"What you call tryannies I call defending the public domain," replied Redfield. "If I had my way I'd give my rangers the power of the Canadian mounted polics. Is there any other state in this nation where the roping of sheep herders and the wholesale butchery of sheep would be permitted? Generally they failed of so much as a glance at her, for she kept away from dining room at mealtime. Lee Virginia was fully aware of this male curiosity and vaguely conscious of the light which shone in the eyes of some of them (men like Gregg). She had begun to understand, too, that She had begun to understand, too, that her mother's raputation was a barrier between the better class of folk and herself. But as they came now and sgain to take a meal they permitted themselves a word in her praise, which she resented. "I don't want their friendship now," she declared bitterly.

As she gained courage to look about her she began to be interested in some of her boarders.

So far as the younger men were concerned, she saw little to admire and much to hate. They were crude and aninteresting rowdles for the most part. She was put upon her defense by part. she was put upon her derense by their glances, and she came to dread walking along the street, so open and coarse were their words of praise. now living with his sister, the wife of a small rancher near by. Virginia de-spised the other men, but she feared this one, and quite justly.

The Greggs, father and son, were in open rivalry for Lee also, but in different ways. The older man, who had already been married several times, was disposed to buy her hand in what he called "honorable wedlock," but the son, at heart a libertine, approached her as one who despised the west and who, being kept in the beastly coun-tory hands?

There came to her now and again gentle old ranchers—"grangers," they would be called—and shy boys from the farms, but for the most part the men ahe saw imbittered her, and she kept out of their sight as much as pos-sible. Her keenest pleasures, almost her only pleasures, lay in the occasional brief visits of Cavanagh as he rode in for his mail.

Lise perceived all these attacks on them. Her brows were knotted with case as well as with pain, and she incessantity urged Virginia to go back to Sulphur. "I'll send you money to pay your board till you strike a job." But to this the girl would not agree, and the business by reason of her presence went on increasing from day to day.

To Badfield Lists one day confessed her pain. "I ought to send for that doctor up there, but the plain truth is I'm afraid of him. I foul't want to days-"Why are they shut?" The Dartmouth ferry in ye olden days.—The inconven-ience experienced.—Cleaning days, on which the ferry was laid up, constantly occurred.

Of the three serious disturbances affecting the public safety which Halifax has experienced during the last sixty years, that of Friday of last week, the outcome of the Tram car employees strike, was attended with perhaps the greatest feature of within personal violence. The withouse rice of 1853 was gravely alarming in its character during its brief existence. The Mayor publicly read the riot act.

On Monday morning, the 28th of February, 1858, the U.S. ship Win-February, 1858, the U. S. ship Win-chester, captain Briggs, arrived at Halifax from Liverpool, England. She had been out 85 days and had been dismasted. She was bound for New York with a carpy of railroad iron and salt. She had 50 passengers. When discovered off the harbor in a disabled condition, the Cunard steamer Opprey proceeded down and towed her up, and ard's wharf. On Tuesday the captain of the Winchester, accompanied by the acting U. S. consul, called at the police office U. S. consul, called at the police office about five o'clock in the afternoon and stated that a number of his crew, who had been disorderly during the passage, had not on shore, and were drunk, and he was apprehensive if they returned to the ship in that shape, riot and disorderly conduct would be the inevitable consequence. He wanted the assistance of the police to prevent them getting on board. His worship the mayor the Hon. Alexander Keith, N. L. C. and the city marshal or high constable, George Irwin, were sent for—and the marshal, with six constables—half of the entire police force—were then placed upon the vessel all that night, to act under the directions of the captain in preventing the drunken men from going on board.

No application or complaint was subsequently mediato the police office; but on the afterneon of Wednesday, Mr. Thomas Ring bne of the county magicipates, called upon the mayor study at the state of the female passengers of the Wischester at his house, from whose statements he was led to believe that there was some foundation for the reports that had reached the public ear that some of the female passengers had been grossly maltreated during the voyage. The mayor drew Mr. Ring's attention to the law, where it was made clear that the city authorities had no jurisdiction—the transactions having taken place upon the high seas. Under the statute an investigation could only be made by county magistrates.

