SPECIAL MEETING TOWN COUNCIL.

Police Magistrate Complains That Town Marshall is not Quick Enough in Service.

DISCUSSION ON WATER.

Three Scott Act Convictions Recently—Bye-law Re Peddlars Postponed.

Town Council met in special session Thursday night, Mayor Miller in the chair, and all the Councillors present but Alderman Doyle.

Mayor Miller on behalf of himself and wife very cordially thanked the Council for the good will they had shown them personally and the appreciation manifested for his public services, as evidenced by the handsome wedding gift to which they had contributed.

The Finance Committee recommended:

(1) The payment of D. Mander-son's bill of $50.
(2) The appointment of a special officer to collect arrears of taxes previous to 1909.

Ald. McMurdo thought that the collector should be for all taxes. Ald. T. Russell thought the new officer would have his hands full in collecting the $10,000 of back taxes.

Ald. Morrison urged greater energy and exactness in collecting the dog tax.

Report adopted. Ald. Sargeant verbally reported having looked after the dumping ground and had it cleaned up.

On recommendation of the light and water Committee, the following bills were ordered paid.

Maritime Coal, Railway and Power Co.	$51.87
Garlock Packing Co.	12.25
Colonial Lubricating Co.	17.80
Sumner Co.	33.52
	115.44

The Police Committee recommended payment of T. W. Butler $21.00 for three Scott Act cases settled by payment of fine, and one was dropped.

Mayor Miller did not see why Mr. Butler should be paid $6.00 for each case settled without coming to trial. The two persons fined generally acknowledged offence.

Ald. Morrison thought that fees charged were about as small as the Council could get the work done for.

The Committee was advised to look into the matter of agreement with Mr. Butler, and the report was adopted.

Ald. Belyea who had been away from last regular meeting, gave notice of intention to introduce his new bye-law re peddlars at next meeting. At request of Police Magistrate Maitby, the Mayor laid before council the former's complaint that the town Marshall had refused or neglected to carry out his orders. The Marshall being present, explained that he had obeyed orders as well as he knew, and he wished council to define his duties in respect to the Magistrate. The Councillors were of the opinion that, while the Marshall should render reasonable service to the Police Magistrate, yet his chief duty was outside of police court when cases from outside town were being tried.

The Mayor and Councillors agreed among themselves to each pay the band $5.00 for the concert on Civic Election night, and $5.00 additional for at least six future open air concerts.

A general discussion followed re waste of town water. Ald. Morrison said that his information showed that the waste was not all, or even principally, in the house taps. There must be some defect in the system itself. 60,000 gallons a day should be enough, while over 200,000 gallons were being pumped daily.

CHAIR WON BY ANDREW McCABE

The Ex-Driver of the Indiantown Branch Led His Nearest Opponent by 631 Votes.

THE FIGURES.

Contest Waxed Very Warm as the Hour of Closing Drew Nigh.

The contest between the friends of I. R. C. employees as to who should get the Morris Chair offered by the UNION ADVOCATE to the most popular railway man, ended at 10 p.m. on the 26th in favor of Ex-Driver Andrew McCabe, who came out 631 votes ahead.

The results were as follows:
Andrew McCabe 6,885
E. S. Vye 6,254
F. S. Henderson 556
John Williamson 407
John S. Smallwood 316
Matthew McGarron 307

The chair is a useful, durable and handsome one, and Mr. McCabe and his friends feel much gratified over the result. Conductor Vye's friends worked nobly for him and gave the other party a very close run for the prize.

PRESBYTERY OF MIRAMICHI.

The regular quarterly meeting of the Presbytery of Miramichi was held at Campbellton on the 22nd. Rev. S. J. McArthur was moderator, and with him were present Revs. D. Carr, M. McPherson, J. A. McCallum, Geo. Tattrie, J. Hardy, J. H. Kirk, A. J. W. Myers, H. J. Fraser, F. C. Simpson, R. S. Stavert, and J. M. MacLeod and Messrs. McMillan, Henderson, and Currie, elders.

Rev. J. Hardy was appointed moderator and Rev. J. M. McLeod reappointed clerk. Rev. J. H. Kirk and Rev. R. S. Stavert reported that they attended the meeting of the General Assembly at Hamilton a few weeks ago, and gave an interesting account of the proceedings.

The resignation of Rev. James Wheeler of Bathurst was laid on the table, and after the commission from the congregation was heard it was accepted by Presbytery, the resignation to take effect next Sunday. Rev. J. M. McLeod was appointed moderator of session at Bathurst during the vacancy.

The clerk reported that the General Assembly had chosen representatives of Presbytery for the Assembly's Committees as follows:

Foreign Missions—Rev. S. J. McArthur.
Home Missions—Rev. J. M. MacLeod.
Augmentation—Rev. J. M. McLeod.
College—Rev. A. J. Wm. Myers.
Church Life and Work—Rev. J. Kirk.

Rev. F. C. Simpson resigned the moderatorship of the Millerton congregation and Rev. S. J. McArthur was appointed in his place. A committee consisting of Rev. Messrs. McArthur, McLeod, Simpson, Myers and McKay was appointed to attend to the interests of Presbyterianism on the North Shore.

After the transaction of routine business, the Presbytery adjourned to meet at Newcastle the second Tuesday in September.

WEDDING BELLS.

LIVINGSTON—LENNOX.

A wedding of much interest took place at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Alex. Lennox, Rexton, June 22nd, when their niece, Miss Pauline Slater Lennox, also a niece of the late Mrs. Henry Wathen of Harcourt, was united in marriage with John W. Livingston of Shediac. The bride looked charming in a travelling suit of blue, with hat to match, and entered the parlor leaning on the arm of her uncle, who gave her away, and while Miss Nellie Clark most acceptably played the wedding march. The ceremony was performed by Rev. A. D. Archibald in the presence of a large number of invited guests. After completing their honeymoon in P. E. I., Mr. and Mrs. Livingston will reside in Shediac.

THE DRUMMOND RAILWAY:

W. F. C. Parsons, consulting engineer of the Drummond mines, says that work on the railway between Bathurst and the Drummond iron mines in Gloucester county is progressing rapidly. Almost 200 men are employed and several hundred more will soon be added to the force so that the work can be pushed forward without delay.

PROVINCIAL SECRETARY'S
NORTH SHORE TRIP

Hon. J. K. Fleming was in the city yesterday on his way home from Campbellton, where he has been conducting some liquor license investigations and also adjusting matters in connection with the arrears in the contributions to the support of the Provincial Hospital from the town of Campbellton, the municipality of Restigouche and the municipality of Gloucester.

Speaking of this latter business, Mr. Fleming said that it had been adjusted very satisfactorily. With the Town of Campbellton he had been able to arrive at a definite settlement. A satisfactory basis had been established with the municipality of Restigouche and a good beginning toward settlement had been made with the municipality of Gloucester.

As for the business in connection with the liquor licenses the evidence was all in and would be presented to the next meeting of the government for their consideration. Mr. Fleming was a passenger from the city on the Montreal express.—Telegraph.

It is reported that 73,128,829 cubic yards of earth have been dug out of the Panama Canal, and that 101,541,746 remain to be excavated. At the present rate of progress the channel would be completed in three years, but no estimate is given of the time necessary to construct the dams and locks.

PEAGE WILL BE THE RESULT.

Says the German Kaiser of his Visit to the Russian Czar.

Hamburg, June 23.—The Emperor at a banquet yesterday on the Hamburg-American steamship Deutschland, said in referring to his meeting with the Emperor of Russia:

"I rejoice in being able to tell you, the representatives of trade and the business world, the meaning of that visit was for the further preservation of peace. Emperor Nicholas and I agree that our meeting must be regarded as an energetic proclamation of peace."

"We feel ourselves, as monarchs, responsible to God for the well and woe of our peoples, which we want to lead forward as far as possible on their peaceful way to prosperity. All nations need peace in order under its protection to pursue their great mission of civilization and their economic and commercial development. Therefore, we will both strive, with God's help and so far as lies within our power, to maintain peace."

The University of Alberta is to establish a course of municipal engineering. This is another instance in which the East may well learn from the West. In years gone by, the West has called for the best of our young men. The time may come when the East will be glad to secure the services of the expert graduates of Alberta.

What would you take?

Suppose you were required to live for a certain length of time on only one article of food. Which would you choose?

There is one food that stands without a rival for such a test. Quaker Oats is that one. It furnishes more strength with least wear and tear on the digestive organs than any other food. You'll feel well and strong at the end of the time. Try it. Don't stop eating other things, but eat more Quaker Oats and you'll notice the gain in strength.

You'll find Quaker Oats put up in two size packages, the regular size and the large, family size for those who are not convenient to the store. The large package contains a piece of hand-some china for the table.

