Are You a Stenographer?

If you are a Stenographer, this will appeal to you, for it tells of DICKS' SPECIAL, the best Typewriter Ribbon to be had anywhere at any price.

They sell at only 60c. each, $6.00 per dozen (not less than half a dozen sold at the dozen price). For three years we have been experimenting with Typewriter Ribbons, and during that time we have tested some dozens of different makes; but of none of them we have been so absolutely sure that we would guarantee them. At last we have found a Ribbon that has stood our most severe test. We have had one of them in use on our own typewriter for over three months, and the copies now are as clean and as clear as they were when first we began to use it. It is Non-Filling, Non-Fading, and Non-Drying; only the finest fabrics and the brightest colors have been used, so that it makes Sharp Writing, Solid Prints and Strong Copies.

We have them in Purple Record and Purple Copying, in Black Record and Black Copying, in Red Record and Red Copying; and we have them for Underwoods, Oliviers, L. C. Smith's, Remingtons, Smith-Premier, Empire, Fox, Denmore, Bar Lock, Hammond, New Century, and all the other Machines used in the city and outports.

CHAPTER IV.

"Wouldn't I?" returned Tulliver, with an ugly laugh. "You'll find out your mistake pretty soon, my darling."

The insolent laugh and the tone of the man's voice quite upset Kelpie's temper.

"Don't dare to call me your darling, you insolent beggar!" she cried. "I hate you!"

She stamped her pretty foot to give emphasis to her words, her black eyes flashing lightning.

Tulliver made a step nearer and held forth both his hands, with a gesture of passionate entreaty.

"What have I done that you should hate me?" he said. "Haven't I been your slave ever since I came to New Castle Light? I'd get down in the dust and let you trample me under your pretty feet if I thought it would make you relent."

"I should only hate you the more," she answered, with blazing scorn. "Go downstairs! Go instantly! Do you hear?"

"I shouldn't be a man if I obeyed you," he answered. "I've been coming and going at your bidding all these months, and this is my reward. You tell me to my teeth that you hate me."

"You have only yourself to blame. You make me hate you. Why can't you let me alone?"

"I've answered that question already. Because I love you."

"You have a poor way of showing your love."

"If I only knew how to show it," he cried, the look of passionate entreaty coming back to his eyes. "Ah, Kelpie, if I only knew how to please you, how I would consent to teach me, there is nothing I wouldn't be willing to do for your sake."

He came still nearer, his hands extended, his dark features quivering with the mad passion that filled his soul.

Kelpie trembled as she looked at him, but she controlled herself by an almost superhuman effort.

"He's a madman," she said to herself, "and I am in his power. If I let him see that I'm afraid of him, I'm lost. God help me, I don't know what to do."

Tulliver stood watching her, with a smile on his dark, coarse-featured, desperate face, as if he divined her thoughts.

"How pretty you are to-night, Kelpie," he went on suddenly. "Your eyes shine like stars, and your cheeks are the color of the wild roses that bloom in the spring of the year down at Thatcher's Rock. I don't wonder that every man that gets a look at your face falls in love with you. Tom Holland was in love with you, poor fool. That's why I threw him over the parapet just now. I intend to throw that fine city chap over, too, if he ever shows his face at New Castle Light," he added, with a hoarse laugh.

"Will you go below, Tulliver, and put things in order for the night?" said Kelpie quietly. "If not, I'll go myself and leave you to watch the light."

"The light won't need watching, unless you comply with my wish," he replied. "Sit down, sweetheart, and let's come to an understanding. You have kept me in suspense long enough. You'll consent to marry me when the spring opens, won't you?" "You asked me that question a few minutes ago, and I gave you an answer, Tulliver."

Kelpie's voice was soft and low, and her fair face unmoved, but her hidden heart, like the sea below, was in a wild commotion.

Tulliver watched her as a cat watches a mouse, a dangerous gleam in his sullen eyes.

"Yes, I know, but you must reconsider the matter. I've made up my mind not to take a refusal."

"You'll take something worse when my grandfather gets back. Let me pass, Tulliver."

He turned swiftly, and, putting out his arm, barred her way.

"No, you can't go down. We must come to an immediate understanding once for all. There's the cap'n's Bible," he added, pointing to a desk standing against the wall. "Come and put your hand on it and promise to marry me."

Kelpie did not speak for a moment, glancing toward the desk, upon which lay the lighthouse journal, with an inkstand and two or three cork penholders beside it. A sudden remembrance had flashed across her mind with such lightning-like rapidity that for the moment she quite lost her breath.

Kelpie was in the habit of making the entries in the journal for her grandfather, noting the visits of the inspectors, the coming and going of the keepers, and similar details, for which light task the old keeper paid her a small sum once a week from his own salary, which the girl hoarded away, to be expended when she went with old Janet to one of the neighboring towns. All this is a digression, however, having but little bearing on the point in question.

Glancing toward the desk on which lay the Bible in question, by some subtle connection of ideas, which she will not attempt to analyze, Kelpie recalled a circumstance which for weeks had lain dormant in her mind.

When Carroll Fitzhugh, the handsome young stranger previously mentioned, was borne away from the cottage on Thatcher's Rock by his grand old mother and her smart serving man, in the hurry of his sudden departure the young gentleman had left a good many small articles behind him.

A silk handkerchief, marked with his name, and a coat of arms, a book or two, a pocketknife with a pearl handle, and a handsome silver-mounted revolver, which the young aristocrat had obtained through one of the keepers that he might enjoy the sport of shooting at the rabbits, with which the island abounded.

Kelpie, foolish little girl that she was, had treasured all these articles, putting them away with careful hands, to be restored to their owner whenever he should make good his promise and return to Thatcher's Rock. She had even done more than this, blinded by the glamour of her girlish romance.

One autumn day, when accompanied by faithful old Janet, she went over to a neighboring town to lay in some needed comforts for the coming winter, the young girl had indulged in a piece of unparadise extravagance. Fearing that the handsome revolver might get tarnished before the young stranger returned, she decided to make a case for it, and expended more than half of her hoarded earnings for the requisite materials.

She purchased dark-blue velvet, with soft, pink satin for lining, and, having fashioned a pretty case, she embroidered the young man's name and the coat of arms on one side and a delicate spray of wild roses, the color of her own fair cheeks, on the other. It was a pretty, dainty affair, and fancying to herself how the young stranger would be pleased when she gave it to him, Kelpie polished the revolver to a fine luster, and, putting it in the dainty case, wrapped the whole in a sheet of silver tissue and put it carefully away in a secret drawer of her grandfather's desk.