On Thursday under the warrant of the custos, John Tempest, Esq., several of the crew, escorted by the police, were brought to the magistrates' roam (in the brick building where the police office was also held). Late in the day one of the crew, accompanied by several citizens, proceeding towards the court house, had just reached the police office door when the mob closed in and violently struck the sailor. The marshal and police observing the attack, rushed out and saved the man from further harm. Quickly the mob increased and there was shown apparent disposition to be riotous. The sheriff, whe was in attendance in his official capacity, read the riot act, and with the mayor and several of the aldermen, earnestly advised the people to disperse—that the crew were safely in custody, and that the law would deal with them. The mayor appealed to the crowd to keep the peace. of the crew, escorted by the police,

The mob still keeping together, some of the aldermen urged that the troops should be sent for. The 97th was the only regiment then in the garrison—the gallant 97th that was commanded by Colonel Lockyer, and whose junior major was Augustus Weisford, and the adjutant Hedley Vicars—both of whom, not much more than a year later, fell in battle in the Crimea. The mayor was at first not disposed to call mayor was at first not disposed to call out the military, but instead he sent for all the aldermen, police constables and every available man under his authority and had them on duty all day to serve any emergency.

During all this time the investiga tion was being made by the attorneytion was being made by the attorneygeneral—the Hen. James B. Uniacke—the county of Halfrax, in the magistrates' room. The medical efficiency of the ship, Dr. Hartford, was present at the investigation, but that fact was not known to the mayor and aldermen until they saw him pass out of the hall door of the building. For some reason or other the doctor was looked upon by the crowd with suspicion and fearing that he would be molested he was accompanied through the streets by the consul and several of the police. Proceeding along Hellis street, the crowd got sight of him and chased him. He himself overtaken, he attempted to enter the shop. He was too late. He further exasperate the already infuriated people. A doctor's apprentice was shot in the leg. reneral—the Hen. James B. Uniacke

The report quickly reached the mayor that the doctor had beer nearly killed. All hands—aldermen and constables, and officials of every degree—rushed to the scene of action when, with the assistance of several of the citizens, the wounded doctor was brought into the police office, and medical aid at once obtained. It was understood that the doctor's life was mainly preserved by the galiant conduct of bombadier Joseph Dunney, of the royal artillery, at the risk of his own. The mayor then urged upon the county magistrates to stay the investigation for that day, and get the sailors placed in safe custody before night, and at last the violence of the crowd was such that the custos had to make a requisition on the military to convey them to the fail. The report quickly reached

It turned out, afterwards, that the story set afleat about wrong-doing on the Winchester was largely exaggerat-ed. The incident was the more to be regretted from the fact that the parthere was left a ditterness of resting that did not wear off for many a long day. As grave doubts of legal juris diction surrounded the case, the inves

No material repairs were made to the Washester during her stay at Halifax. The citizens, generally, look-ed at her, as she rode at anchor, off Cunard's wharf, as if she carried a plague. It was quite a relief to all concerned when the steamer Twan arrived from New York and towed her out of the harbor and on to her origi-nal destination.

Regiment riot:

"We are sorry to have to put on record the account of very serious disturbances which have just startled this city from its usual quiet. It appears that a soldier of the 17th Regiment was interfered with by some persons in the crowd, in endeavouring to climb the "greased pole" on Tuesday afternoon last. In the evening of that day, a disturbance grew out of a dispute in consequence, in a house of ill-fame on Barrack St. It is also said that he had been sentenced to 90 days in Bridewell without the customary notice to the Commandant, which gave great offence to his comrades. On Wednesday evening a party of soldiers of the 17th Regiment proceeded to revenge themselves by smashing in the windows of shops and dwellings on Barrack, Brunswick and Gottingen

were not to stop here. A little after 5 o'clock, when the civic authorities, who had the riot of the previous evening under discussion, had scarcely left the court house, a party of several hundred soldiers gathered as by preconcerted arrangement, in front of that edifice, and proceeded to demidish the windows. Several of the police constables and some other persons were severely injured by violent attacks. Having left this they were attacked by the crowd, and a slight skirmish was the consequence, after which the soldiers proceeded to the upper part of the city. Picquets which had been ordered early in the day to be out at six o'clock in anticipation of disturbance, now surrounded a few of the rioters and marched them into the Oitadel. The eastern slope of the Oitadel hill still swarmed with hundreds of the excited soldiery, who are allowed the stock to the second of the stock of the stock of the rioters and filled the air with shouts. Officers on horseback were galloping in every direction, the fire bells had called out the whole the fire bells had called out the whole city; the bayonets of the picquets were flashing in the setting sun, and the rioters having made a stand at first, thought better and fled in all directions, and soon after dark, all was quiet. Lord Mulgrave and the officers of the garrison were promptly on the ground. Some of the delinquents have been apprehended