All grocers sell these. Eat Quaker Oats daily for breakfast, it strengthens you for the day's work. It's Canadian.

THE BARRIER

BY REX BEACH

COPYRIGHT, 1908, BY HARPER & BROTHERS

How odd it was, now that she considered it, that she needed no aid with these alien garments; that she knew instinctively their every feature; that there was no intricacy to cause her more than an instant's trouble.

She was interrupted in her reverie by the passing of a shadow across her window and the stamp of a man's feet on the planks at the door. Of course it was Poleon, who had come back to see her. So she rose hastily, gave one quick glance at the mirror above her washstand, choosing the side that distorted her image the least, and, hearing him still stamping, perfunctorily called:

"Come in! I'll be right out."

She kicked the train into place behind her, looping the shawl carelessly about her in a way to veil her modesty effectively. She crossed proudly to the reading table to give him a fair view of her splendor and was in the middle of the room before she looked up. Taken aback, she uttered a little strangled cry and made a quick movement of retreat, only to check herself and stand with her chin high in the air, while wave after wave of color swept over her face.

"Great lovely dove!" ejaculated Burrell fervently, staring at her. "Oh, I—I thought you were Poleon. He— in spite of herself she glanced toward her room as if to flee. She writhed at the utter absurdity of her appearance and knew the lieutenant must be laughing at her. But still she would only make it worse. Burrell, however, was not laughing.

"I was looking for your father," he said, wondering if this glorious thing could be the quaint half breed girl of yesterday. There was nothing of the native about her now, for her lithe young figure was drawn up to its height, and her head, upon which the long black braids were coiled, was tipped back in a haughty pose. She had flung her hands out to grasp the table edge behind her, forgetful of her shawl, which drooped traitorously and showed such rounded lines as her ordinary dress scarce hinted at. This was no Indian maid, the soldier vowed. No blood but the purest could pulse in such veins; no spirit save the highest could flash in such eyes as these. A jealous rancor irked him at the thought of this beauty intended for the Frenchman's eyes.

"Can't you show yourself to me as well as to Poleon?" he said. "Certainly not!" she declared. "He bought this dress for me, and I put it on to please him. After he sees it I will take it off, and—"

"Don't—don't take it off—ever," said Burrell. "I thought you were beautiful before because of your quaintness and simplicity, but now—his chest swelled—"why, this is a breath from home. You're like my sister and the girls back in Kentucky, only more wonderful."

"Am I?" she cried eagerly. "Am I like other girls? Do I really look as if I'd always worn clothes like these?"

"Born to them," said he. Her warmth and unaffected frankness suffused him as she stood out, turning to show the beauties of her gown, her brown hands fluttering tremulously as she talked.

"It's my first party dress, you know, and I'm as proud of it as Molly is of her rubber boots. It's too big in here and too small right there. That girl must have had a bad chest. But otherwise it fits me as if it had been made for me, doesn't it? And the shoes—aren't they the dearest things? See!" She held her skirts back, showing her two feet side by side, her dainty ankles slim and shapely in their silk.

"They don't wear as well as moccasins." Both laughed delightedly till he broke in impulsively:

"Oh, girl, don't you know how beautiful you are?"

"Of course I do," she cried, imitating his change of voice, then added naively, "That's why I hate to take it off."

"Where did you learn to wear things like that?" he questioned. "Where did you get that—well, that air?"

"It seems to me I've always known. There's nothing strange about it. The buttons and the hoods and the eyes are all where they belong. It's instinct, I suppose, from father's side."

"Probably. I dare say I should understand the mechanism of a dress suit, even if I'd never seen one," said the man, amused, yet impressed by her argument.

"I've always had visions of women dressed in this kind of clothing, white women, never natives, not dressed like this exactly, but in dainty, soft things, not at all like the ones I wear. I seem to have a memory, although it's hardly that either; it's more like a dream, as if I were somebody else. Father says it is from reading too much."

"A memory of what?"

"It's too vague and tantalizing to tell what it is, except that I should be called Merridy."

"Merridy? Why that?"

"I'll show you. See!" She slipped her hand inside the shawl and drew from her breast a thin gold chain on which was strung a band ring. "It was grandmother's. That's where I got the fancy for the name of Merridy, I suppose."

"May I look?"

"Of course. But I don't take it off. I haven't had it off my neck since I was a baby." She held it out for him to examine, and, although it brought his head close to hers, there was no trace of coquetry in the invitation. He read the inscription, "From Dan to Merridy," but had no realization of what it meant, for he glimpsed the milk white flesh almost at his lips and felt her breath stirring his hair, while the delicate scent of her person seemed to loose every strong emotion in him. She was so dainty and yet so virile, so innocent and yet so wise, so cold and yet so pulsating.

"It is very pretty," he said faintly. "At the look in his eyes as he raised his head her own widened, and she withdrew from him imperceptibly, dismissing him with a mere inclination.

"I wish you would send Poleon here. It's time he saw his present."

As Burrell walked out into the air he shut his jaws grimly and muttered: "Hold tight, young man. She's not your kind—she's not your kind."

Inside the store he found Doret and the trader in conversation with a man he had not met before, a ragged nondescript whose overalls were blue and faded and patched, particularly on the front of the legs above the knees, where a shovel handle wears hardest; whose coat was of yellow mackinaw, the sleeves worn thin below the elbows, where they had rubbed against his legs in his work. As the soldier entered the man turned on him a small, shrewd, weather-beaten face with one eye while he went on talking to Gale.

"It ain't nothin' to get excited over, but it's worth tellin'! If I wasn't so cussed unlucky I'd know there was a pay streak som'ere close by."

"Your luck is bound to change, Lee," said the trader, who helped him to roll up a pack of provisions.

"Mebbe so. Who's the dressmaker?" He jerked his bushy head toward Burrell, who had stopped at the front door with Poleon to examine some yellow grains in a folded paper.

"He's the boss soldier."

"Purty, ain't he?"

"If you ain't good he'll get you," said Gale, a trifle cynically, at which Lee chuckled.

"The one-eyed man snorted derisively. "It ain't worth considerin'!"

"Why not?" insisted Gale guardedly. "Maybe I've got a record. You don't know."

"If you have, don't tell me nothin' about it," he hastily observed Lee. "I'm a God-fearin' citizen myself, leavin' ever toward peace and quietude, but what's past is dead and gone, and I'd hate to see a liappin' child like that blue and yellor party try to resurrect it."

"He's got the American army to back him up, at least five of them."

"Five agin a hundred. He aims to overawe us, don't he?" snickered the unregenerate Lee, but his wrinkles changed and deepened as he leaned across the counter confidentially.

"You say the word, John, and I'll take some feller along to help me, and we'll transfer this military post."

"Pshaw! I'm just supposin'," said the trader.

"All right. It's up to you. However, if I happen to leap on a on this pay streak before it sees me comin' I'm goin' to put my friends in first and foremost and shut out these dress-makers complete. So long!"

Having given Necia's message to Poleon, the lieutenant took up his business with the trader. It concerned the purchase of certain supplies that had been omitted from the military outfit, and when this was concluded he referred to the encounter of that morning.

"I don't want you to think I bungle everything in that manner," he said, "for I don't. I want to work with you, and I want to be friends with you."

"I'm willing," said Gale. "Nobody dislikes playing policeman more than I do, but it's a part of my

"Oh, I—I thought you were Poleon. He—" duty, and I'll have to do it," continued the young man.

"I reckon you simply aim to keep peace, eh? You ain't looking for nobody in particular?"

"Of course not—outside of certain notorious criminals who have escaped justice and worked north."

"Then there are a few that you want, eh?"

"Yes, certain old timers. The officers at every post have descriptions of a few such, and if they show up we will take them in and hold them till courts are established."

"If you've got their names and descriptions mebbe I could help you," said the trader carelessly.

"Thank you. I'll bring up the list, and we'll go over it together. You must have been here a good while."

"About ten years."

"Then—Miss Necia was born out in the States?"

Gale shot a startled glance at the soldier before he answered in the affirmative, but Burrell was studying a pattern of sunlight on the floor and did not observe him. A moment later he inquired hesitatingly:

"Is this your first marriage, Mr. Gale?"

"When the other did not answer he looked up and quickly added: 'I beg your pardon, sir. What led me to ask was Miss Necia. She is so—well, she is such a remarkable girl.'"

Gale's face had undergone a change, but he answered quietly:

"I ain't never been married."

"What?"

"When I took Alluna it wasn't the style, and neither one of us has thought much about it since."

"Oh, I see," exclaimed Burrell hurriedly. "I'll bring that list with me the first time I think about it." And, nodding amiably, he sauntered out. But his mind was in a whirl, and even after he had reached his quarters he found himself repeating:

"The other was bad enough. Poor little girl! Poor little girl!"

