BOERS WILL SEE NAVAL REVIEW

Botha, DeWet and Delarey to be There—Want to Sound
Colonial Office.

Kruger is Still in the Sinks and
Will not Ask for Leave to Return.

London, Aug. 14.—The Brussels correspondent of the Times says he is requested to deny, in an unqualified manner, the statement that Wessels, Fischer and Wolmarans are going to Southampton to try to persuade Botha, De Wet and Delarey to refuse British hospitality. It is equally untrue that it is proposed to send a Dutch vessel to the Solent to intercept the generals.

It is the general opinion in Brussels that the Boer generals wish to collect funds for the assistance of their countrymen and to sound the British Colonial Office as to the return of certain members of the Boer party to South Africa. Botha, De Wet and Delarey have cabled to Brussels from Madeira, stating they expect to accept the invitation to attend the coronation naval review off Spithead on Saturday.

The pro-Boer agency, says the Paris correspondent of the Times, asserts that Kruger does not acquiesce in the present conditions in South Africa, and refuses to ask for leave to return there.

A Cape Town despatch to the Times says that the first train de luxe from Bulawayo arrived yesterday, having completed the journey in 74 hours.

AUTO ACCIDENT

Machine Crashed Into a Tree and two Wealthy Americans Were Killed.

Evreux, France, Aug. 14.—Mr. and Mrs. Charles Fair, Americans, who were related to Mrs. W. K. Vanderbilt, Jr., (Miss Virginia Fair) were returning to Paris from Trouville today, when their automobile swerved and crashed into a tree fifteen miles from here. Both were killed. The chauffeur became insane as a consequence of the shock. Mr. and Mrs. Fair had been staying at Trouville during racing week, and they had a very fast 45-horse power automobile which attracted considerable attention. They left San Francisco last May for a trip to Europe. Charles Fair was the son and was one of the heirs of the immense estate of the late Senator Fair. It is peculiar that the son of John W. McKay, one of Senator Fair's parents, was also killed near Paris a few years ago by being thrown from his horse. Another despatch says:—Both Mr. and Mrs. Fair sustained ghastly injuries, and were almost unrecognizable. Mr. Fair's head had been crushed in, while his wife's skull was split. At the time the accident occurred the auto, which was capable of running 74 miles an hour, was going at the rate of 62 miles an hour. The local police authorities hold in their possession and have sealed up a valise belonging to the Fairs and which contains jewellery, two letters of credit, a French bank note worth $200 and some gold coins. Fair was one of the three heirs to an immense estate, estimated in value at between $25,000,000 and $30,000,000.

THE POISON FIEND

The dog poisoner is getting in his work over in North Chatham. Geo. Plummeridge, Delaware avenue, lost a valuable Beagle Hound this week and so did Mrs. James Thomas. A J. Wilson's big cream colored cat was also killed by poison yesterday. Frank Hillman says that this cat was worth $100. It was the best rat catcher he had ever seen and kept the rats down wonderfully around his butcher shop and Mr. Wilson's store.

AFTER SEA SERPENT

Calixte Bechard purchased a fine new seine net and took it up to his grounds above the Erie & Huron bridge to try it last evening. On the very first haul the fine new net got caught on a snag. Then in order to create some excitement Robert Hallinan and the other bar and star boarders at the Aberdeen hotel who were assisting Mr. Bechard, cried out that they had the sea serpent. Soon all the canoeists on the river had assembled to see the monster of the Thames when Mr. Bechard's valiant fishermen should land it. The banks of the river, too, was soon crowded and excitement ran high. To keep up the interest Sam Moore remarked in loud tones that the serpent was so large that it couldn't turn around in the river. When the spectators found that the sea serpent was only an old snag they felt bad.

CHANGE FOR CARPER

In reference to the rather silly paragraph in yesterday's Banner concerning alleged delay in concrete sidewalk building, ex-Ald. Wm. Blight in a short interview with The Planet this morning said, "It is the high water in the river which has prevented our getting the gravel and we have tried all sources to secure it. The statement that the city is selling gravel is not true—quite Banner-like. The city never got a pound of gravel for us and we really feel quite capable of looking after our own business."

"We are prepared to push the work if we get the material. Now if the Banner wants to appear wise it might give us the information as to where it can be secured 'with prompt and complete success.' We would be much obliged, I'm sure."

NEW FACTORY FOR CHATHAM

Enterprising Firm of Colby,
Scott & Co. Commenced Operations.

A big Industry Which will Further Develops—Will Exhibit at the Fairs.

Chatham is to-day in possession of a new industry which, in a few years, will be classed as one of her finest, all the result of the vigorous push and enterprise displayed by Jacob Colby, a few years ago, one of the most successful farmers of Harwich. This concern, like many of our now enormous factories, has had a very humble beginning.

Mr. Colby, while engaged in his work on the farm, suddenly conceived an idea for making a combination wagon stock rack. This idea was carefully developed step by step until Mr. Colby has now placed on the market a wagon rack which can be utilized for almost every farm purpose.

Three years ago he retired from the farm and moved into the Maple City, and devoted his time to making these racks. The result was most gratifying to Mr. Colby. The racks sold on sight, the farmers readily realizing the advantages to be gained from its use. Mr. Colby at once secured a patent for his invention, and soon found out that in order to supply the increasing demand for his racks, he would have to increase his facilities for manufacturing them. This he is now doing.

He succeeded in interesting J. L. Scott in his scheme, who, with clever business insight, saw at once the possibility of building up an extensive industry and became a partner with Mr. Colby in the undertaking.

It was also decided to go farther than manufacturing stock racks and to include a planing mill and lumber yard. The building and property formerly occupied by Mr. Milner, of Walkerville, as a wagon factory was decided upon as a suitable site and was purchased from the owners. A complete set of planing mill machinery and appliances for the manufacture of the racks has been purchased and installed in the factory, which is already in operation.

Mr. Colby was superintending the unloading of a cargo of lumber at the rear of his factory when he was approached by The Planet.

"Yes, we have our factory running already," he said upon an enquiry by the reporter. "We will now turn out racks far faster than before, and we look for a good business. Besides the racks we will manufacture everything along that line, including sash, doors, etc. We will also carry on a trade in cedar posts, shingles, laths, and all kinds of dressed lumber material."

"We now engage about twelve employees, but when we get properly settled down to business we will employ from thirty to forty men."

The new firm will be known as Colby, Scott & Co. This year they will exhibit their racks at the fairs in Toronto, London and Guelph. The racks for these exhibits are being made now.

