On 279 Special Trains. C. G. Railways

Up to March 1st 757,400 Troops have travelled over Government Railways.

Thousands arrive each week at Halifax and are sent forward to Dispersal Areas.

Since the war began in 1914 up to March 1st, when S.S. Belgic disembarked her returned soldier passengers at Halifax 757,400 troops have been carried on special trains over the Canadian Government Railways.

The first train which carried troops over the Government Railways the year was declared was numbered one and all special troop trains to and from Halifax since that time have been numbered consecutively. The last train from the Belgic was on Saturday No. 1279. Each train averages about twelve cars with an average of 50 men to a car, which figures up a total of 757,400 men carried. Of course in addition to this thousands of soldiers have journeyed between Montreal and Halifax by regular trains during the past four years.

The movement of troops back to Canada is now approaching its greatest activity. Last Sunday 5000 arrived at Halifax by the transports Lapland and Belgic and fifteen special trains were despatched westward inside of fourteen hours.

S. S. Megantic with soldiers and dependants arrived Wednesday and S.S. Adriatic is due Sunday. The movement of returning men is to be kept up actively all summer.

Culture Of The Heart

The cultivation of tenderness of heart, which is pre-eminently a womanly virtue, is greatly neglected in our day, although it is as important as, and should go hand in hand with, purely mental culture. A woman who possesses merely mental culture has left the better side of her nature undeveloped.

Can you conceive a womanly ideal in which the innate disposition to make others happy is lacking? Has not the Creator implanted in woman, as one of His noblest gifts, this desire to do good and dispense charity? What does it mean to make others happy, to do good and dispense charity? Generally this question associates itself more or less with distribution of money. Many estimable people, however, are deprived on their earthly pilgrimage of the excess "baggage" of worldly wealth; are they, therefore, unable to minister to their fellowmen?

The Lord has perhaps, for prudent reasons, denied you temporal goods, but has given you freely treasures of heart and mind. Why not share these with your rich, but in this respect poor, brother? Sacrifice an occasional evening, though it mean quitting the cozy family circle. Visit the young woman whose whole treasure in life, her husband, has just been buried. Let her know how intensely you share her sorrow and that you understand its magnitude. If you succeed in awakening in her the thought of resignation, you will have accomplished more than if you had relieved the material needs of a poor person.

God has given you a joyous, cheerful disposition. Let it radiate joy to your ill friend, who, removed from the pleasures of life, is confined to her sick bed. Are you less rewarded by the smile which lights up the sufferer's face than by the thanks of hungry ones whom you have given to eat? In your neighborhood lives an old friend of your mother's. She is mourning the aberrations of a beloved son. Give her an hour and comfort her, persuading her that the prodigal son will return penitent and reformed. You may then liken yourself to the good samaritan who has poured oil and wine on her wounds.

The daughter of a friend of yours who died an early death is in boarding school or orphanage. The father has such long hours in the workshop that he cannot devote much time to the child. He has placed her in safe hands. But what do the drooping lips of the child tell you? What do you read in those wistful eyes? Go and satisfy the child's yearning for motherly sympathy. Talk to her of her departed mother, you know her.

Among your acquaintances is an elderly unmarried lady, whom some call a cross old maid. She is generally shunned. Of her it is said: "She has had many misfortunes and her embitterment can be easily accounted for—but why should we give her an opportunity to use her sharp tongue on us?" Owing to such treatment she naturally becomes more embittered. Why not try to stimulate the more amiable side of her nature by doing her a favor or showing her some attention? To place jingling coins in the hands of a needy one is a privilege denied you, but you might give this spiritually impoverished person the gold of a noble heart. If you restore her confidence in mankind you have given her a rich gift, indeed.

You know a widow who has seen better days. Death of her husband and breadwinner brought family privations. Perhaps you alone perceive the poverty which they are concealing from the world. Go to one of your well-to-do friends and plead their cause and be the medium for dispensing charity in a tasteful manner. Is this work of charity less deserving than if you had given from your own well-filled purse? Is it not a false position to take

The English Parish Church.