Gale likewise left the store and went into his house, the odd look still strong in his eyes, to find Necia posing in her new regalia for Poleon's benefit. At sight of her he fell into a strange and unexpected humor and to their amazement commanded her roughly to take the things off. His voice and manner were harsh and at utter variance with any mood he had ever displayed before.

CHAPTER IV.

THE SOLDIER FINDS AN UNEXPECTED VALLEY.

MEADE BURRELL had experienced a profound sense of pity for Necia upon learning her father's relation to Alluna, but this also largely vanished when he found that the girl was entirely oblivious to its significance. He had tried her in many subtle ways and found that she regarded the matter innocently, as customary, and therefore in the light of an accepted convention, nor did she seem to see anything in her blood or station to render her inferior to other women. She questioned him tirelessly about his sister, and he was glad of this, for it placed no constraint between them.

As for her, each day brought a keener delight. She unfolded before the Kentuckian like some beautiful woodland flower and through innumerable, unnoticed familiarities took him into her innermost confidence.

A month of this went by, and then Runnion returned. He came on an up-going steamer. The manner of his coming was bold, for he stood fairly upon the ship's deck, and his smile was evil now, as it had been before. With him was a stranger. When the boat was at rest Runnion sauntered down the gangplank and up to the lieutenant, who stood above the landing place and who noted that the scar, close up against his forehead, was scarce healed. He accosted the officer with an insolent assurance.

"Well, I'm back again, you see, and I'm back to stay."

"Very well, Runnion. Did you bring an outfit with you?"

"Yes, and I'm pretty fat besides."

He shook a well laden gold sack at the officer.

"What do you want in this place anyhow?" demanded Burrell curiously. "None of your d—d business," the man answered, grinning.

"Be sure it isn't," retorted the lieutenant, "because it would please me right down to the ground if it were. I'd like to get you."

"I'm glad we understand each other," Runnion said, falling into conversation with the stranger, who had been surveying the town without leaving the boat. Evidently this man had a voice in Runnion's affairs, for he not only gave him instructions, but bossed the crew who handled his merchandise, and Meade Burrell concluded that he must be some incoming tenderfoot who had grub staked the desperado to prospect in the hills back of Flambeau. As the two came up past him he saw that he was mistaken. This man was no more of a tenderfoot than Runnion. On the contrary, he had a bearing of one to whom new countries are old, who had trod the edge of things all his life. There was a hint of the meat eating animal about him. His nose was keen and hawk-like, his walk and movements those of the predatory beast, and as he passed by Burrell observed that his eyes were of a peculiar cruelty that went well with his thin lips. He was older by far than Runnion; but, while the latter was mean visaged and swaggering, the stranger's manner was noticeable for its repression.

Impelled by an irresistible desire to learn something about the man, the lieutenant loitered after Runnion and his companion and entered the store in time to see the latter greet "No Creek" Lee, the prospector, who had come into town for more food. Both men spoke with quiet restraint.

"Nine years since I saw you, Stark," said the miner. "Where you bound?"

"The diggings," replied Stark as Lee addressed the stranger.

"Mining now?"

"Not same old thing, but I'm grub staking a few men, as usual. One of them stays here. I may open a house in Dawson if the camp is as good as they say it is."

"This here's a good place for you."

Stark laughed noiselessly and without mirth. "Fine! There must be a hundred people living here."

"Never mind; you take it from me," said the miner positively, "and get in now on the quiet. There's something doing." His one sharp eye detected the lieutenant close by, so he drew his friend aside and began talking to him earnestly and with such evident effect as to alter Stark's plans on the moment, for when Runnion entered the store shortly Stark spoke to him quickly, following which they both hurried back to the steamer and saw to the unloading of much additional freight and baggage. From the volume and variety of this merchandise it was evident that Mr. Stark would in nowise be a burden to the community.

Burrell was not sufficiently versed in the ways of mining camps to know exactly what this abrupt change of policy meant, but that there was something in the air he knew from the mysterious manner of "No Creek" Lee and from the suppressed excitement of Doret and the trader. His curiosity got the better of him finally, and he fell into talk with Lee, inquiring about the stranger by way of an opening.

"That's Ben Stark. I knew him back in the Cassiar country," said Lee.

"Is he a mining man?"

"Well, summat. He's made and lost a bank roll that a greyhound couldn't leap over in the minin' business, but it ain't his reg'lar graft. He runs one of the biggest places in the northwest for years."

"Saloon, eh?"

"Saloon and variety house—seven bartenders, that's all. He's the fellow that killed the gold commissioner. Of course that put him on the hike again."

"How do you mean?"

"Well, he had a record as long as a sick man's drug bill before he went into that country, and when he put the commissioner away them Canadian officials went after him like they was killin' snakes, and it cost him all he had made to get clear. If it had happened across the line the coroner's jury would have freed him, 'cause the commissioner was drunk and started the row. But it happened right in Stark's saloon, and you know Canada's stronger than vitriol for law and order. Not bein' his first offense, it went hard with him."

"He looks like a killer," said Burrell.

"Yes, but he ain't the common kind. He always lets the other man begin, and therefore he ain't ever done time."

"Come, now," argued the lieutenant, "if it were the other man who invariably shot first, Stark would have been killed long ago."

FOOLISH RETALIATION.

As indicated by recent despatches from Washington, the U. S. Senate Committee on Finance would amend the tariff on wood pulp so that pulp or paper imported into the Republic from any country, dependency, province or subject territory, which imposes an export duty thereon shall be charged an extra import duty in the way of retaliation. This amendment is aimed solely at Canada, in which the province of Ontario has already prohibited the export of all unmanufactured pulpwood out on crown lands and the densely wooded province of Quebec has announced her intention to follow Ontario's example. Should British Columbia and New Brunswick decide, as is most likely to soon occur, to do likewise, the United States' chief and practically sole source of supply for foreign pulpwood will have been cut off, and that country compelled to take its paper materials from Canada in manufactured condition only.

Retaliation against Canada will not be wise, especially if it merely takes the form of increasing the customs duty on paper or manufactured pulp. The United States must have paper, and when their own very limited supply of pulpwood is exhausted, they must buy from others. And it is far cheaper for them to buy from Canada than cross the Atlantic to buy from Norway, Sweden and Russia, or go to South America for their supplies. Any retaliatory duty on the Canadian product would not fall upon the Canadian exporters at all, but would be added to the selling price in the United States, thus coming entirely upon the buyer. Our Southern friends will soon tire of such retaliation.

If the Americans wish to retaliate, a more sensible way to do so would be to put an export duty on some article of the United States, such as corn or cotton. But even then, they could not hurt us much. As soon as the first shock of the disarrangement of business is passed off, we could easily get our cotton from India or Africa or from the United States. As for the corn, we could get it from the sub-tropical parts of the British Empire. So such retaliation would, in the end, merely serve to bind the hands of our own countrymen closely together—a commercial union of sorts to be wished. Free trade with the Empire is what we need, not a tariff higher than any special arrangement with the United States. We must of the proposed amendment which the United States Senate has just passed. Our friends have more need of a tariff which can do so quietly and without any paper when we make our own goods not to sell them our unmanufactured goods.

A BUSINESS-LIKE ADMINISTRATION.

The progress shown by Hon. Mr. McCreary, Minister of Railways, and his staff in repairing the damage done in the case of the S.S. Marie, has attracted the attention of an American newspaper, which compares the promptness and efficiency of authority in dealing with the delay at Westport in similar circumstances. The newspaper, Post-Standard points out that last spring, when there was a big jam in the Niagara River, and tremendous damage threatened, an appeal was made to the authorities, and after the word was sent to Washington a day or more was spent in the effort to determine which of the Federal Departments should attend to the matter. Then further vain appeals were made in discussing the question of government jurisdiction, and at last word was sent from Washington that there was no money available and nothing could be done. At last Governor Hughes, of New York, gave orders to blow out the Standard says there is a tradition in the United States that Canadians are slow. But it points out, "we of the United States should know, and for our own warning in commercial and agricultural competition, need to know, that there is no more practical or business-like administration of public affairs in any country on earth than is consistently illustrated in the administration of the Dominion." That is right. Under such a system a great deal from Canada, respecting legislation and business, and administration of public affairs.

VACATION TRIPS.

If ever there was a favorable opportunity to visit the Western States and the Pacific Coast, it will be this summer. The attractions there are as numerous, and the railroad fares as low as any reasonable person could expect.

