THE FAIR IMPOSTOR.

CHAPTER XXV. IN WOODLEIGH CHURCH.

WELL, he echoed, when a man pretends to be preter naturally wise I greet him with contempt, but when a man pretends to be a fool I suspect him.

Of what? Who can say—in this case, at least? Possibly he may have some designs upon Sir Talbot's plate, or your jewels; he was watching you very intently at the bank the other morning.

Lilian turned to him with a smile, but her eyes flattered and fell before his steady, yet almost tenderly earnest gaze.

Watching me? she said. Ah! surely you were mistaken. And as for the jewels, my maid took them up in a safe in my room—a safe which the makers assert has resisted the most daring attacks both of fire and burglars.

No, he said thoughtfully, his white hand stroking his mustache—no, he doesn't look like a burglar. Perhaps I misjudge him, and he is the harmless lunatic Miss Warner proclaims him. At any rate, I hope I have not made you nervous.

She turned to him again, with a smile upon her exquisite face.

Do I look nervous? she asked. Dawson Slade looked at her almost while one would count twenty, then he shook his head.

No, you do not look nervous. Sometimes I am inclined to ask myself if it is possible for you to be afraid of anything.

She turned to the night, and leaned lightly on the terrace rail. I am not afraid of much, she replied; perhaps I am strong-minded.

Strong-willed, he said, gravely. That gives me courage to say that I am going to take a stroll in this delicious moonlight. They will not miss me for a few minutes.

Dawson Slade laughed. Say, rather, that we are too accustomed to the imperial freedom of action which is your privilege and your charm. Will you permit me to accompany you?

She shook her head, with a smile. No; you see I exert my privilege. But, he urged, earnestly, you will not go into the grounds alone! Pray let me come. She turned upon him with a rapid change of manner, a look of sudden trouble in her eyes, that gleamed like those of a hunted animal, and added a weird charm to her surpassing loveliness.

A BROKEN-DOWN SYSTEM. This is a condition (or disease) to which doctors give many names, but which few of them really understand.

No, no! she said, in a quick, low voice. Let me go alone! The rooms are hot, the music rings like a peal of bells; I want a few minutes' quiet. I cannot breathe; I—

She reclected herself, and lost her composure, and broke off with a smile and a little gasp.

You see, though I am not nervous or timid, I am inclined to be hysterical. There is nothing like cool air and solitude for hysteria. Will you let me go for a few minutes?

Almost pleadingly she put out her hand. He looked at her; he had gone paler even than his wont, and there was an eager, almost pitying question in his eyes.

At least, he said, let me wrap this shawl more closely round you; this is a poor protection—the night is cold. I will get you a thicker wrap.

No, no, she said, I shall only saunter along the terrace, perhaps— With a reluctant sigh he drew the shawl round her; as he did so his hand lingered on her arm, and she could feel it burn through the thin crepe.

For Heaven's sake be careful, he muttered in her ear; there is danger—I feel it— Swift as a panther she turned her head and confronted him.

Danger—of what sort? With a gesture of almost angry helplessness he extended his hand. I do not know! Would to Heaven I did, that I might, at least, endeavour to protect you!

She looked at him, at his face so pale and earnest, so unlike its usual impassability, and her lips moved as she murmured, inaudibly: No, he does not know. I am safe; then, with a little laugh, she said, banteringly:

You cannot say that you are not nervous. Hush! They are calling for you, and before he could retort, she glided down the steps.

Dawson Slade watched her for a moment with a working face. What is it? he muttered. Something is wrong. I know it, I feel it; and yet how well she carries it, Heaven! She is a woman worth loving, with a heart of steel and a will of iron, and yet what tenderness lies hidden beneath it all, if one could but wake the love in her!

Nervous! and he laughed uneasily. She is right, I am nervous. A weight hangs about me, a presentiment that grows with my love, stronger each day. There she goes—I see the flash of those diamonds—confounded them! Some tramp may catch sight of them, I must follow her; and he made a step forward, but as he did so, Sir Talbot Woodleigh came out on to the terrace.

Father Morrissey's Lung Tonic

Cured Miss Maroney of Serious Lung Trouble. Blissfield, N.B., Dec. 26, 1909. Father Morrissey Medicine Co. Ltd. As a patient of Father Morrissey's I would thank you for an opportunity of giving expression to the benefits I have received from his prescriptions and medicines, not on one occasion but at different times.

Some eight years ago I had occasion to apply to the Rev. gentleman for treatment for lung trouble which proved to be of a serious nature; so serious was my case that my friends looked upon my recovery as almost hopeless, but after his treatment I am thankful to say that to-day I am in perfect health.

On Feb. 26, 1907, I had occasion to ask his advice and treatment for a lame back. I received a prescription which gave me immediate relief. Thanking you, I am Yours faithfully, MILES MARONEY.

the of Sir Talbot Woodleigh. Tonight save for that one moment of impatience on the terrace, her soul was at peace, and her whole being serene and fearless.

Even Dawson Slade's anxious eager words of warning did not move her, and she smiled as she recalled the look of entreaty on his handsome face.

How changed he is, too, she murmured, and a faint tinge of color rose to her face. He does not know—he never can know. No one can discover the truth. The secret died with that poor girl in the prairie hut. I am Lilian Woodleigh! Who can deny or disprove it?

With a look of defiance she half paused, and looked round; as if to strengthen her assurance, the night lay silent as the tomb.

How exquisite, she murmured, looking up at the sky. I promised to confine my wanderings within the space of a few minutes, but surely I can take a peep at the church? How can they find any pleasure in sitting about those warm rooms, while all this calls to them in vain?

Communing thus, she opened the little wicket-gate, and stood among the tombs, gleaming white in the moonlight.

As she looked round, a smile played about her lips. Yes; certainly I am not nervous. Are there many women with a taste like mine, who could stand here without a shudder? How quiet it all is! I wonder how the church looks inside!

The Strange Case of Lord Kitchener.

What Will Be Done With Our Unemployed Field-Marshal?

Whatever Mr. Haldane may say, it is surely amazing that, of all great men in the British Empire, Lord Kitchener should find himself out of a job.

True, he is now sixty—Napoleon and Wellington were only forty-six when they met at Waterloo—but in these days of peace, sixty is not old for a general.

At King Edward's funeral, the tall, soldierly figure of Lord Kitchener, with his square, swarthy countenance, attracted more notice than the eight monarchs themselves who visited our Sovereign. Is it really true that Lord Kitchener, in his search for a job, has considered an offer to organize the Chinese Army? The very idea adds terror to the Yellow Peril—a population of four hundred millions, focussed for war by such an intellect.