Catholic Churches, especially those in rural areas, were, during the Middle Ages, centers, not only for divine worship, but also for English community life in its various aspects. There was no need for club rooms and church institutes in those days. The Church served this purpose. Perhaps this, in a measure, explains the astonishing frequency in which they exist in some places, although be it said, with emphasis, our forefathers at all times held their churches in supreme affection for the religious purpose for which they were consecrated. Eminent writers testify that England stands first in all Christendom in the number and antiquity of her churches. History leaves no loophole for doubt that the English parish church of olden days possessed a wonderful hold on the affections of the whole countryside. A point, in measure explanatory, requires to be remembered. The religious duty of paying tithes became enforceable at law as early as the tenth century. This tithe was sometimes happily termed "God's portion." It was intended to be applied to the maintenance of the poor or for the exercise of hospitality. This intention was uninterrupted, practiced throughout the pre-Reformation period. There were no workhouses in those days, and there was no need of them. The Christian spirit was verily abroad in the land. There was a sense of brotherhood which found vent in "God's portion." Those were the happy days of Catholic England, when in the eyes of the Church all were on an equal footing at the parish meeting, as they were when they knelt before the Altar—lord, tenant, villain or serf.

The Beatitudes

The Beatitudes are the door thrown open by the hand of Our Lord for men to walk forth in life upon the true road to happiness upon which lurk no deceptions, and in the hearts of those who pass through these doors there are no doubts, no fears or deception. The sign-posts which guide them at every turn are written by the finger of God; others are deceived. Many who have believed they could find happiness in the attainment of wealth, or the satisfaction of their ambitions, or in the joys of domestic life, have in the end missed their aim, and even though they may have gained what they set before them, they have found in it only restlessness and dissatisfaction. But those who ruled their lives by the laws of the Beatitudes have been guided by One Who has never misled any one who has submitted his life to that divine revealed rule.

Tiffs Not Typical Of The East

Mr. Melville Chater, recording impressions in the National Geographical Magazine, admits that he was surprised when he arrived in Tiflis, the capital of the new Georgian Republic. He had expected a city more suggestive of the East, as the Western mind pictures it; but the Golovinsky prospect, the main thoroughfare through the heart of the city, stretched before him as handsome as the best of modern metropolitanism as can be found anywhere, and its restaurants, shops, opera, and

Head Ached So Bad HAD TO GO TO BED.

When the liver becomes sluggish and inactive it does not manufacture enough bile to thoroughly act on the bowels and carry off the waste matter from the system, hence the bowels become clogged, up, the bile gets into the blood, constipation sets in and is followed by sick and bilious headaches, water brash, heartburn, floating spots before the eyes, and painful internal, bleeding or protruding piles.

Milburn's Laxa-Liver Pills regulate the flow of bile so that it acts properly on the bowels, and thus the sluggish liver into activity.

Mrs. E. Bainbridge, Amherst, N.B., writes:—"I take pleasure in writing you of the good I received by using Milburn's Laxa-Liver Pills for headache. I was so bad I had to go to bed, and could not sit up. A friend told me about your wonderful medicine, and two pills have made me as well as I can be."

what used to be the viceregal palace, but which now flies the standard of the new nation, suggested at once the French adjective, "chic." More than that, this new capital was brilliant with uniforms, Russian, Georgian, Armenian, British, and most picturesque of all, the Circassian costume, with its broad-shouldered, wash-waisted coat, high, heel-less boots, and astrakhan cap. One marvelled at the load of weapons that completed it; in sword rattling and clanking; with the wearer's stride, a brace of pistols, a pair of daggers, and a collection of what looked like enormous fountain pens hung across the Circassian bosom, but what turned out to be hollow tubes intended to be loaded with powder and shot. One must add stiff mustaches and a close-shaven skull to picture this Georgian in all his glory on the Golovinsky prospect of his national capital. Clothing for civilians is scarce and expensive in Tiflis, but the cast-off uniforms of military officers are for sale, and many a citizen in need of a new suit had bought himself an old uniform.

Owing to the difficulties of railroad from the shortage of coal and from the reduction of the railroad force and equipment, many diocesan pilgrimages to Lourdes, in fulfillment of the vows made during the war, will have to be postponed.

"Yes I do," replied the tired business man.