Of course the Alaska-Yukon Exposition, to be held at Seattle, Wash., from June 1st to October 16th, will be the main feature, and this has led a number of our large patriotic, social and benevolent bodies to hold their Annual Conventions in the West this year. The Grand Trunk Railway System is granting special low excursion rates which can be taken advantage of by the general public, as well as the members of the different organizations mentioned below, and it is for this purpose we wish to draw the attention of the public generally to the matter, as we know that a number of people who would like to arrange for a vacation trip to the Pacific Coast this summer have an idea that these special low rates are only intended for the delegates of the fraternal bodies. Such is not the case, however, as anyone who wishes to make this trip can secure these rates on application to any of our agents, or by communicating with Mr. J. Quinlan, District Passenger Agent, Montreal.

The following are some of the organizations who will hold their annual convention in the West this year—
National Association Women's Suffrage, Seattle, Wash., July 1 to 7, 09.
Epworth League, Seattle, Wash., July 7 to 12, 09.
I. O. O. F., Seattle, Wash., Sept. 20 to 25, 09.
National Irrigation Congress, Spokane, Wash., Aug. 9 to 14, 09.
Northern Baptist Assn., Portland, Ore., June 25 to July 2.
National Educational Assn., Denver, Col., July 3 to 9, 09.
Benevolent and protective Order of Elks, Los Angeles, Cal., July 11 to 17.
National Encampment, G.A.R., Salt Lake City, Utah, Aug. 9 to 14.
Y.P.C. Union, Universalist Ch., Minneapolis, Minn., July 7 to 14.

Tickets will be issued by any of the regular routes going and returning, or going by one route, and returning by another—one way through California if desired. Part of the route may also be taken through the Great Lakes.

The Alaska-Yukon Exposition at Seattle, Wash., June 1st to October 16th, will, from all accounts, surpass anything in this line heretofore held in America, and one thing which will particularly please the public is the fact that the Exposition will be open and everything in full working order precisely on the date advertised, viz., Tuesday, June 1st.

Agents of the Grand Trunk Ry. System will be pleased to receive communications from passengers who intend visiting the Exposition, or from delegates attending the different conventions, and give full information as regards rates, train service, and routes, also arrange for sleeping or parlor car reservations. This will be attended to promptly, and early replies given in each case.

OBITUARY

WM. RUSSELL

The death of Wm. Russell of Millerton took place on Sunday, at the home of his mother, Mrs. Susan Russell. Deceased was thirty years old and unmarried. The funeral was held in the Presbyterian church Rev. S. J. McArthur officiating, yesterday afternoon. Deceased was well and favorably known among a large circle. He leaves the following brothers and sisters: Miss Nellie, Mrs. George Lee and Perley of Vancouver; Misses Dollie and Grace and Victor at home and Mrs. John Vanderbeck, Millerton.
MRS. LESTER P. PARKER.
The funeral of J. Florence, nee Cliff, wife of Lester P. Parker, who died suddenly Sunday evening, was held in Derby yesterday afternoon, Rev. T. A. Cuthbert officiating, assisted by Rev. J. F. Rowley. The pallbearers were, Thomas and Alex. Cliff, John Dickie, Robt. Flett, E. J. Parker and C. V. Parker. Deceased was the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. William Cliff, who survive her. The following brothers and sisters are also left: Thomas, Alex and Miss Frances Cliff, Derby, and Mrs. John Dickie, Campbellton. Deceased was a respected member of the Episcopal church and 41 years of age.

PATRICK McCOURT.

The death of Patrick McCourt, after an illness of four months, occurred on Sunday. Deceased, who was a native of Emerald, P. E. I., was 62 years old. He had been in Newcastle over thirty years, and married Miss Ellen Foran who survives him. The funeral will be in St. Mary's church this morning. Deceased was a prominent and valued member of the Roman Catholic church and C.M.B.A. He leaves a brother, Bernard, in P. E. I., and the following half-brothers and half-sisters: James McCourt, in the U. S. A.; Peter in P. E. I.; Mrs. James Clon, Summerside; Mrs. Joseph Clon, Freetown, P. E. I.; Mrs. Margaret Brown, P. E. I.

MRS. ANNIE LOUNSBURY.

A telegram from Malden, Mass., Monday morning on the 21st, announced the death in the hospital in that city Sunday night, of Mrs. Annie Lounsbury, widow of George A. Lounsbury, formerly of Newcastle. She underwent an operation a few weeks ago and was believed to be in a fair way to recover, but on Friday suffered a relapse and the end came suddenly. She was formerly a Miss Clark, of Queensbury, York county, and a sister of John T. Clark of Fredericton. On the death of her husband, seven years ago, she removed to Fredericton city. For the past two years she has made her home at Wolfville, where her son is a student at Acadia. She was a prominent member of the Baptist church and has a large circle of friends and acquaintances. One daughter, Mrs. H. B. McDonald, of Chatham, and one son, G. Holland Lounsbury survive.

MRS. WALTER C. ELLIOTT.

A shadow of gloom was cast over the whole community Wednesday morning by the sudden and tragic death of one of our best known and best beloved citizens—Mrs. Mary Elliott, nee Vaughan, widow of the late Walter J. Elliott. Mrs. Elliott was preparing to go on a long journey westward to visit her children at Minot, N. D. and Vancouver, B. C. Her ticket was bought, her trunk and luggage sent to the station, part of the family were already at the station, and she herself with hat and gloves on, was awaiting the arrival of the coach to take her to the Maritime express, when she suddenly took a weak spell and had to take a dose of potassium bromide to steady her nerves. A minute or two later she complained of a sudden and terrible pain in her head, and exclaiming that she was going blind, swooned in the arms of her sister, Mrs. Pallen, becoming unconscious. A physician was hastily summoned, who, however, could not save her life. She died but a moment during the last hour of her life. She was seized with the stroke between 12.30 and 12.45 and died shortly before two o'clock. Death is considered due to hemorrhage of the brain, induced by the unusual excitement incident to her proposed journey. She was 62 years of age and not in robust health.

Besides her sister, Mrs. Pallen, her son-in-law and daughter, Rev. and Mrs. Frank Atkinson of O'Leary, P. E. I., her daughter, Miss Rita, and her sister, Mrs. James M. Troy, and many friends were with her at the end.

Deceased was a member of the United Baptist church, and her place in Newcastle society will be very hard to fill.

Of her thirteen children, ten survive. They are: Mrs. James Smallwood, Minot, N. D.; Mrs. John Robinson, Jr., Newcastle; Mrs. Rev. Frank Atkinson, O'Leary, P. E. I.; Charles, Perth; Mrs. Fred Chessman, St. Johns, Nfld.; Mrs. Charles J. Stewart, Unzuambi, Natal; Mrs. Bertha, Minot; Mrs. Graham Jarvis, Vancouver; Miss Rita, at home; Osborn, N. Minot.

Mrs. Hazel Crabbe of Newcastle is a granddaughter. The surviving brothers and sisters are: Mrs. Jos. Hodgins, Redwood, N. B.; Mrs. Jas. M. Troy, Newcastle; Mrs. Chas. Ferguson, Moncton; Mrs. Herbert H. Pallen, North Sydney, N. S.; Robt. Vaughan, New York City; Allan, North Dakota; George and Daniel, San Francisco, California.

The funeral took place Monday afternoon, Rev. Dr. Cousins of St. John officiating, assisted by Revs. S. J. McArthur, H. C. Rice and H. A. Brown. The mourners were the two sons and three of the sons-in-law of the deceased, Dr. McKenzie of Loggieville, H. H. Pallen of North Sydney, Earl Atkinson, of O'Leary, P. E. I., and James M. and Jack Troy, Messrs. James Falconer, T. W. Crocker, John Brander, Edward O'Donnell, O. N. Nicholson and S. Russell, were the pallbearers.

Among the rich display of flowers were the following:—
Wreath—Children of deceased.
Pillow—Baptist church.
Wreath—Mr. and Mrs. Troy.
Crescent—Misses Currie, Andover.
Cut flowers—Mr. and Mrs. Chas. Sargeant.
Wreath—Bessie and Waldo Crocker.
—Mr. and Mrs. Graham Jardine.
Wreath—Mr. and Mrs. Fred Chessman.
—H. H. Pallen.
Cut flowers—Mr. and Mrs. LeGal has.
—Miss Harley.
—Miss Doran.
—Dr. and Mrs. Nicholson.
—Mr. and Mrs. Belyea.
—Mr. and Mrs. James Robinson, St. John.
Sprays of Roses—Newell Sheridan, St. John; Mr. and Mrs. A. E. G. McKenzie, Campbellton; Mr. and Mrs. C. B. Ferguson, Moncton.
Harp—Isabella and Margaret Robinson.
Of deceased's ten children following were present: Osborn, Bertha, Mrs. J. C. Smallwood, of Minot, N. D.; Mrs. Chessman, of St. Johns Nfld; Charles, of Andover; Mrs. Atkinson, of O'Leary, P. E. I.; and Mrs. John Robinson, Jr., and Miss Rita of Newcastle, Mr. Smallwood was also present.

