PLAN TO GIVE CHAIN GANG DRIVE TO AND FROM WORK IS DEFEATED

Councillor Kelley Finds Only Two Supporters in Municipal Council, and Stirs Councillor Lewis to Talk of Resignation—Morgue Done Away With But No Other Place Provided—Councillor Hamm Appointed Warden.

At the meeting of the municipality of the city and county Tuesday, J. B. Hamm was elected warden for the ensuing year. On the report of the buildings committee to remove the morgue and repair the court house, an amended motion took place.

The Contest for Warden.

The returns at the recent election of councillors were read. The mayor and aldermen were appointed ex officio councillors and the county representatives were sworn in.

Councillor Kelley then nominated W. J. Dean, of Musquash, for warden.

Councillor Baxter nominated Councillor Hamm.

Some discussion followed on the question of a city or county representative holding the office.

Councillor Hamm said he had understood he had been promised no opposition. He had been thirty-five years associated with the council and claimed he was entitled to some recognition.

Councillor Dean referred to Councillor Hamm having retired in favor of Councillor Long last year, and said he failed to see why the office should be kept open until he could be returned unopposed.

The warden appointed Councillors Sears, Bullock and Donovan scrutineers, and on a ballot being taken Councillor Hamm was declared elected by 18 votes to 10.

The retiring warden having thanked the council for courtesies extended to him during his term of office, Councillor McGoldrick was elected to the chair by Councillors Bullock and Connelly amid much applause.

In thanking the council for the honor conferred upon him, Warden Hamm expressed the hope that he would fill the chair with dignity and bespeak the assistance of the council in carrying out his duties.

The committee on county buildings reported that accompanied by F. Neil Brodie, architect, they had examined the condition of the court house, registry office and dead house, and found that certain changes and improvements are absolutely necessary.

FREED MAN BROTHER TO SAVE EXPENSE

Such is Story Judge Tuck Told of Sunbury County Jury

CONDEMNS MEANNESS

Declares a High Official at Ormoco Said He Was Glad That Alleged Horse Thieves Escaped as it Would Save Cost of Trial—Says Court House is Worst in Province.

Fredericton, N. B., May 14—Chief Justice Tuck presided at the May term of the Sunbury County Court at Burton today. An indictment was presented to the grand jury in the case of the King v. McLean and Samuel Adams charged with horse stealing and a true bill was returned.

In his address to the grand jury the chief justice spoke out strongly on the degraded condition of the court house and jail, pronouncing them the worst in the whole province.

In the course of his remarks his honor stated that he had been given to understand that many years ago a Sunbury jury had acquitted a man on a charge of murder for no other reason than that they wanted to escape the cost of erecting a scaffold on which to hang him.

Fredericton, N. B., May 14—Dr. Wm. Saunders, director of the experimental farms, and president of the Royal Society, delivered his annual address at the meeting of the society this evening. His subject was "The Progress of Agriculture in Canada."

The doctor gave a luminous, comprehensive and authoritative resume of the history and gradual development of the science of agriculture throughout the world.

He traced the history of agriculture from its earliest beginning, noting that the Israelitish nation was one of the greatest agriculturist people in history and that the growth of the Roman Empire was based on the cultivation of the soil.

Tracing the development of agriculture in Great Britain from that time until the present he said that England up to 150 years ago had not only fed her population from cereal crops but had also exported large quantities of grain but now the English market absorbed annually 900,000 bushels of imported wheat.

He touched upon the benefits which had accrued to agriculture in Canada through the creation of experimental farms. Canadian farmers were more progressive than those of any other country in the world.

During the remaining portion of the evening he reviewed the Canadian Northern Railway Company of 125 new locomotives as well as a large quantity of rolling stock, the total value of which will be between $5,000,000 and $6,000,000.

The boy claims to have relatives in Somerville (Mass.), but can tell nothing definite about them. New Brunswick authorities are being communicated with. Harry had, when four years of age, a small revolver, a razor and a pair of brass knuckles.

Mr. Beveridge, manager of the Maritime Pulp and Paper Company, Newcastle, sent a message to this paper Wednesday declaring that there had been, as was reported, any strike of his company's employees. There was no strike, he said, and no trouble.

THE ST. JOHN VALLEY RAILROAD

Mackenzie & Mann, Who Are to Begin New Brunswick Survey Soon, Get the Lake St. John Road—Their Eastward March.

McKenzie & Mann, the great railway builders, who next week are expected to commence a survey of the St. John valley railway route, have recently acquired control of the Quebec & Lake St. John road, which will be made part of their Canadian Northern system to reach from the Atlantic to the Pacific coast.

By securing control of the Quebec & Lake St. John road, the Canadian Northern has an entrance to Quebec city. The road runs from Quebec to Roberval, on Lake St. John, a distance of 180 miles, with an extension from Chambord Junction to Chicoutimi, on the Saguenay river, making a total mileage of 227 miles.

The Quebec & Lake St. John railway has done a remarkable work in developing the great north country of Quebec. The road was constructed as a result of local enterprise and though many difficulties were encountered, until today the road is one of the best equipped in the province of Quebec. The roadbed is wide and well-laid.

Kitchener of the Iron Hand has 80,000 British troops and 170,000 well drilled native soldiers under his command in India. In the days of the Mutiny the native soldiers were the mainstay of the rebellion. Today they are thought to be steadily loyal.

