ROYAL REGIMENTAL RECEPTION AT WALLACEBURG'S CELEBRATION

Magnificent Dominion Day Doings at the Glass Town-Men of the 24th Were Handsomely Entertained-Cheers for Mayor Dundas and the Good Town.

to do anything to disgrace the Rogiment, marching orders were given and the entire regiment and bands ishoughed from the Park and advanced on the C. P. R. station. Orders had been given to take the train and the soldiers were anxious to do so, but there was no train to take. The conductor of the special troopitals had departed without the troops. Surgeon Dr. Tye was the only soldier known to be on board and he was at once accused of running off with the train. The Surgeon very nuch out of breath at this juncture and at once denied the official train, had tried to capture him and had actually run off with him as far as the diamond where he had escaped. The conductor had absolutely refused to return or to wait for the soldiers. The Surgeon was commiserated with on his narrow escape. Then began a wait of nearly two hours at the C. P. R. station while the special ran to Dresden. It was headed there and brought back.

The bunds enlivened proceedings vanced on the C. P. R. station. Cr-

It was rearly 10 o'clock before the special train got back and it was after eleven before the regiment reached Wallaceburg. The trip by rail was pleasant and uneventual.

Arrived at Wallaceburg, a cordial welcome was extended the soldlers.
Horses were provided at the station for the officers. Dr. Tye didn't bring his saddle. He said he preferred to walk. The Wallaceburg people wanted to find out if the officers of the 24th Rigment could ride as well as their reputations credited them with being able to do. So they sent down a firery aggregation of steeds for the officers to ride. Dr. Tye noticed this so he is accused of sliding over to the cong neer and getting him to test his whistle and let off steam just as the soldlers got nicely mounted. There soldiers got nicely mounted. There was a general stampede and rearing of the horses but the officers fortunately are all good riders. They have Continued on 8th Page

MISSING MARINERS

ces one-conditions of the conditions of the cond MISSING MARINERS

Reg. Oldershaw has a thrilling tale to tell about a night he spent this week on Lake St. Clair in a storm, and he tells it will. A purty including Reg. Oldershaw, Jack Johnson, Wid Bennett and a number of gentlemen from down the river went to Detroit in Mr. Johnson's naptha launch. They reacked Detroit alright but the return voyage was fraught with peril. The ongine quit and dark ness and a storm overtook them. They were in the road of the big liners and a suit had to be improvised to give steerage way. The waters became rough and washed over the Joat, drouching the occupants in the river was missed and the party found themselves at daylight at the St. Clair flats. Home was reached Thursday but the party had their trials. Reg. got all kinds of experience and a coat of tan.

Liao Yang, June 36.—(Delayed in transmiss on)—Gen. Kuropatkin with reinforcements personally moved toward Dalin pass, whereupon the pass was evacuated by the Japanese and re-occuped by the Russians.

It is considered probable that the combined armies of Kuroki and Oku will concentrate at Hai Cheng or Kai Chou and await the end of the rany season. It soon will be ampossible to send troops through the passes from the mountains into the valleys.

Che Foo, July 1. — What should prove to be a decisive naval engagement was in progress at 1 o'clock this afternoon midway between Chee Foo ment was in progress at 1 o'clock this afternoon midway between Chee Foo and Port Arthur.

The steamer Che Foo, which has arrived here, passed within fifteen miles of the Japanese fleet, consisting of two battleships and fave cruisers, all actively engaged. The Russian fleet was not seen, but the distance of the Japanese from land preclades the possibility of any attack on the land batteries. The captain of the Che Foo says he heard a terrific explosion, but was onable to discern whether a Japanese or a Russian ship was affected.

The battle is held here to confirm a Chinese report that only four of the larger Russian warships were at Port Arthur last night.

International Bible Lesson for To-Morrow-The Kingdom Divided -Kings, 12, 12-20.

Golden Text, Prov. 16, 18—"Pride goeth before destruction, and a baughty spirit before a fall."

"The sins of the fathers shall be visited on the children."
Solomen was really the man to blame for the division of the kingdom. The support of his harem alons was a big expense to come out of the taxpayers; not to mention fostering deleter, while fulling his replace with idolatry while filling his palace with heathen wives, a thousand of whom only producel one son and heir and he was, as Matthew Henry says, a fool; but not a bigger one than his own wise father, who unwisely walked after the flesh and not after the The B. Y. P. U. metaleture Spirit, which alone can make and keep room every Friday the E. Latter Day Saints. tion of character depends more on a Services will be held as usual to wise mother than on the father. The Un'ted Kingdom of Israel, under Saul, David and Solomon, who each reigned 40 years, was now about to be divided, tan tribes seceding to Jereboam, an Ephramite. Between Ephraim and Juda jealousy had existed some time. Contrast—What would have become of the Southern Confederacy had they been permitted to second from the United States. The South would have perpetuated slavery as Israel did idolatry.

Contrast this division of the kingdom with church divisions and note the remedy—to unitedly and individu-ally turn in heart to the Lord Jesus Christ, the King, eternal, immortal, though invisible, who will soon join us to each other when we believingly and lovingly united to Him, "For in one Spirit we were all baptized in-to one body, whether Jews or Greeks, whether bond or free, and were all made to drink of one Spirit."—I. FRETTING CHILDREN

When a child frets and cries almost continuously the root of the trouble in nine cases out of ten lies with the stomach or bowels. Fermentation and cecomposition of the food means colic, bloating and diarrhoea — the latter is especially dangerous and often fatal during the hot weather months. Baby's Own Tablets are just what every mother needs to keep her little ones healthy. These Tablets gintly regulate the bowels, cure constipation, prevent diarrhoea, cleanse and cool the stomach, and promote sound, natural sleep. The Tablets can be given with safety to a new born babe. Mrs. J. Mick, Echo Bay, Ont., says: "I think Baby's Own Tablets the best medicine in the world for the allments of little ones. No mother should be without them." Sold by all druggists or sent by mail at 25 cents a box by writing The Or. Williams' Medicine Co., Brockville, Ont.

WHERE RUSSIA'S PERIL LIES

I learn upon an authority I car

I learn upon an authority I can trust—I rare thing in this country—that the Czar, who has been so weak in many matters, has taken up a firm stant in his determination to see that the Augean stables of Russian official corruption are properly and thoroughly cleansed, writes a correspondent in St. Petersburg.

A few weeks ago a great English engineer was hastily summoned to Russia by the Imperial Government He was asked to un ertake the work of supervising the construction of the various men-of-war now hastily being built. The Englishman inspected the vessels, and said that he would in no wise consent to do the work unless he were allowed to employ English workmen and purchase English or American engines. The Government replied that at the present time the employment of foreign labor was quite impossible. On the other hand, they promised to get the work done as honestly as might be, and said that they would put no limit to the Caglishman's fe—the Imperial Treasury was open to him.

TEMPTATION OVERCOME. TEMPTATION OVERCOME.

The Englishman flatly declines, in spite of the temptations offered, to have anything to do with the ships, that he declared could scarcely withstand a storm at sear H; disdained all further communication with the Government, and went home to England.

His step is scarcely surprising, when land.

His step is scarcely surprising, when one considers the methods by which methods by which for instance, each riveter is given every morning so many rivets to make secure. He puts in, very badly, say half the number; putly does the rest. The remainder of the rivets he sells for a few pence outside the dockyard gates, giving a percentage of the proceeds to the foreman as the price of his silence.

Constructed on these principles

Constructed on these principles, Constructed on these principles, a gunboat was launched a short time ago upon the Baltic. In honor of her own launching the gunboat fired a salute. On: of the guns was a heavy one—officially it was supposed to be on board a battleship—ind the discharge was so shattering that the plates were loosened and the little craft sank.

plates were loosened and the little craft sank.

A Swedish syn'scate secured the contract for raising her. But when the min got to work they found lath and putty where there should have been steel. The ship, in fact, fell to pieces when they tried to raise her. To avoid the inevitable scandal, the Russian Government paid the Swedish syndicate its money, and to this day it is supposed that that gunboat is on the active list.

GIGANTIC SCANDAL.

GIGANTIC SCANDAL.

Perhaps the gravest scandal occurred at the Naval Stores in St. Petersburg. They were huge buildings, occupying the whole of one side of the street, and were believed to contain supplies sufficient to sustain a prolonged naval conflict. The Czar ordered an inspection, but the officials in charge of the depot could never have survived an overhauling such as was contemplated. The depot was very empty indeed.

It is a strange thing, but none the less true, that on the night before the day appointed for the inspection the huge building burst into flames in ten different places. By morning, only the charred walls remained. GIGANTIC SCANDAL.