Can Eat Anything Now. How Many Dyspeptics Can Say This?

The sufferer from dyspepsia and indigestion who has to pick and choose his food, is the most miserable of all mankind.

Even the little he does eat causes such torture, and is digested so imperfectly that it does him little good.

What dyspeptics need is not dieting or artificial digestants, but something that will put the stomach right so it will manufacture its own digestive ferments.

For over 40 years Burdock Blood Bitters has been restoring stomachs to a normal, healthy condition so that the food no longer causes distress, but is thoroughly digested and assimilated, and the dyspeptic can eat what he pleases without any suffering.

Mr. F. Dalton, Collingwood, Ont., writes:—"I was troubled with dyspepsia and was induced to try Burdock Blood Bitters. I took three bottles and am cured entirely; my stomach is free of all pain; I can eat anything I wish, and do not feel any bad effects."

At The Federal Capital

The Parliamentary week ending June 12th, saw a very considerable amount of work performed for the most part in committee of supply and of ways and means. During the evening sitting on Monday, June 7th, estimates for the Dominion Mounted Police were under consideration. Readers will remember that the famous North West Mounted Police are now amalgamated with what was formerly known as the Dominion Police, and the new name of the amalgamated force is the Dominion Mounted Police. Their headquarters are here in Ottawa, and they have branches and contingents in all parts of the Dominion. The great service that the North West Mounted Police rendered Canada in the earlier days of our Confederation history, especially at the outposts of civilization in the far north and northwest, is a household word with the Canadian people, and every time legislation of any kind dealing with this force comes before Parliament, there is generally speaking, considerable complimentary and laudatory expressions of opinion regarding this sterling body of peace preservers. During the discussion in question a number of opposition speakers did not think that their services would be so much in demand now as formerly, and as a consequence, the expenditure for their upkeep should not be so large. On the other hand, it was pointed out by the President of the Privy Council, who had the estimates in charge, that the force as now constituted is doing admirable duty in every portion of Canada at the present time, and so far as the east and central provinces are concerned, he showed that the Dominion Police, which now constitutes a part of the new force, had always operated in these places. It was necessary to have some particularly reliable Dominion Police force at all times.

At the opening sitting of the House on Tuesday, June 8th, a very pleasing incident took place. Sir Robert Borden, the Prime Minister, after the usual routine, read to the House a communication he had received from the authorities of the Imperial Parliament, presenting the gift of a speaker's chair for the new Dominion House of Commons. The Prime Minister in a brief discourse went on to praise the thoughtfulness and generosity of the Mother of Parliaments in presenting to us, on our entering our great new parliament buildings, this superb speaker's chair. "No more suitable gift could come from the one parliament to the other than this," said the Prime Minister. He wound up his reference to this pleasing incident by instructing Mr. Speaker to suitably acknowledge the friendly and appropriate gift. Mr. McKenzie King, Leader of the Opposition, joined with the Prime Minister in his expression of gratitude to the British Parliament for their thoughtfulness and kindness in making this presentation. The chair, as a matter of fact, has not yet arrived, but photographs of it were supplied and passed round the House. No doubt it is an elaborate piece of furniture and admirably fit in with the splendid Architectural proportions of our splendid House of Commons.

A peculiar incident gave rise to some brief discussion in the House on Wednesday, the 9th instant, just on the calling of the orders of the day. It appears that two brothers, in the Province of Quebec, were arrested and tried for a serious criminal offence. After due course of trial in the Court of King's Bench a jury brought in a verdict of manslaughter against them. Being thus duly convicted in the highest court of the Province of the most serious crime in the criminal code, they were sentenced to a long term of imprisonment. Ordinarily speaking, when cases of this kind occur and criminals are properly tried, convicted and sentenced it is taken for granted that that is the last to be heard of them before the courts, for some time, at least. But curiously enough in this case, some enterprising lawyer appeared before a judge of a court, inferior to that before which the culprits had been tried, found guilty and sentenced, and secured from the judge of that court a writ of habeas corpus. This writ being served on the warden of the penitentiary, the culprits were released and allowed to proceed home. The matter had been brought to the attention of the Department of Justice, and instructions were at once given to the Attorney-General of the Province of Quebec, that the due course of law had been very peculiarly and outrageously interfered with, and orders were given that the culprits should be rearrested and sent back to prison. This was done. One would think that no question would be raised concerning this, but Mr. Lemieux, in very critical terms raised the question in the House, and asked the Minister of Justice what was the status of the case. The Minister of Justice unhesitatingly related the facts as just stated, and intimated that no other course was open to the law authorities of the Province or of the Dominion. It certainly would be a most extraordinary condition of things if the proceedings of the highest court in the province could be interfered with, and the course of justice rendered powerless by any whim of a judge of an inferior court. The case there rested for the moment.

