"Gentlemen,—I feel it my duty to express to you the benefit I have derived from Milburn's Heart and Nerve Pills. A year ago last spring I began to have heart failure. At first I would have to stop working, and lie down for a while. I then got so bad that I had to give up altogether and go to bed. I had several doctors to attend me, but they did me no good. I got no relief until urged by a friend to try Milburn's Heart and Nerve Pills. I sent to the store for a box, and by the time I had taken three boxes of it I began to get relief, and by the time I had taken three boxes I was completely cured. I feel very grateful to your medicine for what it has done for me.—Miss L. L. Hanson, Waterford, N.B."

GREAT REFORM
Mayor Leads Way to Mourners' Bench, City Council Follows

Ocean City, N. J., Feb. 23.—The millennium has come in Ocean City. After a ten days' campaign by an evangelist of the name of Webber against the world, the flesh and the devil, the only feature of the town that savors in the slightest degree of worldliness is the proximity of Atlantic City, just across Egg harbor from here.

Mayor Joseph C. Champion, his brother, the city treasurer, and Postmaster Sutton led the way to the mourners' bench in the First Methodist Episcopal Church, where the revival is being held. They were followed one by one by the members of the Common Council until but one of the body remains unreclaimed.

Last night the meeting of the Council, which hitherto has displayed no signal characteristics to distinguish it from worldly-wise lawmakers of other cities, was opened by prayer, and after the usual adjournment the city fathers carried a while in the chamber for service of song and further devotions.

The Rev. Pennington Carson, pastor of the First M. E. Church, said to-day that "out of the whole population of 10,000 in the town, there remained only fifty who had not confessed their salvation at his church within the last ten days."

A visitor finds this startling statement easy to believe. When he alights from the train, as happened to strangers who arrived to-day, he is met by deputations of citizens, under the leadership of a church officer.

"Are you saved?" asks the spokesman, and if the visitor replies negatively or seeks to dodge the issue by equivocation, he is deluged with tracts and pressed to attend the meetings at the First Church.

The wave of revival has swept the place from end to end. The younger people are foremost in helping the movement along.

The members of the Ocean City Athletic Club, a social organization in which card playing and dancing were permitted, last night passed a resolution barring all cards from the clubhouse and calling upon dealers in the city to destroy their stock of playing cards. The dealers responded gladly and all the cards were torn up and thrown into the street.

But one of the greatest surprises of the week met the residents of the town this morning when they went abroad. Running off the main street of the town in an narrow alley darkly suspected of being the abiding place of a certain "speakeasy", or resort where the sale of liquor is carried on. Whether this place was conducted without the knowledge of the city officials or with their countenance was a mooted question among the residents in this prohibition community.

This morning the alley was decorated with a litter of splintered glass from curb to curb. Beer stood in puddles along the gutters and the scent that arose from the mess informed the citizens that during that night the proprietor of the "speakeasy" had destroyed his stock in-trade.

Ever since the arrival of Evangelist Webber, two weeks ago, the daily and nightly services at the First Church have been the scenes of the wildest religious enthusiasm ever seen in this city, which occupied during the summer season as a camp-meeting community.

On Thursday night the revival service began at 9 o'clock, after the usual mid week prayer meeting Rev Webber addressed the meeting in a powerful exhortation, and soon the congregation was surging about the pulpit. It was after daylight before the meeting closed.

It's because your nerves are in a weak irritable condition. Ferrazone will make them strong and correct the trouble causing your insomnia. "I fell into a state of nervous exhaustion last fall," writes Mrs. J. Stoud of Dexter. "I was run down, couldn't sleep and felt perfectly miserable,—tried Ferrazone and was quickly benefited. SUNDAY LAWS
Position in New Brunswick

"Whoever shall openly desecrate the Lord's Day, commonly called Sunday, by shooting, gaming, sporting, playing, hunting, drinking, or frequenting tippling houses, or by servile labor (works of mercy or necessity excepted), shall for every offence pay a fine not exceeding forty shillings, or be committed to jail for a term not exceeding four days."

This law, passed previous to Confederation, but never repealed, is the law of New Brunswick regarding Sabbath observance, now that the subsequent legislation on the subject has been declared unconstitutional. A lawyer who has had much to do with the enforcement of Sabbath laws, said to the Globe to-day that this old law, passed in 1871, still remained on the statute book, and under it there would be opportunity for those interested in the strict observance of the Sabbath to take action. The main difficulty would arise over the question of what is meant by the term servile labor. Magistrate Ritchie had once recorded a conviction under this act against a city merchant who had opened his store on the Sabbath. The defence contended that the merchant could not be charged with doing servile work, as he was working for himself.

Apparently there is a nice point here for argument. On the face of it, the man working for others might be considered as performing servile labor, but courts might not hold that this applied to the merchant who conducted his own business on the Sabbath. There is also room for wide discussion as to what is meant by works of necessity and mercy. The street cars, the ferry and such like might be held to be works of necessity, as might delivering milk, running hotels, etc. The minister preaching in his pulpit and the paid organist and choir singer might also come under the category of those performing works of mercy, while the servant at home preparing their dinner would hardly be doing either a work of mercy or necessity. The question is a very broad one. The legislature of New Brunswick, so the lawyers said, could repeal this old act if it so desired, but it would seem to be doubtful if it has any right to amend it or to give a meaning to its provisions. It was pointed out to the Globe as somewhat strange the very indefinite form in which the act was framed, when old acts in England and other provinces were careful to state more clearly the kinds of work that could not be performed on the Sabbath.

The reporter raised the question if the recent decision would not affect the provisions of the liquor law regarding Sunday selling, but the lawyer said no. The Supreme Court of Canada has held the act to be legal and the Sunday provisions are merely regulations in an act the legislature is admitted to have had the right to pass.

MR. J. H. KELLY'S SPEECH
See 7th page

A nation that turns its mind to agriculture is always a prosperous nation, and so it is with a province. Show me a nation that devotes its time to agriculture, and I will show you a nation that is strong and great.

To-day the world over we read of troubles and uprisings, of discord and discontent, of large masses of men defying the constitutions of their country, but these happenings are never found in the agricultural classes of society, and that is why I say that our province is destined to become great and strong for the great masses of our population is made up of people, whose interests are concentrated in their farms and homesteads.

The Grand result achieved by our farmers produced at the St. Louis fair is one that is most gratifying. At this great exhibition we find products and farm produce coming, not only from the new world, but also from the old. The best farming countries sent there best produce. The Province of Quebec was of the number, and the Province of Quebec carried off some of the highest honors.

This result is one which will be most beneficial. It speaks volumes in favor of our government which decided to enter into this great competition with the rest of the world. It proclaims to the universe the superiority of our Canadian soil, and above all is a great and lasting tribute to our brave Canadian farmers.

