The Imprisoned Heiress —OR— The Spectre of Egremont.

"You will hear me through patient-ly, then? A thousand thanks, Xina," and a thrill of joy ran through Lyle Indor's soft tones. I have never said a word to you of love because I had always known of your betrothal to Lord Ashcroft. I would not be dishonorable. But now that he has come to Egremont, and you have shown warmth of manner in your treatment of him, I am emboldened to plead in my own behalf."

"I will not plead in the usual lover phrase for your smiles and your love, Alexina. I do justice to your good impulses, but I am not ignorant of your faults. You are selfish and tyrannical, but if I become a part of yourself, your tyranny will not be hard to bear. Can you smile upon a lover who reminds you of your faults, Xina?"

The novelty of the manner of his wooing pleased the heiress, and she asked:

"Am I to understand, Lyle, that you love me?"

"You are! Can you love me in return?"

"I can—I do, Lyle. I have loved you ever since you came to Egremont. Your coldness has at times offended me, but I have never ceased to love you."

Lyle Indor's eyes sparkled, and he made a movement toward her, but instantly checked it, sinking back in his chair.

"This assurance gives me unbounded pleasure, Xina," he said. "I prize your love that I might speak to you of marriage, but, alas, you are primed to Lord Ashcroft, who will marry you from a sense of duty, and I must walk on through life alone. I cannot ask you to dismiss him and give yourself to me, for by so doing you will lose all the wealth you now adorn. I tear, too, that should you see some other lady enjoy the fortune of which you would be dispossessed, you would regret your rejection of Lord Ashcroft and acceptance of me."

"Oh, no, I cannot give up Egremont!" declared the heiress. "Tired as I am of being here, I would not exchange the place for any in the realms. I want to see society but not at the expense of Egremont, the home of my ancestors; Egremont, with its farms, its land, its rent-rolls—oh, no, I could not! I have been taught to think of all these things with pride, and I cannot give them up. To-day, when we walked through the picture-gallery, you can scarcely imagine what a thrill of pride I experienced in thinking that that long row of portraits represented the faces of my ancestors. Is it not a grand thing to be the owner of all these possessions, to be admired and honored as the Lady of Egremont?"

"I can understand your feeling, Xina."

"I love you, as I said, Lyle, and I would sacrifice almost anything except Egremont, to become your wife. But I cannot resign what so gratifies my pride—no, not even for your love. Oh, why did my father make such a cruel will! Why did not my mother protest against it! Was there no one to plead in behalf of the little child whose future they were so lightly bartering away?"

The heiress spoke passionately, and a fiery glow burned on either cheek, and a stormy look brooded in her dark eyes.

Lyle Indor saw the struggle she was undergoing—the struggle between love and pride—and he chose to end it.

"Dear Xina," he said, in those soft, feminine tones she loved so well, "I could never accept such a sacrifice at your hands. No, we must part. You will wed Lord Ashcroft, and I will look on and see you given to another, and then return to my lonely life. If I may not have you to love, no one can prevent me from cherishing your memory. I shall never marry!"

"Oh, why did not that assassin succeed in his design?" cried the heiress, passionately. "If he had but killed Lord Ashcroft—don't look so shocked, Lyle; I think it, and must say it—I would then have married you, and we would then have been happy. I cannot think of it without anger. I feel as though I could almost kill Lord Ashcroft myself!"

"Alexina!" and Lyle Indor shrank from her in horror. "It is terrible enough to think of assassination even at the hands of a man, but to hear a woman's lips— But you were not in earnest!" and his tones became calmer. "Poor, troubled child! In your momentary bitterness you would have welcomed anything that would have set you free from your galling band."

"I would, Lyle, and the feeling is more than momentary. Last night, as I arose from the chair in Lord Ashcroft's sitting-room and looked up into his face, I could not help feeling sorry that I did not look upon it in death."

"I think he read your feelings, Xina, as I did," answered Indor. "Then perhaps he will resign my hand and go home."

"No, for he feels bound in honor to meet his engagement with you. He will not give you up, and it is best not. It would be well if you could gain an interest in him, Xina. You would be the happier for it."

"There is no need to 'affect' an interest in him, Lyle. I feel one now, but not one of the sort that would be most agreeable to his lordship," replied the heiress. "I am glad Kipp is still permitted to go free."

"How is he permitted to go free?" asked Indor, abstractedly.

"Why, don't you know, Lyle? Lord Ashcroft went to see Kipp and his mother to-day, and his tender heart was so touched by their distress that he has begged my guardian to wait a little longer, and see what will happen next. Lord Egremont protested against this request, but finally yielded, for new complications have arisen. I only hope that he will take advantage of his respite."

"Hush, Xina. You do not hope so. It is a terrible thing to be cut off in one's youth, when one's prospects are all bright, and a happy marriage is all arranged. An assassination is awful at any time! As much as I regret that Lord Ashcroft is bound to you, and that you are bound to him, I do not wish that any evil should happen to him. On the contrary, I wish him all possible happiness."

choly, and caused the tears to spring to the eyes of the heiress.

Noticing her emotion, he arose and approached her, took her hand, and respectfully raised it to his lips, and said:

"Perhaps I have done wrong, Xina, in talking as I have done to the betrothed bride of another, but I fancied that you loved me, and that the confession of my passion for you might prove a consolation in some dark hour."

"It will! It will!" sobbed Alexina, arising and leaning upon the arm he offered her. "I shall think of it often, Lyle. Perhaps something may happen yet to free me, and if there should, remember then that I am bound to you. I would rather marry you than any one else in the world."

"I will remember it," he answered, despondently. "Yet what good will the remembrance do me? And, Xina, I would not for worlds that harm should come to Lord Ashcroft, not even to bring about my joy!"

He held out his arms, received her in them, pressed a long, tender kiss upon her forehead, received a caress in return, and then put her from him, saying:

"Henceforth, Xina, you must be to me as the bride of another!"

"Unless something happens, Lyle," she said, eagerly.

"Unless something happens," he returned, with sad emphasis. "And now, Xina, I will extinguish the light, and conduct you to the house. I fear you may get cold if we remain here longer."

He opened the door, and the heiress went out upon the step while he extinguished the light, put away the lantern, and then rejoined her.

She took his arm silently, and they passed slowly into the walk that led to the residence.

The conduct of Lyle Indor had touched her to the heart. She had long loved him, not knowing that her affection was returned, but receiving his attentions only as the respectful treatment he would have accorded a dear sister. The knowledge that he loved her now filled her heart with a delicious joy, and she longed with all the strength of her passionate heart to cast off the fetters binding her to Lord Ashcroft, and become the wife of Lady Egremont's nephew.

For one wild moment, when the awful yet trembled upon Indor's lips, she had been tempted to declare that she would forfeit everything if she might but be always with him, but the caution and love of luxury that were a part of her nature gave her power to resist temptation.

No, she could not give up everything even for Lyle Indor.

As they proceeded up the gloomy walk they talked freely of the love of which the expression must henceforth be forbidden them, and when they reached the porch the heiress whispered:

"Remember what I told you, Lyle. If anything should happen to Lord Ashcroft I am bound to you. If Kipp should kill him, I will surely become your wife."

Without waiting for the reproach which this remark would call from Indor's lips, she ran into the house, and silently sped along the halls to her own apartments.

He secured the door, removed his shoes, and followed more leisurely, fearful of being overheard by some sleepless inmate of the dwelling.

As he passed along the wide upper hall, at the end of which opened the rooms of Lord Ashcroft, the Lady Loren, and others, besides passages leading to other parts of the residence he saw fitting at a little distance before him the spectre of the Lady Jasmine.

He recognized it in a moment, and its innocent eyes rested upon him, thrilling him with an uncomfortable feeling that was almost fear.

She glided on, her feet not making the faintest noise upon the polished floor, and suddenly seemed to fade from his sight, vanishing at the entrance of a passage as completely as if the earth had opened and swallowed her up.

Looking into the passage, almost at the same moment, he saw nothing of her, and he hastened on to his room, breathing more freely when he had placed his door, with its secure bolts, between himself and the spectral visitant of Egremont.

