E. WOODWORTH, Manager.

The Pennsylvania Deluge.
An Unexampled Disaster.

The Loss of Life now Estimated at from 12,000 to 15,000.

WHERE THE RESPONSIBILITY RESTS.—
A DESCRIPTION OF THE DAM.—FURTHER REPORTS OF DAMAGE.

HUNTINGTON, Pa., June 6.—The devastation in Central Pennsylvania is very great. Not a house is left that stood within reach of the swollen streams.

JOHNSTOWN, June 6.—A house to house canvass yesterday revealed that four and even six families are being crowded into a single house, that as high as five sleep in one room, that doors and windows are left closed to shut out the stench and dampness, and that pneumonia is gaining an alarming foothold. There are at least a hundred well defined cases. There is an immediate danger of disease from the dead bodies, except at Rockwood, where an immense collection of wreckage is full of corpses.

The best estimates this morning on the loss of life, based on the registry of the living and the unofficial poll, puts it

AT FROM 12,000 TO 15,000.

Advices from Philadelphia, Center county, report great loss of life there, and that 243 bodies have already been recovered.

WHERE THE RESPONSIBILITY LIES.—
New York, June 5.—The Sun's Johns own correspondent says: Investigation yesterday shows that the major part of whatever responsibility may be placed on the Pennsylvania dam, which has been the cause of the Pennsylvania deluge, must be placed upon the South Forks hunting and fishing club, the association of wealthy Pittsburgh gentlemen that has been for four or five years past endeavoring to establish a game preserve on the Conemaugh lake. When they leased the lake they coveyed the waste gases, through which all the water that had before accumulated in Conemaugh lake, had found a safe and speedy exit. It is usually estimated that had the waste gases been maintained the dam would never have given way. They were removed, it is said, because whenever they were opened the game fish with which it was being stocked would escape. The fish have escaped and the lives of over 8000 people have gone with them.

A DESCRIPTION OF THE DAM.—
The correspondent yesterday visited the dam and says there was no massive masonry nor any tremendous exhibition of engineering skill in designing the structure or putting it up. The dam was simply a big pile of earth, dumped across the course of a mountain stream between low hills. It was faced on each side with a layer of heavy rough stone, loosely thrown together and unconnected. This pile of earth was about 75 feet high and 95 feet thick at the base. At the summit it was levelled off so as to be about 20 feet wide and a wagon road crossed it. It was an ordinary dirt road and there was no rock or masonry beneath it.

JOHNSTOWN, Pa., June 6.—A wall has been thrown around Johnstown so that no one can enter unless it is shown he has business.

Eight thousand men are now at work clearing away the debris. Gangs came in this morning from Hollidaysburg, Sandusky and other places and were put to work, most of them without breakfast. The feeding of the workers is one of the greatest difficulties. Supplies are plentiful enough but there is no way of cooking and serving to such an army. Several hundred men are at this morning and refused to work until given something to eat. They had been fasting 24 hours and were given bread and cheese and promised more substantial aid as soon as stoves and cooking utensils on the cars are unloaded. Supper, being estimated that it will take 10,000 men sixty days to clear away the wreck. At this rate it will require $1,500,000 to pay for the work, which does not include other expenses. Five million dollars will not be enough to put Johnstown in shape for rebuilding. Early this morning four hoisting engines started at the east end of one bridge. Clearing away debris has begun. Several hundred men are at work on it. The channel is gradually being cleared. Progress is very slow. It is reported this morning that one yesterday afternoon a little boy was taken from the city alive. After considerable trouble he was resuscitated and given over to his father. His name is Eddie Schoeller. There will be no inquiry on the bodies of thousands of residents of Conemaugh valley who lost their lives. The law of the State does not require such an investigation. The responsibility for the disaster which can be directly charged to insure the wall which held water of the Conemaugh canal, can never be legally determined unless the survivors take independent action. All reports of arrangements for inquest are untrue. It appears strange although the number of lost children must be very large the number found is proportionally small.

PHILADELPHIA, June 6.—A special dispatch to the Medical News of this city from a correspondent at Johnstown says: In three of the largest hospitals of the patients over 90 per cent are suffering from injuries incurred during and after the flood.

