Municipal Council

WEEKLY MEETING.

The Weekly Meeting of the Municipal Council was held yesterday afternoon. Mayor Cook presided and Councillors Martin, Outerbridge, Collier, Ryan and Dowden were present. After confirmation of the Minutes of previous meetings, the following business was discussed.

The Government Engineer, in reply to Council's communication re the annoyance caused residents of Water Street by smoke from the chimneys of the Court House and Post Office buildings, stated that same had been taken up and the Council's protest forwarded the Colonial Secretary.

The Secretary-Treasurer of the Playground and Recreation Association forwarded a vote of thanks to the Council for their co-operation in placing at their disposal Bannerman Road for the recent Circus entertainment. He informed the Council the financial returns would be of great benefit and assistance to the Association in their work of providing healthy, outdoor amusement for the children of the city.

With regard to the application of the Star of the Sea Boat Club for a site for the erection of a Boat House, Quidi Vidi Lakeside, Hon. Secretary C. J. Ellis of the Regatta Committee informed the Council a meeting of the latter would be held on the 21st inst., when contemplated improvements for next season will be taken up and the question of a location for the applicants discussed.

Mr. A. Dessert applied for position of Sanitary Inspector. There being no vacancy, this application was ordered placed on file.

Communication was read from Mr. John Rowe, re the condition of drain fronting his dwelling, Carter's Hill; also from Messrs. Kennedy and Kavanagh, Sheehan Shute, complaining of a "hopper" in that locality. Both these matters were referred to the Sanitary Supervisor for attention.

The Broadway House of Fashion asked permit to erect temporary wall of wooden frame sheeted with galvanized iron at the East side of Templeman Building. As the place in question is within the fire zone, the Council cannot, under the Municipal Act, grant such a permit unless the applicants are prepared to construct the wall of concrete, brick or stone as required by law, in which case their request will be acceded to.

Sir Edgar is doing his beautiful gift to the "Children of Newfoundland in memory of Little Boats' Men, August 18th, 1875. James and J. B. Mann—both of whom perished on the ill-fated S. S. Florida."

It is understood the dedication of the memorial will be unofficial, and

Madrid's Deadly Ring

An extremely valuable ring, which is unguarded by the police or even special watchmen, hangs suspended by a silken cord around the neck of a statue of the Maid of Almodena, the patron saint of Madrid, in one of the beautiful parks of the Spanish capital. It is set with diamonds and pearls, but notwithstanding this fact there is no danger of its being stolen. The most unscrupulous thief in Madrid would not think of purloining it. Its history is curious and interesting, and equal to anything found in medieval folklores.

The ring was made for King Alfonso XII, who gave it to his cousin, the pretty Perceodes, on the day of their betrothal. She wore it continually during her short married life. On her death the King presented it to his grandmother, Queen Christina. She died soon after receiving it, and the King gave the deadly little circle to his sister, the Infanta del Pilar, who died within the month.

The ring again started its deadly round, next finding a place on the finger of Christina, the youngest daughter of the Duke of Montpensier, but in less than three months she also was dead, the Alfonso XII, next placed it in his own casket, and lived less than a year after so doing.

It is not surprising that it hangs so safely on a statue in an unguarded square on the capital of so superstitious a country as Spain.

Your "Second Wind"

A perfectly-trained athlete does his work—running, boxing, or the like—on one "wind." But most of us, when we have to put forth any unusual exertion, are glad to get what is called our "second wind." This is really a capacity to take in and use more air.

If, when unaccustomed to exercise, we run for a considerable distance, there is a strain on the heart and lungs. At first our heart is not "warmed up" to its extra work. We are using, in our running, more oxygen than usual, and neither heart nor lungs can, at first, stand the strain. Thus we get "winded."

Therefore we have to slow down, and that gives heart and lungs an opportunity of adjusting themselves. The whole of our lungs—normally we use but half—comes into action; that eases the heart, and we are at once conscious that we can resume our running. That is known as getting our "second wind." With it we can run on quite easily. It is essential, though, that there should be the "slow down" period after our first exertions.

Dr. F. A. James, Dentist, resumes practice on Tuesday, Aug. 18th.—aug15,31

Kay Street.

On Evolution
 August 2, 1925.
 To the Editor of the Somerville Herald:
 Dear Sir:—In your last issue appears an editorial under the caption "Flowers for the Living" which, while being correct in many respects, is not in this writer's opinion correct in at least one essential, and as it is this essential to which I refer that seems to be the principle spring from which your editorial was purposively set before the readers of your newspaper I feel constrained to make a few remarks in taking issue with the facts set forth in the afore said editorial.
 While it may seem unjust to pursue Mr. Bryan with further criticism since he has departed from our midst into the realms of the unknown, yet I feel that to uphold the gentleman in the stand that he took against the freedom of thought and teaching in the public schools is little short of hypocrisy and insincere in the sense that what is not true before death should not be true after death.
 It was an unfortunate and rather poor tribute that Mr. Bryan paid to science for the wonders it has wrought and placed at the disposal of the American people and which have been directly due to the rapid advancement we have made in civilization since the time that truth-seeking souls pulled us out of the chaos of the dark ages.
 The present tendency of theologians to blame science and materialists which also includes atheism and agnosticism for the immorality, lack of respect and disrespect for law and order, and for the crime wave at present existing, will not nor does not hold water, for the simple reason that people who belong to the classes of science, atheism and agnosticism are too busy searching and seeking for the truth to find the time necessary for the purpose of pursuing immorality and things that tend towards making a criminal of oneself. "Make man think and he will take care of the devil" is just as true today as it has always been and always will be.
 The whole world loves a red-blooded fighting individual when that individual fights for what he believes to be the truth, but that is no reason for the whole world's deciding in favor of a man if it does not also believe what he holds forth to be the truth, hence while we admire Mr. Bryan for his fighting qualities it does not follow necessarily that we must also admire and uphold the qualities for which he fought.
 "The letter kills and the spirit makes alive," which brings out an important message from your editorial; I refer to your remarks about the Dayton trial which caused a great deal of undeserved and unjust criticism of Mr. Bryan, and let me state right here that that is one of the drawbacks to our present civilization: why can we not confine our criticisms to the ideas and philosophy of our opponents instead of also attacking the intelligence, intellectual, and I might say even the character of a man when our opinions are in conflict with his?
 No doubt we will, eventually, and when it does come this world will be much fitter to live in. What abuse has been heaped upon the heads of the best souls that ever trod the earth and the fact that they have departed in no wise deters from further abuse being heaped upon their souls, and when we stop to consider that this practice is not alone confined to the unintelligent, but is also pursued by many so-called pious Christians it is any wonder that there has been such a falling off in attendance at the different places of worship?
 The church does not make good people, it is good people who make the church, therefore if the leaders of Christianity wish to gain the sympathy of the people let them refrain (at least those who do practice such tactics) from casting reflections and making certain remarks which tend to raise themselves to an exalted position while placing the objects of their attack below the animals, thereby having the opposite effect to that which they wish to effect. They would teach humbleness but will not practice it themselves.
 I would like to place before your readers one of the arguments set forth by William Jennings Bryan against the theory of evolution and by deductive and inductive reasoning show the fallacy of the conclusions reached by the well-meaning gentleman.
 Mr. Bryan places the teaching of evolution as the sole cause of the crime perpetrated by Loeb and Leopold and his results.
 Would anybody for a moment entertain the suggestion that the teaching of Christianity was the sole cause of any part of the crime which resulted in the atrocious murder of that young lady from Hyannis by the Rev. Clarence T. Richeson? Or would anybody hold that Christianity should be relegated to the scrapheap because of the Spanish Inquisition, the burning of Giordano Bruno and many other atrocities committed by real leaders in Christianity? Of course they would not. In fact the evidence would be greater against the doctrine of Christianity than against that of evolution according to the facts of past history, but no sensible person will for a moment entertain such thoughts.

 Another argument against science by Mr. Bryan is the evil genius of said science because of its inventions which have made war terrible. Ignoring the fact known to intelligent people that the more terrible war is made than the better chance of its meaning the end of war due to the fact that no nation would attempt such, fearing that it would mean its own destruction and utter annihilation, let us see if the facts are against science here.
 Science invented and brought forth steel, the steamer, the locomotive, automobile and finally the airplane. Science has also given us various gases, explosives and dirigibles, but for what? To use in war? She does not. These things are all used in peace times and it would be interesting to know how many Christians lead in the abuse of them during war times, as witness the recent article by the former Kaiser, Wilhelm of Germany on his version of Christianity that for rank hypocrisy and boldness out-herds Herod.
 But to compare science and its inventions with other things for the purpose of finding out if it should be prevented from going ahead with its work because its inventions are abused during the war let me ask this question, would anybody suggest that mathematics should be eliminated from the curriculum of the schools because some notorious crook, holding a responsible position as book-keeper, juggles figures and steals thereby fifty or one hundred thousand dollars? The answer is obvious. And so it was with most of Mr. Bryan's arguments which were merely argumentative and not conclusive by any means.
 In conclusion, I would like to state that it is too bad that Mr. Bryan had to wind up his career here battling against the greatest gift that God has given to man, that is the ability to seek after the truth and while Mr. Bryan admitted the fact that he did not care what people thought or learned outside of the public schools that does not lessen the evil which his philosophy contained, for what would America have lost in brain capacity due to the limitation put on the freedom of thought if the Federal government were to accede to Mr. Bryan's demands?
 "Seek the Truth, the Truth will make you free" says St. Paul in the Bible, and in connection therewith and the keynote of the same Bible, "Prove all things, Hold fast that which is good." If any one class of people is living up to the letter and spirit of the Bible to-day in this respect it certainly is science. It is fact as deplorable as it is to believe it, many religious sects to-day quote the above beautiful and majestic words and then proceed to inform you politely that you must take the Truth as they interpret it.