Canon Barnett, in the London Daily Telegraph, puts forward the valuable proposal that the London schools be kept open as playgrounds during the summer holidays. At present, he points out, the so-called holidays mean that 800,000 children for a number of weeks are excluded from their most healthy resorts and driven back into the streets, slum alleys, and tenement staircases, where they rapidly lose any elevation of character which state teaching may have implanted.

Chief Justice Tuck did not hesitate to discuss the meanness of municipalities while on circuit in Sunbury Tuesday, and his words are applicable both in and beyond that county. He recalled a report to the effect that a Sunbury juror some years ago acquitted a man of murder in order to avoid the expense of erecting a scaffold on which to hang him.

The disturbing element makes much of the Anglo-Japanese treaty, pointing out that the Japanese, to whom the Hindus regard themselves as superior in every way, have conquered Russia in war and are by the treaty placed on an equal footing with the British.

It would appear from the facts in hand that there will be no Mutiny of 1907, but rather that education and progress are bringing about in India a state of affairs which will not long hence render it necessary to modify the existing system of government extensively.

The British are building at Birkenhead a torpedo-boat destroyer of 1,830 tons and 30,000 horse-power, which is to run thirty-three knots, or about forty land miles, an hour. Tracing British development of the "mosquito" class of war vessel from 1802 up to the present when the Swift is planned to far exceed in speed and utility any similar craft afloat, an American naval writer remarks that "a clearer example of the way the British Admiralty leads the whole world in naval construction and development it would be hard to find. Every other country is an imitator, and at that from three to five years behind."

In 1833 the best boat of this type was the Havoc, of 240 tons, 3,500 horse-power, and twenty-six and a half knots. Five of the boats authorized in 1905-06 are now being launched, the Gurka and Afridi having recently been completed. These boats are of 700 tons, 14,500 horse-power, and have a speed of thirty-three knots, three more than any of the destroyers owned by Germany, France, or the United States, and are 200 tons larger than the largest foreign boat.

Another nation would have been contented with this lead, but the Swift is to have double the tremendous horse-power of the others. She is, in the words of an American naval authority, "an ocean-cruising boat with a great radius of action; and having the pace to overhaul any torpedo-boat or destroyer, cruiser or battleship, will truly become 'the eyes and ears of the fleet.'"

Not only are other countries from three to five years behind in these matters but it is the British policy to prevent them from ever catching up. It is true of battleships as well as destroyers.

SUMMER PLAYGROUNDS

Canon Barnett, in the London Daily Telegraph, puts forward the valuable proposal that the London schools be kept open as playgrounds during the summer holidays. At present, he points out, the so-called holidays mean that 800,000 children for a number of weeks are excluded from their most healthy resorts and driven back into the streets, slum alleys, and tenement staircases, where they rapidly lose any elevation of character which state teaching may have implanted.

PLAIN TALK FROM THE CHIEF

Chief Justice Tuck did not hesitate to discuss the meanness of municipalities while on circuit in Sunbury Tuesday, and his words are applicable both in and beyond that county. He recalled a report to the effect that a Sunbury juror some years ago acquitted a man of murder in order to avoid the expense of erecting a scaffold on which to hang him.

THE CHURCH AND COREY-GILMAN

The Brooklyn preacher who married Corey the steel millionaire to the latest woman of his choice, described the affair as "a God-made union." The Rev. D. D. Boynton, one of the leaders of the Congregational Church in America, says the marriage was "a miserable, wholly, and disgusting bestial proceeding," and he speaks of the "humiliation and indignation which any loyal Congregationalist feels in having his denominational principles maligned and disgraced" by connecting them in any way with such an affair.

the councillors evidently concluded that they had thus banished the problem presented by the discovery of dead bodies. Even a decree of the august Council will not prevent the fruits of battle, murder, and sudden death, from presenting themselves from time to time, and a decent arrangement for replacing the old morgue should have been made before the councillors adjourned for three months.

A SAD PARADE

A resolution which commanded little support in the Municipal Council Tuesday was intended to prevent the daily parade through the streets of the jail prisoners on their way to and from work. It may be that most of the councillors voted down this resolution because they believed it proposed a degree of "coddling" and sympathy to which the prisoners are in no way entitled. But apparently the mover was thinking less of the prisoners than of the women and children who daily view this parade of wretchedness, and it is quite probable that the majority missed the point of the motion.

Certainly much might be urged in its favor. The class of prisoners who make up the working squad are the better for work, particularly if it be done in the open air and they are physically fit to perform it. It by no means follows that the women and children, hundreds of whom encounter the miserable procession twice a day, are well served by the spectacle.

THE INVASION OF ENGLAND

So many people in England talk about the possibility of invasion by a continental army the subject naturally attracts attention in other countries. And in other countries, if Germany be omitted, the English uneasiness on this subject is little understood. The collapse of the Channel tunnel project was due to a feeling inherited from the days of Napoleon, and seemingly much of the hostility to Germany arises from a similar cause, the ill-defined belief that some day an army might be thrown upon the English coast.

THE FAST SERVICE

So powerful are the interests involved in the plan submitted to the Conference by Sir Wilfrid Laurier for an Imperial fast service that it is not to be allowed to escape, or that, if they do escape that they are to be captured and punished for the attempt. This would involve more guards; but if the thing is worth doing it is worth doing right. Parents who know how many children are keenly interested in the jail parade and in the ordinary arrests made by the police would be better satisfied if the city owned a patrol wagon and if the jail prisoners were kept out of sight as much as possible. The theory that the parade is a terror to evil doers, or to those who might some day become evil doers, is not a convincing one.