Firmness and Restraint Will Mark Britain's Foreign Policy

Conditions in Egypt and the Sudan Reported Quiet—War Office Officials Will Inspect St. Lawrence Waterways.—Chicago Postal Official Given Twenty-five Years Sentence.

QUIET PREVAILS IN EGYPT AND SUDAN.

LONDON, Nov. 30. Egyptian despatches to the Foreign Office to-day from Viscount Allenby, British High Commissioner in Egypt, described the situation there as being in good order. General despatches from the Sudan likewise report conditions easier and satisfactory.

BRITAIN'S FOREIGN POLICY NOT AGGRESSIVE.

BIRMINGHAM, Eng., Nov. 30. In a speech here Saturday, Neville Chamberlain, Minister of Health, declared with regard to the Egyptian situation that the British were not going to pursue an aggressive foreign policy. Any suggestion that what has happened in Egypt is merely a veiled attempt to destroy the independence given them some time ago is founded either on misunderstanding or else is deliberate misrepresentation. Nothing is more likely to lead Great Britain to friction or war with other powers, he added, than to allow them to think we do not mean what we say. We are not going to allow tolerance or leniency to be misinterpreted as weakness; we are not going to allow the British name to be dragged in the dirt or obligations due us to be flouted. We desire to maintain friendly relations with the whole world. I believe indeed that it is only by a mixture of firmness and restraint that we can restore confidence and order in all the King's dominions.

TO INSPECT ST. LAWRENCE WATERWAY.

QUEBEC, Nov. 30. Two officials of the British War Office are due in Quebec from London in order to make an inspection of the St. Lawrence waterway. Word to this effect is contained in a message received from Ottawa. The men are members of the Intelligence Department and their presence in Canada has been brought about by the project to equalize the St. Lawrence. While here they will go over the entire system, paying particular attention to the strategical points along the river.

TWO TRAWLERS SUNK—FOURTEEN DROWNED.

CORUNA, Spain, Nov. 30. Two trawlers from this port were caught in a terrific storm off the harbour Saturday and sank, fourteen men on board being drowned.

PONZI TO BE DEPORTED.

BOSTON, Mass., Nov. 29. Charles Ponzi, promoter of the get-rich-quick scheme of four years ago, which attracted investments of many millions, was arrested here to-day by immigration authorities on a warrant, charging that he is in this country illegally. Deportation proceedings will begin immediately. It was said by Immigration Commissioner John P. Johnson.

BELGIAN COMPOSER DEAD.

BRUSSELS, Nov. 29. Giacomo Puletni, famous operatic composer, died at noon to-day from a throat infection following an operation. The death of the composer was due directly to a heart attack.

SEQUEL TO SENSATIONAL TRIAL.

LONDON, Nov. 29. After a preliminary hearing in court to-day the jail doors were swung to again upon William Hobbs, a solicitor's clerk, one of the prominent figures in the suit of C. E. Robinson, a former book-maker, against the Midland Bank, the testimony in which revealed a blackmailing plot through which an unnamed Indian potentate was mugged out of £250,000. The arrest of Hobbs at Gravesend last night, as he was trying to leave the country, charged with receiving property stolen abroad, provided a sensational sequel to the Robinson trial in which final judgment was deferred yesterday, pending legal arguments.

KORETZ ON WAY TO CHICAGO.

HALIFAX, Nov. 29. Leo Koretz, alias Lou Keytes, Caledonia's erstwhile meteoric millionaire, is on his way back to Chicago to answer to charges of having swindled a number of his fellow citizens out of several millions of dollars. Koretz, accompanied by a Chicago Attorney, a Halifax lawyer and Deputy Sheriff Scriven, made a quiet and unexpected get-away about ten o'clock last night, when they took passage on the Cunard liner Caronia, for New York, their passage having been arranged for several days ago. Five Chicago newspapermen, who were to have accompanied Koretz in a special car attached to the Ocean Limited train, leaving here at eight o'clock this morning, were amongst the eluded.

ANOTHER STEAMER GONE.

BORDEAUX, Nov. 30. The Belgian steamer Gyptis, of 1194 tons gross, laden with coal from Cardiff, has been wrecked at the mouth of the Gironde and is a total loss. The fate of the crew is unknown.

A ROME DISCOVERY.

ROME, Nov. 30. Workmen digging for the foundation of a house near Rome, have unearthed an object identified as a huge tooth or tusk, measuring nearly 11 feet in length and some twenty inches in circumference at the large end. It is believed to have belonged to some prehistoric animal.

GIVEN 25 YEARS EACH.

CHICAGO, Nov. 30. Wm. J. Fahy, former Post Office Inspector, and James Murray, a politician, recently convicted of conspiracy in connection with the $2,000,000 mail train robbery at Rendout, were sentenced to twenty-five years each in the Federal Prison at Atlanta, by Federal Judge Cliffe, to-day.

A STRANGE STORY.

HALIFAX, Nov. 30. Captain Gustavo Bravo, whose vessel, the San Domingo, 150 tons schr. Altgracia, was towed into port here yesterday by the steamer Homestead, formerly the Roboga, nearly four months out from Bermuda, after losing several sets of sails and suffering otherwise from continuous voyages, said he did not know who his agents were here, nor to whom he was to report, but declared that he was coming to Halifax in ballast to load a load of lumber for the Canary Islands. He said the schooner was owned by a Spanish gentleman, who owned several other vessels. The Altgracia sailed from Bermuda August 4th. Captain Bravo said, in ballast, and made good headway until off Nantucket Lightship, when terrific gales stripped her off her canvas and damaged the spars. Temporary rigging suffered the same way and for weeks the craft was at the mercy of the storm, but evidently did not drift far from Nantucket. Captain Bravo said there had never in all that time been an opportunity to signal a passing vessel for aid. He said the crew had plenty of food and water.

CRISTOLAX. We have now received a supply of Cristolax, the wonder Malt Extract with Paraffin. This preparation successfully displaces the old-fashioned drastic purgatives and aperients and has none of the bad effects so common to these. It is particularly valuable for infants, children, invalids and the aged. It is in the form of granular crystals and may be taken dry from a spoon or spread on bread and butter, and as it mixes freely with milk or water it is more frequently administered in this manner. Price: 80c.

By E. THORNTON COOK.
For nearly 400 years Parliament has met regularly at the "Palace of Westminster," as the building wherein it assembles is officially known. The present Houses are not yet a century old; the previous edifice having gone up in smoke when a careless janitor, set to burn an accumulation of old records, overheated the fires—and then went home leaving the embers to smoulder and spread. Our Parliament is affectionately known as "the Mother of Parliaments" because it has served as a model for those of other countries. No Parliament can be assembled, prorogued or dissolved without the command of the reigning sovereign acting on the advice of his or her Ministers. If it is dissolved, a royal proclamation has to be made, and this also calls for a new Parliament, orders the writs to be sent out summoning it, and gives the date for its opening. The writs are pieces of parchment, some fifteen inches by twelve, printed in imitation handwriting, blanks being left for the names and dates. They are sent to the "Returning Officer" (who is some person of standing in every district especially appointed to manage the election), and are, in effect, a command to set about electing a new member or members. The House of Commons is the most important branch of our Legislature, for with it systematic government could not be carried on. It also enables the nation to express its opinion on matters of public importance, for members of Parliament are the mouthpieces of the masses. Its third great function is the redress of grievances. Any elector can apply to his or her member to get a question asked in the House, and by this means show up any grievance wrong, so bringing the pressure of public opinion to bear the enabling redress to be obtained. The House is not in being until a Speaker has been elected and members have taken the oath. So, pending these operations, the Chief Clerk of the House of Commons is in control, after an appeal has been made to the country and a new House meets for the first time. The actual birth rate of a Parliament has its picturesque side. There is usually a great crush, for all members attend. Presently warning is given of the approach from "another place" (which means the House of Lords) of an official known as Black Rod, who carries an ebony wand of office and is the bearer of the King's messages between Lords and Commons. Tradition decrees that the Commons shall bar their door in his face until they have made sure of the fact that he comes unaccompanied by "armed force." This is a survival from the time when the Commons had to fight to maintain their rights and privileges. When formal questions had been asked and answered, Black Rod is admitted. He then delivers an invitation from the Lords to the Com-

Historical Records

Article X.