When You Need.

Stabbed to Death at his Mother's Table.

As the terrible effects arising from the use of strong drinks can often be more effectively brought home to the hearts of individuals by a single picture than by any general statements that can be made, I shall present the reader with one that came under my own observation.

J. W., one of my school companions, was born under the smile of fortune, and reared in the best education money could procure. He was endowed with amiable and social affections; at school he had no equal in the village debating club he was unrivalled in composition and diction. These emblems of greatness excited the hopes of his friends, who imagined that he would leave a name that would be registered among the great ones of earth—an example worthy to be copied by the world.

In the bloom of manhood he led a lovely young woman to the altar—her heart aching with all the delusive hopes of inexperience—and entered into consensual life with prospects as bright and unclouded as the morning sun.

A few years later, and you find sitting in a tastefully furnished room of a neat cottage a young woman. Her head leans upon her hand, and her eyes rest on the floor in an anguishing and strange gaze. She is the picture of unutterable woe. Her lips move, but her words are only meaningless ravings. Around her is a group of little children, who cry piteously on account of their mother's sadness and sorrow. They knew that something terrible had happened—as yet they scarcely understood what.

Look here! Around an opened grave a host of mourners are assembled—a coffin is lowered, and the dirt is hurriedly shoveled over it. That young man was the husband of that lovely wife—father of those weeping children.

How came this tragedy of woe? A word will tell the sad tale. That young man learned to drink wine at his mother's table, and when he entered society he had nothing to restrain his genial heart from partaking of the social glass, which he learned to love, and of which he drank freely.

One night, returning home his brain filled with the fumes of the wine-cup, his horse shied, and drink having rendered him incapable of managing the spirited animal, he was thrown violently to the ground, where some time afterward he was found a corpse.

That young widow, with her children by her side, may be seen sitting in the sanctuary, the furrows of time ploughed deep in her grief-stricken forehead. Ask the cause of her distress, and she will tell you: "O, my lost, my ruined husband! Young man, beware how you tamper with the foe of genius, the foe of man—strong drink—Selected."

Some of the papers with an "Alcoholism" column, will make a proclamation that it is well known to plant fodder corn for fall feeding, overlooking the fact that it has been definitely settled that immature corn is poor fodder and not worth the growing. Fodder corn wants the fall season.

The Bangor Creamery Company has been setting with its patrons for the month of April. The total number of inches of cream received for the month was 14,570, and the full amount of money received $1,705.49. This divided among the patrons pays them 22¢ cents for cream enough to make a pound of butter.

A gang of rascals, 19 in number, attempted to cross the river near Greenville, Que., Tuesday. The wind at the time blew a perfect hurricane, and they had not proceeded far before the boat became full of water and sank, leaving her crew and passengers in the water. Five were drowned.

The closing bid sale in Boston of the cold storage eggs was in the month of 2100 dozen, which sold for $14, or two-thirds of a cent per dozen. This is said to be only a sample of the cold storage losses of the last winter.

Keep the hoe sharp. It should be ground every day it is used, as much as a scythe, and tried all sorts of medicines without success. I then tried one bottle of Burdock Blood Bitters and found relief in 10 days." A. J. Meindie, Mattawa, Ont.

A gentleman sent to the minister: "When do you expect to see Deacon S. again?" "Never," said the reverend gentleman, solemnly; "the deacon is in Heaven."

Alfred (rapturously): "Now, darling, please name the happy day?" "Minnie (blushing): "Three weeks from next Thursday, Alfred." "Nora (through her veil): "A very nice time, though the megar day you. Yez'll have to get married some other day of the week."

TO THE DEAR: A person cured of Diphtheria and other diseases by the use of Burdock Blood Bitters. A. J. Meindie, Mattawa, Ont.

It is expected that not less than 60,000 head of cattle will be shipped to England this season from Canada.

LOCAL MATTERS.

CONCERT AT NEW GLASGOW.—Mr. and Miss Mack and Mr. Chisholm, assisted by local talent, gave a very successful concert at New Glasgow last week.