NOTE AND COMMENT

Leases of crown coal lands in Manitoba, Alberta and Saskatchewan are to provide hereafter that settlers shall receive coal at one dollar a ton at the pit's mouth. Other important provisions regarding the rights of the general public are included. Canada would have been well served by more legislation of this kind earlier in its history.

SMALLPOX CASE IN DARTMOUTH INSANE ASYLUM

POSTMASTER CAMPBELL IMPROVED.

St. Martins, May 15.—W. A. Campbell, postmaster at West Quaco, who has been seriously ill during the winter with heart trouble, is much improved in health and now able to perform the duties of his office.

Boynton. Many clergymen through ignorance of the facts are led to celebrate marriages which no church should sanction; but the minister at fault in this instance cannot plead such ignorance in extenuation. Indeed he appears rather to have constituted himself a judge of the facts and an interpreter of the heavenly will and yet to have rendered a decision whose effect upon society cannot but be vicious in the extreme.

Divorce is not the question here. Rather is the question that of the compromise made by the clergymen in this particularly offensive episode, and the growing tendency of a widening element in the American churches to bow to the wishes of the rich and the influential even when those wishes tend to the degradation of the church and the destruction of the essential props of society.

The fundamental truths and values are in no way affected by the failure of any religious organization to live up to its ideals. They stand for all time. But the agencies which give religion its driving force in the world are subject to weakness and failure. It is not surprising that the church has failed in some of its most important functions, and the appearance of evil and who wage uncompromising war for the truth. It is not remarkable that another foolish servant of the church has proclaimed his existence. The church has and had many such. But it should never hesitate to repudiate them as false and unworthy.

THE PURSUIT OF SUNBEAMS

She was chasing little sunbeams as they fell in their profusion. On the carpet, where they danced about like little folk at play. She was chasing merry sunbeams in the innocent delusion. That her childish hands might grasp them and possess them as they lay. Oh, her eyes were bright as they were in the eagerness of trying. All in vain, with closing fingers, to enclose one fleeting shaft. And from beam to beam she toddled where the dancing rays were lying. And so happily she followed them, and merrily she laughed.

THE PURSUIT OF SUNBEAMS

She was chasing merry sunbeams, for some knowing one had told her. That who caught one would have golden curls and lustre in her eyes. Like the rays of dancing sunlight, and that sorrow could not hold her. Since her heart would be as sunny as the bright midsummer skies. So she chased the merry sunbeams, and they seemed to be as merry. And as mischievous as she was in the gladness of her play. And like little children playing hide-and-seek, they were so wary. That whenever she stooped to catch one it danced airily away.

THE PURSUIT OF SUNBEAMS

Oh, the sunbeams through the windows of our hope that fall in splendor, For we are but larger children gaily following them on. And we follow them and hallow them and cherish just as tender. A delusion we may catch one ere the sunny days are gone. And our eyes are bright and eager, for we love the days of dreaming. Our laughter is as merry as the little cherubs at play. For upon the way before us they are gleaming, gleaming, gleaming. Bidding us to come and catch them ere they gaily dance away.

THE PURSUIT OF SUNBEAMS

For the sunbeams fall in splendor and we follow gaily after. Since some knowing one has told us of the happiness that lies in these fitting little creatures, and the merriment and laughter. That their airy little spirits bring us from the sunny skies. So we seek with closing fingers all in vain to grasp and hold them. And from beam to beam we wander in the gladness of our play. But they vanish like the shadows when our fingers would unfold them. And, so mischievous as children, they dance airily away.

THE PURSUIT OF SUNBEAMS

"What, an old friend like you, and you refuse to lend me fifty francs?" "Yes." "Well, at any rate, give me twenty sous to pay the cab that I took to come and ask you."—Bon Vivant.

'FRISCO'S BOSS PLEADS GUILTY OF EXTORTION

Ruef Confessed His Crime and Made a Dramatic Address to Court

Lawyers Desert Him When They Learn He Will Make No Defence--With Tears Streaming Down His Face the One Time Autocrat Declares He Will Atone and Make Reparation--Remanded for Sentence.

San Francisco, Cal., May 15--Abraham Ruef, nervous and pallid, today in Judge Duane's court, pleaded guilty to the crime of extortion, the felony which he was to be tried by the jury already selected. The specific charges in the indictment concerned the payment to Ruef of $1,175 by the proprietor of Delmonico's French restaurant to secure for the place permission to sell liquor in private rooms. In pleading guilty he made an impressive address to the judge, stating that he had commenced his career in politics with high ideals for himself and for the city, but that conditions had broken him down, and he now desired only an opportunity to make reparation and restore his character before the world.

When he concluded his address he fell back into his chair, almost fainting, and the tears coursed down his cheeks. His health, he said, could not endure the strain of the trial, which he was facing, and the torture was beyond the endurance of those who were nearest and dearest to him. Before Ruef arose his attorneys, Henry Ach, Samuel Shortridge and Frank Murphy, one by one stated to the court that, owing to a grave difference of opinion with their client, each of them would withdraw from the case.

Judge Duane, at the termination of Ruef's address, made no comment, except to continue the case two weeks for sentence.

When Ruef arose to plead the court room was crowded. Ruef sat alone, and he acknowledged the work done by his various attorneys, thanking them for their friendship, counsel and guidance. Then he continued: "This trial has become a threat to the danger to my health, both mental and physical. I am unable to bear the strain any longer. The strain on those nearest and dearest to me is undermining them. They are on the verge of collapse. Their lives hang in the balance, and I must take some action."