On Saving 4s. 6d.
 No one, according to the popular opinion, knows more about saving than Sir Harry Lauder. He gave his views on the subject to a gathering of Scotsmen in Hong Kong recently, when he told of his first big engagement.
 "I pawned my watch to pay my train fare," he said, "and then looked out for cheap lodgings. I went to the theatre, took off my tie and collar, took out a muffler from my bag, and then went round back streets looking like a working man. So I got a room for 7s. 6d. a week. If the landlady had known that I was from the theatre, she would have charged me 12s., so I was 4s. 6d. to the good on the first week."

Were After $200,000 Ransom
TWO CONVICTED OF CONSPIRING TO KIDNAP MARY PICKFORD—FACE SENTENCE OF TEN YEARS TO LIFE IMPRISONMENT.
 Los Angeles, Cal., Aug. 14.—Claude Holcomb and C. Z. Stephens were convicted in Superior Court last night of conspiring to kidnap Mary Pickford and hold her for $200,000 ransom.
 A third defendant, Adrian Wood, was acquitted.
 Ten years to life imprisonment, faces the men as a result of their conviction.
 Neither Miss Pickford nor her husband, Douglas Fairbanks, were present when the defendants heard their fate. Both had testified during the trial that they knew nothing of the kidnaping plot, save what the detectives told them. The three defendants were arrested May 20th last, after six weeks of police investigation. Detectives declared they had listened in on conferences at which the trio talked of kidnaping Jackie Coogan, Baby Peggy the grand-children of E. L. Doheny, Pola Negri and finally Mary Pickford. Purported confessions obtained from the three prisoners corroborated these charges.
 It was planned, the confession revealed, to seize Miss Pickford during Shrine Week last June, when the spectacle of a trio of be-lessed merry-makers making off with an actress in a hunting bedecked automobile was expected to attract only passing comment. Then the plan called for incarceration of the actress in some conveniently obscure dwelling until her actor husband "came across" with $200,000 ransom.
 Before the dwelling had been selected, however, the plotters were under arrest and film fans were looking forward to the approaching appearance of Mary Pickford on the witness stand.
 The appearance of Miss Pickford was the high point of the trial, and choked four floors of the Hall of Records with a struggling mob. Only relatives of the accused were on hand last night to learn what might be their fate.
Restoration of Lincoln's Coach
 Efforts are being made to have the old railroad coach, in which Abraham Lincoln made his famous trip to Gettysburg in 1863 placed on the battlefield there. For a number of years after the Civil War the coach continued in use as a passenger vehicle, but later became a pay car. It is now being used as a watchman's home on the Western Maryland Railroad at Port Covington, Md.
 The little now and candy boy on the memorable Lincoln train, is still living. He is Andrew B. Staley, of Baltimore, Md., who is now well advanced in years, but who has offered to be in replacing the seats in the old coach. He declares he remembers distinctly where President Lincoln sat. Additional historical interest is given the famous old coach in the claim that immortal Gettysburg address was written in it.

PERFECTION.
 The Master was painting a picture and his children were ranged all about, entranced by the charm of his colors and the way he was working it out.
 And we'd run every morn to discover some beautiful touch which was new.
 And we'd talk and we'd dream and we'd wonder just what he intended to do.
 The Master speaks little while working, but oft as he heard us he'd smile.
 Though we begged him to tell all about it, he'd answer: "You'll know in a while."
 But one morning he put down his brushes, and then with a turn of his head
 To our grief and our great consternation: "The picture is finished," he said.
 "Oh, Master," we begged and implored him, "don't put all your brushes away,
 Please paint something more on the canvas, paint on to the end of the day.
 Paint more, for we're eager to watch you, paint on for we love it so much."
 "It is perfect, my dears," said the Master, "I should spoil it by adding one touch."
 So with us God is painting a picture, and little we know of His plan,
 We look at the lad whom we cherish and are eager to see him a man,
 But God knows the soul He is shaping, and though for more time He's beseeched,
 He hurts us beyond understanding, but He stops when perfection is reached.

Enforce the Law

It is regrettable to find, although due notice has long since been given of the rules and regulations which apply to motor vehicles, that the law is not generally being complied with. Only last week a car bearing a number of the 5000 series was seen on the streets of the city, and in several other parts of the island cars are in daily use without any identification marks whatever, and obviously the drivers are not licensed.

If these are evasions of the law, it means laxity on the part of the police authorities; if the individuals concerned are exempt from the operations of the Act, it suggests most objectionable discrimination on the part of those whose business it is to see that the law is carried out; if it means that the law cannot be enforced, then in the name of common sense suspend it, so that all may be treated alike, and that the measure may not become a farce.

Nothing is more damaging to the moral tone of a community than to have its laws flouted with impunity, and our experience of this in recent years has surely been sufficiently painful to make us fully aware of that fact. This country is making an effort to redeem itself in its own eyes and in the eyes of the world after a period during which it drifted almost to destruction through the inefficiency of those who directed its affairs. To-day public sentiment is set so strongly in the opposite direction that it is unlikely to tolerate for long any weakness which is likely to result in a return to the drifting process.

Those who would flout the law must be made, if necessary by its painful application, to respect the law, and the more promptly is the treatment applied, and the less likely are the chances of escape, the sooner will those who are inclined to disregard it mend their ways. In connection with the use of identification plates, so far as we are aware, no car has been exempted from the rule, and if, as we have learned, there are vehicle owners who hold a different view, we would suggest that

Peter Pan for Bowring Park

On many an occasion the city of St. John's has had occasion to feel grateful to the Bowring firm and to Sir Edgar Bowring personally for the generosity displayed in adding to its attractions or in assisting in the various philanthropic movements. Not only have funds been readily forthcoming for such purposes, but in all matters of this kind the members of the firm have always shown the keenest personal interest.

In to-day's report of the weekly meeting of the Municipal Council it is intimated that Sir Edgar Bowring has decided to erect in Bowring Park a bronze statue of Peter Pan, a facsimile of the beautiful monument in London. It is the work of Sir George Frampton, and will be dedicated to the children of Newfoundland and in memory of little Betty Munn, who with her father, Mr. J. S. Munn, lost her life in the Florida disaster.

Anyone who passed through Bowring Park on Wednesday last, and witnessed the number of children who were deriving both health and pleasure from the use of the swings, see-saws, and other appliances which had been placed there recently by the firm for their amusement, must have been impressed with the sight, and we feel certain that to both young and old Peter Pan will ever recall with gratitude the munificence and great public spirit of its donor.

Correction

In our reference yesterday to the financial report 1924-25, a typographical error occurred, by which the amount saved to the Colony appeared as $2,000,000 instead of $2,000,000.00.

PEPPYS BEHIND THE SCENES

August 20th.—Much raves all the morning, and am greatly troubled that I am like to suffer another attack of the rheumatics, being that my shoes are in much need of repairs and do not set my feet wet through. Amen, walking in the West End of the City do meet with Mr. Ayre who tells me how Dr. Swaine, the anatomist, will disburse this day at Rotary of the Spruce bud worm and divers other insect pests. He bids me go these with him, which I was obliged to do, yet could not. So, home, being driven there by Mr. McKay, in a motor coach, for which I was devoutly thankful, being that now the rains was coming down in such torrents as I did never see it before, and me thought 'twas the 2nd deluge.

Comes a letter this day out of Corner Brook and do give me news of the opening of the paper mill which will take place on Monday morning at 10 of the clock. The ceremony will be performed by the Governor, who by presenting a button will set in motion a paper conveyor and a suitably decorated roll of paper will then appear, after which the standard rolls will follow on proceeding towards the great wharf storehouses. An interesting part of the ceremonies will be the presentation of a silver tea service to the Pioneer of Corner Brook, Mr. Christopher Fisher, by Sir Glynn West. Lady Allardice will open the hospital in the afternoon and will make an address to the superintendent, and Miss Keegan, the famous chirurgeon, and Dr. Haden Guest will also speak. At the dinner in the evening there will be a high 900 guests and Sir Glynn West will be chairman. But Lord, it do seem to me how there will be scarce breathing time for those that go, being that there are so many things to be done and such little time in which to do them.

Of Interest to Tourists

CASH'S TOBACCO STORE IS NOW READY FOR THE TOURIST TRADE. The man from England or the United States or any other Country, when visiting our City, will find his favourite brand of Cigars, Cigarettes, Tobacco and other smokers requisites at our store. We also carry a full line of picture postcards and books of views of Newfoundland. Our Soda Water Fountain is now in full swing. Ice Cold Coca-Cola and other Syrups are pronounced by all to be the very best in the City.

Advertising Tourist Attractions

The front page of the Halifax Sunday Leader of August 16th shows three splendid views of Newfoundland scenery, namely, Salmon Cove, Broad Cove and St. John's Harbor entrance. The Sunday Leader will, it is understood, shortly issue a Newfoundland edition with a special section devoted to the Colony's attractions from a tourist point of view. Arrangements to this end were made a few weeks ago by the paper's advance agent, Mrs. Gervan. The new edition will appear in the spring.

Golf Club Prevents Slicing

An amateur golfer at Boston, John T. Manning, has invented a new club, a driver, which he claims cannot slice the ball. Vertical grooves fitted to correspond with the curvature of a golf ball are milled on the club's face. When the ball is struck, the ridges catch and drop it into one of the grooves, preventing motion sideways.

Straits Report

Belle Isle.—Light west wind; nothing definite about fish this morning. Twenty-two schooners sighted going south from north yesterday evening. This morning one schooner went south from north.

Eclet!

Did you say there is a surplus? 'Tis a topic to my blood. After years of disputation, By a graft besotted brood, Who had sapped my strength and left me shamed, that my breast should raise. Sons whose conduct in my Council's Should be found so vile and base.

A Disgraceful Practice

The attention of the Health Authorities is called to the practice of fishermen in washing fish in the filthy waters of the public coasts. This forenoon, at the eastern King's Wharf, three fishermen, busily engaged, disposing of their catch, could be observed spitting the fish and then dipping them overboard for the purpose of removing blood and adhering viscera. The water was found with all sorts of sedimentary matter. Across the wharf, not thirty feet distant, the water receives the contents of a public lavatory. The purchasers of the fish were for the most part children who could not be expected to know much about the laws of hygiene. The attention of the Council has already been called to this matter by the Telegram on several occasions but to no apparent effect, and as this is a matter which concerns the health of the people of the city, and calls for something more than indifference, we would suggest that Dr. Brehm, the Health Officer, take the necessary steps to end this practice without further delay.