Curiously enough, General Gordon, who was "avenged" by Lord Kitchener at Khartoum, made his name in China. Where he suppressed the terrible Taiping Rebellion. Like Lord Kitchener, he served his apprenticeship—surveying the Holy Land.

How did the present position come about? When Lord Kitchener left India, two posts were open. There was the Viceroyalty of India, and there was the Mediterranean command at Malta. India or Malta?—what a choice! It reminds one of Napoleon—Europe or Elba? Lord Kitchener was not offered India, and he declined Malta, when followed the impasse.

A Military Dictatorship.

Let us be fair. To promote the Commander-in-Chief of the Indian Army to the post of Viceroy would have been unusual, and would have suggested a military dictatorship. Nothing could have been more abhorrent to the peaceful soul of Lord Morley. Besides, Lord Kitchener was unmarried—a substantial disability.

Still, how could Lord Kitchener be happy at Malta? Think how the Mediterranean command originated. It is a long but very instructive story.

In 1895 Sir Henry Campbell-Bannerman boldly retired the Duke of Cambridge from the post of Commander-in-Chief. There were two reasons: First, his age; and secondly, his Royal status, which made administration very difficult.

A few years later the post of Commander-in-Chief—just the post for Lord Kitchener—was itself abolished. Instead, we have now the Inspector-General, whose business it is to see that the Army is complete to the last button. The first Inspector-General was the Duke of Connaught.

See what followed. The Duke is, by universal consent, a good soldier, thoroughly keen on his work. But then he suffers, just as the Duke of Cambridge suffered, from his Royal status. An Under-Secretary cannot deal with the brother of the Sovereign as if he were an ordinary officer. Another opening had to be found for the Duke of Connaught.

The Mediterranean command was quickly evolved from Mr. Haldane's fertile brain. The Duke set forth, played at soldiers for a few months, watched the boats sailing by, grew tired of interfering in other men's duties, resigned, and was created Governor-General of Canada!

Inducements That Failed.

When Malta, thus rendered vacant, was pressed upon Lord Kitchener, all sorts of inducements were added. He should have the right to inspect all the Imperial forces in the King's Dominions beyond the Seas; he should carry out Mr. Haldane's idea of one standard of accoutrement in the Colonies, so that all the scattered forces of the Empire might work with the Home Army in time of war; he should have a seat upon the Defence Committee. No; Lord Kitchener would have none of it. He threw up the Mediterranean command, and the Government did not further extend the invitation to the Defence Committee.

Again, let us be fair. The whole of Lord Kitchener's wonderful career has been spent in the East. It is not quite easy to see what appointment at home he would have accepted. There is the Command in Ireland; but would not Lord Kitchener have resented such a suggestion? Besides, General Lyttelton has been barely a year in the saddle.

Then take the Inspector-Generalship. How could Lord Kitchener succeed Sir John French, his subordinate?

Of course, the great outcry has arisen because Lord Kitchener has no seat upon the Defence Committee. The matter lies exclusively with the Prime Minister, which was Mr. Bal-

HIS REPRESENTATIVES.

A leading merchant was once asked how it was he had no representatives on the road. He replied:

"I have the best representatives in the world. They always tell the value of my goods in plain language. They always attend to business. They are always polite. They never miss an appointment, and they are at work early in the morning till the last thing at night. They take no holidays, and work the whole year round. four's arrangement when he founded the Committee in 1905.

More Than Meets the Eye.

There is, undoubtedly, more in all this than meets the eye. Until he went to India, the career of Lord Kitchener was an open volume for all to read. His brain of "chilled steel," his terrible indifference to all save the end to be achieved, his hatred of waste, and how in Egypt he "drilled the black man white and made the mummy fight"—it was all common talk, even in the music halls.

Afterwards—mystery! The world only knew that Lord Kitchener soon came to loggerheads with Lord Curzon, then Viceroy, and that it was Lord Curzon who resigned. Then there was a shadowy scheme for reorganizing the Indian forces—two regiments of Gurkhas were enrolled—transport was decentralized—native mountain batteries were developed; but what did it mean? The very experts are dumb.

An Astonishing Story.

Finally came that astonishing story of a kind of promise made to Lord Kitchener, that, if he left India, he had best take a return ticket, since he would go back in another position—to wit, as Viceroy. Exalted names—very exalted names—are associated with this report.

Of course, if a war were to break out, Lord Kitchener would at once take command, and no such command would have been possible had he taken the post of Viceroy of India. Otherwise, there are those who think that he might become Secretary of State for War in the next Conservative Cabinet.

Such an appointment would be "political"—that is, it would involve policy in the widest sense. Lord Roberts is an apostle of compulsory military service. Some people hint that Lord Kitchener agrees with him. But would Mr. Balfour adopt so tremendous a proposal? These are some of the unplumbed depths in the strange case of our unemployed Field Marshal.—M.A.P.

Giant Spinach.

Vegetable Used For Paper-Making.

Among crops growing in Norfolk is an experimental plot of one of the most curious vegetables seen in Europe.

It is a spinach of enormous proportions that grows stems four and five feet in height. The first discoverer of the plant was a French professor, who brought over the seed for use as a vegetable and later tested the plant for paper-making. Out of his first crop some sample rolls of paper have recently been made, and the paper proves to be of the very finest quality.

It is claimed for this spinach that it will be a greater weight per acre than any other annual crop yet grown for this purpose, and that the consistency of the stems is more favourable for paper-making than any of the straws that some of the manufacturers have experimented with. This giant spinach is growing very luxuriantly in the Norfolk experimental plot, and it seems likely that it will duly ripen seed.

The French professor is the same who introduced "heliants," that half-sun-flower, half-artichoke, which is having some vogue as a fodder plant since it was introduced to England by Mr. Marsters, of King's Lynn. The French professor first turned his attention to these American plants in the course of a campaign in favour of vegetarianism, of which he is an ardent votary. But heliants, or the sun plant is turning out to be more useful for its mass of green fodder than for its tubers, and the giant spinach is now being grown chiefly in hopes that it may prove useful for paper-making.

It will be some time before it can be known what weight per acre the plant yields in England, but it will be considerable. In any event, the experiment is of interest botanically, if not commercially.

Death Rate Among German Babies.

The figures of the present infant mortality alarm Germany, where the fact that there is a notable increase is evident from the statistics just published. Out of 2,000,000 persons born alive last year in the empire 351,000 died under the age of one year, a record exceeding 17 per cent.

The highest mortality by Kingdoms is Bavaria, 22 per cent, the lowest, 16.8 per cent, is in Prussia. As compared with the British Isles the infant mortality in Germany is very high. In the former the general percentage is 10.8, the rate of mortality varying from 11.8 per cent. in England and Wales, where it is the highest, to 9.2 per cent. in Ireland, where it is lowest.—From America.