Why she should have remembered this so suddenly as she stood confronting her desperate lover we will not undertake to explain, but, like a lightning flash she recalled the fact that the revolver was in the desk, with every chamber loaded, and her sinking heart took courage.

Tulliver stood waiting in the meantime, a dangerous fire kindling in his eyes.

"Well," he said at last; "this grows monotonous. Don't you think it will be more comfortable to come to an understanding? Will you step across to the desk, or shall I bring the Bible to you?"

"I have no need of the Bible," answered Kelpie haughtily. "I fancied you had made up your mind to make the promise I required of you."

"You are mistaken. I have no such intention."

"Very well; you can do as you please, but I shall go up at once and put out the light."

"I can't compel you to marry me," he added, with a terrible laugh, "but we'll die together, at least, all alone in the darkness."

"Nothing whatever."

"All right; out goes the light."

He went up, step by step, and for a single instant Kelpie watched him; then she turned and started to the desk.

It was the work of a swift breath of time to open the secret drawer, tear away the silver tissue, and take the revolver from the pretty, perfumed case. In another second she stood at the foot of the stairs, holding the glittering weapon in her right hand.

"Stop!" she called, in a voice that rang like a silver trumpet above the sound of the sea. "I'll shoot you if you attempt to put out the light."

Tulliver looked down with a defiant, devilish face.

"Blaze away as soon as you please!" he shouted, and continued to climb the stairs. He reached the lantern deck and put forth his hand.

Kelpie did not hesitate an instant. Grasping the revolver firmly, she looked upward, raised her hand, and fired. There was a sharp explosion, followed instantly by a hoarse cry, and the next moment Tulliver's body came tumbling down the iron stairs, and fell at Kelpie's feet with a dull thud.

CHAPTER V.

For one dreadful moment Kelpie believed that she had taken her desperate lover's life, yet, despite the awful horror of the situation, she did not regret what she had done.

"I've killed him, but it was my duty to prevent him from putting out the light," was her first thought. The girl had merely followed the teachings and traditions of her childhood. To keep a "good light," and at all costs and hazards to keep it burning had been from her earliest recollection the first aim and object of her grandfather's life.

"No matter what happens, or who lives or dies, the New Castle Light the old light keeper say a hundred dead, after all. It will be horrible if times.

It was in obedience to his orders, and in her frantic desire to keep the great light burning, as well as in self-defence, that the brave little girl had taken Tulliver's life.

"I was obliged to do it," she said to herself. "I couldn't let him put out the light, yet it is terrible to see the poor fellow lying there, dead."

Her face grew very white and her eyes dilated with horror as she looked down at the motionless figure lying at her feet.

"Poor Tulliver! I wish I could do something for him," she said aloud, dropping on her knees beside the prostrate man. "Maybe he isn't quite must never go out," she had heard he is. I shall be a murderer, a murderer, all my life long. Oh, what shall I do?"

The poor girl was rousing from the stupor of the sudden shock to a keen realization of the terrible deed she had done.

Tulliver lay doubled up in a heap, his face hidden. She hesitated a moment; then, bending down, took hold of his shoulder and shook him gently.

"Tulliver, Tulliver," she said, in a hoarse whisper, "can't you speak? Are you very much hurt?"

The man did not move or speak. It was dreadful to see him lying there so still and silent in the downward glow of the great, glittering light. Kelpie felt as if she should go mad.

"Oh, he can't be dead!" she cried. "I didn't intend to kill him. Tulliver, Tulliver, can't you speak?"

Seizing hold of the great, strong shoulders, she succeeded in turning the body sufficiently to make the face visible.

Notes on Patri GRAN

When going ashore at Grand Bank one of the men in the boat remarked that "Grand Bank was the Gloucester of Newfoundland"; and we have spent twelve days there, and have noted its trade and commerce, and studied its commercial conditions, and are quite satisfied to accept the statement at its face value. Grand Bank truly prosperous, and the foundation of its prosperity is directly attributable to the enterprise of its leading men and to the perseverance and industry of the people generally. There are very many beautiful homesteads, many of which are fitted with the most modern and up-to-date sanitary appliances; and while they display a good taste along architectural lines; they likewise display the same good sense in the matter of comfort and domestic economy.

Amongst the names which have built up Grand Bank and which are present hold a foremost place are those of—Harris and Buffett, Peter and Forsey, Forward, Tibbo, Beck, Bell, Grandy, Foote, and Hyde. We were shown through Mr. Harris' premises, and we found it to be very extensive, and noticed that the various departments were all well stocked with first-class goods. We also noticed that the other shops presented a similar appearance, all of which are the tale of comfort, success, and prosperity. We did not exactly enquire as to the total of Grand Bank's business, but we should certainly think that inward and outward trade combined should pass two million dollars annually. This trade is largely conducted upon a direct cash basis, which doubt means a further asset to the prosperity of the place.

The educational requirements of Grand Bank are well provided for, as the school buildings are very comfortable and spacious. I had the honor of addressing the five departments of the Methodist School, and was well received by the teachers in charge, namely, Mr. Curtis and Misses Patten, Bell and Hyde. All of the teachers belong to the place, but they had a large experience in teaching elsewhere. The two departments of the S. A. School are in charge of Misses Barter, daughters of our expected townsman, Mr. Jonas Barter. Of all the schools visited the Methodist Barter's was the only one that presented a visitors' registry, hence, the following entry was made:—This day, January 28th: "Visited the school at 10 a.m. to-day, and found

Notes on the Patriotic Tour. GRAND BANK.

When going ashore at Grand Bank, one of the men in the boat remarked that "Grand Bank was the Gloucester of Newfoundland"; and we having spent twelve days there, and having noted its trade and commerce, and studied its commercial conditions, we are quite satisfied to accept the statement at its face value. Grand Bank is truly prosperous, and the foundation of its prosperity is directly attributable to the enterprise of its leading men and to the perseverance and industry of the people generally. There are very many beautiful homesteads, all of which are fitted with the most modern and up-to-date sanitary appliances; and while they display good taste along architectural lines; they likewise display the same good sense in the matter of comfort and domestic economy.

Amongst the names which have built up Grand Bank and which at present hold a foremost place are those of—Harris and Buffett, Patten and Forsy, Forward, Tibbo, Clarke, Bell, Grandy, Foote, and Hyde. We were shown through Mr. Harris's premises, and we found it to be very extensive, and noticed that the various departments were all well stocked with first-class goods. We also noticed that the other shops presented a similar appearance, all of which told the tale of comfort, success, and prosperity. We did not exactly enquire as to the total of Grand Bank's business, but we should certainly think that its inward and outward trade combined, should pass two million dollars annually. This trade is largely conducted upon a direct cash basis, which no doubt means a further asset to the prosperity of the place.