Your readers will soon agree with me that in 1832 Brigus was one of the principal ports in this country, both for exports as well as imports, and could well hold its own with both Harbor Grace and Carbonear. You will only have to glance through the formidable list of sealers to recognize at once the great volume of trade that must have been done in this place.

It is not about the sealers that I intend to write in this article, but I shall tell about them in good time, so you must have a little patience, but I may mention in advance that the old hero, Capt. Wm. Munden, master and owner of the "Four Brothers," had the first hundred ton vessel built to prosecute the sealfishery, and was high-liner as usual this year. I will now give some idea of the foreign trade carried on at Brigus.

Jan. 20th.—The brig "Ianthé," Capt. Percy, was cleared for Allente, Spain, with 2,400 qts. codfish.

Jan. 21st.—The brig "Guysborough," Capt. Bennett, arrived from Oporto, Portugal, with salt and wine.

Jan. 28th.—The brig "Blandford," Capt. Coleman, cleared for Barbados with codfish, mackerel and cod sounds.

Feb. 1st.—The barque "John," Capt. Stephens, cleared for Barbados with a similar cargo.

April.—The brig "Ianthé," Captain Percy, entered with salt and wine.

April.—The brig "Sarah," Capt. Hayman, entered with large general cargo from Liverpool, Eng., consisting of Flour, Pork, Dry Goods, including pipes and ploughs.

April.—The brig "Angeoria," Capt. Whiteway, arrived from Liverpool with a similar cargo.

In June these vessels all cleared again with seal oil and skins, mostly for Liverpool. The brig "Liberty," Capt. Adey, arrived direct from Hamburg with hard bread, butter, peas, leather, hams and bricks. These are but a few of the vessels that you can easily see the importance that Brigus must have held at this time when her shipowners held a most prominent place as sealers throughout the whole country. It is indeed interesting to look back at these old clearances and manifests of cargoes, to see the change we have passed through since then.

It is many years since Flour and Pork were imported from England, and we have heard of Hamburg Butter and Hard-bread in the not very musty past. In fact the Hamburg Bread was a most important article in our lunch in my school days, and a splendid and dainty bit it was. For the moment I forget the vessel which brought the last consignment of Hamburg Bread to Newfoundland, but it was some years after I left school. I'll think of her name one of these days.

We have only to look at some of our old buildings to recognize the quality of the Hamburg Brick. It was an article to stand for generations, and to be almost as good as new when the house was burned down.

The brig "Blandford" had in her cargo for Barbados 280 bris. Mackerel. Where is the Newfoundland mackerel to-day? Eighty and ninety years ago the waters. If Conception and Trinity Bays teemed with these dainty fish. To the present generation of Newfoundlanders mackerel are practically unknown.

In the sixties, seventies and eighties there was an abundance of Herring to be had on Labrador—the quality of which for size and flavor were unequalled anywhere. They were world-famous. The harbors of Snug Harbor, Tub Harbor, Battle Harbor, Corbett's Harbor, Bolster's Rock, Punch Bowl, Dead Island and elsewhere were hives of industry when the Herring School was on. The coopers and packers were all alive to get this great revenue off to market. "A barrel of flour for a barrel of Herring" was the saying at that time.

Fifty years previous the Mackerel were just as plentiful as the Herring, but where are they now? The Labrador Herring show sign of returning to their old haunts. Will the Mackerel return? Do not be surprised if History will repeat itself.

The brig "Blandford" had also 50 firkins of cod sounds. The barque "John" had fifty firkins more, both from Brigus to Barbados at the same time. As far back as 1804 from an old record I notice that cod sounds were shipped to Poole, England, by almost every vessel. Can any one tell me how many firkins or barrels of Cod Sounds were exported from Newfoundland in the present year, 1924?

Mr. Taylor, a fishery expert, lectured to the Board of Trade here recently, and in his report, which I have carefully perused, he draws attention to our neglect of these bye-products of our great industry. Is there not a lesson to be learned here when we see what Brigus did in one month in 1832, surely this ought to set us thinking!

My old friend, Capt. Richard Gosse, galvanized life into the Board of Trade regarding the Canning Industry, and I feel very certain that something will be done to start the Canning of Herring and Caplin, which he recommended so strongly. It is not the fishermen's fault that something has not been done, but it is the fault of the leaders. We had a Fishermen's Government, but now we have the Merchant's Government, and the electors have told them to take One Million Dollars, if necessary, for a Bounty to encourage the Fisheries. I am not in favour of Bounties, but everyone would like to see something expended for the Canning Industry to improve the present way, and get new and modern methods to help our great fishing industry.

Capt. Gosse, who loves his Native Land, was right when he said that if they had the supply of Caplin on the Pacific Coast, like we have here in Newfoundland, they would have perfecting means of canning them like Sardines long before this.

In my next I will tell about the Sailing Packets that carried passengers across Conception Bay, long before we thought of the Railway.

WAR DISCLOSURES—HOW KITCHENER INTERFERED.

The diary which Lord Bertie, the British Ambassador at Paris, kept during the war will enhance the reputation of that wise and devoted diplomatist. These two large volumes are of extraordinary interest and of first-rate historical value from the light which they shed on almost every phase of the war.

The earlier chapters show that Kitchener interfered much more often and more unwisely than the general public were aware. Thus on March 12, 1915, there is an entry to the effect that:

There is continued interference on the part of Kitchener (with Sir J. French) in plans and details, and consequently strained relations.

Sometimes Kitchener was dangerously indiscreet. On December 1, 1915, there is an entry:

The French considered that Kitchener's conversations with the King of Greece had done much harm; they had encouraged the King to think that we would gladly withdraw from Salonica on terms which the German Government desired.

Yet Lord Bertie was not blind to the immense services which Kitchener had rendered to the Allied cause.

German Brutality.

He was fired with indignation at the cruelty and brutality of the Germans, and his evidence on this point is of particular importance at the present time. On January 17, 1916, is the entry:

What retribution can we exact from them, even if we bring Germany to her knees? Our pacifists would plead the German cause against the cries for atonement of our own people who have lost those who are dear to them by German calculated atrocities.

That the tank, which was to change the methods of war on land, did not greatly impress him, is shown by this entry on October 3, 1916:

I gather that of our 13 tanks used on the Somme none have been captured by the enemy, and most of them are only wounded. They failed in the expectations held of them in front of the Guards owing to the sticky ground into which they sank. . . . With all their failings they have created a funk among the Germans.

He could not know that they had been ordered to attack over precisely the kind of ground where the tank experts said that they would be well-nigh useless.

Lord Bertie has continual entries about British busybodies who came to Paris and went back to London declaring that the French were "rotten" or eager for peace. His generous faith in France and in her courage and determination shines through his pages. Again and again he insists on the necessity of a close Anglo-French alliance. On September 24, 1917, is this entry:

A conference with Germans would be like playing cards with people who are card-sharpers. To talk of appealing to the conscience of the German people is rubbish. They have no conscience and those who pretend to have such a thing make it obey the dictates of inhumanity.

"Foch is splendid."

He was particularly indignant at President Wilson's constant interferences and mistakes. He wrote on October 28, 1918:

If we make peace on the German interpretation of the Wilson commandment it will be only a short peace and if we want a really durable one we must go on until the Germans are really on their knees.

On January 18, 1919:

Foch is splendid. If the Entente Allies carry out his views all will be well. . . . Politicians are generally very ignorant and very short-sighted.

And, not without reason, he was alarmed to learn that "Lloyd George has been pressing for the abolition of conscription in France"—for if France had been left without a great army peace would not have been worth a year's purchase.

A Luxury in the Home

It is a real pleasure to wash in Ivory Soap. This fine cleansing, soothing toilet soap does all that the most expensive soap can do, yet it costs far less than most toilet soaps.

Truly, has it been said that a cake of Ivory is a luxury in the home, for the delightful, natural fragrance of this pleasing soap makes it a real pleasure to use. There is a certain distinctiveness about Ivory Soap that other soaps lack. You will love to wash in Ivory and all the family will like it too. Ask the grocer for Ivory and try a real sensible, and economical toilet soap.—oct.13,m.t.