"I have occupied a prominent position in this city. I hope to remain here, and this will be the place of my eternal sleep. Hereafter I have borne an honored name in my professional life. There has been no stain upon my honor, and the present board of supervisors was elected there was no act of mine that could be justly censured. Nevertheless, owing to the assaults of the press I have been placed in a wrong light and have been burdened with a bad name. It is true that in order to hold together the political machine which I had built up with great difficulty, I did lower the high political ideal that I had hitherto upheld. Last night I reached the conclusion that there might still be an opportunity to make some effort to restore myself in the public favor and be a power for good. I will do all that lies in my power to help overthrow the system which has made possible the terrible corruption of public officials. To do this I will work as an honest citizen. My future career will be one of integrity. I hope that I can still accomplish some good. I am making the greatest sacrifice which could befall a human being of my disposition--namely, to acknowledge my faults and my mistakes to restore myself in public favor. Duty calls me wherever the path may lead, but I want the whole world to know that I am not guilty of the charge made against me in this instance. Chargeless on account of the reasons stated I will draw my plea of not guilty and enter a plea of guilty."

Ruef resumed his seat he was trembling and his face was the color of parchment. Tears coursed down his cheeks. A crowd gathered about him, but the bailiff thrust them away. Ruef sat alone, waiting for the protection of the bailiff and the eclair. His attorneys were all gone--forced away by his decision to tell all and throw himself upon the mercy of the court. After Judge Duane made an order setting the case over two weeks for sentence, Ruef left the court room with Detective Burns. They entered an automobile and drove to the house on Fillmore street which is Ruef's parson.

While in consultation with his attorneys during the recess, Ruef fainted. His condition was regarded as serious, but he soon revived. His attorneys grouped about him in a vain effort to cheer him up. Will Expose Corrupt Officials. In the course of a long conversation this afternoon, Ruef said: "I have been guilty of convicting at the corruption of municipal officials by corporations, but in these French restaurant cases I am not guilty. Since my action this morning I can have no motive in misleading anyone on this point. I pleaded guilty to save the lives of those who are nearest and dearest to me on earth. I am not oversteating the truth when I say that if my father, my mother and my sister had been compelled to endure the strain of my trial, lasting at least two months and possibly longer, it would have cost their lives. I say I don't know what my sentence will be. If it be five years in prison I can meet that when it comes. But if the steps I took this morning had meant five years or fourteen years, or fourteen hundred years, the fear of that would not have deterred me. I have made no confession. I know much. Some things I shall tell; some things I shall not tell. Whenever an innocent man has been forced into corruption against his will, that man I shall protect. Whenever a man, be he high or low, has entered into corruption with his eyes open, than man I shall expose. I will not say at the present moment that Mayor Schmitz is guilty of the charges that have been brought against him, or that he is innocent. I will say this: I wanted to break away from Schmitz before his re-election a year ago last November, and said to him: 'I am sick of the whole thing, and I want to get out; I can't stand for all these labor union men you have gathered around you and will appoint. They would eat the point off a horse.' In answer, the mayor begged me to stay with him and put the argument that these fellows must be allowed their share or we could never hold the machine together. There was all too much truth in that. I stayed with Schmitz and I stayed with the machine that I at great expense and pains had built up, and assembled. I found then that I had taken a step away from the high and clean ideals with which I originally entered the political field. I found, in short, that to hold this machine together I had to permit and connive at corruption. In the state of affairs existing it was necessary. But I myself never asked a dollar of any man; never took a dishonest dollar from the public. The things that I did were things that hurt no one. Before the board of supervisors was elected I warned them against crookedness in office. Immediately after their election I got them together and I said to them: 'Now you--if any one of you takes a dollar I'll prosecute you myself, and I mean it. I was in earnest. But I found that I could not carry out my threat and keep the machine from going to pieces. Schmitz was right about that. And so much of this corruption was needed. Needless to say, from the giver's end of the deal. Take, for instance, the trolley franchise. Everybody wanted the street railways electrified. There would have been no opposition if the application had been merely and customarily laid before the board. It would have been granted. But the press of San Francisco had taught the public to believe that every office-holder was a crook; that the whole city government was rotten from skin to core; that no privilege could be obtained unless it were paid for. It was strange that those systematic attacks, though frequently grounded on nothing more truthful than personal suspicion in private quarters, should have led the corporation astray as to the real situation. The officers of course are not bad men. They do not belong to the criminal class. They no more desire to commit the crime of bribery than the newspapers or the public desire that it should be permitted."

The Disappearance of Beards (Philadelphia Record). "How many men of your acquaintance wear long beards?" asked a restaurateur of one of his long-standing patrons, as the latter paid his bill. "Figure it over and you'll find them scarce. Not many years ago men wore beards at an early age as at thirty. Now a man of seventy is apt to be as neatly shaven as his grandson. Why is it? Simply, I think, because under modern conditions men dislike to be thought old. Formerly men were proud of their beards. Business has fallen into the hands of younger men, and so all men are trying to appear young. It's cruel, but true."