Apart from the voting of supplies and the consideration of the budget proposals in committee of ways and means, not very much of an unusual nature occurred for the remaining sitting days of the week. One question came up that created a little breeze. It was an amendment to the criminal code, relative to horse racing. This is a question that has engaged a good deal of the time of parliament, from session to session, and a good deal of opposition has been expressed some times in different quarters in opposition to horse racing of any description, but it is one of those things that still exists and which is very difficult to altogether suppress. It is not the matter of the horse-races that is objected to, but the fact is said to be the occasion for a considerable amount of gambling. This is possibly true, and it is very difficult, no doubt, to prevent betting on horse racing, but the amendments to the criminal code considered this session has reduced this to a minimum, as far as it is reasonably possible, and strict regulations are imposed, so as to prevent the matter from assuming too large proportions. The bill passed through the committee stage without very much criticism, but when it came up for third reading there were, perhaps, half a dozen objectors in the House on one side or the other. The Minister of Justice, who had the bill in charge, explained fully the effect of the amendments, and the Prime Minister finally explained that this was a matter which is always with us, and the operations such as were referred to had always existed and had been exercised at the race course in all parts of the country. What had been done in the present instance was to reduce this to the least possible minimum, and to place such safeguards and regulations around it as would prevent it from assuming such proportions as would not be desirable. The result of the Prime Minister's explanation of the case was that the bill passed its third reading without further ado.

As might be expected, the most important parliamentary business of the week was the consideration, in committee of ways and means, of the tax proposals and schedules of the different methods of new taxation proposed by the Minister of Finance. The business profits tax and the amendment to the income tax bills passed without very much discussion. The resolutions relative to them were reported, and the bills founded on them were duly read the first time. The greatest amount of discussion took place on the tax on luxuries and the excise and sales tax. A good deal of opposition to some of these taxes had been manifested in different portions of the country, and the Finance Minister was deluged with representations of one kind or another in criticism of the new tax. After giving all representations relative to the matter due and serious consideration, he proposed and carried into effect a number of amendments of the tax schedules. In some instances, for example, the minimum prices of articles before being regarded as luxuries were advanced here and there to a considerable extent. In other cases the tax was changed from the whole amount of the purchase when it came into the luxury column, to the excess of the price over the minimum price, and in still other cases the rate of taxation was reduced, in some places, from 10 per cent to 5 per cent, and so on. In addition to all this several articles of common use were placed on the free list. It seems not unreasonable that the new tax schedules, after they go properly working should become fairly popular, that is to say, if any kind of taxation can be popular. The Finance Minister had in view throughout the whole discussion the benefit of the consumer, and it is generally considered that his amended tax proposals, while perhaps not bringing him as much revenue as he might hope for, will have the effect of considerably reducing the prices of many articles in common use. Should this come about it will, at least, on step towards reducing the high cost of living, and this is something of which almost all are desirous. The Minister has succeeded in getting all his tax resolutions reported and embodied in the necessary tax bills and now part of the law of the land.

Knights To Open Classes

Glouce Bay, June 18.—The local branch of the Knights of Columbus intend in a short time to open technical classes for the young men of the town. Circular letters are now being sent out, inviting young men to take advantage of this splendid opportunity of acquiring a good preliminary technical education free of charge. In explaining the purpose of the scheme the letter points out that never before was there such a need for the educated man, the technical expert, the specially trained mind, and that with the industrial activity of the country increasing and developing with huge strides this need will be more and more felt. And yet notwithstanding this industrial development, it is hard to find the right kind of men. In order that a start may be made in helping to bring out the required men, classes in mathematics, English, mechanical, electrical and mining engineering will be started. As the classes advance additional subjects will be taught. The courses will be entirely free except for the price of the books, and a competent staff of instructors, the services of several of whom have already been secured, will be ready for the opening of the course.