This firm deserve great credit for the enterprise they have shown in helping to increase Chatham's fame as an industrial centre. It is a home-bred industry and one of which Chatham should be proud. The gentlemen at the head of it are going into the scheme with enthusiasm and wholeheartedness, installing the best machinery with a view of turning out the best possible material, and are certainly deserving of the most hearty support from Chatham citizens.

DIAMONDS FROM QUEEN'S CROWN

They Will be Placed on Sale in London—The Stones
Number 3,688.

And Are Worth Several Hundred Thousand Pounds—Too Expensive to Keep.

London, Aug. 14.—The Times says:—Many elaborate descriptions have been printed this week of the crown which the Archbishop of York placed on the head of Queen Alexandra in Westminster Abbey last Saturday, but the fact has hitherto not been revealed that all the diamonds in it except the famous Koh-i-noor, will soon be placed on sale. The wives of American millionaires may therefore deck themselves with diamonds which ornamented the crown of Alexandra. As the crown will not be used again, when it is put among the other regalia in the Tower of London, its 3,688 stones will be displaced by paste jewels. The diamonds, some of which weigh 17 karats each, and some which are small, were collected by the Carringtons, the Regent street jewellers, none except the Koh-i-noor belonging to the state. The King and Queen can scarcely afford to keep in their possession such a hoard of wealth, as it is, several hundred thousand pounds, and they have given the jewellers authority to sell the stones. Each will be sold with a guarantee that it was used in the Queen's crowning.

REWARD RESCUE

Men who Saved Sandford From Well Receive Medals—The Presentation.

Paris, Aug. 14.—Before a large and representative gathering at King's Ward Park yesterday afternoon the five heroes who effected the rescue of Joshua Sandford from his tomb in the well were made the recipients of handsome medals by the Royal Humane Society of Canada in recognition of their undoubted courage. The recipients were John Carnie, David Mott, George Blanchard, Geo. Wentworth and Robert Hamilton. Mayor Brown, of Paris, presided. The address of the afternoon was delivered by President Adam Brown, of the Royal Humane Society, who referred in glowing terms to the bravery of the self-sacrificing men who had toiled, some of them for four days, in order that a brother might be rescued. Their mission had been one of devotion, without hope of applause or reward. Here the speaker paid a tribute to the services of John Penman and Dr. Dunton, who aided materially in the rescue. In concluding, he heartily congratulated the recipients, and announced that the list was still open, and from time to time further honors might be bestowed upon those who were shown to have acted heroically. Mr. Brown then made the presentations, assisted by Mr. Charles Black, also of the Humane Society. All of the recipients responded in modest fashion, claiming that they had only done their duty. Joshua Sandford was not present, as he is visiting in Toronto.

FABULOUS RICHES.

Johannesburg, Aug. 14.—Considerable excitement has been created here by the discovery of a new gold reef, which is said to traverse a large extent of territory. Local geologists think the strike is a continuation of the Witwatersrand main series, but the discoverers declare that they have found no gold fields that will be the equal in size to the Witwatersrand.

NOTED GUESTS

The Ursuline Academy had two very distinguished visitors to-day in the persons of the Rt. Rev. Archbishop Gauthier, of Kingston, and the Rt. Rev. Bishop McEvoy, of London. They were the guests of the Convent today, it being the close of the reunion of the ex-pupils of the Academy.

BY-LAW NEEDED

Homer B. Turner, caretaker at the cemetery, laid an information against carter John Brennan charging him with driving over the graves at the cemetery, but Mr. Turner was forced to withdraw the information this morning. This was brought about by the discovery that there was no by-law providing for this offense, although there are notices up in the cemetery that persons driving over the lots in the graveyard will be prosecuted. By some oversight the by-law was never passed. The matter was called to the attention of Ald. Mounteer, chairman of Parks and Cemetery committee, and he said he would have a by-law passed at the next council meeting and the error of omission, on the part of some predecessor of his in office in the past, rectified.

FRIDAY, AUGUST 15.

BETWEEN CORONATIONS.

For a thousand years there have been kings and queens of England to be crowned; but the coronation of Edward VII to-day is unique in one respect, points out the Hamilton Herald. Never before in English history has such a long period of time elapsed since the last previous coronation. Since the day that Queen Victoria was crowned more than 64 years have passed, therefore to the vast majority of British subjects the event is something entirely new.

These sixty-four years intervening between the crowning of King Edward and the crowning of his mother are not the least glorious period of British history. In this period the empire has extended more rapidly than in any similar period, and its progress in wealth and power and influence has been commensurate with its expansion. King Edward is sovereign of a very much greater empire than was his mother-on her coronation day. Since that day territories aggregating in extent more than 3,500,000 square miles—an area larger than all Europe—have been added to the empire. One-fourth of the land area of the globe, or about 12,000,000 square miles, are now under British sway, and about a fourth of the earth's population owe allegiance to the British monarch.

Since the last coronation the progress of the United Kingdom itself has been unprecedented. Its population, despite heavy emigration, has increased from 26,800,000 to 41,454,656 last year. And the increase in productive power of the population is much greater. Mulhall, the statistician, estimates that in 1840 the amount of industrial and productive energy put forth by the people of the United Kingdom per day was 9,730,000,000 foot-tons—that is to say, the power put forth in a day's work by the British people would raise that number of tons through the space of one foot. This amounted to 370 foot-tons per inhabitant. At the present time, according to Mulhall, the daily energy of the British people is equal to the astounding total of 61,410,000,000 foot-tons, giving an average of 1,570 foot-tons per inhabitant. These figures show that about four times as much work per inhabitant is done now than was done in 1840. As a matter of fact, however, the people are not nearly so hard-worked now as they were 60 years ago, for the hours of labor have been considerably reduced. The great difference is, of course, owing to the introduction of labor-saving machinery. The machine power of Britain is equal to that of 109,000,000 men.

The following figures show the growth of Britain's trade:

	1840	1895
Colonies.....	$34,000,000	$172,000,000
United States.....	23,000,000	131,000,000
France.....	6,000,000	68,000,000
Germany.....	5,000,000	60,000,000
Other countries.....	45,000,000	272,000,000
Total trade	$113,000,000	$703,000,000

The wealth of the United Kingdom was, in 1840, estimated by McCullagh and other authorities at $4,100,000,000. Mulhall, in his work, National Progress, estimated the total in 1895 to be $11,806,000,000. In 1860 the income tax assessment was $335,000,000; in 1900, $706,000,000. The assessment is computed as representing about half the total national income.