HOW CONSUMPTION CAN BE CURED.

Authorities of every kind have finally agreed that the outdoor treatment is the only reliable treatment for the Great White Plague. Impure, confined air interferes with the functional processes of the lungs. The carbonic acid gas is not properly replaced by oxygen, the great life-giver, which cannot be absorbed in proper quantities. In endeavoring to cultivate the habit of living out of doors, it may be difficult at first to maintain warmth. One will not be benefited when seriously suffering from cold. The body should be kept warm and comfortable, but this does not mean that one should indulge in coddling. One should slowly but surely inure the body to what might ordinarily be regarded as exposure.

When taking the out-door treatment, do not forget the necessity of securing all the oxygen you can through the aid of deep-breathing exercises. If you expand the chest on each occasion as much as you can without pain or discomfort, there is no possible chance of your being harmed. The expansion of the lungs should always begin in the abdominal region and gradually extend up to the chest. When a breath is taken in this manner, the air is carried down to the lowest parts of the lungs and gradually, as the chest fills and expands thereafter, all other parts of the lungs are expanded and strengthened.—From June Physical Culture.

ONLY ONE CURE FOR A BAD STOMACH.

Indigestion and Similar Troubles
Must be Treated Through The Blood.

Indigestion can be treated in many ways, but it can be cured in only one way—through the blood. Purgatives cannot cure indigestion. By main force they move the food on still undigested. That weakens the whole system, uses up the natural juices of the body and leaves the stomach and bowels parched and sore. It is a cause of indigestion—not a cure. Others try to strengthen the stomach with drugs. But drugs which digest the food for the stomach really weaken its power. The digestive organs can never do the work properly until they are strong enough to do it themselves. Nothing can give the stomach that power but the new, rich, red blood, abundantly supplied by Dr. Williams' Pink Pills. So the reason for their success is plain. The health of the stomach depends upon the blood in its delicate veins. If that blood is weak and watery the gastric glands haven't the strength to secrete the juices which alone can digest the food. If the blood is loaded with impurities it cannot absorb the good from the food when it is digested. Nothing can stimulate the glands, and nothing can absorb the nourishment but pure, red blood. And nothing can give that pure, red blood but Dr. Williams' Pink Pills. Mrs. Alfred Gallant, Mill River, P. E. I., says:—"For several years, previous and up to two years ago, I suffered continually from indigestion. I could not eat enough to keep my strength, and what little I did eat, no matter what kind of food, caused great pains, so that I became much reduced in flesh, strength and energy. I consulted several doctors and took medicine from them but without any benefit whatever. On the advice of a friend I began to take Dr. Williams' Pink Pills and soon good results were noticed. I could slightly increase the amount of food day after day, and suffered no inconvenience, until after taking ten boxes I could eat any kind of food in a short time, got back to my normal state of health, and feel that Dr. Williams' Pink Pills have surely cured me of a most stubborn case of indigestion."

You can get these Pills from any dealer in medicine or they will be sent by mail at 50 cents a box or six boxes for $2.50 by addressing the Dr. Williams' Medicine Co., Brockville, Ont.

DERBY JUNCTION.

Having seen no notes from this place for some time, I thought I would send a few current events. The "Khaki" lads from Moncton are here, applying a new coat of paint to the steel bridges erected by the Dominion Bridge Co. in 1902-3.

Our J. R. C. station agent, Mr. Atkinson, is spending his vacation in Boston, and other New England points, accompanied by Mrs. Atkinson. They will be absent two weeks.

Mr. Harold McNair of Jacquet River is relieving Mr. Atkinson. He spent Saturday evening in Chatham, accompanied by a friend.

Miss Emma Branch of Fall River, Mass., who has been spending a few months at her home in Bathurst, is visiting her sister Mrs. H. D. Atkinson for three weeks before returning to her duties as nurse in Fall River.

Miss Ethel Atkinson, stenographer of the New Brunswick Pulp and Paper Company of Millerton, with her aunt, Miss Branch, spent Sunday evening in Douglas-town with friends.

We are pleased to see Miss Maud Atkinson in our midst again, after an absence of nearly a year. She has completed the shorthand course at Mount Allison Academy, Sackville, N. B.

Mr. Henry Jonah of the "Khake Brigade" spent last Sunday at his home in Moncton.

McElwee's mill has stopped sawing for the season.

The young ladies are looking forward to the excursion down river Dominion Day.

THE LOGGIEVILLE BURGLARY.

Defendant is Sent up for Trial at the July Session of Court.

The preliminary examination of F. H. McQuestion, charged with burglary of Montgomery & O'Leary's store, resumed before Justice R. L. Maltby Wednesday morning.

M. Gratton O'Leary, sworn, gave pretty nearly the same evidence as Henry Archibald on Tuesday.

I. R. C. Detective Noble, sworn, said that he and J. J. Letoile had on June 17th interviewed the defendant at the Newcastle jail, with a view of getting his assistance in connection with locating the thief. He told defendant that he was not obliged to say anything, and if he did it would be used against him at his trial. Accused said he had not given any explanation where he received the goods, but told him (Noble) that one night last winter he was wheeling shavings near the store in question when he found the two odd mitts now in court. Defendant said he bought the gloves for 10 cents on the train enroute to Fredericton. He said he bought gloves from a man in Chatham and he received the slippers as a Xmas gift. After further conversation accused said he had not got the mitts, gloves, etc., as he had stated; accused again said he had bought the articles from Raymond C. Landry in Loggieville for 50 cts. After his friend Mr. Letoile, had left the room at the jail accused asked him what difference it would make if he (McQuestion) stated he had stolen the goods, but did not steal them on night of burglary. Accused admitted to him (Noble) that he had taken the articles at different times but not on night of the burglary. Accused said he could account for his movements on night of robbery, from the dates marked down in his note book, but afterwards said he marked them on Saturday, June 12, when he knew he was suspected of the burglary. He (Noble) was present with other officers when the articles were found.

To Mr. Lawlor—This conversation took place in a room occupied by the sheriff. At the request of both Mr. Letoile and himself Mrs. Irving allowed them access to prisoner. He did not open any letters peeping to prisoner. He (Noble) saw Sheriff Irving with a letter purporting to be written by Alex. McGrath. The prisoner told him three different stories. He would not swear any of them were true. He interviewed the prisoner twice.

The case was continued on Friday, and on Saturday the prisoner was sent up for trial.

HARCOURT.

Mr. and Mrs. W. G. Thurber and Miss Thinda Wether returned on Wednesday from Rexton, where they were attending the marriage of Mr. Livingstone to Miss Pauline Lennox, which took place in that town on Tuesday morning.

Miss Ruth Thurber, who has been taking the Manual Training Course at the Provincial Normal School, returned home on Tuesday.

Mrs. Andrew Dunn and Miss Dunn went to Moncton on Wednesday to spend a few days with friends.

Miss Maggie Wellwood is spending the week in Loggieville the guest of her sister, Mrs. D. J. Buckley.

E. E. Buckenfield spent Sunday with home friends and returned to Moncton on Monday.

A number of people from the village drove to Bass River on Monday afternoon to attend the confirmation service in the R. C. church there. Nineteen children were confirmed by His Lordship Bishop Barry of Chatham, assisted by Rev. Fathers McLaughlin, Verner and O'Leary. An impressive and appropriate sermon was delivered by Rev. Fr. McLaughlin. Bishop Barry also addressed the children.

Miss Mary Mulroney is spending the week with friends in Moncton.

Misses Jean Thurber, and Marguerite Cash and James Thurber returned on Wednesday from a trip to St. John, Fredericton and other points.

A recital on Friday evening last by Mrs. Manaton's music pupils was much enjoyed by a large number of guests. The several numbers on the programme were most acceptably rendered, reflecting credit on Mrs. Manaton's pains taking efforts as teacher, and also on the performers, many of whom are quite young, one of whom, Josephine Cormier, is only 5 years old.

Mr. Robert Saulnier and daughter Evangeline, drove to St. Louis on Wednesday to attend a concert given by the Convent pupils on that evening.

OUR BASEBALL COLUMN

A WOMAN'S IDEAS OF BASEBALL.