Viewing from the present time the wonderful progress that has been accomplished in the Province of Quebec, and lifting the veil of the future, we cannot do otherwise than come to the conclusion, that the future of the country is one of proud destiny.

We have in the province of Quebec the essential ingredients to become a solid substantial commanding factor in the great confederation of which we form a part. Our territory commencing at L'Anse au Blanc Sablon, at the entry of the strait of Belle Isle, the gateway of the Atlantic, and stretching westward to Lake Temiscamingue, covers an area of 347,000 square miles, that is to say a territory as large as France and Germany, or three times as large as the Kingdom of Great Britain and Ireland. In this immense stretch of land we have some of the finest water ways to be found on the face of the globe. The noble St. Lawrence, with its wide extending branches, penetrating to the very heart of our country, offers facilities unsurpassed nowhere as natural avenues of commerce. Our water powers are many, and they excel not only in their numbers, but also in their power and impetuosity. Our lumbering interests which since a few years only have commenced to be developed, and our great forests still unpenetrated contain the wealth of our people. The ground on which we tread, which yields from its surface alone the bread of our people, hides still deeper in its bosom, minerals which when explored will attract the attention of nations. The facilities and advantages of manufacturing pulp, which is in such demand in the world at large is another of the many resources with which Providence has endowed us. The great district to the north of us, which was annexed to our Province in 1868, containing an area of nearly 42,000 miles, promises much for the future. This district is as yet not completely explored, it is true, but from what we know of it we feel safe in saying that we have there the nucleus of another great and large province. Were the present government so disposed, by a stroke of the pen it could by relinquishing our claim to a part of this new district, wipe out our large provincial debt and remain with a balance on the credit side.

When we consider for a moment what was accomplished during the last century by our people, and the circumstances under which they labored, we compound with our position to-day our future works begin still.

We commenced the last century with a handful of men without means or resources, scattered here and there along the banks of the St. Lawrence; the two grand elements forming our population of To-day were at war I might say with one another; and discord and discontent prevailed throughout the land; the next step saw our forefathers engaged in the serious war of 1812, which called to the battle fields the flower of our youth; no sooner had that war passed over when we had to have recourse to the rebellion of 1837; then followed the wrangling and fighting against the family compact that held the weight of power in Upper Canada and it was only in 1867 that we cured the constitution which we have to-day.

Notwithstanding all these obstacles, the Province of Quebec, remained true to the object it wished to attain; and at the end of the 19th century it emerged stronger and greater than ever. When we take this glance backwards, and oppose it with our position of today, where peace and harmony reign throughout the land, where the old rascal questions are long a thing of the past, where over 3,500,000 of railway tracks with mighty cars and powerful engines have replaced the snowshoe tracks of the weary traveler, where forts and barracks have made way to schools and colleges, where the war cry of the blood thirsty Indian which filled the men and women with fear and anxiety is replaced in the forest by the whistles of mills and future with confidence and anticipation.

By remaining true to the principles set forth in the speech of the throne, education, colonization, agriculture, and the development of our great resource we will then realize the truth of the prediction of Sir Wilfrid Laurier, that "If the 19th century was the century of the United States, the 20th century is that of the Dominion of Canada," and I may add the century of the Province of Quebec.

CARON POINT

As our little town has not been heard from of late I think it time that the quietness be once more disturbed by the pen of a correspondent and its doings made known to the busy world of which it forms a part.

Dear readers, by the gentle winds accompanied by the boiling sun of Friday and Sunday last, I began to think of the good old summer time. But lo! or awakening this morning I beheld the beautiful flakes of snow falling so thickly around, and my heart sank back from whence it sprung. I should think the innumerable storms of the past 2 months would be quite discouraging to the portagers, labourers, sports, and especially to managers of the Carquet Railway who are having such a serious time to keep the road open. They deserve credit for their perseverance and energy.

Mr Percival Ramsay is home again from Maine where he had gone to take charge of a lumbering camp there.

If run or speaks true we will soon miss one of our enterprising young ladies, in the person of Miss Ruby Bateman, who leaves for the States in a few days. We wish her bon voyage and a speedy return.

Mr Magnus Cluston of Pennsylvania who is spending a few weeks at his home in Derby Northumberland Co paid Caron Point a flying visit last week.

Mr Lockard Cluston has returned home from the woods after finishing his large lumber contract for the Tracadie Lumber Co.

Mr. and Mrs. Albert Hinton of Bathurst were the guests of Mrs White on Sunday afternoon.

We were very sorry to hear of the illness of Master Hermin Gammon and hope he will soon recover.

Mr Allen, Bailiur of Salmon Beach spent Sunday evening the guest of Mr George Ronald.

Messrs Elmer Ronald and Wm Watson has returned home after spending the winter in Moose Brook; in the employ of Adams Burns & Co.

Mrs. Wallace Ronald accompanied by her two little girls left for Chatham on Tuesday where she intends spending a few weeks the guest of her sister Mrs Thos Smith.

Snow shoeing seems to be the order of the day, as most of our young ladies and gentlemen formed a snow shoe party on Friday evening last but owing to bad roads and absent minded people they returned home much discouraged and disappointed.

St Valentines Day did not pass by unheeded, as Valentines seemed to be so plentiful, some of the folk undertook to paper a summer resort with them.

Mrs John Ronald is seriously ill at the home of her daughter Mrs Andrew Ramsay.

We are glad to note that Miss May Ramsay is convalescent. We hope she will soon be able to take her former place amongst us.

The correspondent wishes to inform the readers, that he was treated to apples picked from a tree on Feb 28. They tasted most delicious.

Every Two Minutes

Physicians tell us that all the blood in a healthy human body passes through the heart once in every two minutes. If this action becomes irregular the whole body suffers. Poor health follows poor blood; Scott's Emulsion makes the blood pure. One reason why is such a great aid is because it passes so quickly into the blood. It is partly digested before it enters the stomach; a double advantage in this. Less work for the stomach; quicker and more direct benefits. To get the greatest amount of good with the least possible effort is the desire of everyone in poor health. Scott's Emulsion does just that. A change for the better takes place even before you expect it.

We will send you a sample free. Be sure and get this picture in the form of a label on the wrapper of every bottle of Emulsion you buy.

GRAND PABOS

The marriage of Miss C. Arseneau to Mr. John Myles took place at Caplin Monday Feb 20th. After spending a few days at the home of the happy couple accompanied by James G. Forsythe of Shigawake drove here where a reception was held in their honor at "Myles Hotel". The evening was well spent by all. Songs and recitations by some of our popular friends were rendered.

