Christmas Parcels

The Christmas rush is great in normal times. With millions of men under arms it is a tremendous strain on all Postal Staffs, and delays are unavoidable.

In the Old Country 75 per cent. of trained Postal Officials are with the Army, and their work is being done by untrained men and women.

For the Home parcels to reach England before Christmas, the sooner they are posted the surer will their timely delivery be.

Please pack securely. Do not use sharp edged boxes. Square boxes should always have their edges padded.

CHAPTER XXIV.

Another thing she notices, and that is, that although almost every group they come against greets him, and many a beautiful face smiles a welcome and invitation, Archie seems proof against all comers, and cleaves to her side, scarcely doing more than lifting his hat, and returning the greetings in short decisive fashion.

"Do you know all London?" she says at last, with a smile.

"Well, you see," he says, almost apologetically, "when a fellow knocks about he meets with a host of people, and everybody seems to be here this afternoon."

"Isn't it rather unfair and unwarrantable of me to monopolize all your attention?" she says, presently, after he has passed another smiling group of acquaintances. "Where has Lady Brookley got to? We seem to have wandered away from her. Take me back to her, and then go and join some of those people; they look very well."

"Thanks," he says, quietly. "I am quite content if you will allow me to remain and look after you. Perhaps, though"—apprehensively—"I am boring you?"

"How can that be?" she responds. "Very well, then," he says, "don't say any more about my leaving you. Look, there are some fine blossoms. I wonder what would happen if I stole one for you?"

"I should say that we should find ourselves in jail, you as the thief, and I as the receiver," she answers, in a brighter tone. "Come away, if you feel tempted."

They walk on, and presently, the crowd getting thicker, they are brought to a stand-still, just at the junction where one path crosses the end of the other. At this moment a stream of people is in possession of the cross path, and those who, like Archie and Dulcie, are in the other, are compelled to pull up and wait until the stream thins a little.

There is some good-natured jostling and pushing, such as will occur even in fashionable mobs; and Archie, who cannot bear that an elbow should touch his darling, clears a little space and draws her into it.

It is at this moment, when they stand apart, as it were, that Archie feels the hand resting upon his arm close with a little spasmodic gesture. He looks down at her, and sees that her face has grown suddenly pale, and that her eyes are fixed on the crowd passing in front. Following the direction of her gaze, he is just in time to see Sir Hugh, with a lady on his arm, followed by the Duke of Grennam. They have passed almost in an instant, but there is time for him to recognize Lucy Fairfax in the lady.

Instinctively Archie steps a little in front of her to hide her from them, why, he scarcely knows, but the movement comes too late. Either the duke or Lucy Fairfax draws Sir Hugh's attention to some flowers near where the other two stand, and Hugh turns and sees Dulcie.

For a moment he stares as if he had received a sudden shock, then he makes a movement as if to approach her; but at the instant he sees who is with her, and with a compression of the lips he raises his hat and passes on.

It was all over in a moment, yet volumes could not describe the intense significance of the incident. To Hugh, Archie's appearance by Dulcie's side was confirmation of her treachery and deceit; to Dulcie, the fact of Lucy Fairfax hanging on Hugh's arm, corroboration of Archie's words.

Poor Archie, inwardly cursing the flower-show and the evil chance that has brought them to a standstill, summons up courage at last to look down at the beautiful face beside him. With almost a start he finds the dark, lovely eyes raised to his with something approaching a smile—he does not know how much it cost her, it is true.

"Yes, the color is back in her face, her lips are set firmly, there is a smile in her eyes.

Once she has betrayed herself, but she has vowed that it shall not be so again, and she keeps her word.

While Archie is trying to stammer out something, anything, she says, in a low, clear voice:

"I think we can move now. If we stay we shall be carted away with the rest of the flowers."

There is not a quiver in the voice.

not a sign of the sudden pain that has smitten her.

"All right," says Archie. "We'll get out here and go round to the first tent. We shall find my aunt there. She and a great many more never get beyond that tent. Between you and me, one half the people here don't care a farthing for flowers. They come just because it's the thing to come; and if you show yourself in the first tent, why you have done your duty, you know."

And so he rattles on, saying anything that occurs to him first, to give her time to recover herself entirely; but indeed she scarcely seems to need it, and when they emerge on to the gravel paths into the fresh air, she is looking pale still, but with the sweet paleness of one of the roses they have left behind. They find Lady Brookley in the first tent, as Sir Archie prophesied.

"Why, my dear," she says, "where have you been? I've been looking for you everywhere," she adds, unblushingly. "Archie, you had better see where my stupid men have taken the carriage."

And as Archie goes she says to Dulcie:

"My dear, you have got just a color. I hope you haven't let him tire you."

"Sir Archie has been most kind and careful," says Dulcie, quickly. "He—he treats me as if I were something that would break or melt," she adds, with a laugh, but with a certain feeling in her voice that contradicts the laugh.

"Oh, he's a very good boy when he likes," says her ladyship, with a little twinkle in her eyes.

Archie finds the stupid men and helps the two ladies into the carriage, but he does not offer to get in. He will not let her think him obtrusive.

"I'm going to fetch uncle from the club," he says, "or else he'll forget all about it," and he hurries off.

Dulcie's hand trembles as she lowers her veil.

"Archie has grown very modest all of a sudden," says Lady Brookley. But Dulcie does not reply.

All unconsciously he has hit upon the way to woo her, though never was a woman yet who could withstand for long the respectful devotion of—well, a handsome, true-hearted man, and Sir Archie is both.

CHAPTER XXV.

Was it true? Were they going to be married? Had Sir Hugh forgotten his new love and turned to the old so quickly?

It was with the resolution to have done with love, old and new, that he left Holme Castle half an hour after the scene with Dulcie in the fernery.

With the grim despair of a man who finds the dearest hope of his life cast to the ground, he fled the presence of the girl whom from the first he had mistrusted, and whom he now believed guilty of the direct treachery.

Even if Dulcie had found presence of mind to explain how it had come to pass that she was playing the lover to Sir Archie, it would have made little difference. As he had said, his disposition tended toward jealousy; his love was of that exacting kind which will not brook even the appearance of a rival, and the vision of Dulcie clasped in Sir Archie's embrace, of Sir Archie's ardent, passionate voice, haunted him during that solitary journey to town.

If he had but lost his train, Dulcie and he would have met, and—well, then the tangled skein, which the gods weave for us poor mortals, might have been unraveled in their case, but there were to be no more chances for them that night.

He caught his train and came to town, to the cold, desolate chambers, that looked more desolate than ever after the scene he had left.

All that night he sat or paced the room, fighting with the trouble that had fallen upon him.

At times he was inclined to think that he had dealt hardly with her; but the bare facts rose and justified him, and at last a strange pity for her mingled with his anger.

"My poor Dulcie!" he murmured; "she could not be true! It was not in her nature. She was right. We have had a lucky escape. I should have made her miserable with my jealousy and suspicion, and she—she would have broken her heart."

Made in England, but enjoyed all over the world.