BY LULA GLASER
Comic Opera Prima Donna

I just love baseball. I think it's the greatest game in the world. Next to being a star on the stage, I think that there can be no other life as attractive and full of incident as that of a baseball player. If I were a man I would surely try to get out and make good with one of the big league teams. I know the game pretty well. In fact I feel safe in saying that there are very few women in the country who follow the game more closely than I do. In every big city in which I am playing I go out to the ball games every possible chance I get. There's nothing in the world, not even the first night appearance with a new play, that's so exciting as watching a man smash out a long hit with three men on bases. Why it makes one feel glad to be living for days afterward. I was talking with a reporter in Boston a short while ago, and I have reason to think that I surprised him with my knowledge of what he called essentially a man's game. In fact, in his headline with the story of the interview, he declared that in my case the accident of birth had deprived the diamond of a great star. I believe that women, were it not for the conventionalities, would excel the members of the "stronger" sex when it came to playing ball. They have the high nervous temperament and the quickness of perception that go to make up the good ball player. Then they would be far more daring and willing to risk their chances on some sudden strategic move.

My favorite ball team is the Pittsburgh Club of the National League. Pittsburgh is my home and I always root hard for the Pirates. These boys certainly had their share of hard luck in the pennant race last season, but this year you've probably noticed that they are running away from all the others. And I feel secure in saying that they're going to stay in front until the season closes. Of course my favorite player is on the Pittsburgh team, and of course he's Hans Wagner. Every one who knows anything at all about baseball, knows that there is no one living who can compare with the great Dutch short-stop. No matter what department of the game you look at, he's at the head of it. A man who can make more hits, steal more bases, and score more runs than any other player in the country is surely a person to be admired. He seems to be awkward, but really you'll have to call him graceful. He invariably accomplishes what he sets out to do, and he does it with the greatest speed and accuracy. Of course he is not an artist's model as to physique and countenance, but he is far more interesting to watch than some of his more comely fellow players. What impresses me most about him is that he never seems to become chesty or self satisfied, despite the everlasting praise that is being showered on him at all times. He works as hard as the veriest tyro, and his interest in his playing never seems to slacken or grow cold. He loves the game and he will play it just as long as he can, despite the fact that now and then rumors go the rounds that he is going to retire. I do not think he could stop playing if he wanted to. He might lay off for a week or so, but then I know he'd have that lonesome feeling and get back into harness once more. The good ball player, I imagine, is just like the actor or actress. After he has made good, to quote the popular phrase, he tries to hang on just as long as possible, and that fine day in the summer that he is out of uniform, finds him homesick and tidy.

When I was a girl I used to play ball a lot and filled in every position on the diamond. It was in those days that I picked up whatever little I know about baseball. I remember that then the one great sorrow of my youthful heart was that I had not been born a man so that I might be a great ball player. Even now, at times, I have the same feeling. Why, I'd rather sit on a fence in the burning sun and watch a crowd of youngsters playing scrub, with trees for bases and a bunch of string for a ball, than go anywhere else that I know of. I remember one day several years ago I was watching one of these boys' games, just where I cannot recollect. The score was pretty even, and the umpire, a ragged little urchin, much smaller than the boys in the game, was having all kinds of trouble, in fact, I expected every moment to see several of the players upon him and handle him roughly. Still, he escaped punishment and bawled forth his decisions in stentorian tones. It came to the last of the ninth and the score was a tie. The team at bat had one out and the youngster up hit a little grounder to the pitcher. Another one of the players who was on third dashed madly for the plate. The pitcher picked the ball up and hurled it swiftly to the waiting catcher. His umps, who was passing his judgments from back of the pitcher, ran also to the base that he might watch the play better. The baserunner was palpably out but just as the arbitrator was about to make his announcement, one of the team that was in, rushed over to the plate with a bat poised over his shoulder, and looking at the umpire asked gruffly: "How was he?" "He's safe," came the reply after a terrified glance at the questioner. Then the unhappy youth increased his speed, dove through the fence and hopped on the running board of a passing trolley, and before the enraged members of the losing team had realized what had come to pass, was gone from sight. Then ensued the bloody conflict incidental to most boys' contests. That little umpire will be a good ball player some day, I think. He surely showed that he knew how to use his head on this one occasion.

Travelling as much as I do, one meets all kinds of people and sees all kinds of sights. In the course of my wanderings I have had occasion to meet quite a few of the big leaguers, and in every instance I have found them delightful gentlemen, by no means the rather uncultured beings that many people seem to consider them. From the members of the profession that I am acquainted with, I am sure that I was not wrong in my girlhood days when I thought that to be a ball player was one of the greatest things on earth.

KEEP CHILDREN WELL DURING HOT WEATHER

Every mother knows how fatal the summer months are to small children. Cholera infantum, diarrhoea, dysentery and stomach troubles are alarmingly frequent at this time and too often a little life is lost after a few hours' illness. The mother who keeps Baby's Own Tablets in the house feels safe. The occasional use of the Tablets prevents stomach and bowel troubles or if the trouble comes suddenly will bring the little one through Mrs. George Howell, Sandy Beach, Que., says: "My baby was suffering from colic, vomiting and diarrhoea, but after giving him Baby's Own Tablets the trouble disappeared." THE GLORIOUS FIRST OF JULY

Will be Celebrated Right Royally
at Campbellton Tomorrow

Campbellton citizens are working with a will to make Dominion Day celebration a grand success and it promises to be the best ever held here.

The committee in charge are all working hard in their several departments and there are progressing with out a hitch.

From day to day sports committees are receiving additions to the many valuable prizes for the events, the latest is a very valuable medal as a prize to the best round athlete competing in the sports.

This prize is donated by James Reid, M. P. of Campbellton, one of the most valuable in the list of medals.

The committee on transportation of which Mr. H. H. Brown is chairman, is endeavoring to arrange for a special train from Newmarket to arrive here about 10 o'clock, at which announcement will be made as regards this. Excursion rates will also be announced later.

Ample provision is being made for a large number of visitors and all can depend on spending a most enjoyable day.

For the afternoon and Trades processions many citizens are planning elaborate floats and are expected to provide one of the best features of the day.

Excellent food will also be provided.

At a meeting of the sports committee, the following program was drafted:

This program will be held on the 1st and 2nd of July and is asked to watch for their events and be on hand when called.

A bonfire will be placed between Athol and Campbellton, commencing at 12:30 sharp, to be over at 2 o'clock sharp, when the sports are called.

The order of sports will be as follows:

100 Yards Race.
Standing Broad Jump.
Throwing the Hammer.
Hop, Step and Jump.
Putting the Shot.
High Jump.
220 Yard Race.
Broad Jump.
Tide Vault.

The Boys' Road Race, 5 miles, will be called at 1:30 and the Road Race, 5 miles, at 1:45.

The walking race, 1 mile, will be the last event, to be over at 2 o'clock sharp.

The luncheon and refreshments for the sports have been ordered and will be on exhibition the afternoon of the 1st.

They are a valuable and should increase the interest in the events.

The events will be open to all comers.

Mr. Geo. G. McKendrick has given a medal for the winner of the Hammer Throw.

The handball trophy for the men's handball tournament, donated by Messrs. M. J. Mowat, A. B. G. McKendrick, J. B. McKeith and A. B. McKendrick, has arrived and is now on exhibition at the F. Clark's window. It is a beautiful piece of workmanship and will be the best efforts of the tournament.

Besides the many valuable prizes and medals already announced, Thomas Malcolm, Esq., has also given a chairman MacKendrick's medal to be used as the center of the tournament.

At a committee meeting Wednesday evening it was decided to offer a banquet for the sports at the Motor boat race.

The parade of the sports committee is being a great success, as it is extremely difficult to procure a large number of horses, and any person having pairs of horses, with heavy traces, carriages or sleighs to hire, would do well to call on A. B. McKendrick at once.

All committees are working hard and there are about in shape for the demonstration.

Already there are a number of outside entries in the road race, and the sports and these events will be the best ever witnessed at the North Shore.

The Citizens' Band of Chatham, has been engaged to assist in furnishing music, and several St. John's pipers will also be here.

The Campbellton Firemen have ordered new uniforms and will make their first appearance on Dominion Day.

All entries must be sent to W. L. McRae Secretary of Sports Committee by noon of July 29th.

WHITE GIRL KILLED BY CHINESE.

Elsie Sigel, of New York. Missionary to Chinese Residents, Murdered in Leon Ling's Apartments.

LING IS MISSING.

Chung Sin an Important Witness Against Ling, Sin and Ling Rivals For Girl's Affections.

NEW YORK, June 29.—Under the pressure of the third degree, Chung Sin, the room mate of Leon Ling, took this afternoon of Elsie Sigel's murder. He admitted that he had seen the body in Leon Ling's room over the Elsinore chop suey restaurant, that he had touched it while it was still warm, that he had smelled drugs and had watched Leon Ling's preparations for placing the body in the trunk where it was found horribly decomposed on Friday night last.

