which are manufactured by the most approved modern machinery, from a superior clay, thoroughly mixed with sand; have smooth surfaces, square edges, and ARE GUARANTEED TO STAND THE WEATHER. Our selected stock brick will look as well in the front of a building as some of the so-called face or repress brick, nor are they liable to chip or split with the frost. So far as tested they have not shown any of the WHITE SUBSTANCE, which so disfigures some brick buildings, and we believe them to be entirely free from this ingredient. We aim to keep on hand a large quantity, so that the trade can always rely upon being supplied with good brick.

Having a good wharf on our property and a siding of the W. & A. Railway, we can ship either by vessel or rail.

What One Girl Did.

The greatest case of female bravery and votion that ever came under my notice, said my friend, who had been a prominent letective in his day, was that of Margaret Whitney, the daughter of the doorkeeper of Jessrs. Bangshaw Brothers, bankers. On the eventful night in question Margaret's father had been sent out of town on business for the firm, and she was the sole occupant of the rooms in which they dwelt,

Then the process begins: the curtains are covered black crape veils in which office to the head of the cellar stairs, up torn from the windows, the carpets are ripholes were cut for the eyes and mount, and holes were cut for the eyes and mount, and they seemed shod with some felt-like material that deadened the sound of their footsteps considerably.

One of the men quickly and silently searched the room, while the other stood guard over her. The former presently returned, dangling a bunch of keps.

"Whose keys are these, what do they ppen," was asked the girl, in a low, combanding voice.

"They are my father".

"They are my father".

A few desperate efforts to free herself only served to convince her of their futility. Then she resigned herself to her bonds and began to think.

She knew that before a single sovereign in the Bangshaw Brothers' strong box could be ouched, the burglars would have to force open two iron doors of immense strength, and knowing but little of the modern imrovements in the science of housebreaking, she made no doubt that those doors ould prove impregnable to all attempts. As for brave Margaret Whitney, she not only became the heroine of the hour, but more substantial advantages accrued to her and hers through her heroism and devotion. "I saw Margaret about about two years An ingenious method has been devised by after that adventure," said my friend, the paper-makers to at least ameliorate, to detective, in concluding his narrative.

There is a custom which prevails among housekeepers during the springtime of the dwelling,—at the risk of her neck,—and with a dipper in hand and a bucket within reach, dashes away innumerable gallons of which mention has already been made.

By stretching out her arms Margaret could hold her wrists directly over the desk, and let the flame burn away the band by which they were bound together.

She knew the terrible scorching that it would inevitably cost her, but she did not hesitate an instant.

She at once thrust out her hands with a swift movement, and so held them extended, while the jet of bluish flame played on her wrists and the bands that secured them. She shut her eyes, held her breath, locked her teeth, and her eyebrows came together in a wreathing frown of supreme anguish.

But it was not as a good woman and exemplary parent that the multitudes of Britons cheered Queen Victoria, on her way to and from the British Imperial Institute. Notwithstanding the progress of radical opinions, loyalty is still strongly intrenched in the hearts of the British people. To them Queen Victoria stands for the royal lines which have ruled the island for centuries, and which became one when Queen Elizabeth died unmarried, and James of Scotland became the King of England. She stands for Agincourt and for Cressy, for Trafalgar and Waterloo. The glory and the prestige of Great Britain are personified in the crown, whosoever the wearer may be, and Great Britain has had no reason to regret the day when the crown fell to the blushing young maiden who now rules, as an aged maton, maiden who now rules, as an aged matron, the most extensive empire the world has ever

The occasion which brought the Queen out for perhaps the last time on public parade in London, was one eminently worthy of her reign, and eminently befitting the closing years of what Britons call the Victorian age. It was an occasion that would have delighted her late husband, Prince Albert, that sensible adviser, whose sound, correct and cautious judgment is said to have had no little influence in preventing Great Britain from actively taking sides against the United States at the opening of the war of secessions. The British Imperial Institute is a fitting monument of the grandeur of the Victorian empire. No foreign materials enter into the construction of the magnificent pile. Even the key given to the Queen to make the formal opening was of gold and diamonds and precious stones from the British colonies. -During recent years the American Congress has passed several bills dealing with the question of Chinese immigration, each a little more restrictive than the preceding one. Finally, what is known as the Geary act was passed a year or two ago, under which every Chinese citizen in the United conditions, more or less vexatious and humiliating, under a penalty of being seized and sent back to China forthwith. For instance and numbered, present his photograph, and receive a certificate of registration. With the exception of the photograph, this is about what a man has to do who wishes to keep a dog in communities where a dog-tax is exacted. John Chinaman is patient and long-suffering, and he has stood all the persecutions and ridicule heaped upon him thus far with but little murmuring. Now, however, he objects, and the great majority of them have failed to comply with the provisions of the Geary act. The Chinese government has made it known too that if its subjects are sent home, every American citizen in China will be ordered to leave the coun try in the shortest of short metre. There are residing in China a good many American aries and teachers. The carrying out of this threat would speedily bring ruin upon the merchants and disaster to the mission-States authorities will back down and allow the Geary law to remain a dead letter till it can be repealed by the next congress, or

