P. A. makes men
smoke hungry

Just you get a whiff of "the international joy smoke" and it's dollars to doughnuts you beat it 'cross lots to the nearest store that sells tobacco—and stock up! The flavor and aroma of Prince Albert has got 'em all backed off the boards. It sure will hit the spot with you—it does with more millions of men who smoke it in a pipe or cigarette than any other pipe or cigarette tobacco. Get the drift of that?

PRINCE

just does all that we say it will do. It can't bite your tongue and it can't parch your throat. All this is because P. A. is made by a patented process that cuts out the bite! Why, this process has simply revolutionized smoking tobacco.

Prince Albert rolls up the bulkiest makin's cigarette you or any other man ever smoked. It puts the jolt of joy right into your system.

You can just do "makin's" sunrise to sunset and have a lot of fun. Why, P. A. in a cigarette is absolutely a revelation. You go to it!

Prince Albert is the largest seller in the United States. It is now being imported into Newfoundland and is sold by all of the leading dealers in one-eighth-pound tins.

The Earl's Son;

TWO HEARTS UNITED.

CHAPTER XXVII.

He rose in a leisurely fashion, and arranged his eyeglass.

"One moment, Mr. Grey, if you please. We will have evidence of the arrest, I think."

The London detective who had arrested Ralph came into the box.

"Quite so. You found the prisoner just recovered from an illness, the result of his rescue of a little child from a burning house?"

"Yes, sir; it is the same man."

"Thanks. He offered no resistance?"

"No, sir. He behaved like a gentleman."

"Quite so. No doubt your worships have read the account of the prisoner's heroism. The father of the child is in court."

All eyes went to Mr. Saintsbury and then, with a feeling of admiration and sympathy, to Ralph, who frowned at this reference to his "heroism."

"Now, Mr. Grey, again, if you please," said Mr. Selby. "You found the knife on the body. It—the knife—will be sworn to, no doubt. It does not matter. We admit that it is the prisoner's. You know him. Did he bear a good character while at Lynne Court?"

"Yes, sir; excellent. He was one of the best-liked keepers we've had."

"Ah, yes! You would not have suspected him of a cowardly murder—if you had not found the knife and heard of the quarrel?"

The clerk interposed. "We can scarcely accept Grey's opinion as evidence—"

"Quite so," assented Mr. Selby blandly. "About the quarrel: do you give evidence of that this morning? Where is Fanny Mason?"

Talbot, who was sitting at the end of the magistrate's bench, took out his handkerchief and blew his nose at that moment.

"No, sir. I can't put my hand on her just yet. We found the house, where she'd given her address, empty and to let. I'm trying to trace her, sir."

"Ah! Then, as a matter of fact, you are relying this morning on the knife only?"

"Yes, sir."

Mr. Selby turned swiftly on the bench. "I shall have to ask your worships for a discharge," he said, coolly.

"My client drops his knife—it is picked up by some enemy, some man who owes the deceased a grudge, and probably murders him. The evidence is not strong enough, my lord." He looked hard at the earl. "Here is a young man, with an unexceptional character, a man in the pride of youth and—at that time—as strong as an athlete, accused of stabbing—stabbing, forsooth!—a man old enough to be his father, and a man weakened by drink and dissipation! Surely I am within my right in asking for a discharge. Where is the motive? The motive is the pivot on which the charge must turn! There is none, absolutely none! A quarrel! Between a gamekeeper and a suspected poacher! Well! Grant it! Why, this young man in the dock could have felled the deceased with one blow. Why use a knife? Is this the kind of man—an Englishman and a brave man, remember!—to commit a cowardly and unnecessary—unnecessary—murder?"

There was a murmur of assent, of approval, and a policeman called sternly for silence. Two or three of the magistrates drew together in a whispered conference.

"We think there is sufficient evidence for a remand, at any rate," said one.

The earl seemed to wake from a dream.

"The prisoner is remanded," he said. "Has he anything to say?"

He looked at Ralph, and, as if responding to the look rather than the words, he said in a clear, though low voice:

"I am innocent, my lord. We quarrelled—"

Mr. Selby sprang up as if to interrupt him, then fell back with a shrug of his shoulders.

"But I walked away. I wanted to catch the train—I was leaving Lynne Court. I dropped the knife as I was cutting the stick on which I carried my bundle—"

Every eye, every ear was strained in an almost painful attention; but suddenly, in the midst of the prisoner's speech, the earl rose, his face white as death, his hand outstretched towards the prisoner, who had stopped, arrested by the uprising of the earl's gaunt figure, the ashen face the outstretched hand.

"Who—who are you?" came at last in hoarse, broken tones.

The spectators held their breath and looked from one to the other. Talbot rose and approached the earl, but he waved him away imperiously.

"Ralph Farrington," said Ralph in a low voice, and with surprise.

The earl passed his hand over his trembling lips and fell back.

"The prisoner is remanded," said one of the other magistrates. "Clear the court! Lord Lynborough is ill."

Talbot went over the earl, whose head was on his breast, and his fellow magistrates gathered round him with expressions of sympathy and fear.

"He ought not to have been here, his age—he is not strong enough."

But the earl heard them and, rising, beckoned to Mr. Saintsbury, who was standing by the solicitor's table.

"Have—I have I guessed the truth?" he demanded, struggling for breath.

"Tell me—do not be afraid! The truth—the truth! I want it now—at once, here! You say you have seen my—son. Is—it he?"

Mr. Saintsbury stepped up to the bench and laid a hand upon the old man's arm.

"Not here, Lynborough!" he pleaded, with agitation. "Come home—"

"Yes, here, here!"

With a gesture of resignation Mr. Saintsbury put the miniature in his hand. As he did so Whetstone came falteringly from the group of persons that had been left in the court and, trembling in every limb, stood confronting the earl.

The earl drew his hand across his eyes, then looked at the miniature. A cry rose from his lips.

"It is Janet!"

Whetstone drew nearer.

"You know it! Then—then—it was you who betrayed her! Oh, my God!"

The earl's gaze rested on him for a moment, then he drew himself up.

"It is the portrait of my—wife, gentlemen!" he said, proudly. "We were married—there stands"—he pointed to Saintsbury—"one of the witnesses!"

There was a murmur, a movement of amazement, then an intense silence. It was broken by George Saintsbury.

"Yes," he said. "I was present, and—and—Lynborough be calm! You force me to speak—the prisoner—Ralph Farrington, has recognized that portrait as that of his mother!"

The earl looked up as if he was about to collapse, then he drew himself up.

"I knew it—I knew it!" he said, hoarsely. "He is my son!"