The educational requirements of Grand Bank are well provided for, and the school buildings are very comfortable and spacious. I had the honour of addressing the five departments of the Methodist School, and was well received by the teachers in charge, namely, Mr. Curtis and Misses Forsy, Patten, Bell and Hyde. All the lady teachers belong to the place, but have had a large experience in teaching elsewhere. The two departments of the S. A. School are in charge of the Misses Barter, daughters of our respected townsman, Mr. Jonas Barter. Of all the schools visited, the Misses Barter's was the only one that presented a visitors' registry, hence, the following entry was made:—Thursday, January 28th: "Visited this school at 10 a.m. to-day, and found the school well attended, and was very respectfully received by the lady in charge, Miss J. Barter."

During our tour we met some very competent officials, but we think that Grand Bank can boast of one of the most systematic of the whole staff. In towns much smaller than Grand Bank, the post office and postal telegraphs, are in charge of two officials, and they seem to have quite enough to do; but at Grand Bank, where the work is so much greater, the duties of both these offices are fulfilled by one good lady, in the person of Miss Mabel Forsy. We had occasion to call at this office several times during our stay, and notwithstanding the fact that twice a day the war news was posted in detail, and eager crowds stood around to catch the latest reports, Miss Forsy seemed to be ever in order, and discharged the duties of her office with calmness and serenity. The postal and telegraph offices at such a busy centre of trade as Grand Bank, certainly transmits a large amount of mail and telegraphic communication, and yet Miss Forsy gets through it to entire satisfaction to the general public. The basis of this success on Miss Forsy's part, as far as our observations led us was system and self control.

We have seen much greater offices with seemingly greater officials, where there was less work to be done than at Grand Bank—though not of necessity post offices—where the total of the day's work was not as complete as it should have been, and the reason of it was there was fuss and worry, instead of system and self control. A lot of us need to learn lessons of self control, and by applying these lessons to the daily routine of business, we would save our nerves and preserve our muscles and prolong our lives. The pace at which some of us live is nothing more nor less than over-tax upon the common laws of health; and when we break down, we turn to drugs and patent medicine, and wonder why the doctor can't cure us; and we seem blind to the fact that we are victims of our own mistakes, and the wrecks of our rashness. We learned many good lessons at Grand Bank, and received much kindness from its people, and though we may not be able to repay them, we are pleased to be able to make this public record in favor of their industry and independence, and of their high social and moral standing.

BRITISH TO THE BACKBONE.

At the R. C. Cathedral.

Rev. Fr. Cox, S. J., occupied the pulpit at the R. C. Cathedral last night and preached a powerful sermon on "Scandal." The rev. preacher dealt with the evil in all its phases, referring particularly to the drunkard, who in the first instance degrades God's masterpiece by descending to the bestial state, in which he scandalizes his home and his children. He also dealt with the evils of calumny and detraction, and also to the human fiends, both men and women, who are prowling around the earth despoiling the innocent of their virtue. The learned Father in concluding his sermon exhorted the congregation to pray fervently for grace to lead better lives, and embrace the opportunities offered them during the penitential season.

Sealing Notes.

The Adventure will begin signing her crew this afternoon and the Belaventure on Wednesday.

The crew of the Neptune are signing articles now; the Beothic's crew will sign to-morrow and Wednesday, and the Nascope's Thursday and Friday.

The Florizel will sign her crew on Thursday next.

All the Gulf ships were ready to sail on Saturday but have since been held in port by the ice blockade, except the Bonaventure, which left the harbour at noon yesterday but up to 8 o'clock this morning had only reached a stone's throw from the Heads, owing to tightly packed ice.

If a change of wind does not occur to drive the ice off again to-morrow the Gulf ships will abandon the idea of going to Channel and will proceed to Gulf water direct from here.

The Eagle's crew, is signing to-day.

Our Volunteers.

Two volunteers, William Bryant, of Heart's Delight, and Arthur Sexton, of Trinity, enlisted with the Second Contingent on Saturday last, making a total of 1,246 enrolled to-date.

Several of the outport volunteers were given leave to visit their homes on Saturday last. Many of them went out by the evening train and others left by the regular train this morning. All will report for duty again on Thursday.

Volunteer McGillivray

NOT DANGEROUSLY WOUNDED.

Willie, son of Mr. and Mrs. McGillivray, Forest Road, and a member of No. 2 Co. of the Second Contingent, who was accidentally stabbed in the side with a bayonet on Wednesday afternoon last at the C.L. B. Armoury, is, we are glad to say, considerably improved at the General Hospital. Yesterday the attending physicians were very much pleased with the condition of the patient and his marked progress. The wound inflicted, though deep, is not as serious as was thought at first and the wounded volunteer is said to be entirely out of danger. He belongs to the machine gun section. It is expected that he will be sufficiently recovered a few weeks hence to resume his duties.

Tonsillitis, Sore Throat, Chest

Colds, Can be Cured Over Night

They Vanish Quickly if Nerviline is Well Rubbed in.

When the throat tickles, when it hurts to draw a long breath, when you feel as if a knife were stuck in your side, it's time to draw out the congestion that will soon become pneumonia.

An ordinary cough syrup has no chance at all—you require a powerful penetrating liniment.

Nothing is known that possesses more merit in such cases than Nerviline.

Rub it liberally over the sides and chest—rub it in hard.

The warm, soothing effect of Nerviline will be apparent in five minutes.

Nothing like it for quick relief.

takes soreness out of the throat in one rubbing—breaks up the chest cold, draws out the inflammation, stops the cough quickly.

Rub 'n on for rheumatism—it destroys the pain—drives it right away. Try it for stiff muscles—it works miracles in just such cases.

Give Nerviline a chance on your neuralgia, prove it for lumbago, see what it can do for sciatica.

No pain-relieving remedy compares in power to cure with Nerviline. Largest sale in Canada of any liniment for nearly forty years. The reason is plain. It satisfies every time.

The large 50 cent family size bottle is more economical than the 25 cent trial size. Sold by dealers everywhere.

Enquiry Into Post Office Burglary.