Corruption, too, is doing its deadly work at Port Arthur. It is stated that there are sufficient colored and sufficient provisions to enable the port and fleet to encure a two years is siege. There is nothing of the kind when 1,000 tons of coal are ordered and those who should have paid for the others. The monsy that should have paid for the other is.

number is reduced to thirty for the purpose of giving the soldiers a stove. Train after train left different parts of Russia just after the commencement of the war with thirty men in a truck—but there were no stoves. So thousands of unfortunate menicyth no other means of warmth than could be gain'd by huddling together, had to travel week after week together down that endless Siberian Railway line, in a temperature that was 30 degrees or 40 degrees below zero. It is scarcely surprising that over a thousand men died from cold in one week along. No one troubled about the victims of some official's greed.

A glaring case of corruption came under my own notice a few days ago. A Government department gave an order for £25,000 worth of goods to a well known firm in St. Petersburg. The official who conducted the negotiations, explained to my friend that his terms for placing the contract with him would be 25 per cent. on the gross amount. The manager of the firm had to agree quickly lest the order should go to his rival. In the ordinary course of business in Russia, he added the cost of the commission to the price of the goods and charged it to the Government.

The Brantford - Tecumsah game, which was billed here yesterday was postponed until next Friday on account of the rain. The Brantford boys were here in full strength and it was a disappointment all around. The game on Friday will be a good one and should receive extra good support as the Chatham management lost considerable through having no game.

WALLACEBURG 5, BUGLE BAND 1. The Bugle Band Lacrosse team met defeat at Wallaceburg yesterday afternoon by a score of five goals to one. The Bugle Band team scored the f.rst goal but after that, didn't seem to be in the game very much. The rain, of course, came down now and then but didn't stop the playalthough it made it bad for the players.

It was just a case of senior players against intermediates with the natural compequences.

There is not much to be said of the game. The score tells it all.

BOWLING

The annual bowling tournament, held by the Chatham Lawn Bowling Club, was commenced yesterday, but it was not completed owing to the heavy rainfall.

There were lots of bowlers here, including two rinks from Walkerville, three from Ridgestown, three from Blenheim, three from Dresden, one from Bothwell, two from London and five from Chatham. Although these ranks were bowling all the time, none of the events were completed. In the Sutherland trophy Skip Webb was cleaning up everything. He now has to play with Walkerville and Ridgetown in the finals and if he wins these games his rink gets the trophy. The tournament will be concluded next Wednesday or Thursday.

mpressive Scene when Teachers and Pupils of McKeough School Paid Tribute to Departing Esteemed Colleague

On Thursday afternoon the pupils nd teachers of McKeuagh School paid a farewell tribute to Miss Minson, the esteemed and popuposition on the teaching staff prior ave met with the exceptional success that has throughout characterized the efforts of this accomplished young lady. Possessed of much talent and ability, Miss Samson has also the happy faculty of winning the confidence, affection and loyalty of the students-which has been evidenged from year to year in the striking results achieved. She has comnanded withal the universal admiration and esteem of her principal and colleagues and of the members of the school Board and Inspectors.

It was exceedingly fitting and appropriate that the young folks of Miss Samson's graduation class should, on the eve of the holidays, desire to give some expression to their feelings of love and gratitude, and the last afternoon of school was chosen for this occasion.

On behalf of the class Miss Samwas presented with a beautiful fountain pen and the following expressive message :--Dear Miss Sam on :-

"Dear Miss Sam on:—
"We are sorry to know that you are leaving our school, but we hope that the change will be for your advancement, and we know that, wherever, you are, you will still take an interest in us.

"Please accept the pen to remind you of your last class in McKeough School." "MAREL HANDENDER.

"MABEL HANDYSIDE. "HAROLD NORTON. "McKeough School, Chatham, Ont.

"McKeough School, Chatham, Ont." Miss Samson was completely taken by surprise, and in a few feeling and appropriate words acknowledged the remembrance.

A few moments later the principal, Miss Esther Abram, placed in Miss Samson's hands an envelope containing a little jewelled pin, a memento from her staft or teaching colleagues, including ex-Principal Jas. Brackin, with whom she co-operated so successfully when he presided over the school.

It was intended that there should have been a few short addresses in

It was intended that there should have been a few short addresses in connection with the occasion, expressive of the esteem and affection in which the young lady was held, but, after all, it was a greater tribute to Miss Samson that, when the time came, no one felt able to express the feelings of the gathering and the silent hand-clasp was more eloquently expressive.

The departure of Miss Samson will be a distinct loss to the Maple City, where she is held in such universal high regard and deserved popularity, and she will be accompanied in her departure by the best wishes and hearty God-speed of scores of loyal friends.

CUTICURA SOAP

Assisted by Light Dressings of Cuticura, the Great Skin Cure.

This treatment at once stops falling hair, removes crusts, scales and dan-druff, destroys hair parasites, soothes Mirritated, itching surfaces, stimulates the hair follicles, loosens the scalp skin, supplies the roots with energy and nournent, and makes the hair grow upon sweet, wholesome, healthy scalp when all else fails.

Millions now rely on Cuticura Soap, ssisted by Cuticura Ointment, the great skin cure, for preserving, purify-ang and beautifying the skin, for cleansling the scalp of crusts, scales and dandruff, and the stopping of falling dandruff, and the stopping of falling hair. for softening, whitening and soothing red, rough and sore hands, for baby rashes, itchings and chafings, for annoying irritations, or too free or offensive perspiration, for ulcerative weaknesses, and many sanative, antiseptic purposes which readily suggest themselves, as well as for all the purposes of the toilet and nursery.

Complete treatment for every humour, consisting of Cuticura Soap, to cleanse the skin, Cuticura Ointment, to heal the skin, and Cuticura Resolvent Pilis, to cool and cleanse the blood, may now be had of all druggists. A single set is often sufficient to cure the most torturing, disfiguring, itching, burning and scaly humours, eczemas, rashes and irritations, from infancy to age, when all else falls.

Mad as a Hatter.

I se phrase "mad as a hatter" has no reference to that respectable artist who designs the crowning article of civilized male attire, but relates back to the Anglo-Saxon word "atter" (an adder, or viper). "Mad" was formerly used as a synonym for vicient or very Mad as a Hatter. used as a synonym for violent or venomous and is still used in that sense in some parts of England as well as in this country. The phrase, therefore, strictly means of this country. The phrase, therefore, strictly means as "venomous as a viper," the old form, "mad as an atter," having been corrupted to "mad as a hatter." "In that direction," the cat said, waving, its right paw round, "lives a hatter, and in that direction." waying the other new "lives a Marting a Marting the other new "lives a Marting the other new "lives a Marting a Marting a Marting a Marting a Marting a Marting and the lives a Marting a Marting a Marting and the lives a Marting a Mar waving the other paw. "lives a March hare. Visit either you like. They're both mad."

Perils of "Self Buctoring." Large numbers of people in prosper-ous circumstances die as sexagenarians from maladies which are evidences of degeneration and of premature seniity, degeneration and of premature senility, while many who pass this period go on to enter upon an eighth or until decade of life. The former class comprise those who have lived without restraint of their appetites and who have sought to allay some of the consequences by self medication, while the latter class comprise these. the latter class comprise those who have lived reasonably and who, if annoyed by imperfect digestion, have sought relief by abandoning the errors from which it sprang.—London Lancet.

Catching Kites In India.

In India, where those large birds, the kites, are common and fearless, boys amuse themselves by catching them in a way that is almost ridiculous in its simplicity. A line is stretched tightly a little way above the ground between two posts, Beneath it is laid a bait. The kite stoops and selzes the bait, but when he rises from the earth hits the when he rises from the earth hits the back of his neck against the string. This makes him throw up his wings, with the result that some of the quills get over the line, and he is kept a suspended and struggling captive until the boys run up and release him.

Music as an Aid to Ideas. At evening parties a man's shyness is mitigated by music. In my own experience, when some stray man and I have stood together speechless, no sooner did the piano break into our appalling silence than ideas seemed to inundate us. The dumb man spoke as if by magic, and I, who hitherto had nothing to say, couldn't talk fast enough.—Mrs. John Lane in Fortnightly Review.

SIR HENRY IRVING.

caching Farewell to the Stage—Forty-Eight Years Since He First Set Foot Upon the Boards.