The anger passed, and on the morrow he went to his agent to inquire if there was a chance of exchange into a regiment ordered for India.

His one sole desire was to get as far from England as possible. If there had been one of those little wars on, he would have volunteered for service; but the piping times of peace were reigning, and as no opportunity presented of exchanging for India, he rushed about town.

He sent a line to Holme Castle, saying that business kept him; and in time an answer came, and that answer, written in Maud's high-pointed Italian hand, confirmed his worst fear.

"Miss Dorrinore has gone," she wrote, "and, of course, Sir Archie has followed her."

That was all. There was no mention of Mrs. Fernor's illness; and Hugh, more convinced than ever that Dulcie had fitted him for Sir Archie, groaned, and he threw the note into the fire.

Then came a note from his solicitor, begging Sir Hugh to favor him with a call, and Hugh went after a day or two; he hated interviews with his solicitor, and generally conducted his business with that useful personage by short notes.

He went, and his solicitor, with thinly concealed satisfaction, handed him Dulcie's note, which Lady Falconer had sent up to him.

"Here is the end of the trouble respecting the will, Sir Hugh," he said, expecting his client to look pleased; but Hugh crushed the note in his hand, with a frown.

"Not by any means," he said. "This—this note goes for nothing."

"The young lady exercises her power of choice, Sir Hugh, and—ahem!—declines the allowance," said the man of law.

"I don't care for that," said Sir Hugh, in his grim fashion.

"But—but," remarked the lawyer, who had held the Holme business since he had entered the profession, "you can't compel the young lady to marry you, Sir Hugh."

"No, but I can decline to rob her of her proper share in her uncle's will," said Hugh.

The Fifth Commandment, "Honour thy father and mother," is the first of the ten. Now, when does a man not do it by dishonouring his father? Some parents stand for absolute parents until they are old. Now, I have seen find any age limitations, and think that might just as well have as the time for their age, or to years of age, say that it would be boys to pay due regard to their parents' wishes, in their youth and to their mature years, but a man he is supposed to think for himself.

Century of Methodism in Burin—1817-1917.

This being the centenary year of Methodism in Burin, at a joint meeting of the Quarterly Official Board, Trustee Board, with representatives from Epworth, it was unanimously decided to celebrate the event. Plans were carefully made and some of the former ministers of these circuits, who are living, were invited. Two only were able to be with us, viz., the Revs. W. Swann and Dr. T. H. James. The President of the Conference, the Rev. J. R. Saint, B.D., came to preside over the various meetings. On Sunday morning last, Oct. 28th, service was held in Collins Cove Church and a service also in Epworth. The President of the Conference took charge at the former service and the Rev. Wm. Swann preached a very suitable sermon from 1 Cor. 3:10-11—"Laying foundations and building." The Rev. Dr. James was the preacher in Epworth and delighted the people with a powerful discourse. On Sunday afternoon there was a mass meeting of the Sunday Schools and young people from all parts of Burin and Epworth in Collins Cove Church. The President was in charge of the service and heartily congratulated the friends on the splendid rally. Short addresses were given by the Revs. W. Swann and Dr. James, and the President gave an object lesson with a magnet and nails. It was most instructive and was enjoyed by all. At night there was a platform meeting held in the church, which was crowded by people from all parts of Burin and Epworth. The President of Conference took charge, and after the opening exercises and reading of the Scriptures by the Rev. A. Norman James of Epworth, the pastor called the roll of the ministers who have during the century been stationed in Burin and Epworth. Of the 35 ministers whose names are on the roll for Burin, some 10 only are living. Letters and messages were received and read from the Revs. Thomas Harris, Jas. Nurse, T. W. Atkinson, John Reay, Chas. Howse, H. Royle, T. B. Darby and F. R. Mathews. Addresses were given by the President, Revs. T. H. James, D.D., and Wm. Swann. Messages were later received from Revs. W. H. Browning and H. G. Copple. The services of the day were fittingly brought to a close with a Sacramental service.

The singing of the old hymns to the old tunes by the choir, reinforced by members of the Great Burin and Epworth choirs, was very inspiring and added greatly to the services. The church had been tastefully decorated with choice flowers by the ladies. A splendid arch had been built by the men under the superintendence of Messrs. Joseph Mitchell, Jr., and Bert Collins, and trees planted on the sides of the road leading to the church. Flags were in evidence everywhere. Tuesday was generally observed as a holiday, and at 10 o'clock in the morning a Peace and Memorial Service was held in Collins Cove Church. The Rev. Wm. Swann conducted the service, which was well attended and very impressive. The pastor called the roll of the ministers of the circuit who had died during the century and gave a brief account of each. The average age of the men was over 69 years and the average years of their ministry over 40 years. The President of Conference went to Epworth the same morning and conducted the service there. He preached an appropriate and impressive sermon and at the close administered the Sacrament to some 50 members. This is remarkable for a week-day service.

In the afternoon a big tea meeting was held in the Orange Hall. Before sitting down to tea the address was given by the pastor, and it was decided to send telegrams to the following, viz., Rev. W. H. and Mrs. Browning, in whose time the beautiful new church was built; Mrs. Matthews, widow of Solomon Matthews; Mrs. Hatcher, widow of Rev. H. C. Hatcher; Rev. Joseph Gill Angwin, who is now living in Sydney in the 54th year of his ministry. He is the son of the Rev. Thos. Angwin and was born in the first Parsonage in Burin Bay 78 years ago. Mr. Harry Bottrell Peach, son of Father Peach, who was born in the Parsonage in Collins Cove. The tea was managed under the presidency of Mrs. C. F. Bishop of Burin and Mrs. Kesch of Epworth, with a large number of ladies and young men. The latter led by Mr. Roy Winter. Upwards of 700 sat down to tea. At night the hall was more than crowded, many not being able to get in. The President of the Conference took the chair. Meeting opened with the National Anthem and the Lord's Prayer. A telegram was received from the Rev. T. B. Darby, M.A., and the Hon. R. K. Bishop, both of whom are Burin boys who have made good, sending greetings and good wishes.

The Rev. John Lewis was the first

Methodist Missionary to Burin, and his writing desk which he gave to Mr. George Goddard's grandmother was kindly lent by Mr. Goddard and was used on this occasion. After the President had briefly addressed the meeting he called upon the pastor, who read a sketch of the History of Methodism in Burin for the past century. The first missionary stationed in Burin visited all the places between Lamaline and North Hr. in the bottom of Placentia Bay. To-day within this same territory are four circuits and missions, viz., Burin, Epworth, Flat Islands and Sound Island. The growth of Methodism on this part of the island and along the whole District was noted, as also the growth of Methodism throughout the island in the century. The Lord had done great things by means of Methodism and its preachers. Following the sketch by the pastor, short addresses were given by the Rev. Dr. James, who was the first young man stationed at Flat Islands; Rev. Wm. Swann who was the first chairman when Burin was formed into a district. Addresses also were given by the following, viz., Messrs. George Goddard, Philip Hollett, J. Beazley of the Epworth circuit, and Daniel Bishop of Burin. Votes of thanks were tendered the ladies and young men for their work in serving tea, including the ladies who had baked and given materials, also the men who had built the arches and put up the flags, and all who had in any way helped to make the celebration a success. A vote of thanks was given to the pastor for his historic sketch and request made for it to be published. A hearty vote of thanks was also given to the Revs. J. R. Saint, B.D., President of Conference; Wm. Swann and Dr. T. H. James for their attendance and the great services they have rendered.