On Saturday afternoon a preliminary enquiry was held before Judge Knight into the case preferred against a nineteen-year-old resident of Clarendville named Adey, who is charged with breaking into the post office at that place twice and on both occasions with taking large amounts of money. The burglary, it is alleged, was first committed on the night of Feb. 23rd last and again on the 24th another entry was made. The accused was arrested by Head Constable Dawe and brought to the city a week ago and since then has been on remand. Mr. J. P. Blackwood is representing the accused and Mr. Gibbs, K.C., is conducting the case for the Crown.

B. I. S Meeting.

Will Parade St. Patrick's Day. The adjourned annual meeting of the Benevolent Irish Society was finished yesterday. Hon. J. D. Ryan presided over a large attendance. The main business of the meeting was the Society's parade. It was decided to have the annual parade on St. Patrick's Day, March 17th, but not on as an elaborate scale as in previous years. This year the members will meet at their hall in the morning and attend Last Mass at the R. C. Cathedral in a body.

The L. and A. Committee for the coming year are:—W. J. Higgins, T. J. Power, Jas. L. Aylward, J. P. Crotty, E. J. Ring, W. J. Carew, R. J. Allsop, P. K. Devine, P. J. Walsh, Jr., T. H. O'Neill, T. J. Power, J. G. Higgins, J. H. Dee, W. J. Harris and P. J. Grace. The executive officers are:—Chairman—T. J. Power. Vice-Chairman—J. P. Crotty. Treasurer—J. L. Aylward. Secretary—E. J. Ring.

VESSELS ICE BOUND.—The vessels Nellie Louise and Dunure have been off the port the past couple of weeks, unable to enter on account of ice. The Dunure was sighted by the Allan liner "Monsatan" a fortnight ago when the latter was on her way to Halifax, leaking.

Laid To Rest.

All that was mortal of the late Henry Clinton, Supt. of Stewards, at Bowring Bros. Ltd., was laid to rest yesterday afternoon. The funeral was very largely attended, as deceased was well known and much esteemed. Rev. Fr. Sheehan recited prayers for the dead at the Cathedral and interment was at Mt. Carmel Cemetery.

TURNED UP.—It was reported to the police last night by sealers of the Erik, that one of their number was missing. After about an hour's search the police learned that the sealer was on board his ship he having remained on shore a little longer than expected.

Wiping Turkey Off the Map.

The Entente Allies are now pushing the campaign with vigor against Turkey. Although we have heard little recently of the campaign of the Entente in the Caucasus we may rest assured that they are keeping the Turks busy in that region. We have also heard nothing recently of the Russian Black Sea fleet, but it is not unlikely that it is watching the Black Sea entrance of the Bosphorus to prevent the escape of the Turkish fleet into the Black Sea. The full strength of the Turkish fleet last November was 12 1/2 inch guns, each throwing 661 lbs., two 9.2 inch guns throwing 380 lbs. each, and sixteen 10 inch guns throwing 100 lbs. The only warship of any importance is the Goeben, and there have been stories that she is no longer available as a fighting unit. Even if she is, the Turkish Navy is not likely to wait to meet the Queen Elizabeth, the three battle cruisers, the Agamemnon and other ships of the British Navy after they force their way into the Sea of Marmora. They may however seek safety in the Bosphorus. Whether they will attempt to reach the Black Sea, will depend largely on the condition of the Goeben, and also whether the Russian Black Sea dreadnought is yet in commission. If she is available now, this would give an overwhelming superiority to the Russian fleet. If she is not, the Russian fleet should be able to give a good account of themselves with the battleships Evestaf and Joann Zlaboust, completed in 1910-11, which carry four 12 inch guns, four 8-inch and twelve 6-inch; and the Panfeleimon, completed in 1902. This latter ship carries four 12-inch and sixteen 6-inch guns. It would be absurd to put the Turkish fleet against the Queen Elizabeth as she could blow them all up with ease, without entering the zone of their fire. The British and French fleet are continuing operations in their respective spheres. The French fleet is still operating in the Gulf of Saros to cut off communication between the Turkish mainland in Europe and the peninsula of Gallipoli. The British are attacking the main forts at the narrowest part of the Dardanelles and are operating further South at several points of the mainland of Asia Minor. Operations are also going on at the mouth of the Tigris and Euphrates in the Persian Gulf, where a severe drubbing has been given to the Turks. The latter have apparently abandoned their much talked of expedition against Egypt. The drubbing they got on the Suez Canal a few weeks ago, and the operations in the Dardanelles and at other places will keep them too busy elsewhere to do much on the Egyptian frontier. The operations of the allies against Turkey have the appearance of an intention on the part of the allies to wipe Turkey off the map.

BOMBARDING THE NARROWS OF THE DARDANELLES.

LONDON, March 6.

The British battleships Queen Elizabeth and Prince George, and the battle cruiser inflexible, with their eight 15 inch guns and an even dozen of 12 inch guns, on Friday opened the attack on the principal forts on the European side of the Narrows of the Dardanelles. Two of the forts were damaged and the magazine of the third blown up. These forts, which guard the narrowest part of the Straits from the European side, are believed to be the strongest along the entire waterway, although those on the opposite side of the Narrows are almost equal to them. One of these forts, marked on the Admiralty maps as L, is armed with two 14 inch guns, that could hardly reach the Queen Elizabeth which fired 29 rounds from her fifteen inch weapons by indirect fire and had the advantage of aeroplanes to direct her gunners. The other two forts were armed with three 11 inch guns and some smaller cannon. Meantime the lighter cruisers continue attacks on the fortifications along the coast of Asia Minor from Besika, which is near the entrance to the Dardanelles and Smyrna, doubtless with a view of preventing reinforcements being sent to the Straits, where there already are a large number of Turkish troops with whom marines who were landed to complete the destruction of the forts at the entrance of the Straits have been in contact. It was in this land fighting that the Allies suffered casualties. According to the British report 19 were killed, 25 wounded and 3 missing. Last night's official despatch from the Admiralty disclosed that the East Indies fleet under Vice-Admiral Sir Richard Peirse, who is flying his flag on the Eurymus, has joined the allied fleet and that he undertook the bombardment of the fortifications at Smyrna, which were seriously damaged. On Wednesday last the ships continued the bombardment of Port Daranus on the Asiatic side of the Dardanelles. Destroyers and mine sweepers are pursuing the work of clearing the outer straits of the mines and French ships are keeping up the bombardment from the Gulf of Saros.

HEAVY FIGHTING NEAR PERSIAN GULF.

LONDON, To-day.