At a reception given to him recentify by the Manchester Arts Club, Sir Henry Irving made a speech foreshadowing his retirement from the stage. After thanking his hosts, the guest of the evening referred humorously to the subject of his own age, and proceeded:

"The dearth of plays I scarcely days a complete the subject of the subject of his own age, and proceeded:

and proceeded:

"The dearth of plays I scarcely dare to mention, because it provokes lively correspondence in the newspapers. Authors write to say that they have masterpieces in abundance, which the selfishness of actormanagers will not allow to see the light. But every manager is not an actor yearning for the middle of the stage. Mr. Charles Frohman is about as enterprising a manager as you will find; yet, strange to say, he doesn't want to act. But he searches the highways and byways of Britain and America, and I have never heard him complain that he has more masterpieces than he knows what to de with.

"I see that an ingenious gentledearth of plays I scarcely what to de with.

"I see that an ingenious gentleman has been over to Paris to consult some eminent French experts about the state of the British drama, and the only comfort they could give him was that perhaps it might be bettered if the Examiner of Plays would permit dramatists a little more freedom in dealing with vital questions of modern life. But to imagine the Examiner licensing an experiment in freedom, on the plea that it dealt with a vital question of modern life, is to suppose a revolution in English taste. I doubt whether this plan, even if it could be adopted, would let loose a native genius for playwriting which is now suppressed by our excessive decorum. But the endowed theatre would certainly give a chance to the unacted author.

decorum. But the endowed theatre would certainly give a chance to the unacted author.

"In the success or failure of a play there is often an element of mystery. It springs from some unknown quality in the public mind, with which the longest experience cannot reckon. Now the endowed theatre—which need not shut its doors when it is empty—might try a number of plays which the average manager dare not touch. I would suggest, therefore, that the unacted authors should form a league—a league for the cajoling of millionaires so as to raise the capital for that endowed theatre, which even the superfluous wealth of Manchester has not yet established. If only we could find a millionaire who writes plays, the thing would be done. Perhaps he is listening to me now. Out of the fulness of his heart and pocket let him speak, so that the strolling player may pass away from your hospitable board. Oh, he'll come back, I hope—feeling that he has achieved a great work, and feeling more venerable than ever.

"Yes, venerable, perhaps, for it is 44 years since I first came amongst you—48 since I first came amongst you—48 since I first came amongst you—48 since I first set foot upon the stage; and it is at times borne in upon me, and never more than at moments like these, when life has, so much that is good to leave, that in another couple of years the time will have come when I must say farewell to the art which I have loved all my life. Fifty years of active work as a player is endugh; and when I have completed the tally of those years I shall shortly make my fast bow to the public, who have shown to me so much love and patience and sympathy; and I shall take with me as I go back from the glare of the footlights a memory which shall be a pride and, a pleasure to whatever period of rest may be my lot."

The Wild Was of India.

The Wild Was of India

The Wild Was of India.

In the Northern Shan states, on the border of Burma, there is a tribe called the Wild Was. These people propitiate with human skulls the demons whom they worship. Outside every village in their country there are many posts, all in one line, decked with human skulls. A niche is cut in the back of each post, with a ledge on which the skull can rest and grin through a hoie in front of it. Every village has a dozen and some as many as a hundred of these head posts. Fresh skulls are in special request at harvest time and are purchased for large sums, those of distinguished visitors being particularly desired. So, as Mr. Scott, the British Superintendent of the States, remarked some years ago: "The Wa States are, therefore, no place for missionaries or globe trotters."

A Use for the Dandelion. Our old friend the dandelion, for example, which everybody is glad to have dug out of his lawn, although it flourishes where no other bright flower seems able to subsist, furnishes a root of value as a drug. It is a large tap-root, sometimes twenty inches long, thick and fleshy, dull yellow or brownish on the outside, but white inside, practically odorloss, and bitter to the taste. It is used in diseases of the liver and in dyspepsia. The best time for digging it is from July to September. It should be thoroughly washed and dried. The drying process decreases considerably its size and weight, and also its medical virtues. Hence it must not be kept too long. Our old friend the dandelion.

A few years ago a lawsuit threw an interesting light on the declaration of The Times that money-making has never been its chief object. In the course of this action it was shown that one-fourteenth of two-thirds of one-ninth of two-sixteenths of a share in The Times was worth less than £20 a year. In 1892 the dividend of this small share was £24; then came the report of the Parnell Commission, and in 1893 the dividend fell to £18 10s., and in the following year to £17 3s. 11d. That is to say, in 1892, the profits of The Times were £38,500, and in 1894 only £27,500. Since then the leeway has been made up.—London Chronicle.

or the chief part of moral training is that even in the best schools and with the best teachers the children have to be handled so largely in masses and at arm's length. In the home the parent lives close to the individual child all the time, and whatever the parent has in the way of character to give the child is pretty sure to take without knowing when or how or even being aware of what is going on, until days, weeks, months, perhaps years after, he breaks out with just such feelings, tones, tempers, looks, words and deeds as he had been catching all the while. The child learns his moral principles by induction from concrete cases in his own experience and observation. A principle that does not rest on some such case makes about as much impression on a child as a drop of water on a duck's back. The example of the parent is the most potent moral influence over the character and conduct of the child. The kindness, the justice, the temperance, the purity, the charity, the patience, the courage, the fore-sight, the wisdom, that the child sees exemplified in the life of the father and mother he will tend to incorporate

Of course the opposite qualities are equally contagious - unkindness, uncharitableness, impatience, foolishness and the like. What shall the parent do who not infrequently is guilty of these odious things and gets detected in them by the child's discerning eyes?

A great many people confess their sins in a lump to God on Sunday who cannot bring themselves to frankly cknowledge a fault to their own chil-

Makaroff's Sister's Visions

The Petit Parisien's St. Petersburg correspondent sends a sad story regarding the sister of Admiral Makaroff, whose hair, although she is only fifty years old, has turned absolutely white. She told a representative of the press that she had two visions on the night of the admir-al's death, when he appeared and told her of the explosion. Her name is Mme. Tabounoff. She is the wid-ow of an officer and receives only a small pension, which Admiral Maka roff used to supplement.—London

HIS LAST HOPE REALIZED.

(From the Sentinel, Gebo, Mont.) (From the Sentinet, Gebo, Mont.)
In the first opening of Oklahoma to settlers in 1889, the editor of this paper was among the many seekers after fortung who made the big race one fine day in April. During his traveling about and afterwards his camping upon his etaim, he encountered much bad water, which, together with the severe heat, gave him a very severe diarrhoea which it seem-ed almost impossible to check, and along in June the case became so bad he expected to d.e. One day one of his neighbors brought him one small bottle of Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera era and Diarrhoea Remedy as a las hope. A b.g dose was given him while he was rolling about on the ground in great agony, and in a few minutes the doser was repeated. The good effect of the medicine was soon noticed and within an hour the pa-tient was taking his first sound sleep for a fortnight. That one little bottla worked a complete cure and he cannot help but feel grateful. The heason for blowel disorders being at hand suggests this item. For sale by All Drugg sts.

In Dresden, Germany, an automatic safety signal at street car crossings that has recently been put into op-eration consists of a box about two feet long suspended above the centre of the crossing and furnished with electric connections whereby an approaching car on arriving within a 'halt' to appear in conspicuous red letters on the opposite sides of the box, thus warning of their danger all cars and pedestrians coming to ward the crossing at right angles.

GOOD THINGS IN SEASON. defreshing Green Vegetables-Blue

Radishes and rhubarb are now in eason in many of our gardens; beets and turnip tops, as well as young let-tuce, are, or ought to be, available thus giving us the green vegetables required at this season of the year.

In preparing radishes as a side dish leave on them about an inch of the stems, as this is said to make them more digestible. Heap on a dish and sprinkle with finely chopped ice. When added to a salad they should be thinly sliced, the scarlet edges adding a touch of dainty color to the dish.

Asparagus, as its season is compara tively shart, ought to be served at least twice a week, especially as it has a direct and very beneficial effect upon the kidneys. Each stalk should be scraped with a dull knife, an inch of the dry lower end cut off, then tied in small bundles and boiled in salted waterfrom half to three-quarters of an nour's cooking will be needed. If it is to be served cold as a salad, it is then set aside. As a vegetable it requires a drawn butter sauce made wholly or in part with the pot liquor. It is also best to serve it on slices of toast dipped for an instant in some of the po liquor before arranging on the platter. Shad is slowly disappearing from market, and in its place comes blue-fish, one of the best salt water varieties for broiling and baking. In broiling this, or any large fish, the split halves are laid in a greased broiler, and the flesh side is given the longer cooking. After the first searing it is raised from the coals, that the fiesh may be thoroughly cooked without burning. During the broiling it should be moistened several times with a lit tle melted butter; season with salt, pepper, a little lemon juice and a drop or two of tabasco or worcesters For baking, the fish should be stuffed. The illustration shows strawberry croquets. Each large berry has been dipped into beaten egg and rolled in fine stale sponge cake crumbs. This dipping and rolling are repeated; then the balls are plunged into smoking hot fat and quickly browned. When laid on a napkin, each croquet is pierced with a tiny ornamental skewer, and the dish is garnished with fresh berries.—Table Talk. A State English Cherry Pie.