He would have fallen, but some one caught him. He had not fainted, and presently in a weak voice he said:

"Take me home. My son! My son!"

CHAPTER XXVII.

They took the earl home. Talbot rode with him and displayed an appropriate sympathy and rendered him an affectionate attention. But all the time his acute brain, sharpened by his peril, was at work. What course should he pursue? Should he show fight, protest his disbelief of Ralph's identity, announce his intention of contesting the claim?

The moment he had seen Veronica in the court he understood that she and Ralph were betrothed: another complication. She had refused him, Talbot, and had actually fallen in love with and would marry—the heir. Had she all along been aware of the fact, that Ralph was the earl's son?

A less clever man than Talbot might easily have made the mistake of showing his resentment and bitter hatred; but Talbot Denby was remarkably clever and astute. Before they had reached Lynne Court he had decided on his attitude.

The earl seemed weak and dazed, as if he were too bewildered and confused to be conscious of what was going on around him; but to their entreaties that he would go to bed, he shook his head, and, assisted by Talbot, went to the library. As they entered it, Mr. Bolton, who had been on the Continent, drove up.

Divorced Life

by Helen Hessing Fuesler

A Little Segment of the Inner Circle

The little party to which Shurtleiff, the publisher, promised to have Marian invited, occurred within the week. The second day after her luncheon with the publisher, Marian was telephoned by a Mrs. Walther, who invited her to a dinner at her apartment in Gramercy Park the following evening.

"This is terribly informal, I know," said Mrs. Walther over the telephone, "but please don't mind. Mr. Shurtleiff wanted me to be sure and get word to you. There will be an interesting group of writers here whom we both want you to meet. Marian accepted the invitation with both satisfaction and misgivings. She had little idea of what she was getting into, but resolved to hazard her attendance and mingle with some real writers at close range. A brief month ago, writing as a profession had never occurred to her seriously. Today she was on the threshold of what was apparently one of the inner circles of the tribe. Events were carrying her swiftly along. Her new-found ambition and the interesting paths into which it promised to lead her furnished stimulation and excitement.

Dinner was on in Mrs. Walther's little apartment full beast soon after Marian's arrival. A round of cocktails before going in to dine had been sipped by the guests, and this time Marian made no effort to protest, much as she disliked alcoholic drinks. She swallowed part of the concoction bravely.

Eight people comprised the party. Marian was wedged in at the table between Shurtleiff and a tall, lank, youthful-looking, well-dressed chap named Jack Meadows. He interested her from the start. She learned later that he made his living writing vaudeville sketches, an occasional burlesque play and now and then a short story. He had worked on various Chicago and New York newspapers, had pressed agitated numerous theatrical and operatic ventures, and was a notorious wag, liked by many a well-known actor and writer. His brown eyes, slightly caved-in nose, cleft chin and slightly southern drawl, added to engage much of her attention as the dinner proceeded.

Mrs. Walther, the hostess was a heavy woman of forty; she ground out reams of short stories and novelettes for the cheaper magazines. As for the rest, there was an emaciated poet who wore a Socialist button in his lapel and had a soft voice but intense manner; a sad-eyed, handsome young woman who did moving pictures scenarios for a producer up in Harlem; a fat manager of one of the big theatres on Broadway, and others of lesser note.

"Look out for that fellow Meadows," laughed Shurtleiff after a protracted exchange of remarks between Marian and the other. "He's a heart-wrecker."

"You flatter me," smiled the younger man. "I give you my word, Miss Winthrop," he continued, "that I've never been in love in my life. More delightful still, no one has ever been sentimentally interested in me."

"Don't boast, old man," put in the poet. "Miss Winthrop's eyes tempt me to triolets already, and I have barely exchanged greetings with her."

"I'm jealous," smiled Mrs. Walther. "Besides, you professional troubadour," she added, turning to the poet, "don't frighten our newly caught bird away before we've tamed her."

"By the way," interposed Shurtleiff, addressing the theatrical manager, "Look out for that fellow Meadows," exclaimed Shurtleiff, laughing.

"don't miss reading Miss Winthrop's story in next month's Cheering Hour. She certainly hands it to the cruel managers."

"Is that so?" answered the manager. "Good. That's what we're there for. Besides," he added with a good-natured laugh, "what's a romance without a villain? If it weren't for the fresh stage door Johnnie and the cruel manager, you magazine men would have to omit printing theatrical stories."

What Five Working Women told the Prime Minister of England.

London, July 22.—Eight years ago the Prime Minister of England curiously refused to receive suffrage petitioners. Almost immediately afterward Annie Kenney, was manhandled; Mrs. Drummond arrested, and Mrs. Pankhurst did her first hunger strike for again demanding audience with the head of a constitutional government. Now, Miss Sylvia Pankhurst just released from Holloway prison, lay down on the steps of the House of Commons promising to remain there until the Premier received a deputation, or until she died of starvation.

Her pitiable weakness, the result of repeated hunger strikes, made the threat ominous as a prophecy. The first minister of the crown surrendered!

The girl leader, too weak to walk, was carried back to Bethnal Green to call together the deputation already selected. Five delegates from East London suffrage societies chosen by public meeting held in Lime House, Canning Town, Poplar Bow and Bromley, (the five boroughs where millions of toilers struggle to live), left Old Fort Road in the heart of the dim East End to wait upon the Prime Minister.

Instructed to go alone, without suffrage organizers or members of Parliament, Mrs. Ford, tailoress, Mrs. Hughes a brushmaker, Mrs. Parsons, a cigarette packer, Mrs. Payne and Mrs. Bird, housewives, gathered in the Premier's library.

"I am somewhat late," apologized Premier Asquith, as he entered. A simultaneous smile assented. Late, indeed, at least seven years late!

Transport Worker's Life. Mrs. Bird, wife of a transport worker stepped forward.

"Sir, I am the mother of six children under 13 years of age. I have one of the best husbands—a teetotaler—earnings $6.25 a week. You may see I am not fighting for the vote for myself. I am one of the best-off women on the East End. There are thousands worse off than me. But holding the home together depends upon us keeping our health. "The tenement we live in, the markets for our food, my baby's milk, the streets where our children must play, all these are healthy or dangerous, according as borough councillors attend to them.

"My husband cannot follow up such things. He comes home late, dead tired, poor man, needing his sleep. It is I who must protect the family. The east end as we know it is not a place for children. We mothers feel that we have the right to help in improving conditions. But borough councillors will not heed us until we have the vote."

She stood back.

A Tailoress' Story. Another woman stepped forward, Mrs. Ford, of Stepney, a tailoress. Though she bowed bravely her hands trembled.