Another satisfactory evidence of progress is to be found in the statistics of pauperism and crime. For the decade 1840-9 the number of convictions for indictable offences in Britain was 1,240 for each million of the inhabitants, and in Ireland 1,564 for every million. In the decade 1890-9 the number was 333 for each million in Britain and 275 in Ireland. In 1890 there were 48 paupers per thousand of the inhabitants; in 1900, only 24 per thousand.

Some idea of the progress of elementary education may be gathered from the fact that illiteracy in Great Britain has decreased from 44 per cent. of the adult population in 1837 to 7 per cent. in 1900.

Some more figures, which show the growth of national activities, are these. In 1837 the number of letters which passed through the British post office was 82,000,000, or three per head per annum; last year the total number exceeded 2,084,000,000, or 53 per head per annum, besides 766,000,000 newspapers and book packets. In 1850 the total enrolled military forces of the empire were 189,000 men; in 1901 the normal establishment was 971,970 men, or, including colonial militia and native Indian troops, 1,400,000.

As the great self-governing colonies, comprising Greater Britain, were in their nursing stage during the greater part of the Victorian era, and are now rapidly coming to the front as prosperous and influential nations in all but name, it is certain that the empire's expansion during the next two generations will eclipse even the wonderful record made from the coronation of Victoria to that of the monarch who is crowned to-day.

WHY BARNS ARE STRUCK.

The Toronto Globe says editorially: "Prof. Reynolds, of the Ontario Agricultural College, assigns as a reason for the greater destruction of barns by lightning in recent years the disappearance of forests. Trees, he said, are conductors of lightning. Where there are many of them they carry the electrical energy in small currents to the earth, and thus prevent damage. That is why it is that you so often find single trees destroyed while there is no appearance of damage in a forest. Where there are many trees together, currents pass through a number of them in a small volume to the ground, while where one stands alone it may receive a current sufficient to cause its destruction. Trees, according to this theory, are the best protection against lightning, but they should not be too close to the house."

EARLY TONGS.

Relics of the Days When Matches Were Unknown.

Some customs seem to have as many lives as the proverbial cat. In the good old days of Queen Bess every smoker had in his outfit a pair of tobacco tongs. If he were a gallant of the court, they were made of silver; if a substantial merchant, of brass; but if a workman, of cheap ironware. They were a necessary implement to the smoker. Matches were unknown, and the only available fire in the day-time was the blazing log upon the hearth. With the poker a small piece of glowing ember was broken off, which with the tongs was applied to the freshly charged pipe.

Hundreds of these tongs are to be found in the collections of antiquarians. Most of them are clumsy objects, but a few are so graceful in outline and artistic in workmanship that they seem to be of French and Flemish rather than English origin.

These tongs were revived on a small scale some twenty years ago, when they were employed for holding cigarettes. The cigarette tongs were from two to four inches in length, connected at the upper end by a smart spring, which kept the ends together when in a position of rest. When used, the smoker opened them and caught the cigarette between the tips close up to the mouth end. The contrivance enabled the user to burn the cigarette down to the last whiff and protected the fingers from the discoloring vapor that produces the brown stain upon the fore and middle fingers.

The new tongs shown nowadays are somewhat larger and are intended to hold cigars as well as to reach a coal from the fireplace to a pipe. They are made of iron, steel and gun metal, and many of the latter are said to be manufactured from warships, cannon and other trophies of the late war with Spain.

Bell Rock Lighthouse.

The old lantern and dome of the Bell Rock lighthouse, in the German ocean, twelve miles southeast of Arbroath, are being removed. The lighthouse, which is 110 feet high, was designed by Robert Stevenson and Rennie and erected in 1807-10 at a cost of $61,000. The light has never until now been changed, says the Westminster Gazette. "R. L. Stevenson used to imagine himself with his engineer grandfather on the Bell Rock in fog, when the Smeaton had drifted from her moorings and the Aberdeen men, pick in hand, had seized the only boats, and Stevenson had to stoop and lap sea water ere his tongue could utter audible words. There also, when the beacon took a 'thraive' and his workmen fled into the tower, then almost finished, he sat unmoved reading his Bible, and one after another slunk back in confusion to their tasks. Southey has embodied a tradition regarding the Bell Rock in his ballad, 'The Inchcape Rock.'"

Swans Reach Old Age.

John Lover, the keeper of the wolves, stood on the bank of the lake at the zoo, a bit of pie in his hand. "Whew-w!" he whistled, and a white swan at the far end of the island turned and swam like lightning to him. It took the pie from his hand, waddled back into the water and in a moment had disappeared behind the island. "An old bird," said Lover, "is old at last. It is, in fact, 114 years old, I guess. It is the oldest creature in the gardens. The eagle, you know, is supposed to be 125. Swans are the longest lived creatures there are, the natural history books say. They live 300 years sometimes. Eagles live from 100 to 150 years, and parrots sometimes about 125."

Monument to Virginia Dare.

United States Senator Simmons of North Carolina wants a monument erected to mark the place where the first English speaking people landed and where the first Anglo-American woman was born—Virginia Dare. The historic spot is in Senator Simmons' state. It is Roanoke Island, and the date was 1584. The people who settled there had been sent over by Sir Walter Raleigh, and they wrote such glowing letters home and made such attractive maps that in 1585 and 1587 the colony largely increased. It was at Roanoke Island in 1587 that Virginia Dare was born. She ought to have a monument, says Mr. Simmons, and he wants congress to appropriate $25,000 for this purpose.

Deaths by Lightning.

From 1890 to 1900 the United States weather bureau printed statistics of losses of life by lightning. The work is now discontinued. During the year 1900 715 persons were killed by lightning; of this number 291 persons were killed in the open, 158 in houses, 57 under trees and 51 in barns. The circumstances of 151 deaths are not known. During the same year 973 persons were more or less injured by lightning strokes. On the average it is probable that from 700 to 800 lives are annually lost through injuries from lightning in the United States. The greatest number of injuries occur in the middle Atlantic states, the fewest in the Pacific states.

Philippine English.

A correspondent of the Blacksmith and Wheelwright saw this sign in the Philippines:

AMERICAN HOOF MACHINIST.

It belonged to a native blacksmith, who, it may be supposed, wished to suggest either that he would shoe horses in the American style or that he would shoe the horses of Americans.

WHEN A BOAT TIPS OVER.

It Is Well for Women to Know What to Do in an Emergency.