George Mc-Lellan, an engine driver on the rail-way was severely injured. The per-pretrators of this outrage were arrested. A large number of citizens were sworn in as special constables, and the streets in the centre of the town were pat-rolled for a week of nights—all the rank and file being 'eager for war.'

A correspondent writes :- "Would t not be well in the interest of all, and especially our poorer brethern, if all our churches were open all day, and every day, for the purpose of allowing people to go in and 'say their prayers'—that is to offer up their private prayers there. What a comfort it would be to many a poor mother in a crowded tenement house to have a quiet few minutes of private prayer in the house of God. If children were brought up to look upon the church as the 'house of God' in reality, and not only, as is too much the case, in name, when they grow up to the estate of manhood or womanhood they would be glad when it was said to them, 'let us go into the house of the Lord.' Is this not an experiment worth trying!" especially our poorer brethern, if all

My correspondent has "broke ground" in soil that, I fear, will need nuch working. Perhaps his efforts may receive—to borrow a phrase from the vocabulary of a distinguished Nova Scotia statesman—a "valuable impulse" by my quoting a few stanzas which appeared in a newspaper—pub-lished about the middle of the last lished about the middle of the last century—which came under my notice a long time ago. The author was asking then the same question: "is not the experiment worth trying." that my friend of to-day has somewhat pertinently suggested to the thoughtful mind. To be, perhaps, a little more explicit, I may say that the lines I am about to quote were composed by Horace Smith—one of the authors of the "Rejected Addresses"—while he was sitting outside a country shurch in England, much regretting that, as it was a week-day, he could not gain admittance to the interior of the sacred edifice:

WHY ARE THEY SHOT? WHY ARE THEY SHUT?

The inconveniences regarding poor ferry service between Halifax and plague. It was quite a relief to all concerned when the steamer Tiest arrived from New York and towed her out of the harbor and on to her original destination.

A yet more general outbreak of host lilties was that of the taking possession of the town by unruly soldiers of the 17th regiment, in April 1833. The soldiers runhed down the citadel glacin like madmen, and a number of citaers who had not time to get into places of refuge were injured, more or less, through the stone-throwing of the marauders.

It will be recalled of this last affair that the brick court house, near the markets guare, was a chief object or attack. The sid temple of puries were under the stone-throwing of the markets guare, was a chief object or attack. The sid temple of puries were under the stone-throwing of the markets guare, was a chief object or attack. The sid temple of puries were under the stone of glass being left in the building. A most reprettable circumstance commetted with the riot was the wounding of Alderman Egan, who had taken a most prominent part in endeavoring to quiet the disorderly crowd. This mest active civic representative never regained his health. His lite was a sacrifice to public duty.

The BROORDER of April 18, 1863, had the following account of the 17th Regiment riot:

"We are sorry to have to put on record the account of very serious disturbances which have just startled this city from its usual quiet. It appears that a soldier of the 17th Regiment riot:

proved not sufficient for the busines of the station, the lieutenant-governo could order the company to procure one or more other steam or team boats for the purpose, and if, at the expiration of two years after the order was given, the company failed to comply with it, the charter became of no avail, and any other person could establish the proper modes of conveyance. It was not known whether His Excellency had interfered for the protection of public convenience, but the company stated, during the legislative session of 1830, that they were about procuring another boat to ensure more regular travelling across the water. When that urging the company to a performance of their duty. Knowing that the steamboat had frequently departed from her character as a ferry boat knowing that she had taken rests of snowing that she had taken rests of several days at a time, that she had taken weekly sleeps on working days, and that she had occasionally done the work of a tow and bum boat, the public were a little surprised at an instance of her squeamishness which occurred on a bright February morning at this neried.