One cupful of lard and butter mixed, two cupfuls of flour and a teaspoonful of salt. Work the shortening into the flour with a knife, mix with sufficient ice water to hold together, handling as little as possible. Line the sides of a deep earthen baking dish, fill two-thirds full with stoned cherries, add two cupfuls of sugar and place a small cup inverted in the center of the dish. Cover with a thick top crust, no bot tom crust being used. Spread over the crust a liberal coating of lard or but-ter before placing in the even. When Rhubarb Jelly.

Rhubarb jelly is delicious and especially appetizing with meats. To make it cut up the stalks without peeling, then steam them until very soft, lay them in a sieve to drain overnight or put in a jelly bag, as preferred. Measure the juice and allow one pound of sugar to every pint of rhubarb juice and set it simmer ten minutes or until it begins to thicken on the edge; then add the sugar and let it simmer till it jellies on the spoon or when dropped on a cool plate. by the two bands. They never realized that Wallaceburg was so large till they marched all over it.

After the march, the soldiers were lined up in front of Mayor Dundas, who made one of his stirring speeches. Mr. Dundas is a good speaker and he was listened to with marked attention. He welcomed the soldiers and offered them the freedom of the city. Tickets for supper and dinner were then distributed amongst the men in red and they were billeted at the different hotels. The officers were stationed at the Arlington hotel, where Mike O'Mara presides, and a tetter Irishman never lived. His heart is as big as himself and his eatables are the best.

After dinner the regiment marched to the Park, where they went through a number of military movements, to the great delight of a large throng of Wallaceburg people.

Then it rained just as the Chatham and Wallaceburg baseball teams were about to play baseball. After the rain, the Chatham Bugle Band and Paymaster Dr. Hall had the best looking horse in the parade but he counteously offered his mount to Surgeon Tye. The latter gladly surrendered the animal to Mayor Dundas. It wasn't a comfortable rider at all.

Col. Ramkin ordered fish at supper and they brought him salmon. O. L. Lewis recognized an old friend in the Isalmon. "Why," quoth he, "that fish came from St. Luke's pond, Just carp colored."

The only unfortunate feature of the day was the accident that happened to Corporal Barfoot, of C Company. He was sitting on top of one of the booths with some more soldiers when when the stand tumbled down. Corporal Barfoot had a rib broken and was femoved to the hotel. Dr. Hall attended to the injured man, assisted by Corporal Mounteer of the ambulance corps. Mr. Barfoot felt pretty sore this morning but is doing incely.

"It's really too had there was so much mud for the long street march," said Mayor Dundas to Capt. Stone at the conclusion of the parade, . '
"Now, say, if there's any inconvenience on that score," put in the genial Irish Hinnegan smilling, blame it all on Colonel Rankin. Why, he made it a distinct condition of the Regiment's visit that the streets should be well sprinkled. 'I'm not going to have the men marching for miles in choking dust,' he declared, "And you see they didn't."

He took a mouthful of the buttermilk, then gave it up, "Why the blooing stuff hits sour," muttered be. "Hit will take habout ha pound hof sugar."

A lad named Douse created lots of amusement at the lacrosse game. He scampered out on the field and gambolled excitedly in and out among the players in spite of Mayor Dundas' efforts to control him. "You didn't wait till I finished." smilingly put in the Major pointing heavenward. "I was just going to say 'Fire-works!' They're splendid, are they not?" It was on the Lieutenant.

There was a broad smile going the rounds at the officers' quarters when Capt. Black came in with the plaintive petition that the homeward bound train should start early, "so that we can all get back for the evening," "Of course I don't care, but I only appear as a delegation from the boys of B Company," he naively added. Then Capt. Stone again murmured, "Next!"

Captain Black lost track of his men for the one o'clock parade. He pass-ed right by them an i went across bridge.

Adjt. Coltart wasted no time in looking up the genial captain of "B" and found him peering into the Bank of Toronto windows, looking for his company. A sergeant in "C" says this substantiates his claim that "B" Co. has his service cap.

At supper, Capt. McLaren and Lieut. Lewis set in to eat onions. Col. Rivakin noticing this bade them an affectionate farewell. Capt. Stone—"Thank goodness, we don't have to sleep in the Marquis to-night." They put the orion tops on a plate and left them for Major Massey. Major Massey thanked the pair for their good intentions and passed the tops to Major Scholfield with the remark that he was sure the latter would enjoy them. Major Scholfield—"Oh, don't give me them all, Have a few yourself."

They told a good story of Major Massey's keen judgment on horses. On the arrival of the Regiment the Reception committee handed over horses for the field officers. One handsome dappled gray was specially designed for the Commanding Officer. Besides being the handsomest horse it appeared the most quiet. When the Colonel went to have it saddled, showever, he found Beau Brummell Massey ensconced in the saddle of the gray and a skittish young chestnut, who playfully declined for several strenuous minutes to be saddled, awaiting him. The Colonel says that Dave Harum has nothing on the Major when it comes to picking out a quiet and stately equine.

The entrance of Colonel Rankin to the train at night was greeted by three hearty cheers, which the Colonel acknowledged by saluting. Majors Massey and Scholfield were similarly honored. Then when silence had been once more obtained Staff Sergeant Jardine was noticed. He had charge of the commissariat and when it was seen that he carried several boxes of seen that he carried several boxes of c gars, cheers rang out again in his honor. Hs quiet Scottish suspicion, however, was aroused and he asked anxiously, "aren't you cheering for the cigars?"

Adjutant Coltart, at the supper ta-ble was seen to laugh and slap his thigh as if something tickled him. Pressed to tell what it was he said: "Great joke on the horse. You know that checker-board broncho I rode. Just found out that he is a trick Just found out that he is a trick horse, regular buck ng broncho. There was a stinding offer of a dollar for anybody who would stay on his back three minutes, and I stayed on 3 hours. I'm fair at arithmetic, and I've figured that there's $90 coming to me, and I'm going argund to collect it." Capt. Fred. Ston—"Next." The other officers smiled broadly.

After Lieut, Lewis had hidder After Lieut. Lewis had hidden clieut. Fraser's sword, put a pound or two of heavy shot in Capt. McLaren's pockets, fastened a humorous scroll on Capt. Lost Major Scholfield fordewn to the early train half an hour too late, lost Major Scholfield, persuaded some charming maidens that Major Massey was an eminent and soul-stirring Italian operatic tenori, and urged Old Guard Mercer and Perrin into a five mile walk in search of supper, he complained disconsolately that it was "awful lonely." "Now if we only had Lieut. Herb. Smith along," he declared, "to help take charge of the D's, what real good fun we could have. But Herb, overslept as I knew he would."

Dreams That Came True

Some Remarkable Coincidents—Lord Duffern's Strange Dream—A Lost Cheque Found.

Half our days," says a philosopher, a pass in the shadow of the earth; I the brother of death exacteth a rd part of our lives." In these ys of science and explanation, when a corner of the earth is untroden, as ea unsailed, in what undiscovered countries do we pursue our nightly wanderings, on what strange continents of dream do we set our random feet. A LOST CHEQUE FOUND.

It is very seldom that we see elsewhere than in works of fiction accounts of discoveries made or secrets revealed by means of a vision. And in many of the instances which we read there is a quite simple method of explaining what would otherwise seem miraculous.

Such for instance is that of a barrister who had somehow lost a cheque from his pocket, and fell asleep while he was wondering where he had dropped it. During his doze he dreamed that the missing cheque was curled round an area-railing not many doors of the discovery of the work of the place of lidream, and there was the cheque it as he had seen it. It is not only able, but probable that he had onsciously seen the cheque fall, that during his sleep the fact found its belated way to the reach of the mind.

her astonishment, and that of her maid, whom she had told of her dream, when two hours later the postman arrived with a package containing the identical ring! This would seem to coincide with the old saving that a dream told before breakfast will come true.

Very many people have dreamt of receiving gifts—not so many such dreams reach the point of fulfilment.

A FAMILY TRAGEDY

A FAMILY TRAGEDY.

A FAMILY TRAGEDY.

