The Kingston City Conneil has refused to send the Mayor to Cattier's funeral. This coming from Sir John's pet constituency has a rather ominous appearance and suggests the question: Have Sir John's constituents lost confidence in him? Sir John determined to perform Sir Geo. Cartier's obscules at the public expense, and one would have thought that if Sir John is still the popular manh e once was in Kingston, that city would at least have shown its respect for him by sending a representative to the funeral of his late colleague and "tower of strength."

Sir John will have to attend to the members of the Council as he did to Carruthers on the hustings last summer. The seventh annual Pic-Nic in aid of the Aged and Orphans in St. Joseph's Hospital, Guelph, will be held in the

GREAT COMMOTION IN THE DRY GOODS TRADE

and a Tremendous Rush at our Mantle and Millinery Rooms.

On all hands we hear of dull trade: "Nothing doing," says Tom, Dick, and Harry, but it is not so at THE LION

Times better than ever.
Still great bustle and activity at the leading house. The spring trade is opening beautifully, thus encouraging us to greater endeavors in the public weal; and the reason of our success is apparent. Our Goods are all direct from the manufactory, and none can do a successful business only those who buy from first hands, for which our Establishment has long been noted, and has raised the standard of our House (combined with the energy of the proprietors of the firm) to the present proud position, and more especially for the last two years, so that our daily sales are almost equal to the combined trade of the same character in the Town of Guelph.

OUR MILLINERY DEPARTMENT

Our Millinery is a complete success this spring, the taste inherent displayed by Miss McDonald is captivating all hearts, and places her high in the ranks of first-class Milliners. Combined with the genuine popularity of Miss Sutherland, thus making our rooms the centre of attraction.

5 cases New Hats and Bonnets, registered styles, secured only for our House; 3 cases, third lot, of those splendid Black Silk Parasols, supplied with the double sword---the only ones in Guelph. $4,000 WORTH of New Plain and Shot Silks, lovely shades, combining all the latest tints, amongst them will be found many of the new azorean green, real

THE TEMPTATION.

CHAPTER XXIII.

ANNABEL'S WANDERINGS, AND HOW THEY ENDED.

On, on she went, weary now and exhausted, her poer timbs—shaking under her, breath nearly spent. Often did she send a wistful gaze to every side in hope of seeing a light gleaning from some cottage window, or of descrying the dark cutline of a human dwelling. But in vaid. Everywhere was blackness and solitude, and there was nothing for it but to totter forward on her unknown way. How long she wandered thus she had no means of knowing. It seemed to her a long, long time since she quitted the old house, and that many a weary mile had been traversed. Hours, and hours must have clapsed, yet there was no sight of morning breaking, though a rift appeared here and there in the clouds, and the rain and wind had somewhat moderated.

Human nature can endure much under strongly stimulating circumstances such here and there in the crowns, and the rain and wind had somewhat moderated.

Human nature can endure much under strongly stimulating circumstances such as those which now beset Annabel, but its greatest power of tension has limits, and at last she felt that she could do no more. Her throbbing temples, her recling brain, her aching limbs, which could no longer support her, and the utter weariness and powerlessness of her cutive frame, told her that she must lie down to rest. Even then she would not give up the struggle, but nature, which had been taxed so heavily, refused to hold out longer. Frequently she had rallied at the thought that it was for life, for liberty, for love she was wrestling, but even the repetition of these vital words feiled now to rouse her, for as her quivering lips once more uttered them, she stumbled over a mound of sand or soft earth, and fell to the ground insensible.

Deep and profound was the unconsciousness which bound her, and long did it continue, for when she came out of the dreamless oblivion the sun was shining brightly in the sky, the birds were singing among the bushes, the tempest was gone, and a wide stretch of landscape lay smiling under the clear eye of the new day.

She uttered a startled ery and made smiling under the clear eye of the new day.

She uttered a startled cry and made an effort to rise, but stiffness and pain were in her limbs, and the motion only produced agony. A little piece of good fortune had been vouchsafed to her, for she had fallen under an overhanging bank, whose sides had sheltered her in no small degree from the force of the blast; and, as the position faced the east, the first rays of the warm morning sun had shone upon her inanimate frame modifying somewhat the evils of her condition.

modifying somewhat the evils of her condition.