An Open Letter to The Public:

On December 4th, 1921, The "Broadway" first opened their doors to the public, and from the first day we knew we had the support and the confidence of the general public.

From the first day we endeavoured to give our customers the best and most dependable merchandise at the Lowest Prices.

To-day we point with pride to the prominent position we occupy in the wearing apparel field in St. John's—a growth made only possible by the support of our customers—a support we will ever cherish to safeguard to the very fullest extent of human endeavour.

The growth of our business has increased to such extent that we were compelled to enlarge our store and on April 9th, 1924, we took over the premises formerly occupied by R. A. Templeton and where our New Gents and Boys Department is now located.

But do not mistake this announcement—we take no pride in growth—for growth itself. We regard growth only in its relation to achievement and not the kind of achievement that adds up and measures up in dollars and cents alone.

Greater Values and Service has been and will always be the slogan of The "Broadway!"

"IN YEARS NEVER A SALE LIKE THIS"

Our 3rd Birthday Sale

--Not Merely a Sale, But a Celebration--

Starts Thursday, Dec. 4th, at 9.30 a.m.

See Wednesday's Newspapers.

The age of indifference has passed—the public is interested in the motives that actuate, the impulses that move, the values they get, the forces that control—an organization, for after all, an organization lives or dies by public support.

It is but human, therefore, that we take pride in our constant growth—for that is an expression of public approval—of increased public support. But we do not make a mistake of permitting growth to be a "brake" instead of a spur to our efforts.

Every year we celebrate the day of our first opening with our Birthday Sale—a Sale that has grown in proportions yearly! Therefore you may regard with confidence the announcement of our 3rd Birthday Sale—as a Sale when you will be able to purchase your entire family needs at savings which only a Store like this can offer you.

Forty-Five Years in the Service of the Public—The Evening Telegram.

Christian Brothers' Collection

INCREASE OVER LAST YEAR.

The annual collection for the Christian Brothers, was taken up at all the Masses in the Catholic Churches yesterday and showed an increase of $175.24 over last year. The figures are:—

1924.
Cathedral	$5,278.87
St. Patrick's	2,636.85
St. Joseph's	270.00
Mount Cashel	90.00
Total	$8,275.72

After Last Mass at the Cathedral, a large number of ex-pupils of the schools assembled at the Monastery and after the total returns had been made up, Hon. W. J. Higgins, K.C., on behalf of the Cathedral Parish, passed over the amount collected there. In doing so he regretted that this year there was not present Hon. J. D. Ryan, who had been present for many years past, and who always had the honor of passing over the Cathedral collection, he trusted that the absence was only a temporary one and that next year Mr. Ryan will be present again. Mr. Higgins had much pleasure in passing over the amount, and in announcing that the total collection was again an increase over the previous years, he thought it was a well merited tribute to the self-sacrifice of the Christian Brothers.

On behalf of St. Patrick's Parish, Mr. M. Bambrick tendered the amount collected at that Church, and he was pleased to be able to announce a substantial increase over last year. He too, paid a tribute to the work of the Brothers, on behalf of the Catholic boys of the city.

Mr. W. E. Brophy was happy to have the privilege of handing in the amount collected at St. Joseph's. The Parish there is a growing one and it was a real pleasure to be able to say that the Christian Brothers' Collection was growing with the Parish.

Rev. Brother Ennis handed over the Mount Cashel Collection, and whilst he was sorry that like the other parishes, there had not been an increase, he was glad that the collection had not gone back.

Rev. Brother M. C. Ahearn, Principal of Mount St. Francis, on behalf of the Brothers, gratefully acknowledged the handsome collection. He regretted the absence of Hon. J. D. Ryan who had been present on so many former occasions, and he hoped that for many future years Mr. Ryan would be spared and able to the present Brother Ahearn read letters from His Grace the Archbishop and Mr. Percie Johnson, both expressing the hope that the collection would be a success.

It is nearly fifty years since the Christian Brothers came to this country; two generations have come since then, but the present generation is just as enthusiastic as were those of many years ago, and the work of the Brothers is still being appreciated. Brother Ahearn gave an eloquent discourse on the education of children, and the importance of religious training in connection with physical and intellectual training. He gave a brief outline of the events that led up to the founding of their Order and of their first landing on our shores. Concluding, he expressed the gratitude of the Brothers to all those who had helped to make the magnificent collection just reported. To the Press he was especially grateful for opening their columns for some time past. Speeches were also delivered by Dr. V. P. Burke, Sir P. T. McGrath, Mr. J. G. Higgins (on behalf of the Knights of Columbus) Hon. W. J. Higgins, (on behalf of the B.L.S.) and Mr. C. J. Cahill, M.H.A.

All rejoiced at the handsome collection, and paid a high tribute to the work of the Brothers. In the course of the speeches it was announced that the Golden Jubilee of the coming of the Christian Brothers to this country will be celebrated next year, and that steps will be taken to fittingly celebrate the occasion.

COLLECTION DAY AT HOLY CROSS

In accordance with the time-honored custom, after Last Mass yesterday, a large number of the friends and supporters of Holy Cross repaired to the Schools to await the result of the annual collection. The statement presented by Mr. Michael Bambrick, Chairman of the West End Collection Committee, showing an increase of $145.00 over last year's amount, was received with much applause. On behalf of the Christian Brothers, Bro. P. M. Egan, Principal of Holy Cross, thanked the people for their very generous support and delivered a masterly oration on many phases of educational activity. He also made thoughtful reference to the friends and ex-pupils of the school who had passed to the Great Beyond, since last year's assembly. Short speeches appropriate to the occasion were made by Messrs.

The Secret of Clearer skin · Easier digestion · Regular elimination Better Health

THESE remarkable reports are typical of thousands of similar tributes to Fleischmann's Yeast.

There is nothing mysterious about its action. It is not a "cure-all," not a medicine in any sense. But when the body is choked with the poisons of constipation—or when its vitality is low so that skin, stomach and general health are affected—this simple, natural food achieves literally amazing results.

Concentrated in every cake of Fleischmann's Yeast are millions of tiny yeast-plants, alive and active. At once they go to work—inverting the whole system, clearing the skin, aiding digestion, strengthening the intestinal muscles and making them healthy and active. Health is yours once more.

"At the age of forty I found myself slipping in health. I was troubled with indigestion, constipation and nervous debility. I had read about people taking Fleischmann's Yeast, and ordered some. A while later, in answer to a friend's inquiry, I was surprised to hear myself reply, 'I feel like a prize-fighter' and realized then that I had not felt any sign of indigestion for some time, and was putting in ten to twelve hours' hard brain work daily. I knew I was back again."

"WHEN all the other girls were wearing their first low-necked dresses, I was staying at home—all on account of a breaking-out on my back that I simply couldn't get rid of. Dad is a druggist so I tried all the medicated soaps and creams that he had in stock, but finally gave up. It was awful. One day my chum told me about Fleischmann's Yeast and urged me to take it. I took half a cake dissolved in water before every meal—it is not only easy to take but delightful—and in two weeks every trace of the eruption had disappeared. It worked like magic, really, and made me feel like a different person."

(A letter from Miss Esther Shaw of Sanford, Calif.)

"WHEN I commenced to eat yeast about two years ago, I was the grouchiest grouch that ever nursed a grouch. My complexion looked like a piece of bread dough and I realized that my Nemesis was that curse of mankind—constipation. About every cathartic on the market went through my system. My grocer suggested that I give Fleischmann's Yeast a trial. Since I began eating it my bowels function perfectly night and morning—the proverbial kitten has nothing on me for sound slumber. I do not claim 'Yeast to be a universal 'cure-all'—but it certainly gave me an excellent start on the road to health."

(A letter from Mr. Cyril A. Gendemann of 1022 Tenth Avenue, Brooklyn)

"CAME a period of real worry; of haphazard living; of irregular sleep and diet. The result... a distressing case of nerves... misery from my digestive system, a rough and unclear skin. When someone suggested yeast I laughed... Secretly I tried it, and now, knowing how simple the remedy, I laugh at nerves, scorn a skin that is not smooth and clear, and find my digestive system a thing to be ignored."