Holy Name Society Hold Big Parade

Toronto, June 21.—Over 10,000 Roman Catholic men and boys took part in the fifth annual rally and parade of the Holy Name Society yesterday afternoon, making the largest rally the society has ever had. Assembling at the House of Providence on Power Street and on the surrounding streets at 2.30 the huge procession started promptly at 3 p. m., passing along Queen to University Avenue, thence to the spacious grounds at St. Josephs on St. Alban's Street, where the service was held. Over 60 churches were represented in the gathering, including representatives from Port Credit, Pickering, Richmond Hill, Thornhill, and New Market. The weather was ideal for the parade and thousands of spectators lined the route of march from Queen Street to St. Alban's. The Catholic heart is loyal to God and to the constitution of the country, said Rev. Dr. K. P. Treacy, in addressing the multitude in the St. Alban's grounds. We have been taught from the cradle, he said, in the language of St. Paul, that every soul is subject unto the higher powers; the powers that be are ordained of God.

Who Won the War?

The united efforts of the allies opposed to Germany and her associates won the great war. None but a braggart or an ignoramus would claim the credit for his own nation. A blunt recognition of the basic truth is shown in one of the opening paragraphs of the platform adopted by the Republican Presidential convention at Chicago, which was as follows:— "Inexcusable failure to make timely preparations is the chief indictment against the Democratic Administration in the conduct of the war. Had not our associates protested us, both on land and sea, during the first twelve months of our participation, and furnished us to the very day of the armistice with munitions, planes and artillery, this failure would have been punished with disaster." It is only the blatant or ignorant American, like the blatant and ignorant person in any other country, who proclaims that "we won the war." The declaration of the Republican convention voices the better sense of the majority of the American people. But it is a pity that a recognition that the victory was a united one, and that the United States standing alone would have met disaster as any other of the allied standing fellow jurors in a murder trial by telling them he was a prize fighter. The jury disagreed and investigation later by the state indicated that Hadesman had refused to concur with the other eleven, who favored continuing.

Holds Up Cab Driver

Montreal, June 18.—Engaging today to drive a passenger from St. Anne De Bellevue to Prescott, Napoleon Brault was held up at the point of a revolver by his fare after he had gone a short distance and robbed of $325. When the hold-up took place the car Brault was driving went into the ditch and both men were thrown out. The thief made off and Brault, with the aid of some farmers, dragged the car from the ditch and raised to Valleyfield and notified the police. A man Brault identified as his assailant was found in the neighborhood, and in being approached by the police drew away a revolver, razor and several papers. He gave his name after he was arrested as Nicholas Larito.

N. S. Schooner Lost

Sandwich Mass., June 19.—The Canadian three-masted schooner Eva A. Danenbower, bound from Apple River, N. S., to New York, which went ashore at the easterly end of Cape Cod Canal, is breaking up, according to reports here today. It is expected the schooner will be a total loss. Capt. A. B. Neves and his crew of six men were taken off the schooner after she had gone ashore by the crew of the life-saving station.

Freight rates, he said, would probably bring the price of coal up a dollar a ton, but he thought $17 would be the top price. He did not think coal would go to $20, as had been stated in some quarters.

Two British officers, all the Government officials, and a number of townspeople, were killed in an attack by Shammar tribesmen on Tolfar, near Hoesul, Asiatic Turkey, according to Bagdad advice coming to London by way of Bombay. The Government building was seized in the attack which was made on June 4. A punitive column is reported to have been sent from Mosul.

Samuel Hadesman, wholesale grocer, was sentenced at Chicago to six months in jail for contempt of court after he admitted intimidating fellow jurors in a murder trial by telling them he was a prize fighter. The jury disagreed and investigation later by the state indicated that Hadesman had refused to concur with the other eleven, who favored continuing.