"Sir, I am a widow these eleven years. There is not a man to speak for me or my two children. As my trade it is a common thing for grown women to earn but seven shillings, for a full week's work. It is impossible to live decently on that. It is a hard struggle to make both ends meet. "There is no help for us but the workhouse. That means separation from my little ones. Surely if I was fit to bear them I am fit to take care of them.

"In my young days I took up trouser making and pressing but was forced to leave the shop rather than submit to the unwelcome attentions of a foreman. "In the same place there was a young girl, innocent but weakwilled, and she had to go to the workhouse where a child was born. After she came out she had no place to go so she came home with me and shared my bed and room. "There were five of us in one room and rather than take the bread from my children's mouths she went out one day. I never saw her again until she and her baby were dragged from the river. She was dead, sir, but the guilty man went scot free! I am trying to tell Mr. Asquith, why we need the vote. As it is now, it is always the woman who pays!"

A Brushmaker's Story.

Mrs. Hughes, an elderly woman, advanced and handed the Prime Minister a hairbrush.

"Sir, I am a brushmaker these 43 years, a quick worker, having been at it so long. That brush is sold for $2.50.

FOR MAKING IT I AM PAID 4 CENTS. Employers know it is safe to sweat women, two cents one sweater offered me for filling two hundred holes with bristles. "Man," I said, "I'll have the law on you." "Woman," he said, and laughs in my face. "You're nothing before the law."

"We brushmakers know that to force better wages we must strike and have questions asked in Parliament. And politicians belittle women workers holding they do not count. My husband's trade was destroyed by machinery. Therefore I must work 14 hours a day to make six brushes (24 cents), to support the home.

"In everything but the name I am the man of the house. I think I have a right to vote the same as my husband. He hardly does any work at all. I think it is unjust and wrong that I cannot have a voice in making the laws.

"Sir, has a woman no concern with the law only to obey it?" Even the grim Premier smiled.

THE PREMIER'S STORY.

"I have received you," he answered, "because you and your organization disapprove violence in political disputes; protest the militant methods which have done so much to impede the progress of your cause.

"You claim that the economic conditions under which women labor in a community like the East End of London are such that neither legislation nor administration can secure substantial and intelligent reform unless the women themselves have a choice in choosing their representatives in Parliament. On one point I am in complete agreement with you. I have always said that if you are going to give the franchise to women give it to them on the same terms as to men.

New Race Boat Launched

CHRISTENED THE "CADET."

In the presence of thousands of people, the new racer that was built by Mr. Robert Sexton, to the order of the C.C.C. Boat Club, was launched at the lake side last evening. At seven o'clock the boat was removed from Lawrence's Factory by members of the C.C.C. Reserve, who accompanied by the builder and the battalion band which rendered lively airs en route, carried the boat on their shoulders to the lake side via Gower St. King's Bridge Road and Quidi Vidi Road. The procession was directed by Mr. T. Clare, Captain of the Reserve. At the pond on the north side a great crowd had assembled to witness the evening's ceremony. The C.C.C. and Reid's Boat Houses were profusely dressed with bunting, while the wharves were also gaily decorated with flags, etc., the colors of the C.C.C. showing conspicuously. At the edge of the C.C.C. wharf a platform was erected beneath a miniature arch. At the appointed hour the new boat was placed in the waters of the dock.

Following a speech made by the Hon. John Harris, Honorary President of the Boat Club, who spoke of the good work done by the Club, Miss Mary Harris came to the platform and, by a stroke of the hammer broke a bottle of champagne over the bow of the boat, and christened it the "Cadet" amid prolonged applause. Congratulatory addresses were made by A. W. Hiscock, Esq., President of the Regatta Committee, and Mr. P. F. Collins, President of the C.C.C. Boat Club, after which "Bob" Sexton, the builder, was called upon, who mentioned the fact that he had done his very utmost to make the boat the best and fastest yet. He expressed the hope that the crews would do their part and that if they gave her a fair trial he had no doubt but that the "Cadet" would be the "queen" of the Pond. In conclusion he wished the boat every success. The crew of C.C.C. boys who had originally intended to row this year, took a spin in the "Cadet." In charge of coxswain P. Brown, after which "Ned" Brophy's Trade crew were out for a try. The way the "Cadet" skid on the placid water evoked many favorable expressions. She was pronounced by the most experienced oarsmen to be "Bob" Sexton's masterpiece. The C.C.C. band then gave a hand concert on the bank and the music discoursed was, as usual, excellent. Needless to say the concert was greatly appreciated by the crowd present. Refreshments were then served to the band and management at the residence of Mr. W. P. Shortall, after which members of the Boat Club were entertained at the rooms in the Mechanics Building by Hon. John Harris. The Honorary President of the Club, builder, Sexton, and the Press were enthusiastically toasted. Speeches were made by Hon. John Harris and Messrs. C. J. Ellis, P. F. Collins, E. J. Brophy, J. Perez, R. Sexton and J. M. Tobin, coupled with songs given by Messrs. J. L. Slattery, J. P. Grace, W. Carroll and W. Myler. The singing of the National Anthem brought the affair, which was most enjoyable, to a close.

LONDON GOSSIP.

LONDON, June 8th, 1914.

THE PRINCE OF WALES.

It is understood that the Prince of Wales will not return to Oxford until the middle of October, when the Michaelmas term begins, but that he will accompany the King when His Majesty goes to inspect the fleet off Spithead at fortnight hence, and will likewise be present at Cowes with his parents. It had been arranged that later in the summer the Prince should travel to Ischl to stay for a few days with the veteran Emperor of Austria, but this visit will naturally not now be paid. The Heir-Apparent, however, will go abroad again, and be absent from this country for about a month, staying for a time with the King and Queen of Wurtemberg at their summer residence, and with the Duke and Duchess of Saxe-Coburg-Gotha, while he is also expected to visit the Grand Duchess Augusta of Mecklenburg-Strelitz before he returns to join the King and Queen at Balmoral.

NEW OFFICIALLY RECOGNIZED JOURNALIST.

A short time ago the British Government drew up a list of officially recognized war correspondents who alone in time of war will be allowed to accompany the Army in the field. Now the German Government is doing much the same with the journalists, German and foreign, who are to describe the manoeuvres of the German army. It is announced that applications from British newspaper correspondents for permission to attend this summer's manoeuvres must reach the German Government through our Foreign Office before the end of next week. Such permits will be for the individual and not transferrable. No photographers will be allowed in the manoeuvre area. All other countries, including our own, will probably follow the German lead and regulate the reporting of their annual manoeuvres. A new caste of highly privileged and highly specialised journalists is coming into existence—that of the military correspondents.