Lime Pulverizer Arrives

A lime stone pulverizer which arrived by S. S. Gault for the Agriculture & Mines Department was moved to-day by a team of lesters horses to Chalkers Lime Kiln premises near the battery. Lime for agricultural purposes has been unobtainable in the past few years except at prohibitive prices. It is the intention of the Minister of Agriculture to try and remedy this state of affairs. About 200 tons of stone from Cobb's Arm will be ground as an experiment, and sold to the local farmers at a minimum figure. Cobb's Arm limestone has been found by test to be the most suitable for agricultural purposes. It is hoped that in the near future a cheap supply of this essential to successful agriculture will be made available to all sections of the island.

Carelessness in Blasting Operations

This morning two young ladies proceeding down Long's Hill had a narrow escape from serious injury when a shower of spawls thrown out by a blast rained down on them. One of the young ladies, Miss Michael Hibbs, barely escaped a brisk missile. Her companion, who was less fortunate, was hit on the arm and received a blow from which she fainted. The services of a doctor had to be procured. A somewhat similar accident was barely averted last week when some large pieces of stone from a blast set off on the Southside Hill fell between two gentlemen who were conversing on Hickman's wharf.

Magistrate's Court

A 14-year-old labourer, convicted of breaking and entering the house and shop of Thomas Glasco, with intent to steal, on the night of 19th June last, was sent down for three months with-out the option of a fine. A labourer, residing at Quidi Vidi, taken in charge at Manuels, and conveyed to the city, was remanded to the lockup to be examined by a doctor. A 22-year-old fisherman of the Lower Battery was arraigned and charged with receiving a prisoner from the custody of Const. Burt, on the night of the 15th inst. After the evidence of the Constable and a citizen had been taken, the accused was convicted and fined $10.00 or in default 30 days imprisonment. A man for escaping from the custody of the police, arising out of the above case, was also convicted and fined $10.00.

The First Vaccinators

Although vaccination is indissolubly linked with the name of Jenner, there is ample evidence that it was practiced by farmers and others in the rural districts of England long before his day.

It was common knowledge amongst these people that an attack of cowpox immunized the sufferer against smallpox, and it was quite usual for farmers to inoculate themselves and their children with the former complaint to protect them against the latter.

Indeed, twenty-two years before Dr. Jenner made his first vaccination a farmer named Benjamin Jesty, of Wottonchay, openly advocated the practice, but, not being a medical man, he was laughed at for his pains.

"Lights Out"

THE BIG BROADWAY STAGE SUCCESS WILL BE FEATURED AT THE MAJESTIC MONDAY.

A distinct novelty in screen history "Lights Out," a play within a play, is at the Majestic Theatre next week.

In the morning picture studios the scenes are laid where a serial is being made to serve two purposes. First, the money for its producers, secondly to be used as an instrument for making an escaped scoundrel back to the United States. This man is impregnated in the film by a double, who pretends him as such a dirty dog that he will return to "get" his man responsible. The ruse succeeds, and numerous complications result through the existence of two men who look alike; one, the villain, and the other, the man who impersonates certain members of the cast deserve mention for their splendid work. Therefore von Elitz, as the leading feminine role; Ruth Stone, as "Harriet" Annie, a reformed scoundrel; Hank Mann lives up to his reputation as a funny man in his portrayal of the superstitious negro porter. The rest of the cast lend brilliant support in putting over the tone of "Lights Out."

The feature to-day is "The Country Boy" in which Lillian Gish is the heroine. Last night it was shown for the first time and those who saw it enjoyed it immensely. Don't forget Monday "Lights Out."

Yesterday's Rain Storm

Many of the city streets are left in deplorable condition this morning as a result of the heavy rainstorm which prevailed yesterday. The rain was the heaviest for the season, beginning at 10 a.m. and continuing till 4 p.m. in the afternoon. After the weather had cleared up a large gang of street employees were kept busy raking the gratings, and removing the sand and clay which deposited on the lower streets. Some of the trouble leading to the Higher Levels is attributed to the fact that the street has been dried up bed of a mountain stream this morning, than a thoroughfare.

Star Movie

W. E. C. Bullwinkle, special representative of First National Attractions arrived by the Silvia on a visit to the popular Star in connection with the season's pictures as released by the corporation. Mr. Bullwinkle states the company is more than pleased with the progress made by the Star Movie in keeping before the theatrical going people of our city the pictures of this corporation and states that the coming season will be the banner year. One of the first will be "The Lost World," a picture which cost near one million dollars to produce.

Rod and Gun

THE SEPTEMBER ISSUE.

In Rod and Gun in Canada for September, a new series of British Columbia sporting articles from the pen of Bryan Williams commences. This issue is entitled "Breeds from the West," and the first part of the new issue promises a number of hunting and outdoor yarns of the first water. A nature story of a more unusual nature for the magazine, Shuffepap's First Fishing by H. R. Evans is a most readable account of a young bear's first long season.

In addition to the regular staff articles covering all phases of hunting, fishing, shooting and outdoor life, September Rod and Gun contains a large number of very good stories adapted to the late summer.

Rod and Gun in Canada is published monthly by W. J. Taylor, Limited, Woodstock, Ontario.

France Wants to Stop Our Traffic in Old Horses

Captain E. G. Fairholme, chief secretary of the R.S.F.C.A., writes to the Daily News—

"It is quite true that the traffic in butchery horses from this country to the Continent is being officially investigated, as the Minister of Agriculture called together a Departmental Committee to take evidence on this matter.

"The French League for the Protection of Horses, which consists of subscribers and volunteers who are working to protect horses from all forms of cruelty, has written to the Ministers of Agriculture for Great Britain, Scotland, Northern Ireland and the Irish Free State pointing out the deplorable practice to which the traffic in imported horses from England gives rise, and hopes that 'the suggestions made by the different organizations for the protection of animals will obtain the application of a very high tax, and so end this traffic, by inducing the owners to kill at home the horses destined for butchery.'

"The letter ends by 'hoping to see, at last, an end of the sufferings of these unhappy animals, which arrive feverish and exhausted in our abattoirs.'

"The League is not working in any way in co-operation with the Ministry of Agriculture's Departmental Committee, but has written this letter as a protest against the continuance of the traffic and its inevitable cruelties."

SENIOR LEAGUE FOOTBALL—St. George's Field, this evening at 7.15 sharp. Guards vs. Saints. Admission 10c., Boys 5c., Grandstand 10c. extra. Note—The game will begin at 7.15 sharp, whether full teams are present or not. Players will govern themselves accordingly.

The Drunken Driver

Springfield Republican: (A bill now before the Massachusetts Legislature makes it possible for the driver of a motor car, proved to have been drunk to be dismissed for the first offence on payment of a fine). Driving while drunk even once is such an outrage on the community, not to mention repetitions of the offense, that motorom needs a blow in the face to bring it back to a full appreciation of its responsibility when it is permitted almost to monopolize our "non-steering highways." The drunken driver under the bill would be treated much more leniently than mad dogs in the streets, for they are shot. Yet even a mad dog is capable of doing no more damage to life and limb.

Oil in Paint

Paint is used for the purpose of decorating and protecting surfaces. Its most important constituent is oil, usually linseed oil. This has the property of becoming tough and rubbery when exposed to air, especially if some type of pigment, such as white lead, is added.

The white lead acts as a catalyst when the paint is spread and exposed to the air so that the film dries more rapidly than when oil alone is used. White lead has the additional advantage of great hiding power. A 10-lb. can may be prepared for use by adding 2 qt. linseed oil, 3 or 4 oz. turpentine, and 1 oz. drier.

LIGGETT & MYERS.

The manufacturer of three of the most popular low-priced blended cigarette companies—finished the first six months of 1925 with both total sales and net earnings well in excess of the same period of 1924, its record year. There is every indication that the year-end will see the record net of $11,989,839 topped by a substantial margin.

Increased sales and profits reflect the gain in cigarette consumption throughout the country, running about 15% ahead of last year. The Liggett & Myers management saw fit around the first of the year to augment an already strong working capital position to take care of the expected increase in business. Sale of Little under $11,000,000 additional Class B common brought cash up to over $26,000,000, a record for the tobacco industry, and made total working capital $91,000,000. The company's success has been based on a small margin of profit and

Broth From Gigot Bone

A leg of mutton or lamb is very suitable for a week-end joint at this season of the year. Soups in general are not very enticing in hot weather, but this does not apply to some kinds of light soups. Who, for instance, could resist a plateful of broth prepared from the delightful new vegetables, which are more enticing each day their growth develops? It is not necessary to prepare broth with meat, the gigot bone being quite sufficient for the purpose. This bone, well boiled, will produce a soup that cannot be improved upon, and a plateful of it will be relished by every member of the family.

As a stew there is nothing better than a piece of ham mutton cooked with a few of the new vegetables. Another mutton and vegetable stew which is prepared partly by steaming can be recommended. As in each case the mutton and vegetables are cooked in the same pot, the stews are quickly and easily prepared. As a result they require very little personal attention from the cook—a great advantage in holiday time.

Summer Broth.
Wash the gigot bone, including the gristly bit at the end, and put on well covered with cold water. Allow to boil for three or four hours, then strain. Return the strained stock to the pot, and say for a quart of it, add a full tablespoonful of washed whole rice. Boil the rice for twenty minutes. Now prepare and cut up finely two golden ball turnips, two or three carrots (depending upon their size), three or four spones, also shell 1 lb. of peas, and chop very finely a handful of parsley. Boil the carrot, turnip, and spones for a quarter of an hour in the soup, the peas for five or ten minutes. Season the soup with pepper and salt at the last, also sprinkle in the parsley.

It may be noted here that vegetables in broth are not boiled nearly so long as they were. Nowadays experts have discovered that over-boiling destroys the vitamins. The flavor of the vegetables, too, is so much fresher.