The British troops occupying the head of the Persian Gulf, located two Turkish forces, accompanied by hostile tribesmen, during the past week, and in the fighting which followed heavy casualties were inflicted on the Turks and their allies, while the British also suffered considerably. A despatch from Delhi indicates that the enthusiasm for successful outcome of the war continues unabated. The Indian Relief Fund now reaches five million dollars. The chiefs and noblemen of India continue to present valuable gifts.

THE GREEK CRISIS.

LONDON, To-day.

Despatches received from Athens express a doubt whether M Zaimis will be able to form a stable government for Greece. The despatches assert that popular opinion seems to incline in favor of the policy of M. Venizelos. The correspondents express the belief that under these circumstances Venizelos will prevail, and that the crisis will subside as rapidly as it arose. It is further asserted that for three days Athens has been expecting a declaration of war. The factor which changed the situation was the Allies attack on the Dardanelles. The Zaimis partisans, says the Daily Mail's Athens correspondent favor a neutral attitude with a savor of benevolent interest in the Triple Entente as their policy, in fact that of sitting on the fence. The temper of the people seem to desire a simpler and more decided action. Their feelings naturally are somewhat confused at seeing even a temporary difference of opinion between two such national heroes as the King and Venizelos, the joint architects of the present prosperity of Greece.

Patriotic Concert

AT CLARKE'S HEAD, GANDER BAY.

A very attractive concert was held at Clarke's Head, Gander Bay, in the L.O.A. Hall in aid of the Patriotic Fund. The hall was nicely decorated for the occasion. The letters brightly shining in Red, White and Blue over the stage, read "God Save the King." The proceeds amounted to $73.50 which is to be handed over to the purpose already mentioned above, after expenses are paid. The chairman, Mr. C. S. Rowland gave a very eloquent address and introduced the performers with the opening chorus which was very nicely delivered by all the performers arranged in fours. The programme occupied the late hours of midnight, dialogues, recitations and songs being actively delivered by each of the performers in turn, and as each one finished, the audience appreciated the same with clapping. During the intervals, candy was offered for sale by two of the ladies. Great praise is due to all who took part in the concert, especially those who organized it, viz. Misses Gibbons, Butler, Francis, Penney, Phillips, Bauld and Gillingham; Messrs. Comes, Payne, Thomas and Blake. The teacher, Mr. F. A. Winsor, also displayed keen interest. Store Broken Into at Channel.

CULPRITS CAUGHT AND CONFESS THEIR GUILT.

Samuel Skeard and John Gillam, aged 17 and 16 years respectively, were arrested at Channel on a charge of entering the store of Clement & Co. of that place, and stealing eighteen dollars in cash and a quantity of goods valued at thirty dollars. They were brought before Magistrate Squerey, admitted the offence and were remanded for a week.

Philip Francis, of the same place, was also arrested on a charge of receiving the goods, knowing them to have been stolen. He also pleaded guilty and will be tried at the same time. The above information has been received by Deputy Minister of Justice Hutchings.

We have been using MINARD'S LINIMENT in our home for a number of years and use no other Liniment but MINARD'S, and we can recommend it highly for sprains, bruises, pains or tightness of the chest, soreness of the throat, head ache or anything of that sort. We will not be without it one single day, for we get a new bottle before the other is all used. I can recommend it highly to anyone.

The Rossley Theatre

EAST AND WEST

The Rossley East End Theatre, undergoing a complete renovation will look fine when finished. It is a fine large theatre and when renovations such as all new electric lighting, all new front of stage tip up chairs, new art large curtain, scenery and other improvements will certainly meet with approval of the public together with the finest company and the surprising novelties ever seen at Patrick's Day although the theatre will not be finished by then with a good Irish musical comedy to be given. Mr. Rossley will close down until Easter. They surprise enough in store for us. Of the West End it is not possible to say anything as they can do more than pack the house every HENRY W. BEECHER died 1887. American preacher and abolitionist. His preaching drew the largest congregation in the States, his sermons being marked by great freshness, originality, eloquence and imagination.

BATTLE OF ABOUKIR 1801. Sir Ralph Abercromby landed in the face of the French and compelled them to quit Egypt.

WILLIAM III. died 1702, aged 52. Son of William, Prince of Orange, and Mary, daughter of Charles I. When the trouble in England arose with James II. he accepted the invitation to take the Crown and was proclaimed in 1689. In 1690 James landed in Ireland in an attempt to regain the throne but was defeated at the Battle of the Boyne.

The grand and only character of Truth is its capability of enduring the test of universal experience, and coming unchanged out of every possible form of fair discussion. —Herschel.

THE SALUTE.

He was a British sailor. And he stood the decks between. And Duty came and called him. With smiling face and mien. Said Duty—"Are you ready? You may have to fight and die." And he touched his cap, saluting. And answered, "Aye, sir, aye!"

He was a British sailor. And the guns were booming loud. And Danger came and spoke to him. He stood erect and proud. Said Danger—"Are you ready? To put ease and safety by?" And he touched his cap, saluting. And answered, "Aye, sir, aye!"

He was a British sailor. And the ship was settling fast. And the sailors' God came near to him. And spoke to him—the last. And God said—"Are you ready? To meet Eternity?" And he bowed his knee, saluting. And answered, "Aye, sir, aye!" —By Frank Ellis.

Have You an Itchy Spot?

Somewhere on your body? If so, attend to it at once. In Eczema—and Itchy spots, whether dry and scurfy, or moist and inclined to "weep," are generally eczematous—delays are foolish, allowing the disease to spread and affect more of the good skin.

Your best chance for a cure is to use Zylex, which will give almost instant relief, and if used in the earlier stages of the trouble will almost certainly bring a cure, and in any event will greatly ameliorate the trouble. Ask your druggist about it. Price 60c. a box. Zylex Soap, 25c. a cake. E.L.E.X. London.

Fads and Fashions.

Bell sleeves are back again. White serges have heavy bands of braiding. All girdles have a touch of black velvet ribbon. The fuller the skirt the shorter it seems to be. New buttons are a combination of black and white.

Separate skirts have patch pockets and suspenders. The long waist is very becoming to the growing girl. Plaid waistcoats are correct with bridled tailors' suits.

High collars appear on most of the dresses and suits. A great many new helmet shapes are seen in millinery. Many of the new frocks have the old-fashion bell sleeves.

Little fancy buttons of gold and silver lace, are much used. Charming afternoon gowns are just one series of frounces. The pretty little flower wreathed regues are worn with a tilt.

A blue that is almost black is very much in favor in Paris. The young girl's party dress should be made of white net. Voiles are being made in quantities for the summer fashions. Old-time glace silks are much employed for the new full skirts.