PRESENTATION.—Mr. J. Alonzo Bowes, constable, was presented this morning with $40, as a mark of appreciation of the service of late as a detective.

A TREAT FOR MONCTON.—It is announced that a Moncton syndicate is making arrangements to engage Prof. Herschel Smith to deliver his famous lecture, entitled "His Satanic Majesty," in the Pythian Temple at that place.

THE CORNER STONE of the new Methodist Church at Bayfield is to be laid next Monday at 11 o'clock by the Rev. Josiah Wood, of Sackville. The Rev. Mr. Chapman, of Baie Verte, and other ministers are expected to take part in the exercises.

PUBLIC SINGERS.—The Hyer Sisters, the colored Nightingales, will render their specialties at the Hall, Wednesday, 19th. The Company is the only colored Dramatic Company in existence and contains a brilliant gathering of singers and comedians.

A WARNING.—A correspondent at Point de Bute sends the names of three boys "that make it a practice of Ransacking an old woman that trying to make a honest living, by breaking her windows and doors and her lamp." If this reprehensible practice be continued, it will be necessary to go up the line, will have to come by the C. P. R. express, as the train for the Cape leaves here at 12:30. Returning, it arrives at Sackville at 6:56, in time to connect with express trains east and west.

HE WANTED THE LATEST NEWS.—One of the incidents connected with the accident on the I. C. R. yesterday afforded considerable amusement to the spectators. Just as the second-class car was leaving the track the train agent, who happened to be on the platform, was jumped off and landed on a sand-bank. He was considerably bruised and shaken, but he scrambled to his feet, and immediately after was accosted by a traveller, who emerged from the car, gripped him in hand, and asked: "Have you not the Moncton Times?" "What?" "The answer of the news-agent was more forcible than would have been considered necessary on ordinary occasions, and no sale was effected.

MR. ALLISON.—The faculty are almost as widely scattered as the students. President Allison has been attending the District Meeting at Petitcodiac. Prof. Burwash is at Fredericton attending to his duties as examiner of the N. B. University. Principal Borden is visiting the musical conservatories of the United States. Prof. Thibault is on his way to his vacation at his father's home at Hampton, but is now visiting Cornell University. Mr. and Mrs. Mack and Miss Mack are visiting relatives at Grafton, Conn., and Mr. Chisholm will shortly start for Germany. The Maine Academy is to be thoroughly renovated during the vacation.

ACCIDENT ON THE I. C. R.—A severe accident occurred to No. 2 express at Frosty Hollow yesterday at noon. A broken axle caused the derailment of second-class car, a baggage car and the tender. Three women and two men were considerably injured, but none seriously.

MR. ALLISON.—The faculty are almost as widely scattered as the students. President Allison has been attending the District Meeting at Petitcodiac. Prof. Burwash is at Fredericton attending to his duties as examiner of the N. B. University. Principal Borden is visiting the musical conservatories of the United States. Prof. Thibault is on his way to his vacation at his father's home at Hampton, but is now visiting Cornell University. Mr. and Mrs. Mack and Miss Mack are visiting relatives at Grafton, Conn., and Mr. Chisholm will shortly start for Germany. The Maine Academy is to be thoroughly renovated during the vacation.

ACCIDENT ON THE I. C. R.—A severe accident occurred to No. 2 express at Frosty Hollow yesterday at noon. A broken axle caused the derailment of second-class car, a baggage car and the tender. Three women and two men were considerably injured, but none seriously.

"Have you not the Moncton Times?" "What?" "The answer of the news-agent was more forcible than would have been considered necessary on ordinary occasions, and no sale was effected.

LOCAL MATTERS.

CONCERT AT NEW GLASGOW.—Mr. and Miss Mack and Mr. Chisholm, assisted by local talent, gave a very successful concert at New Glasgow last week.

PRESENTATION.—Mr. J. Alonzo Bowes, constable, was presented this morning with $40, as a mark of appreciation of the service of late as a detective.

A TREAT FOR MONCTON.—It is announced that a Moncton syndicate is making arrangements to engage Prof. Herschel Smith to deliver his famous lecture, entitled "His Satanic Majesty," in the Pythian Temple at that place.