ALLOSAURUS MAKES DEBUT IN SAVAGE POSE

New York, May 11--Graphic representation of a world of which gigantic reptiles were the lords is given in a fossil group placed on exhibition today in the American Museum of Natural History, which shows the mounted skeleton of an allosaurus posed as though tearing to pieces portions of a brontosaurus at its feet. Although the life went out of the carcasses 8,000,000 years ago, none of the final overthrow and death of the brontosaurus. Its enemy is seen with the head poised in such a way that it can keep its eyes upon possible attack from smaller animals which might try to disturb him at his meal. The mounting of this group is an innovation which radically departs from museum traditions, for it is the first time that fossil skeletons have ever been exhibited as though they were creatures of flesh and blood.

SONS OF TEMPERANCE Membership Increased by 170 During Last Half Year

Annual Meeting Held Yesterday at Gagetown--Reports from Grand Worthy Patriarch, Grand Scribe and Lecturer and Organizer. The semi-annual meeting of the Grand Division, Sons of Temperance of New Brunswick, was held Wednesday afternoon at Gagetown. The annual report of Rev. C. Flemington, G. W. P., first referred in glowing terms to the work accomplished by Rev. C. W. Hamilton. Among other things he said that since Rev. Mr. Hamilton became grand lecturer he has been "in labors more abundant," as the columns of the provincial press sufficiently show. Since last fall he has covered nearly the entire field of cheering workers in hard places and stirring into renewed life and activity divisions which were dormant. Besides all this he has been successful in establishing new divisions where there were none and everywhere in the pulpits, on the platform and in the press he has strenuously and effectively advocated the cause and aroused much public interest in and sentiment in favor of the S. of T. principles. The report he will submit will show only part of the result of his labors. The better part cannot be tabulated but the effects will be seen and acknowledged for years to come. He said in part: "We have reached a period in the history of temperance reform in this province when it is impossible to slacken our efforts to strengthen the cause. To falter at such a time as this would be to court failure. The forces of the enemy are effectively organized and our must also be thoroughly equipped. We must meet strength with strength."

He was glad to notice the growing sentiment in favor of united action on the part of the different temperance societies. The N. B. Federation had already proved itself a power for good and it deserved the hearty endorsement of all who were interested in the work. Reference was then made to the delegation which waited on the government to ask for a protective law and their reception. He thought that the movement to appoint a commission to inquire into the working of the P. E. Island law was being in the right direction and they did nothing to fear from an honest inquiry into the working of the act there. In conclusion Rev. Mr. Flemington said that what the province needs is a law that does to convince the government that a large and growing majority of the electorate of this province want and are determined to have a prohibitory law. Grand Worthy Patriarch. G. W. Patriarch, Officers and Members of Grand Division of N. B.-- Gagetown, N. B., May 15, 1907. This report will cover the time embraced by the following dates--October 1, 1906-April 30, 1907. The terms of my engagement gave me a free hand, but provided that I should do the best I could in the interests of the order. This I have honestly endeavored to do, and I trust my report will show this and prove in every sense satisfactory. I desire to thankfully acknowledge indebtedness to the Grand Worthy Patriarch and other grand officers, as well as to members of the order all through the jurisdiction, for valuable aid rendered me in various ways in mapping out and executing my work. Such co-operation has proved at once very helpful and most delightful. In the prosecution of this work I have travelled about 4,000 miles. I have tabulated the number of addresses and sermons I have given, but in this respect I have improved every opportunity to extend the principles for which our "Noble Order" stands. Besides quickening and encouraging active divisions by visitations and correspondence, I have reorganized ten divisions, organized two new divisions, and my receipts from collections and donations amount to $163.06. This is only approximately correct, for this and the general account--not

LORD'S DAY ALLIANCE DISPLEASED WITH TORONTO JUDGE'S DECISION

Toronto, May 15--It is the intention of the Lord's Day Alliance to take some action in connection with the decision of Judge Morson, whereby he held that it was not an offence for a restaurant keeper to sell candies and similar light refreshments on Sunday. Rev. J. G. Shearer has stated that although the decision would do averted, the decision, he claims, practically allows restaurant keepers to carry on Sundays a large part of the business of confectioners, grocers, fruiterers and provision dealers. Mr. Shearer points out that the matter can be dealt with either by taking the case over Judge Morson's head to a higher court or by amendment of the shops regulation act. MANY KINGS COUNTY SCOTT ACT APPEALS UP AT HAMPTON

Hugh J. McCormick Had Three Convictions Against Him. Lively Sparring Over Case of Mr. Wilson of Heath Hall, Constable Farmer, the Informer, Not Appearing--Several Other Similar Cases Heard by Judge Wedderburn.