The door of a Lexington Avenue subway express car slid open as the train sped round a sharp curve at Astor Place, New York, the other day, hurling three men out. Two of them were dashed against the pillars of the tube and killed, their bodies being further mangled by another train following behind. The third man caught hold of the safety gate between two cars and was hauled back by the guards, badly injured.

The 39th Ottawa Regiment, under command of Lieut.-Col. C. M. Edwards, D. S. O., is to be transferred into a Highland unit which will wear the Cameron tartan and will probably be affiliated with the famous Camerons in the British army. The announcement was made the other night on parade, and from the enthusiasm displayed by the men the change will be quite popular with them. Kilts will probably be issued very soon.

Struck by lightning while out lifting nets during the progress of a thunder storm on the 10th Lyle Dawson of Wheatley, Ont., was instantly killed, and two companions were stunned. The small boat they had was somewhat damaged but the two companions of Dawson managed to make shore with it. They are suffering slightly from the effects of the shock. Dawson was a married man, about 30 years of age. He is survived by a wife and two children.

Sir W. W. Sullivan of Ottawa, arrived in the city Saturday evening and is registered at the Victoria.

Two persons were killed and 50 were injured near Rene, Colo., when east bound Santa Fe train No. 4, the "California Limited," was derailed. Relief trains carrying doctors and nurses have been despatched to the scene.

There was a fairly good attendance at the Charlottetown market yesterday. Prices of the different articles were as follows: Eggs 46 to 48c. a doz., butter from 55 to 60c. a lb., fowl $1.60 to $2.00, chicken sold at $1.50, hay from 90c. to $1.00 a hundred, oats $1.25 to $1.30 a bus. and potatoes at $2.00 a bus.

The commencement exercises of Notre Dame Academy took place Monday evening, and notwithstanding the very disagreeable weather there was a very large attendance. His Lordship, Bishop O'Leary, presided and presented the crowns, medals and certificates to the successful students. The various musical numbers were performed with all that elegance of execution so characteristic of the pupils of Notre Dame, and was creditable alike to pupils and teachers.

George W. Taylor, assistant Deputy Minister of Inland Revenue, indicated a few days ago that the suggestion made in the House of Commons will be followed and stamps used in connection with the luxury taxes, instead of collecting them as originally proposed. There has been much objection to the work which the other system would impose on the merchants, while the stamp method, has operated successfully heretofore. The stamps will be of the various denominations from one cent upwards.

R. B. Teakle, general manager of the Canadian Government merchant marine, announced the other day that a service is to be established at an early date between Eastern Canada and India and the Far East, and this may be followed by a similar service from the Pacific Coast to China and ports on the eastern coast of India. The first sailing will be that of the Canadian Conqueror, from Montreal towards the end of August. This vessel is one of 8400 tons, and is now under construction in the Canadian Vickers yard here.

A curious application was made at the weekly session of the Ontario Supreme Court in Ottawa recently, when Justice Kelly was asked to settle the estate of Louis Richer, who left Ottawa 58 years ago, and is supposed to have been killed in the American Civil War. The estate of $6,500 is the property of the courts at present and five of his sisters and one brother are making application for it. The remarkable part of the case is the ages of all parties interested. Louis S. Richer would be 81 years old if he were living. Those who made the application are: Mrs. M. Prudhomme, 85 years old; Mrs. G. Robillard, 80 years; Damien Richer, 78 years; Mrs. M. Pinard, 73 years, and Mrs. Anne Bertrand, 71 years. All these live in Ottawa. Application was declined on account of lack of evidence.

The St. John Exhibition Association is again going to hold a show and has fixed its dates at September 4th to 11th, inclusive. This will be the first Exhibition to be held in St. John since 1914, as the Exhibition plant has, for the last five years, been employed for military purposes. The Militia Department have just handed back the plant and have also paid over a substantial amount to offset the damage done by their occupation, so that the Association is in a position to expend more money than is usually the case, and therefore expects to make this year's show a distinct success in every way. In addition to some splendid free acts in front of the Grand Stand, contracts have been entered into that will make the Midway a more elaborate affair than ever. These contracts include some seven riding devices and about fifteen big tent shows; in fact, the Midway will, this year, resemble a first class Summer Carnival rather than the fair's row of former years.