In fact, Chung Sin, who was learned at the criminal courts building concerning the murder of Major Franz Sigel's granddaughter, except the actual commission of the crime, he denied any implication in it and protested stoutly that he was innocent of the whereabouts of Leon Ling, the supposed murderer. But after the inquisition he was taken before Commissioner Harbinger and held in $10,000 bail in the house of detention to await the inquest.

Chung Sin is thirty-five years old and a native of Canton. He was arrested yesterday morning at West Gateway, N. Y., a small hamlet near Amsterdam, and was brought to New York this morning in the custody of Detective John Forbes. Immediately after his arrest on state and local charges, he was taken to this city, where he was held in questions, but it was not until late today however, that he told of the death of the young missionary which has aroused the whole community. Then, smoking cigarette after cigarette to quiet his nerves, the Chinaman told brokenly but with brutal bluntness of the girl's murder.

He was surrounded at the time of the office of Assistant Attorney Theodore H. Ward by detectives from headquarters who had previously put him through a grilling. Mr. Ward and District Attorney Jerome were present and from what can be learned it was Mr. Jerome himself who finally drew the story from Chung Sin's lips. It was made partly in English and partly in Chinese, for there was an interpreter present and was taken down by stenographers. No statement of the gist of the story was made public but the more salient facts of the confession soon became known about the building.

From the man's story it is apparent that Elsie Sigel was first drugged with chloroform and then choked to death.

She was killed apparently on the night of June 9, although Chung Sin appeared a little mixed in his dates. But he says that early in the morning of June 10 he heard a strange noise in Leon's room adjoining his, and looking over the transom, saw the girl lying on the bed with a bloody towel over her mouth. He passed through the room, he says, to go out to wash his hands and as he did so, he felt the body which was still warm. Afterwards he went down to the chop suey restaurant below, and then returned to the room. Leon, in the meantime, had covered the body with a blanket up to the chin and had pulled a trunk to the middle of the floor. The trunk Leon was calmly emptying preparatory to placing the body therein. The rope with which the body was bound was lying on the floor, according to Chung Sin. Once again he went down stairs, said Chung Sin, where he remained until Leon called him. When he entered the room, the body was not visible, having been found with the rope and placed in the trunk.

Chung said that he had no hand in putting the body in the trunk.

"I didn't see her no more," said Chung Sin, "and when I ask a Leon how she died he said she had bitten her tongue and bled to death." Leon told him, Chung Sin added, that he was going to send the trunk to Jersey City, thence to Europe. As a matter of fact, it lay untouched in the stuffy little room until Sun Leung proprietor of the restaurant below, noticed the odor about the place and summoned the police.

Until Chung Sin's complete account is made public it will not be explained why he saw the dead girl and the preparations for the removal of the body with such apparent unconcern at the time. Also, despite repeated interrogations, he declined to say what happened in the room when the girl was murdered. He admitted having heard a scuffle in the room during the night and told of Elsie having arrived on the previous afternoon, the day when she disappeared from her home.

"Did Leon take her there or did she go of her own accord?" he was asked. "She went there alone," he replied. "Was she in love with Leon or Leon in love with her?" was another question.

At this, Chung Sin refused, only smiled and shook his head.

He indicated, however, that the girl had sought out the Chinaman.

The confession today serves but to elicit the already prevalent belief that Leon Ling killed the twenty-year-old girl who had become initiated into the ways of the Chinese living through her mother, now crazed with grief and in a sanitarium. It does not, however, so far as can be learned throw any light as to where the murderer is at the present or the route, which he took in his flight from the city, and the police throughout the United States and in many foreign ports are looking for the English speaking Oriental.

NEW YORK, June 24.—Rumors and conjectures as to the whereabouts of Leon Ling, who is sought by the detectives in charge of the Elsie Sigel case, continued in abeyance today. While District Attorney Jerome considers this case extremely simple there are many who look upon it as one of the most mysterious cases brought to light. The theory of Quong Yick Woon, that the girl had died from an overdose of chloroform administered by Leon cannot be confirmed, as the handkerchief which his roommate, Chung Sin, declares he saw over her mouth, has disappeared. The finding of the two letters written by Leon to Chu Gai, whom he regarded as his rival in the affections of the Sigel girl, which Leon threatens the life of both Chu Gai and the young woman, is the best evidence obtainable as yet to show the motive of the case. The actual text of these letters has not been revealed, but it is known that in them Chu Gai is threatened with violent death unless he discontinues his attentions to Miss Sigel. Chu Gai has also said that his own brother brought him oral warning emanating from Leon that he must cease his visits at the Sigel home and that on one occasion when he called at the home of the young woman, Leon, who was already there, left the house in a passion.

I'll Explain Why I Always Drive a GENDRON

"You see the breaking of the springs causes us baby drivers more trouble than any other weakness in carriage cars. But there is no spring weakness in the GENDRON car. Note that double curve. It is exclusive with the GENDRON. It so distributes the strain that the spring never breaks. And then the wheels,—you see they are specially welded, and cannot warp or break. Note also that little rubber cap over the nut of the axle. Sometimes when I have a restless passenger, I want to drive the car around the house without scratching the furniture—it is a little point, but a good one. The materials for all the GENDRON cars are the very best in the bodies, tops and every other part. There is style and service in every GENDRON model—Canadian made, so that any unexpected accident can be easily remedied."

SLEEPING OUT OF DOORS.

In this weather the practice of sleeping out of doors carries with no terrors for even the feeblest constitution, and any man or woman who can secure a sleeping place protected from rain and screened from mosquitoes, will find the practice not only invigorating and healthful, but conducive to more pleasant sleep than is possible with enclosed walls.

The value of sleep in the open air has been proved most notably in the treatment of tuberculosis, but that treatment has shown its efficacy in nervous diseases and in all cases which call for building up healthier tissues. Undoubtedly the time is coming in this country when a large portion of those who can afford it will have sleeping quarters arranged on balconies, under porches, etc., in such fashion as to allow sleeping out of doors.

Architects say that the demand for such accommodation is markedly increasing. It is simply another facet of the popular movement for better health as a matter of common sense.

NEW YORK, June 24.—Rumors and conjectures as to the whereabouts of Leon Ling, who is sought by the detectives in charge of the Elsie Sigel case, continued in abeyance today. While District Attorney Jerome considers this case extremely simple there are many who look upon it as one of the most mysterious cases brought to light. The theory of Quong Yick Woon, that the girl had died from an overdose of chloroform administered by Leon cannot be confirmed, as the handkerchief which his roommate, Chung Sin, declares he saw over her mouth, has disappeared. The finding of the two letters written by Leon to Chu Gai, whom he regarded as his rival in the affections of the Sigel girl, which Leon threatens the life of both Chu Gai and the young woman, is the best evidence obtainable as yet to show the motive of the case. The actual text of these letters has not been revealed, but it is known that in them Chu Gai is threatened with violent death unless he discontinues his attentions to Miss Sigel. Chu Gai has also said that his own brother brought him oral warning emanating from Leon that he must cease his visits at the Sigel home and that on one occasion when he called at the home of the young woman, Leon, who was already there, left the house in a passion.

EDITOR TREATED LIKE

A FELON IN PRISON
In Tattered Clothes, Behind Double Bars, and all for 'Contempt of Court'

MONTREAL, June 17.—The Hon. P. Landry, senator of the Dominion, has been visiting Jules Fournier, editor of Le Nationalist, who is confined in the Quebec jail having been sentenced to three months for contempt of court.

The senator says:—

"I asked for the prisoner, and he appeared behind a double iron rating which separates by four feet the assassins and the thieves from their relatives and their friends. In the light of prison cage, which one traverses to reach the grating in question, an ordinary prisoner talks with the members of his family without any restraint whatever; but Fournier, guilty of a newspaper offence, is left without mercy behind a double grating in company with two other prisoners, who were also receiving a visit from several relatives.

"As three people only can sit in front of the grating, I was obliged to trouble the conversation of the two other prisoners, as they were forced by the circumstances to interfere with mine, for the reason that the distance separating Fournier and myself was so great we had to converse in a very loud tone to be at all understood.

Fournier was dressed in the ordinary prison garb, a sort of blue drilling, barred trousers, and a ten cent straw hat, all being worn to a fringe, having been used by several prisoners who had used the clothing before him.

"I remember some years ago, when Mathurin, who had been condemned to death, was awaiting his execution, of having paid a visit to the miserable man, Mr. Bernatchez being governor of the jail. He personally brought me to the prisoner, whom I could see close at hand, and I also remember that he wore his own clothing. In comparing, therefore, the treatment inflicted upon Fournier and those who visit him with that accorded to Mathurin, it will be easily understood what sentiments such a visit produces, and if I do not give expression to my indignation here it is because I do not want him to suffer for the just indignation because of the prosecution to which he is made to suffer today.