Among the guests present were Mr and Mrs. Mike Murphy, Mr Simon Mauger, Mr Will Hurley and several others.

Lewis P. Tapp representing Thomas Orger Co spent a few days here last week.

The marriage of Miss Anne Furlotte to Mr Charles Dugas took place at the home of the bride on St Patrick's Day. The bride was becomingly attired in navy blue cloth trimmed with white fur and looked charming. The young couple were the recipients of many valuable presents.

P. S. Martin representing Black Printing Co. accompanied by his wife passed through here on Thursday enroute to Gaspe.

Mr Andy has been appointed Road Master by Mr. Lewis Tapp and we trust with a new man at the wheel who will look after things roads will be kept in a better condition than they have been in the past.

Mrs P Hurley and little son John A. are visiting in Anse Aux Gascons. The people are complaining about the scarcity of hay and oats; one consolation is that rabbits are plentiful.

Wedding bells will ring in Barchois in the near future.

Invitations are out for a dinner to be given in Barchois, by some of the young ladies on St Patrick's Day.

Mr Victor Caron Breche a Manon has purchased the Tremblay Block and intends running a large up-to-date hotel.

The party given by the Misses Myles the guests of their Hotel on Monday evening was a success. Many of the Commercial men from different places gathered with the country folks to a good time, as well as a few of their special friends. Music and dancing were the order of the evening, and every one departed in the "wee hours" well pleased with the manner in which they were entertained.

Deceased was an old and faithful employee of the I. C. R. for a number of years. Much sorrow is felt for the sorrowing family in their bereavement.

MR ALEXANDER CURRIE

Mr Alexander Currie, native of Point LaNim, County of P. Sigouche, N. B., died at Rio Vista Solano County California on January 21st 1905 at the age of 61 years 2 mos and 22 days. He was buried on January 21st in his family plot in the Masonic and Odd-Fellows Cemetery at Rio Vista.

The funeral service being conducted by the Rev Herbert Livingston of the Congregational church and the Masonic services by his Brethren of Rio Vista Lodge 208 of which he was a devoted member.

The deceased came to Rio Vista in the 60's and located in what is known as the Montezuma Hills on a ranch of 150 acres about seven miles west of Rio Vista together with his father and mother and two sisters. Another sister Mrs. Thos Menzies with her husband and family living at that time on an adjoining ranch, this sister having departed this life some years later her family removed to other parts of the state. The two sisters who came here with Mr. Currie and his parents both married a few years after coming to California one became the wife of Daniel Stewart and died in the year 1875, the other is Mrs: Chas Howard of San Jose Cal.

It seems a pity to throw away a good part of a bunch of parsley, yet in small families it is often hard to use it all before it withers and turns yellow. It is said that the sprays will keep perfectly if put in a fruit jar with layers of salt.

One prominent decorator says that every room to be successful must have a feature—that is, a special decoration that gives character to the whole room.

To make a low room look higher let the curtains hang to the floor. Short curtains make a room look lower than it is.

REASON No 4

WHY YOU SHOULD USE

Red Rose Tea

Because it is perfectly clean.

Wouldn't you like to know that the tea you drink has not been touched by human hand since it was plucked on the plantation?

This is what you get in Red Rose Tea. The old method of rolling and packing tea by hand has been entirely done away with on the tea estates where Red Rose Tea is produced. There, as well as in the blending and packing rooms, machinery—scrupulously clean machinery—is used exclusively.

Red Rose Tea is never touched by hand after being plucked.

This fact alone will help you enjoy drinking it. The Blue Label is recommended.

OUR WINTER.

While for weeks past the papers of the provinces have been devoting columns after columns about snow storms, snow blizzards, snow drifts, snow troubles and snow generally with which the southern part of New Brunswick, Nova Scotia, P. E. Island and the Eastern States have been so generously supplied, we of the so-called snow bound North have been enjoying one of the most delightful winters in the memory of the oldest residents. True the thermometer at times was low but our snow fall is much below the average and our streets are as level as, and we might say a great deal more passable than in the summer time. The roads through the country are in good condition and the hauling is excellent.

Taking all these facts into consideration we would invite our friends of the Snowbound South to come and spend the winter with us in the Sunny North.

The school question or any other question cannot effect the prosperity of Canada's North West.

TARTE BBAIR AND SIFTON.

It is worthy of note that the three members of Laurier's cabinet who were so roundly denounced by the Tories a few years ago as tricksters, schemers, etc., have one after the other resigned, because of principles and policies which would not permit them to agree with their leader. Messrs Tarte, Blair and Sifton—the wicked trio—have been the only members of the cabinet who have had the courage to differ with Laurier, any important question. Did they deserve all or any of the abuse heaped upon them? Posterity may yet do much for them.

Kuropatkin is retreating towards Harbin—still "during him on"

OVERESTIMATED

Hon Clifford Sifton, minister of the interior in the cabinet of Sir Wilfrid Laurier has resigned because of his educational clause in the North West Antiquity bill. It has always been a deep and unfathomable mystery to us why there is such bitter opposition to separate schools. While we do not approve of the separate school system for any community or country we see no reason to condemn it in such loud voiced fashion. The importance of the question has been overestimated.

The local Legislature meets this afternoon.

A Chicago Alderman Owes His Election to Chamberlain's Cough Remedy.

"I can heartily and conscientiously recommend Chamberlain's Cough Remedy for affections of the throat and lungs," says Hon. John Shenick, 220 So. Peoria St., Chicago. "Two years ago during a political campaign, I caught cold after being overheated, which irritated my throat and I was finally compelled to stop, as I could not speak aloud. In my extremity a friend advised me to use Chamberlain's Cough Remedy. I took two doses that afternoon and could not believe my senses when I found the next morning the inflammation had largely subsided. I took several doses that day, kept right on talking through the campaign, and I thank this medicine that I won my seat in the Council." This remedy is for sale by all druggists.

FINANCIAL PANIC

Redding & Sons Assign and Bank of Yarmouth Closes its Doors

Yarmouth, N.S. March 9.—(Special)—A notice posted on the doors of the Bank of Yarmouth this morning informed the public that the bank had suspended payment. The notice was signed by President Lovett and Cashier Johns and states that the bank is open only for the payment of drafts and other obligations due to the bank. This following the announcement that W. H. Redding and Sons, wholesale boot and shoe manufacturers, assigned on Saturday night to E. H. Armstrong, official assigner, caused considerable excitement about town. The firm consists of W. H. Redding and his four sons, John, Frederick, Edward and William. The firm came here from Hebron many years ago and erected a factory on Hawthorne str. et, equipping it with all modern machinery and up to the present time was doing a large business, extending as far as Winnipeg. The liabilities are said to be large but nothing definite is known. Their principal creditor is the Bank of Yarmouth.