On the question discussed at the public bath, whether a girl's skirts if she fell overboard would buoy her up or drag her down there seemed to be a diversion of opinion. Finally, it was agreed that they might buoy her up for a few seconds, until the air that was in them escaped, but as soon as they were wet they would tend to drag her down, and make a swimming practically impossible. Of course, how soon they got wet would depend on the material of which they were made. Miss Clark, the teacher, pointed out that when a woman dived into the water the air under her bathing skirt formed a big bubble which hampered a swimmer, so that she reached back and pressed it out as soon as possible. But this same bubble would undoubtedly tend to buoy up a non-swimmer for an infinitesimal space of time. On the other hand, this air chamber lasted much longer in a wet bathing suit than in a dry one, for in the former the pores of the material were to a certain extent filled with water and the air escaped slowly.

The suggestion of an undressing drill seemed to particularly please Dr. Mosher, says The Brooklyn Eagle. Its practical value was evident, as in nine cases out of ten the drowning accidents are the result of an overturned boat, and its occupants are not in bathing suits. The children used to swimming there in the lightest possible attire, for except with the teachers, the skirted bathing suit is unknown, would be hampered almost as much as if they were called upon to save themselves with their high shoes, two or three petticoats on, and in the case of the older girls, long skirts and probably corsets.

It is not that undressing in the water is particularly hard. Most of those who swim for pleasure have probably done it, but the youngsters should be taught that they can and that in an emergency they must undress sufficiently to be able to put their knowledge of swimming to practical use. One or two lessons would be all that they would need. The matron suggested, and the suggestion was a good and practical one, "At least teach them to pick up the front of their skirts and hold them in their teeth to keep them out of the way. I always do that even with my bathing suit if I am swimming any distance."

A New Ape.

I believe there has been deposited in the London Zoo a specimen of a chimpanzee which is said to represent a new form, or it may be a mere variety only, of that species of man-like ape. It figures under the scientific name of anthropopithecus troglodytes, is said to have been brought from the Gold Coast, and has been presented to the Zoological Society by Captain D. A. Donovan. The creature is described as singularly tame and intelligent, and possibly it may find a successor to that highly-educated ape, the late lamented Sally. Unhappily, the manlike apes are all delicate of constitution, that is, as represented by a life spent in captivity, and subject to marked variations of temperature. Whether this new specimen is to be referred to the ordinary chimpanzee species or not will, no doubt, be duly determined by the authorities at the Zoo. The question of specific differences in the chimpanzee branch of the ape is not settled. Hartmann remarks that it is a difficult question to decide, though he himself admits that he is inclined to admit a certain constancy in the varieties he has examined. The new ape at the Zoo may possibly turn out to represent one of the varieties. It is a notoriously difficult matter to decide where we leave the limits of a mere variety behind and where the boundary line of a new species begins.—London Chronicle.

The Duke and the Soup.

Here is an episode related by M. Jacques Kraemer, now maître d'hôtel at the Carlton, respecting his experience at the Savoy:

I was waiting on the Duke of Fife one night when his grace was giving a small private dinner party in the Patience Room. There was hardly room to pass behind each guest. The soups were Borth—two Russian "potage," made from boiled duck, and served with sorrel, vegetables and cream, and just as I was serving it found, an accident happened. In one hand I had a plate of soup, and in the other my cream. The Duke was talking earnestly to me, and so intently did I listen to him, that I did not know I was dropping all the cream in a hideous thick stream down his back.

I made no fuss, I gave no alarm. The Duke went on talking and laughing with his guests, with the back of his exquisitely-fitting dress one mass of thick cream. "I got two or three soft serviettes, and as I served his grace with each course I gave him a rub. By the time we had come to the ice, there was nothing left of the cream except certain faint traces, for which I fear, his grace's valet was unjustly blamed."—London Daily News.

Not Home-Killed.

An English resident of Shanghai, having made a good dinner from a tasty but unrecognized dish, called his cook Wun Hoo, and congratulated him on the excellent meal. "I hope you didn't kill one of those dogs to provide the soup," jestingly remarked his daughter, referring, of course, to the pariah which haunt Chinese streets. Wun Hoo made a solemn gesture of dissent.

"No killing dogs, missie," he explained. "Him already dead when I picked up!"

A STORY OF HENRY BERGH.

One of His New York Experiences in Protecting Dumb Animals.

Like a well-dressed, sober ghost he went striding down the snowy street, and at University place he found the thing he had expected—a car packed inside almost to suffocation, both platforms packed outside, with men clinging like big bears to bottom steps and dashboard rails, and before it, within a cloud of steam, two ill-fed, bony horses with bloodshot eyes and wide, red nostrils flaring in their effort to fill laboring lungs with air, with heaving sides and straining backs and flanks, while their madly scrambling feet struck fire in vain to start again the awful weight behind them. Curses, oft jerked bell and assisting yells of passengers raised of effect. The driver's whip was raised, ready for the stinging blow, when suddenly the straining effort ceased, the horses' heads drooped low, and through the thick air there loomed up before them a tall, dark form, with hand up raised commandingly. And calm and distinct two laconic words reached his ears: "Stop! Unload!"

"Who the blank are you?" furiously demanded the driver. "And where's your authority for interfering with this trip?"

He knew well enough whom he was talking to, so silently Mr. Bergh turned back the lapel of his coat to show his badge, for in those days he had to do constabulary work as well as official, then repeated, "Unload!"

But, being tired, hungry and mad, the floodgates gave way, and the passengers' wrath burst forth. Abuse, satirical comment, threats, filled the air. To a few who remonstrated decently with him he expressed regret, but with grave politeness insisted on lightening the load, telling them they could see for themselves the utter inability of the horses to get them to the end of the line and gently urged them hereafter to note the condition of crowding before taking a place on a car.

The conductor was especially ugly and became unpleasantly demonstrative. His example worked like a leaven on the rest, and a spirit of riot began to show distinctly in the crowd closing about the tall, calm, self-possessed man. All faces scowled, and evil names were tossed upon the air. He had just said, "You are yourselves increasing this delay; you might have moved two minutes and a half ago," when a scurrilous great brute came close up to him and, with an unspeakable epithet, shook a dirty fist directly in his face.

Without the flash of an eye or the waver of a muscle in his quiet face Mr. Bergh caught the ruffian by the shoulder, whirled him around, grabbed the seat of his breeches and the nap of his neck, and with a splendid "now all together" sort of a swing, he fired him straight across the street, head on into the snow bank.