The Coronation.

In the Royal Gazette of yesterday appears a copy of a Royal Proclamation first published in the London Gazette on the 21st ult. The Proclamation declares His Majesty's Pleasure touching the Coronation of himself and his consort, Queen Mary. It is to take place on a day in June next which has yet to be determined. The Proclamation is also intended as a notice to those who by the tenures of their manors, lands, &c., claim to render certain services on the occasion of a Royal Coronation. A commission to settle and arrange all business connected with the Coronation is also appointed. Among the Commissioners are the Archbishops of Canterbury and York and the Bishop of London; the Prime Minister and members of the Cabinet, together with other distinguished leaders of the House of Parliament.

How to Reduce the Death Rate.

Our death rate has long been the despair of those interested in the Public Health. How to reduce the death rate is the problem which confronts us all the time. In many lands the death-rate has been cut in two. That is what we have to do in St. John's. It has been done elsewhere. It can be done here. In another part of this issue we publish a suggestive article on this problem. Its chief feature is the telling of the story by a Health Officer who has helped to do it. Another characteristic feature is a list of do's and don'ts for private citizens who may wish to co-operate in reducing the risk of disease and death to themselves, their families and citizens at large.

Special to Evening Telegram.
SPOKANE, Wash., Aug. 23.
That Elk City is still on the map and out of reach of the forest fire, ravaging the surrounding country, which is ablaze for miles, is due solely to the heroism of the women of the town who, while the male population was fighting the advance of the conflagration, guarded their homes and the business houses, extinguishing a number of blazes started by brands carried from the burning forest. Many of them stayed on the roofs of buildings all Saturday night, and but for their bravery the town would be a mass of smouldering embers. The town is out of danger, but the conditions in the growing regions are growing worse. The wind has again risen to a gale and the adjacent mountains are a seething mass of flames. The Embreiron Mountain is ablaze. The American district is a gigantic furnace for miles. A number of outlying settlements from which the inhabitants have fled are certain of destruction, and it is reported that the plant of the American Eagle Mine, one of the largest in the district, is burning. Conditions are shown in a brief message from Forest Ranger Porter to Assistant Ranger Brown at Grangeville. It says: "Situation desperate; whole country ablaze. Must have help to save property."

SEOUL, Korea, Aug. 23.

There is good reason for believing that a convention between the Emperor of Korea and the Emperor of Japan, providing for the annexation of Korea by Japan, was signed here last night by the Korean Premier and Viscount Terachi, the Japanese Resident-General, but official silence in the premises is profound, and the entire proceeding is screened in mystery. Monday morning the members of the Korean Cabinet paid a visit to the Emperor and afterwards called on Viscount Terachi, who will pay his last visit to the Emperor to-day. The city of Seoul is closely guarded, as also are the persons and residences of Korean and Japanese officials.

PARIS, Aug. 23.

The striking success of the series of military aeroplane skirmishes and scouting manoeuvres, executed after the Rheims aviation meeting and during the big cross-country race just completed, has decided the French War Department to undertake the test of air machines, both dirigible balloons and aeroplanes, at the forthcoming general army manoeuvres on the plains of Picardy, on a vastly larger scale than has hitherto been attempted. Two dirigibles will be placed at the disposal of General Picquart and General Munier, each to be accompanied by an aeroplane as a scout and wind tester.

PARIS, Aug. 23.

Consumption of horse flesh in France, according to figures gathered, is constantly on the increase. In Paris alone there are 600 meat shops, mainly in poorer quarters, where horse flesh alone is sold. The consumption now exceeds 200,000 animals yearly. Butchers report that the increase is due quite as much to the growing in favor of horse flesh for a food as to its cheapness. The price is 10c. to 15c. a lb., being a powerful argument to the poor under the constantly increasing cost of living in France.

OYSTER BAY, N. Y., Aug. 23.
Col. Theo. Roosevelt left here this morning for New York, where he will make his start for his big speaking tour through the country. The former President indicated that he would give out a detailed statement later with regard to President Taft's letter to County Chairman Grescom of New York on the recent developments in the New York State situation. From this morning until the morning of Sept. 11, when he is due back here, Col. Roosevelt will be kept constantly on the move making speeches, attending receptions and dinners, reviewing parades and travelling. Although Col. Roosevelt has made it clear that he is not going west to talk partisan politics, his trip is regarded as of political significance. He is to make fourteen set speeches, most of which will deal with public questions which figure in party platforms, and will declare his belief in regard to them.

The British Society Excursion to St. John's is to take place on or about September 7th. A number of people are contemplating visiting the Capital with the "British," as they are sure of a good time.

The race boat Maggie that did so well on Regatta Day was built by Mr. William Warren, of this town, and he is deserving of congratulations on account of her success. She is indeed a splendid boat, and we hope and we believe we soon will hear that several orders will be placed in Mr. Warren's hands for new boats on the same lines next year. This is what puts new life in the Annual Regatta. A word of praise must also be awarded the Maggie's coxswain for the way he handled the boat. Mr. French is one of the old-time coxswains and seems to know the exact time to ask the "boys" for the extra pound, and as to steering his boat straight as some St. John's people said he is "a dandy." Mr. F. is a brother of Mr. J. J. French, of the Telegram staff.

Cable Connected.

The cable steamer Colonia reached the end of the cable buoyed 228 miles from Sennen Cove, Cornwall, on Monday, Aug. 16th, at 4 p.m., Newfoundland time, and was there about ten days completing the trip, which was the quickest on record. The steamer had beautiful weather, and this, coupled with good navigation, is responsible for the cable being laid exceptionally straight. The actual length of cable is therefore shorter by several miles.

On the steamer's sighting the buoy the cable was picked up and spliced, and one hour later communication was established between Bay Roberts and Sennen Cove, Eng., and official test taken. While the operations were proceeding not a single hitch occurred, everything being most satisfactorily performed. The exact length of this cable is 2,036 miles. The ship is now at Greenwich taking on board the Bay Roberts-New York cable, and will return here with this about the middle of September.—The Guardian.

A Woman Attacked.

Last evening a resident of Topsail Road came to the police station and reported that a woman had been attacked on Cockpit Road Monday night about 9.30. The police informant said that the woman came to his door at about 10 o'clock and when he answered her knock she told him that a scamp had attacked her on the road. She had gone in the road for a walk with another woman who lived in the country, and as she returned she was met by the man who laid hands on her and pretty roughly handled her. He became alarmed when she screamed and fled towards Cornwall Avenue. Supt. Grimes, who received the report, immediately put Head Peet and Sgt. Byrne on the case, and we have no fear but that these two officers will run the scamp to earth.