THE CORNER STONE of the new Methodist Church at Bayfield is to be laid next Monday at 11 o'clock by the Rev. Josiah Wood, of Sackville. The Rev. Mr. Chapman, of Baie Verte, and other ministers are expected to take part in the exercises.

PUBLIC SINGERS.—The Hyer Sisters, the colored Nightingales, will render their specialties at the Hall, Wednesday, 19th. The Company is the only colored Dramatic Company in existence and contains a brilliant gathering of singers and comedians.

A WARNING.—A correspondent at Point de Bute sends the names of three boys "that make it a practice of Ransacking an old woman that trying to make a honest living, by breaking her windows and doors and her lamp." If this reprehensible practice be continued, it will be necessary to go up the line, will have to come by the C. P. R. express, as the train for the Cape leaves here at 12:30. Returning, it arrives at Sackville at 6:56, in time to connect with express trains east and west.

HE WANTED THE LATEST NEWS.—One of the incidents connected with the accident on the I. C. R. yesterday afforded considerable amusement to the spectators. Just as the second-class car was leaving the track the train agent, who happened to be on the platform, was jumped off and landed on a sand-bank. He was considerably bruised and shaken, but he scrambled to his feet, and immediately after was accosted by a traveller, who emerged from the car, gripped him in hand, and asked: "Have you not the Moncton Times?" "What?" "The answer of the news-agent was more forcible than would have been considered necessary on ordinary occasions, and no sale was effected.

The Witch.
She is a witch, and mighty well
She knows it,
Although no one, to watch her, would Suppose it.
Her look demure, her manner shy,
Are charming;
But have with men's hearts she makes Alarming.
She seems so childlike, innocent
And artless;
But all her victims surely find She's heartless!

Before I knew she was a witch,
I sang her
Praises daily; now I say—
"Oh, hang her!"

Many Thanks.
"My age is 58 and for 20 years I have suffered from kidney complaint, rheumatism and lame back, and would have been a dead woman if it had not been for Burd-ock Blood Bitter, of which two bottles restored me to health and strength."
Miss Maggie Hendry, Half Island Cove,
N. B.

"Nature's Grand Cathedral."—"Are
you going to church to-day?" asked Mr.
Orthodox of Mr. Freethink. "No," said Mr. Freethink, emphatically. "I shall worship in the grand cathedral of nature." Half an hour later Mr. Freethink was seated at a rickety deal table under a dusty tree, listening to the notes of a weezy orchestra and drinking something that looked like beer.—Puck.

Nerve Tortured.
"I suffered with neuralgia and obtained
no relief until I used Hagar's Yellow Oil. Since then I have also found it an invaluable remedy for all painful burns and cuts, rheumatism and sore throat."
Mrs. F. Cameron, 187 Richmond Street
West, Toronto, Ont.

"Now," said the bridegroom to the bride when they returned from the honeymoon trip, "let us have a clear understanding before we settle down to married life. Are you the President or vice-President of this Society?"

"I want to be neither President
nor vice-President," she answered;
"I will be content with a subordinate position."
"What is that?"
"Treasurer."

When Baby was sick, we gave her Castoria.
When she was a Child, she cried for Castoria.
When she became Miss, she clung to Castoria.
When she had Children, she gave them Castoria.

Knee Deep.

They are calling "knee deep! knee deep!"
to-night in the marsh below.

Down by the brook where the rank sword
grass and calamus grow;

Like an army of silvermiles forging bells
for the northern sprites.

And keeping time to a rhyme, they work
through the summer nights,

Steadily up from the swamp forge the sparks of the fireflies rise.

I have known a song to lead a falling elf
derly man like me

Back through the gates of the years, to the scenes that used to be,

When the world was fenced from Heaven
by one rose hedge, and through

And through this bourn the blessed angels looked and the asphodel odors blew.

Knee deep, I bent in the rippled creek,
with buttercups blooming below.

Like the gold on beauty's billowy breast,
its odor half hid, half shown!

Knee deep in saffron marigold flowers that frank meadow

Like a procession of Saxon children, blue-eyed and with yellow hair.