Hampton, Kings county, May 14--Today Judge Wedderburn heard the Scott act appeals cases adjourned over from the April sitting. The first case was that of the King on complaint of Horace T. Ousick, Scott act inspector, against George Myers, of Sussex, in which W. B. Jonah appeared for the appellant and A. A. Wilson, K. C., for the complainant. The case of the latter was not sustained, and the conviction against Myers was quashed. Two appeals of Hugh J. McCormick, of Sussex, were abandoned by his counsel, Mr. Jonah, and costs were ordered to be added to conviction. A third was held over until another case was tried. Joseph Brand did not appear to support his appeal, and the amount of fine on conviction was increased by costs of this appeal. The appeal of Edward Wilson, of Heath Hall, Hampton Station, occupied almost the whole afternoon. H. J. Cusick, Scott act inspector, went on the stand and gave evidence of seizing a quantity of liquor in bottles found on a shelf being the bar, and of finding all the paraphernalia of such a place--counter, bottles, glasses, etc., and in the cellar a large quantity of empty bottles. Wilson accompanied him in the search. Joseph Farmer, the informing witness, was not in court when wanted, and there were intimations and insinuations by the prosecuting counsel that he had been induced to keep out of the way. His honor referred to the waste of time caused by such witnesses, and expressed the hope that a better class of informers could be found who would not be found "skulking" when their testimony was needed. The testimony of Farmer was most important, and his case seemed all the worse, for he is a sworn constable of the county. W. B. Jonah moved for the quashing of the conviction on the grounds: 1. That evidence secured on a search warrant is not allowable to maintain a conviction. 2. That there is no evidence of sale or keeping for sale. 3. No proof had been adduced that the liquor named in the search warrant were the same on information, were those actually seized. 4. That proof had not been shown that the defendant was the proprietor or occupant of the hotel at the time the seizure was made and where the liquors were found. His honor decided to hear the defence, and Edward Wilson was called to the stand and sworn. He said he was placed in charge of the hotel about the first of the year by Mr. McIntyre, the owner, with the understanding that he was to be the proprietor or landlord after May 1. He did not take charge until Jan. 26. The liquors found and seized by the inspector were there when he arrived and were left by Stanley Lawton, the former proprietor, who left about Christmas, 1906. He also left a number of hats, white pants, coats and other property. He swore that he had never sold a drop of intoxicating liquor since he took charge, nor had any liquor drunk on his premises. No one had access to the bar but himself, and he had never seen anyone there under the influence of liquor. He had not bought or received liquor from McIntyre or any other person. No liquor had been shipped to him nor had any come as freight to his establishment. He keeps soft drinks, such as ginger ale and lemonade, but nothing intoxicating. A. A. Wilson, in his cross-examination, very pointedly intimated that the defendant's evidence was so diametrically opposed to the current rumors with regard to drunken men being constantly seen going in and coming out of his place as to raise the impression that he had sworn to what he knew to be untrue. This caused Mr. Jonah to wax indignant and to meet at the prosecution for coming into court without any supporting evidence, that of the inspector in no way proving the charge preferred in the indictment. He again pressed his former argument, but his honor said he would reserve judgment. The King, etc., against Joseph Brand, was also called, but as the appellant did not appear the costs were ordered to be added to the conviction. The delayed case against Hugh J. McCormick was then taken up and the defendant was called to the stand by Mr. Wilson. He refused to admit that he had sold liquor between the dates named in the indictment, nor would he swear that he did not do so; he simply could not remember, but believed he did not. Mr. Wilson having to return to the city by the 5 o'clock train, the court was adjourned until tomorrow morning commencing at 10 o'clock. His honor gave judgment in the Edward Wilson case, dismissing the appeal with costs. His honor took occasion to state his sympathy with the Scott Act provisions, but said the class of witnesses selected to prove violations was so unreliable and their attendance so uncertain that it was no matter for surprise that appeals were successful. Hugh J. McCormick was recalled to the stand, but he could not remember the dates upon which he had received or sold liquor, but he believed he neither received nor sold liquor between Oct. 20th and Nov. 3rd, 1906. The question of the non-attendance of a witness in this case also was discussed, and finally his honor laid the case over until the next sitting of the court. The appeal of J. Dennis Foohy came next, and an error having occurred, the case was withdrawn by Mr. Wilson to obtain further information. The case of the King against Thomas Bardon was withdrawn by Mr. Fairweather, who appeared for the appellant. The last case was that of the King, etc., vs. John Gallagher, in which F. L. Fairweather and W. B. Jonah appeared for the appellant. Mr. Wilson, K. C., submitted a certificate of the convicting magistrate to the effect that Gallagher had been previously convicted on May 10th, 1898, for an offence committed between Oct. 3rd, 1905, and June 2nd, 1906, on a charge of keeping liquor for sale contrary to the provisions of the Canada Temperance Act. Mr. Jonah objected to his admission on the ground that it was not evidence in this court as to any previous conviction. His honor, however, overruled the objection and admitted the certificate. Mr. Jonah then moved that the conviction be quashed. His honor said the points raised were new to him, this being the first time a second offence case was before him. He should like to take time to consider. Mr. Jonah asked for the appellant to stand, but the judge said no judgment would be given until after he had considered the legal points. The testimony of Gallagher was to the effect that he did not own the liquor seized, or the glasses found in the closet. These were the property of Daniel Madigan, who held a lease of the premises from Fred Stockton. Witness had not sold liquor on Dec. 26th, as claimed, nor had he seen anyone drinking there at that occasion. He admitted having been convicted for a first offence in May, 1906, but was not guilty as charged and for which he was sentenced to three months. He never touched it at all. Madigan owned it and said it was for use as Christmas; it was also to go to his brother, John Pat, and part to brother of the witness, as a present. Further argument was heard on the point raised by Mr. Jonah, and finally his honor decided without further consideration to allow the appeal with costs. The court then adjourned sine die.