A strange story is told in the "Reminiscences of Mrs. Pickering," a book recently published in London. It has to do with her sister, Jane, married to Lord Andover, eldest son of the Earl of Suffolk:

"She (Lady Andover) had always been noted for having the most remarkable dreams, and one morning the words feeling pervoys and un-been noted for having the most remarkable dreams, and one morning she awoke feeling nervous and uncomfortable, having dreamed that Lord Andover had gone out shooting when there was a battle, and had been shot. This made such an impression on her mind that she entreated him not to shoot that day, but to stay with her, which he at once consented to do, and they resumed their painting and reading. But the day came out so fine, and the winter sun shone so brightly, that my aunt, feeling she had been selfish, at last begged him not to lose the day for her sake, but to go out and join the others; so he went. After he had gone she became so restless and uneasy that she started to walk across the park to the covert where they were shooting. As she crossed the park she observed one of the grooms galloping hard towards the house on her own favorite horse. crossed the park she observed one of the grooms galloping hard towards the house on her own favorite horse, Baronet. Strange to say, no presentiment of evil seems at that moment to have struck her, and she only remarked, "How very angry, Lord Andover would be if he could see that man riding my horse in such a way. He was riding to the house with the news that Lord Andover had been shot dead by one of the keepers."

The Russianized tribes of Siberia comprise the Yakuts, the Tunguese the Chukchis, the maritime and reinthe Chukchis, the maritime and rein-deer Koryaks, the Chuvanzis, the Kamchdals, some Eskimos, the La-muts and Yukoghirs, which also ex-presses the order of their importance. There is also a large representation of Buriats and Kalmucks overflowing from Mongolia. The Yykoghirs may be dismissed from consideration, as starvation and disease have reduced them from a numerous people to them from a numerous people to about 700 souls, owing to their isolat-

PIOTURESQUE REVENGE

A Japanese woman, when abandoned by her lover, according to the Amritsar Bazar, takes a peculiar and picturesque revenige. When she no longer has any doubt as to his faithlessness, she igets up in the middle of the night and puts on a pleasing dress and wooden sandals. Attached to her headdress she carries three lighted candles, and suspended to her neck hangs a small mirror. She takes in her left hand a small straw effigy of the faithless one, and in her right a hammer and nails. Walking gravely to the sanctuary she selects one of the sacred trees and nails the effigy securely to the trunk. She then prays for the death of the traitor, vowing that if her wish is granteed she will take out the nail which troubles her god since it is fastened in a sacred tree. Night after night she comes to the tree, adding one or two nails and repeating her prayers, persuaded that the god will not hesitate to sacrifice the man to save the tree.

White speaking of oxen I may give White speaking of oxen I may give you a few pointers. First, never lay any claim to being patient until you have driven or tried to drive oxen for a week. Secondly, never say "I don't swear," until you have had a don't swear," until you have had a few 'rounds with oxen. Thirdly, insure your life with "China" before you try breaking them in. Now I had a quist yoke and they were excellent on the waggon. I started to plow and at the same instant I learned to swear. I wanted the oxen to go one place and they thought differently. I considered that I know more about plowing than did the oxen. However, I have found out since that I knew considerably less about plow-about plowing than did the orean. However, I have found out since that I knew consierably less about plowing, but now I know more about orean. I discarded the lines and let the oxen go where they pleased. Consequently, I have nice straight and even furrows and do not spend half my time getting the reins from under the plow and their dainty feet.

Allvin Moore also had a yoke that never had plowed. When they started they decided to do some mice scroll work. Thus it came to pass that Allvin had figure eights, sixes and nines about his place until one would be sure that he was branding his land. In despair he came to me and we soon agreed that in union there was strength. Hetween us we soon got both yokes to suit us.

Another neighbor, Joe Foster, had wild steers to break. Now oxen are considered to be the best breakers of land buit I assure you they can break more than land. With the assistance of a few neighbors they were tethered, harnessed and hitched to a stone boat on which the drivers were supposed to stand. Now in gay Parce they are making a great ado about looping the loop with the gap and still another feat is looping the double loop. No need of going to France to see these feats. They are coming here; for oxen, when they strike an art hall, loop the loop made entiredy of air and you, well ask Alvin where they land you. They thought they would have some fun with Mr. Tait, an elderly but very with Mr. Tait, an elderly but very active Scotchman, so they offered him a ride. He got one foot on and—well he didn't get the other foot just there. Finally he got firmly planted on the stone boat and the oxen started for a bluff. However, that bunch of small poplars did not bluff Mr. Tait, and he stayed right there. Through the bluff they tore and much to the surprise and himiliation of the jokers he came out the other side controlling ther goods in right style.

Some people have a notion that

Some people have a notion that oxen are stuborn and bull-headed but such is not the case. A horse is considered an intelligent animal but I such is not the ease. A horse is considered an intelligent animal but I consider over to be far superior. For instance suppose you went for a load of wood six or eight miles away one day and the mext was a blindling storm, your trail ran through bluffs and every place. Start them on that road mext day and you can rest assured that they will take you to the exact spot stopped the day before. Then if they have stepped in a badger hole on way out and it be dark as pitch when returning they will go off the trail about fifty yards before the hole and swing back again on the other sade. Irrail an ox the first two rounds on a drill and them let him go and he will seed it better than you can.

An Englishman and wife in deciding whether they would buy oxen or horses came to this conflusion, "Well, John, we better buy oxen because you can milk oxen and milk is all right but if they depended on the milk that oxen gave they would be in a bad fix.

Well, breakfast is ready, so I will close as

THE KEY OF HEAVEN

St. Peter, the porter of Heaven, had buse some work outside of Heaven. So be piaced a cherub with a flaming sword at the gate, and said, "I have work to-day outside of Heaven, but to every one that is to die to-day I will send a key and only those who have a key are to be admitted. These who have a key are to be admitted. mitted. Those who have no key do not belong to Heaven." When he had said this he went away.

There lived on the earth an old

There lived on the earth an old hermit hamed George, with his wife. They were very happy, for they loved each other dearly. They had shared sorrow and joy together and still clung to the world in which they had lived so long together.

One day George felt that he was going to die, and was very sorry that he would soom have to leave his wife. Shortly after he became unconscious, but after a time opened his eyes and said in a feeble voice, "Bring my net, I am going to take if with me, for there is no idleness in Heaven: and if Gods knows I am a fisher He will penhaps make me a fisher in Heaven."

He tiled soon after, and as he was about to start on his way to Heaven up the broad staircase of clouds, am angel bame and gave him a golden key kaying. "St. Botten they had broad staircase of clouds, am angel bame and gave him a golden key kaying."

angel came and gave him a golden key, saying, "St. Peter has work outside of Heaven to-day, so he has sent you a key that you may unlock the gate of Heaven yourself and enter gate of Heaven yourself and enter without ceremony." He climbed up the staircase until he came to the gate of Heaven; seeing a bench outside he sat down, for he did not want to go in without his wife. "She will mot be long," he said; and as he spoke he looked down and saw someone coming up the steps; but it was mot his wife. A young soldier who had been shot in battle that day, came slowly up the stairs, groaning at every step. When he came to the door he leaned against it and shivered all over, for he was cold and his wound was smarting. "Surely," door he leaned against it and shivered all over, for he was cold and his wound was smarting. "Surely," thought George, "St. Peter has forgotten to send him a key; for a man who is brave emough to go out and fight for his country, certainly deserves Heaven. I will just interfere in St. Peter's work for once." And, going up to the young man, he said, "Take my key and unlock the door, and get the angels to pour some of Heaven's balm into your wound."

When the soldier came inside he turned round and said, "Will you not come in, itoo." "Only those who have a key may enter," said the langel with the sword, and the great door swung slowly shut, leaving George standing outside.

But he was right in saying that St. Peter had forgotten to send the young soldier a key. It had quite slipped the good porter's mind that he was to die that day. For he always had, as you know, far too much to do to remember everything.

Again, he sees someone coming up the stairs, and this time it is his wife.

Again, he sees someone coming up the stairs, and this time it is his wife. He ran to meet her as fast as his old legs could carry him and embraced her. When they got to the top he told her he had given away his key; then she said she would stay outside with him.

Soon after a little golden-haired girl came up the stairs, crying bitterly. "What are you crying for?" asked George's wife. "Because I did not want to heave my mother," sobbed the child. "Where is your key?" she asked again. "I dropped it coming up the stairs, and couldn't find the stairs, and this time it is his wife bed the child. "Where is your key?" she asked again. "I dropped it comming up the stairs, and couldn't find it 'again." "Well, you must take mine," and a moment later the little girl was in Heaven.

Now, both the old people were left outside without a key. Night came on, and the darkness and the strangeness of the place frightened them and both began to weep softly.

But the good God from his throne in Heaven heard them, and asked the angel at the door who was weeping outside. The angel related all that had happened, for he had heard all through the key-hole. God opened the door, and Himself took the old people in.