Here and There.

FISH SCARCE.—The local fishermen did very little on the grounds outside the Narrows yesterday.

SEVENTEEN TO LEAVE.—We learn that a large firm on Water St. has given notice to 17 of its hands that they must leave the service after a given time. This comes to some of them as a severe blow as they were in several instances over 20 years in the employ of the concern.

ST. MARY'S AVERAGE CATCH.—The schr. Experiment, Capt. Frank Daley, arrived here fish laden from Salmonier last evening. The Daleys are the most successful fish killers in St. Mary's Bay, and Capt. Daley says that the fishery all round will be only an average one this year.

ARRESTED IN PARK.—Last night a man who was well under the influence of liquor kicked up lively in Bannerman Park and the caretaker had to call the police. He refused to leave the place and when arrested attempted to resist, but found this would not be tolerated and he was quickly rushed to the station.

Manufacture of Soda.

A Result of French Revolution—Discovery of Soda Lake in Africa.

The European Powers have pretty well divided Africa between them, and it looks quite civilized on an up to date map, but apparently there are still big tracts which are terra incognita, judging from the announcement that a company is being formed to exploit a great lake of soda discovered last year in the East Africa Protectorate.

If, as is said, it covers an area of some 40,000 square miles, it is by far the biggest lake in Africa, exceeding by 14,000 square miles the area of the Victoria Nyanza, and being capable of accommodating the whole of Scotland within it as an island, with at least 10,000 square miles of soda to spare.

The manufacture of soda is one of the most important of chemical industries, and those engaged in it will watch with interest the opening up of this immense source of supply. Time was when ocean plants supplied the raw material of soda, and it was the French Revolution which effected the first great revolution in the making of that necessary article of everyday use.

The National Convention, seeing France isolated from the rest of the world, entreated patriotic scientists to save the country from a threatened soda famine, and as a result Leblanc invented his process for the manufacture of soda from coal, lime, salt and sulphuric acid.—London Daily News.

FACTIONS CLASHED.

Disgraceful Fight Took Place in Bantry, Ireland, Yesterday.

Bantry, Ireland, Aug. 15.—David Sheehy and John Roche, members of Parliament, invaded this town yesterday with a strong party of followers, and as the place is an O'Brien stronghold, there was a lively row that lasted most of the day. The local Redmondites had gathered to hear the visitors speak when they were attacked by the O'Brientes. Savage fighting with sticks and stones followed. An effort was made by the police to separate the rival parties, when they in turn were attacked. The inspector and a number of constables were severely hurt. Finally they were compelled to take refuge in a local hotel.

Among the members of the opposing factions there were many broken heads. After a long delay the police were reinforced and escorted the visiting members to the railway station.

American Interest in Sea Supremacy.

Cogent Questions Asked by Correspondent of Harper's Weekly—With Great Britain Defeated by Germany, Where Would the United States "Get Off At?"

New York, Aug. 16.—The London correspondent of Harper's Weekly, Mr. Sydney Brooks (whose journalistic work is well known, and whose observations are accepted as especially worthy of attention), writes on "The Warning of Germany's Naval Increase and why it should interest Americans."

He quotes Admiral Mahan's recent utterance as part of his introductory remarks:

This is the fundamental condition which the British democracy of today have to recognize as regards their national security, upon which their economic future—their food, clothing and housing—depends; that they stand face to face with a nation one-fourth more numerous than themselves, and one more highly organized for the sustenance by force of a national policy. It is so because it has a government more efficient in the ordering of national life, in that it can be, and is, more consecutive in purpose than one balanced unsteadily upon the shoulders of a shifting popular majority.

After discussing various phases of the struggle for naval supremacy as between Great Britain and Germany, the correspondent goes on to point out how the United States is concerned in the great question of naval armament. He rejects the generally accepted American idea that one set of world politics applies on one side of the Atlantic and not on the other.

Some Pertinent Questions.

"Has the United States an interest in the fact that Germany is now the second naval power in the world?" he asks. "Has she an interest in the prodigious preparations for war, or for warding off war, that are being hurriedly pressed forward on both sides of the North Sea? Has she an interest in the possibility that supremacy at sea may one day suddenly pass from British to German hands, and that England may be irretrievably humbled and that the British Empire may be convulsively dissolved? Have Americans ever conceived themselves menaced by the British command of the sea? Would they be equally satisfied if Germany were to occupy the position so long and with such general acceptance held by Great Britain? They are well aware, no doubt, that the possessions of Canada binds Great Britain automatically to good behaviour throughout the Americas. Do they feel confident that they have any equal hold over Germany? They have long since, I believe, acquitted Great Britain of all 'designs' upon the Monroe Doctrine. Have they returned an equally favorable verdict in the case of Germany? American commerce and power are inextricably intermingled with those of Great Britain; the downfall of the British Empire, which would be the inevitable consequence of the destruction of British sea-power, would paralyze every financial and commercial interest in the United States for at least a couple of decades. Would the destruction of German sea-power have any such disastrous and reverberant results? In the scale of American material interests which weighs the heavier—Germany or Great Britain? In the scale of American naval interests the same question has to be asked and answered. Are Americans more in sympathy with the British or the German form of civilization and of government; with British or with German ideas and ethical principles; with the British or the German language, spirit and genius? I question whether British supremacy at sea gives an American statesman a moment's anxiety on behalf of a single one of America's possessions or policies. Would Germany's supremacy at sea be equally innocuous?

Upkeep of British Empire.
Next to the security and well-being of their own country have Americans any greater or more obvious and tangible interests than the preservation of the British Empire on its present footing? Would its collapse react anywhere so disastrously as upon the United States? Of the two powers, it is Great Britain or is it Germany that is the more aggressive, the more hungry for fresh territory; the greater centre of international disturbance and unrest? Would the rise of a Greater Germany to the power and influence now owned by Greater Britain be regarded by Americans as a happy development or as one that menaced their position and freedom as a world-power? Losing command of the sea, Great Britain loses everything; the destruction of the German navy would no more ruin Germany than Tashima ruined Russia. If, therefore, matters come to a crisis, is it clear that Germany will be fighting for a dominion, and Great Britain for life; Germany for a world-wide upheaval, and Great Britain for the status quo. Which power, under these circumstances, would make the better appeal for American sympathies? I pose these questions, but I have no wish to prejudice the answers to them. I pose them as one who believes that most of them will never require an answer, for the reason that Great Britain is strong enough and alert enough to face single-handed the crisis that seems to be approaching. But if I were an American I should pose them just the same and, what is more, I should try to answer them as dispassionately as I knew how. There is every probability that Great Britain will survive the ordeal that awaits her. But there is just a possibility that she may not, and if I were an American that possibility would mightily concern me. There is good reason to think that Germany has risen to be the second naval power in the world with a view to challenging Great Britain. But there is a chance that she may, after all, be thinking of some one else, and, if I were an American, I should not ignore that chance."