Eventually they will become a close international corporation of what we might call journalist attaches. Mistake in the censor's eyes will mean expulsion from the corps. Henceforth we need not expect newspaper nor daring nor brilliant "scoops" from our war correspondents.

THE DEAD AUSTRIANS.

The shock for our own King and Queen of the murder of the Archduke Francis Ferdinand and his wife was severe. British as Her Majesty looks and is, she has a large share of Hungarian blood in her veins, coming through the Wurtemburgs, and she formed a close friendship with the Duchess of Hohenburg when that lady was over here with her husband in November last year. I saw a good deal of the couple on that occasion, and also of the Archduke previously. The Duchess was a delightful woman, but the Archduke did not appeal to me. His ideas were entirely anti-democratic and he thought the people had no right to do other than gratefully accept any form of rule they were offered. He treated the members of his suite with a brusquerie that made English Court officials grateful to Providence for causing their lives in such a pleasant place as the Court of St. James'.

THE OLDEST BRITISH PEER.

The distinction of being the oldest British Peer now that the Earl of Weymouth has passed away, falls upon the Duke of Grafton, who a few days ago entered his 94th year. The next oldest is the Earl of Courtown, who was 91 in April last, whilst Lord Armitage, who was one of Gladstone's friends, joins the circle of nonagenarians this year. Lord Halsbury and the Marquis of Abergavenny will be nonagenarians either next year or the year after. The Father of the Upper House is still, of course, the Earl of Dudley who succeeded to that title on the death of Earl Nelson. Lord Dudley, who was born in 1827, succeeded his father on June 2, 1853, so that he has been a member of the Upper House for the long period of 61 years.

PASSING OF THE "AT HOME."

There is no doubt that a marked feature of this year's London season is the absence of the afternoon "at home." There are not too many evening receptions, but the crowded out tea with expensive artists to whom no one listens and a groaning buffet which no one can get near is now dying the death it in a way deserves. It was useful only to the hostess who wanted to "polish off" a few hundred people for one check, but it was trying to the clothes, temper, and health of the guests so polished off. The tea is doomed, and the season may be said nowadays to begin at eight in the evening. Before that hour "so as you like" is the order of the day. There are still big luncheon parties, but apart from that people mostly go out of town, and the place to see society between lunch and sunset is on the roads or in the suburbs. The smart out-of-town clubs are in the parks, and the very smart folk now live there as well. All round London a belt of delightful "villa residences" has grown up, and that term, once evidence of suburbanism at its worst, now spells society at its smartest. There are Grand Dukes at Hampstead and the most soulful of society leaders at Coombe and Maiden, and the ubiquitous car has made it possible to pursue the latest social passion—that of gardening—by day and to dine, dance, and do the Russian opera in town by night. Society is none the less a coherent whole. Its leaders may live in the suburbs, but they are certainly not of them. The rural mania is but a phase, like the milk and haymaking of the Little Trianon at Versailles a century or so ago.

PERENNIAL HENLEY.

Whatever may be the British feeling with regard to the rowing defeat during Henley week, it is generally agreed that there never was such a many-sided Henley. The diversity of rowing styles was as nothing compared with the social aspect of the river. The day began with a water skiff appeared on the course manned by young men in red brewers' caps. One of them played the banjo and the girls of the party wore lilac sun-bonnets. In a flash we were whisked into the days of Frith and the Victorians. Then the sun came out, and the sellers of paper sunshades turned the river into a Japanese print, which was really complete when a canoe with a battened sail tried to stand over the stream with a faltering wind behind it. The heat came, and an impressionist haze blurred the colors. But the sun was fickle. An outlying bank of cloud massed up, and with it an up-stream wind that blew quite keenly. This brought forth the bizarre coloring of sports coats in flat masses of crimson and emerald green and chrome yellow, and at last the picture gallery was completed by a comic addition. A laggard punt was peremptorily ordered off the course as a race was coming down, and in its hurry to escape between the booms it spilt one of its crew into the water. He scrambled out on to the bank to an accompaniment of merry laughter and looked as he stood among the puddles that dripped from his clothes like a funny drawing from a weekly illustrated. When he emerged from the Remenham Club in the steward's trousers and a borrowed shirt, amid cheers that would have heartened some of our losers, we felt the wheel had run full cycle and we were back again in "Mr. Punch at Henley" of the fifties.

ANTI-FAT MOVEMENTS.

Almost everyone you meet in London who is in the thirties or forties, is now going in for morning exercises. Their maxim is "one good sweat a day" and their practice is to carry their exercises to the old-fashioned physicians say, an sudorem. No longer as young as they used to be, they are determined not to be middle-aged. The two signs of middle age they fear are loss of hair and to use their euphemism, "putting on weight." Loss of hair they cannot prevent, perhaps, but expansion of the waist measurement is no longer inevitable. There are innumerable "systems" and each system has its devotees who never tire if not practicing it—for that they certainly must do—at least of talking about it and extolling its superiority over any other system. When, as sometimes happens, a not quite young man gets up in the smoke-room and executes queer athletic movements to the intense and serious interest of his companions there is no need to be surprised at the spectacle. He is only giving an illustration of what he regards as particularly neat and efficacious "abdominal exercise." The publishers have wakened up to this new interest in physical well being and the book-shops and railway bookstalls bear witness to their enterprise. Quite a large number of men are against these systematic exercises, which they find too dull, and stick to the old-fashioned practice of skipping. But their skipping ropes are by no means old-fashioned. These ropes, fitted with ball bearings and leather covered handles and specially flexible cotton plaited ropes, are on sale in the big shops, and cost anything from five shillings to half a sovereign. Yet I have heard a skipping enthusiast sigh for the youthful days when he could steal a loan of his mother's clothes line. A still more enterprising group of exercise enthusiasts go in for Morris dancing, or still better for the stiff daily routine of the professional ballet dancer.

"I am—on warm days like this I always suffer from heat rash."

Visitors From Boston.

NET BY DISASTERS' COMMITTEE.