"THIS is what the doctor told me, 'Your husband is run down;... he has over-worked and eaten so irregularly, and taken so little notice of his physical condition that now he is a very sick man.'... At the end of the second week's yeast treatment digestion was improved, and constipation relieved. For six months he ate three cakes each day, and no doubt he owes his complete recovery to the fact that he was so steadfast in following this treatment."

Dissolve one cake in a glass of water (just hot enough to drink)

—before breakfast and at bedtime. Fleischmann's Yeast, when taken only in this way, is especially effective in overcoming or preventing constipation. Or eat 2 or 3 cakes a day—spread on bread or crackers—dissolved in fruit juices or milk—or eat it plain. Fleischmann's Yeast comes only in the tinfoil package—it cannot be purchased in tablet form. All grocers have it. Start eating it today! A few days' supply will keep as well in your ice box as in the grocery. Write us for further information or for a free copy of our latest booklet on Yeast for Health. Address: Health Research Department, The Fleischmann Co., 201 Duckworth St., St. John's, Nfld.

When Kings Couldn't Write

Annually on November 12th there is performed at the Law Courts in London a quaint old ceremony that goes back to those far-off days when only ecclesiastics troubled to master the art of writing, and when kings could do no more than scrawl their signatures at the foot of a document. This ancient custom is known as "Pricking the Sheriffs," and the preliminaries are performed by the King in person, who pricks a hole with a golden bodkin—which has a point it—opposite the names of the gentlemen previously chosen by the Chancellor of the Exchequer to be Sheriffs of counties during the ensuing year. The ceremony at the Law Courts consists in the Chancellor reading out the names to the law lords and other dignitaries, all of whom are attired in full dress, a most imposing sight. The Chancellor also wears his official uniform, this being one of the very few occasions on which the famous black and gold robes are seen. The Sheriff is, of course, the King's representative in his particular county, and has to attend His Majesty's Judges when on circuit.

COMPARISONS.
My golf is not so very good. My bank account is always low. The motor month my auto's hood is not an "eight" but it will go; I do not wear silk underwear, Of shoes I've but an extra pair. And but one hat my brow to shade; And yet despite the lack of style Which marks the course that I must run, I keep on living all the while And seem to have a lot of fun. My overcoat, when winds blow cold, It stouts enough to keep me warm. This year it will be three years old And sag a trifle round my form. But what of that? I shall not freeze. Nor feel the weather more than they Who bought their garments overseas At prices I could never pay; Comparisons are relative. When everything is said and done, Though on a lesser plan I live, I get my share of honest fun. My friends are neither rich nor great, But I am fond of them, and they Are fond of me. I dare to state, What more can pomp and fortune say? We share each other's joys and woes, We laugh and sing when skies are blue. We're all the charms true friendships know. What more can richer friendships do? So day by day and year by year I wake to greet the morning sun, Eat, toil and share life's beauty here. And seem to get my share of fun.

The Old Colony Club

The Old Colony Club had the pleasure of hearing a very instructive address Saturday afternoon last, on "Some Public Health Problems," delivered by Dr. Brehm.

Mrs. V. P. Burke presided, and introduced the speaker in a few apt remarks; referring to him as having been responsible for the conservation of the land round Twenty Mile Pond in the interests of the city—that the waters might be preserved from contamination. This wise action on the part of Dr. Brehm caused a visitor from abroad to remark that the man who had the forethought to plan so wisely would deserve a statue to his memory.

Dr. Brehm spoke on various matters concerning public health, beginning with infection carried by flies, and the very serious epidemics caused thereby, as well as valuable though simple means of combating this menace.

Attention was drawn to the improvement of our milk supply since inspection has become more thorough and glass bottles more generally used, while urging the necessity of absolute cleanliness in the handling of milk and other foods.

The inspection of meat, Dr. Brehm declared to be rather a difficult problem, on account of the numerous small slaughter houses, instead of an abattoir where the whole process of killing and disposing of the by-products of animals would be carried on under one roof in perfect cleanliness.

The need of the district nurses was mentioned as making all the difference between comfort and misery to the sick poor, and Dr. Brehm hoped that soon not only one of our city schools, but every school, would have a resident trained nurse.

Perhaps the housing problem is one of our greatest difficulties as represented by Dr. Brehm.

The proper disposal of refuse and many other matters were ably handled all through his address. Dr. Brehm's slogan might have been: "External Vigilance is the price of health."

The members of the Old Colony Club are nearly all welfare workers or members of charitable organizations, so that an address such as that of Saturday afternoon will no doubt prove of much service to them.

At the conclusion of the address, questions were put to Dr. Brehm, after which a very hearty vote of thanks was tendered to him.

A message from the Prime Minister was then delivered to the members.

POPULAR DRUGGIST COMPELLED BY EXPANDING TRADE TO OPEN LARGER STORE.

"What is undoubtedly one of the most attractive and modern drug stores in Newfoundland was opened on Saturday by Mr. Peter O'Mara, the well known Druggist. The new store, which is situated one door west of the old stand, is an entirely new departure in drug store appearance and general lay-out. It is built along the most modern lines and finished in up-to-date fashion in every detail. The dispensing department (which every trained druggist recognizes as the most important end of the business) is the last word in modern equipment and is so conducted that it is impossible for anyone but the dispenser to gain admittance. In every detail the important work of filling physicians' prescriptions is watched most carefully and the checking of prescriptions, which by the way has always been a special feature of O'Mara's business, is carried out in such a way that errors are impossible. The store fixtures are beautiful and the lighting system, both in the windows and the body of the store, is excellent. The stock rooms are laid out on a most modern principle, there being a different stock department for every line of goods carried. The whole arrangement of the building suggests the most up-to-date merchandising methods, and Mr. O'Mara, who visited the United States and Canada to get the plans of this modern drug store, is to be complimented upon the splendid store he has erected. The building itself is imposing and attractive and lends a distinct atmosphere to the surroundings. In such an up-to-date store it is only natural to find the most modern drug store merchandise. In every department the stocks are well selected and right up-to-the-minute, and have been purchased in such quantities as to ensure the lowest retail prices. Besides the usual stock of drugs and medicines carried for prescription work, Mr. O'Mara has carefully selected a big variety of toilet goods and general drug store merchandise, many items of which are artistically displayed in the attractive show cases. In congratulating Mr. O'Mara upon his enterprise and business foresight, we predict for the new O'Mara store an increasing share of public patronage. Confidence and goodwill, the two most essential factors to a successful business, Peter O'Mara certainly en-

Quite a number of ships are due in port during the week and a busy time along the waterfront is anticipated.

S.S. Lisgar County is due from Montreal to-day; the Silvia from New York to-morrow; and Rosalind on Thursday.

The Amanda leaves Charlottetown to-day and is also due this week. The Sachem will probably arrive from Boston and Halifax on Thursday morning, and the Digby from Liverpool to-morrow.

YESTERDAY'S FIRE ALARM.—Yesterday morning, at 10 o'clock, the firemen of the Central and West End Companies were called out in the height of the snow storm to the Poor Asylum, where they found a slight blaze in the chimney. It was quickly extinguished by the use of the chemical.

INTER CLUB BILLIARDS.—The second last game of the first round of the inter club billiard tournament was played at the Masonic rooms on Saturday night, when Sellars (Masonic) defeated Constantine (B.I.S.) by 61 points. The game was a good one throughout and the spectators present were kept interested from beginning to end. The final score was Sellars 350, Constantine, 239. The breaks were: Sellars (Masonic)—350—10, 14, 10, 14, 15, 12, 14, 10, 13, 10, 30, 17, 16—185. Constantine (B.I.S.)—289—13, 10, 13, 25, 26—87.

Only one more game remains to be played at the Masonic rooms, and this will take place to-night at 7.30, when the players will be Fox (Masonic) vs. French (B.I.S.).

BOUTS IN ENGLAND.—LONDON, Nov. 24.—(Can. Press)—In a twenty round bout for the lightweight championship of Great Britain and the Lonsdale Belt, at the National Sporting Club here to-night, Ernie Izzard, of Horn Hill, outpointed Jack Kirk, of Doncaster. A rally staged by Izzard toward the finish earned him the award.