Shark Steaks and Porcupines

The Latest in London Menus.
Strolling down Fleet Street recently the T.B. man was startled to see shark steaks advertised in a certain fish restaurant. That they were very palatable was evident from the steady demand of customers for this latest novelty in food-stuffs. At least, it appears to be a novelty so far as Fleet Street is concerned. The T.B. man learns, however, that shark steaks are now a somewhat common item on the menu of city restaurants and so are bear steaks.
Enterprising Smithfield salesmen acquire some fine Russian bears which are sent to this country in a frozen condition. Only certain portions of the carcass are considered suitable for the table, and when the tem is on the menu it usually proves very popular.

This is to certify that I have used MINARD'S Inliment in my family for years, and consider it the best liment on the market. I have found it excellent for horse flesh.

Famous Performances in Courts of Justice.

Singing and Dancing Before the Judge.

On a certain memorable occasion all who were present at the Court of Justice at Berlin had the great pleasure of listening to a free performance by a world-famous violinist. It appeared from the evidence that a dealer in musical instruments was charged with cheating a customer by representing that a violin which he offered for sale at five shillings was an instrument that could be played. The great professor was called in as an expert witness, and, taking up the impugned instrument, he proceeded to play upon it. Under his magic fingers it really sounded like a violin; and in a few moments, much to the regret of his listeners, the maestro laid the instrument down with an evident air of contempt. But he had secured the accused's acquittal.

Saved By His Voice.

The great tenor Mario once had to give a free exhibition of his magnificent vocal powers in court in order to gain freedom for himself. He had been arrested in Madrid in mistake for a mischievous political agitator, and in vain proclaimed his identity to the powers that be. Finally he was told that if he really was the famous singer his voice was a certain means of convincing the Court of the truth of his claim. For seven or eight minutes Mario held all within hearing spell-bound, and he was then allowed to take his departure amid profuse apologies.

Danced on a Table.

It is seldom, indeed, that a lawsuit is determined by a dance, yet in more than one instance a case has been actually won by such a performance before a judicial tribunal. A few weeks ago a suit was decided in this extraordinary fashion at a Berlin Court of Justice.

According to the report, a lady who was appearing in the Prussian capital under the professional title of "She" was summoned before the courts by Miss Lote Fuller, of worldwide fame, to answer a charge of using her patented apparatus in what was described as a fire-dance. This charge the lady denied, and, much to the delight of the spectators, and in order that the Bench may be able to judge for themselves, she offered to go through the performance there and then in court. A table was accordingly brought forth for the purpose, and on this, attired in a loose-fitting garment, "She" went through her dance. We are not told whether the judges applauded in the usual way, but they dismissed the charge.

Judge Decides for Himself.

A similarly unusual scene was once witnessed in a French law court—the Civil Tribunal at Nantes. In this case the proprietor of a local theatre had engaged a young lady dancer, whose performances at rehearsals did not come up to his expectations. He therefore would not let her appear, and the fair dancer took action against him for breach of contract. The defendant alleged that she had not even learnt the first steps of her art; and here being a plain issue the judge determined to decide it for himself.

A space was accordingly forthwith cleared on the floor of the court, and in these unusual surroundings the young lady duly went through her steps and pirouettings. In the result the judge felt justified in certifying that she was quite an expert dancer and decided the case in her favor. Henceforward she advertised herself as the only dancer in the country with a legal certificate of proficiency.

Backache Suffering

A wonderful medicine is this man's description of DR. CHASE'S KIDNEY-LIVER PILLS.
Mr. Fred. Gummer, Lillies, Ont., writes: "I can honestly say that Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills are a wonderful medicine. For six weeks last fall I could scarcely walk around for pains in the back and legs, and was almost completely unfit for work. Through I tried several medicines I got no better. I saw Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills advertised and bought five boxes. After I had used three boxes, I was greatly improved and by the time I had them all taken felt as well as I ever did. I would advise anyone suffering from kidney disease to use Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills.

Blacking & Mercantile Co., Ltd., Amherst, N.S.

Dear Sirs,—We have nothing but good to say of Mathieu's Syrup and can conscientiously describe it as the most popular and successful Cough Medicine we handle. Owing to the absence of any drug store in this vicinity there is a great variety of proprietary medicine sold in the course of the year, and Mathieu's Syrup pre-eminently leads in its own class. Yours sincerely,

D. MARTIN.

AGAINST HEADACHE there is no remedy so active as Mathieu's Nerve Powders which contain no opium, morphine or chloral. 25 cts. per box of 18 powders.

Brought Two Prisoners

Const. Gardiner arrived here by last night's train with two prisoners, named Higgins and Norman, both of whom were tried before Magistrate Lilly at Catalina on Saturday last. One was arrested for the larceny of a considerable quantity of fish from the lakes there, while the other was arrested for using threatening language towards his sister-in-law. One will serve four months in the Penitentiary and the other 30 days.

Another Banker Here.

The banker Dove, owned by Hy. Hollett of Burin, arrived here yesterday from Burin. She got to that port from the Banks about 10 days ago and found fish scarce. This vessel is not doing as well as others of her class, having to date only 1,600 qts. of fish for 9 dories. After receiving some necessary repairs and supplies here she will sail for the Labrador to continue fishing the rest of the season.

For the Canadian North-West.

By yesterday's express there left for the Canadian North-West Messrs. Lacey, Barnes, Miller, Benson, Spooner and Parsons. They are travelling on greatly reduced fares made possible by the demand for harvesters, and will at first go to Manitoba. They will do very little harvesting, unless driven to it, but hope to make out a better living and secure remunerative work in the Great North-West.

Repaired Steamer Dundee's Propeller.

Mr. Wm. Butler, who is diver for his father, Mr. S. Butler, shipwright, returned yesterday from Port Blandford where he went under water and made repairs to the Dundee's propeller. Some of the bolts had become loose. They were tightened up and others which were lost were replaced, by new ones to the satisfaction of Mr. A. D. Brown, who was there. Will Butler is the youngest diver in the country but does his work in a very thorough manner.

How to Reduce the Death Rate.