Mr. John P. McCormack, Chairman of the Boston Disasters' Committee, who arrived by the Florizel, was introduced yesterday afternoon by Ex-Mayor Ellis to the local committee. Mr. McCormack told interestingly of some prominent men who had associated themselves with the work and mentioned the name of Hon. Mr. Mansfield, State Treasurer of the Commonwealth of Massachusetts, who acted as a favor if he would be allowed to share in the work. Mr. Wm. Taylor, Hon. Chairman, was spoken of enthusiastically by Mr. McCormack. Mr. Taylor is a son of the late Hon. Wm. Taylor, who did such yeoman service in relation to the great fire of 1892. The present Mr. Taylor is Editor of the Boston Post newspaper, and is well known and esteemed. About 50 Newfoundlanders came on the Florizel from Boston. Mr. Simon Hagan, Secretary of the Committee, was unable to come, but Mr. W. B. Somerville arrived with the party. On Monday next at 3.30 p.m. a meeting will be held when the Boston collection will be formally handed over to the local Executive Committee. Mr. John O'Connell, a native of Bricketon, Mass., after being away for twenty years. Mr. O'Connell did great work for the disasters fund as did also every Newfoundlander in Bricketon. The sum of $800 was collected in Bricketon and $260 in Providence, Rhode Island. Amongst every Newfoundlander that he came in contact with, Mr. O'Connell discussed the Permanent Disasters' Fund and emphasized the necessity for such.

WIRE WOUNDS.

My mare, a very valuable one, was badly bruised and cut by being caught by a wire fence. Some of the wounds would not heal, although I tried many different medicines. Dr. Bell advised me to use MINARD'S LINIMENT, diluted at first, then stronger as the sores began to look better, until after three weeks, the sores have healed, and best of all, the hair is growing well, and is NOT WHITE as is most always the case in horse wounds.

A Patriotic Agreement.

The news received last night that an agreement had been reached as to the Amending Home Rule Bill, although it was mentioned that there were no details of the agreement, gave rise to the hope that a final settlement of the Irish question had been agreed upon, and intense satisfaction was felt by those who heard the news. Mr. Asquith's statement in the House, however, does not bear out fully the hopes that were aroused. Mr. Asquith said that all parties had agreed to postpone the further consideration of the Amending Bill, in view of the international difficulties which have arisen and in view of the peril which confronts the Empire. In one way this is an even more patriotic attitude than was at first reported, because it is a practical union of view of conflicting Irish sections for the sake of the country. In face of a common peril, they have agreed to bury the hatchet for the present. It shows that in spite of fierce domestic strife for the sake of the country, they are all British. At such a time none are for a party and all for the State. With such a feeling dominating all parties, it will surely be possible to keep the hatchet buried, and when next the matter is opened, it will open on a United Ireland. The fact that such grave difficulties in domestic politics can be sunk so suddenly will show the world at large that Britain must be counted on as a solid Empire prepared to show a united front to all the world.

French Cruiser Sails To-Night.

Practically Ready for Action.
To facilitate the despatch of the French Cruiser Friant which has been ordered to proceed to France with all possible speed, the work of dismantling the ship is being done while she is coaling. She will finish coaling this afternoon, and will sail from this port to-night, proceeding to Calais with utmost speed. The boats have been removed and stowed by the Reid Newfoundland Company, whilst the davits and practically everything movable about the decks have been taken on shore. On the ship's arrival at Calais, the masts will be taken down to about 2 1/2 feet, only sufficient being left for the wireless apparatus.
The necessity of dismantling a ship for engagement in warfare in this manner is quite obvious, as with so many unnecessary appendages around the decks, the lives of those on board would be endangered by splinters caused by shells from an opponent. With the danger thus reduced to a minimum, coupled with the advantages of scientific research and discovery, the ships of modern times are much better able to cope with the intricacies of warfare, than those of the past few centuries. Nevertheless, those hulks carried the heroes whose prowess has blazoned the pages of history, and set an example, worthy of imitation for the fighting blood of modern times.

Two men who are ill were landed from the Friant to-day by the orders of the Admiralty. These will be looked after by the authorities here and will likely be placed in hospital, this afternoon, if sufficient accommodation can be had.

Railway Station at Cape Broyle Looted.

SOME SEVENTY-FIVE DOLLARS STOLEN.
Some daring thief or thieves, unknown to the police, entered the railway station at Cape Broyle last night and took therefrom the cash box containing $75. The station agent, Mr. M. Cashin, left the station about ten o'clock last night, after despatching the regular train for Renewa and intermediate stations, and settling up the day's work, and upon returning to work this morning made the foregoing discovery. There is no safe at the station and the money is kept in a cash box in the office. As far as we can ascertain there is no evidence to show how the building was entered. Constable Chafe is now working on the case and is making every possible effort to trace the robbery to the guilty person or persons.
The fair ideal is the square eye deal. You get it at TRAPNELLS.—July 23, 14

Important Statement by Premier Asquith.

Amending Bill Postponed by Agreement of all Parties --- Foreshadows Settlement of Irish Question.

Special to Evening Telegram.
LONDON, To-day.
Asquith, speaking of the extreme gravity of the situation, when announcing in the Commons the postponement of the second reading of the bill to amend the Home Rule Bill said: "We meet to-day under conditions of gravity which are almost unparalleled in the experience of any one of us. The issues of war and peace are hanging in the balance. With us is risk of a catastrophe which it is impossible to measure the dimensions or effects. In these circumstances it is of vital importance and interest to the whole world that this country which has no interest of its own directly at stake should present a united front and be able to speak and act with the authority of an undivided nation. If we were to proceed to-day with the amending bill we should inevitably unless the debate were conducted in an artificial tone be involved in acute controversies in regard to domestic differences. I need not say more than such use of our time at such a moment may have an injurious and lasting effect on the international situation. Bonar Law, leader of the Opposition, shares fully in the views, I have expressed. We therefore propose to postpone for the present, the second reading of the amending bill without prejudice to its future in the House, by the postponement of this discussion the patriotism of all parties will contribute at least to circumscribe the calamity which threatens the whole world. Asquith's reference to all parties, rallying to the support of the Government was heartily cheered by all the members. The British Foreign Office, whose suggestion of a conference of Ambassadors at London failed to meet with the approval of Germany and Austria, has now invited Germany to suggest some diplomatic way out of the difficulty which will meet with the approval of Austria-Hungary; a reply is expected at any moment. Although the Palace conference adjourned with a deadlock over the territorial limits of Uster exclusion unbroken, it is understood that this means a compromise. As subsequently be found and therefore King George is given the credit for the settlement.
LONDON, To-day.
The British War Office to-night explained the calling out of several sections of the special defence force of Britain as follows: "It was in accordance with the ordinary routine when precautionary measures are put in force. Only special reserve sections of the territorials force are being employed and no other territorials are involved in these measures."

IS BELGRADE TAKEN?

Austrian Attempts to Cross River Repulsed with Heavy Losses.