The following day, in the afternoon, there was a big gathering of children under 12 years of age. The ladies had prepared a good tea and the little folks had a most enjoyable time. After tea the children gathered in the upper hall and brief addresses were given by the President, Rev. W. Swann, A. Norman James and the pastor, who presided.

We were favoured with splendid weather and this celebration was a great success.

On Friday night there was a grand display of fireworks from Man of War Hill, and the Parsonage and church were illuminated. Mr. Wm. Bishop with young men had charge of the former and Mr. Benjamin Mitchell with others of the latter.

Soldier's Wife Badly Burned NOW IN HOSPITAL.

An almost tragic and unusual scene occurred on Bond Street at 5.30 p.m. yesterday when Mrs. Emily Noseworthy, wife of Pte. Edward Noseworthy, of the 8th Regiment, rushed from her home into the street enshrouded in flames and screaming for help. At the time mentioned Mrs. Noseworthy, who was preparing supper, was in the act of removing a kettle from the kitchen stove when her apron came in contact with the grate and being of inflammable material instantly caught fire. Taken by surprise she became excited and rushing into the street screamed for help. No sooner had she gained the street when for a few minutes her body was enveloped in flames. A fourteen-year-old boy and a girl named Davis, who is employed as a domestic, who were also in the kitchen, attempted to smother the flames but failed in their efforts. Had it not been that a truckman who was passing at the time hastened to the unfortunate woman's assistance and removed the burning clothes from her body she might have been burned to death. A big crowd quickly gathered and carrying Mrs. Noseworthy back to her house did everything possible to alleviate her suffering. Dr. Macpherson reached the scene shortly after, and after temporarily dressing the burns ordered her to the hospital, where she was taken in the ambulance.

Mrs. Noseworthy who suffered much pain, has some nasty burns on her face, arms, back and lower parts of the body, but while seriously injured will in time recover.

NOTE OF THANKS—Mrs. M. J. Collins and family of Placentia, desire to thank the many kind friends who sent letters and messages of sympathy and all friends who visited them on the death of her son, Martin B. Collins, killed in action somewhere in France, Oct. 9th 1917.

MAGISTERIAL INQUIRY.—An inquiry into the death of Miss Nora Rafus, which occurred under tragic circumstances a few days ago, will commence this afternoon.

The Fifth Commandment and How It Has Been Twisted

As Seen By the "Sentinel."

I presume that all my readers know what the Fifth Commandment is. Throughout Newfoundland since the start of the War it has been so horribly twisted that I thought I could do well by taking it as the subject of this talk to you, and I can only trust that what I shall say may help out some young fellows who may really and truly be in a quandary.

The Fifth Commandment says: 'Honour thy father and thy mother.' Now, the question is, how best may you honour them? Certainly you cannot do it by dishonouring them, can you? Some parents will tell their sons that the Fifth Commandment stands for absolute obedience to their parents until they are 21 years of age. Now, I have been unable to find any age limit set in the Scriptures, and think that those people might just as well have set 70 years as the time for their boys to come of age, or to years of discretion. I must say that it would be expected for boys to pay due regard to their parents' wishes, in the days of their youth and to their advice in their mature years, but when a boy becomes a man he is supposed to be able to think for himself.

Now, when does a boy become a man? I should think a boy becomes a man when he is able to think on his own, and go ahead and act on his own, fearlessly. He should then know right from wrong. Now, the greatest wrong you can do may be to sometimes absolutely obey your parents. You know that parents are not infallible. The parent that we should say was the most fallible parent, in the world, is the Kaiser of Germany. He is also the greatest Scripture Twister in the world. He says "himself and God" are making war on the Allies which includes the Newfoundlanders. His son, Willie, obeys him and carries on war according to the precepts of his father. That style of warfare you all know of and it is unnecessary for me to go over the some people may say Willie is a virtuous lad because he honours and obeys his father. Still most people give Willie a rather hard name. By most he is considered to be the star burglar of Europe, by others the star bungler, and he stars in all kinds of vicious crime, as he follows his father's precepts. Now there are fathers in Newfoundland and I regret to say mothers, too, who are Scripture Twisters like the Kaiser. And there are Little Willies who listen to them, because in some cases they do not see the fallibility of their parents and because in the others they think the Fifth Commandment as read by their parents sounds better to them than it is, as read to them by their consciences. There are some Little Willies who read it and think it means to stay at home and look after their parents when their parents would feel more honoured if they went, but don't like to tell them so.

Now, I say the Fifth Commandment is a bad thing to be twisting, and may hit you some day like a boomerang. And, my boys, I say to you to-night honour your father and your mother by joining up with the Newfoundland Regiment, if there is nothing tremendously pressing to prevent you, but if so, be certain it is something pressing. Parents, I say to you, do not prevent your boys from enlisting, if, having seen their duty, they wish to do, for the day may come when they may turn round and even curse you for having led them or talked them into dishonour. And if you parents ask your boys to dishonour themselves, besides dishonouring you, in this most important matter which has ever come into any young man's life, how can you expect honour from them in later years, when they realise you have not guided them aright? This may be as they listen to the jeers of those men who have returned covered with glory from fighting the good fight, while those little Willies have stayed at home tied to their mother's apron strings.

Mothers! I know how hard it is for you to part with your boys (and later I intend to have a special talk with you), but believe me it is better for them to fight in the cause of right and taking their chance of death (which we have all sometime to meet), than to live shamelessly and let better men die for them.

Let them take their places in the Regiment and not let it perhaps go into action weakened by being short of men, or having men all worn out in it, and for that reason perhaps being overwhelmed in a very hard push.

Now, boys, tell your parents you won't be Little Willies, and join up with the Regiment while the joining is good.

Believe me the joining won't be as good or as honourable later.

LOYAL TALKERS.

A lot of us old fogies, who are too gray to fight, sit round and smoke our stogies and jabber day and night. We tell about the scrapping we'd do if we were young; we'd send the Prussian yapping, with backshot in his lung. We'd prod foes in the stomachs with gleaming sword and lance, and pile our dead in hummocks upon the plains of France. And how we roast the stripling who does not seek the fray, who's quoting Wells or Kipling while others march away! We skin that German royal, who started all the fuss; we are so doggone loyal the children stare at us. But when we're asked politely to dig up for a bond, and keep things going right out yonder and beyond, when asked to give assistance, we suddenly recall engagements in the distance, and hike to beat you all. You cannot tear us under the tightwad from his wad, the miser from his plunder, the gold brick from his god. Oh, talk is cheap and filling, we all can boast the flag; but ask us for a shilling, and see us wilt and sag!

Why Many of Our Teachers Are Failures.