A silence of utter amazement was suddenly broken by one great, swelling laugh, and then followed the always thrilling sound of three gloriously hearty American cheers. Many men shook hands with Mr. Bergh before beginning their long tramp homeward. Some admitted their error in aiding the overloading.—Clara Morris in McClure's Magazine.

Morbid Sensitiveness.

The surest way to conquer morbid sensitiveness is to mingle with people as freely as possible, and, while appreciating your own ability and intelligence at least as impartially as you would those of a friend or acquaintance, to forget yourself. Unless you can become unconscious of self you will never either appear at your best or do the best of which you are capable, says a writer in Success. It requires will power and an unbending determination to conquer this arch-enemy to success, but what has been done can be done, and many who have held their own for years have by their own efforts outgrown it and risen to commanding positions.

TO BORE FOR STEAM.

Hot Vapor May Be Drawn From Earth's Depths—West Indian Volcanic Events Set Up Extraordinary Scheme.

Started by the volcanic occurrences in the West Indies, Col. Henry C. Demming, geologist to the director of the United States Geological Survey in Pennsylvania, has evolved an extraordinary scheme, whereby he says the human race can get all its steam power for nothing.

Col. Demming says that while the events of the last two months are appalling in the loss of life, it seemed that nature was emphatically calling the attention of men to an enormous power not utilized for human wants and comfort. The deepest hole in Pennsylvania, in Pittsburg, nearly 6,000 feet, produces hot water; 3,000 feet further, and he says, it would produce steam.

Continuing, Col. Demming says: "As Prof. William Hallowell, of Columbia University, says, in order to give the steam commercial value, a method must be provided for dropping water to the hot area, allowing it time to heat, and yet having it returned to the surface as steam without interrupting the flow. To effect this, two holes might be bored into the earth 12,000 feet deep and perhaps 50 feet apart."

"There would be a temperature far above the boiling point of water. When, if very heavy charges of dynamite or some other explosive were lowered to the bottom of each hole and exploded simultaneously a sufficient connection might be established between the two holes. The rock would be cracked and fissured in all directions, and shattering it thus around the base of the holes would turn the surrounding area into an immense water heater."

"The water, heated and turned into steam, which would pass through the second hole to the earth's surface. The pressure of such a column of steam would be enormous, for, aside from its initial velocity, the descending column of cold water would exert a pressure of at least 5,000 pounds to the square inch, which would drive everything movable through its initial velocity. The problem is therefore a mechanical one, concerned chiefly with connecting the two holes. This accomplished, the water heater would operate itself and establish a source of power that would surpass anything now in use."

"In case of seismic disturbances these holes, if we had them in every city and town in Pennsylvania, would serve as vents, and tend to lessen any serious shaking of the earth in any part of the State. We have harnessed the lightning; why can we not now put at least the brute on the heat beneath us to our benefit?"

Edward the Fox of the Fox-Whorled.

The English people are indebted to King Edward for many reforms brought about by him during the period that intervened between his marriage, nearly 40 years ago, and the time of his accession to the crown. It was a period when the late Queen, by reason of her bereavement and fondness of privacy, delegated to him what may be described as the social duties and prerogatives of the Crown.

It is due to him, for instance, that hard drinking and coarseness of language have gone out of fashion. When he was a boy it was considered bad form for a gentleman to retire to rest otherwise than intoxicated, and the expression "drunk as a lord," was no mere figure of speech, but indicated the natural condition of the great nobles after dinner. Moreover, every phrase spoken was considered with appalling blasphemy. And it is a higher tone of morality and a greater sense of propriety now prevalent than in the earlier half of the last century, that in a great measure due to the unobtrusive but excellent care which he has taken to keep out of society those who have forfeited their rights to remain within its pale.

Two Long to Wait.

Fussy Philanthropy is bad enough, and Douglas Jerrold's whimsy holds good against the man who was so tender-hearted that "he'd hold an umbrella over a duck." But even this is better than benevolence which is only patronage in disguise, like the case of a woman who gave shells and blessings to the poor. There is a benefactor of that kind in Hungary, to whom the hungry do not appeal in vain. He lately endowed his native country with fifteen pounds, desiring that trustees should be appointed to make much of it; then in four hundred years, if it were properly administered at 4 per cent., it would be worth twelve millions. Thereupon a wag of the same city solemnly presented it with a farthing, pointing out that at compound interest it would buy up the earth in time, if the city waited long enough. He computed the interest at two thousand years, which may be correct or not; we have not time to work it out. But we venture to think it will be quite that length of time before Hungary has another attack of egg-shell munificence.—Fall Mail Gazette.

The End of the War.

A country correspondent tells us that the end of the war was announced to him by a servant in the following quaint terms: "Oh, sir, the bells have been ringing all night, and the war's at peace." Many country dwellers who went to bed reasonably early on Sunday night were awakened by unexpected bells. One of the quietest villages in Surrey was flooded with chimes at 11 o'clock at night. Indeed, it may be said that peace, in this instance, more than war, "startled the villages with strange alarms."—London Academy.

Napoleon III. and His Cigarettes.

The most obstinate of cigarette smokers was the Emperor Napoleon III. It is an error to suppose that he was ambitious. A fatalist, he followed a plan which he imagined had been traced in advance. At Sedan, when the end came, he calmly lit a cigarette. Hugo's epic anger against him had a large element of irritation at the man's supreme calmness. Hugo was not a cigarette smoker. He never understood, he could not understand, him. Zola, who was a cigarette smoker and who ceased in order that he might become a great workman, understood and described Napoleon III. in "La Débâcle" perfectly.

Its Value.

"What was the matter with Mrs. Scadds?" inquired the doctor's wife.

"Oh, a cold," he replied.

"Very bad?"

"Yes; disgustingly so—just one of those simple little things that you can't possibly get more than two visits out of."

Pat Definition.

"May it please you honor," said the latter, "that is a personal reflection."

PAMPHLETS FOR TOURISTS

Grand Trunk Issues New Summer Resort Publications.

Two new publications have just been issued by the publicity department of the Grand Trunk Railway System. One of them is descriptive of the charming summer resorts on the east coast of Lake Huron, including Southampton, Port Elgin, Kincardine, Goderich and Sarnia Ontario and the beaches that are reached through Port Huron, Mich. The publication is enhanced by direct reproductions in half-tone from photographs and is printed in a distinctive type. In addition to a description of that part of the country there is information for the lover of comfort and rates, with a great deal of other data that is of interest to those who are looking for a summer playground.