Special to Evening Telegram.
BELGRADE, To-day.
The Austrians opened heavy cannonade in their second attack on Belgrade at eleven o'clock last night. The guns of Austrian Monitors and batteries at Semlin fired until two o'clock this morning. Several buildings were damaged. The Serbian guns replied, but only occasionally. An Austrian gumbat was badly damaged. An attempt by Austrians to cross the river was repulsed with severe losses. The Austrians made several other attempts to cross the rivers Save and Danube, but were everywhere driven back. It is reported they intend to renew the bombardment of Belgrade to-day.
LONDON, To-day.
An Athens despatch to the Telegraph says it is reported from Corfu that the Russian warship Toretto in port there, has received news by wireless that Belgrade was occupied by Austrians after heavy fighting, and that 200 Austrians and 100 Serbians were killed. The War Office sent requests to all newspapers to refrain from publishing news of British Military and Naval movements.
Special to the Evening Telegram.
LONDON, To-day.
The St. Petersburg correspondent of the Times says the partial mobilization ordered by Russia, is confined to army corps stationed along the borders of Austria-Hungary. Prolonged diplomatic conferences at St. Petersburg, adds the correspondent, have been devoid of practical results. "The persistent unanimity of Austria's and Germany's bland responses to Russia's despairing appeal for a hearing," he declares, "compels the unwilling conclusion that all this diplomatic effort has been mere by-play to gain time. Hardly any doubt exists that Germany will now throw off the mask and openly mobilize."

Russia Mobilizing.

Official notification of mobilization of Russian army sent to Germany and Austria. Specific reply to Kaiser's ultimatum not yet received.
Lackawanna miners agree to settle differences and avoid coal strike.

"THE QUEEN OF TABLE WATERS"

Supplied Under Royal Warrant of Appointment to HIS MAJESTY KING GEORGE V.

Southern Shore Notes.

A gloom has appeared in Fermeuse by reason of the fatal end of Denis Finlay who was expected from the United States this season for the purpose of taking his bride to his adopted home. The possessions that deceased left behind are a poor satisfaction for the life of this promising young man who had such a bright future ahead of him.
The new Convent at Ferryland is a gem of architecture and the building reflects much credit on the contractor. 'Tis as fine a structure as will be seen elsewhere and will be a decided ornament to the parish.
The ladies have begun active preparations for the annual garden party and expert quite a number from the city to enjoy the treat. Last season's party gives full assurance of a pleasant time, and the Aquarforte ladies are to assist this year, which will add considerably to the enjoyment.

JULY 31.
New Moon—23rd.
Days Past—211 to Come—153
IGNATIUS LOYOLA died 1556, aged 65. The founder of the Order of Jesuits. He was of noble birth and for a time devoted himself to arms but after being wounded at the siege of Pampeluna gave his life up to religion. Pope Gregory XV. canonized him in 1622.

Dinner to Commissioners

AT WATERFORD HALL.
Last evening, a dinner was given at Waterford Hall to the Dominion Royal Commission, by a joint committee of the Municipal Board and the Board of Trade. There were present: His Excellency the Governor, Sir Alfred Bateman, Sir George Foster, Sir Rider Haggard, Sir Jan Hangerman, Mr. Lorimer, Mr. Tatlow, Mr. Garnett, Mr. Campbell, Hon. E. R. Bowring, Mr. Harding, Mr. Bridgeman, Mr. Payne, Sir E. P. Morris, Sir Wm. Horwood, Sir Jos. Outerbridge, Hons. R. K. Bishop, M. P. Cashin, Geo. Knowling, Jno. Harvey, Jno. Anderson, P. T. McGrath; Messrs. Withers, Grievy, A. McDougall, R. Horwood, C. P. Ayre, John Browning, Thos. Cantley, J. K. Plummer, Gordon Winter, Alan Goodridge, W. H. Franklin.
Mr. J. S. Mann, President of the Board of Trade, proposed the Health of His Majesty the King. Mr. W. G. Gosling, Chairman of the Municipal Board, in a short speech, then proposed the Health of Sir Alfred Bateman and the gentlemen of the Dominion Royal Commission. Sir Alfred Bateman, returning thanks for the toast, said in part, that he and the Commissioners had been very much interested by their visit to the Ancient Colony, which they had very much enjoyed. He said that the evidence relating to the Colony had been presented to them in most excellent shape. He spoke of the value the services of Hon. E. R. Bowring had been to the Commission and of his pleasant companionship; of the resources of the island, his impressions were very favorable. Touching upon the remarks of the Chairman, he said that the bonds of Empire must be drawn closer—in times of peril and menace, such as the present, the calls of brotherhood throughout the Empire was insistent. Of their work he spoke briefly, saying that the evidence which they collected would be issued in Blue Book form.
Sir Alfred's speech was very well received and loudly applauded.

Household Notes.

To make banana jam, slice a dozen large bananas. To every pound of the fruit allow three-quarters of a pound of preserving sugar. Take the juice and pulp of five lemons and add them to the bananas and sugar. Add a little water. Then chop up half an ounce of preserved ginger and add. Simmer very slowly for fifty minutes.
A fragrant scent ball to keep in lace and handkerchief boxes can be made with an orange and some cloves. Take a perfectly sound orange with a thick skin, stick it all over with cloves, forcing them into the heads, and planting them as thickly as possible, and leave the orange to dry. When dry, it will emit a delicious odor, and will retain the scent for nearly a year.
To make a Roman pie, mince up any cold meat, add a little well-cooked macaroni and a little good thick brown gravy, season to taste. Make a short crust. Line an ordinary cake tin with it, fill up with the meat, and lay a cover of pastry on top; decorate to taste; brush over with warm milk, and bake in a moderate oven for one hour. Turn out, and serve with brown gravy.
Garnish for lettuce or any other dressed salad may consist of rings or quarters of hard-boiled egg, slices of tomato, nasturtium flowers, chopped parsley, or tarragon, tiny shapes of beetroot and the yolk of a hard-boiled egg passed through a sieve so that it makes a golden dust. It is not wise to mix tomatoes and beetroot in garnish, as the colors do not contrast nicely.
A good luncheon dish is made by boiling three or four eggs until hard, shell them carefully, cut in half lengthwise, take out the yolks, and mix them well with four or five sardines (boned), a little cayenne and salt, a few drops of vinegar, small piece of butter melted, and a sprinkling of chopped parsley. Fill the white halves of eggs with the mixture, heating it up. Arrange on a glass dish, and garnish with sprigs of fresh parsley.

Silver Jubilee Celebration.

OF VERY REV. J. J. McGRATH.

Bell Island Parishioners do Honour to Their Pastor and to the Occasion.