S. H.
Editor Evening Telegram.

Dear Sir,—In a former issue of your paper, I tried to emphasize the need of parental teaching. The nursery days have now passed, and whether the child has been understood at home, or not, the time has come for him to spend part of his days in school. If there is more than one school to select from, the choice is often made in favor of that teacher that has the best C.H.E. results in the previous year—irrespective of his mode of teaching. In our outports there is generally but one school, and the child is often "packed off to be out of the way."

The foregoing paragraph supplies our readers why many of our teachers are failures. The lack of sympathy between parent and teacher—the lack of appreciation on the parent's part, and the failure to take interest in school work, outside of curiosity re the C.H.E. results, creates a discord between them which influences the child, and so causes the child at manhood's strength at the least, but a passive agent, only half alive to the vital need of true education.

Secondly as a corollary drawn from the above, there is the pitiful ignorance, or blind indifference, displayed by our representatives re this matter. Of course as soon as the legislative part of education is boosted, then it becomes at once apparent that the salaries of teachers are far short of what is needed or deserved. We are all thankful, I am sure, for the 20 pc. increase granted to us at the last session of the Legislature, and the more so as the cost of living has in many cases been increased 100 per cent. for us.

However, the granting of a few more dollars to the teachers is not the only way of making education a success and not a farce. Teachers need training.

If a boy intends to take a business course, or a course in art, he has to be apprenticed or subjected to a course of training, in many cases ranging from three to seven years. He has to be trained so that he may be able to do mechanical labor, and that he may be proficient in technical training. Faulty workmanship is not saleable, but the question whether the teacher's work is good, bad or indifferent is but rarely asked by the majority of our representatives.

Our teachers often fail because they are not trained. The Summer School and the Normal Training College are helpful aids. The latter especially, but we want a larger probationership.

Just glance for a moment at the condition of many of our teachers to-day. They pass by dint of teaching, a Preliminary or Intermediate Grade, and are often sent to take charge of a school. Are they qualified to teach? They can teach the three R's as they are commonly called, intelligently, but of the "True Art of Teaching" they are in many cases, not even qualified to learn.

But the keynote of the whole question lies in the fact that many of our teachers have no idea how many of our teachers use the teaching profession—I might say the noblest profession and worthy of a higher notice—and a stepping-stone to further advancement, "as a means towards an end" And why? Because of the conditions under which we teach. A teacher is sent to a school. He immediately looks up the C.H.E. syllabus and obtains the books prescribed by the "Council," and then "to work." It's Cram, Cram, Cram from September to June, and to what end? To obtain a certain percentage of passes in the aforesaid Council examinations. What an ambition! What an ennobling ideal! As a result of this cramming the mind is narrowed and dwarfed and the aim of educators—pardon the term—is to fill the mind with unnecessary knowledge.

Why do our teachers fail? What said Rousseau? "We may know many things, and be able to teach them, but we shall have little success, unless we learn by observation something of the subject to be acted upon, the child's mind." Learn to aim high. Look upon teaching as a "means in itself," as the perfection of all work. Establish sympathy and understanding between yourself and child. Until we have learnt this lesson taught us by Rousseau, we must expect failure. Then be guard against the contingency. Learn more of your pupils and teach less.

Fads and Fashions.

Soutache and embroidery of every description will play an important role in the coming winter dresses. In all demi-toilette waists are often indicated simply by a line of ribbon tied in a bow with long ends. A number of the new frocks are unbalanced in design, with a lapel or band of trimming on one side, while the other is plain.

"Help Wanted."

By RUTH CAMERON.

RUTH CAMERON

One of my favorite diversions when I have a little time to spare for desultory reading is to go over the Positions and Help Wanted pages of some big metropolitan daily. I believe I have called your attention before to the human interest in all the classified ads (especially "Lost and Found" and "Personals") but this time I want to direct it entirely to that big cross section of the daily life of the average man and woman which these advertisements for work or for workers, contain.

Anyone who is interested in people in the large human sense and who has imagination enough to glimpse a tenth of what such advertisements suggest must find such pages interesting.

I never had any idea how many things people did to get a living until I became interested in these pages.

Would You Know What These Terms Mean?

"An employer," "a first class hotel shaver," "men with yards," "experience," "a boss comb for colors and mixes," "bangs up for automobiles," these terms stand for a few of the many intricacies of business which to-day's paper suggests to me.

An interesting vista opened by at least two ads on one page is the call for laborers to work where a strike is on. The most excellent inducements are offered and solemn but sinister assurance given that there hasn't been any trouble.

The Call of The Wild.

If I were a man it seems to me that I should sometimes fall under the spell of the constant call in these pages for Lumbermen.

Perhaps if I were a man I should know more about the matter and the fascination would be dispelled but in my present blissful ignorance I can read the call of the little Red gods into those few lines.

A familiar type of advertisement which always interests and somehow fascinates me is "Young man to learn the shoe business, excellent opportunity for young man who is willing to work." You can just picture the place from that--one of those positions where the boss is so afraid that he watches them all the time. Where praises are supposed to take the place of raises, where workers are expected to be able to live indefinitely on a few dollars a week and "an excellent opportunity." Perhaps I do this particular concern injustice. I wonder.

The Baby Who Liked Housekeeping.

Of course there are the amusing advertisements in which the advertisers either through their own inadvertence or that of the proof reader fail to say exactly what they mean. For instance I found these two to-day.

"Wanted a position as janitor by party who is an expert in burning coal." (Do you think that sounds exactly reassuring with coal prices hobnobbing with stars as at present) and "Woman to take full charge of bay who likes housekeeping in small apartment."

I am ashamed of the feeble way in which I have indicated the big feeling of getting a cross section of the world's life which these pages give me. I only hope I've said enough to make you supply my inadequacy by trying it out for myself.

When you want Sausages, why get ELLIS'; they're the best.

SAND.

Sand is an imitation of whalebone which is sometimes placed in the backbone at birth and sometimes is venerated on later in life. The venerated kind of sand has a tendency to peel and crack at critical moments, causing the wearer to back down and regret having said it, but the blown-in-the-bottle variety should not be tried with unless all preparations have been made for a decent burial.

Sand is a valuable adjunct in business life, as it enables the merchant to buck up against five rainy Saturdays in succession with a stout heart. It is very discouraging to a sunny dry-goods retailer to advertise Saturday specials in peak-a-boo waists at sixty-nine cents and then have it start in on Saturday morning and rain so hard that nobody can get in off the farm without wearing a bathing suit. The right amount of sand, however, will enable the merchant to switch at once to a clearance sale on mackintoshes and near-silk umbrellas, thereby reaping a golden harvest.

The largest stock of sand required in any pursuit is that of getting married on $10 a week. With sugar at ten cents a pound and the price of hard coal going up hand-over-hand, like a Brazilian sea, it is getting to be a man's job to support a family, but it is being done on $40 a month in many a home where happiness has come in and hung up its hat. Sand gives the best results when it is mixed with contentment, and in that case it doesn't make much difference whether there is a rag carpet or an Oriental rug on the parlor floor.