Again she essayed to rise, and her excitement conquering the pain which racked her, she drew berself up by the roots which interlaced the bank, and gazed eagerly around. The level plain of the moor stretched far on every hand, but scarcely had her eye roamed over it, when another cry broke from her lips for in the distance she saw blue smake rising over a large cluster of houses, some of the windows of which reflected with dazzling power the rays of the sun. This sight was a joyous one to Annabel. Pain and doubtree more than the was on her way to the village—which she, doubtree more was Porslev—at rapid speed in the clear atmosphere it seemed no great distance off, but it was really two miles a way, and the path was rough till the wanderer gained the high road, when her course became easy, and even pleasant, after the inequalities of the open waste.

She had accomplished more than half waste.

She had accomplished more than helf the distance, and was rejoicing in the hope of soon reaching shelter, when the rattling noise of wheels came to her from behind, and looking back she saw a cart far on the level road, with two figures seated in it. It was being driven furiously, and though it was still too far off for recognition, the affirighted heart of Annabel divined that it was Dick and Moll in pursuit.

The Wesleyan Church, after being fitted up with new seats, pulpit, &c., was reopened on the first inst., by the Rey Jas. Anderson, of Seaforth, who preached in the morning and evening. In the morning and evening. In the morning and evening. In the morning the church was connofortably filled, and was over-crowded in the evening. Both sermous were vely able, and exhibited a degree of logical acumen and profound research seldom witnessed in these parts. The congregation have get the church beautifully papered, nainted and carpeted, which makes it the most heat and confortable church in the village, and they are considered fortunate in having secured the apointment of the Rev. Mr. Philips, of Acton, as their pastor for the coming year. A fear-meeting was held in the church on Monday evening, June 2nd, which was well attended. Mr. Geo. In a few practical remarks he showed the position which the temperance movement occupied at the present time, and the absentity of the position occupied by the opposite party in regard to the revenue. The reverend lecture then addressed the meeting. He depicted in a spirited manner the exils of intemperance, and the recessity of a prohibitory liquor law. Several others the addressed the meeting. Congregational Union.

June 6th.

The Rev. J. A. R. Dickson, of Toronto, was unanimously elected to the office of Secretary of the Union.

Dr. Wilkers aid that a year ago the financial position of the Canadian Independent Publishing Company was in a manner insolvent, but by the efforts of the Churches the debt had all been cleared off, and during last year 150 new subscribers were added. At present the sum of $400 was due to the Company. The Rev. F. H. Marling had felt it necessary to withdrawfrom the editorial chair to which the Rev. S. W. Jackson was now called.

In the evening the Union was invited to a social meeting by the members of the Church, and a large and happy gathering convened in the basement of the Union, presided, offering a few remarks on the College.

The choir sang a stirring anthem, after which Dr. Wilson urged the claims of the College on the body, and presented an opportunity of contributing to the fund for the endowment of a theological chair. The Rev. W. Clarke contributed $100 towards the endowment fund of the College intended, as a body, making a united contribution.

June 7.

Scarcely any business was done on Saturday. Quite a number of the members visited Bow Park Farm and the Institute for the blind.

June 9.

The Rev. W. F. Farris, delegate of the Canada Presslytering Church, was real and the substitute for the blind.

bers visited Bow Park Farm and the Institute for the blind.

June 9.

The Rev. W. F. Farris, delegate of the Canada Presbyterian Church, was received this morning. He conveyed in an address of considerable length the salutations and fraternal greeting of his body, their love, sympathy and fellowship.

The Statistical Secretary read his report for 1872-3. There were many vacancies in the churches, but in all, with pastors and even in those without, progress; Congregational Churches being nble by their constitution to carry on their own work and attend to their own affairs. The report showed that many churches, even to the number of twenty, had not sent in returns, so that the official documents touching this matter three interesteet.

CONSUMPTION which can be cured by a timely resort to this standard preparation, as has been proved by the hundreds of testimonials received by the proprietors. It is acknowledged by many prominent physicians to be the most reliable preparation ever introduced for the relief and cure of all Lung complaints, and is offered to the public, sanctioned by the experience of over forty years. When resorted to in season it seldom fails to effect a speedy cure in the most severe cases of Coughs, Bronchitis, Croup, Whooping Cough, Influenza, Asthma, Colds, Sore Throat, Pains or Soreness in the Chest and Side, Liver Complaint, Bleeding at the Lungs, &c. Wistar's Balsam does not dry up a Cough, and leave the cause behind, as is the case with most preparations, but it loosens and cleanses the lungs, and allays irritation, thus removing the cause of the complaint. SETH W. FOWLE & SONS, Boston, Mass., And sold by Druggists and Dealers generally.