Bobhardier Wells, making his first appearance in the ring for several years, last night knocked out Guardsman Pennwill in the second round of a 15 round match at Hoxton Baths.

AMERICAN WINS AT PARIS.—PARIS, Nov. 26.—Jack Taylor, United States light-heavyweight boxer, last night decisively defeated Texidor, the Spanish heavyweight champion, in the fifth round of what was to be a twenty-round bout.

The American completely outclassed the Spaniard, and in the fifth round the referee intervened in order to save Texidor from a knockout.

GREB WINS BY K.O.—WHEELING, W. Va., Nov. 25.—Harry Greb, of Pittsburg, middleweight boxing champion, knocked out Frankie Ritz, of Wheeling, in the second round of a scheduled ten round bout here last night. Greb was the aggressor throughout, Ritz being able to land only one light blow.

NO MORE BOUTS BY RADIO.—NEW YORK, Nov. 26.—Radio broadcasting of boxing bouts is at an end, so far as Tex Rickard is concerned. It was learned at Madison Square Garden yesterday. The reason given by one close to the New York promoter is that the use of the radio keeps down attendance at the bouts.

AN APPRENTICE CHAMPION.—With the conclusion of the race meetings at Lingfield and Manchester, Nov. 22nd, the flat racing season in England ended. The champion jockey during the season is a young 20-year old apprentice, Charles Elliott, who rode 108 winners, and is the only jockey in the country to win more than 100 winners. R. Jones is second with 84 winners, and Steve Donoghue, third, with 81.

The list of winning owners is headed by Prince Aga Khan, whose horses netted their owner nearly £45,000. King George had a very poor year and won barely £2,000. Lord Derby tops the list of winning breeders, and R. C. Dawson has trained most of the winning horses.

THE OUT-VERNES JULES VERNE.

Mr. Harry Harper, in the Contemporary Review, out-Verne's Jules Verne, who imagined an eighty-day journey round the world. Mr. Harper says in the new air age—the day after to-morrow—the record will be made in a hundred hours!

It is a very wonderful story he tells of man's increasing conquest of the air. Men, steel, and oil—these are the conquerors of the air—the annihilators of space.

"We are being told a great deal too much of the destructive powers of aircraft and far too little of their 'winning powers,'" says Mr. Harper. "Our vision is distorted. We are prevented, altogether, from gaining any sense of proportion. We are led to think that nothing but ill can come of man's conquest of the air; whereas, made use of in the right way, this conquest of an element which knows no barriers, and which flows, uninterrupted, over the whole surface of the globe, has powers which may bring us salvation rather than destruction; which may enable us to drive still farther into the background the menace of any future war."

New Gospel of the Air.

"There are factors which are now about to transform flying as we have not known it hitherto. There are wonders dawning which will open up a new page in the world's history. It is an era in which we shall feel ourselves super-men. To-day we send words flashing over cables, or through empty space; but when we ourselves move from point to point—when we have to travel to some far corner of the globe—it is not a question of hours or days, but of weeks of ceaseless travel. It is here that development has languished—in the swift transport of passengers over vast distances. But what science has done in regard to cables and wireless, the most significant of our sciences, aeronautics, is now to accomplish for our bodies. And this is what one means when one speaks of 'the new air age.'"

Giant Strides.

"It is a vision great and splendid! It is a new world we glimpse. Picture what we shall enjoy in aerial pleasure trips. Saturday to Monday in the South of France! A long week-end in Northern Africa! As for our summer vacations, in the popular era of the 'skyway,' who could put a limit to our roamings? Imagine what it will mean when, in our holidays, we are wafted, magically, to and fro between London and those beautiful islands of the far Pacific."

"Plans now being developed by Imperial Airways, our £1,000,000 national organisation, together with the tests decided upon with huge airships, enable experts not only to map fresh links in air-lines which are to straddle the globe, but to sketch time-schedules for complete round-the-world journeys by aeroplane express lower air, with that same pith with which a traveller in the blue-and-gold Riviera express would let his thoughts wander back to the times when, sitting in open trucks, the first railway travellers jolted along with cinders from the engine blowing into their faces. Wonderful results are rewarding—an eight-years' research in sending aeroplanes up to high altitudes and there making them fly miles an hour faster than would be possible in dense air near the earth's surface.

"A trans-ocean 'air express,' manoeuvred into a vast, swiftly-rushing 'tide' of the upper air, is expected to devour distance at five miles a minute, and carry passengers from New York to London in fifteen hours.

"This, therefore, is our prospect. It is to send vast winged ships of metal till they enter 'wind-ways' moving at heights and speeds almost incredible to lowly earth-folk. Manoeuvring from one to another of the immense 'tides' in which their own speed will be augmented by that of the body of air in which they are moving, these 'magic carpets' will so annihilate distance that ultra-modern adventurers, vanishing skyward beyond human view, may girdle the globe not in eighty days, as did imperturbable Mr. Fog, but in the new air-age record of about a hundred hours!

What It Will Mean.

"What will all this mean? It will mean that the peoples of the world will get to know each other in a way that has been literally impossible hitherto. They will become friends. They will learn to understand each other's point of view. They will meet each other constantly. They will be as much at home in foreign capitals as they are in their own familiar cities.

"Here, then lies the salvation of the world—in the development of the flying machine as a great and growing method of communication. This art of flying has, one contends, been sent into the world to be a final test of mankind. If we misuse it, persistent, if we turn it deliberately to purposes of destruction rather than of construction, then civilisation will tumble into chaos after the cataclysm of another world-wide war. But if we prove worthy of this power, the full fruits of which are now about to be reaped, we shall move swiftly into a great era of peace, happiness, and world-wide progress. Gone will be racial antipathies. Gone will be international misunderstandings.

"But is not this still a dream? Is not this still merely a hopeful fantasy? My reply is—a thousand times no! We who have spent the best years of our lives in aviation, and who know now what flying is to become, declare with every emphasis, that, given only the right spirit in the hearts of men, this great and golden age is now actually dawning.

"We stand, to-day, at its threshold; and if only we think rightly, and act rightly, we can pass across that threshold into a new age in which life, at last, will be worth living for everyone," concludes Mr. Harper.

and airship liner. Already technical staffs are concentrating upon extensions of routes which are to stretch south-eastward across Europe. These are to be continued steadily, link by link, according to a great State-aided plan, till mail-planes, goods-planes, and aerial wagon-lits rush day and night from London to Australia.

Aerial Wagon-Lits.

"The Air Ministry, having obtained tenders from British firms for the building of multi-engined flying transports, are now ordering the construction of machines of the new types, which will represent a fresh era in air design. Carrying a big load, they will have such a fuel-capacity that they will be able to fly long distances without alighting. Several of the giants, equipped with an engine-plant which frees them almost entirely from any risk of a forced landing, are, it has been decided, to be built throughout of metal. The latest weight-saving schemes, which have been developed recently, during our construction of warplanes of steel, will be incorporated in these new trans-empire craft.

"A first time-table has been prepared for this route across the globe, passing for more than 15,000 miles above land and sea. The total time of the winged 'express' as apart from the time spent in halts at stations, will not be more than six days of continuous night and day travel through the sky. If necessary, on long stages, refuelling will be carried out in mid-air, winged 'tankers' rising from intermediate stations and replenishing the stores of the expresses and cargo-planes by means of special flexible-tube connections.

Nine Days to Australia.

"What has been prepared, in view of the forthcoming tests across oceans with new-type airships, is a tentative time-table for a complete round-the-world journey, starting from London by aeroplane, and making use of airship 'liners' over such stages as the Atlantic and Pacific. According to this time-table a traveller, ascending from the London air-station in the morning in an aeroplane capable of 105 miles an hour, would, flying via Paris, reach Constantinople on the following morning, and Cairo by noon the same day. Then, in a long-distance machine, with sleeping as well as day accommodation, he would speed to Australia, arriving there on the ninth day after leaving London.

"The Pacific, to San Francisco, would be crossed in a big airship 'clipper of the clouds.' The next link would be by trans-American air express, New York being reached on the fifteenth day. The Atlantic cross to Europe would be made by a great airship liner, the voyage being scheduled so that world-travellers, gliding down at London, effect in seventeen days what Jules Verne's imaginary hero took eighty to accomplish.