There is something about whiskey, when imbibed by the bucket, which drains the sand out of a man's system, but if given half a chance it will sprout again faster than the untried Jimson weed or the prolific dandelion. Many a man has been down and out from the effects of failing to draw a sober breath for six months, but by nursing what sand he had left managed to shake himself loose and breathe in a free, non-alcoholic manner. There is no higher quality of sand than that shown by the wife who puts up with a booze-fighting husband, year after year, and by her patience and tact pulls him out on dry land.

Sand never has to be reinforced by bluster. Never attempt to bluff the quiet little man with a square jaw and a cold blue eye. It is more dangerous than tickling a drowsy mule with a straw.

Eczema Cured Five Years Ago.

A Treatment Which Has Proven a Wonderful Healer of the Skin--Certified Evidence of Lasting Cure.

Jordan, Ont., November 8th.--The old notion that eczema is a disease of the blood is refuted time and time again by the cures that are daily being effected by Dr. Chase's Ointment. It matters not what the cause may have been if you apply Dr. Chase's Ointment regularly you will obtain relief and cure of eczema. Here is the proof.

Mrs. Stephen G. Thwaites, Box 205, Jordan, Ont., writes: "My brother had a bad case of eczema on his legs. He was troubled nearly all one fall and winter with it, and could not work for days at a time. He tried different salves and ointments, but none cured him. One day he tried Dr. Chase's Ointment, and it gave almost instant relief. He continued its use, but had not quite finished the second box when he was cured. It is now about five years since then, and it has never returned. We certainly can recommend Dr. Chase's Ointment, and are very grateful for my brother's cure."

(Rev. S. F. Coffman, Vineland, Ont., states: "This is to certify that I know Mrs. Thwaites and her statements are correct.")

Mr. J. E. Jones, 228 University Avenue, Kingston, Ont., writes: "I had eczema in my hand--for about five years. I tried a great many remedies, but found that while some of them checked it, none cured it permanently. Finally I tried Dr. Chase's Ointment, and in six weeks my hand was completely better. I would not do without a box of Dr. Chase's Ointment in the house if it cost $2 a box. I am giving my name to this firm so that it will get to those who suffer as I did."

Dr. Chase's Ointment, 50 cents a box, at all dealers or Edmanson, Bates & Co., Limited, Toronto. Substitutes will only disappoint you. Insist on getting what you ask for.

Further advance has been made north of Beersheba, a town 11 miles above that city having been captured. General Allenby's troops captured Khawilra, 10 miles north of Beersheba, on Monday night on Monday, and that repeated counter-attacks of the whole of yesterday were repulsed. ITALY'S NEEDS

ROME, Nov. 7.

On Monday, commenting on the needs in the present critical situation, the Popolo Romano urges a client help from the United States, help is to come from that source. It is the time, says the paper, that Italy, says, is resisting and will resist. She must have assistance in the certain lines in order to be effective as without grain and coal, which supplied she cannot win. A newspaper declares that Italy's question never has been understood abroad. Her population, it points out, lives largely upon bread, and needs 17,000,000 quintals of wheat to supply this demand. It also states that 100,000 tons of shipping is in addition to the present supply.

BERLIN, Nov. 7 (Official). On the Venetian Plain, the Livorno line has been reached. During the pursuit several thousand prisoners were taken.

ITALY'S NEEDS.

ROME, Nov. 7. On Monday, commenting on Italy's needs in the present critical situation, the Popolo Romano urges sufficient help from the United States. It help is to come from that source, now is the time, says the paper. Italy, it says, is resisting and will resist, but she must have assistance, and that in certain lines in order to be effective, as without grain and coal abundantly supplied she cannot win. The newspaper declares that Italy's broad question never has been understood abroad. Her population, it points out, lives largely upon bread, and she needs 17,000,000 quintals of wheat to supply this demand. It also urges that 100,000 tons of shipping in addition to the present supply is not enough. It is time that the Allies quit making such mistakes as at the Dardanelles and in the Balkans, it adds, and finally, understand the importance of Italy's front. Alluding to the seriousness of the threat against Italy, David Lubin, representative of the United States at the International Institute of Agriculture, said to-day, perhaps it will prove a good thing. The Austro-German invasion certainly has stirred up the patriotism of the Italians as I never dreamed it possible; also, it will show the Allies the need of haste to combat the Austro-German plans to defeat Italy separately, now that Russia is not to be relied upon, and also before the United States troops arrive in the spring. It is an important fact that the Austrians and Germans are horribly short of food for the civilian population, that they must attack, and naturally have done so at the weakest point.

STILL RETIRING.

LONDON, Nov. 7. The Italians are retiring in order from Tagliamento, according to a despatch to the Daily Mail from Italian headquarters in Northern Italy. Italian cavalry scouts are fighting according to plan. Enemy scouts on Monday were in the neighborhood of Maniago, 12 miles west of the Tagliamento. All the new troops with which the Italians have come in contact during the past ten days were brought from the Russian front, according to an accredited British correspondent with the Italian army. He adds that a British hospital unit, which became lost during the retreat from the Isonzo, has now joined the Italian forces.

REINFORCEMENTS REQUIRED.

Italian Headquarters in Northern Italy, Nov. 7.—On the effectiveness with which reconcentration can be carried out of the newly chosen Italian front, depends the issue in the military movement now in progress. This reconcentration is developing with reasonable promptness considering the magnitude of reorganization necessary after the recent retreat and the enemy's pressure now extending along 15 miles of the Tagliamento. In military circles it is felt that more is needed than assurance from Italy's Allies. As the time presses for getting actual reinforcements of men and munitions on the threatened lines, it is considered that this is an emergency which should stir the Allies to real action in sending important help, as the enemy masses are so overwhelming that small additions to defensive forces will not turn the tide at the decisive moment. Reports indicate that the Central Powers have staked everything on trying to crush Italy, while she alone is bearing the entire campaign with the Allied Tooton forces. The feeling is that it is not less the interest of the Allies than of Italy that adequate reinforcements should second the effort to stop the immediate onslaught and be in a position to follow up what must inevitably develop as a result of the present operations.

THE REVOLUTIONISTS.

PETROGRAD, Nov. 7. An armed naval detachment under orders of the Maximalist Revolutionary Committee has occupied the office of the official Petrograd Telegraph Agency.

COSSACKS' DEMANDS.

PETROGRAD, Nov. 7. In the early hours of the morning a delegation of Cossacks appeared at the winter palace and told Premier Kerensky that they were disposed to carry out the Government's orders concerning the guarding of the capital, but they insisted that if hostilities commenced it would be necessary for their forces to be supplemented by infantry forces. They further demanded that the Premier define the Government's attitude towards the Bolsheviks, citing the release from custody of some of those who had been arrested for participating in the July disturbances. The Cossacks virtually made a demand that the Government proclaim the Bolsheviks outlaws. The Premier replied, "I find it difficult to declare the Bolsheviks outlaws. The attitude of the Government towards the present Bolshevik activities is known." The Premier explained that those who had been released were on bail and that any of them found participating in new offences against the peace would be severely dealt with.