George became a fisher in Heaven. He fished for the fiery tears which darted about like meteors, that too many of them might not fall upon the earth. But God soon saw that it was too hard for the old man; and after that he held a fiddle for one of the angels, so that he might be able to play with both hands. "I told you there would be no idleness in Heaven," said George to his wife. Down on the earth where the little girl's golden key fell, a little yellow flower grew, which blooms everywhere, where good people live, and gladdens their hearts and makes them forget for the time all their troubles.

NO ANSWER YET

Public attention is directed to the fact that the Toronto Globe has not yet responded to the invitation to prove the charge of "militarism" it recently brought against Lord Dundonald. The organ has stated that that distinguished general sought to impose a standing army and a great of fortifications upon the country. We were to have under hijs proposition 6,000 miles of fortresses and the frontier was to bristle with Gibraltars. The cost was to be $35,-000,000 to $40,000,000, and according to one estimate $53,000,000.

It was intimated by the Globe that the details leaked out in the course of a debate during the last session of Parliament. Now the organ has been asked six times to point to the debate. The only reply, so far, is an ominous sidence. We urge the organ once again to state the date of the debate, the names of the members who took part in it, and the page of the official report upon which it is recorded. This is not a discourteous request, and if the statement of the organ is true it ought to be complied with.

Apparently the entire story is a de-Derate and malicious invention. If so it was dictated by two motives. First, the organ wished to destroy the reputation won by the Scottish commander on the battlefield. Secondly, iit wished at the expense of this heroic Scotchman to give assistance to Mr. Bourassa's anti-British campaign. Or if the statement is not a fabrication these motives are disaproved. But that point can easily be settled if the organ will cite the debate upon which it has founded its campaign against the "foreigner." - Mail and Empire

WAR

A lengthy contribution in denunciation of all wars, and of the present war in particular, appears in the London Times from the pen of Count Tolstoi. The fact of The Times giving up so much of its space to the denunciation of war in general is very significant. It may be taken as an indication of the growing spirit of the age. Tolstoi's attitude towards war well known. He accepts literally the teaching of the Sermon on the Mount, and applies it to nations as well as to individuals. He believes that Christ used the words attributed to Him in that marvellous discourse, or series of discourses; he believes that Christ knew what he was saying, and meant what He said. He believes that Christ spoke for the future as well as for the present, and that His teachings are applicable to-day. He believes that these teachings are worthy of belief, and that the way to believe them is to accept them and apply them, in the affairs of nations as well as of individuals, Because of his literal acceptance of the teachings of Christ, and his persistent anlication of them. Tolstoi is denounced as a crank and a visionary; he stands condemned, not merely by the wisdom of the world, but by the church, as it is represented Russia, although that church claims that the object of its existence is to preach and teach the doctrine of Jesus. It is quite easy to see why the doctrine of non-resistance does eigners. not appeal to the world; but it is difficult to see how the doctrine can queer alongside ours," said the wife be condemned by people who profess to accept the teachings of Christ. for an explanation. "There Yet it is evident that the doctrine eral important points of difference. of non-resistance has very little place In the first place, they do not as a of non-resistance has very little place in the world to-day, in either church or state. Unquestionably public sentiment against war is growing ever stronger—the publication by the Tondon Times of Tolstoi's manifesto is as we have said, a striking illustration—but the growth of this sentiment's not due to the belief that resistance is wrong, but to the growing feeling that war is was confiand ing feeling that war is wasteful and oarbarous, and inconsistent with the

STANLEY CHANGED HIS SKIN.

Detroit News. It is said that the late Henry M. Stanley's skin perceptibly darkened after his return from Africa. Parts of his body protected by clothing became volored the same as hands and face. When he started out on the Livingstone expedition. he determined to make himself immune from African malarial fever, so deadly to Eurican majarial fever, so deadly to Europeans. For some time he systematically inoculated himself with the blood of negroes day after day, so that he could defy the malady. He was the only white man in his party who escaped the disease. But so much 'African blood had he infused into his veins that he became as dark as a mulatto.

A SCHEME OF REORGANIZATION.

Toronto News. Comparatively few matters dealt with by military men are secrets. A few inventions are carefully guarded, such as recent improvements to artillery,, rifles, and explosives. Jealous care is taken to prevent the leaking out of strategical plans. It is par ticularly important to keep private the points at which troops will assemble on the outbreak of war. A few features of organization are kept secret by some powers, more particularly the strength and efficiency of the reserve units which will be embodied to reinforce the troops of the first line. As a rule, however, details of organization are published with great frankness. States, for instance, from time to time publish a report on the organized militia of the various states, which not only gives minute information as to numbers, armament, degree of training, but even indicates the points of preliminary concentration. Lord Dundonald has expressly stated that his plan was simply a scheme of re-organization, and thus not a "mili-tary secret."

How to Make an Instrument For Taking Pulse Autographs. Physicians have always devoted a great deal of attention to the study of because its force, rapidity and regularity or irregularity tell a

An experienced doctor can read the pulse pretty well by merely pressing his finger on the patient's wrist, but something more than this is needed for a thorough study of the pulse. For this purpose an instrument has been invented by the aid of which the pulse is made to leave a record of its vibra-tions on a strip of paper so that they can be studied at leisure and compared with other pulse tracings made in the same way.

This instrument is very delicate, complicated and expensive, and it is called by the ugly name of sphygmograph.

You can make pulse tracings at the cost of little labor and materials not worth 2 cents, which you can find in the house. These materials are nothing but a good sized cork, a little stick like a match stick, a shoe button, a card, a quill toothpick or quill pen and

Cut a broader strip of quill (E), some thing longer than the cork. Pin one end of it to the bottom of the cork and bend it so that you can insert the other end into the groove under the bottom. The "pa-tient" rests his or her wrist on the cork so that the button presses the spot where the pulse is felt. Hold the card upright on its edge and draw it along slowly and steadily, keeping it in contact with the point of the quilt. The point will trace on the blacke card a white wavy line, which is the record of the pulse beats, greatly magnified, because the pulse acts on the short arm of the match and quill lever and the record is written by the long

At Vincennes, in my childhood, he writes, my mother had two spirited one of them, Prunelle, was passing between two walls with my little sister on her back, the child slipped and rolled between the horse's feet.

Prunelle stopped instantly and held one hind foot in the air. She seemed to fear to lower that foot, lest she should step on the child. There was no room for the horse to turn nor for to pass in.

In that uncomfortable position, with lifted foot, however, the horse stood patiently while an attendant crawled between her forefeet and rescued the Quebec Man Briefly States That He Cured his Dyspepsia of years Stand-ing by using Dodd's Dyspepsia Tab-lets.

"I wish to state that I have tried Dodd's Dyspepsia Tablets and they have made me well. I suffered for many years from Dyspepsia."

Such is the brief statement of Alphonse Caron, Editor of L'Echo, published at Montmagny, Quc. But if it is brief, it tells everything that thousands of suffering Cauadisns need to know, viz., that there is a cure for Dyspepsia, and that cure is Dodd's Dyspepsia Tablets.

Some people will go further and ask how do they cure. The answer is simple. They simply give the stomach the rest it needs by digesting the food themselves. The result is the stomach gradually returns to its normal condition and is then able to do its own work.

You will see from this that you can eat what you please when you please, if you use Dodd's Dyspepsia Tablets.

In the sixties, soon after John Ericsson's turreted Monitor defended the Union, the plainsmen of Kansas were making use on land of part of the turret idea. From Hays, at that time the farthest point reached by the Union Pacific railroad, the "Smoky Hill route" ran for a fundred and twenty miles west through frego, Gove, Logan and Wallace counties.

The stage ranches, where horses were changed and drivers cared for, were much harassed by the Indians. Stables were fired and women and children were captured or killed. The Government was unable to provide garrisons strong enough to patrol "Smoky Hill."

To protect themselves the frontiersmen devised and build "prairie monitors." The monitor was a deep cellar 30 to 50 yards from the ranch house. The roof was of heavy logs, deeply covered with earth, the whole rising only a foot above the level of the ground.

Explanation of a Sword Trick.

A trick in which a sword is apparently passed through a person's abdomen is explained as follows: The sword employed is a thin, flexible, dull blade. The prestidigitator, whose body the sword will simply pass around, but not pierce, carries concealed beneath his vest a sheath that consists of a hollow tube, semicircular in shape, the two extremities of which are bent in contrary directions in such a way that they are situated in the same straight line, the two orifices opening in front and behind at right angles with the ab-domen. This tube runs around the farther side of the man, who, appearing instinctively to grasp the point of the sword as if to protect himself, directs it into the metallic tube. The the tails of the coat. "BEHOLD THEY SERVE WHO ONLY STAND AND WAIT."