High Flying.

"Our new air age promises to be a high-flying age. The 100-miles-an-hour of present-type aeroplanes will, it is considered, be exceeded greatly by adapting machines so that they can take full advantage of the lessened resistance of the air at high altitudes. Before long we may look back on flying machines of to-day, driving a laborious way through retarding

The World's Speediest Cable

A new trans-Atlantic cable with a transmission speed of from five to eight times that of any cable now in existence is now being laid, we are told by Science Service's Daily Science News Bulletin (Washington). "This has been accomplished by wrapping the copper core or conductor throughout its entire length with a thin strip of a new magnetic metal. This is known as permalloy, a compound of nickel and iron with the most highly magnetic properties of any substance yet discovered. It is more than thirty times as magnetic as soft iron. It decreases electrical resistance of the conductor to a point where legible signals can follow each other more speedily than ever has been possible before. The new cable will stretch 2,400 miles in a straight line from New York to Foz de Azoar, whence it will be continued to Rome by an Italian company.

"The laying of this line involves considerable practical difficulty. Throughout its entire journey the cable ship will be connected with New York by a tiny steel piano wire which will enable the officers to tell at practically any moment just how fast the craft is moving with relation to the bottom of the ocean. Ord nary methods of determining the vessel's speed tell only how fast it is moving through the water, without taking ocean currents into consideration.

SIDE TALKS.

By Ruth Cameron.

"WHO APPOINTED YE A JUDGE O VER US?"

"She's another one like you who would rather have a dog than a baby." I heard that said to a friend of mine the other day by a woman who prides herself on speaking is a companion for her on her walk; he is a protection for her when her husband has to be away in the evening; he is a friend at all times. I will not claim that he understands every word she says, but I am sure he understands every mood she feels. If dogs do not understand our language, they sometimes seem to get into psychic touch with the source from whence that language comes.

What the Rest of Us Know.

And there is another reason why this collie means so much to my friend. He was brought to her as a puppy at a time when she was very unhappy. She had lost her baby. He could not, of course, fill her empty arms, but he was something to take her mind off herself. And so an extra portion of tenderness has been his during the eight years that my friend has had him, and no more babies have come.

Everyone who knows her well knows this. The More I See Of Some People.

But the woman who prides herself on speaking her mind is comparatively a newcomer to the neighborhood. She has seen Laddie's mistress heaping affection on Laddie and she evidently felt that she was called upon to rebuke her for being one of those childless women who prefer dogs to children. So in speaking of another woman and her dog she made that comparison.

Laddie's mistress said nothing. She isn't the kind who would defend or explain, certainly not to a woman like that. She only bent her head down over Laddie's brown head which was lying in her lap at the moment, and he looked up and tried to kiss her. Some dogs have a good deal more tact than some people.

And none of the rest of us quite quite liked to speak just then.

But someone ought to have spoken. Someone ought to have said then or later, "How do you know she prefers dogs to children? Did she ever tell you so?"

A Study in Psychology.

We all know women who judge other women in that matter with such smug sureness, and condemn them with such smug superiority. How do they get that way? They know as well as you or I do that there are many women to whom children never come. They know that such childlessness is sometimes a bitter disappointment. What license then have they to say about any woman that her childlessness is selfish unless she herself has admitted it to them? What reason have they to grudge such women the dogs or the cats or the causes with which they try to fill up the void? They surely ought to pity and sympathize out of their riches rather than condemn.

VALT MARCH.

When first they talked of wireless, I said, "It can't be done; though scientists are tireless, some triumphs can't be won. You talk of telegraphing without a wire or pole, and I am roundly laughing at such a rigmarole. When I see a pig, on snowy pinions, are flying in a flock, above these fair dominions, I will believe such talk." When dreamers talked of soaring in airships over head, their piffle I was scoring, and bitter things I said. "I hate to hear you mention such schemes," I said, "oh, cheer! To science and invention a limit there must be. Men can't have all their wishes," I said, in biting words: "the water's for the fishes, the air is for the birds. But ships propelled by motors will never cleave a cloud; oh, no, ye dizzy voters, such things are not allowed." At every step forecasted I said, "It can't be done," but my decrees were blasted and blown up one by one. All barriers surmounted, fair Science hit her stride; all grouches were discounted, and knockers simply lied. And now when savants thoughtful present some great design, no protests tommyrotful, no carping doubts are mine. "We'll get a ship and man it," they say, "some evening soon, and leave this cheap old planet and camp upon the moon." And I remark, "Go to it, the trip is up to you; there is no dream, beswore it, that Science can't make true."

Fined $1000 for Smoking in Garages and Factories

New York, Nov. 17.—Smokers' day in Municipal Court smashed several records. One hundred and three men, the largest number ever brought together at one time in that tribunal answered charges of having smoked in garages and factories. Of these 39 were handcuffed and marched off to jail for one day because they either wouldn't or couldn't pay their fines. Virtually none of the 103 escaped unscathed. The fines in some instances went to $20 the total receipts for the court for the day being more than $1,000.

The summonses in the roundup were served by inspectors of the Fire Prevention Bureau. "You men ought to be ashamed of yourselves for smoking in garages and factories," Magistrate Smith told the defendants. "Something must be done to cut down the number of fires."

Treasures in a Tomb

One of the most dramatic discoveries in the history of archaeology occurred when a fall of the cliff near Pylos, Syria, scooped a corner out of a rock-cut tomb over 4,000 years old, the existence of which had long been suspected but never proved. The slide revealed to a passer-by a huge sarcophagus with a unique lid, having large mushroom-shaped knobs by which, no doubt, it was originally handled. The rock hereabouts is very porous, and a layer of muddy soil, knee deep, which had filtered down through the ages, covered the floor. In the gallery a further small tomb or grotto was found. The tomb was originally entered by three pits, which were afterwards walled in below and filled in above. Among the objects found were anatomical ashes and bone fragments, a lamp of bronze or gold, silver vases, a goblet of obsidian and gold, two gold salvers, an alabaster vase, a bronze vase, and plaques of ivory or lustre ware.

Capital Punishment

"W. E. M." in the October number of the Delhomme Review, among other interesting articles has the following on Capital Punishment.

The question of Capital Punishment as a legal sanction is being widely discussed at present. It was raised a short time ago in connection with the Muir execution in Quebec Province and is up again with regard to the Chicago-murderers. There would not seem to be much room for difference of opinion concerning it, nor would there appear to be any real difference of sane and enlightened opinion. On the one side is "sympathy" regardless of antecedents and consequences. On the other is conviction founded on knowledge and experience. On the other side is mankind's consideration for criminal life and feelings; on the other side is a desire to shield innocent life and protect its rights against criminals. Hanging may be "the worst possible use to put a man to and it has nothing at all to commend it. So if hanging can be made the means of saving useful and deserving lives it can hardly be said to be unserviceable to a community or a legal practice to be misrepresented as putting a man to a bad use. That capital punishment has that effect all experience and all statistics clearly not only indicate but prove.

Only one important country in the world can be said to have really abolished capital punishment. That country is Italy. Nowhere in the world has murder been more rife than in Italy. In spite of the fact that there a punishment for murder has been provided which is far worse than the death penalty and much more inhuman. It is strictly and literally solitary confinement, absolutely without possibility of hope of escape or amelioration. There can be no pardon no mitigation of the sentence of life imprisonment for murder. Solitary imprisonment in Italy means exactly what it is.

The victim of it is shut in a cell apart from human companionship, even that of his guards, without reading matter, work, or other means of diversion. He stays in that cell until he is privileged to leave it either for the grave or as a maniac. It is said that insanity usually supervenes after two or three years. It is generally admitted that torturing a man to death is a much worse offence than killing him outright. Torture of the most acute kind of both mind and body is what Italy has substituted for capital punishment.