THE USUAL SINKINGS.

LONDON, Nov. 7. A decrease in the British merchant ships sunk the past week is noted in the Admiralty report. Only eight ships of over 1,600 tons were sunk by mines or submarines and four under that tonnage. No fishing ships were sunk. The British merchant ships recorded are the smallest in point of numbers since the unrestricted warfare began.

HAIK'S REPORT.

LONDON, Nov. 7. Field Marshal Haig's report from Flanders to-night reads: During the day the work of organizing our new positions in Passchendaele and on the high ground in the neighborhood of the village continued without interruption from the enemy. In spite of the great importance which it is known the enemy attached to this commanding locality no hostile reaction has yet followed its capture. Over 400 prisoners, including 21 officers were taken by us in our attack yesterday. So far as has been reported our losses were very slight.

BERLIN OFFICIAL.

BERLIN, Nov. 7 (Official). West Front.—An assault directed with strong forces against the heights of Beclaire and Ghelevelt was shattered for the most part before our lines, says the statement, such of our enemy as penetrated our lines were overcome in a hand-to-hand fight. Later our destructive fire prevented an attack which was being prepared. Heavy artillery fighting on the battlefield lasted into the night. With other armies on the western front there was a revival of artillery activity at many points which increased in great violence especially on the eastern bank of the Meuse. On the Russo-Galician and Macedonian fronts there were no military operations.

FOOD SUPPLIES.

LONDON, Nov. 7. Sir Arthur Yapp, Director of Food Economy, in a speech yesterday, said that while Britain's food conditions were serious, the position of the Central Powers was still more serious. The only commodity Germany had in any degree resembling us was potatoes, of which the allowance was seven pounds per head weekly. There was no tea in Germany, he said.

ANOTHER REFERENDUM.

MELBOURNE, Nov. 7. The Commonwealth has decided to take another referendum on conscription.

VIOLENT ARTILLERY ACTIVITY.

CONSTANTINOPLE, Nov. 7. An official issued on Tuesday says that on the Sinai front there has been violent artillery activity on the Gaza sector and weak artillery firing on sectors of the center and left wing.

HERR FRIEDBERG RESIGNS.

LONDON, Nov. 7. A despatch to the Exchange Telegraph Co. from Amsterdam, says Herr Friedberg, leader of the National Liberal Party in Germany, has declined the Vice-Presidency of the Prussian Ministry, because Count Von Hertling, the new Imperial German Chancellor, was unwilling to offer portfolios in the Imperial or Prussian Government to other members of Parliament. The position of Count Von Hertling as a majority Chancellor, by this fact is rendered more difficult.

FRIGHTENING DEPOSITORS.

MANCHESTER, Nov. 7. Andrew Bonar Law, Chancellor of the Exchequer, speaking at a great war aims meeting here to-night said that a determined effort is being made by a small section to frighten depositors, particularly small investors from lending money to the State, by saying it is unsafe. "Nothing could be more absurd. It is also nonsense to say the debt would be repudiated."

MEETING OF REICHSTAG.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 7. The German Reichstag will meet again on Nov. 22, according to a cabled report received to-day from Zurich, Switzerland.

COMMISSIONERS' SAFE ARRIVAL.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 7. The safe arrival at a British port of the American commissioners to the Allied conference, headed by Colonel E. M. House, was announced late to-day by the State Department. In making the announcement, Secretary Lansing said the conference at would be essentially a war conference with the object of perfecting more complete co-ordination of activities of the Allied nations in order to obtain the highest efficiency. This is the American Government's first definite announcement of the purposes of the meeting. The members of the mission are: Admiral William S. Benson, Chief of Naval operations; General Tasker H. Bliss, Chief of the Army Staff; Oscar T. Crosby, Assistant Secretary to the Treasury; Vance McCormick, Chairman of the War Trade Board; Bainbridge Colby, of the Shipping Board; Dr. Alonso E. Taylor, of the Food Administration, and Gordon Archibald, Secretary.

GERMANS RESTING.

LONDON, Nov. 7. The Germans made no effort during the night to regain the ground captured yesterday on the Ypres front by the British. On the battle front there is nothing to report except intermittent German artillery operations. Our troops have been engaged in consolidating the positions won in yesterday's attack. A successful raid was carried out last night by Liverpool troops northwest of Quant; we captured a few prisoners.

HYLAN'S VICTORY.

NEW YORK, Nov. 7. Judge Hylan's plurality, based on virtually complete returns early today, was 145,666.

EMPEROR NEEDS REST.

LONDON, Nov. 7. A despatch from the Hague says a message received here from Cologne asserts that Emperor William cancelled his visit to Gorizia. The doctor has ordered the Emperor not to overtax his strength. The despatch added that although not ill the doctors say the Emperor needs more rest and less travelling. The past six months have been particularly strenuous for him.

A Faithful Dog.

Mr. Richard Cashin, who had his leg broken as the result of being thrown from his carriage while turning a sharp corner near his home at Cape Broyle, yesterday morning, reached the city by special train last night and was taken to the hospital. An X-ray examination showed the break to be a clean one. Following the accident the injured man lay on the ground for over an hour while the horse continued at break-neck speed towards home. Accompanying Mr. Cashin was his faithful dog, which for the past fifteen years has been the pet of the family, and possessing an instinct almost human, stood by his master and howled and whined till assistance came.

LANSING EXPLAINS THE CONFERENCE.

WASHINGTON, To-day. Secretary Lansing made this statement: The Government of the U. S. will participate in the approaching conference of Powers at war with the German Empire and has sent as its representatives Mr. Ed. M. House, who is accompanied by Admiral W. S. Benson, Chief of Naval Operations, General Tasker H. Bliss, Chief of Staff of the U. S. Army, Oscar T. Crosby, Asst. Secretary of the Treasury, Vance V. McCormick, Chairman of the War Trade Board, Bathbridge Colby of the U. S. Shipping Board, Dr. A. E. Taylor, representing the Food Controller, Thos. Nelson Perkins representing the Priority Board, and Gordon Auchincloss as Secretary. The Conference is essentially a war conference, with the object of perfecting the more complete co-ordination of the activities of the various nations engaged in the conflict and a more comprehensive understanding of their respective needs, in order that the joint efforts of the co-belligerents may attain the highest war efficiency. While a definite programme has not been adopted, it may be assumed that the subjects to be discussed will embrace not only those pertaining to military and naval operations, but also to the financial, commercial, economical and other phases of the present situation which are of vital importance to a successful prosecution of the war. There will be undoubtedly an effort to avoid any conflict of interest among the participants and there is every reason to anticipate that the results will be a fuller co-operation and consequently much higher efficiency and more vigorous prosecution of the war. The U. S. in the employment of its man power and material resources desires to use them to great advantage against Germany. It has been no easy problem to determine how they can be used most effectively, since the independent presentations of the requirements of the Allied Governments have been more or less conflicting on account of each Government's appreciation of its own wants, which are naturally given greater importance than the wants of the other Governments. By a general survey of the whole situation and a free discussion of the needs of all the approaching conference will undoubtedly be able to give the demands of the several Governments their true perspective and proper place in the general plans.