In the "World of To-Day" there is a most interesting article describing how Dr. William A. Evans, Health Commissioner of Chicago, has made the Chicago death rate below that of any great city in the world; and this is due not only to the efficiency of his administration, but to the energy with which he has educated the people on the importance of health. In order to warn the people of the dangers of insanitary surroundings, he issues a weekly paper which is sent free to social workers and school officials and other interested persons. It gives a weekly summary of the state of the city's health, with brief and picturesque exhortations in regard to the dangers of the particular season. In summer the care of children is dwelt upon; in winter the precautions to be taken against pneumonia and bronchitis. Diagrams of racial or local death rates, maps showing "where the babies die," give point to the printed text. Health talks, plucky leaders of 200 to 300 words, are supplied every week to 150 papers. Not content with this method of propaganda, this indefatigable doctor lectures all over the city, and occasionally takes a ten minutes' turn at popular music halls in order to give a plain ten minutes' talk to the audience on health and disease. One of the results of his energy is that of the thirty thousand cans of milk which enter Chicago daily, twenty-five thousand already conform to the ordinance, eighteen thousand by pasteurisation and seven thousand by tuberculin testing.

The following are some of the health maxims of Dr. Evans, which are distributed as tracts or bills on boardings:—
Closed windows are open avenues to consumption.
Strong drink makes weak men.
Your things can't be washed, but they can be strod.
Flth for flies and flies for fever.
When you don't know what to eat—eat nothing.
Dry dusting moves dust; it doesn't remove it.

One fly swatted in May is equal to a million swats in July.
So-called chest protectors are targets for colds and coughs.
Breathe freely and fully; the more you expand your chest the less you will contract colds.
Floods of sunshine in the home may fade carpets, but it puts the bloom of health on your cheeks. Take your choice.

Sacrificed Fifteen Thousand a Year.

The son of an Unbridge carpenter, the Right Hon. Sir Hudson Kearley, who has been made a peer, has the reputation of being one of the shrewdest and most capable men in the City of London. At fourteen he became a clerk in the city, at twenty-one he was in business for himself, and eventually he rose to the head of the firm of Kearley and Toogoe, the great provision merchant. Having made a fortune, he turned his attention to politics, and in 1905 he was appointed Secretary to the Board of Trade. Then, when the Port of London Authority was formed, he accepted the post of chairman, but refused to take any salary for the onerous duties the position entails.

Where Columbus Was Born.

Genoa, Aug. 18—A party of Knights of Columbus, which recently visited the monument of Columbus here and placed a wreath of laurel and palm at the foot of the monument, has started a movement to purchase the house where Columbus was born, which was nearby. The plan provides for the purchase of the house by the Knights of Columbus and its transformation into a kind of shrine of international interest.

Well Earned Vacation.

We learn that Inspector General Sullivan will leave here next week for a two months holiday, and that he will visit Canada and the United States. Mr. Sullivan is a gentleman who has been always most assiduous in the duties of his office, never sparing himself when duty called, and when occasion demanded working early or late. When it is considered that Mr. Sullivan has not had any lengthy leave of absence for 20 years, it will certainly be admitted, especially in view of his recent illness, that this holiday is due him. We trust that he will return with renewed strength and vigour to resume the onerous duties of his important office.

Has 37 Medals.

Mr. Samuel Esbary, the popular and successful coxswain, of the South Side, has to date 37 medals, most of them gold, for successful rowing and steering in the regattas on Quidi Vidi Lake. The earning of those trophies covers a period of 10 years, and at the recent regatta Mrs. Job plied on his bosom no less than seven of these pretty prizes. Mr. Esbary is proud of these tributes to his ability as an oarsman and steersman, and well he might be.

Yesterday evening the ambulance brought to the railway station Miss Harvey who is very ill, and who was put on board the cars on a stretcher to go to her home in Boston. ## Bornu's Large Passenger List.

The s.s. Bornu, which left Halifax yesterday and is due here to-morrow, will have the largest passenger list possibly for the season. We learn from Messrs. Harvey & Co. that at Halifax not a berth could be had, all the staterooms being taken up by Americans. Many would have joined the ship at Halifax, including some parties of tourists, but they could not do so, much to their disappointment. It looks as if Newfoundland is being well advertised abroad and that its capabilities as a summer resort are being gradually realized.

Splendid Shaving Parlors.

Many people stood on Water Street last night to admire the beautiful new tonorial parlors opened opposite the Post Office by Mr. M. F. Murphy. They are capacious, beautifully decorated and ornamented, are set around with heavy plate mirrors surmounting polished oak cabinets. The doors are of polished maple wood. Brilliantly lit by electricity as the parlors were last night they could not but attract attention. Six beautiful green plush chairs are reserved for customers. The most attractive pole in the city is at the door. It is of hollow plate glass, was designed by Mr. D. Carroll, and is in itself when the inside is lit up a striking feature of the place. We bespeak for Mr. Murphy every success and congratulate him on his enterprise.

Seven Years Sea Mystery.

Loss of Vessel From Halifax May Be Solved By Hamburg Steamer Running Down a Whale.

Philadelphia, Aug. 19.—A seven years mystery of the sea may be solved through a mishap to the German steamship Pallanza, which struck a whale at sea, nearly cutting the mammal in two and disclosing a harpoon believed to have been used by the little whaler James T. Duncan, which was lost in 1903.

The Duncan sailed from Halifax, N.S., with a crew of seven men in the spring of that year, and has not since been heard from.
Capt. Fende, of the Pallanza, which has arrived here from Hamburg, reports that he ran into the whale on Aug. 11th; the monster was firmly impaled on the prow of the steamer and died after a terrific struggle. Nine members of the crew were let down to chop away the carcass, and one of the crew found the harpoon embedded in the whale.

Upon the end of the harpoon was an iron band stamped "J.T.D. 2902." Captain Fende keeps a close record of wrecks, and he came to the conclusion that the whale may have been responsible for the loss of the Duncan.

"I think it perfectly safe to say that the Duncan drove this weapon into the whale and in the struggle which followed was sunk by a blow from the infuriated monster's tail," he said. "You'd think so, too, if you had seen that whale die."

Narrow Escape at Niagara.

Crowded Gorge Cars Collided on Ledge Opposite Whirlpool.
Niagara Falls, N.Y., Aug. 16.—In a head-on collision between two trolley cars on the Gorge Route last evening nine persons were injured, one seriously.
The collision occurred at Swift Drift at the point in the Gorge where the river breaks into the swift rapids above the whirlpool. The ledge upon which the tracks rest is narrow, and on the river side there is a sheer drop of twenty feet into the churning waters. Both cars were shattered by the terrific force of the collision, but neither left the rails.

The accident was due to the failure of the brakes to work on the down-river car.
The s.s. Florizel arrived at Halifax at 10 a.m. Monday and left for New York at 11 a.m. yesterday.

Culture at the English Court.

Literature and art cannot be said to have greatly flourished during the last decade or so, but it will certainly not be the fault of the King and Queen Mary, says the Lady's Pictorial of London, if learning is not regarded as better than lands, and art does not reach a higher level. The Queen is an omnivorous reader; it is understood that she will have no ladies in her entourage who are not what may be described as intellectual women, and she is deeply interested in all literary matters.