The brig Hopewell, Captain Grie on, 30 days from New York, to De-Blois & Mitchell, appeared off the harbor. She had lost her rudder, and signals of distress were made from the signal stations. It was much feared that her hands had been injured by the intense cold, and the safety of the vessel and crew seemed to depend on the calm weather. Those interested were most anxious to send immediate assistance and amplied in the prepare were most anxious to send immediate assistance, and applied in the proper quarter for the service of the steamer. This request, it was generally felt, was not unreasonable, as on Sunday there was a cessation of the business on her station; but the request was not complied with. Possible injury and loss were spoken of, and, as far as the steamer was concerned, the Hopeand loss were spoken of, and, as far as the steamer was concerned, the Hopewell and her crew were left in their perilous condition. A small schooner was subsequently dispatched on the mission. The circumstance was made use of to show that if the steamer abided by her bond so delicately in some cases there was a necessity for a provision to compel her to do so in all. And if her bond were so defective, that, while it secured her valuable privileges, it allowed her to give services at random, the time had arrived to put forth endeavors to have so bad a bargain mended.

In the summer of 1831 the Sir Charles Ogle was again laid up, but only, it was said, for about a three months' rest. It was recalled that the inhabitants viewed her as a swam when she was launched, but she had proved herself more like a goose which spent half of its time sitting on blind eggs. It was time, it was urged, for the goose driven and the goose ridden to procure a radical change in her movements or a radical change in her movements or the humbur aside altogether. During the lay-up of the steamer on this occasion, there was a melancholy accident on the harbor which could be attributable, in a measure, to her absence from her regular service. On Sunday evening, the 14th August, 1831, about half-past eight o'clock, cries of distress were heard to arise from the harbor. The night was dark and squally, and several boats went from the shore and from vessels to ascertain the cause of alarm. The boats succeeded in coming up with a farry-boat which was filled with water, and to which six persons clung, who were immediately rescued from their perilous situation. was said, for about a three months

So passengers. It being evident to those on shore that she was overloaded another ferry boat was sent along-side, which took from her about ten passengers, in opposition to the wish of Costley. When considerable distance from shore the boat encountered a heavy shower of rain and a rough see, and was thrown on her beam ends by a violent squal. She quickly filled and sunk, but soon rose again and floated full of water. Six of her passengers clung to her, and after remaining about half an hour in this fearful situation, their cries procured assistance, and they were picked up as before mentioned. The remainder of the passengers, with Costley and his assistants, were drowned.

The accident was viewed by the press as calling imperatively for a few reflections. It afforded a warning, it was pointed out, which should not be a warning it was pointed out, which should not be a habit of indulging in ill-timed and into tempstate recreations. A boat illed with 30 persons, some of them turbulent and intoxicated, on a Sabbath evening, was a scene, peculiarly dis-

The Public Gardens of this city are known far and wide, and many persons competent to judge of such things have declared that in real beauty, artistic arrangement and the scruplous care with which they are always kept in the very pink of perfection, they have no equal in the temperate zone of this continent. Mr. Power takes a deep pride in his work, spares no pains, keeps himself well informed in the very latest methods and processes, and he is a very slave to duty. The resulte of his skill, taste and energy are patent to all. The Gardens now are a very popular resort for all classes, and will be still more so as a result of the proposed terminal construction which is bound to more or less interfere with the charm and safe approachableness of the Park. To walk through the Gardens with an eye to observing the beauties and a taste trained to appreciate the beauty of arrangement and setting, but all can appreciate the beauty of arrangement and setting, but all can appreciate the beauty of arrangement and setting, but all can appreciate the beauty of arrangement and setting, but all can appreciate the beauty of arrangement and setting, but all can appreciate the beauty of arrangement and setting, but all can appreciate the beauty of arrangement and setting, but all can appreciate the beauty of arrangement and setting, but all can appreciate the beauty of arrangement and setting, but all can appreciate the beauty of arrangement and setting, but all can appreciate the beauty of arrangement and setting, but all can appreciate the beauty of arrangement setting the s Interfere with the charm and safe approachableness of the Park. To walk through the Gardens with an eye to observing the beauties and a taste trained to appreciate them is an aesthetic education in itself. Many can appreciate the beauty of arrangement and setting, but all can appreciate the infinitely varied beauties of the flowers themselves. One is almost tempted to believe that Superintendent Power has brought together in this thirteen acre Paradise every flower of colour and fraged to believe that Superintendent Power mes brought together in this thirteen acre Paradise every flower of colour and fragrance which can be grown in these lati-tudes, and in doing this has placed Hali-fax under a great obligation to him as ber foremost teacher of sethetics by means of Controller Harris has given notice of a motion to do away with Natal Day, the melion to come up at the next meeting of the Board. In yesterday's issue of the Recourse there appeared a letter from a correspondent protesting against any such change. We heartily agree with our corporations, and is numbered five or elix before the audience was delighted and the members of the company, who evidently liked the well-merited token of appreciation, same with taste and discrimination that well deserved the recognition.