Haricot Mutton.
Procure 1 1/2 lbs. of shoulder mutton and get it cut into chops. There is less waste on this part, and it goes further. Wipe the chops, and chop finely one onion. Put the steppan on to get hot and add a piece of mutton fat to it, and fry the chopped onion. Next brown the chops well, removing the onion previously, as it is apt to burn. Return the onion to the pan, add a breakfast-cupful and a half of boiling water, put on the lid and allow the mutton to simmer slowly for two hours and a half. Scrape a few young carrots, pare a few small turnips, and place these on the top of the stew, and allow about three-quarters of an hour for these, or just until tender. A teaspoonful of well-boiled haricot beans may be put into the stew also, but these may be added just until heated through. Instead of the beans some sprigs of cauliflower may be placed on top and cooked for about twenty minutes. Season all with pepper and salt. Dish the meat and vegetables on an ashet, stir into the gravy a dessertspoonful of moistened flour. Pour the gravy over all. Serve with well-boiled new potatoes cooked with spones.

Steamed Mutton.
Get shoulder of mutton, keep it whole this time; wipe it, and brown it very well all round. Make a breakfast-cupful and a half of gravy with the sediment in the pan. If the gravy is not very brown, add half a teaspoonful of Bovril to it. Wash half a teaspoonful of whole rice, put the rice at the foot of a bowl and on top of rice two or three spones cut up. New place the browned mutton on top, add pepper and salt to season, then pour in the gravy. Pare half a dozen small turnips and scrape some carrots. Put these on the top of the mutton. Tie a cloth over all and steam steadily for three hours. Dish the mutton on a hot ashet, and place the rice and vegetables around. Pour the gravy over all.

High Cost of Cleanliness

The towns of England and Wales spend eight million pounds yearly on the collection and disposal of refuse. Think of it! More than £2,000,000 spent each working day on shifting rubbish! And even this huge sum does not include the money spent on street cleaning and washing, which comes to another four millions a year.

London alone, it appears, removes from its 2,188 miles of streets more than a thousand loads of mud and other refuse daily, though in former days, before motor took the place of horses, the amount was much greater. Indeed, the amount was so great that the weight of mud scraped from London's streets and carried away amounted to nearly 432,000 tons a year, or 200 tons to every mile of street.

In those days the cost of gathering up this mass of refuse was only about £400,000. To-day double the amount is spent to remove a smaller quantity, and after it is removed it has to be loaded into barges and taken a long way out to sea before it can be dumped and got rid of.

The cleaning of towns and streets is, however, a small matter when compared with the cleaning of private houses, hotels, clubs, museums, churches, and so on.

K. of C. Supreme Convention at Duluth

Mr. C. J. Cahill, M.H.A., and Mr. W. T. Jones, Superintendent of the Western Union Cable Co., Bay Roberts, who were attending the 43rd Supreme Convention of the Knights of Columbus, held at Duluth, Minnesota, on August 14th, 15th, 16th and 17th, arrived by last Sunday's express. The Convention was attended by 340 delegates from all the States of America, all the Provinces of Canada, from Mexico, Cuba, Porto Rico, Panama and Newfoundland. The Convention opened on the morning of August 14th, when a big parade was started from convention headquarters. In this all the delegates and visiting members of the Order took part. All the stores, streets, etc., in the entire city were gaily bedecked with bunting for the parade. At 10 o'clock that morning Pontifical High Mass was celebrated in the Duluth Amphitheatre, at which 3,000 persons attended. The celebrant was His Lordship Bishop Joseph G. Pinton, of the Archdiocese of Superior, Wisconsin, and the sermon was delivered by His Grace Archbishop Austin Dowling, of the Archdiocese of St. Paul. The Duluth Council choir, of one hundred voices sang a special Mass written by Bro. Walter Gehard, director of the choir, dedicated to the Knights of Columbus. At 11:30 a.m. a big reception of the delegates was held by Hon. Samuel B. Saintry, Mayor of the City of Duluth, at Duluth Hotel. After this the Convention was opened. One of the principal matters discussed at the convention was "Boy Life," and there was inaugurated a junior organization of the Order, which will be known as the Columbus Squires. This will take in every boy between the ages of 12 and 15 years and they will be especially looked after by trained men who have taken degrees in boy training and boy psychology. A two-year course will be given in the University of Notre Dame, and a number of free scholarships will be given. The convention was addressed by a special delegate from Cardinal Mundelein, of Chicago, in connection with the Eucharistic Congress which will be held in that city next year. At this congress there will be present ten Cardinals from Rome and a special appeal is being made to all Bishops and Priests, as it is hoped to have two million people present at the Congress. One of the delegates to the Convention from Mexico, gave an interesting report of the conditions in that country and showed that the reports appearing in the American newspapers, which are strictly censored by the Mexican Government, are being allowed to pass out, do not give the true facts as to what is really going on in that country in many respects.

The Convention was also addressed by the Commander of the American Legion, an organization which corresponds with the G.W.V.A. in this country. His address was one of thanks for the sum of $50,000 which was donated to the Legion by the Knights of Columbus, when an appeal was made for extra funds to help returned soldiers in the hospitals and in unfortunate circumstances. The address lauded the work the Knights of Columbus are doing in America, from a philanthropic standpoint.

Much other business was done in connection with the order. The Convention Committee of Duluth, has prepared a special programme of entertainment for the delegates and visiting members and their families who were in the city for the Convention. Club privileges were extended by Northland Country Club, Ridgeview Golf Club, Duluth Boat Club, and Duluth Auto Club. The programme included boat trips up the St. Louis River and under the aerial bridge the only one of its kind in the United States. On this trip could be seen the large grain elevators and the great Minnesota Steel Plant. An auto drive along the recently opened two and a half million dollar highway was also on the programme as well as a sight-seeing trip to Minnesota Steel Company at Morgan Park and the model city which the Company has erected there for its employees. There was also a moonlight excursion into the waters of Lake Superior, and there was a sight-seeing trip to Red Point on the Westgate Boulevard. Here could be obtained one of the most wonderful panoramic views. The visitors were also enabled to visit Mesabe Iron Range, where there could be got an idea of the immense mineral wealth of the Arroyhead Country. Special attractions were sea plane trips. The plane was in charge of Lieut. C. F. Brown, U.S.N.M.A., and each flight lasted 25 minutes and covered a distance of 35 miles. A convention carnival dance was held as well as a cabaret night. To those who were able to take in the many attractions, the trip was a most enjoyable one, but the delegates to the Convention were unable to avail of all the privileges, their time being taken up at conferences. Duluth, where the Convention was held, has a population of 110,000 people. Its length is 26 miles and width 1 mile. In the city are many Newfoundlanders and Mr. Cahill met several of them.

TROUBLES OF AN OIL DRILLER.

A petroleum company purchased a piece of land near Ardmore, Oklahoma, and soon found that it covered oil in abundance. The shareholders were delighted and boring went on apace. At 1,600 feet the first well blew out with a rush and a roar, throwing up 110 million cubic feet of gas a day. Every effort was made to shut the gas in, but all in vain, and it is still blowing off furiously. What is worse, so far as the company is concerned, is that it finds itself liable to a fine of $500 a day for "waste of fuel."

The greatest gamble in the world—that is what the experts say about drilling for oil. You may get oil or gas or merely water. And, if you do get oil, it may burst out with such force that it is beyond control. At Baku, on the Caspian Sea, one well when bored hung up oil to twice the height of the Nelson Column in Trafalgar Square. Its output was 11,000 tons a day. An attempt was made to cap it with a tremendous tree-trunk 70 feet in length. This lasted two days, then the plug was blown out. Before the well was controlled, at least a million pounds' worth of oil was wasted.

You can never tell where you may strike oil, or at what depth. It may lie in belts or pools, or be distributed evenly over a large area. It costs about a thousand pounds to put down a bore, and then, when you strike the oil sand, the well may still be dry and you have to put down a big charge of nitro-glycerine with a fuse.

Then, possibly, you get a gusher, and even if you can cap and save the oil, or if you have storage tanks ready, you live in daily fear of fire. A careless smoker, a flash of lightning, and there is a blast.

Little Jack Rabbit by David Cory

Now let me try to remember how we ended the last story. It ended with a splash, so it did, when Teddy Turtle flopped into the Bubbling Brook to try to soak off the red label tag on his back. Gently sinking to the bottom of the little stream, he hid for some time in a bend in the bank. Then rising to the surface, he swam slowly down to the Old Duck Pond. Just as he reached the old log that spanned the Bubbling Brook he should be standing just above him but Little Jack Rabbit. "Is that price tag off my back?" asked Teddy Turtle, anxiously. "Yes, it's gone," answered the bunny boy. "Have you forgotten how you hurt Little Long Bill Wren's wing?" "Yes, you hurt him dreadfully," cawed Professor Jim Crow from a nearby tree. "After such a mean deed you deserve to have your feelings hurt. You weren't worth even ten cents to anyone."

"Dear me," sighed Teddy Turtle, "I'm sorry. Yes, I'm sorry." and down stream he swam to the Old Duck Pond. "Maybe he'll mend his ways," chuckled Professor Jim Crow, as the little rabbit once more hopped along with the yeast cake in his pocket for Lady Love. In a few minutes he was hurrying up the winding path through the bramble bushes to the little white huzgallow. "Here's the yeast cake," the hungry buzzing flies from her neat little kitchen. "What is it?" asked the little rabbit. "Look," answered his pretty bunny mother, and right there on the table was a brand new jack knife. "Oh, Mother," exclaimed the bunny boy. "Just what I wanted." "Ha, ha!" laughed a well-known voice, and up from behind the big armchair popped dear Uncle Lucky, and the next minute his tiny house-keeper, Little Miss Mousie, peeped around from behind the sofa. "More surprises, eh?" enquired the nice old gentleman rabbit. "Goodness, me! Lady Love was so surprised as was her little bunny boy. "How did you get in without my seeing you?" she asked. "Easy enough," answered funny Uncle Lucky, twirling his whiskers. "While you were out on the back porch we slipped in through the front ride in the Luckymobile!" "Dear me," sighed Lady Love. "I was going to bake an angel cake." "Be an angel and let the cake go until to-morrow," suggested wise Uncle Lucky. "Too hot to-day to bake. Come for a cool ride in the Shady Forest." And without more ado Lady Love put on her pinky bonnet with the yellow daisies on it and in a few minutes all four little people were rolling along in the Luckymobile into the next story.