Knee deep in the dewberries, sunburned in the sun I stand,

With my torn straw hat half hid, and a quail near the place

Where the pert and upright rabbit sits,
waiting her innocent face

Of the quivering calamus and oases!
I am wading again in truth,

Knee deep in the waterlilies, a willow
that flows from the land of youth.

Mrs. Wyndham's Husband.

Truly Mrs. Wyndham was a brilliant woman, whose opinions

of her own, and who, moreover,
did not hesitate to give them utterance.

As Cecilia Gresham, she had been an acknowledged queen of the society of a pleasant collegiate town in one of the eastern states, and captivated by her sparkling attainments and sparkling intellect, not to speak of her superb eyes and magnificent carriage, the hearts of many an ambitious professor and retiring tutor. As for her conquests among the students, she never even reckoned them up, but, with a light laugh of conscious power, noticed them only as being satellites of the first-class planets that revolved around the radiant sun of her personality. A proud, superb woman, her small head magnif-icently poised on a neck and shoulders

worthy of a Juno, her smooth, dark hair waved back and coiled in a knot, and her long, flowing robes clinging about her supple figure with a grace peculiar to herself.

It was thus she met the eyes of
"modest little Wyndham," as he was called by his professors and tutors,

and, looking at her, he felt that he
was looking at a masterpiece of nature.

His doublet of his name, Matthew, in view of his gentle manners and be-
seeming girlish eyes.

If anybody thought about it all, it
was taken as a matter of course that he should follow in the path of his

predecessors, and, as a willing
slave, before the throne of Miss Gresham;
but, strange to tell, so his chum

whispered the next day on the College campus, "Mattie didn't take to Miss Gresham at all, you know. Did you ever hear such a thing?"

Once in a while Mattie saw Cecilia
Gresham across the sleepy atmosphere

of the College chapel, her magnificent
eyes veiled in devotion, and her rich
contralto voice spreading itself in

waves of melody and carrying with it
the boyish tenors and manly basses at her side. Then, and only then, did

he feel that he was looking at a manifestation of interest about his-
self in Mattie's gentle face, his large,

blue eyes meeting hers with a tender
reverence as rendering homage to
something infinitely sweet and lovely;

but it was only extended to the absence of the qualities that he had learned to associate with the superiority of a beautiful woman did not seem to present itself to his mind.

This brilliant queen of society, this woman who appeared to challenge the world in her acknowledged superiority, and who, moreover, did not hesitate to give them utterance. As Cecilia Gresham, she had been an acknowledged queen of the society of a pleasant collegiate town in one of the eastern states, and captivated by her sparkling attainments and sparkling intellect, not to speak of her superb eyes and magnificent carriage, the hearts of many an ambitious professor and retiring tutor. As for her conquests among the students, she never even reckoned them up, but, with a light laugh of conscious power, noticed them only as being satellites of the first-class planets that revolved around the radiant sun of her personality. A proud, superb woman, her small head magnificently poised on a neck and shoulders worthy of a Juno, her smooth, dark hair waved back and coiled in a knot, and her long, flowing robes clinging about her supple figure with a grace peculiar to herself.

It was thus she met the eyes of
"modest little Wyndham," as he was
called by his professors and tutors,

and, looking at her, he felt that he
was looking at a masterpiece of nature.

His doublet of his name, Matthew, in
view of his gentle manners and be-
seeming girlish eyes.

If anybody thought about it all, it
was taken as a matter of course that
he should follow in the path of his

predecessors, and, as a willing
slave, before the throne of Miss Gresham;
but, strange to tell, so his chum

whispered the next day on the College campus, "Mattie didn't take to Miss Gresham at all, you know. Did

you ever hear such a thing?"
Once in a while Mattie saw Cecilia
Gresham across the sleepy atmosphere

of the College chapel, her magnificent
eyes veiled in devotion, and her rich
contralto voice spreading itself in

waves of melody and carrying with it
the boyish tenors and manly basses at
her side. Then, and only then, did

he feel that he was looking at a
manifestation of interest about his-
self in Mattie's gentle face, his large,

blue eyes meeting hers with a tender
reverence as rendering homage to
something infinitely sweet and lovely;

but it was only extended to the ab-