Negotiations are still going on between the Union Bank of Halifax and it is believed the former will take over what the latter may have to sell. How the failure may effect the deal is not known to outsiders. The wildest rumors are afloat respecting the firm's liabilities to the bank, but when the accounts which are due in many parts of Canada are paid the amount may get down to a sum not so appalling as stated to-day. Wm. Perry teller of the bank resigned owing to making advances to the Reddings without authority. Perry is popular with everybody and had been in the bank since boyhood and has much sympathy in his trouble. Unless the Redding continue the failure will be a bad blow for Yarmouth. It employed about 100 hands the majority of whom were paid by orders on merchants. This means perhaps that many of our local dealers may become direct losers by the firm's methods of conducting a large business.

Champion Liniment for Rheumatism

Chas. Drake, a mail carrier at Chapinville, Conn., says: "Chamberlain's Pain Balm is the champion of all liniments. The past year I was troubled with a great deal of rheumatism in my shoulder. There is no use of any one suffering from that painful ailment when this liniment can be obtained for a small sum. One application gives prompt relief and its continued use for a short time will produce a permanent cure. For sale by all druggists.

WEDDING BELLS

A very pretty wedding took place at the Presbyterian church New Carlisle, when Miss Flora M. Assels, eldest daughter of Mr. James Assels, was married to Mr. James I. Mabe of Corner of the Beach, Perce, Rev. F. M. Sutherland officiating.

The bride who was given away by her father, wore a gown of cream voile with trimmings of lace also veil and a wreath of orange blossoms. The bride was attended by her only sister Miss Alice who wore white.

The best man was Mr. Albert Mabe cousin of the groom. After the ceremony the happy couple and invited guests drove to the residence of the bride where supper was served. The bride received many handsome and useful presents.

They left next morning for their home in Perce. Miss Assels will be greatly missed in New Carlisle where she was a general favorite and a useful member of society.

The home of Mr. and Mrs. William Berryman, Parshboro, N.S. was the scene of a very pretty home wedding on Feb. 28th at eight o'clock P.M. when Miss Lillie Jeffers was united in marriage to Mr. B. R. Patterson of Gaspe. The bride, who was tastefully attired in white organdie with wedding veil and orange blossoms entered the room on the arm of her brother Mr. George Jeffers, to the strains of the wedding march played by Mrs. Wm. Berryman. The ceremony was performed by the Rev. J. S. Coffin in the presence of the intimate friends of the family. The parlor was very prettily decorated for the occasion with flowers. After the ceremony the guests retired to the dining room where a recherche supper was served. The bride was the recipient of many beautiful and valuable presents.

MESSRS C C RICHARDS & CO., Gentlemen—Theodore Durais, a customer of mine, was completely cured of rheumatism after five years of suffering, by the judicious use of MINARDS LINIMENT.

The above facts can be verified by writing to him, to the Parish Priest or any of his neighbors.

Anti-Narcotics.

In 1900 the men of Canada spent one million dollars on chewing and smoking tobacco; more than two hundred thousand dollars on cigars, and seven hundred and fifty thousand dollars on cigarettes.

Most smokers become such when young, and the cigarette makes an easy beginning. In it the tobacco has to be ground so small that the better quality of leaves is never used, filthy cigar stubs are gathered up and used also, and to the refuse is added rum and various drugs, especially opium.

Cigarettes are supposed to be wrapped in rice paper, but that being expensive, a substitute is used which is exceedingly injurious to the mouth and throat.

One of the worst evils of the cigarette is that the smoke, instead of being allowed to pass out of the mouth, is usually taken into the lungs, thus the poison enters more directly into the system. Then there is so little odor belonging to them a child can smoke and not be detected. Further, they are so cheap children can easily get money enough to buy them. But perhaps the greatest evil is that they open the door to all the other evils.

E. O. Taylor says: "It is like a toboggan slide, it leads downward swiftly." It is first the cigarette, then the cup, cards, profanity, licentiousness, indolence, disease loss of character and reputation, insanity, death. What a terrible slide, yet thousands of boys are on the downward grade to-day. There are many, of course, who are not killed outright, but every child who uses cigarettes to any extent is below par.

The Gentleman From Indiana

By BOOTH TARRINGTON

Copyright, 1899, by Doubleday (D. McClure Co.
Copyright, 1902, by McClure, Phillips & Co.

Miss Sherwood observed that Mrs. Wimby's husband was remarkable for the exceeding plainness of his expression. He was a weazen, blank, pale eyed little man, with a thin white mist of neck whisker, and he was dressed in clothes much too large for him. No more inoffensive figure than this feeble little old man could be imagined, yet his was the distinction of having received a hostile visit from his neighbors of the Crossroads. A vagabonding thinker, he had married the one respectable person of the section, a widow, who had refused several gentlemen at the Crossroads, and so complete was the bridegroom's insignificance that to all the world his own name was lost. The bride continued to be known by her former name as "Mrs. Wimby," and her spouse was usually called "Widder Woman Wimby's husband" or "Mr. Wimby." The bride supplied his wardrobe with the garments of her former husband, and, alleging this proceeding as the cause of their anger, the White Caps broke into the farmhouse one night, tore the old man from his bed and before his wife's eyes lashed him with sapling whips till he was near to death. A little yellow cur that had followed his master on his wanderings was found lying the old man's wounds, and they deluged the dog with kerosene and then threw the poor animal upon a bonfire they had made and danced around in heartiest enjoyment.

The man recovered, but that was no palliation of the offense to the mind of a hot eyed young man from the east who was besieging the county authorities for redress and writing brimstone and saltpeper for his paper. The powers of the county proving either lackadaisical or timorous, he appealed to those of the state, and he went every night to sleep at a farmhouse the owner of which had received a warning from the White Caps, and one night it befell that he was rewarded, for the raiders attempted an entrance. He and the farmer and the farmer's sons beat off the marauders and did a satisfactory amount of damage in return. Two of the White Caps they captured and bound, and others they recognized. Then the state authorities hearkened to the voice of the hero and his owner. There were arrests, and in the course of time there was a trial. Every prisoner proved an alibi—could have proved a dozen—but the editor of the Herald, after virtually conducting the prosecution, went upon the stand and swore to what after man, might men went to the penitentiary on his evidence, five of them for twenty years. The Plattville brass band serenaded the editor of the Herald again.

There were no more raids, and the six Crossroads men who were left kept to their hovels, appalled and shaken, but as time went by and left them unmolested they recovered a measure of their hardness and began to think on what they should do to the man who had brought misfortune and terror upon them. For a long time he had been publishing their threatening letters and warnings in a column which he headed "Humor of the Day."