Although the members of the company responded in a generous way to a great delight at St. John.

It is doubtful if there is any holiday observed in Canada, the observation of which can be better defended than that of Natal Day. in Canada, the observation of which can be better defended than that of Natal Day. The First of July marks the Union of the Provinces, a political event of great in portance, but only a political event. The flat of June commemorates something much more important, the actual founding of British Canada. When Cornwallis anchored his flotilla in the harbour in 1749, there was not a single English settlement within the bounds of English settlement within the bounds of what now constitutes the Dominion of Canada. There was no Toronto, no Ontorio, no New Brunswick, no P. E. Island. Quebes was entirely French, the only white people in Nova Scotia besides the small English garrison in Port Royal were French. Halifax was the first English settlement in the Dominion. It was the nucleus, the primal seed, the actual beginning of English Canada. Its settlement was, therefore, a momentous event, an event which it would be a national shame to forget. The shame would be double if the city itself forget or ignored the highest was the primary of the proprietor of the patent, at 18 Bedford Row.

REAPECTS BARING TO BBAT 2.10.

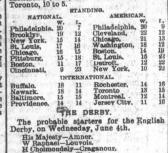

"Percy," the well known turf writer, who has recently visited the Dover N. TORONTO, May 23.—W. Legrand-How land's problem play, "Deborah," dealing with maternity, taged at the Princess Theatre, Toronto, for the first time anywhere Tuesday, causes some excitement here. At the same time Gertrude Hogman is running at the Royal Alexandria, nearly across the street, in "From Broadway to Paris."

"Deborah" was not presented here tonight. In the afternoon Maynard White, the manager of the production, and the members of the company, had been found guilty of presenting an immoral play and were informed that should they stempt to continue the production to night a patrol wagon would be on hand at the theatre, and they would be all taken to the police station. Therefore, after consultation with legal counsel, it was decided to return the people's money and leave the theatre dark.

Maynard White had to pay a fine of $20, and Charlotte Nillson, Marie Day, Maud Sinelsir, Myra Brooke, Florence Windsor, Frank Gilmore and L. A. Dexter each had to pay a $5 ine.

[Miss Nillson appeared in Halifax some years ago in The Crust of Society and because of the company than because of the content of the castle which had to pay a $5 ine.

A meeting of the Dartmouth baseball league was held in St. Peter's Hall last evening. M. S. Regan was elected President of the league in place of T. Moran, resigned. The appointment of Mr. Regan to the position is a good one. He is well versed in the game, and under his leadership the league should be successful. The opening game will take place on Monday morning at 10 o'clock between St. Peter's and the North Stars. It it expected that Mayor. Williams will pitch the first ball. The batteries will be chosen from J. Kilroy and W. Tierney, pitchers, and Matthews, eatcher for St. Peter's; and Smith and R. Baxier pitchers, and Moore eatcher for the North Stars. The wedding functions themselves began rather lately the afternoon with the robing of the young bride, at which her mother, the German Empress, presided, The bride wore a wonderfully worked gown of silver broade with a court train of the same material embroidered with a myrtle and orange flower design, and lined with armine.

The bride's vell, which like her entire toilet, was of German manufacture, was composed of a two yard length of leace on which eighty Silesian girls had worked day and night forest weeks. girls, who the roing princess insisted on inviting at the last moment in return for a personally embroidered present. A choir of men and bogs was stationed in the high gallery effecting the chapel just below the dome where they sang hymns unaccompanied by instrumental music.