NO MONOPOLY IN COAL MINES

Wise Regulations for Dominion Government Lands in the West

Ottawa, May 14--New and important regulations for the disposal of coal mining rights, the property of the crown in Manitoba, Saskatchewan, Alberta, Yukon Territory, and the dominion lands generally, have been promulgated and will appear in the next Canada Gazette. They provide that coal mining rights may be leased for twenty-one years at an annual rental of $1 per acre, payable in advance. No applicant shall be allowed to lease more than an area of 2,500 acres. The tract must be contiguous and the area shall not exceed four miles in its greatest dimensions. Applications are made through the dominion lands agent or a sub-agent of the district. In unurveyed territory the application must be made within thirty days after its being located. Where a dispute as to location occurs the right to lease will be decided by the minister of the interior upon hearing evidence. Coal mining leaseholds embracing any portion of a township must conform to the dominion lands system of survey. The lease shall include coal mining rights only, but the lessee may, upon application, be permitted to purchase, at the rate of $10 an acre, whatever of the available surface rights the minister may consider necessary for the efficient and economical working of the coal mining rights granted in the lease. Areas Must Be Worked. The lessee must begin operations in one year from the date of his being notified to do so, and shall produce the quantity of coal specified on such order. The order will not be given until the expiration of one year. In no case will the maximum quantity required to be mined during each year be more than ten per cent. If this order is not complied with, the lease is subject to cancellation. A sworn statement of the output must be given by the person operating the mine. In default of this, the lease may be cancelled. In case of disputes provision is made for arbitration. The arbitrators will get $5 a day and traveling expenses. Under these regulations, prepared by the minister of the interior, parties will be unable to hold coal lands for speculative purposes. They must be operated or are liable to cancellation.

THE GHOST OF LOCHRAIN, OR THE UNDERGROUND SYNDICATE

BY MRS. C. N. WILLIAMSON, AUTHOR OF "THE PRINCESS PASSES," "THE LIGHTNING CONDUCTOR," ETC.

CHAPTER VIII

"The Countess doesn't like Lady Hilary," Elspeth said to herself. "She cares for Mr. Trowbridge, and has the air of considering him her property. Now, he has fallen in love with Lady Hilary. Any one can see that—indeed, every one does see it, and talks about it, much to Lady Hilary's disgust, especially as her mother encourages him, because he is supposed to be so tremendously rich. I believe the Countess would be glad to have some harm come to Lady Hilary. She's a foreigner, and a strange, passionate creature, capable of evil, I believe, if it were to further her own ends or injure an enemy. Perhaps it is her wish to think that, as she is so kind and seems to have taken such a fancy to me, yet I can't help feeling it's true about her. But even if she would like to harm that sweet girl, why should she have been so pleased to know that Lady Hilary was going motoring with Mr. Kenneth? I suppose it must have been because she knew that now she'd be sure to have Mr. Trowbridge to herself, even if he had planned to be with Lady Hilary. That must be it. She must have known he had some idea of proposing an excuse to her in Lady Hilary's society, and she would perhaps be enough to account for the look on his face when he saw Lady Hilary in the car just now. And yet—and yet—it was more than a look of disappointment. It was actual horror. And then, the chauffeur's accident? Was that a coincidence—or something more strange? What can it all mean? Or does it mean nothing, except that my imagination has grown morbid, and taken to conjuring up sensational things?"

"A voice within herself seemed to answer Elspeth's forebodings with a warning. A vague depression fell upon her. She felt a sense of responsibility, as if she ought to say something, do something, while there was time to prevent a calamity. Still, she kept silence. Mr. Kenneth would only think her foolish and cowardly if she said: "Please stop the motor. Because Countess Radepolski didn't want me to come out with you, and because Mr. Trowbridge looked distressed at seeing Lady Hilary in the car, I have a presentiment that something dreadful is going to happen." "Perhaps every one feels much the same when they are motoring for the first time," she told herself. "I have the idea that I should be glorying in it if it hadn't been for the Countess and Mr. Trowbridge, but maybe shouldn't. Maybe this is only part of the experience."

Just at this instant Kenneth half turned his head for a second to ask: "How do you like it, Miss Dean? You're not frightened, I hope?" Then Elspeth felt that not for anything in the world would she have said "Yes." "I think it's glorious," she answered bravely, though still the inward monitor whispered "Tell him to stop the car. Tell him to stop the car."

Now they were coming to a steep and winding descent, and all Kenneth's attention was needed for driving. He spoke no more, and the girls were at liberty to be silent or talk together. "You don't look very happy," Hilary said. "I believe you are terrified, after all. As for me, I don't think I should much care, provided I had only myself to think of, if Mr. Kenneth drove straight into that wall of rock just ahead!"

"How can you say that?" exclaimed Elspeth. "You, who are so beautiful and young, and so much loved, who are going to die if you are terrified, after all. As for me, I don't think I should much care, provided I had only myself to think of, if Mr. Kenneth drove straight into that wall of rock just ahead!"

"Give her to me," she commanded imperiously. Trowbridge and the Countess saw her now for the first time, and without a word the man obeyed. He passed Hilary down on the crushed broken by the roadside and Elspeth knelt close to the white, still figure.

"Doesn't seem to be much hurt, though she has fainted," Trowbridge answered before Elspeth could speak. "Don't worry. We hope you are going to be all right, too."

Something tied up in a little lace handkerchief dropped

Better not try and help yourself, for fear you may have a bone broken or a sprain somewhere. I'll lift you into this car—"

"There's nothing the matter with me. Give me a hand and I'll get to my feet," said Kenneth. "No—as he staggered up, supported by Trowbridge. "I'm all right. No bones broken evidently." He passed his hand over his forehead, where a few drops of blood trickled down over his eyes.

"Just a cut on the head. It's nothing at all. You're sure you're not hurt, Miss Dean, or Lady Hilary?"

"She was up and bending over you when we came," said the Countess, somewhat sharply. "I saw her head touching the ground. There's some coming to help her now. One might almost fancy she heard us speaking about her."