The Silver Jubilee celebration of the Rev. James J. McGrath, P.P., Bell Island, took place on Tuesday the 28th inst., and was one of the grandest functions ever known in the annals of the Iron Isle. Over thirty priests and clerics of the church attended, including His Grace Archbishop Howley and suite from the Archdiocese of St. John's and His Lordship Bishop March and suite from Harbor Grace. The weather which was threatening in the early morning, cleared up and a fine day greeted the arrival of the visitors. The residences of the many citizens were also decked with bunting; while the grounds of St. Michael's Church were decorated in a most suitable manner; a splendid arch being erected at the entrance. Everywhere bunting was to be seen floating in the breeze thus signifying the esteem in which the Rev. Pastor who was celebrating his Silver Jubilee, is held on the island; not alone by the people of his parish, but by Bell Island citizens of all denominations. The first ceremony of the day was High Mass, and the grounds of St. Michael's Church were lined by No. 6 Company of the Catholic Cadet Corps under Capt. Murphy and Lieut. Costigan, who opened ranks and the procession passed through en route to the Church from the Presbytery. Over thirty clergy were lined up in the procession, and the sight was a most edifying one. At the Church the procession was met by a guard of honour from the Knights of Columbus in regulation dress, composing Messrs. R. J. Costigan, D. J. Jackman, John Connors, W. K. Murphy and J. M. Greene.

Jubilee was wound up in a fitting manner by a Musicales and Dramatic entertainment. As the party proceeded to and from the Hall, volleys of musketry sounded in their honour, while splendid displays of fireworks took place from both St. Joseph's and Wabana Hall and on the departure of the clerics their firing squad fired a salute in honor of the distinguished pastor and his guests. In connection with the celebration of the Jubilee it is pleasing to note that the choir of St. Michael's Church under Professor Hassan, excelled itself in their Musicales rendition at Mass, which was sung in Farmer's B. Flat, while the Credo was from Theodore de la Hauche and the offertory piece was Sancte Maria from Chas. Gouind. The Soloists were Miss Nellie Jackman and Mr. John Davis, assisted by a choir of twenty. Previous to the official celebration the ladies of the parish waited on the Rev. Fr. McGrath and presented him with an Address and purse of gold, Mrs. Thos. Dwyer of the committee, making the presentation. The Rev. Jubilarian received very many messages of congratulation and particularly received from the Nova Scotia Steel and Coal Co. and Dominion Iron and Steel Co. through Messrs. R. E. Chambers and D. H. McDougall, respectively, substantial recognition of the occasion, testifying to the esteem in which the Pastor is held by both these large corporations.

ADDRESS
To the Rev. J. J. McGrath, P. P., Bell Island.

Dear Reverend Father:—
We, the men of Bell Island Parish, wish on this, your Silver Jubilee, to extend to you our sincere congratulations, to express our feeling of loyalty and love, and wish you many happy years amongst us as our revered pastor and friend, which you have always been.

After a connection with us of over twenty-years, eighteen as Parish Priest, we can now feel thankful to that dispensation of Providence which gave you to us. When you joined us and began your career of usefulness and wisdom, some there were who did not see as you did, and did not have the faith in the future that you had, and did not feel the necessity for the great effort at Catholic development that you inaugurated. Now, after eighteen years, your wisdom is manifest to the blindest amongst us, and to you is due the credit that by future effort we will be able to hold our own from a Catholic standpoint. As a monument to your wisdom and faith, that faith inherited from your race, we now have St. Michael's Church, a dream of beauty and far beyond anything of its kind in this island of Newfoundland. This Church alone, must have cost you much effort in the realms of finance but you did not confine yourself to that alone; You, at an opportune time, secured the means of future expansion and that we now are in a position to look with hope to the future is entirely due to you. You, and you alone, placed us where we are and left us in a position to hold our place in the foremost rank.

In taking a retrospective view of your work amongst us, that of Education stands out most prominently. On your assuming charge of the Parish there was but one School, today the Educational facilities consist of a High School and four Primaries; a fitting tribute of your deep interest in the education of the rising generation.

In your ministrations to us you have always inspired us with hope and confidence for the future. Your visits to us have always soothed us, even when most afflicted, and when hope for the material had passed you then gave us that comfort and hope in the spiritual which can so readily be found in our Holy Faith. Often we thanked God for that Faith bequeathed to us from our forefathers and for the beloved priest who administered to us.

As a slight token of our appreciation of your faithful labour amongst us and of our esteem for you, we respectfully ask your acceptance of the accompanying gift as a memento of your Jubilee.

Wishing you again many happy years and that some amongst us may yet have the pleasure of celebrating with you your Golden Jubilee.

On behalf of your loyal and dutiful parishioners.

Woods, on Postal matters, Telegraphs, Wireless and Steamship communication; Hon. John Harvey, on Ocean Steam and Freights; Mr. H. C. Thompson on the All-Red Route; Messrs. McDougall and Cantley, on behalf of their respective companies on the Bell Island deposits; Mr. Geo. H. Gosling, on the import of Flour; Hon. W. C. Job and Hon. John Harvey, on the Oil and Oil Shale areas; and Mr. F. H. Balfour, on Mineral matters. By request of the Commission, Mr. F. W. Ayre submitted articles of American manufacture, principally hardware, to show the superior and more attractive manner in which American manufactured goods are packed and displayed. The evidence being concluded, the party were entertained to afternoon tea by Sir Edward and Lady Morris, after which the members of the Commission made a tour of the Harbor with the Hon. E. R. Bowring, in his launch, in order to learn something of the possibilities of the harbor from the standpoint of trade. At night the Commissioners were entertained at Waterford Hall by representatives of the Board of Trade and Civic Commission. The ladies who accompanied the Royal Commission on their visit here, were entertained to dinner at Government House by Lady Davidson, several ladies of the city being also invited.

VISITING BELL ISLAND.
To-day the Commissioners and party go to Bell Island, by motor to Fortugal Cove and thence by the steam Yacht Fife, which has been placed at their disposal by the Reid Co. They will be entertained at lunch by Manager Cantley, of the Nova Scotia Co., and this afternoon will inspect the mines of both companies. In the evening they will be entertained by Manager McDougall, of the Dominion Co., after which the Commissioners and the ladies will proceed by the Fife to Holyrood where they will take a special train for Grand Falls.

WILL INSPECT PULP MILLS.
To-morrow will be spent at Grand Falls inspecting the mills and taking the evidence of Mr. Vincent Jones, of the A.N.D. Co. The party will leave Grand Falls to-morrow evening, but will stop at Deer Lake, and wait until Sunday morning, so that they will have an opportunity of viewing the scenery of the Humber Valley in the day. They will arrive at Port aux Basques about 6 p.m. on Sunday, and the s.s. Lintrose will make a special trip to North Sydney with the party, who will begin their Canadian tour on Monday next.

A Perplexing Quest

By RUTH CAMERON.