The other new publication is a description written in a story-like form most interesting, and dealing with that vast wilderness embracing the region around French River. The descriptive matter takes the tourist over the northern division of the Grand Trunk to North Bay and from there across Lake Nipissing to Chaudiere Falls on the French River, which is as far as navigation by steamer can be enjoyed. The rest of the journey is made by canoe, several portages being necessary; but the scenery is so grand and so magnificent that any one is well repaid for a visit to this charming locality.

The hunting and fishing in this comparatively virgin district is unexcelled—black bass, muskellunge and pickerel being the most numerous of the finny tribe found here, the big fellows of the muskellunge species running from 20 to 30 pounds are a frequent catch. The charms of this wonderful country beyond Lake Nipissing are not all confined to the summer season—it is beautiful in August and September, and it is gorgeous in October and November.

During the first two weeks of November the deer-hunting is good, and in duck-hunting season a full bag is obtainable at any time. The waters of the streams tributary to the French River are literally alive with gamey fish of all varieties and sizes. This interesting booklet just issued by the Grand Trunk includes all information how to reach the locality, and other particulars looked for by the sportsman or tourist. Copies sent free on application to G. T. Bell, General Passenger and Ticket Agent, Montreal.

The Chatham boys are also anxious for a friendly game with their Wallaceburg opponents and a match will no doubt be arranged.

AT DULUTH

Mr. White Makes His Much-Talked-of Trip—What Happened on Board.

The Duluth News-Tribune says: Passengers on the steamer Huronic, which arrived from Sarnia yesterday, held international coronation exercises last Saturday afternoon in the cabin, as the big steamer was plowing the waters along the Canadian coast of Lake Superior, en route to Port Arthur and Duluth. The passengers did not know whether King Edward was living or dead, or if the coronation exercises had been again postponed, but they went ahead and held their own exercises on the day and date of the big event scheduled to take place in London. It was a great success.

J. W. White, queen's attorney of Chatham, Ont., was selected for the position of master of ceremonies, and he acquitted himself in a highly creditable manner. He arranged the program for the occasion. The exercises opened by the singing of "God Save the King," and was followed with an address by D. W. Blanchard, superintendent of the public schools of London, Ont.

He referred to the international courtesy existing between the United States and England and the English colonies, the power, intelligence and influence of the Anglo-Saxon race, and its destiny to rule the world. Mr. White, the master of ceremonies, Henry Dixon, sheriff of Wayne county, Mich., and others delivered addresses appropriate to the occasion. F. H. Wakefield, of Detroit, tally clerk of the house of representatives, and J. H. "Timothy" Joy, of London, Ontario, entertained the party in other ways. Mrs. H. F. Leonard, daughter of Major Leonard of the Essex Fusiliers, gave a banjo solo. Others contributed to the program by speaking, singing or reciting. Toward the close of the exercises somebody started "Sweet Bye and Bye," "America" was sung, and the exercises closed with the pany drill and the manual and firing exercises for the Lee-Enfield rifle. At Easter Mr. Collins passed the Government examination in drawing required of commercial specialists, and the commercial class under his tuition has made an excellent record at the late departmental examinations. Students that enrol themselves in the commercial form at the Collegiate Institute in September may be sure of skillful and energetic teaching in the arts of peace as well as in those of war.

Charming Summer Resorts

Two interesting little books of the illustrated folder type have been issued by the Grand Trunk Railway System, one being entitled "Songs of the Nipissing," and the other "The Eastern Coast of Lake Huron." The illustrations are very numerous, are of all sizes, and are scattered through the pages to elucidate the text and appear to the eye just as the story told in the letter press does to the mind. The prevailing note in these little works, upon which a profitable little hour may be spent by the reader, is the craving for change, and there can be no doubt that men and women who live in the stress and strain of to-day, and feel the throbs of advanced and advancing civilization, do require change—complete change for mind and body. The haunts described here minister to the intellectual as well as the physical health of jaded dwellers in cities. The physical exercises that can be obtained among the woods and waters create and promote a perfectly sound bodily condition, while the multifarious life that is to be found, stimulates the intellectual faculties and prompt inquiry and investigation into nature's ways as they are revealed in her flora and fauna. The maps which are in these pamphlets enable the visitor to the wilds, to realize his bearings at whatever part he may be, and the general information given enables him to economize his time and spend it to the best advantage.

PERSIAN RUGS.

A Safe Rule by Which to Distinguish the Genuine Ones.

A great many persons flatter themselves that they are able to tell a genuine Persian rug from a spurious machine made one by touch, but in this they deceive themselves. The best and surest way to tell a genuine from an imitation Persian rug is the following: If one will look closely, one will observe that in the genuine Persian rug the intricate and complicated pattern or design is not altogether symmetrical, the corresponding flowers, vines or geometrical figures of one side being a little out of line, larger or smaller or not meeting and pointing with figures on the corresponding detail on the opposite side of the rug. This is owing to the fact that in hand weaving it is impossible to obtain perfect symmetry of patterns, especially when the designs are as complicated as they are on Persian rugs. On the other hand, let one examine closely the machine made rug, and one will find the most perfect symmetry of pattern, so much so in fact that the design looks positively rigid and harsh. This is a pretty safe guide, and if observed one will seldom mistake an imitation for a genuine Persian rug.

Cultivating Ginger.

Ginger is made a matter of scientific culture in Jamaica. It is propagated by cutting up small pieces of the root, and if possible, rich, cool soil from recently cleared woods is selected for it. It is a great impoverisher of the soil and grows so luxuriantly that in a short time a little piece of root will spread so as to produce nearly a pound of new roots. The sets are planted in March or April and get to their full growth about September.

The roots are dug usually in Jamaica in January or February. They are washed, exposed to the sun until thoroughly dried and packed in parcels of about a hundred pounds each. In order to dry them more rapidly they are first scalded in a little copper pot in order to destroy life, of which the roots are very tenacious. White ginger and black ginger are from the same roots, the difference arising from methods of curing. Roots for sugar preserving are dug while quite young, before the stems are more than five or six inches high.

Mexican Child Life.

Mexican children high and low are exceedingly fortunate in being treated almost uniformly with the greatest kindness and affection by their parents. From babyhood they have an excellent understanding with their elders, respect and affection on one side, affection and tenderness on the other. No Indian is too ragged or dirty to kiss the hand of his tutored old mother with the grace of a lord. This habit, with the real reverence of which it is the outward and visible symbol, is commenced early in childhood. An Indian, even drunk, does not abuse his father, whose condition is only a few degrees better than his own, he sits on his doorstep, the one entrance to the single unlighted room constituting his dwelling, and contemplates life with maddening nature while the children and dogs play around him and over him until he falls into drunken stupor.