SERMONTO THE DISCOURAGED

Basy to Go Ferward, Easy to Charge, Bu Not So Easy to "Sit Tight" in the Days of Strenuous Trial-Men and Won Should Get Their Bearings and Deter

Entered according to Act of Parliament of Can ada, in the year 1904, by William Buily, of To rento. at the Dep't of Agriculture. Ottawa.

Los Angeles, Cal., June 26.-To the discouraged, to those who have made what the world calls a failure of life as well as to the impatient and dissatisfied, this sermon conveys a practical lesson. The text is Exo-dus xiv, 13, "Stand still and see the alvation of the Lord."

To fall back, in order to go fer-ward; to retreat, in order to advance; to evacuate, in order to conquer; aye, that is the course most great military chieftains have had to great military cheftains have had to take, at least once in life, before they won their ultimate triumphs. Had there been no retreat from Bohemia after the battle of Kolin, and no evacuation of Berlin after the slaughter of Kunersdorf, there would have been no humiliation of a Maria Theresa, and no Frederick the Great, whose name has been the mervel round whose name has been the marvel not only of Prussia, but of all Europe and the civilized world. Nathaniel Greene, the mighty military leader of the Revolutionary war, second only in power to George Washington, was aptly called "The Great Retreater." He never won a decisive battle in his life. So it has been with other mili-

life. So it has been with other military chieftains. There is strategy in eluding a foe whose strength is superior. Many a general has kept the field and worn out the patience of an enemy by avoiding a decisive battle and in the end has proved victorious. There may come times in the battle of life when a man is to fight, and times when a man is to fight, and times when a man is to run and times when a man is to run. There also come other times when a man is to be like a Mosos "encamped before Pi-hahiroth, between Migdol and the sea over against Baalzephon." On the one side of him was the Red Sea, on the other side of him were the pursuing hosts of the Philistines. He could not run. There was no place to run to. He could not fight Pharaoh. He knew he would have been annihilated in the conflict. He could do nothing but wait. He had to "stand still and see the salvation of the Lord." Moses was like Sir Heary Lawrence, entrapped in the residency of Luckentrapped in the residency of Lucknow, during the sepoy rebellion of 1857. For three long months the little English garrison, surrounded by a hundred thousand murderous demons, had to do nothing but waft. They just kept on waiting for the rescuers, who fought their way up from Calcutta under the leadership of that hero of heroes, Sir Henry Havelock. Moses was like General Charles George Gordon, who for ten long months just had to wait and continue to wait in the besieged city of Khartoum, and then gave up his life only a few days before the Eng-lish rescuers hove in sight. Moses was like the foreigners, praying and was like the foreigners, praying and hoping and hoping and praying in the missionary compounds of Pekin, waiting fer the allied troops to deliver them from their impending fate during the Boxer uprising of China in 1900. They were too strong as a body to have to surrender. They were not strong enough as a body to aght their way to the English ships. And so, hemmed in and driven in on agnt their way to the English snips.
And so, hemmed in and driven in on all sides, they just stood their waiting. They were standing still, to see the salvation of the Lord.

Very easy it is for most of us to ge forward in the battle of life when the divine command is given clearly and distinctly: "Charge! Let the whole line charge!" Easy it is for the to retreat when the comst of us to retreat when the comand is given clearly and distinctly: Fall back! Let the whole line fall back!! But it is another matter to patiently wait. Yet walting is a patiently wait. Yet waiting is a very great element in spiritual success, as it is in temporal success. How much a factor is "the waiting crisis" in the successes of life can be wall learned in the words which Dr.

Cuyler taught a few years ago, when Cuyler taught a few years ago, when he said, "I have been conversant in my time with thousands of failures of talented men, both in New York and Brooklyn, and I can bear testimony that ninety-nine hundredths of all those failures were, without doubt, due to the lack of patience, both in a spiritual sense as well as in a temporal." It is to teach the important lessons of sanctified patimortant lessons of sanctified patimortant lessons of sanctified patimportant lessons of sanctified pat-ience that I am preaching this ser-

The waiting crisis comes to thousands upon thousands of faithful men and women in the struggle for a financial existence. It comes not to the lazy, good for nothing human beings, who think the world owes beings, who think the world owes him a living, and, therefore, they do nothing. It comes not to the tramps, the loafers, the deadbeats, who, as derelicts on the great highway seas of life, are a menace to all with whom they come in touch. But it comes to the young man who gets up promptly at 6 o'clock and goes to the store punctually on time. It comes to the conscientious lawyer and doctor and mechanic who are striving with all their power to do right, it comes to men and women who in every sense are noble, who always seem to be on the verge of making a great success and yet never seem to be quite able to reach the goal.

These men are true and good men, but unfortunate men. They are what worldly people call "unlucky." We know there is no such thing as luck. Men are not lucky or unlucky, but there are some who seem to have more misfortunes than others; who, through no fault of their own, miss the good things of life. The strong man triumphs over them, but as the world witnesses his struggles under successive strokes of adverse fortune it calls him "unlucky." When old Anselm Mayer Rothschild, the founder of the famous banking house of Frankfurt-on-the-Rhine, was dying, he called his children about him and gave to them this parting advice: 'First, my sons, never plan any great movement without first congreat movement without first consulting your mother; second, never have anything to do with an unlucky man." Mark this! Anselm Mayer Rothschild did not say, "To not have any business dealings with a dishonest man." He took that for granted, But he did say "an unlucky man." You know who is that unlucky man." unlucky man. He is yourself. You are unlucky in the fact that just as you were about to go to college your father died and you were taken out of school and had to go to work. You are unlucky in the fact that just after you had saved up a little money and put it in the bank the money and put it in the bank the cashier became a defaulter and you lost all. You are unlucky in the fact that just after you had learned to be a good draftsman and had a fine position about to be offered you fell and broke your arm or had your finger cut off by having them caught in the cogs of a factory wheel and you had to start life all ever again. You are unlucky because just as you. you had to start life all ever again. You are unlucky because just as you were about to be appointed to a certain position an enemy lied about your character as an enemy lied about a young friend of mine who was about to become pastor of a prominent church in the east. Though your character in one sense was vindicated, yet the damage was done. You are saying to yourself: "Oh, I am always unlucky! What is the use of my crying any longer?" Siscouraged, are you? "Yes," you mutter, "learfully discouraged!" You have conscientiously done your level best? "Yes, I have done my level best. I can do nothing more."

level best? "Yes, I have done my level best. I can do nothing more." Oh yes, you can, my brother. You can let God now come and do the rest. You are simply "encamped before Pi-hahiroth, between Migdol and the sea, over against Baal-zephon." God is guing to open a way for you the sea, over against Baal-zephon."
God is going to open a way for you through the Red Sea to escape the pursuing Philistines. How? I do not know. This, however, I do know. God will rescue you if you are patient, only patient. He will, if like Job amid the tragedy of a wrecked home and amid a rulned fortune and in the agonies of physics of wrecked home and amid a ruined for-tune and in the agonies of physical as well as mental pain, you can say, and still continue to say, "Though he slay me, yet will I trust him." God will show to you a direct means of escape if you will only stand still just where you are and continue to look for the salvation of the Lord. You may not now think it, but all things, even amid the greatest dis-couragements, all things are work-ing together for good to them that love the Lord. After the darkest of nights there always comes the bright-ness of a light giving dawn. Amid the blackest of troubles there will al-

the blackest of troubles there will al-ways come a pillar of fire to lead God's children to a promised land. Trust him, brother.

But there is another class of hear-ers I find to-day encamped among the Israelitish hosts near Pi-hahiroth. They are the men and the women who are not necessarily struggling for a financial existence, but who are unhappy and dissatisfied with the are unhappy and dissatisfied with the fields in which God has compelled them to labor. They know they could do better work amid other could do better work amid other surroundings. Or they are saying to themselves: "I do not know why it is that all my labors should be misconstrued and unappreciated. If God does not open to me another field of work soon I shall drop this position anyhow."