Local and Other Items

Thursday, the 1st of July, being Dominion Day and a Statutory holiday, the Post Office will be closed, with the exception that postage stamps will be sold at the stamp wicket, and the general delivery and registration wickets will be kept open for two hours from 10 a. m. to 12.00 noon. There will be no delivery by Letter Carrier, and the outgoing afternoon mails will be closed at 12 o'clock for despatch. There will be no mid-day collection from the Street Letter Boxes.

We cater to the men's trade, and no other. If you were sick you wouldn't call to see a Tailor, or a Blacksmith, about the condition of your health. Of course not; you would call to see a Doctor.

If you wanted a Suit or an Overcoat would you go to see a Doctor, or a Shoemaker? Not at all. You would go to see a First Class Tailor.

WELL, there's where we shine! We study the business. We know what suits a young man.

we know what suits a middle-aged man, and we know what suits the old gentleman—both in goods and in style. It does not make any difference whether you want your clothes Ready-to-Wear, or Made-to-Order. We are equally in a position to suit you. We do not let a suit or overcoat leave our establishment until it suits and fits the man who is buying. Our prices are always right when you take the quality into consideration.

Do not forget that we are sole agents for the famous W H Leishman & Co. Wholesale Custom Tailors. We have an elegant stock of Overcoats to show you at the present time.

MacLELLAN BROS.

ADVERTISE IN THE HERALD

Out of the window a sea of green trees

Lift their soft boughs like arms of a dancer; They beckon and call me: "Come out in the sun!" But I cannot answer. I am alone with Weakness and Pain, Sick and pale, and June is going; I cannot keep her, she hurries by With the silver-green of her garments blowing.

The Other Side

(Lady Rosa Gilbert, in Ave Maria) Concluded. Finally things quieted down; and when I had finished my letters, and reconciled myself to the disappointment of my friends from whom I was still miles away, I heard renewed tramping in the passage, and the opening of a door close beside my own. The next moment the voices of two men were so loud in my ears that I started up and looked around me. On examination, I found that one of my walls was a mere partition, and that my wardrobe concealed a door—facts accounting for the distinctness with which the words of my neighbours reached me, and for the aroma of smoke that came stealing to my nostrils. A few minutes later and the conversation I have recorded was dropped into my ears.

Pains in the Back

The symptoms of a weak, torpid or averted condition of the kidneys or of the glands of the system are usually regarded as neglect, so important is the urinary action of these organs. They are usually attended by loss of energy, lack of courage, and sometimes by gloomy foreboding and despondency. I was taken ill with kidney trouble, and was so weak I could scarcely get around. Looked medicine without benefit, and finally decided to try Hood's Sarsaparilla. After the first bottle I felt so much better that I ordered six more, and six bottles made me new woman. When my little girl was a year, she could not keep anything on her stomach, and we gave her Hood's Sarsaparilla which cured her. Mrs. Thomas L. Walsborough, Ont.

Food's Sarsaparilla

That night Lucy and I retired to our bedrooms like sensible, sleepy persons; but the small hours found us with our heads together over a waning fire. Lucy looked sweet in her white dressing-gown; though I thought she was paler than she used to be. I had forgotten how long was her bonny hair—thick, brown, glossy locks, with a natural wave and curl when let loose on her shoulders. What Lu was saying to me was this: "I know he loves me,—I know it,—I know it. But there is a mystery." "A mystery?" "He does not speak." "How, then, do you know?" "How should I know? How does any one know? How did you yourself know?" "By words,—sacred, urgent, memorable words." "And yet you wonder if I expect to hear words?" "I don't. I only wonder how you can be so sure without the words." "Do you think me a girl to imagine a man in love with her if he is not? There are looks and acts and words that are so very nearly—yet not quite." "I should distrust them." "Perhaps I have distrusted too much, said Lucy. "I may not have given him enough of encouragement, opportunity." "Where do you see him usually?" "Everywhere. He has been coming here constantly for the last two or three years. He sits beside me, he follows me about. If, by chance I say that I am going for a walk, he joins me. When I take the train, he drops into my carriage at the station." "Then why do you feel so uneasy lest the words you want to hear should not be said in time?" "Because—suddenly, he is going to leave this part of the country." "I felt a shock, as all at once the conversation overheard through the partition in the inner chamber rushed on my memory. "Let him go, Lu. Give it up." "And I feel to the end of my life that I hurt and disappointed him?" cried Lucy. "Give me better counsel. Tell me how to put an end to misunderstanding before it is too late." "Does any one know about all this?" I asked after a pause. "Any of your own people?" "I think Frank suspects, has observed. My father sees nothing,—how could he? He believes me too precious for any man. If my mother had lived—" "Lucy's bright eyes, usually more bright than tender, took a wistful expression which made her lovely. Ordinarily that was not the word to describe her, though she was rich in attractions. I knew that it would do no good to tell her that I felt like a mother toward her. She would only laugh. "She went on." "Berthold—" "I started. The girl's keen eyes were instantly fixed on mine. "Do you know him? I did not intend to mention his name." "I am not acquainted with him; but I think I know the type. Dear you have been too—too—" "Bold—forward—silly! What would you say to me?" "Only too ready to trust and believe. If I were you I would resolve never to see him again." "But I will see him again."