When the Briscoe buckboard had left the Crossroads far behind and had come in sight of Plattville Mr. Briscoe's visitor turned to Flisbee with a repetition of the shiver that the laughter of Mr. Skillet had caused her and said half under her breath, "I wish—I half wish—that we had not driven through there." She clasped Mr. Flisbee's hand gently. His eyes shone. He touched her fingers with a strange, shy reverence.

"You will meet him tomorrow," he said softly.

She laughed and pressed his hand. "I'm afraid not. I was almost at his side last night when Minnie asked him to call on me. He wasn't even interested enough to look at me."

Something over two hours later, as Mr. Tom Martin was routine things to

KIDNEY DISEASE.

Diseases of the Kidneys are numerous, from the fact that these organs act as filters to the blood, and form one of the great channels for the removal of impurities from the system, which, if allowed to remain, give rise to the various kidney ailments, such as Dropsy, Diabetes, and Bright's Disease.

The following are some of the symptoms of kidney disease: Backache, aching of the feet and ankles, frequent thirst, puffiness under the eyes, floating specks before the eyes, and all disorders of the urinary system, such as frequent, thick, cloudy, scanty, or highly colored urine.

DOAN'S KIDNEY PILLS are exactly what the name suggests. They are not a cure-all, but are a specific for kidney troubles only. Price 50 cents per box, or 3 for $1.25. All dealers, or THE DOAN KIDNEY PILL CO., Toronto, Ont.

him in his domain, the dry woods Emporium, previous to his departure for the drug store, he stumbled over something soft lying on the floor behind a counter. The thing rose and would have evaded him, but he put out his hands and plucked it and dragged it to the show window, where the light of the fading day defined his capture. The creature shrieked and squirmed and fought earnestly. Grasped by the shoulder, he held a lean, fierce eyed, undersized girl of fourteen clad in one ragged cotton garment, unless the coat of dust she wore over all might be esteemed another. Her cheeks were sallow, and her brow was already shrewdly lined, and her eyes were as hypocritical as they were savage. She was very thin and little, but old Tom's brown face grew a shade nearer white when the light fell upon her.

"You're no Plattville girl," he said sharply.

"You lie!" cried the child. "You lie! I am! You leave me go, will you? I'm lookin' for pap, and you're a liar!"

"You crawled in here to sleep after your seven mile walk, didn't you?" Martin went on.

"You're a liar!" she screamed.

"Look here," said Martin slowly. "You go back to six Crossroads and tell your folks that if anything happens to a hair of Mr. Harkless' head every shanty in your town will burn, and your grandfather, and your father, and your uncles, and your brothers, and your cousins, and your second cousins, and your third cousins will never have the good luck to see the penitentiary. Reckon you can remember that message? But before I let you go to carry it I guess you might as well hand out the paper they sent you over here with."

His prisoner fell into a paroxysm of rage.

"I'll git pap to kill ye!" she shrieked, striking at him with her fist, and shouting at him, "I don't know nothin' about yer six Crossroads, ner no papers, ner yer Mr. Harkless neither, ner you, yer razorbacked ole devil. Pap! I'll kill ye! Leave me go! Leave me go! Pap! I'll kill ye! I'll git him to kill ye!" Suddenly her struggles ceased, her eyes closed, her tense little muscles relaxed, and she dropped toward the floor. The old man shifted his grip to support her, and in an instant she twisted out of his hands and sprang out of reach, her eyes shining with triumph and venom.

"Fahay, Mr. Razorback!" she shrieked. "How's that for high? Pap! I'll kill ye Sunday! Ye'll be screechin' in hell in a week, an' we'll set up an' drink applejack an' eat!"

Martin pursued her lumberingly, but she was agile as a monkey and ran dodging up and down the counters and mocked him, singing, "Gran'mamma, Tipsey Toot!" At last she tired of the game and darted out of the door, flinging a bouree laugh at him as she went. He followed, but when he reached the door he found she was gone, sitting under the courthouse trees. He looked after her forebodingly, then turned his eyes toward the Palace hotel on the corner. The editor of the Herald was seated under the wooden awning, with his chair tilted back against a post, gazing dreamily at the murky red afterglow in the west.

"What's the use of tryin' to git that old Tom?" asked himself. "He'd only laugh." He noted that young William Todd, the drug book and wall paper clerk, sat near the editor, whistling absently. Martin chuckled. William's turn tonight," he murmured. "Well, the boys'll take care of him." He locked the doors of the Emporium, tried them and dropped the keys in his pocket.

As he crossed the square to the drug store, where his cronies awaited him, he turned again to look at the figure of the musing journalist. "He ought to go out there," he said and shook his head sadly. "I don't reckon Plattville's any too spy for that young man. Five years he's been here. Well, it's a good thing for us, but I guess it ain't exactly high life for him." He kicked a stick out of his way impatiently. "Now, where'd that imp run to?" he grumbled.

The imp was lying under the courthouse steps, when the sound of Martin's footsteps had passed away she crept cautiously from her hiding place and stole through the grassy ground grass to the fence opposite the hotel. Here she stretched herself flat in the weeds and took from the tangled masses of her hair, where it was tied with a strip of a rolled up, crumpled slip of greasy paper. With this in her fingers she lay peering under the fence, her fierce eyes fixed unwinkingly on the editor of the Herald.

The street ran flat and gray in the slowly gathering dusk straight to the western horizon, where the sunset enshrouded in long, glowing, dark red streaks. The maple trees were clean cut silhouettes against the pale rose and pearl tints of the sky above, and a tenderness seemed to shimmer in the air. The editor often vowed to himself he would watch no more sunsets in Plattville. He thought they were making him morbid. Could he have shared them it would have been different.

His long, melancholy face grew longer and more melancholy in the twilight, while William Todd patiently whistled near by. Plattville had often discussed the editor's habit of silence, and possibly the reason Mr. Harkless was such a quiet man was that there was nobody for him to talk to; but his hearers did not agree, for the population of Carlow county was a thing of pride, being greater than that of several bordering counties.

A bent figure came slowly down the street, and William Todd halted it cheerfully. "Evening, Mr. Flisbee."

"A good evening, Mr. Todd," answered the old man, pausing. "Ah, Mr. Harkless, I was looking for you." He had not seemed to be looking for anything beyond the boundaries of his own dreams, but he approached Harkless, tugging nervously at some papers in his pocket. "I have completed my notes for our Saturday edition. It was quite easy, sir. There is much doing."

"Thank you, Mr. Flisbee," said Harkless as he took the manuscript. "Have you finished your paper on the earlier Christian symbolism? I hope the Herald may have the honor of printing it." This was a form they used.