The library at Windsor has already engaged her attention, and it will not be a matter of surprise if in future honours lists the names of those who have distinguished themselves by their pen appear more frequently than has hitherto been the case.

Flames 1,500 Feet High

New Volcano in the Aleutians—Mount Pavloff a Great Spectacle.
Seattle, Wash., Aug. 13.—Wireless reports received here last night from the steamship Corwin confirm the news from Seward that Mount Shishaldin is again in eruption, as is also Mount Pavloff, which is east of Shishaldin.

The wireless report says that the eruption of Mount Pavloff is even more spectacular than that of the other volcano, the flames shooting to a height of nearly 1,500 feet. In the eruption of Mount Pavloff the volcanic action begins in a new place along the Aleutian chain and to the eastward of the Bogosloff, Makushin and Shishaldin region.

The extent of the disturbance, as shown by the latest reports sent by the Corwin, covers approximately three degrees of longitude.

Dust and Other Nuisances.

Editor Evening Telegram.
Dear Sir,—One broiling hot day recently I had occasion to visit one of those erections devoted to public use situated at the cove annexed to Tester's premises, opposite Prince's St., Water St. West. These places are never kept clean, nor are they by any means suitable either by their location or their accommodation. But this one in particular was the worst of the lot. The odour that it was circulating around was fearful, and not one drop of water either from the harbor or from city sources was there to flush it. This is not a nice subject, but it must be made public to acquaint the public with facts that surely are of import to them, and to stir if possible the Municipal Council to action in the matter of public health. These erections are placed, as it were, as far as possible from the public eyes, on some wharf or in some cove; but I can tell the public that wherever they are placed they are filthy and a disgrace to a civil community. Unless they are kept in repair and in a thoroughly clean state they will become a breeding ground for pestilence. It makes no matter who goes into one they will bear out my statement. They are ill-built, they are not placed right and they are dirty. Does the Municipal Council ever see or send anybody to have an eye to these erec-tions? I do not think so, for if they kept to the big promises they each made previous to their election they would have these places kept clean and decent. I am no scientist and can't analyze any matter or substance, but I can almost swear that there are disease germs by the millions circulating in and about these filthy erections. The general public have daily recourse to them and each and every individual must carry away some of those microbes for distribution elsewhere. Members of the Council, please appoint some of your number to go from West to East, or vice versa, on some hot day and inspect these erections, and if I am not right, then I am wrong; or maybe what is sauce for the goose is not sauce for the gander, and what may offend my nostrils and senses may not offend those of people less fastidious, dainty or clean. But it calls for drastic treatment, anyway, and disinfectants and a complete reorganizing of this matter in the interests of the public health.

There is another subject on which it may be no great harm to write, that is the method employed at present for sweeping dust, etc., on Water Street. On what plan is the present idea based? Is it modelled after the Sahara sand storm? If so the scenery is not right. There should be the Pyramids, the Sphinx, a few mounted Bedouin Arabs and a camel caravan or two to make it appropriate. But there is no doubt about the sand or dust though. The Council have given each man a weaphn, called a broom, and with this he can raise enough dust to satisfy anyone from a Bowery tough down. 'Tis a disgrace again. It is not so bad from Holloway Street up town, but from that down street 'tis fearful. Reid's sprinkler relieves the situation by keeping the dust laid for these sweepers, but on or about Custom House Hill, where no water cart ever calls, it is something fierce. One or two magic passes with this broom and the heap of dry dust, like a demon, starts up in a dense cloud, enveloping all around it, blinding and choking the wayfarer, spilling goods in shops, etc., and spreading the microbes by another means—airial navigation. These dust men either seem to be dust-proof or have some attribute attached to them as to make it wonderful how they manage to emerge from their self-raised cyclone. It looks as if each were making their little "pile," and having made it with several more, along cometh the cart to gather the results of half a day's labor. Please note the dexterity of the man with the shovel who proceeds to take the sweeper's little pile. With a scientific sweep of the shovel at the pile the shoveler manages to acquire some of the dust pile, the rest flying joyfully away to dirt whatever it may come in contact with. By the time the shovel has dropped its contents into the cart there is but little left on it, maybe a spoonful. "It flies." These are the methods by which the Council and its employees keep our city dirty, not clean, and they don't seem to know any way to improve matters.

These two nuisances should be speedily remedied. Remodel the water front erections, and when the dust on Water Street is being swept up and carted away let it be sprinkled thoroughly and try to let us have one or two things done right.

Thanking you for space, etc., I remain,
Yours truly,
SWEEPING REFORMS.

Rejected Lover Commits Suicide.

South Framingham, Mass., Aug. 8.—Because the young woman whom he loved had refused to break her engagement with another man, G. Bradford, Jr., Harvard graduate in the class of 1910, and direct descendant of Wm. Bradford, first governor of the Puritan Plymouth colony, committed suicide by shooting himself to-day. A bullet wound in the forehead, the only shot to take effect of the four which he fired, caused death at the Framingham Hospital, where he was taken four hours later. He had sought consolation in his misery apparently from a copy of the poetic works of Byron, "the moody poet," which was found at his side. Young Bradford was 23 years old, prominent in Boston as a bank clerk, and had been refused this morning by the woman he loved. At the railroad station here, after vainly seeking to induce her to change her mind and let him be her husband to be, Bradford left her much excited. He went to a local hotel where he had stopped before. Asking for a room he said he was very tired. Half an hour later the hotel employees heard four shots and traced them to Bradford's room. The door was open and he was found on the floor, his head lying in a pool of blood which was flowing from a wound over his left eye. He was removed to the hospital. Before he died, four hours later, the young woman whose refusal caused him to take his life went to the hospital and sat by his bedside. She had heard of his shooting himself while still on the railway, collapsing afterwards. Regaining consciousness she asked for his condition, and being told he was at the hospital went there. It is believed he did not recognize her, being unconscious most of the time up to his death.

The Evening Chit-Chat
By RUTH CAMERON

"I have half a dozen invitations to visit different friends of mine this summer—two or three of them people I'm very fond of, too," said the pretty little stenographer lady who was curled up in my Gloucester hammock, "and yet I'm going to take my hard earned money and go to a hotel for a two weeks' vacation."

"Why?" in answer to the expected question on my part, "because I'm tired, and I know it will rest me just about twice as much as visiting over people I love. There's no two ways about it—visiting, even the nicest people, IS a strain."