Fads and Fashions

Both wool and silk frocks show the faded skirt. Sports hats continue to be quite comfortably small. Crepe and twill are used together in two-tone effects. Almost every sports frock has a bright-colored tie. Cartridge pleats are a fall trimming note of interest. New among handbags are those that are hand painted.

Brilliant wool tights are worn with darker bathing suits. Embroidered cord in self-color trims a small hat of green. A sports hat of beige velours is trimmed with brown leather. Fall frocks are generally beltless, royal blue is especially good. Novelty sleeves may be wide and quite elaborately embroidered. A great many distinctive fall suits are trimmed with leather. The fall coat-dress may have a slightly circular effect on one side. Black ribbon and binding is used on a small hat of lavender velours. With the V-neckline the narrow scarf with cubistic designs is smart. More recent in fashion's favor than the Spanish type is the "apiko" heel. Charming millinery shades are Burgundy, brilliant blue and magenta. For fall we note a great deal of black with dashes of brilliant color. Bits of colored, modernistic trimmings are used on the new fall sports hats. A leather tie is worn with a sports costume to match the leather trim. A collar of dyed hare is used on a zebra-like coat of beige and brown. Amethyst jewelry is particularly good with the vogue of the pansy shades. Discreetly placed godets, plaits and flounces keep slim lines in fall models. One frock which buttons straight down the front is circular all the way around. Undoubtedly trimming will be transferred to the Luckymobile!

Is There a Gulf Stream?

The great ocean current called the Gulf Stream is a myth, according to Le Danolis, a French oceanographer, who maintains that all the phenomena attributed to it may be better explained by supposing a great seasonal shift of warm tropical waters northward. He supports this thesis in "The Annals of the Oceanographic Institute (Paris). We translate below an abstract and discussion of his theory contributed by Jacques Remerle to Savor (Paris). Writes Mr. Remerle:

"This proposition is surely calculated to astonish the great public. If the Gulf Stream does not exist, it is the complete overturn of all our knowledge of ocean currents acquired since primary school; it is the negation of all information on the subject contained in our atlases. To deny the Gulf Stream requires, on the other hand, the establishment of a new theory to explain certain indisputable facts, such as the carrying of objects across the Atlantic, the dispersion toward European coasts of the larvae of worms born near the Sargasso Sea, and finally the rise of temperature experienced on the coast of Brittany and Cornwall under the influence of the sea waters.

"Much powerful evidence was necessary to make Mr. Le Danolis, who is an oceanographer of ability, doubt the existence of the Gulf Stream. Let us see, first of all, what are the sources of our knowledge of this supposed ocean current, which comes from the Gulf of Mexico, crosses the Atlantic Ocean from southwest to northeast and finally reaches Northern Europe.

"All the manuals of oceanography tell how the Gulf Stream was observed in ancient times by the inhabitants of Scotland and the Scandinavian countries to which this current brought from America the most varied objects—driftwood, seeds, etc.

"To the illustrious Franklin has been attributed the first representation of the Gulf Stream, on a map now justly celebrated. But if we consult Maury's book on winds and currents, we shall see that the first scientific study of the Gulf Stream was made by the captain of a whaler. This was an investigation without much accuracy. Here is what Maury says of it:

"Franklin consulted a Nantucket whaler, then in London, Captain Folger. He, at the doctor's request, traced on a map the course of the Gulf Stream. The curious thing is that this course, thus traced, from memory by the whaling captain, has been kept on our maps up to the present day, without any attempt to correct it.

"Maury took up the investigation with the aid of records on which captains had noted the speed of their voyages, the weather, the wind, the currents and other features. From this assemblage of data was derived our present map of the Gulf Stream. We see it issuing from the Gulf of Mexico at a velocity of six to eight miles an hour, a width of fifty or sixty miles and a thickness of about 3,000 feet. Reaching Newfoundland, its speed has greatly diminished, and at 300 miles to the East is scarcely perceptible. On the other hand, its width has increased to 1,000 miles.

"For the last thirty years innumerable experiments have been made to find out definitely the direction and extent of the Gulf Stream. Floats of different shapes have been used by the Prince of Monaco. The German Krummel employed other methods. During the war, floating mines were observed.

"Such are the facts on which modern oceanography relies for its knowledge of the course of the Gulf Stream. Mr. Le Danolis finds them clearly insufficient. In the first place, the Gulf Stream is by definition a surface current. Now navigators know that every night the temperature of the surface water falls several degrees. As the supposed Gulf Stream flows northward, it is then hard to believe that it may retain its heat from the Gulf of Mexico to Spitzbergen.

"As for the observation of floats, every oceanographer knows that surface waters are influenced by weather conditions. Even objects floating at a slight depth under water obey the winds more than they do the currents.

"Krummel's map is very characteristic from this point of view. Although a few floats may have crossed the Atlantic, most of them made more complex voyages, doubling on their tracks and even returning to their starting-point, without following any simple law.

"Most of the Prince of Monaco's floats were retrieved at the Azores, not far from where he let them go. A dozen at most reached Ireland, Scotland and Norway.

ent as expected, but near Lisbon. In fine, if we relied on these experiments and observations, we should be led to imagine an inverse Gulf Stream, leading from North to South, and from European coasts to the Azores.

"Let us now see what theory Mr. Le Danolis proposes as a consequence of his cruises in the Gulf of Gascony in 1921, 1922 and 1923.

"We must go back to geologic times to understand that the present Atlantic Ocean contains two kinds of waters, absolutely different and never mixing. One kind is warm and very salt; it occupies the center of the ocean in equatorial regions. The other is cold and of inferior salinity. There are, in fact, equatorial waters and arctic waters.

"The equatorial waters do not remain in tropical regions. They are yearly displaced toward the north, and then retire to their starting point. The phenomenon is comparable to an immense tide. This movement causes: (1) an accentuation of the ordinary tides; (2) a rise of temperature in water and air along the coasts of Northern Europe; (3) fluctuations in the appearance of migratory fish, such as the herring and the sardine.

"Now these facts seem to have been well substantiated, the run of herring, for instance, may be predicted along its chief lines, by reference to the periodic rhythm of the ocean movements, several years in advance.

"It may be easily seen what service may be rendered to the fisheries by a study of the summer oceanic movements. Charts indicate, what limits were reached by the warm salt water. It is evident that the shifting of the ocean waters is able to carry with it floats and to imitate a real ocean current. Let us not forget, nevertheless—and we must thank Mr. Le Danolis for calling our attention to it—that the shifting is seasonal, beginning in April and ending in September. It does not last all the year. It is not then an ocean current of constant direction. In winter its direction is reversed, flowing from north to south and the warm salt water then returns to the starting-point whence it set out in the previous spring."

Prospero Returns From North

S.S. Prospero, Capt. Wesley Kean, returned from the northern coastal service at 6 o'clock this morning, bringing a full cargo of fish and oil, besides the following saloon passengers: Messrs. Root, Toop, Hibbard, Clothier, Roebig; Masters Hartigan, Pike, Ford, Dr. Sullivan, Carbage, Strong, Murrell, Capt. Campbell (S. A.) Hyde, Rev. Templeton, Masters Winsor (3) Rev. Fenwick, Forsay, Fowlow, Milfin, Rowell, Salter, Miller, Spurrell, Grouchy, Medames, Plyer, Lewis, Hatfield, Esekiel, Dwyer, Gardner, Knell, Reader, Bourne, White (2), Dewey, Pottie, Joy, Ploughman, Field, Green, Fowlow, Sutton, Cotter; Misses Piercey, Tallant, Conway, Jackman, Boone, Thomas (2), Lieut. Elswort (S.A.), Lieut. Hall (S.A.), Peckford, Earle, Hyde, LeDrew, Mullett, Bourne, Oakley (2), Dewey, Winsor, Penney, Pottie, Sheppard, Adey, Miller, Stancome, Cocker, Field (2), Thomas, Salt, O'Brien, Milfin (2), Croke, Connors, Lacey, Murphy, (2), O'Grady, Costello, Gosse, Barnes, Heather, Redmond, Holland, Ivany, Miller, Husk, Thorne. The Prospero made all ports of call both going and returning, accomplishing the round trip in thirteen days. Capt. Kean reports fine weather was met with on the run north, but delay was caused on returning due to a succession of fogs, which has seldom been experienced. The large number of round trippers on board including six American tourists, enjoyed every moment of the passage, much of their time being taken up with concerts, dances, and other forms of amusements. Capt. Kean states there is not much improvement in the fishery along the coast, except between Fisrol Island and Cook's Harbor, where hook and liners have been doing exceptionally well. The fishermen are returning with full boat loads daily, and with the fall fishing in sight the people in this neighborhood expect to have a bumper voyage. A large number of floats from the Labrador have returned with full loads. Ambrose Kean and Solomon White, fishing at Belle Isle, were spoken to at St. Anthony with their vessels log loaded, having between 1300 and 1400 qts. each. Owing to the vessels being heavily laden, it has been found necessary to nurse them along. Most of the floats are bound to Green Bay, Westleyville and points in Trinity Bay. Capt. Kean also states that the trap fishing, in now over on the coast, all traps have been taken in. The weather is now moderate and quite ideal for good fishing with hook and line. Coming south good fishing was reported at Seldom and Cape Fogo, a large number of boats being out. The trap fishing from Williamsport to St. Julien's for a stretch of eighty miles has been practically a blank. The fish is now reported in deep water, and with the weather moderating the fishermen operating in these waters

PRESIDENT DECLARES SOCIETY WILL STAND BEHIND UNION JACK.
CALGARY, Alta., Aug. 14.—"We will stand for no interference with the Union Jack. We were born under it, 8,300 of our boys enlisted under it and 800 of them laid down their lives for it, and we expect to die under it ourselves."
Thus George Davenport, president of the Sons of England Benevolent Society, summed up the attitude of the society to the proposal to have a new Canadian flag, when interviewed recently.