"I shall be the recipient of honor, sir," returned Flisbee. "Your kind offer will speed my work; but I fear, Mr. Harkless, I very much fear, that your kindness alone prompts it, for, deeply as I desire it, I cannot truthfully say that my essays appear to increase our circulation." He made an odd, troubled gesture as he went on. "They do not go to the printer's, and although Mr. Martin assures me that he carefully reprints my article on Chaldean decoration whenever he rearranges his exhibition windows," He plucked on a few pages turned irresolutely.

"What is it, Flisbee?" asked Harkless. Flisbee stood for a moment as though about to speak; then he smiled faintly, shook his head and went his way. Harkless waved his hand to him in farewell and, drawing a pencil and a pad from his pocket, proceeded to injure his eyes in the waning twilight by the editorial penmanship of the items his staff had just left in his hands. "He glanced over them meditatively, making alterations here and there.

The last one Flisbee had written as follows:

Miss Sherwood of Rouen, whom Miss Briscoe knew at the Misses Jennings' finishing school in New York, is a guest of Judge Briscoe's household.

Flisbee's items were written in ink. There was a blank space beneath the thing had been scribbled in pencil. Harkless vainly tried to decipher it; but the twilight had fallen too deep, and the writing was too faint, so he struck a match and held it close to the paper. The action betokened only a languid interest. But when he caught sight of the first of the four subscribed lines he sat up straight in his chair, with a sharp exclamation. At the bottom of Flisbee's page was written in a dainty feminine hand of a type he had not seen for years:

"The time has come," the waitress said. "To talk of many things. Of shoes and ships and sealing wax. Of cabbages and kings."

He put the paper in his pocket and set off rapidly down the village street. At his departure William Todd looked up quickly. Then he got upon his feet, with a gasp, and quickly followed the editor. In the dusk a tattered little figure rose up from the weeds across the way and stole noiselessly after William. He was in his shirt sleeves, his waistcoat unbuttoned and loose. On the nearest corner Mr. Todd encountered a fellow townsman who had been peeping up and down in front of a cottage crooning to a protective baby held in his arms. He had paused in his vigil to stare after Harkless.

"Where's he bound for, William?" inquired the man with the baby.

"Briscoe's," answered William, pursuing his way.

"I reckoned he would be," observed the other, turning to his wife, who sat on the doorstep. "I reckoned so when I saw that lady at the lecture last night."

The woman rose to her feet. "Hi, Bill Todd!" she said. "What ye got on to the back of yer vest?" William paused, put his hand behind him and encountered a paper pinned to the dangling strap of his waistcoat. The woman ran to him and unbuttoned the paper. It bore a writing. They took it to where the yellow lamplight shone out through the open door and read:

"Der Sir-Poler harkle! Al ye plas an' gaird him yer best vengeance is clostest; harkle! not get 2 due to live we come in wit."

"What ye think, William?" asked the man with the baby anxiously. But the woman gave the youth a sharp push with her hand. "They never das to do it!" she cried; "never in the world! You hurry, Bill Todd. Don't leave him out of your sight one second."

CHAPTER III.

THE street upon which the Palace hotel fronted formed the south side of the square and ran west to the edge of the town, where it turned to the south for a quarter of a mile or more, then bent to the west again. Some distance from this second turn there stood, fronting close on the road, a large brick house, the most pretentious mansion in Carlow county. And yet it was a homelike place, with its red brick walls embowered in masses of cool Virginia creeper and a comfortable veranda crossing the broad front, while half a hundred stalwart sentinels of elm and beech and poplar stood guard around it. The front walk was bordered by geraniums and hollyhocks, and honeysuckle climbed the pillars of the porch. Behind the house there was a shady little orchard, and back of the orchard an old fashioned, very fragrant rose garden, divided by a long grape arbor, extended to the shallow waters of a wandering creek, and on the bank a rustic seat was placed beneath the sycamores.

From the first bend of the road, where it left the town and became (after some indecision) a country highway, called the pike, rather than a proud city boulevard, a pathway led through the fields to end at some pasture bars opposite the brick house.

John Harkless was leaning on the pasture bars. The stars were wan and the full moon shone over the fields. Meadows and woodlands lay quiet and motionless under the old, sweet marvel of June night, passive and still, yet breathing an antique message, sad, mysterious, reassuring. But there had come a divine melody adrift on the air, through the open windows it floated. Indoors some one struck a peal of silver chords, like a harp touched by a lover, and a woman's voice was lifted. John Harkless leaned on the pasture bars and listened with upraised head and parted lips.

"To thy chamber window roving, love hath led my feet."

The Lord sent manna to the children of Israel in the wilderness. Harkless had been five years in Plattville, and a woman's voice singing Schubert's "Serenade" came to him at last as he stood by the pasture bars of Jones' field and listened to the big white face of the moon.

Mrs. Frank Hutt, Morrisburg, Ont., was one of those troubled with this most common of stomach troubles. She writes:—"After being treated by three doctors, and using many advertised medicines, for a severe attack of Dyspepsia, and receiving no benefit, I gave up all hope of ever being cured. Hearing Burdock Blood Bitters so highly spoken of, I decided to get a bottle, and give it a trial. Before I had taken it I began to feel better, and by the time I had taken the second one I was completely cured. I cannot recommend Burdock Blood Bitters too highly, and would advise all sufferers from dyspepsia to give it a trial."

Mr. J. H. Kelly's Speech

At Opening of Quebec Legislature in Support of Motion in Answer to Speech of the Throne.

I rise, Mr. Speaker, to second the address so eloquently proposed by the member from Soulanges. Before taking up the subject matter of the address, I wish to say that I appreciate to a very high degree the honor that has been done the County of Bonaventure, by calling upon its representative to fulfill this honorable but delicate task. A few years ago at the opening of the Federal House, Mr. Marcell, the then newly elected member for Bonaventure was called upon by Sir Wilfred Laurier to second the address in answer to the speech of the Throne, which he did in a manner which placed him at once at the foremost ranks of the House of Commons of which he is to-day the deputy speaker.

The County of Bonaventure was thankful to Sir Wilfred Laurier for the honor which had been extended to them on that occasion, and they will be grateful to the local premier for the honor extended to them to-day.

One of the first references I find in the speech of the throne, and one which I feel confident will meet with the unanimous approbation of the members of the Legislature, irrespective of party ties or principles, is the happy and delicate allusion made to the distinguished nobleman, Lord Minto, and his worthy successor, Lord Grey.

It is laid down in our constitution that every five years, the Sovereign of the British Empire, shall send to Canada as his representative one in whom is vested practically the same Royal powers and prerogatives as are enjoyed by the head of the Empire Himself. The mission that is confided to the representative of the King is one exceedingly great and sacred, and it is a great source of satisfaction for the Canadian people to be able to say that the Governor General for the Dominion of Canada, is always selected from the most illustrious families of England's peers.