There is a suggestion of the tunic returning with the summer dress. Ball fringes appear on the slantwise tunics and broad collars. The most marked features of the new suits are the full skirts and coats.

It is said that the spring millinery will have a definite note of quaintness. Short puffed sleeves are new and just as good as the long transparent ones.

The Ice Blockade.

The present ice blockade, which has been surrounding this port since Friday last, is one of the worst for several years and a serious setback to shipping. The ice consists of very heavy slob tightly cemented together, making it extremely difficult for our most powerful icebreakers to negotiate. The Gulf sealing fleet were detained forty-eight hours on account of the ice pack, though at press hour the Terra Nova, Erik, Viking and Diana were wending their way out the harbor en route for Channel. The Bonaventure left here yesterday, and up to noon to-day had not got beyond Cape Spear. The Sagona is off the Narrows since yesterday unable to enter port.

The Dowring coaster Portia reached Bay Bulls at 7 o'clock this morning, and Capt. Joe Kean wired the following: "No possible chance getting along without a change of wind. Ice cutting Petty Hr. Motion Point. Sagona off there tight in the ice."

Obituary.

MRS. CECILY DEVEREUX. Monday morning at 4 o'clock at Avondale, there passed away Cecily, beloved wife of the late Richard Devereux, at the age of 56. For the past nine years Mrs. Devereux has had a good share of this world's troubles, having her son Tom aged 15 years, killed by a train at Avondale Station, and her husband died at the age of 52, some four years ago, and her son Edward, aged 12 years, died at Bell Island, two years ago from injuries sustained from a boiler explosion; and her daughter, Bertha, aged 20, contracted a severe cold which caused her death at Bell Island six months ago; she also had a daughter and son died from diphtheria some 20 years ago. The deceased had been ailing for about eleven months with chronic disease consumption. She was visited by Fr. Shean, P. P., who administered the last sacraments. She always was a very cheerful disposition, which will cause her to be missed by her many friends. She leaves one son, John, and one daughter, Kitty, living at home, and one sister, Mrs. John Moore, and a wide circle of relatives and friends to mourn their loss. Her funeral took place on Wednesday at 9 a.m. and was largely attended in spite of the storm that was raging at the time. Her remains were laid between her husband and son, in the family plot at Avondale cemetery. Avondale offers sincere sympathy to all the relatives of the kind departed one in their hour of mourning. The Eastern Trust Company.

A few reasons why an estate can be better administered by the Eastern Trust Company than by a personal executor or administrator.—

1. The Company affords the estate absolute security; it has a paid-up capital of $931,000.00, and a reserve fund of $229,300.00.

2. It has a long experience in the work of administering estates; it is incorporated for this business of acting as a trustee, and, unlike many other trust companies, it does no other.

3. Its existence is perpetual. Your estate, in the event of the death of a personal executor or administrator, must look around for a substitute, and the work of administration is impeded during that time, and the new executor is unfamiliar with the policy of his predecessor, and confusion results. This company's existence is perpetual, and there is a continuity of policy in its administration that the death of its officers does not break.

4. It possesses the confidence of governments, universities and prominent charities and administers their funds.

5. A number of other advantages which will appear in due course.

A Typical War Talk.

By RUTH CAMERON.

RUTH CAMERON

Round a comfy open fire in a luxurious living room they sat—five well dressed, well fed people, and talked about the horrors of war. "It's a horrible thing, this war," said the man with the smooth shaven face and the general air of sleek prosperity. "It makes you sick to think of it. Nothing like this ever happened to me before, I can tell you. It's just knocked me flat."

The woman beside him leaned forward and poked the fire idly. The firelight caught the facets of the merry jewels on her long fingered white hands and set them beautifully aflame. "I've thought of nothing else since it started," she declared. "Such a lot of suffering and misery. And what do you think, my husband said he'd give me a new car for Christmas and now, from the way he talks, we'll have to use the old one until it falls apart."

stock exchange. There ought to be some way to stop war, it oughtn't to be allowed in civilized countries. It isn't decent, it isn't right, it isn't human!" he finished in a burst of righteous indignation. "Who's ahead anyway?" queried the fluffy little lady who was curled up in a negligent crumple of silk and lace on the couch playing with the big white Persian. "Don't you read the papers?" "Goodness, no," with a shrug. "It's all too horrible. I look to see if there's anything about the cotton situation and if there isn't I light the fire with the paper. I can't read about those horrors, you know. They make me so depressed."

And they did. "I wonder if you remember a queer old proverb I once quoted you,—'The one good thing about other people's troubles is that they don't keep us awake nights.'" "It's true, isn't it?"

Questions and Answers. Question. Do you think it is necessary for a girl of twenty-two to be chaperoned whenever she goes to the theatre with a man?"

Reply. That is a hard question for me. Personally I do not at all believe in the system of persistent chaperonage, but I know many people do and perhaps they are wiser than I. To my mind it is better to hedge a girl around with high ideals of conduct than with conventions, but if one wants to make assurance treble, sure perhaps both are needed. However, if one is to believe what one hears, there seems to be rather less witness in the middle class where such persistent chaperonage is rare than in the upper where it is the regular thing. Question. Doubter asks this question. "The Cynic has said a lot about household efficiency. Will you ask him how and where the average busy woman is going to get information on this subject?"

Reply. The Cynic suggests the pages devoted to the subject of home management in the best magazines; the newspaper articles; the house-keeping bulletins issued by the Gov. Department of Agriculture; a splendid book called "The New Housekeeping," by Christine Frederick; valuable booklets offered by advertisers.

HIS LAST THOUGHT FOR HIS COUNTRY'S DEFENCE.
It is interesting to recall to-day that the late King Leopold II., of Belgium, when the forts of Antwerp, Flus and Namur were being constructed under orders, found among his entourage and his familiar friends a spirit of resistance to and surprise at his plans, which caused him the greatest dissatisfaction.

Parents who would guard against all ills, must refrain from growing fussy. There is a vast difference between common sense care and over-brid imagination, which acts infection and danger on every side. It is never fussy or silly to look out for a weakness, and, if suspected, to ascertain the extent. Stupidity in a child may arise from oral or nasal trouble either of which may be very slight, and easily served in early days. The youthful eyes may be undergoing a daily strain over lesson books—a strain that could be averted by using special glasses for reading, the use of which for a time will put matters right, and so strengthen the eyes that the glasses can be dispensed with.