WAR REVIEW.

The Italian armies are continuing their retreat westward over the Venetian Plain from the Tagliamento River and southward from the Dolomites and Carnic Alps region toward the plain, with rearwards on both fighting fronts holding back the enemy and with airplanes also playing an important part in harassing the invaders, destroying bridges that had been thrown across the Tagliamento and bombing the troops trying to cross the River. Although the Berlin official statement asserts that the Germans have reached the Livizna River on the Venetian Plains along which it had been expected General Cadorna would fight a retarding action, it is believed that this is only in the centre and that the greater portion of General von Buelow's forces is still negotiating the passage of the Tagliamento or working its way westward over the flat country harassed by the Italian cavalry. There is no indication where the Italians retreating from the hills have reached nor is there information concerning where General Cadorna, reinforced by the British and French, will make his stand, but the belief prevails that the Piave River will be chosen. The Teutons are declared to have staked everything in their attempt to crush Italy and the Allies must rush assistance with speed if Cadorna is to check the enemy. Thus far it is evident that the invaders have not come in close contact with the main Italian forces, for the Berlin war office tells of no great battle having been fought anywhere and does not dilate on a large number of prisoners being taken, merely saying that several thousand troops have fallen into their hands. Of great significance to the Italian situation and to that of the Allies generally is the announcement of the arrival in a British port of American representatives to the inter-Allied conference; Col. F. M. House, long known as President Wilson's confidential advisor, headed the mission. On none of the other fronts than the Italian have there been any great operations. The Canadians are holding their gains of Tuesday without the Germans offering serious interference. On the greater part of the remainder of the western front there have been only small encounters, in which the French obtained the advantage.

ITALIAN SHIPPING LOSSES.

ROME, To-day. The Italian shipping losses from submarines on all seas for the week ending Nov. 4 were two steamers under 1,500 tons, and three sailing craft under 100 tons.

ITALIANS WILL PROBABLY STAND ON THE PIAVE.

HEADQUARTERS OF ITALIAN ARMY IN NORTHERN ITALY, Nov. 7.—The retirement of the Italians is being accomplished in good order from the Tagliamento line towards the Livizna River on the plains west of the Tagliamento. The British batteries have been withdrawn intact after a terrible experience. They lost three men, not at the hands of the enemy, but as a result of an accident and exposure. An enemy shell dropped within 100 yards of one of the British batteries. The shell struck an ox-cart on which peasant refugees were riding, killing a woman and six children. All the members of the battery escaped. A monster gun nearly broke through a bridge across the Piave River. The reference to a gun being taken across the Piave is the first indication that the Italian retreat has reached so far west. This probably means that no great stand is to be made along the Livizna River.

PROHIBITION VOTING IN U. S.

CINCINNATI, To-day. In a recapitulation in which unofficial figures were supplemented by official figures, the "Drys" made a slight gain to-day with 150 precincts missing. The Ohio vote stood, for Prohibition, 505,774, against 507,151, leaving the "Wets" in the lead with 1,377 votes.

GERMANY MAY DO ANYTHING.

LONDON, To-day. Field Marshal Viscount French, Commander of the home forces, in a speech to-day declared Britain must be prepared for any and every eventuality. For all we know, he said, the next surprise may be an invasion of this country. He ready then for any thing.

MAGNIFICENT RESPONSE.

WASHINGTON, To-day. The Americans responded to the call for the second Liberty Loan by subscribing $4,617,532,300, an over-subscription by fifty-four per cent. of the $3,000,000,000 asked and only $383,000,000 less than the $5,000,000,000 maximum fixed by the Treasury.

SCARLET FEVER SERUM.

STOCKHOLM, To-day. The announcement was made at a meeting of the Swedish Medical Society to-day by Dr. Carl Kling, bacteriologist at the Carolinian Institute, of the discovery of a serum for treatment for scarlet fever.

BRITAIN MAY BE ABSOLUTELY CONFIDENT.

MANCHESTER, To-day. The British Chancellor of the Exchequer, Andrew Bonar Law, at a great War Aims meeting here to-night declared that Britain could look to the future not only with hope but with absolute confidence. He said that Britain's Overseas force is more than three million and added, a mightier force never existed.

NAVAL AEROPLANES AT WORK.

LONDON, To-day. The Admiralty last night issued the following official communication: "Last night bombing raids were carried out by a royal naval air squadron on the following military objectives; the Thourout (Belgium) Railway Station and Lichtervelde Railway Station and on a moving train near Lichtervelde. Several direct hits on trucks and junctions are reported but the visibility was poor. Large quantities of explosives were destroyed. All our machines returned safely."

IMPORTANCE OF PASSECHENDAELE.

LONDON, To-day. The capture of Pasdechendaele is dealt with in the morning newspapers of extraordinary importance and was strongly held by machine guns and the ground thereabout was very marshy and difficult to traverse. The Canadians stormed the fort and a sharp conflict ensued at close quarters. The redoubt finally was forced to surrender and forty Germans were taken prisoner. There was very little hand to hand fighting yesterday. The Germans depending mainly on long distance machine gun fire for the defence. Upwards of four hundred prisoners were in the Canadian cages this morning and five field guns had been accounted for. The German losses again were very heavy, while those of the Canadians were comparatively light. Many Germans were killed by their own barrage fire.

as completing the long and persistent fight for the ridges north and north-east of Ypres which it is contended are symbols of a great strategic conception for the development of which their capture was an essential prelude. The Times says: "The possession of the ridges gives Haig a dominating position in West Flanders. Whenever we chose we should be able to utilize with great profit the positions we hold to-day." The Daily Mail says: "The capture of Pasdechendaele is one of the greatest events of the war. The Ypres salient is a thing of the past, or rather it has been turned against the Germans. We now threaten the German positions on the coast and at Lille."

CANADIANS TAKE GERMAN COMMANDERS.