"I thought you saw us arrive in Lady Hilary's electric car, and that she had been taken charge of by the doctor, Miss Dean could hold his head on her lap, for he oughtn't to be left alone, while you drive, and I can stay here with Lady Hilary till you come back for her. She doesn't seem to be hurt at all."

"I don't know what I shall do. I'm afraid I must. There seems no alternative. Oh, I would beg or steal, I believe, if I could only get the money which could save us in some other way."

"I don't know what I shall do. I'm afraid I must. There seems no alternative. Oh, I would beg or steal, I believe, if I could only get the money which could save us in some other way."

CHAPTER IX

More Mysteries

Being Trowbridge was aware of the thing that had happened, the bracelet had fallen from his arm to the ground, which it struck with a delicate metallic sound, then rolled away into the broken by the roadside. Elspeth saw him start, but his eyes did not follow the bracelet. They darted to the exposed wrist, and what they must have seen there she saw at the same time.

The band of white kid, resembling the top of a long glove from which the hand has been cut off, or another like it, still covered the arm tightly and smoothly, but the heavy band of gold which had masked the end above the wristbone had hidden the ragged edge of a curious scar. Elspeth now saw that the flesh was inflamed and that just above the wristbone was a deep red mark.

Instinctively she turned her eyes, that Trowbridge might not be aware of her discovery. She felt that he glanced quickly at her to see whether his secret—whatever it might be—was at her mercy; but her face betrayed nothing. As he was in the act of lifting Kenneth's shoulders from the ground, he could not pull down the cuff and coat sleeve which had been pushed back; but he turned in such a way that, if Elspeth had not already seen the scar, she would be unable to catch sight of it. His change of position must have exposed the scar to the Countess Radepolski's gaze, but Trowbridge either did not care or considered her knowledge of his secret a lesser evil. Half lifting, half dragging Kenneth toward the electric car lent by Lady Ardcliffe, he had almost reached it when the unconscious man showed signs of coming to himself.

"He's given it to him—quite quietly and stealthily," the girl thought. "Then she must have known all along why he wears it; there could have been no secret about it for her, or she would have said something. Now I'm certain that there's an understanding of some sort between them. She's furious with the man, on account of Lady Hilary. He knows that, but she's defying her; and for some reason or other she dares not fall him whom he needed her help, in spite of all."

"I'll stay with you, dear Lady Hilary, till the doctor comes, unless Lady Lambert has returned from the walk you say she's going to take," said Elspeth. "I don't want a doctor. I'm perfectly well," replied Hilary. "I'm only rather shabby. I can't help trembling, but I'll lie down and be perfectly fit again by dinner time."

FEDERATION WILL APPOINT A MAN

Temperance Party Will Join in Commission to Look Into P. E. I. Act.

MEETING HELD HERE YESTERDAY

Principle of Placing Temperance Candidates in the Field Supported—To Formulate Complaints Against Liquor Commissions in St. John, Restigouche and Kent.

There was a largely attended meeting of the New Brunswick temperance federation held Tuesday afternoon in the C. P. R. rooms.

After some communications had been considered, the secretary read the reply of the government to the demand of the federation for a prohibitory law.

Rev. Thomas Marshall was in the chair and there were present Rev. Samuel Howland, Rev. T. Deneault, James Miles, J. B. Tait and R. G. Willett.

Previous to the meeting, a private circular had been issued suggesting the need of a suitable place for holding the annual conference and a summer school of missions.

To carry out this project it was thought that there would be need about thirty acres of ground fronting on some lake, river or stream.

Another question that was discussed in the meeting was the position which the federation will assume in the forthcoming election.

Resolved, that the executive of the federation be instructed to formulate complaints against the liquor commissions in St. John and Restigouche and Kent counties.

Head Out and He Receives a Severe Shaking Up.

By a wheel becoming detached from the carriage in which he was driving Col. J. J. Tucker, ex-M. P., was thrown from the vehicle in Union street Tuesday afternoon.

The accident occurred near Dorchester street. The loss of the wheel caused the horse to become restive and for a time beyond control.

The colonel was badly shaken and was carried to his residence on Chipman Hill. Beyond the shock he received a bad cut on the head.

Black Diphtheria at Gagetown. The seven-year old daughter of Mr. Horseman, teacher at Gagetown, was seriously ill Friday last.

The appearance of the disease has wrought excitement among the residents of Gagetown, who feel that no stone should be left unturned in the effort to wipe out the threatened danger.

Captains of river steamers and others report that the water is falling rapidly up river, and the intervals are covered with drift wood and logs.

Dr. Hamilton Proves That Piles Are Caused by Constipation and Strain, Cathartics.

Knowing the frequency with which people suffer from this ailment, Dr. Hamilton made an exhaustive study into the cause of piles.

He found that the lower part of the bowels is like a network of blood vessels, and if subjected to persistent pressure, a section will bulge out and form what is commonly known as a pile.

The only effective mode of curing this trouble is the regular use of Dr. Hamilton's Pills, which can be taken before retiring. Next day will bring wonderful relief.

"I suffered so about the habit of human endurances with piles," writes Miss Luanders, of Cornwall, Ont., "I was employed in a factory here, but for a while had to give up work till I got better of this trouble."

I can recommend these pills very highly. They are not better. They at once relieve the pain and the constipated condition of the bowels. I have many experiences can be depended upon as a perfect safeguard against piles.

Dr. Hamilton's Pills are sold by all druggists and by mail, from N. C. Polson and Co., Hartford, Conn., U. S. A., and Kingston.