At the conclusion of the ceremony the bridal procession was marshaled into line by Count Augest Xu Elenburg, Grand Marshal of, the Imperial Court, and then proceeded the whole length of the castle through a long series of state spartments to the royal chapel. It was led by the bridal couple, the Princess' train being born by four of her girl friends. Prince Ernst August of Cumberland was dressed in Prussian Hussar uniform. After them came Emperor William with the Duchess of Cumberland. Then followed in order the Duke of Cumberland with the German Empress, the Emperor Nicholas of Russia with Queen Mary of England, King George of England with Crown Princess Cecilie, the Emperor william's sons with their consorts and fifty or more other Princes and Frincesses of the royal blood.

Dr. Ernst Drayander, the grand chaplain of the court, who had baptised Princess Victoria Luise, and prepared her for her confirmation, performed the ceremony, which was the simple Lutherian Rite. He then delivered the customary address of advice and admonition to the newly-married couple.

Official announcement.

New York, May 24.—The belief was generally expressed among members of the N. Y. Yacht Club to-day that committees of the Royal Uister and New York Yacht Clube had resched a satisfactory understanding for the races for the America's Cup during the autumn of 1914.

It was stated, although unofficial, that competing yachts would be 75-footers, and that the races would be held under the new rules of the N. Y. Yacht Club.

An official statement from the committee in charge of negotiations is expected within the next 24 hours in which the exact status of the challenge any acceptance will be expressed.

exercises. London, May 24.—Children who live under British rule in all parts of the world saluted the flag yesterday in honor of Empire Day. The striking computation is made that nine million boys and gitls participated in this act of loyalty, to which huge total London supplied three quarters of a million. To-day is Empire Day, but as the schools are closed the children held a foretaste of patriotism. The great event in London to-day will be a parade in Hyde Park in the afternoon.

TROLLEY CARS STONED By strike sympathizers at Milford, Mass. during office.

Mil. Ford, Mass. May 34.—Trolley cars on all lines out of Milford, carrying works the control of Milford, carrying works and flood of the Drapper machine shops at Hopedale, where foundrymen are on strike, were stoned by crowds of strike ayunathisers in the suburbe last night. Many windows in the cars were broken, but the passengers escaped serious injury. A battic occurred between 300 rloters and the police when a trolley car from Hopedale for Milford centre was attacked. Strike sympathisers surrounded the car as it stopped at a street corner, and E. McKenna, of Milford, was knocked down and pummeled severely as he alighted from it. He is not an employee of the Draper Company, and is supposed to have been a victim of mistaken identity. A squad of State policemen and special officers went through the crowd, using their cityes freely, when they encountered a volley of stones. One of the State police, Marc Reelangen, of Amherat, received a painful wound in the head from a stone. Three arrests were made.

The young man worked in the C.P.R. Roundhouse here and returned from his night's work in the morning seemingly in the best of spirits.

The young man received a letter from England only yesterday, and judging from it he must have written for a young woman to come out here and marry him, but she advised him that he had better come back home. When he read the letter it is said he remarked, "Well, if she does not want to come she can go to —. He was about 24 years of age, and has been in this country about three years.

What a great English Mining Engineer says about the Iron Ore Properties of Scotia

M. I. M. M., London, who made a very exhaustive report thereon. He particularly investigated the mineral reserves, and reported that these were of almost inestimable value. Since then, further development, particularly at Wabana, has enormously in these deposits, the submarine slopes have been driven a further 2,500 feet. Of this property, Mr. Scott reported: "I estimate the amount of ore that may be mined from the land and near submarine areas" (about one tenth of the company's entire holdings), "as 104,000,000 tons of mineral practically proved, and 291,525,000 tons of mineral easonably supposed to exist. No calculations are made in regard to the ore of the utside marine areas as the 'practicially proved mineral' is sufficient to furnish several mes the present output for over 100 years." The extensive development since then reasonably be supposed to exist" into "mineral proved," and to have afforded every pdication that the seams extend throughout the entire deposit in at least equal chness and greater thickness than in the developed portions. It is, of course, difficult to place a value on unworked iron-ore, but a generally ccepted figure is 10 cents for iron-ore in the ground. Taking Mr. Scott's report as to ialities, and assuming the value of the ore to be only one-half of the above figurescents for ore-it will be seen that the value of the iron ore contained in the proven ortions of the submarine areas would be approximately $20,000,000, while there is

OUR STORE WILL BE CLOSED MONDAY, MAY 26TH, IN CELE-BRATION OF VICTORIA DAY.