He however, supports it all bravely convinced that he had right on his side when he denounced the administration of justice; he has no desire to lessen the value of his act in bowing before those who threatened him with imprisonment. He entered his cell holding his head high. He underwent the ignominious treatment of being made the victim of an insulting inspection like a vile criminal, and after they had stripped him of everything he possessed, they took away his clothing and replaced them with a garb of a vulgar bandit. He endured, however, all these humiliations with the serene conscience of a man who had done his duty. From his prison cell he will walk out holding high his head.

Petty Officer Owen, of H. M. S. Avon, in a recent test with a 12-pounder quick-firing gun, made twelve consecutive hits on a target 1688 feet, at a range of a thousand yards, while the ship was steaming at full speed, and in the space of 45 seconds. The British navy has the best ships. It looks, also, as if it had the best men to man them and to fight them, if occasion requires.—Montreal Gazette.

President Taft told a Roman Catholic missionary convention in Washington last week that it was a good thing for the Roman Catholic Church in the Philippines that other denominations were working there, and had no objection or competition as long as a thing in religion as in other affairs.

Some of Mr. Landry's statements he admits the correctness of others, explaining that Mr. Fournier is subject to the rules of the institution. These rules were made fifty years ago, Judge Langlois, therefore, in committing Mr. Fournier to the care of Sheriff Langelier, who is in duty bound to subject his prisoner to prison rules which were made fifty years ago, at a time when prison rules were much more harsh than are the rules which are made for the regulation of prisons in these modern days, has little regard for what may happen to the prisoner. Now we do not for a moment assume that Mr. Sheriff Langelier would have any desire to treat his prisoner more harshly than the prison rules provide. But in Mr. Fournier's case it is necessary to point out that this man is not only deprived of his liberty for three months, but is subject to very harsh treatment in jail under the rules of the prison, because, he called attention to the inefficient manner in which justice is administered in the province to which he belongs, and this is done not by a jury or even by a court, properly speaking, but by the will of a single individual judge who seems to have felt himself personally aggrieved by the observations which Mr. Fournier made.—Globe.

Gardiner, Maine.—"I have been a great sufferer from organic troubles, and a severe female weakness. The doctor said I would have to go to the hospital for an operation, but I could not bear to think of it. I decided to try Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound and Sanative Wash—and was entirely cured after three months' use of them."—Mrs. S. A. Williams, R. F. D. No. 14, Box 39, Gardiner, Me.

No woman should submit to a surgical operation, which may mean death, until she has given Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, made exclusively from roots and herbs, a fair trial.

This famous medicine for women has for thirty years proved to be the most valuable tonic and renewer of the female organism. Women residing in almost every city and town in the United States bear willing testimony to the wonderful virtue of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound. It cures female ills, and creates radiant, buoyant female health. If you are ill, for your own sake as well as those you love, give it a trial.

Mrs. Pinkham, at Lynn, Mass., invites all sick women to write her for advice. Her advice is free, and always helpful.

This paper reprinted, a few days ago, a statement published by Hon. Mr. Landry, a Quebec senator, who gave some information to the public regarding the treatment of Mr. Fournier, an editor, who is imprisoned in Montreal for contempt of court. It seems out fair to publish a counter statement of Mr. Charles Langelier, the sheriff, in whose charge Mr. Fournier is. On the other hand, the fact may be noted that while Sheriff Langelier contemplates Henry B. Breen of Birmingham, N. S., but now of the W. E. Forbes Co. of this town. Rev. Dr. Clark was the officiating clergyman. The bride was charmingly attired in white silk, en Princesse, with trinkets of Valenciennes lace. Miss Margaret Harper of Zachary played the wedding music. The groom's gift to the bride was a diamond ring.

Owing to the recent death of the groom's mother, the wedding was very quiet, only the usual friends being present.

Mr. and Mrs. English left on Friday on the Maritime for Halifax, and other Nova Scotia towns. The bride traveled in a suit of dark blue broadcloth with hat to match. The best wishes of the many friends go with them.

BARRY-MINTYRE.

In Campbellton at nine o'clock Thursday in the church of our Lady of Snows a very pretty wedding was performed by the Rev. L. P. Wallace when Miss Edith M. McIntyre, third oldest daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John McIntyre of Campbellton, was united in marriage to Mr. Thomas H. Barry of the U. S. Railway Mail Service and a native of Boston, Mass. The bride wore an elegant gown of white satin and Irish point lace with a veil of embroidered net and carried a shower bouquet of white roses and lily of the valley. To the strains of Mendelssohn's wedding march played by Miss Annette Thiberge the bride entered the beautifully decorated church on the arm of her father who gave her away, while the groom was attended by Mr. Henry McIntyre of Campbellton. After the ceremony a sumptuous wedding breakfast was served at the home of the bride.

The bride's travelling gown is an exquisite garment of oatawba ladies cloth with hat to match. Saturday the couple will leave for Boston, Mass., and will reside in Dorchester, Mass. The bride was the recipient of a large number of elegant presents which included a Steinway piano, the gift of the groom.

MILLER COVELL

The wedding of Miss Blanche Inez Haskell, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Daniel Howell of this city, to Walter

J. Miller of Campbellton, N. B., took place Wednesday at noon at the home of the bride. The ceremony was performed by Rev. E. F. Pember in the presence of a large number of friends of the bride and groom. Arthur J. Watson of Kingston, N. B., was the best man and bridesmaid was Miss Edna R. Covel of this city. The maids of honor were Miss Arline Loughton, Miss Maud Johnston, Miss Ethel Gilman of this city, and Miss Glendora Thornton of Hartland, N. B. The ushers were Charles Leonard and

Paul White of this city. The ceremony was performed beneath a garland of green and cut flowers, and the home was beautifully decorated with palms and cut flowers with carnations and gladioli. The hall was attired in a beautiful gown of white satin, on train, trimmed with princess lace. She carried a large show-er bouquet of bridal roses. The bridesmaid wore a white embroidered muslin gown. The wedding march was played by Miss Ester Page and Paul White on piano and violin. A wedding luncheon was served following the ceremony and a reception

A beautiful topaz necklace set with pearls was the gift of the groom to the bride and a gold locker and chain to the bridesmaid. The bride gave

Ray Noble, of Esemunac, was drowned at Loggieville Thursday afternoon. He fell from a scow being loaded at Danery & McDonald's mill and did not rise again. He was working near the edge and lost his balance, falling into the water. William Murdoch heard the splash and looking around saw Noble struggling. He was unable to help him and ran up the wharf to get assistance. When he returned Noble was nowhere to be seen, and it is supposed he was dragged under the scows by the powerful current, and though he was a strong swimmer, the suction kept him under. He was 22 years of age and a fine specimen of physical manhood.

Elmer L. Crocker, son of James T. Crocker, of Millerton, is home from Arizona on a vacation after being in the middle Western States, Chihuahua and Sonora, Mexico and Arizona for the last six years. He is now employed with the Copper Queen Consolidated Company at Bisbee, Arizona, where within a radius of a few miles, there are about 30,000 people mining being the chief industry. Farming is all done by irrigation, farmers being better satisfied there than where they have to depend upon the rainfall directly. The Roosevelt and Laguna dams on the Gila river are two of the biggest irrigation works in the world. The minimum wages in Bisbee is $105 a month, board costing $30.00 a month. Cost of living about 50% higher than in the east. The foreman in Arizona mining camps, Mr. Crocker says, are nearly all natives of the maritime provinces. Quite a lot of men from King's Co., N. B., are in Bisbee. Mr. Crocker on his return will visit Cobalt, Ontario, and British Columbia. He looks well and has evidently been successful.

KERMIT GETS THE BIGGEST LION

NAIVASHA, British East Africa, June 22.—After comparative silence for over a fortnight, the first news of the Roosevelt expedition came into this place Tuesday. All the members of the expedition are in excellent health and the party is at present in camp on the Lolita Plains in the Sotik district. Theodore Roosevelt has shot another lion, while a very large tawney-maned lion has fallen before the rifle of his son Kermit. This animal holds the record for size on the present expedition. Kermit has killed also two cheetahs. In addition the party has secured three giraffes, two eland, six topi and a large number of minor antelopes. All the skins are being preserved for the Smithsonian Institution at Washington.

On Sunday next the Rev. Dr. Cousins of St. John, who occupied the pulpit of the Baptist church last Sunday, will again preach both morning and evening. Visitors will be gladly welcomed to all the services.

FINDINGS KEEPING

D. Wilson a colored gentleman, picked up a wad of bills on the street and proceeded to appropriate the same to his own use. He was arrested and appeared before Judge Matheson, and pleaded ignorance. Upon repaying the amount involved His Honor allowed him to go with a few words of advice.