Syrian Asphalt.

Asphalt is found in the provinces of Syria on the banks of the Dead Sea floating on the surface of its waters. Through the action of earthquakes the asphalt has been torn from the bottom of the sea and driven toward the shores, especially to the east. The narratives of the Greek and Roman historians to the effect that asphalt as small islands was upheld by the salt water and driven over the surface of the sea with- out doubt true. This asphalt and generally the oriental or Egyptian is pure and expensive and used principally in the manufacture of a certain kind of varnish, but for general purposes, owing to its brittleness as well, is useless in the asphalt industry.

He Got the Guinea.

A pretty story is told of an English nobleman whom his barber left half shaved and in a great hurry. His lordship thought the man was mad and sent to inquire after him.

He returned in person and thus explained himself: "I was not mad, my lord, but the sight of that heap of guineas on your dressing table and the remembrance of my starving family so affected me that if I had stayed another minute I should have cut your throat."

"I am glad you didn't do that," said his lordship gently, "and by all means take the guineas. I won them from the gambling table and should doubtless have lost them there."

The Cause of Dyspeptic Pains

They arise from the formation of gas owing to improper digestion. A very prompt and efficient remedy is Polson's Nervine. It relieves the distention instantly, and by its stimulating action on the stomach, aids digestion. Nervine cures dyspeptic pains by removing the cause. Nervine is also highly recommended for cramps, colic, summer complaint and inflammation. Sold in large 25 cent bottles everywhere.

THE DIAGNOSIS.

He had seen a hundred doctors. A hundred, yes, and more, and that told a different tale. From the one just before.

From diseases unpronounceable To ordinary chills— Well, they gave him all the ailments. Presented him with bills.

Until he reached the limit. The man was as good as dead. Broke, but muttering his courage. Up, this is what he said:

Beauty is born in the blood. Beauty is more than "skin deep," it is blood deep. When the blood is tainted by disease the flesh will feel it and the skin will show it. Sallow or muddy complexion, pimples, blotches, and eruptions are only the surface signs of impure blood. Face washes, lotions, complexion powders, may palliate the evils but they cannot cure the disease. The only cure is to cleanse the blood of the poisonous matter which is the cause of the outbreak in the flesh and skin. Impure blood can be absolutely purified by the use of Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery. Its effect on flesh and skin is marked. Sores heal and disappear. The skin becomes smooth, and regains its natural color. The eyes brighten and sparkle, the whole body is radiant with the brightness and beauty of health. "Golden Medical Discovery" contains no alcohol, whiskey or other intoxicant, and is absolutely free from opium, cocaine and other narcotics. The use of Dr. Pierce's Pleasant Pellets assists the action of the "Discovery," by cleansing the system of clogging matter.

The heart is the only measure of infinitude. The mind fires of greatness, the heart never.

Children Cry for CASTORIA

How many young fellows assume responsibilities which would stagger their elders!

Broke the Rule.

A Boston man recently regaled a party of friends with a story about a certain nameless club in Boston which has strict regulations against gambling.

A quartet of club members decided to break that rule by a game of poker for small stakes. So they adjourned to one of the small rooms of the club and called the old colored servant to bring a pack of cards. When he brought them, one of the members queried:

"John, I suppose it would be something utterly new in this club if we should do such a thing as play for money with these cards?"

The negro scratched his head and deliberated, finally answering: "Boss, I've been wid dis club a long time and I've seen many things."

"Yes, but what have you seen?"

"I've seen ebry rule ob dis club violated 'ceptin' one."

"What rule is that one?"

"De rule 'gainst gibbin' tips to de servants."

And straightway that rule was relieved of its loneliness among its fellows.

A Concession in Price.

"People in frontier towns," said a Klondike pioneer, "get used to paying big money for trifles, and $2 for a box of sardines and $5 for a pound of bad coffee become reasonable prices. I kicked once upon a time because the price asked was too small. It was like this: I had a jumping toothache, was nearly wild with it, when I went to the shanty where I was told there was a dentist. A rough looking fellow told me that he was it, and I asked him to draw my tooth. He looked me over, got his forceps fastened on my tooth and yanked it out after a couple of hard twists.

"How much?" I asked.
"Well, $2, I guess," said the dentist. "I paid him, although my jaw still ached pretty badly."

"That's the cheapest thing I've seen around here," I said.

"Well," he said, "I thought I'd make it low because, on account of the bad light, I pulled the wrong tooth."

"I had to go the next day to have the bad tooth out, and he made matters square by charging me $10."

The Inventor of the Cork.

Don Perignon, a poor blind monk, first thought of cork for bottle stoppers. He was employed in a royal monastery as overseer of the extensive vineyards, being himself a manufacturer. Indeed, it is said he discovered by experimenting with wines and grape juices that highly effervescent beverage known as champagne. Necessity in his case was doubtless the mother of his inventing the cork stopper, for his champagne must have needed a better stopper than was then used—merely a bunch of flax soaked in oil. If he was the first to put a cork into a bottle, the world is indebted to him, since its impermeability, elasticity and lightness render it invaluable for this use.

How Ney Faced Death.

Marshal Ney was the son of a hard-working cooper and had risen from the ranks of the army. He was a child of the people, and whatever may have been his vanities he threw them all aside in his last days. When he was led out to death, an officer ordered a bandage tied over his eyes. "Why should you do that?" said Ney. "Haven't I been accustomed for twenty-five years to look bullets and cannon balls in the face?" He himself ordered the soldiers to fire, standing and facing them. His career summed up in one life the spectacular heroism of the past.

Sippets.

Sippets, mentioned often in English stories, may be either of bread or of toast. Sippets of toast are thin oblongs of bread toasted to a golden brown, slightly buttered and piled in one or two layers, log cabin fashion, without breaking, on a folded napkin; or the sippets are of untoasted bread arranged on a hot plate, the juice from roasted beef or mutton poured over.

A Weather Glass.

A simple weather glass is made thus: Obtain a glass jar, such as is used for pickles, and put some water into it; then get a bottle with a long neck, if possible, and put it in the jar, with the neck downward, till the mouth just touches the water. When the water rises in the bottle, it is going to rain, and when it is down fine weather prevails.

Expanded Them.

"What does this mean, daughter? Here is another lot of milliners' and dressmakers' bills. Don't you remember that I expressly ordered you not to contract any more debts without my knowledge?"
"Certainly, papa, but I haven't contracted any debts. On the contrary, I've expanded them."