"Now don't think I'm ungrateful. Ruthie," surging up on her elbow in the enthusiasm of her subject, "because, really, I'm not. And don't think I don't know what I'm talking about, because I do. I've done a good deal of visiting at one time or another, and at some very pleasant places, too, and it's all very well when you have plenty of energy to spare, but when you want a complete rest—nervy and body and soul—thank you, no."

"Let me tell you about last year."

"I went to see one of my young married friends, as nice and jolly a girl as ever lived and a lovely home but—well, you don't know who she is and never will, so what's the harm in telling you why I'm going to a hotel this year?"

"In the first place she has three small children, who wake up a little before the birds. I should say, and consequently they all have to breakfast by seven o'clock. Rita said I was to be abed, but of course I couldn't upset the house like that, so I was up at six every morning—half an hour earlier than I am the rest of the year. Because of her husband's business hours she has to have a late and hearty dinner at half past two in the afternoon, and supper at about eight o'clock. The peculiar hours and the richness of the food Rita serves knocked my digestion all out. Mind you, I'm not complaining; I'm just showing you why fitting in with the routine of other people's households—as a visitor has to do, of course—isn't always the most restful thing."

"Then Rita is one of those people who will work their fingers off trying to make things nice for you, but who are hurt unless you respond by keeping in a perfect frenzy of gratitude and enthusiasm over their efforts. Now it may sound horrid, Ruth, but I don't know of anything more wearing than being continually obliged to appear pleased and grateful. You may feel very much so, but if you feel that you must show it all the time, it makes you uncomfortable and constrained. I think that's one of the best things about a paid-for visit. You don't feel obliged to look delightful all the time. Positively, my delightful muscles were so overworked last year that I hardly smiled for a month afterwards."

"I have a great objection to coming home just the day before I must go back to work, so I wanted to leave two or three days before the two weeks were up, but Rita is one of those people who overdo a hospitable urgency to prolong your visit into an iron-bound insistence that you shall stay longer, so I had to give that up."

"Actually Ruth, I had been looking forward to those two weeks all the year, and yet I was more relieved than anything else when it was over."

"Why don't you say something in some of your talks about the evils of visiting, Ruthie? Tell working girls that if they really want to get a thorough rest and change, they can't afford to try to fit themselves into someone's else routine."

"I will," I said.

But I thought I'd let her, instead.

Ruth Cameron

cutting, leaving a thread to cut by.

Wools and silks should be darned with ravellings from the goods themselves. Wax the ravelling before using.

The marks on wall paper made by scratching matches on it are easily removed by rubbing it with a cut lemon.

When cleaning windows, if a spoonful of vinegar is put into the water, it will make the glass shine beautifully.

Tips on Neckwear.

"Betsey Ross" is the very quaint name of the latest in linen collars. The full pleated collars are becoming only to youthful necks.

Some of the afternoon gowns have, in place of a flat collar finish, an attractive old-time frilly fichu that forms a V in front, and is made of the softest batiste and lace.

Claudine sets give just the dainty touch of white needed on a summer shirtwaist gown of dark pongee, foulard or linen, that are the smartest things for a morning in town or a short journey by train.

One of the latest models in the Dutch collar is of pleated ecru net, edged with a band of Persian chiffon and a tiny black velvet bow in front. Jabots are as popular as ever, especially the one-sided effects.

A distinctly tailored effect is gained in one of the new sailor collars of white linen which is finished with a plain hem and a band of Russian cross-stitch embroidery in red, blue and black.

Embroidered dots in different sizes are one of the simplest of the many chic bits of needlework on the fashionable neckwear for the summer. Collar and cuff sets for tennis, boating, trotteur frocks, and even on bathing suits, are made with a button-holed edge, and dots in the same color. Collar and cuff sets for tennis, boating, trotteur frocks, and even on bathing suits, are made with a button-holed edge, and dots in the same color. Sometimes a little dotted necklet is added with pleasing results.

Odd and pretty are the collars and frills of delicate pink or lavender batiste, pleated and edged with the finest of lace. They give a charming note of color to a white linen or lawn gown, with a belt of suede to match.

The fancy for black and white has entered the neckwear realm, and there are fetching things in black and white striped and checked dimities, dotted muslins and more dressy chiffons and black and white laces.

What He Was.

There are times when the most tactful men are taken aback by some unexpected retort.

Such an experience befel King George, when, as Prince of Wales, he reviewed a contingent of Colonial troops. One of the scouts was an unmistakable mulatto, with, however, a magnificent record for gallantry.

The King was walking down their extended line, and occasionally speaking to one of the men. Opposite the coloured man he stopped.

"And who are you, my man?" he asked.

"I'm a niggab, your Highness."

King George was nonplussed by the unlooked for reply, but he managed to say:

"Good; then remain so, my brave fellow."

With this he passed on.

Demented Sailor Plunges Into Sea.

North Sydney, Aug. 18.—There was an exciting scene on board the iron barque Lake Simcoe when a few miles off Low Point on Tuesday evening and just when she was within sight of her destination after a six days' passage from St. John's, Nfld. The commotion was caused by one of the crew who ran to the after rail and attempted to jump overboard, but was prevented by the first officer. Foisted in this attempt he ran forward and jumped into the rigging and plunged into the ocean with the evident intention of ending his earthy career then and there. That he was not successful was due to the rare presence of mind and quick action of the first officer, who, as soon as he saw the man go overboard, made one end of a line fast to the after rigging and lowered himself over 'the side of the ship just in time to seize the sailor as the vessel was passing him. This was possible on account of the very slow movement of the Simcoe, which was making scarcely steerage way. When he had secured a firm hold on the would-be assassin, the officer was hoisted on board by the other members of the crew on watch, at the time.

The Would-Be Suicide.

The sailor who took the dive overboard was shipped just before the Lake Simcoe left St. John's, and had evidently been on a prolonged spree. He attended to his duties all right for a couple of days, when he showed signs of mental trouble, in his illusion believing that his shipmates were "down on him." Capt. Wilson, seeing the man's condition, took him to his cabin, treated him kindly, and gave him one of the staterooms in the cabin. The fear that possessed the man, however, led him to lock himself in the room, and for two days he could not be induced to come out or take any food, until finally, suffering intensely from thirst, he opened the door and asked for drink. His request was granted and he was then removed to the forecastle, where one of the sailors was detailed to watch him. For a couple of days he acted rationally and was allowed to go about his work. Shortly before reaching Low Point he again acted queerly and jumped overboard as stated. After being rescued the man was put in irons, and when the Lake Simcoe arrived in port last evening he still wore the handcuffs. He refused medical attendance when Dr. Rindress went on board on arrival of the vessel, and last night became very violent. This morning, however, he submitted to the doctor's treatment, and is now doing well. The Lake Simcoe will load coal here for St. John's, Nfld.