BRITISH HEADQUARTERS IN BELGIUM.—Two German battalion commanders and their staffs were taken prisoners by the Canadians when Pasdechendaele fell. In the capture of one of these commanders probably lies a partial explanation of the fall of the enemy to launch a counter attack against the village at a time when it would have stood the most chance of success, before the British had begun their consolidation. This man was the commander of a reserve battalion which had been brought up for the express purpose of counter attacking should the occasion arise. He had been sent to come into Pasdechendaele to consult with the battalion chief commanding the troops in the village, and then both these commanders and their subordinates were taken their troops were left without a responsible head. Consequently the reserve battalion apparently to have waited in a state of indecision for the return of its leaders and never ventured forward. The commanders with their staffs were in a concrete pill box when the Canadians entered. The attacking forces swept by the pill box and nobody thought to examine it; as a result the German officers were left in peace. They remained in their safe hiding place until four o'clock in the afternoon, when the Germans became uneasy, thinking they all would be killed if found in the pill box. Accordingly they came out and surrendered. At least three small bodies of Germans formed up in different places in the afternoon, apparently in the night of the British offensive in Flanders. In each case the British artillery nipped the proposed adventure in the bud. The Canadians are more or less protected from a counter attack on their right by a wide sweep of marshy ground lying south of Pasdechendaele. However, there is ample opportunity for the Germans to come at them from the north. The fact that the enemy has not made a big assault does not prove that he will not and a vigorous attempt to retake the lost positions is not unexpected. The hottest fighting yesterday developed on the left of the Canadian line at the German stronghold known as Vine Cottage, near Goeburg. This place was strongly held by machine guns and the ground thereabout was very marshy and difficult to traverse. The Canadians stormed the fort and a sharp conflict ensued at close quarters. The redoubt finally was forced to surrender and forty Germans were taken prisoner. There was very little hand to hand fighting yesterday. The Germans depending mainly on long distance machine gun fire for the defence. Upwards of four hundred prisoners were in the Canadian cages this morning and five field guns had been accounted for. The German losses again were very heavy, while those of the Canadians were comparatively light. Many Germans were killed by their own barrage fire.

SMALL FRENCH LOSSES.

PARIS, To-day. The losses to the French shipping by submarine or mine in the week ending November 4 were one vessel over 1600 tons and one under that tonnage.

GERMAN POLITICAL CRISIS ACUTE.

LONDON, To-day. The German political crisis is represented as being as acute as ever, in spite of the despatches from Amsterdam. Some say that Von Hartling's chancellorship is in danger of immediate shipwreck. The Berliner Tageblatt refers to the reactionary forces opposing the nomination of the progressive leadership. The Koellische Zeitung blames the Progressives and Socialists for the awakening of the crisis and says that the prospect for a political truce has quite disappeared.

GERMANS ANXIOUS IN FLANDERS.

COPENHAGEN, To-day. Unwilling testimony of the irritable night of the British offensive in Flanders is given by Lieutenant General Von Ardenne, the military critic of the Tagblatt of Berlin, who sends from the Flanders front a graphic picture of the difficulties of the German defense. "No way," he says, "has been devised to prevent the 'fire roller' as the Germans term the moving barrage, from making slow and steady gains. He reports the German losses as very heavy if an attempt is made to hold the front line trenches in force, while a thin line adds to the speed of the British advance. The German artillery is so numerically inferior to the British that it is seldom relieved, and as it cannot dig in, owing to the boggy terrain, it must fire without cover. The condition in the shell holes are such that men falling into the centre of them are lost unless assisted. Horses breaking into the morass are shot, because it is impossible to extricate them. The German counter attacks can traverse the 'fire roll' only by small detachments in single file." The Germans evidently are anxiously considering an offensive from Dixmude, where the road emerges from the inundated region. The Germans maintain a concentric artillery fire on the road, but Von Ardenne thinks that an attempt to advance is not improbable.

ICELAND GETTING INDEPENDENT.

LONDON, To-day. The people and Parliament of Iceland are demanding a flag of their own and more independence, although the island possesses extended Home Rule. The newspapers of Iceland express the hope that the King of Denmark will sanction their demand. Otherwise he sees no other solution than separation from Denmark.

JAPAN AND AMERICA.

LONDON, To-day. Details of the Japanese-American agreement are displayed prominently in to-day's newspapers, but editorial comment is restricted to a few papers. The point emphasized is Germany's agency in the past and misunderstanding and suspicion between the two nations. Gratification is expressed that the period of mistrust has ended. The Post urges Japan to go to Russia's aid both militarily and industrially.

HOPELESS CONDITIONS IN PETROGRAD.

PETROGRAD, To-day. The Maximalist movement toward seizing authority culminated last night when the order, Maximalist forces took possession of the telegraph office and the Petrograd Telegraph Agency. Orders issued by the Government for the opening of the spans of bridges across the Nova later were overridden by a military commander of the Council of Workmen's and Soldiers' Delegates. Communication was restored after several hours of interruption. Nowhere did the Maximalists meet with serious opposition.

SUCCESSFUL FRENCH RAIDS.

PARIS, To-day. During the night we made two surprise attacks, one on enemy trenches east of Rheims, the other in the Woivre east of Neully and brought in prisoners, says to-day's official statement: "In upper Alsace an attack which we made yesterday on German positions at Schoenholz, it is now learned, caused the enemy to suffer heavy losses. A number of prisoners captured by us has reached 121, of whom two are officers. Important materials which we have thus far not been able to enumerate, fell into our hands. There is nothing to report from remainder of the front."

A Protest.

AGAINST ILLEGAL ELECTION IN HARBOR MAIN DISTRICT.

Editor Evening Telegram.
Dear Mr. Editor,—In yesterday's issue of the "Advocate" there is an interesting and attractive appeal to the people from a correspondent "B Loyal" exhibiting the benefits of the Local Affairs Act and exhorting the people to be watchful that there be no infringement on its beneficent provisions. For your information and that of the Hon. Mr. Coaker who is regarded as the father and founder of the Act I have to acquaint you the Act is being infringed upon and its provisions dispensed with this year in Harbor Main District. Last year all the elections were held on the day fixed in the Governor's Proclamation, and conducted in conformity with the provisions of the Act by the different Justices of the Peace resident within the area of the Board. This year, however, a drastic change has taken place in the operation of the Act, for the Department of Works has dispensed with the law and authorized M. F. O'Toole, Stipendiary Magistrate, Conception, and converted him into an itinerant Justice of the Peace to hold all the elections from Turk's Gut to Horse Cove, presumably ten different elections and on as many different days, for which it is understood he will be paid $5.00 for each election or approximately $50.00 all told—almost a sum equal to what the Returning Officers receive for returning the M. H. A.'s. Already, Mr. Editor, there has been an abandonment of some of the basic principles of the Act through the political influence of some M. H. A.'s. Now we are to witness an infringement of more of its provisions and a dispensation of the Governor's Proclamation to hold all the elections on Thursday, the 15th inst., and I enter a strong protest against this illegal and autocratic proceeding. In the meantime I ask what are the Hon. Minister of Justice, the Hon. Colonial Secretary and Hon. Mr. Coaker doing? Are they sitting idly by and winking and permitting the Act to be circumvented and contravened even in the disguised form of a reward to an erstwhile political helier? Any new rules changing existing ones should be published. None ones are in full force and effect. Hence the elections to be held on the different days of the next week are illegal or contrary to the Statute made and provided. Thanks to "B Loyal" for suggesting this epistle.
Yours thankfully,
Hr. Main Dist. J. P.

Your Boys and Girls.

It is often difficult to induce a child to go to sleep properly at night and remain awake during the day. This cannot be corrected at once, but the rousing of the child at regular times for feeding is one of the best means of correcting this difficulty. It is sometimes very difficult to ventilate the nursery properly. A simple contrivance is a strip of board to fit beneath the lower sash of the window. The lower sash is raised and the board inserted, thus making a space between the upper and lower sashes. Air cannot blow through this space but it can gradually enter the room through the space between the two windows.