YOUR BOYS AND GIRLS

Parents who would guard against all ills, must refrain from growing fussy. There is a vast difference between common sense care and over-brid imagination, which acts infection and danger on every side. It is never fussy or silly to look out for a weakness, and, if suspected, to ascertain the extent. Stupidity in a child may arise from oral or nasal trouble either of which may be very slight, and easily served in early days. The youthful eyes may be undergoing a daily strain over lesson books—a strain that could be averted by using special glasses for reading, the use of which for a time will put matters right, and so strengthen the eyes that the glasses can be dispensed with.

YOUR POLICY should be kept up. Don't you often hear of a friend's loss? This should be a warning to you to look after your own INSURANCE POLICIES and not let them run out. If you take out a policy with my companies you know that any loss will be met promptly. Cost is low.
PERCIE JOHNSON, Insurance Agent.

Two Great Dramas at Nickel Theatre.

DON'T FAIL TO SEE THEM.
The best programme seen at the Nickel Theatre for some time will be seen this evening and to-morrow. There will likely be a large attendance to-day, so visitors should go early. The show will open with a Hearst Sell News showing many fresh items of interest. The late Lord Roberts will be seen reviewing 1,500 men from London offices who volunteered and formed the 10th Fusiliers. They are two two-reel films. One is "The Poor Folks Boy" and the other "His Wife and His Work." Both are brilliant, dramatic, intensely interesting and cleverly acted. Each has a moral and that they will prove attractive and popular is certain. There are also two side-splitting comedies, "Taming Terrible Ted" and "The Villain Still Pursued Her." The price is small but the value big at the Nickel these days. A goodly amount is needed. Help swell the amount by attending three times weekly or oftener. The Nickel is always good; best pictures, and the hall clean and thoroughly ventilated. There is no place of amusement better.

Obituary.

JAMES W. GRANT.
The passing of a well known and highly esteemed citizen in the person of James W. Grant, occurred at his late residence, Monkstown Road, on Saturday evening last. The deceased had only been ailing since Thursday last, and the end came rather unexpectedly. James W. Grant was born at Bridgeville, Nova Scotia, on March 15th, 1863, and came to Newfoundland in 1889, having been engaged in the lumber business of the Colony up to the time of his decease. He was a keen business man, and after a few years became associated with many local industries. He was a member of the City Club for many years, also a member of St. John's Masonic Lodge. He is survived by a widow, two daughters Ruth, recently married to Mr. C. Archibald, of the N. S. Steel Co., Bell Island, and Jean, three sons William, Ernest and David, the eldest William, being with the First Nfld. Regiment.

To these and the many friends of the deceased the Telegram extends sincere sympathy. The funeral will take place to-morrow afternoon from Mr. Grant's late residence, Monkstown Road to the railway station and thence to Nova Scotia where interment will take place.

EVERYDAY ETIQUETTE

What is the proper thing to do when it is necessary for one to introduce a new acquaintance to an old friend and one cannot remember the former's name? asked embarrassed Emma. "You may say to her, 'Forgive me, but I cannot recall your name at this moment.' Upon receiving her name proceed with the introduction," said her mother.

CHAPPED HANDS AND LIPS.

What is more unattractive than cracked, bleeding lips or red, rough hands. And as they are both so unattractive, painful and wholly unnecessary we cannot help wonder why folks have them.

As a rule chapped and cracked lips are the result of neglect and carelessness. A few moments spent before retiring each night, rubbing them with some soft cream will keep them soft and natural in shape and color even in the coldest weather.

Chapped lips seem to be a chronic disorder. One scale of cuticle peeling off to be replaced by another dry, hard piece, the victim of the disorder becomes accustomed to it and ceases to notice it. Cracks upon the lips are deep and sore, bleeding slightly nearly every day. Cracks upon the hands seem to appear without any apparent cause, a fissure opening in the skin crosswise of the muscles length, the fissure seeming to gape open, remaining this way for some time after closing, leaving a rough red, painful ridge.

The cause of such troubles is not far to seek when it is seen that chapped and cracked lips nearly always manifest themselves after a period of intense cold when care has not been taken to keep the lips dry while out of doors. Moisture gathering upon a veil, a careless habit of touching the lips with the tongue will almost immediately produce chapped lips.

For both hands and lips an old-fashioned remedy liked very much by our grandmothers was nothing more or less than mutton suet. A small piece produced from the butchers, cut fine, melted up and slowly poured into a tiny cup. When it hardened the cake was taken from the cup and kept in a convenient jar upon the dresser.

JESS WILLARD.

Jess Willard would restore the wreath that John'sing wrested from the whites; with warlike zeal he grinds his teeth, this hero of at least two fights. Alas, our bosoms are not warmed, when such a hero gambols in; unless black Jack is chloroformed, we do not see how Jess can win. The chances are hell come to grief before they're fairly down to him; for, while he's surely long on beef, the spark of genius isn't his. He hasn't the immortal fire which made the Bard of Avon great, which made Jack Milton punch his lyre, and get his laurel crown on straight. He has the lard, his heart is game, he has the height, he has the reach; but, oh, he lacks that deathless flame which makes the pugilistic peach. With confidence he goes to meet the greatest fighter on this sphere, but he will tumble o'er his feet, and cork himself and interfere. They'll bear him helpless from the ring while drearily the White Face groans, and John'sing, he will dance and sing, and draw his thirty thousand bones.

OFFICIAL.

LONDON, March 6.

The Governor, Newfoundland:

The Admiralty announces the following: Further reports received on operations March 3rd and onwards. No action was possible on the 3rd till the afternoon when the irresistible, Albion, Prince George and Triumph resumed the attack on Fort Dardanelles, and the concealed guns in the neighborhood. These were less active than before, and the ships fired with more certainty. Seaplanes located encampments and batteries.

On March 4th the weather became fine, and sweeping and bombardment operations continued. Demolition parties and covering detachments were landed at Kum Kaleh and Seddul Bahr. Later the party destroyed four Nordenfeldts and found the enemy holding the villages in force. On the same day the Sapphire silenced a battery at Dikill in the Gulf of Adramyti, and the Prince George shelled the defences of Besika. Casualties on the 4th were 19 killed, 3 missing and 25 wounded.

On March 5th the Queen Elizabeth attacked the defences at the Narrows, supported by the Inflexible and Prince George. Fire was confined to forts Rumlh, Medjidli, Tabia, Samidli, H. Tabia and Namzich. The magazine in one fort blew up, and the other two forts were damaged. The Sapphire again shelled troops near the Gulf of Adramyti, and destroyed military stations at Tuzburna.