"Will you kindly give me your views on a perplexing question?" writes a Letter Friend. "I have a friend, a most estimable character in every way, who has women and girl friends to 'burn,' but makes no headway with them. He is masculine and would much prefer they be evenly divided if possible."

How many girls do you imagine have asked themselves that question since the day of the one woman who had no woman friends and no fear of competition in her dealings with the male sex? It is indeed a perplexing question with as many angles to it as a diamond or a crabbed man's disposition. Some women do not get on with the opposite sex because they lack the sparkle and the easy grace of manner which seems to be necessary to establish acquaintance with the average man.

I have in mind a very pretty girl who has had few men friends and now bids fair to remain unmarried because she is so stiff and quiet and that it is almost impossible for a man to get acquainted with her. Beauty has a good deal to do with the matter, but not so much as most people think. Prettiness is the show window; it attracts the crowd, but there must be something worth while inside the shop if there are to be any customers. The part of prettiness as a match maker has been much over emphasized, I think. To one man who marries for a pretty face there are at least five who are ensnared by some other quality.

Brainy women often intimidate men, especially the average man. For this type and for some others I have a word of encouragement later. Other women fail to attract men simply because they are under-sexed and hence lacking in that often latent and unconscious but, none the less, powerful sex appeal, which is more potent to help a woman attract men than beauty or any other charm.

It is easy enough to see why a woman whom men do not like may be a woman's woman, for different qualities in woman attract the two sexes. Moreover, I must admit that a woman's lack of popularity with the other sex is often in itself a recommendation to women's friendship. Now for the word of encouragement. Unpopular once is not unpopular always. A woman may be unpopular yet strongly attract some particular type. I once knew a girl who was hopelessly unpopular with the conventional type of men whom she met at home and at school. She became an artist, met men who understood her, received the admiration she craved and married happily.

Again, the girl who lacks the ability to get acquainted with men often has qualities under the surface which would attract them if they could know her. When circumstances throw this girl into proximity with some man she will often find herself as popular with at least one member of the other sex as she could desire. My advice to any girl who wants more men friends is this: Study yourself; put your best foot forward; study other women and how they attract; don't be so anxious to please that you over-reach; if you are inclined to be self-conscious, try to lose it in friendliness and cordiality and thought for others; and above all, if you really want to get married, make a determined effort to meet the men of your own type.

Pulpwood Consumption Grows.

Amount Used by Canadian Mills Increased 28 pc. in the Last Year.
Ottawa, July 23.—According to the annual bulletin on pulpwood consumption, issued by the forestry branch at Ottawa, the consumption of pulpwood by the Canadian pulp mills has increased by 28 pc. in the last year.

The manufacture of pulp has increased and the exports to the United States, Great Britain and China have decreased. While the imports have also increased, these form but a small part of the total consumption of pulp. Canada still exports almost half the pulpwood she produces in the raw state, although these exports are being checked by regulations enacted in the different provinces which forbid the export of raw or unmanufactured timber cut on crown lands. The recent legislation in the province of Quebec, which also forbids the export of raw timber from lands owned by railway companies, will tend to further decrease this economic waste.

Seeing by Wire.

Transmission of Images Effected by a London Inventor.

Once more we are assured, and this time from England, of the success of experiments to enable those using the telephone to see the person at the other end of the wire.

The inventor, Dr. M. A. Low, a London consulting engineer, has given a short description of the apparatus and method of the new wonder. The transmitter is a screen composed of cells of selenium, the electrical resistance of which varies according to the light that touches it. Over this screen there passes a synchronously running roller consisting of a number of pieces, which are alternating conductors and insulators.

The roller is driven by a motor of 3,000 revolutions a minute, and the resulting variations of light are transmitted along an ordinary conducting wire. The receiver is made up of a series of cells operated by the passage of polarized light through thin slats of steel and at this receiver the object, which is before the transmitter is reproduced as a flickering image.

The process is described as a "kinematographic application of common electrical principles." The system has been tested through a resistance equivalent to a distance of four miles, but, in the opinion of Dr. Low, there is no reason why it should not be equally effective over far greater distances.

"The tones of the human voice, of which there are hundreds of gradations," says Dr. Low, "can be reproduced by wireless telephony. The gradations of light are far simpler than those of sound, and it should be possible to devise a wireless means of transmission. I will commit myself to the prophecy that in fifty years people will look back with wonder at the days when it was necessary to be at a person's side in order to see him. When this day arrives, consider how it will change the conditions of warfare. Imagine the altered methods of military operations when you can see what is happening miles away."

At present the image reproduced is of the size which the eye of a camera would take. It shows variations of light and shade somewhat in the degree of a half-tone block, but it does not reproduce color.

Dr. Low is well known in London as a consulting engineer, and has engaged in laboratory research for the Government. A number of inventions stand to his credit including the low high pressure motor and a high pressure petrol engine. The experiments in connection with light by wire have extended over five years.

In the transmitting screen selenium may be replaced by any diamagnetic material. The cost of the apparatus is considerable, as the conductive sections of the roller are made of platinum.

Where Responsibility Lies.

No matter how large, or how small, a business may be, nobody can deny that its Office is the nerve centre of the firm. Every transaction, important or trivial, must be recorded at the Office. An order is received at the Office—its history is recorded at the Office, and finally payment is received at the Office. If the Office makes an error the firm stands the loss. That's why you must be sure that your office is modernly and dependably equipped for the care of all important papers. To do this effectively you must have the up-to-date equipment of the "GLOBE-WERNICKE CO." When sixty offices in St. John's have found this necessity this equipment can surely be of use to you. Mr. Percie Johnson represents this world known firm in Newfoundland. April 19

Million of Cash Moved at Ottawa

Gold, Silver and Notes Being Transferred from Old to New Vaults.

Ottawa, July 23.—Many million dollars, how many the comptroller of currency would not say, in gold, silver and notes, representing Canada's cash on hand, are being transferred by the Finance Department from the old to the new vaults on the East Block. The entire staff of the Currency Branch, under the direction of Mr. P. E. Rourke, the comptroller of currency, is engaged in the work of receiving the bullion, and it is expected the task will be completed soon. Special Dominion police are guarding every corridor and exit through which members of the staff are coming in and out with their precious packages. During the hours in which the money is being removed, none of the staff is permitted to leave the rooms. The new vaults, which are six in number, are located in the new wing of the East Block.

In former days, the women clerks who counterbalanced the notes were permitted to leave their rooms during working hours, but now a rule is enforced whereby they come into the offices at 9.15 a.m., remain until 12.15 p.m., return at 1.30 and are not allowed out again until 4 p.m.