Do Not Neglect

The Bad Cold OF TO-DAY IT MAY BE SERIOUS TO-MORROW May Develop Into Bronchitis, Pneumonia and perhaps Consumption. Miss Mary Frouse, R.R. No. 1, Cotterdale, Ont., writes—"I had the influenza in November last, and it left me with a terrible cough. I did not attend to it until it got so severe people warned me it was time to see about it. I went to the doctor and got some medicine. He told me it was a bad attack of bronchitis. I could not sleep, and would have to sit up nearly all night. It was so difficult for me to get my breath. The doctor's medicine did not seem to be helping me the least bit. One of our neighbors came in one day, and told me about Dr. Wood's Norway Pine Syrup. I tried it and took two bottles. No person could believe how it helped me. I have recommended it to different people since, for I believe I have reasons for doing so. Dr. Wood's Norway Pine Syrup has been on the market for over 25 years, and stands out by itself as a remedy for all coughs and colds. Be sure and get the real "Dr. Wood's" when you ask for it. Put in a paper wrapper; 3 pine trees the trade mark; price 25c. and 50c. Manufactured only by The T. Milburn Co., Limited, Toronto, Ont.

Lucy stood up to leave me. "I have—" Her pride would not allow her tongue to utter more. Her face said: "I have refused other men, I have chosen him. I am beautiful, I am not dowdyless. Am I one to be silently cast aside?" She bade me good-night, and left me thinking. I was powerless to help her. I dared not tell her of my informing experience. She would have held me, at the best, as having pointed to a cruel coincidence; at the worst, as being anxious to interfere, because I had dreamed an inconvenient dream. The next morning was bright and crisp with frost. Sitting at an open window, I saw two young men come walking up the open hall door; Berthold and Lucy's younger brother Frank. "I've come to say good-bye, you know," I heard Berthold saying to Frank. "If you ever come down my way, I can give you a mount—" Then Lucy's voice rang out sweet and clear, and there was a little lively talk among the three; and very soon Berthold, Lucy, and Frank went strolling leisurely down the avenue, laughing and talking, and took a path together across the park. Presently I saw Frank strike off through the grass with his dog, while the other two went on and disappeared among the trees. I sat for half an hour watching for Lucy's return. She came back, as I had expected, alone. Her face as she approached the door was as white as her ermine fur. Involuntarily I withdrew from the window. The name of Berthold has never been mentioned between us since that morning. I have never quite made up my mind as to whether Lucy ever would have cared for Berthold had she not been constrained by her belief in his imaginary devotion to herself. She has been married to Teddy for a good many years, and certainly she loves her husband. I believe Teddy sought her at first from the purest sympathy, and he still finds her adorable. Berthold's favourite horse threw him badly some time ago, and he hunts no longer. The secret of what I learned by involuntary eavesdropping of two masculine ways of looking at a girl's conduct, has always been kept from the three persons concerned in my curious experience while snowed-up in a village inn. MINARD'S LINIMENT is the only Liniment asked for at my store and the only one we keep for sale. All the people use it. HARLIN FULTON.
