, following an altercation with his landlord, George Stagg, an ex-member of the Birmingham city police force.

Ball, who was 24 years of age, came from the colliery district in Durham, which produced such well-known Villa players as Kirtson, Young and Thompson. He made his first appearance in the Aston Villa team two seasons ago, and became a reliable and popular successor to Barson.

STEAMER BURNS, BUT CREW SAVED ON ERIE ISLAND

Find Two Fishermen Stranded
Without Food For 104
Hours.

UNINHABITED SPOT

Vessel Springs Leak and Men
Washed Ashore Thursday Night.

Associated Press Despatch.
Port Clinton, Ohio, Nov. 12.—News of the burning of the lake steamer
Wespe, owned by the Border Transit Company at Sandusky, Ontario, and the rescue of her crew of nineteen off Middle Sister Island in Lake Erie near here early today, reached here this afternoon when the freighter Conneaut landed two fishermen who had been marooned on the island. The cause of the fire was not learned.

The crew of the Wespe, which was bound from Sandusky to Cleveland to load coal, succeeded in escaping in small lifeboats. After battling with heavy seas for several hours they landed at Middle Sister Island, where they found Martin Bosom and Harley Bass, fishermen, who had been without food for 104 hours. Attempts of Bosom and Bass to attract attention by burning signal fires failed.
The Conneaut, which was en route from Cleveland to Alpena, Michigan, attracted by the burning Wespe, landed at the island and picked up the 21 men. It took the Wespe's crew to Sandusky and then brought Bosom and Bass here.

Bosom and Bass said they left Pettit Cove, Canada, early Thursday with a power boat which they were to bring to Port Clinton. The boat sprang a leak a few miles from shore and the men landed when the boat was washed ashore by the waves on Thursday night. The island is not inhabited, but they found shelter in a deserted fisherman's cabin.

CORNERSTONE IS LAID BY BISHOP AT NEW PARISH HALL

Many Members of St. George's Congregation Gather For Interesting Ceremony.

DELIVERS ADDRESS

In the presence of a large gathering of members of the congregation of St.
George's Church, Bishop Williams laid the foundation stone of the new parish hall yesterday. Assisted in the service by a representative body of the clergy of London, and by Archdeacon Sage, rector of St. George's, Bishop Williams performed the ceremony at noon, and congratulated the congregation on the acquisition of their new social centre.

Headed by the choir, the Girl Guides, the Boy Scouts, the men of the church, the bishop and his clergy,
a procession, formed in the church, passed out the front door and round the road to the site of the new parish hall. Here after the usual Anglican ceremony, during which the choir sang the hymns chosen for the occasion, the bishop laid the stone in the corner of the wall, and the new centre for St. George's Church had received its official sanction and Godspeed.

Character Foundation.
Speaking to the congregation after the ceremony, his lordship said: "Just as this cornerstone which we have laid is the foundation stone of the new parish hall, so is character the foundation of Christian men and women in the world. No matter what you may put in the other parts of the building, the foundation stone is the essential thing. And in character is the real thing that matters is the early training in the home and the Sunday school. The home is the chief and most important influence in the formation of all character, but in these busy times when some of us have so little time in the home, the Sunday school is becoming more and more the training ground for the boys and girls of today."

"This parish hall is going to be much more than a Sunday school alone. It is built and designed to become the social centre of the parish, and to take a worthy place in the building of Christian spirit in this neighborhood. Thus it will fulfill its mission in the best possible way and stand as a pillar of light to the people of St. George's in the years to come.
I congratulate you all heartily indeed on the realization of last year's work and wish for you and for it God's blessing, that it may carry the glory of Christ in London to the glory of God and the honor of His kingdom."

Introduces Superintendent.
Fred Anderson, who was introduced by Archdeacon Sage as once a boy in the Sunday school and the present superintendent, in a brief address recapitulated the history of the St. George's Sunday school from the time forty years ago when as a boy he had first attended.

"I hope," he said, "that in this new building which, though I have longed for it for many a year I hardly expected to see built in my time, we shall be able to carry on the fine work of the Sunday school and also develop the social side of the church with even greater success than in the past. I, too, wish to congratulate the congregation on the laying of the cornerstone and wish you and the parish hall the best of luck and success in the work that it will house."

The clergy attending Bishop Williams, besides the rector, Archdeacon Sage, were Professor F. Anderson,
Rev. William Lowe, Rev. Norton
Shaw, Rev. Leslie Armitage, Rev. A.
L. G. Clarke, Rev. A. J. Beverley,
Rev. W. J. Eccleston of Glanworth, Rev. C. B. Gunne, T. J. Charlton and Rev. H. H. Tancock.

FIRES IN STRATFORD CLOUDED IN MYSTERY

Firebug Believed Responsible For Recent Series
Of Blazes.

Special to The Advertiser.
Stratford, Nov. 12.—What may prove to be another incendiary fire, to be added to growing list of such fires in Stratford of late, occurred on Huron street beyond Foreman avenue this evening. A frame house owned by Ed Murray caught fire in a mysterious manner and gave the district a warm few minutes. No one has been living in the place for some time and the house was absolutely empty. The origin of the fire is very similar to those at the County Club, the curling rink and Schneider's coal yards.

For the Cough That Sticks

Common Cough Syrups Won't Help—You've Got To Make Your Own.

Cheap and Best

For any kind of cough, but especially for the stubborn one that persists and keeps you awake nights, this home-made cough mixture will quickly loosen the phlegm, allay the inflammation and stop the cough.
You can make it yourself at home in two minutes by following these instructions:
Get from any druggist one ounce of Parmin (double strength) — to this add a little granulated sugar and enough water to make one half-pint
—that's all there is to it, and children like it.
Like a soothing, healing poultice one costly substance in this homemade mixture spreads itself completely over the membrane of the throat. This causes the most stubborn hang-on cough to cease almost instantly. No ordinary slow-acting cough syrup contains this expensive ingredient.
It's a mighty fine remedy for chest colds and acute nasal catarrh, and remember, that any remedy that overcomes catarrh, partially or wholly, is bound to be of benefit to those who are troubled with head noises and catarrhal deafness.
Get Parmin and get better.—Advt.

To-day I saw

These have been stirring times on the Main Floor! You may have noticed last week that some of the merchandise had left their accustomed haunts to make room for the delightful new Christmas goods which I saw today.

For Christmas has really come to your store! You know it just as soon as you step inside the doors, and see the gay wreaths and streamers in bright holiday colors, and the genial, smiling face of good old Saint Nicholas.

The vista presented by the long Main Aisle is an attractive one. Dainty neckwear, colorful silk scarfs, sparkling jewelry, and delicately perfumed powders and soaps, and the fragrant allure of incense burners from Vantine's.

Further down the aisle, I saw the gay holiday showing of Christmas gifts, which are obligingly priced to please the inelastic budget. A bewildering profusion of handkerchiefs, articles of shell, ebony and ivory for the dressing table. Benares brassware in quaint shapes and designs, hand wrought by the natives of India.

Is your Christmas list a long one? Start now to buy a gift a day. This provident plan will save you much hurry and worry in the last shopping days.