The relations that have always existed between the representative of the King and Queen of England, and the representatives of the people of Canada, for many years past have been the most cordial and happy. During his short stay with us, Lord Minto, by his statesmanlike conduct, his abilities and capacities won the admiration, esteem and respect of the whole Canadian people. That his successor Lord Grey will continue the same policy as his worthy predecessor, I have not the least doubt. The Canadian people from Vancouver to Halifax hailed with pleasure his arrival on our Canadian shores, and the national outburst of sentiment that greeted his arrival is one which will accompany his mandate till the end.

It is with great pleasure that I read in the address of the Throne the reference made to the prosperity of our province. Whenever we cast the eye in the seventy-four counties falling under the jurisdiction of this government, be it in the farming district or the lumbering district, the great cities or the more humble parishes, we behold to-day a happy, contented, and prosperous people. The great wave of prosperity that has passed over the whole world may account, to a certain extent, for this gratifying state of affairs in our Province; but the government of Quebec, that has led the reins of power since the last few years, has the satisfaction of being able to say, that the channels had been prepared, and the dykes had been opened and that no opportunity had been lost to receive as great a share as possible of the great tidal wave which has passed over the world at large.

To-day our daily papers tell us of hundreds of our expatriated sons who in years gone by, were forced to leave the country of their birth to find a living elsewhere, and who are now seeking for lands in the Province of Quebec. This fact alone speaks for itself and it clearly demonstrates the prosperous state of our Province since our people think proper to return to us. And here I might say, that if we can succeed to bring back home a portion of hundreds, nay thousands of sons, who left us in days gone by, and keep at home the present Canadian generation, we need not turn to other countries to find settlers and emigrants. Birth rate in civilized countries is a sign of national power and greatness, and no where on the continent of America to-day is there a state or a country where birth rate is so great per capita as in the Province of Quebec.

The past year has been for us one of great importance. In 1902 the government, viewing with anxiety the great difficulties that were daily cropping up between the two large and important classes of our population, the colonist and the lumberman, decided to check the evil before it had assumed to so immense a proportion, and to smother, if possible, the kindling animosities that in later years may have been the destruction of our Province. In order to accomplish this, the government appointed a commission to study the grievances of the colonist and the lumberman, and after gathering all the facts together, a new law, commonly called "The New Land Bill" was passed at the last session, and the past year has seen its partial application.

The few months that have glided by since the last sitting of this House, has not been sufficient to enable anyone to form a conclusive opinion upon the new law which is still in its infancy. Before a final judgment can be rendered on this new legislation, it will be necessary that the whole classification of the lots be made and a few months, maybe a few years, application of the new laws be required, before a final opinion can be reached.

Although only a few months have passed since the new law has been enforced, I feel safe in saying, that in as much as it has been applied it has proved, on a whole, most satisfactory, and I am informed from competent authority that many of the grievances that formerly existed have already disappeared. The colonist seems more contented and also the lumberman.

As we all know, however, no law can be made perfect at first. It required years and years of study for the people of old to form the laws which are the base of many of our laws to-day. According as the new law will be set into motion we will be in a better position to see what changes are necessary and thus profit by the experience we shall have acquired.

When the commission of colonization held its meeting in New Carlisle, in my county, in Sept. 1903, I appeared before that body, in order to represent the people of the County of Bonaventure. On that occasion I exposed to the commissioners the sad facts that exist in my county, which has in certain parts been the prey of the speculation.

We have behind Caplin, Bonaventure, New Carlisle, Farnham and Hope, some of the finest tracts of virgin limits, which contain the richness of our country, and which are as yet as nature has made them. Before that commission I showed how, since over thirty years, the present owners have held those five hundred miles of woodland on mere speculation, and have failed to operate them. I proved conclusively also that our County has been kept back by over half a century owing to the fact of these limits have not been worked, and I proved also that the future of this part of Bonaventure County lies in the lumbering industry. Speaking at the present moment upon my own responsibility, I wish to state that in my humble opinion no man should be allowed to hold lands on mere speculation, any more than a colonist can hold a lot of land to speculate on it. If when a man has held a limit for a certain number of years and fails to work it, and by the fact of thus holding the limit he paralyzes a whole district or county, and impedes all commercial progress, and is driving the flower of our youth to other climes, then I consider that something should be done, to either force him to work his limit, or that it be then sold to some one else who will work it. I hope ere long after this question has been studied and looked into, some legislation will be passed, to come to the rescue of the people of my county, as well as any other district where a county's advancement has been impeded, by the iron grasp in which it has been held by the money speculator.

Another question of prime importance to our population, and which is also contained in the speech of the throne, is the question of education. In the Province of Quebec we have a number of colleges and universities of great merit, and which are the pride of our country. Our present institutions have produced some great and noble men, have furnished to the state and country statesmen who have been the builders of province and priest whose work shall never be forgotten. But while we excel in our large educational institutions, we must not forget that although the education given to our people from our large seats of learning is not very remunerative, still it is but the exceptional few of the mass of our people who can afford to send their children to these institutions. Education is the greatest heritage that a father can leave to his son, and it is the greatest blessing with which this province could endow its people.

The force of education is so great that we may mould the mind and manners of the young into what shape we please, and give them the impression of such habits as shall ever after remain. Since the education of our Canadian youth is of such great importance in the framing of our country's destinies, and since it is a question falling under the control of our legislature, we, the representatives of the people, should make it one of our ultimate and primordial object of our labors, to devise ways and means by which to spread more fully the first principles of education in every part of our province. And, Sir, I humbly claim that it is necessary for the good government of our province that our people should be educated.

There are certain countries where education would be a certain measure a menace to their constitutions. There are countries where the people have been kept in such abject slavery and ignorance, that were the doors of the temple of education opened to them, and by entering in that temple they were to contemplate the splendor of its beauties, and see how they had been kept in darkness and ignorance, such a vision would cause them to rise as a man against the power that reigned over them.

But in a country like ours, where in virtue of the constitution with which we have been blessed the man who lives in the lonely hut is as powerful as the man who occupies the powerful mansion, where the man who walks behind the plough is as powerful as the man who wields the sword or holds the pen, where in the electoral urn the cross of the poorest man in the country is as weighty as that of the man with millions, where all men alike, irrespective of creed or race, can stand before the bar of justice and demand his due, in a country like this it is essential, it is imperative that every man should be educated to the extent at least of understanding the greatness of the powers and liberties and rights that he enjoys under the country's flag, the Union Jack.