On the same day the Commander-in-Chief of the East Indies, Vice-Admiral Peirse, arrived at Smyrna with battleships and cruisers and bombarded fort Yenickale. Considerable damage was done to the fort, two magazines apparently exploding. The flagship Euryalus shot remarkably accurate.

Bombardment at closer range has now begun, the reduction of Smyrna being a necessary incident in the main operations.

HARCOURT.

GREAT EXCITEMENT IN BERLIN.
LONDON, March 6.

The Daily Telegraph says in a message from Copenhagen, that according to telegrams from Berlin, there is great excitement there respecting Greece's attitude. It is generally feared that Greece soon will side with the Allies against Turkey, thus fulfilling her historical duty to take part in the capture of Constantinople. A special to the Daily Express from Amsterdam says that Berlin was much excited to-day over two most serious questions; the first, uneasiness concerned two submarines, which have not reported to the navy.

GREECE'S CRITICAL MOMENT.
PARIS, March 6.

Greece awaits with extreme anxiety, says the Matin's Athens correspondent, the decision of the Crown Council at yesterday's session, at which was discussed the nation's policy regarding war. The general opinion is that the Council has pronounced in favor of intervention, in which case mobilization is imminent. If the decision was to remain neutral, the Ministry of Premier Venizelos will resign immediately, according to the newspaper Hestia.

'LA TOURAINE' ON FIRE.
LONDON, March 6.

A despatch received from Queenstown at 12.38 p.m., states an aerogram picked up there said that La Touraine was burning fiercely, and that the Arabic and other steamers, rushing to her assistance, have redoubled their speed.

NEW YORK, March 6.
Marine circles have received advice that the passengers and crew of the 'La Touraine' are safe.

WILL LEAVE IN A BODY.
WASHINGTON, March 6.

The Foreign Diplomatic Corps in Mexico City, has decided to leave in a body. Despatches, telling of this decision, were received here to-day by European Diplomats and forwarded to their home governments.

CLOSE CENSORSHIP.
LONDON, March 7.

The censorship, which had been considerably relaxed of late, was suddenly clamped down again to-day. It is rumored that events of great military and naval importance are taking place. The French official communication and the German statement were held up by the censor to-day, together with despatches from other continental countries.

BOMBARDMENT OF SMYRNA.
PARIS, March 7.

An official communication from the Ministry of Marine says that at the Dardanelles during March 6th, three cruisers stationed in the Gulf of Sarcra, bombarded by indirect fire across Gallipoli Peninsula, the Turkish forts at Keldi Babr, which guard the European coast of the narrow strait between that point and Chanak. Results of the bombardment were very satisfactory. The powder magazine of one of the forts exploded. None of the vessels were damaged. During March 5th three vessels of the Allied fleet bombarded from a great distance the forts at Kasse Kule at the entrance to the Gulf of Smyrna, which was seriously damaged and was unable to make reply.

ADVANCE IN ALSACE.
PARIS, March 7.

A French official statement says: On the evening of March 5th we repulsed counter attacks opposite Uthholtz, and blew up an ammunition depot at Cernay. Last night we swept with our fire the enemy's advanced post, who attempted to establish themselves on Sillakerkoff, east of Honnack.

ITALY STILL ON THE FENCE.
ROME, March 7.

The resignation of the Greece Prime Minister, Venizelos, caused the wildest excitement in Rome. The belief prevails here that Greece will join the Allies. Local politicians to-day said that Greece's decision was unlikely to influence Italy's position. They prefer to await developments before taking any stand.

FRANCE TAKING PRECAUTIONS.
PARIS, March 7.

The Ministry of War announces that on account of the situation in the Dardanelles, in order to meet every eventuality, the Government has decided to concentrate in North Africa an expeditionary force, which will be ready to put to sea at the first sign that it is needed, and be directed to the point where its presence is required.

THE SUBMARINE BLOCKADE.
LONDON, March 7.

A despatch from Flushing, says an easier feeling with regard to the German submarine blockade is indicated by the announcement that beginning March 9th the passenger service with England by liners of the Zealand Company, will be considerably extended. At present the British authorities permit only two hundred passengers to leave England daily.

'LA TOURAINE' UNDER CONTROL.
LONDON, March 7.

A message from the steamer 'La Touraine', received at Queenstown, says that the steamer Rotterdam is standing by, prepared to render every assistance, including the transfer of passengers, if necessary. Wireless messages have been sent out to the steamers Arabic, Swanmore and Stanford, saying their assistance is not now required.

CROWN POLICY NOT POPULAR.
WASHINGTON, March 7.

The resignation of the Greek cabinet, under Premier Venizelos, was presented to King Constantine yesterday, and accepted. The Greek Legation here was so advised officially to-day. No comment on the announcement was made by the Legation. News despatches have indicated that the resignation was due to the Cabinet's dissent from the Crown's policy of continued neutrality.

MORE THREATS.
PARIS, March 7.

A despatch from Athens to the Havas agency, says: "King Constantine has accepted the resignation of Premier Venizelos and his cabinet, and has requested M. Zaimis, Governor of the National Bank, to form a new ministry. M. Zaimis asked the King to give him until to-morrow to massacres would take place in Turkish Minister, Salih Bey, has declared openly during the last few days, that massacres would take place in Turkey if Greece broke out with the Porte, while Count Mirbache, the German Minister, informed the diplomatic corps that Austria and Germany would immediately declare war on Greece the day that Greece moved against Turkey.

The Men of Roumania

are very fond of dress, and they have a popular saying which runs, "the stomach has no mirror." Its meaning is that rather than be shabby a Roumanian should go hungry. The peasant costume of Roumania is very artistic, every village having its own set of colors. By the hue of his dress a peasant shows the locality he hails from. The Roumanian is most particular regarding his personal appearance, like thousands of people who patronize our Dry Cleaning establishment.

Music for the Multitude!

There is nothing that gives one a more loyal heart-throb than the sound of some well-known National or Patriotic Air, and there is nothing that reproduces these airs with more sympathy and expression than the Columbia Records.

We have a further consignment of 2,000 Records just opened, mainly Patriotic Songs, National Anthems and some of the fine martial music of the Allies. Here are one or two records we'd like YOU to hear:—

Your King and Country Want You.
Sons of Our Sailor King.
Soldiers of the King (new version).
Your Dear Old Dad was Irish.

Landing of the British in France.
(Descriptive Patrol by Military Band.)
The Entente Cordiale March by the Regimental Band of H. M. Scots Guards.