Going to give up your present position? You say you are not happy in it? Don't you do it, my brother. What you need in life in this waiting crisis of yours is a great big invigorating dose of patience. Stand still just where you are, and do your work the best way you can and invigorating dose of patience. Stand do still just where you are, and do your work the best way you can and see the salvation of the Lord. God does not, as a rule, call his workmen from nothing to something great, but from a small position of influence to a higher position of influence. When Christ wanted to select his cabinet and to fill the apostolic positions of the "fishers of ect his cabinet and to fill the apostolic positions of the 'fishers of men," he did not go into the market place, where he could find the loafers idling around. He went down to the shores of Lake Galilee and found two stalwart men casting their nets into the sea. He said to Peter and Andrew his brother, "Follow me, and I will make you fishers of men." It is nearly always a hard struggle for a man in a small 'position to climb up into a higher position. But it is nearly always an almest impossible struggle for a almost impossible struggle for a man out of a job to be called to a fine position. Christ uttered sound man out of a job to be called to a fine position. Christ uttered sound philosophy when he said in his parable: "Take therefore the talent from him and give it unto him who hath ten talents. For unto every one that hath shall be given and he shall have abundance but from him which have abundance, but from him that hath not shall be taken away even that which he hath." The man without a job is a man whose failure one looks at him with suspicion. Be patient. Everything will come out all right. Just be patient. But there is still another reason why I do not want you to give up that position which seems to fret you. As far as I can make out, you are get-ting in life just about as much as you deserve. Instead of complaining you ought to knees and thank God for the positive knees and thank God for the positive knees and the p rest upon a bed of roses? Are you any different from any of his other children? Are you so smart or so good or so humble that you have a right to expect more than they? Instead of grumbling about your small position, you should see men, in ev-ery way your superiors, physically, mentally and spiritually, occupying smaller positions than you. Be pa tient in that work God has given to you. Most of us-aye, perhaps all of us-have all we deserve in life and is stamped upon his brow, and every us—have all we deserve in life and more two. If God wants us to go higher, he will open the way. If he does not open the way, then let us do what he wants us to do. You and I are not so important or so brilliant or so perfectly sanctified as some of us think we are.

Let me illustrate my thought by drawing a verbal picture of what

Let me illustrate my thought by drawing a verbal picture of what we all know to be true: There are four of us boys, all brothers, born in a humble farmhouse away back in the country. Two of my brothers and myself are just happy-go-lucky boys. Oh, yes, we work hard when we work, but we work just as little as we can, and when we have a dollar we always spend the whole dollar. If there is a country dance, my two brothers and I always go there. If a leisure hour, you can always find us lying around the village store or playing pranks upon the boys. We or playing pranks upon the boys. We are not bad; we are just ordinary, happy-go-lucky, everyday boys. We are like most of boys. We do what we are told to do and do nothing

But I have a brother Jack. The young folks say he is queer and mean and stingy. Some people say he is crazy. My brother Jack is not lazy. He works just as hard as we do, but when he makes a dollar, instead of spending that dollar as we do, he saves it or goes and buys some books. Instead of loafing about the village store in the evening Jack is always home studying. If he is not crazy, Jack is certainly queer. do, he saves it or goes and buys some books. Instead of loafing about the village store, in the evening Jack is always home studying. If he is not crazy, Jack is certainly queer. One day Jack comes in and tells us he is going to teach winter school in order to go to college. We think then he is crazier still. After awhile Jack, by working all his summers and all winters, gets through college, and, then comes home and tells us that he is going to the law school. We think he is crazier still. After awhile my brother Jack pushes his way to the front of the New York bar. What is the result? Do we boys praise Jack for his labors? Do we say, "If we had worked as he worked we could be where he is?" Perhaps. But that is not the general rule of the average family. We immediately begin to complain, because Jack does not send us money and help to support us. We take from him all we can get. And so, when any man honestly tries to make a success out of life, he immediately has a lot of indigent, selfish, lazy folks about him trying to live off the results of his hard carned toil.

Some one listening to me says, "Yes, that is so." Then you turn and say: "What shall I do about my drunken brother's family? Shall I pay any more money to let him keep on drinking?" "What shall I do about my daughter?" says another. "I do not want her to leave her hushand, and yet I certainly do not want to keep on supporting both of them in their foolish extravagances." "What shall I do about my wayward toy?" says another. "Shall I let him go to the dogs and not support him any longer?" "What shall I do in reference to that lazy partner?" says another. "He won't work, and yet he expects half of the profits." "What shall I do in reference to my husband?" says a troubled wife. "He is always loafing around or entering into wild cat speculations which bring us in nothing to support the family." "What shall I do in reference to my wife?" says a troubled bring us in nothing to support the family." "What shall I do in reference to my wife?" says a troubled husband. "She spends my money right and left. She is more interested in euchre parties than in the economy of the home. Shall I leave her?" What shall you do, my friends? Well, I am not here to tell you in detail, but this I do assert in general: Do not let the injustices of the past blind your eyes to the pressing duties of the present. Because your kith and kin and business partners have been and are now doing wrong to you, do not you do wrong to you, do not you do wrong to them. Be patient. Be careful, and if you must err, let it be upon the side of mercy, God does not tell you to weigh the past so much as to conscientiously solve the pressing responsibilities directly at hand. "Stand still" before you snap the golden cords of affection which bind you to that wayward sister, that wayward brother, that wayward child, that wayward husband. "Stand still" if you do not know what to, do. "Stand still and see the salvation of the Lord."

But when the advancing years pass

"Stand still" if you do not know what to do. "Stand still and see the salvation of the Lord."

But when the advancing years pass on, and by sickness or old age we seem to be laid away upon the shelf as useless by a busy world, then most of us do not appreciate the petition of that song prayer. We do not want to be "nothing, nothing." We want to be "something, something," and have that something a very active "something." Sometimes at the funeral of a strong man we see a suggestive thing." Sometimes at the funeral of a strong man we see a suggestive floral tribute in a broken column. That means the man died in his prime. That means most of us say, "Is it not too bad that he had to go when he had so much to live for." But I do not think it takes nearly as much divine grace to die in your physical and mental prime as it takes to live on in physical invalidism or in decrepit old age. In the first instance a Christian man the first instance a Christian man like a warrior is struck down at a blow. In the second instance a man is like an aged veteran in a sol-dier's home, like a Job's war charger dier's nome, has a Job's war charger smelling the battle from afar and yet not able to answer the bugle call for the grand charge. As God has placed some of you upon the great "waiting list" as physical or mental ineffectives, be patient. Trust him. Even in your retired field of waiting you have a work to do. It will all come out right. Yes, sick one and aged one, it will all come out right. You may not be able to understand God's ways now, but it will all come out right.

Thus to-day, as the "waiting lesson" is the barrest of all gospel lessons to learn, I am going to close in the beautiful words of one whose in the beautiful words of one whose poem has been very near and dear to me. I am preaching against my own impatience just as I am against yours. I know that a parent can never bring his child up right unless he teaches that child to learn to trust him and wait; therefore no child of God can ever trust God unless he is at times ready to "stand still and see the salvation of the Lord."

"that 'Dodd's Kidney Pills are the right medicine for Kidney Trouble and will do all that is claimed for them.

"I-had been bothered with Kidney Trouble for years and tried several kinds of plasters and other medicines but did not get much lasting benefit. Then I tried Dodd's Kidney Pills and Then I tried Iodd's Kidney Pills and would say they seem to have made a complete cure as I feel as well as ever I did."

There are numerous people prepared to make statements like that of Postmaster Belyea, but the case of Kidney Disease that Dodd's Kidney Pills will not cure has yet to be reported.

"A stranger," said an old frontiersman, "was traveling once in a very cheerless section of the great west. Having pulled up at night at a cheap and unpromising tavern, he seated himself at the supper table. The waiter informed him what the cook had in the way of eatables. Among the viands enumerated was wild duck. "Was that 'ere bird shot on the wing? inquired the stranger. 'Yes,' replied the waiter. 'While trying to fly out of this forsaken country?' The obliging waiter thought that might have been the case. 'Well,' concluded the stranger, 'I sympathize with that bird's stranger, I sympathize with that bird's misfortune, but I admire his good judgment. Serve me all of him."

OUT OF ORDER

The great evils which are often wrought by small ills can be no more clearly and effectively demonstrated than by the troubles of an automobile driver. How well he knows the disastrous effect of negligence or failure to give proper care to each and every detail. A single small part out of order affects the entire mechanism.

And so it is with the infinitely more delicate and intricate mechanism of the human frame. Affected kidneys put the entire system out of order. They are the direct cause of lame back, sick headache, sallow or deathly pale complexion loss of memory, loss of ambition, dyspepsia, melancholy, tired feeling, swollen joints, puffed face, rheumatism in any of its various forms, loss of appetite, and many more troubles. Have you any of these symptoms?

"Papa," said lia, one day when a young companion had been boasting of her fortune, "What is mine?" Mr. Athelstone took up his Bible and read, "He that giveth to the poor leadeth to the Lord."
"What does that passage mean?"
"What does that passage mean?"
"Simply this, love. I have given all I could spare to the poor, therefore placed it, properly speaking, into the bank of Heaven, and rest assured, dear ids, God will return it many fold."