Our constitution gives us what is commonly called a responsible government, or representation by the people. In order that the object of our constitution be reached it is necessary that the people understand the nature of the questions that are placed before them by their representatives, and in order that they understand these questions, it is requisite that they be educated and enlightened. The task that is allotted to me at the present moment does not permit me to go more fully in this important subject, but I hope that ere long the revenue of the province will permit us to see our way clear to give greater facilities to our people to be educated, to open up schools, where, like in Europe, our farmer's sons will have an opportunity to study the different

Nine Nations

Now Use Liquezone. Won't You Try It—Free?

Millions of people, of nine different nations, are constant users of Liquezone. Some are using it to get well; some to keep well. Some to cure germ diseases; some as a tonic. No medicine was ever so widely employed. These users are everywhere; your neighbors and friends are among them. And half the people you meet—wherever you are—know someone whom Liquezone has cured.

If you need help, please ask some of these users what Liquezone does. Don't blindly take medicine for what medicine cannot do. Drugs never kill germs. For your own sake, ask about Liquezone; then let us buy you a full-size bottle to try.

There lies the great value of Liquezone. It is the only way known to kill germs in the body without killing the tissue, too. Any drug that kills germs is a poison, and it cannot be taken internally. Every physician knows that medicine is almost helpless in any germ disease.

Germ Diseases.

These are the known germ diseases. All that medicine can do for these troubles is to help Nature overcome the germs, and such results are indirect and uncertain. Liquezone attacks the germs, wherever they are. And when the germs which cause a disease are destroyed, the disease must end, and forever. That is inevitable.

For the American rights to Liquezone. We did this after testing the product for two years, through physicians and hospitals, for proving, in thousands of different cases, that Liquezone destroys the cause of any germ disease.

Our constitution gives us what is commonly called a responsible government, or representation by the people. In order that the object of our constitution be reached it is necessary that the people understand the nature of the questions that are placed before them by their representatives, and in order that they understand these questions, it is requisite that they be educated and enlightened. The task that is allotted to me at the present moment does not permit me to go more fully in this important subject, but I hope that ere long the revenue of the province will permit us to see our way clear to give greater facilities to our people to be educated, to open up schools, where, like in Europe, our farmer's sons will have an opportunity to study the different

There are nine nations of people, of nine different nations, are constant users of Liquezone. Some are using it to get well; some to keep well. Some to cure germ diseases; some as a tonic. No medicine was ever so widely employed. These users are everywhere; your neighbors and friends are among them. And half the people you meet—wherever you are—know someone whom Liquezone has cured.

If you need help, please ask some of these users what Liquezone does. Don't blindly take medicine for what medicine cannot do. Drugs never kill germs. For your own sake, ask about Liquezone; then let us buy you a full-size bottle to try.

There lies the great value of Liquezone. It is the only way known to kill germs in the body without killing the tissue, too. Any drug that kills germs is a poison, and it cannot be taken internally. Every physician knows that medicine is almost helpless in any germ disease.

Germ Diseases.

These are the known germ diseases. All that medicine can do for these troubles is to help Nature overcome the germs, and such results are indirect and uncertain. Liquezone attacks the germs, wherever they are. And when the germs which cause a disease are destroyed, the disease must end, and forever. That is inevitable.

For the American rights to Liquezone. We did this after testing the product for two years, through physicians and hospitals, for proving, in thousands of different cases, that Liquezone destroys the cause of any germ disease.

Liquezone has, for more than 20 years, been the constant subject of scientific and chemical research. It is not made by compounding drugs, nor with alcohol. Its virtues are derived solely from gas—largely oxygen gas—by a process requiring immense apparatus and 14 days' time. The result is a liquid that does what oxygen does. It is a nerve food and blood food—the falling under the control of our legislature, we, the representatives of the people, should make it one of our ultimate and primordial object of our labors, to devise ways and means by which to spread more fully the first principles of education in every part of our province. And, Sir, I humbly claim that it is necessary for the good government of our province that our people should be educated.

There are certain countries where education would be a certain measure a menace to their constitutions. There are countries where the people have been kept in such abject slavery and ignorance, that were the doors of the temple of education opened to them, and by entering in that temple they were to contemplate the splendor of its beauties, and see how they had been kept in darkness and ignorance, such a vision would cause them to rise as a man against the power that reigned over them.

But in a country like ours, where in virtue of the constitution with which we have been blessed the man who lives in the lonely hut is as powerful as the man who occupies the powerful mansion, where the man who walks behind the plough is as powerful as the man who wields the sword or holds the pen, where in the electoral urn the cross of the poorest man in the country is as weighty as that of the man with millions, where all men alike, irrespective of creed or race, can stand before the bar of justice and demand his due, in a country like this it is essential, it is imperative that every man should be educated to the extent at least of understanding the greatness of the powers and liberties and rights that he enjoys under the country's flag, the Union Jack.

Our constitution gives us what is commonly called a responsible government, or representation by the people. In order that the object of our constitution be reached it is necessary that the people understand the nature of the questions that are placed before them by their representatives, and in order that they understand these questions, it is requisite that they be educated and enlightened. The task that is allotted to me at the present moment does not permit me to go more fully in this important subject, but I hope that ere long the revenue of the province will permit us to see our way clear to give greater facilities to our people to be educated, to open up schools, where, like in Europe, our farmer's sons will have an opportunity to study the different

The marriage of Mr John J. Melanson, merchant of this place to Miss Lena Gagne, of Boston, daughter of Mrs Ferdinand Gagne, formerly of Carleton, P. Q., but now of Boston, took place in Chatham on Monday morning. Rev Tr O'Keefe performed the ceremony. The bride looked charming in a travelling suit of brown and was attended by Miss May Barry, while Mr Joseph Cowick supported the groom. The happy couple arrived here on the local express the same evening and were greeted with showers of rice and a number of friends, then they repaired to Mrs J. J. Melanson's, mother of the groom, where a sumptuous dinner was served to immediate relatives. The bride was the recipient of many beautiful and costly presents. From the groom she received a handsome shirt waistset in gold, engraved. To the bridesmaid she gave a gold chain and locket. They will make Bathurst their future home.

A somewhat serious accident occurred here on Friday evening last, when young Arthur Legere, son of J. P. Legere, hotel keeper, was shot in the leg. It appears that some of the young men around the hotel were shooting cats and while aiming at one the gun went off accidentally just as the little fellow was running into the barn. Dr. Duncan was telephoned for, but there was some difficulty in locating the bullet and it was found necessary to use the X Rays, so Mr Legere took him to Moncton at once and had it applied. The bullet was located and on Sunday morning Dr Duncan performed the operation which was successful. We are pleased to learn that the young lad is resting somewhat better the last few days.

Mr Alex Melanson has quite recovered from his slight attack of LaGrippe.