In regard to having a dual language, Mr. Davenport refused to speak officially, saying that personally he had no objections as he had lived for years alongside the French where the dual language was used and had found it satisfactory.

Yacht Zodiac Finds no Trace of Missing Crew

The yacht Zodiac, Capt. Norman Ross, after spending a few days in Curling on her return trip from north, proceeded to New York. The Zodiac was as far north as Baffin Land in search of trace of Washburn Nutting and the little craft, Leif Erickson. The trip was an unsuccessful one. It was on 10th August, 1924, that Washburn Nutting of New York, editor of Motor Boatting, together with Arthur S. Hildebrand, John Fowdahl, both of New York, and Bjarne Fleischer, of Oslo, Norway, sailed from Reykjavik, Iceland, in the 40-foot craft Leif Erickson to follow the trail of the Vikings to Baddeck, N.S. Nothing has been heard of them since.

Capt. Norman Ross, who is in command of the Zodiac, is a large man in every way, as the Atlantic fisherman puts it. He is well known throughout the Bay of Islands and along the West Coast of Newfoundland, having for a number of years visited here in connection with the herring fishery. He is a native of Guysboro, N.S., but went to Gloucester when only sixteen years of age. Captain and Mrs. Ross have a family of five. The baby of the family is a girl of nine years. The oldest is a girl of twenty-two, who is training as a nurse. Another twenty-one, who is a physical instructor, the eldest boy, nineteen, is at college, another seventeen and a girl fourteen are at school.

Empire Trade

So much has been written with regard to the various units of the British Empire giving preference to each others trade and so little accomplished, that one almost feels before starting to write on the subject that it is only a case of throwing more good ink after bad, and still there must be a solution somewhere to this problem, surely men, and women of the Empire can in some manner see or begin to see the vital necessity of buying as far as possible. Empire produced goods. It is a fundamental law that we help those in whom we have an interest, and surely by this time all those who live within the borders of the far spread Empire must realize that we have a deep and lasting interest in that Empire. True all British people are more or less careless with regard to their attitude towards the Empire, and seem to be to a large extent willing to forget that it exists unless some great danger arises to threaten its security. Yet in the present time of stress, and trouble when Britain is struggling under her frightful load of debt, and internal troubles of all kinds this nonchalant attitude is decidedly "not good enough."

We do not advocate Pan Empireism (if we may use the term) in fact we greatly doubt the possibility of any scheme that would have for its object trading entirely within the Empire and shutting out the rest of the world, except for such commodities as could not be obtained within the Empire, but we are firm believers in a scheme of trading whereby Britishers the world over would benefit themselves, and the empire, and consequently civilization by buying MORE BRITISH GOODS. The ordinary citizen for instance requires a tin of shoe polish, a box of candy, a pair of shoes, and he goes forth to purchase it. You say if the article is good, and the price right that's where his responsibility ends, but does it? To us it seems that his responsibility just begins there. After he has ascertained the price, and tested the quality, his very next question should be how many Britishers has this given work to? Has money been put into circulation in this Colony or within the Empire on account of this article being manufactured there or is it made in some country thousands of miles away in which you cannot possibly have an interest? A little careful thinking along these lines would result in a vast amount of Empire trading being done, and the present trade depression in British, and her Colonies would not exist. How is it yet ask that a Britisher will buy American or German or French made goods right off a counter where British goods of at least equal quality are displayed and at competitive price? The answer in our opinion is their education has been neglected. One does not take a man of sixty who has no education, and try to teach him the alphabet. True it can be done, but it is far harder to teach anything to a man at that age than it is to teach it to a child of six or eight or ten years, and so it is with Empire trading. The necessity, of always giving preference to British goods, etc., must be instilled into the young minds of the children. They must be taught the need there is in the Empire for their support, and their cooperation. They must be taught to see in each British article displayed for sale a link that helps to bind the Empire together, and they must be taught that they are doing their duty only when they have inquired at the shop counter, is this Empire made? and insisted where ever possible that they be given British goods. Trade pacts, and reciprocity agreements would then in our opinion be quite unnecessary.

Sugar From Sunlight

A SCIENTIST'S NOVEL TEST.

How sugar forms in the beetroots, sugar cane, or maple tree has long been a mystery. It is known that sunlight is necessary to enable plants to convert the gases of the atmosphere into starch and sugar, and recent successful experiments by Professor Baly, of Liverpool, who has produced sugar artificially, are likely to open the way to important developments.

Some time ago he noticed that when the strong light from an electric lamp, such as is used in cinema studios, was allowed to fall upon a stream of carbonic acid gas, a certain amount of a well-known disinfectant gas was produced which turned into sugar when dissolved in water.

The quantity of sugar formed in this way was very small, and it was found that the violet rays of differing wave-lengths, some of which assisted while others interfered with the formation of the sugar. Addition of ordinary powdered chalk to the water, however, neutralized this action and produced more sugar.

Artificial Sunshine.

Experiments were now conducted on a larger scale in a rectangular glass tank fifteen inches square and eight inches deep, with small holes in each side. Having found that the imitation sunlight gave the disinfectant gas, Professor Baly omitted this step and filled the tank with a solution of the gas in water. In the middle of the tank an electrically driven fan was fitted so that the powdered chalk, which was then added, was stirred vigorously. Lamps were inserted into each of the holes in the tank and light allowed to play on the solution.

After fourteen days' continuous exposure to the artificial sunlight, a yield of 8 per cent. of sugar was obtained, and after the liquid had been purified and concentrated a sweet syrup was left.

Although the process is expensive, it is expected that it will be cheapened in the near future.

Asquith's Motto Causing Trouble

LONDON, Aug. 10.—Earl Asquith's phrase is causing more trouble. He selected as a motto for his coat of arms "Eius Magna Maestas," which is variously interpreted here as "Record without stain," or "Army without stain," or "Dignity without spot," but it is asserted he borrowed the motto from the arms of Clough of Llwyn Of, a family of Wales founded by Sir Richard Clough, Knight of the Holy Sepulchre, and a partner of Sir Thomas Gresham, who created the Royal Exchange about the middle of the sixteenth century.

It was contended Mr. Asquith borrowed his title from the Earl of Oxford, which caused a furor at the time, and now another controversy is in prospect.

Hints for Your Home

A few drops of ammonia added to the water when washing flannel and woolen garments will help to make them soft and keep them a good colour.

Soak decanters for some hours in warm soda and water. If they are of cut glass, a brush will be necessary to remove the dirt and stains from the crevices. Cut a raw potato into small pieces, put a handful into the decanter with some warm water, and shake briskly until the stains disappear. Then rinse in clean cold water.

To clean a copper kettle that has been blackened by fire, first wash well with soap and soda water. Then make a paste of knife powder and paraffin, and scour well. Two or three cleanings may be necessary.

Insects That Guard Treasures

An old Mexican gold mine, all trace of which had been lost for more than a hundred years, has been rediscovered in a curious manner.

It was one of the many prolific sources of treasure worked by the Spanish adventurers in the day of Cortes, and had been given the name of the Cockroach Mine on account of the large numbers of these insects that infested its immediate neighbourhood. It was afterwards sealed up and its site forgotten.

Recently, after the lapse of more than a century, a prospector in the district, noticing a rock swarming with cockroaches, remembered the story, followed the trail of the insects, and found the mine, which is again being worked.

Defied by Scorpions. Strangely enough, there is in Mexico another ancient mine known to only a few Indians and to one or two white prospectors, who have been lucky enough to return unscratched from the region.

This mine is situated in the mountain near Durango, and still bears traces of the operations conducted by the long-dead race whose civilization was hardly less advanced than our own.

The Spaniards in their turn made attempts to raise the precious ore, specimens of which have proved the mine to be the richest of its kind in the world, but the chief obstacle in the way of further development is a vast horde of death-dealing scorpions which swarm in the workings.

Premature Old Age of Women

It is no secret that so many women suffer from ailments peculiar to their sex. Dark circles appear under the eyes, a pale, drawn, haggard expression to the countenance, and the weakness which accompanies such ailments is evidenced by the lagging step, headaches, backache and nervous conditions. Every woman who is afflicted in this way should rely upon Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound which for half a century has been overcoming some of the most stubborn ailments of women.

Foreigners in France

Mr. Schrameck, France's Minister of the Interior recently stated that he intends to ask parliament for funds to enable him to create and maintain a special corps of police inspectors for the surveillance of foreigners in France. According to advice received by the Bankers Trust Company of New York from its French Information Service Mr. Schrameck states that the number of foreigners, which was 1,732,868 in 1914, had risen to 2,574,963 at the beginning of the present year. This number is so great that methodical control is impossible with the present strength of the police, and it has become necessary to appoint a corps of trained men acquainted with foreign languages and customs. He estimates the cost at 1,500,000 francs a year. Mr. Schrameck adds that there was not the slightest intention of interfering with respectable foreigners, who, he was convinced, would be the first to approve of measures for the control of undesirable.

Poached Fish

Poaching is one of the most delicious ways of cooking small filets of fish.

Have a very clean baking-pan or shallow saucepan, grease it and lay in the filets of fish, seasoning them with pepper and salt and a little lemon juice.

Barely cover the filets with fish stock or water, put a greased paper over, and cook in the oven or on top of the stove till ready—a few minutes will be quite sufficient.

Then remove the fish carefully, draining it well, and use the liquid to make a sauce for coating it.

comes along occasionally, whether we like it or not. But few people realize just how many thunder-storms there are every year in the world.

From records taken over a number of years at over 3,000 stations, together with observations made on board ship, it is calculated that on an average, there are sixteen thunder-storms over every 200 square miles of the earth's surface annually.

This means that the world's daily ration of thunder is 44,000 storms. If each of these storms lasts an hour, there are 1,800 thunderstorms in progress in different parts of the world at any given moment.