"I think," she said, "I should like to marry an imaginative man."
"Well," said her friend, speaking very sweetly, "what other kind of a man can you expect to marry, if he has a chance to see you in daylight?"

RECUPERATIVE EFFECT.

Considered with reference to its recuperative effect, there is not so much good in the ordinary vacation as there is in a single bottle of Hood's Sarsaparilla. The latter costs $1; the former—well, that depends; how much did yours cost last year?

Hood's Sarsaparilla refreshes the tired blood, sharpens the dulled appetite, restores the lost courage.

HEALTH RESORTS AND ATTRACTIONS

There is no region in America richer in mineral springs than Colorado, while throughout the state there are pleasure resorts and splendid places of attraction of various kinds in great numbers. It has been truly said that all of Colorado is a health resort, and this statement is sustained by the most eminent physicians of the country. What with its beautiful cities on the plains, its gorgeous mountain peaks and lovely valleys, its awful canons and their rushing torrents, its forests and streams, its broad green parks, and charming crystal lakes amid the mountains, what more could nature provide or man desire for his welfare or his delights. Not only the health-giving mineral and thermal springs, which gush spontaneously from the mountain sides invite the invalid and the weary, but in all the rest of these charms of nature is found a panacea for the ills and cares of body and mind diseased.

To enable persons to reach these favored localities without unnecessary expenditure of time or money, the Union Pacific has put in effect very low rates and splendid train service, three trains leaving Missouri River daily for Denver, one of which is "The Colorado Special," which is the finest train in the West. Accommodations are provided for all classes of passengers, the equipment including free reclining chair cars, dining cars, buffet, smoking cars, drawing room sleepers and day coaches.

BASEBALL

ABERDEENS AGAIN.

The Remnants, the latest addition to the baseball arena, were defeated yesterday afternoon in a careless game of ball, characterized by the poor base running and costly errors of the Remnants and the inability on the part of the Aberdeens to connect with speed and shoots of Burney Weldon. George Perrin was a Remnant and hit the ball right on the nose for a two bagger. McKee got a three bagger and Weldon had a home run to his credit.

"IT'S GOOD TEA"

This is what the proprietor of Red Rose Tea claims for it. Some say the claim is too modest, but you may notice that a grocer is very often asked,—"Have you any good tea?" The word "good" in this sense is probably intended to mean "best." So perhaps Red Rose Tea is The Best Tea.

LETTER BOX

A STRAIGHT CHALLENGE.

To the Chatham Planet:
Sir,—Would you kindly give space in your paper for a few lines.

In the Toronto Globe of the 12th August I noticed a statement made by Mr. F. C. Wade, K. C., that only 50 miles of the Yukon mining district had been worked, and that there was 7,000 to be worked. One would wonder if Mr. Wade meant what he said, or if his memory was bad. Governor Ross said it was misleading. I would go still further and say it's a lie pure and simple, that is from a miner's point of view. I wonder if Mr. Wade or Mr. McConnell can mention one creek from the Little Salmon to the 40 mile district that has not been pretty well prospected. When a claim has been cross-cut and nothing to pay has been found, surely it has been worked. He then says Gold Run, Dominion and Sulphur, when condemned as wild cats, take 15 claims out of Sulphur Creek, and what has Mr. Wade got left (wild cats). Take the same out of Gold Run. Of course there is a certain amount of gold in all the ground, but not enough to pay working it. Then Mr. Wade talks about the future of the Yukon. Now, Sir, I believe in booming a thing on, but not misleading Canadians to that extent. The Yukon has been good, for the space of group that has proved rich has beaten anything ever found, and the management of the country has been just as bad as the ground has been good. Of course, Sir, it is only one man's ideas against another, but unless quartz is found the future of the Yukon looks none too promising.

The wages for the working class are getting less every year, now being from $5 to $7 a day. This sounds big, but take $4 a day for board, and other things needed at the same proportion and what have you left, besides that one can only work on an average of about eight months, and lucky to get that. Of course there is no doubt that capital can still make money in the Yukon, but since the Yukon has been discovered Mr. Wade nor anyone else can mention one other good strike. Wages today in Ontario are better for the working man than in the Klondike. From one who has been in the Yukon five years prospecting.

BROWN'S IN TOWN.

"Brown's in Town" is the clever title of the latest farce which will be given its first performance in this city at the Grand to-night.

The lines in "Brown's in Town" are said to be brilliant and witty, and upon investigation one finds that there are a great many reasons for Brown remaining in town. One of the principal reasons is the fact that he wishes to keep his marriage a secret from his father, who does not want him to take a wife until he reaches the age of twenty-five. Brown is an assumed name, and is a good fellow.

"Which is Brown?"

not the farce comedy good fellow, but a man. The tone of "Brown's in Town" is said to be above the average farce, but it is none the less amusing, and it is all the more agreeable for that. The principals in the cast are Charles Horn, George Welch, Perry Alexander, Frank Millard, Fannie Midgley, Hazel Howry, Edna Hickey, Elizabeth Lindley Whips and others.

The Mississippi 400,000 Years Ago.

Did you ever figure on what was the probable condition of the great Mississippi river 10,000, 100,000 or even 400,000 years ago? Scientists suggest that the erosion of its bed was accomplished by a mighty cataract, which began down the river, probably at the place where it then emptied into the gulf, and by gradual retrogression dug out the valleylike gorge through which it now flows. That this theory is tenable may be inferred from the high, wall-like bluffs, features so characteristic of the upper part of its course.

A wearing away of a monster cataract would of course necessarily leave high walls or bluffs on either side. These are the well known features of the father of meandering streams. It would seem, according to this theory, that St. Anthony's falls constitute the remnant of what was once the most stupendous cataract in the world. Geologists estimate that it has taken the river 400,000 years to carve out the mighty ditch through which it now flows.

Bones For Bread.

There is an interesting child's story called "Jack the Giant Killer," in which one of the giants is supposed to use the expression "fe-faw-fun," or something like it, when Jack has climbed a beanstalk and been hidden by the giant's wife, the rest of the growl being, "I smell the blood of an Englishman, but he is alive or he is dead I'll take his bones to make my bread." Possibly it has not occurred to many to ask where the idea of making bread out of bones originated, as we do not often seriously investigate fairy tales. It is a historical fact that during the siege of Paris by Henry IV., owing to famine, bread, which had been sold while any remained for more than $1 a pound, was made from the bones in the charnel house of the Holy Innocent. This occurred in 1594.