Monday's Particular Attractions for Stay-At-Homes

WITH all due deference to the decision of His Worship the Mayor and the opinions of the citizens who wished to transfer the celebration of Victoria Day, Saturday, to Monday, we prefer to hold to the statutory holiday, the 24th. The store has been closed all day to-day, but will be open Monday, and for the benefit of those who will remain in town, we have prepared numerous good things such as we have rarely been able to offer.

No need for further introduction; it will be worth your while to read the following:-

New Spring Coats Never So Lowly Priced.

They are one of the fortunate little purchases that come our way occasionally. As soon as you look at them you will know their value. The very cheapest in the lot could not be retailed, in the regular way, at less than $13.50—some are $20 and $25 values.

We have divided them into two lots.

The first consists of tweeds, mostly grey mixtures,—grey and black, grey and fawn; some with trimmings of plain cloth. Full length and three quarter styles; semi-fitting, large $6.98

The second comprises navy serges, coating and wide wale varieties, checks, etc., either $9.98 not any likelihood of a slump in the usual number.

With the exception of a few prominent social functions the week in society was a rather uneventful one. Of course the young fry are keyed up to pleasurable excitement at the thought of meeting His Royal Highness Prince Albert at the dance and at home at Government House bedge, As H. M. S. Cumberland is to be here until the 31st there will likely be other functions to follow in military and naval circles.

The early summer cottagers have been comfortable homes in the city until June are this year, at any rate, having the best of the bargain. The furnace this week has been one's best friend.

Sunshades are to be very fashionable this season, so say the authorities. The this season, so say the authorities. The bell shape predominates, but one wonders how the high hats trimmings are to be managed under these mysterious shaped domes. But since the Orient is the fashion we must submit and accept the cupolas, minarets and pagodas, indeed all the roots of Turkey and Greece will strike our vision in a summer promenade. To quote vision in a summer promenade. To quote a Parisian writer: "With a handkerchief placed negligently over the skeleton sun-shade frame, a flowing mantelette over the shoulders, a tight skirt and two fingers length of train you evoke Hokon-

Cold wind, rain, sun, heat. Gold wind, rain, sun, heat. What are we going to have to-morrow? The weather alone knows. We are so used to inconsistant temperature that nothing astonishes us, and we are ready to put in a stock of clothes to keep pace with it. One, of course, must conform with style, which has decreed that everything shall be of filmsy lightness this season, no matter what the temperature may be what the temperature may be.

As for colors, listen to what a prominer New York dressmaker remarked on her return from abroad: "Heaven knows. I saw bizarre colors and to spare, First, all the hues of red; next, canary yellows, then all the striking colors of green and purple. In one word, the raw and warm hues of the Orient attract all preferences."

The Starvation Line.

"I have worked for thirty bob a week, and I have worked for less than thirty bob a week; but I have never worked for less than thirty bob without getting into debt." Thus said Mr. Will Crooks, the Labor member for Woolwich, when pleading in the British House of Commons for a minimum wage all round of thirty shillings a week. And there is no man who can impress the House more than Will Crooks when the life conditions under which the working classes live are being discussed, for the simple reason that he has been "through the mill" and knows exactly what he is talking about. And he is not afraid of speaking his mind. "Bon't you feel ashamed of yourselves?" he shouted, after giving a graphic picture of existing poverty. Fellow-members may not have been ashamed, but Crooks' striking revelations made them feel decidedly uncomfortable.

HE experienced investor does not stop with determining there is a large margin of safety in the security behind the bonds he considers purchasing. This factor being established he carefully examines the earnings of the lasuing company—since these earn-

Obviously, the bonds of a com-pany with limited earning power are NOT a good investment, no matter, now well secured they may be by surplus assets. Bonds to be sound must be backed not only by

A SOUND bond is the 6 p. c. issue of Brandram-Henderson, Limited. Security is undoubtedly ample. Karnings are likewise. Not earnings for the fiscal year 1912 were almost sufficient to pay the bond interest FOUR times over. Reports for the first five months of the fiscal year 1913 show an increase of 28 p. c. over the corresponding period of last year.