The abolition of capital punishment has been experimented with at various times in different American States. Murder has invariably had a startling increase in the experimenting States and in most the abolition has sooner or later had to be repealed. As a matter of legal practice capital punishment—except by Lynch-law—is if not done away with being successfully avoided all over the United States. Not one murderer in a hundred in that country is ever executed or runs much risk of being executed. Behold the splendid results in lynching and a murder roll which includes annually almost as many men, women and children as the United States armies lost in the Great War. Compare the safety of human life in Great Britain with its perils in the United States, or the yearly murder list in London, with that in New York or Chicago. Let Canadians in particular compare their murder records with those of their neighbours and shrink from the pleadings of ignorant and silly sentimentalists who would use them into assimilating their judicial practices to those of the United States.

It is not to be ignored that Canada is in danger from the sticky sentimentalists whose cries are constantly assailing our ears. They are currying juries; they are influencing weak-kneed judges; they are perverting the public mind and making convictions for any kind of crime, particularly for murder, more difficult and less certain of attainment. They are interfering with the fulfilment of sentences. This cannot be permitted to go much further without its inevitable consequences becoming unmistakably manifest. If we cannot maintain our British backbone with regard to crime and criminals, we must be content to see justice in our midst become as mischievous and wobbly as she is supposed to be blind. The more wobbly she grows in the United States, the less blind does she appear to be. She is displaying indications of becoming similarly affected in Canada. We have witnessed some very glaring suggestions of late of a tendency to apply one sort of treatment to the rich or powerful, and another to the poor and friendless. They should be alped in the bud. It simply isn't done in Great Britain—not even in petty matters. Horatio Bottomley, rich, popular, and of venerable age, is serving out in full a seven years' sentence for swindling which is likely to cover his remaining lifetime. His state of "health" was not particularly enquired into. No ticket-of-leave has been, or will be provided for him. Viscount Curzon, a conspicuous member of the British Parliament, was brought up a few weeks ago in a London Court for unlawful motor-driving. Although he had done no actual damage he was not only fined to a tune which would make the richest "speeder" in Canada gasp and

Instead of trying to get our courage up to administer justice with impartial firmness we are in serious danger of permitting it to sink to the American level through listening with patience and toleration to the tender-hearted "old women of both sexes" who are pleading for the safety and happiness of "the poor oppressed criminals" in total disregard of their actual and prospective victims.

Is Your Child Undernourished?

Your child may not be sick, but unless he is a noisy, rollicking, romping youngster—full of activity, energy and life—he is probably undernourished.

Improving Telephone System

SUPER SERVICE BEING INSTALLED.
The Avalon Telephone Co. are now installing an addition to the switchboard which is the cause of some slight interruptions to the service which an occasional subscriber experiences when asking for a number. The improvement involves an immense amount of work. A staff of six expert mechanics under the direction of Mr. T. C. Kean of the Stromberg Carlson Telephone Mfg. Co., New York, has been engaged night and day including Sunday since the first of September installing the new system, and they hope to have it completed within six or eight weeks time. The Company will then be equipped with a super service system of the most modern kind. To give an idea of the work, it may be mentioned that in putting in the relay system, about 2,140 separate lines had to be cut and changed over. The additional section to the switch board adds 800 lines, making a total of 2,900. The operators on the new section are able to handle from six to eight hundred calls per hour, whereas in the older section it was considered good work to handle up to 400. On the new section when a subscriber rings, his call is signalled to two operators instead of one as on the old section, but it is so arranged that only one can answer. The improvement will be extended to the whole switchboard of 2900 lines so that in a very short while telephone users will have a very much improved service.

Rally Sunday at Wesley Church

Yesterday afternoon the annual Rally Service of Wesley Sunday School was held and despite the inclemency of the weather, a large number of the congregation was present. The speaker of the evening, Mr. I. C. Morris, delivered an inspiring address on "Ourselves and Our Neighbours" after which the presentation of silver medals were made to the children who had not missed a morning service of afternoon session from the 1st of December last year to the last of June past. In all fifty-eight medals were presented. Wesley Sunday School boasts of being the largest Methodist Sunday School in the city, having an average attendance of 500 including officers and teachers. The collection taken up yesterday showed a considerable increase over that of last year. Rev. J. G. Joyce, the Acting Superintendent is looking forward to a great increase in regular attendance during the next term.

Dr. Stanley Martin Heard From

A few days ago a letter was received from Dr. Stanley Martin, at St. Andrew's Hospital, Lungchington, Japan, stating that he was quite well and wished to be remembered to all his friends. The X-Ray machine, which was donated for his surgical work by the congregation of St. Andrew's Presbyterian Church is working satisfactorily, so he states. His present address is:—St. Andrew's Hospital, Lungchington, via Kamei, Chosen, Japan.

has increased considerably in the past two months, Chairman Wilkinson told stockholders at annual meeting.
"Orders increased in October 22% over September, and November business to the present time has shown a corresponding gain over that of October," he said.
"Volume of business is steadily increasing, and we are of opinion that it will continue to do so until we have normal business. Stocks are very low in the hands of our customers, perhaps the lowest they have been in 10 years. Policy of buying from day to day is still continued by a majority of customers, but for the first time some of our large customers are seeking contracts for their requirements three to six months ahead.
"There is a much better feeling throughout the country where we do business and steel-users, as well as manufacturers, are very optimistic at this time that we are entering into a period of increasing business and prosperous times in our industry.
"The South, on account of large crops and good progress, is in more prosperous condition than in a good many years. The West and Central West are now showing profits in agricultural districts for the first time since the slump in wheat at the close of the war. Large inquiries are coming in from these districts where heretofore there has been practically no attempt to consider new projects. Railroads are buying largely, and normal conditions will require increased facilities in these lines. We look forward to most satisfactory and Tobacco Products . . . 71 3/4

The Quality of Milk is determined by the Quantity of Cream it contains. "MILKMAID" BRAND CONDENSED MILK is obviously, therefore, the finest milk in the world, it contains more cream than average fresh milk, or any other brand of Condensed Milk.

"Alimony"
A SUPERB SENSATIONAL FEATURE AT THE MAJESTIC TO-DAY.
Emmett O'Mara, Irish Baritone and his wife Jeanne Falows, Contralto, will be heard in three very pleasing solos at the Majestic Theatre to-night.
These talented artists have won the appreciation of all who have heard them.
The public are specially reminded of the feature "Alimony." The story of the play is as follows:
Jimmy Mason, a young inventor, is madly in love with Marion, his bride of a few weeks. Jimmie on his way to explain his new invention to some important business men, slips on a wet pavement, and is brought home with a twisted ankle. Rather than let the proposition fall through, Marion goes in his place, and is so convincing that she sells the proposition.
We follow them through their subsequent rise from poverty to prosperity, till, through the machinations of Jimmie's employer, who casts an envious eye toward Marion, and Gloria Dubois, a gay widow, who is smitten with Jimmie, a separation is effected between the two.
Marion remains true to Jimmie, but for a secret purpose she asks a huge ALIMONY. Everyone turns against her when her mercenary demands are made known, even Jimmie. Fighting the world, and even her own husband, Marion finally turns defeat into victory and utilizes the money which she forces from her husband to bring him back to her and re-establish him, after he has spent his entire fortune on Gloria and been thrown aside by her.
They are re-married, and Jimmie realizes that he has a very clever, as well as beautiful wife—who uses "alimony" as an instrument of reconciliation rather than a wedge to widen the breach between husband and wife as is to-day invariably being done. The leading parts are played by Warner Baxter, and Grace Darmond.
This show is the biggest 30 cents worth offered in this city for many months.

Slight Blaze at B. of M. Building
An alarm of fire from Box 23 called the Central and East End Fire Companies to the Bank of Montreal Building on Saturday night at 7.25, where a blaze was found in the basement in a room near the furnace room, where two mattresses had been stored. The firemen quickly brought two streams of water to bear, but to get at the real seat of the blaze, they had to enter the building by the Bank entrance, drag the hose across the basement and through the furnace room, and before getting at the fire they had to beat down a galvanized door. It was impossible to work from the other end as the elevator shaft made a good chimney for the volumes of smoke which went into the upper flats of the building. The firemen fought a blaze near the elevator for nearly half an hour before it was finally subdued. Much damage was done to the woodwork, but nothing of any great value was destroyed. How the fire originated is not known. Mr. John Malone, the janitor of the building, left there shortly after six o'clock and at that hour everything seemed safe for the night.