The approximate number of flashes of lightning that goes to a severe thunderstorm in temperate climes or to an average storm in the tropics, is 200 per hour. In a London suburb, during a thunderstorm, 33 flashes were counted in twenty-eight minutes. So the world's lightning for one hour works out at 36,000 flashes, and the average number of flashes per second is a hundred.

Artificial Gold

He used a very intense electric field to create a shock in the nucleus of the atoms. By subjecting mineral oils not containing oxygen to a concentrated discharge with mercury and tungsten wire as electrodes, and using an induction coil with a spark of twenty-five metres in length, the mercury was converted first into small drops and then into a black pasty mass, the oil being split up into carbon and organic gases.

On the distillation of the oil and mercury, and the burning of the carbon, a residue was obtained containing small particles of gold and a white metal composed chiefly of silver. The Japanese scientist declared that research was essentially his scientific aim, but he admitted the possibility that later on the process might be industrialized.

EVERYBODY THAT REALIZES that Great interest is being taken in dietetics and medicinal dietetics by scientists, and is being produced into England by Dr. Fenton, a well-known sportsman, who broke the world's record running on the Beach. "Known provisionally as 'Fenton's Drink,' the beverage is a mixture of ordinary aerated water which is added half a teaspoonful of sugar and half a teaspoonful of whole being well stirred.

A Magic Drink

WHETHER THAT REALLY REVIVES. Great interest is being shown by athletes and medical authorities, as well as by scientists, in a beverage introduced into England by Mr. Arthur Newton, a well-known South African athlete, who broke the world's record for running on the Brighton Road. Known provisionally as the "magic drink" the beverage consists of half a pint of ordinary aerated lemonade, to which is added half a tumblerful of sugar and half a teaspoonful of salt, the whole being well stirred.

The drink has been tried with remarkable effects on a number of athletes. In the London to Brighton walk for the blind patients at St. Dunstan's, the winner, when about six miles from the winning post, began to reel in an alarming fashion and seemed on the point of collapsing. Banishing That Tired Feeling. Mr. Joe Binks, the ex-mile record holder, administered the "magic drink," whereupon the walker astounded everything by striding out with all the energy he had displayed on starting, and winning the walk in hand-some fashion. Many even more startling cases have been noted. A possible explanation of the marvellous recuperative potency of the drink is to be found in the fact that excessive perspiration brings about a diminution of the salt in the blood. Tests are now being carried out in connection with various types of athletes, as well as miners and other kinds of workers. The results are awaited with the keenest interest, for it is not unlikely that the experiments will bring about the elimination of the fatigue, and its after-effects, that has for so long been the bane of every kind of strenuous sport and occupation.

Questions Worth Answering

Why Does a Dog Tuck Its Tail Between Its Legs When Afraid?

When the tail is tucked in, the ears are also lowered, the whole instinct being probably to withdraw as much of the body as possible from the threatened danger.

According to scientists, this tendency is inherited from primitive times. One animal, for creatures other than dogs do it, was hit or bitten or otherwise injured from behind, and transmitted to his descendants the impulse to withdraw the tail, to shrink himself into as little compass as he could. And the impulse has lasted through the ages.

The tail-tucking business is thus really akin to the action of the tortoise which, when alarmed, shrivels himself up into the protection of his shell.

What is a "Civil" Engineer?

Originally this term was used in a "non-military" sense. The first engineers were those employed upon engines of war, fortresses, military roads, and the like. When the great cities of modern civilization began to assume their present importance, and civil works affecting the community, such as aqueducts, highways and railways, became paramount, the term "civil engineer" came into being.

With the growth of invention, however, civil engineering became split up into branches, thus to-day we have the mechanical engineer, the electrical engineer, the marine engineer, each specialising in some particular subject.

The "civil engineer" proper, therefore, has acquired a technical meaning rather apart from these. He is not so much concerned with machinery as with the uses to which it can be put, and his real interest is constructional.

He might be described as an engineering architect, for when we speak of the civil engineer we are generally thinking of the expert consultant to whom we entrust the planning of a bridge, a harbor, a reservoir, or some such work.

Why Do We Speak of An Unpleasant Dream as a "mare"?

The "mare" of this term has nothing at all to do with horses, and is derived from "mara," a very old word for what we now call a hobgoblin.

In the old days the theory of dreams of terror was that they were caused by the weight of an actual demon—the "mara"—pressing on the sleeper's chest.

To-day, we have forgotten all about the demon, but we still keep the word, and have turned it into our night-"mare."

What, in Cricket, is a "Googly"?

When we speak of a ball "breaking," we mean that on leaving the bowler's hand it is given such a spin that on touching the ground it breaks away from its straight "bounce." Ordinarily, a batsman can generally tell from the bowler's action which way the ball will break, but with the "googly," the break will be in the opposite direction to that apparently indicated by the bowler's delivery, the strategy being managed by a sudden alteration in the swing of his arm.

From where the word originates we do not know. It may be a purely "made-up" word to express a sort of freak, or as some have thought, it may come from a Dutch word which means to "juggle."

What is a "Graving" Dock?

Practically speaking, this means a dry dock, where a ship can be overhauled. Whether it is the ordinary dock in a harbour, or one of the huge floating dry docks which can be taken to sea, when once the vessel is floated in, the water can be pumped out, leaving the ship high and dry.

The old object of the dry dock was simply to allow the ship's bottom to be scraped of barnacles and weeds, and some think that the term "graving" comes from this process, an old word for the tallowing that used to follow the scraping, being "gravinging."

Why Are Certain Alliments Common to Most Children?

By the mere fact of having an illness we tend in general to make ourselves more or less immune for the future from that particular ailment. What happens is that as soon as the hostile germ attacks our body, the system instantly calls forth a whole army of friendly germs to fight the intruder.

When the friendly germs have won and we have recovered, they do not immediately demolish. They remain in our system perhaps for years as a standing guard against that special ailment.

The child, however, has no army of friendly germs. He hasn't been attacked before, and so falls an easy victim to the germs of measles, scarlet fever and the commoner ailments.

The adult has probably had these illnesses, and is therefore possibly immune in later life. But even if he has never had them, his body and tissues are harder and stronger, thus helping to throw off the ailment.

Why do People in Different Parts of England Speak Different Dialects?

"English" as we call it is really a blend of several languages, just as the English people are really a blend of several nations.

Our "good English" is the blended and polished result of the many old dialects. At different times our country has been the scene of invasions. The Danes overran parts of the North, the Saxons parts of the East, the Jutes the South, and so on, while on the borders of Wales and Scotland, the survivors of the old Celts were found in strength. Later, too, the country was conquered by the Norman-French.

Now as each invader brought his own language, we find bits of country more influenced by one speech than another. As in those days there was practically no communication, it might happen that while one dialect held in one valley, the folk across the neighbouring range of hills spoke in quite a different fashion. It was these factors that built up our local dialects.

The "good English" as spoken by educated people came much later, being influenced by the fashion of speaking at the Universities and Courts; but it is the dialects that are really the older speech.

The Sea Lords

The members of the Admiralty Board were first called Sea Lords about 1618; but some 120 years ago the term Naval Lords was preferred.

It was Lord Fisher who altered it back to Sea Lords in 1904. The position of these officers differs slightly from that of their comrades in the other Services. This is because the Navy is not, like the Army or Air Force, in the charge of a Secretary of State, but is governed in theory by a Lord High Admiral, whose office has been continuously in commission since 1708, except for a brief period when it was filled by the Duke of Clarence, later William IV., who had received a naval training.

Importance of Forest Conservation

DR. SWAINE ADDRESSES ROTARY CLUB

At yesterday's luncheon of the St. John's Rotary Club, Chairman Rotarian "Jim" Mackenzie introduced Dr. J. M. Swaine, Associate Dominion Entomologist of Ottawa, who gave a most instructive and interesting address on the Importance of Forest Protection. Dr. Swaine's address is as follows:—

Forest conservation has come to be a great national problem in both Canada and the United States. Years ago in both these countries the forests were considered to be inexhaustible and the timber was destroyed ruthlessly year by year without any consideration whatsoever for its conservation or for its reproduction. In Canada, we have at last come to realize almost too late that our original vast supply of timber has become depleted to an alarming degree. The enormous forests of red and white pine, the finest timber trees of the East, are gone forever. There are two large areas of original white and red pine left in Eastern Canada. Our stock of large white and red pine timber and even our supply of spruce and fir pulpwood have been reduced to a degree that is positively alarming.

What has been the cause of such a wholesale destruction? Fires, hundreds upon hundreds of fires, year after year, in our big woods. Lumber cutting year after year followed too often by continuous fires which have destroyed all possibility of timber for hundreds of years to come. Insects and fungous diseases; several great insect outbreaks have swept our forests both in the East and in the West and destroyed our pulpwood to an almost unbelievable degree. I should like to speak only briefly of these insect devastations. A generation ago the larch or tamarac sawfly, a leaf eating insect imported from Europe, swept our Eastern Canada and killed almost all the larch in all that area. It is now spreading westward of the prairies and has reached British Columbia.

During the last twenty years, extensive outbreaks of bark beetles have destroyed quantities of our most valued pine in the east and yellow, white and logpole pines, Douglas fir and spruce in British Columbia.

Fifteen years ago a tremendous outbreak of defoliatory caterpillars known as the spruce bud worm swept over the Province of Quebec, New Brunswick and the State of Maine, destroying vast quantities of fir and red pine. It has been estimated that upwards of 200 million cords of pulpwood were killed in that great outbreak. Think of it! Enough pulpwood to have supplied our pulp and paper mills for more than a generation.

Is it any wonder that the Canadian Government has a staff of specialists who devote all their time to the investigation of forest evils and in devising methods for their prevention and curtailment? Is it surprising that Canadian lumbermen have now as much respect for insects as they have for forest fires? I do not wish to give the impression that we have no timber left in Canada, we still have a very large amount, and a great and prosperous industry of which we are very proud, but consider the vast additional supply that has been utterly destroyed! Forest insects have probably killed as much timber as have forest fires.

The survey of the first insect condition in Newfoundland, has necessarily been only brief, but I can give you a fairly accurate statement of present conditions. You have in this country a defoliating caterpillar known as the Fir Looper. The adult insect is a moth which flies readily in late summer and deposits eggs on the fir.

The caterpillars appear in the following spring and feed upon the needles of the fir and also on spruce. When the trees are completely defoliated they die out rapidly; when partly defoliated they wither in proportion to the amount of foliage destroyed—severe defoliation for several years kills the large proportion of the timber. The destructive outbreaks develop apparently, only in stands containing a high percentage of fir, but spruce trees mixed in with the fir are also seriously injured or killed.

These outbreaks appear in cycles with an unknown period of years intervening. They last for several years and are finally brought to a close through the operation of natural control factors such as parasitic insects, fungi, bacteria or by unfavourable weather conditions or by starvation through the death of all the fir.

During the years 1912 to 1915 there were a series of destructive outbreaks of this character covering in all very many square miles in the middle and western parts of this island. I have recently examined one of these areas and although the outbreak lasted only two or three years, controlled probably by one of the agencies above mentioned, practically all of a twenty cord stand of the fir was killed. Just how extensive these outbreaks may have been I do not know but they were large enough to teach the timber owners of this island that they have to deal with a forest insect danger that can be as destructive on occasions as a great forest fire.

This Fir Looper works in a similar way to our Canadian Spruce Bud-whole area—the result would be serious enough. Even at the present time there is sufficient dead wood on Nagle's Hill to constitute a very serious fire hazard; an actual menace to the safety of this city.

There is another phase of this situation. You will surely have a great tourist invasion before many years. Consider their first impression as they look out over the neighbouring country. Instead of the present beautiful landscape—marred already by large dead areas—there would be a dead wreck of a forest covering the whole opposite slope, dead and broken and ugly beyond expression.

The dead wood on Nagle's Hill should be removed this winter and utilized for fire wood or otherwise. If this outbreak continues longer the additional dead trees should be removed each season. These areas will be covered again very rapidly with a growth of young trees and if fire is prevented the beauty of the landscape would not be greatly marred.

The direct control of this outbreak could be effected only through the employment of measures too expensive for consideration in the present instance. The Spruce Bark Beetle is epidemic to this region. It is gradually killing out the large white and red spruce, and if it is permitted to develop unchecked, it may be expected that the greatest part of these beautiful trees will be killed.

The large, dead, beetle-killed spruce are continually seen, and the beetles are now to be found working in the bark of fresh trees. Although these freshly infected trees are already dying, they are distinguished from healthy trees only by a yellow tinge in foliage. Small masses of gum, studded over the bark of the trunk by the beetles and their grubs, is disclosed in the inner bark of the trunk where the latter is removed.

The beetles will remain this winter in the bark of the trees they have attacked this season. The outbreak may be checked very effectively this winter through concerted action of property owners in removing the infected trees and utilizing their wood to destroy the broods contained in the bark before the end of next May. Control measures conducted by individual property owners would be helpful but their groves would be subject to reinfestation from surviving neglected areas. Information respecting the details of the control measures may be obtained from the Department of Agriculture and Mines.

There are two important forest insect outbreaks in progress in the neighbourhood of this city caused by the Fir Looper and the Spruce Bark Beetle. The Looper outbreak in Nagle's Hill has been in progress for at least five years and already a large part of the larger fir has been killed. The brown areas are composed of dead trees, mostly fir with a few spruce intermixed. The yellowish areas surrounding the dead patches indicate severe defoliation by the caterpillars during this present season. Three weeks ago when Mr. English and I were working in that area all the fir woods visible from this city was literally crawling with caterpillars. Now they have all disappeared. Many of them have gone into pupation and from them the moths will soon appear to deposit eggs for next year's caterpillars. Many have died from Fungous and bacterial diseases.

The defoliation appears to have been somewhat less severe this year than last, and large numbers of caterpillars have died from various causes. It is possible that the period of greatest injury has passed and that this cannot be determined definitely at the present moment, but when the moths appear within the next two weeks, it may be possible to forecast next season's conditions. If this outbreak should continue for several more years at its present severity it would undoubtedly kill nearly all this fir and some of the spruce visible from this city. The whole country is infested between the Golf course and Mount Pearl Station. Suppose for a moment that this should occur, and that the whole hill side be covered as it is now in part, with a dead forest broken ugly and dying timber. If a fire should get headway in such a fire trap with a strong wind behind it, blowing in this direction with flaming bark and twigs streaming over this

The Oldest Bridge

What is described as the most important prehistoric find of recent years is reported from Koerde, near Dortmund.

It is a perfectly preserved wooden footbridge, which had obviously been used to enable Ice-Age Man to cross a marshy river bed.

Professor C. Gabel, estimates the bridge's age at about 50,000 years—ten times as old as the Pyramids—and says that the high technical skill and intelligence which are displayed in its making must lead archaeologists to revise their judgment of prehistoric man's capacity.

Science is confronted with a complete riddle as to how the Ice Age inhabitants could have turned out so skilled a piece of carpentry by means only of implements made from the teeth of mammoths.

From the care and trouble which the prehistoric carpenter took over the use of the wood in the bridge's construction—using it to the utmost advantage—Professor Gabel concludes that as long as 50,000 years ago man was getting scarce in Western Germany.

Sentenced to Church

Our modern system of fines may be more civilized than some of the methods used by our ancestors to deter people from following certain bad precedents, but are they as effective?

For instance, we read that a butcher stood in the pillory of Southwark for selling bad meat, while the meat was buried to windward of him. A vintner had a part of his bad wine poured over his head, and he was forced to drink the rest.

In a decree issued in France a few centuries ago it is directed that "a funnel shall be placed in the mouth of any man or woman convicted of selling watered milk, and that the said alleged milk shall be poured down said funnel, until such time as a doctor shall declare the culprit incapable of swallowing any more without danger of death."

For breaches of the law against selling liquor during prohibited hours, three Canadian saloon-keepers were sentenced by the mayor of the town to attend church every Sunday. Every Monday they were ordered to go before the Mayor and present certificates from the preachers certifying that they had been present.

WHY TAKE A CHANCE?

Who knows when the next injury may occur? Who can foretell what the next accident may mean? What man can guarantee to himself that he will not spend days or weeks or months in bed, due to an accident? Accidents occur every hour of the day. It may be YOUR turn to-morrow! A fee of $10.00 paid now will cover you for a full year to the extent of $3,000 main sum and $10.00 weekly benefit.

We have already paid over $116,000,000.

Trans-Atlantic
Air Route Coming

New Service Has Oral Support of President Coolidge.

London, Aug. 10.—Plans for a commercial trans-Atlantic air service, featuring monster triplants propelled by three 450-horsepower engines, which are said to have the oral support of President Coolidge and the United States Navy Department, were disclosed here Saturday by Joseph Navarro, well-known aircraft designer. Mr. Navarro said that he had informed the President in the scheme and that Mr. Coolidge had brought the matter to the attention of naval officials and that the latter had written him promising all the help they could give him. The planes have a span of 185 feet.

One of the nine 450-horsepower Napier Lion engines will be placed in the nose of the machine. The other eight will be fitted, four on each side in tandem. One of each pair will act as a tractor, the other as a pusher.

With each pair of engines there will be an engine room, with quarters for an engineer in charge. Mr. Navarro's idea is to have twelve engineers on each plane who will relieve each other at eight-hour intervals. A crew of 38 men will handle each plane. This will include two captains, two navigators and pilots.

In the centre there will be a large passage with two decks, on each of which will be a saloon 45 feet long and nine feet high. A lounge stairway in the middle will connect the upper and lower decks.

The planes will have a dining room, electric kitchen, and sleeping cabins. Stewards and stewardesses will be carried on all trips.

The cost of each machine is estimated by Mr. Navarro to be about $750,000. He figures that he will need a capital of $10,000,000 to launch the scheme, with another $20,000,000 later on. The passenger capacity of each machine will be 150 persons. Mr. Navarro said, however, that with 75 aboard, the fare for a trip to New York will be as low as $25. The time for the journey is placed at 35 hours.

The Evil Depends Upon Its Use

The thing most people stumble over in this world is money. In itself money is never wrong; we make it wrong by applying it to the wrong use. Long years ago it was said that "The love of money is the root of all evil." If you come to consider it, most of the trouble in the world is caused through money being abused or by a deep craving for it. People, either have too much or too little.

Never believe the man who says: "I don't live for money; I don't care for it." He is not true to himself. Either he has sufficient or he is certain of a free and easy life. Too many pleasant things and experiences can be obtained by money for any of us to despise it. We all want it; if we have it we desire more.

And, of course, there is nothing wrong in endeavouring to get it. The wrong comes when we want more than our duty and in order to get it we do things which are unworthy. It is that sort of selfish practice that makes men say: "It's a day you can't be honest."

Then there are, for instance, speech and sport and love. Does it always pay to be right there? Being is president. Sport is damaged by an unhealthy professionalism. Divorces sometimes make a laughing-stock of love matters. Often it does seem as though

Truth is even on the scaffold. Wrong for ever of the throne.

Then one remembers that there is "God within the shadows."

"A man may gain the world by the wrong doing, but he will lose his soul all the same. At the last we shall see that it matters in whether we have done right; not our smartness or social standing. Unhappy endings to life are caused by the recollection of fraud and deceit, and the game is not worth the candle. Let no one persuade you otherwise that, finally, truth and goodness and virtue must win. It is better seemingly to lose with right than appear to win with the coward. We must be as

One who never turned his back but marched breast forward. Never doubted clouds would break. Never dreamed, though right were wrong, wrong would triumph. Field we fall to rise, are hamed to fight better.

Sleep to wake.

Fifteen Years for a Drink

It has just been disclosed that in the war a sentry at Packpool Fort, near Rye, placed his rifle against the wall while he went to get a drink. The rifle was observed through a searchlight by the authorities at Portsmouth, five miles away. A telephone message was sent to the fort. The sentry was court-martialed and sentenced to fifteen years' penal servitude.