This is the first time that China has attempted to retaliate upon our neighbors. For years the American Congress has had its own way. The various Chinese restriction acts have been passed in violation of solemn treaty obligations, and but little notice has been taken of them. Now the hearthen Chinee has reached the limit of his endurance and he proposes to give the American people a little of their own medicine. The opposition to the Chinese comes largely from the Pacific states, where they have appeared in large numbers. They are not, it is true, desirable citizens, and there is considerable force in the dislike felt towards them by the American people. There is the same opposition manifested in the western provinces of the dominion where they are also quite numerous. Our Steam Mill is doing good work. Some 16,000 logs are lying in the boom awaiting the saws, which will soon be upon them. Among the list of articles manufactured, that is of a pleasing appearance, is their wainscoting, it being double-beaded and all ready to put on. Quite a lot of improvements have been made within and about the mill. The planer is under the excellent management of Joseph F. Bent. The recent showers have given the fields

A Knitting Needle Causes Death. correspondent of the Windsor (Hants Co.) Journal writing from Newport, says:
A very sad occurrence took place on Tuesday of last week, which resulted in the death of Miss Esther Harvie, of this place.
Miss Harvie was knitting and thoughtlessly began probing an ear with one of the needles. Just at that moment a young girl accidently ran against Miss Harvie's elbow driving the needle deep into the interior of the ear.
Intense agony and yomiting succeeded the of abatement. No hope was entertained of her recovery from the first, and on Friday she passed away after great suffering.

in her death. The loss of members of his family were severely felt by Mr. Lynch, and he never fully recovered from the shock occasioned by the accident to his daughter and her death.

—P. G. Melcnson, jeweler, Middleton, begs to inform his many patrons of the past and the public in general that he has removed his business from the store of W. H. Miller, and is now occupying the store formerly occupied by Miller Bros. The premises have been neatly fitted up, handsome show cases placed upon the counters, and other requirements for the more satisfactory

John D. Rockefeller's Lattest Gift. Chicago, May 20.-John D. Rockefeller Chicago, May 20.—John D. Rockefeller has given $150,000 to the University of Chicago in order that Martin A. Ryerson's gift of $100,000 conditional on the raising of $400,000 more might become available. About $100,000 has been raised already, so that now there remains only $150,000 to complete the half million dollars needed as an equipment fund. The money must be secured by July 1st or the Ryerson and Rockefeller gifts will be lost to the university.

The Act Will Not Be Enforced. New York, May 18.—The "Herald" has New York, May 18.—The "Herald" has the following from Washington: President Cleveland had a long conference with the Secretary of State and the Secretary of the Treasury on the Chinese question. Afterwards Secretary Gresham said that when Congress passed a law and failed to appropriate sufficient money to carry out its provision that law became a dead letter. The Chinese Exclusion Act, therefore, will not be enforced.

ROME, May 20. - The chamber of deputies yesterday rejected the budget for the support of the department of justice. The minister of justice and ecclesiastical affairs, Theodrico Bonnacci, has therefore resigned. It is expected that the budget of the ministry of foreign affairs will be rejected also, and this will probable result in a crisis.

Later.—The Italian ministry has resigned.

Killed in the Ring New York, May 20.—The following cable was received at the Police Qazette office yesterday: "London, May 19.—The glove fight between Jack Wiltshire and Harry Bull for a purse last night at Smithfield ended in Wiltshire being killed. He died shortly after leaving the ring from the heavy punishment he received."

To Marry an Actress. Berlin, May 6. - The wife of Prof. Koch, the celebrated bacteriologist, recently pro-cured a divorce from her husband, and the professor has now been ordered to pay to her one-fourth of his income. It is announ-ced that Prof. Koch will marry a young actress who is at present playing at Barnay's theatre.

the pests spread all over the country and eat all they want. The tubers can only grow through the leaves; when the supply is devoured by these bugs the crop must suffer. The result is, we seldom see the fine, large, dry potatoes that formerly were so plentiful dry potatoes that formerly were so plentiful all over the province. Every farmer should make an effort to clean his crop of these gluttons, and if all would do this the imgluttons, and if all would do this the improvement in the crop would repay them for the labor. The cost of the small quantity of Paris green required is very little, so the labor is nearly all that can be counted. And here we may remark that usually far too much of the poison is used. The smallest quantity that can be applied is sufficient to kill the bugs. One pound of Paris green to eighty or one hundred gallons of water is sufficient, provided it is properly applied, which should be done as often as required to kill all. It is a great loss to the country to allow such a valuable crop to be destroyed, when a moderate amount of labor and cost will save it.

Two Monster Cruisers.

New York, May 18. - Information received by United States naval authorities is to the effect that the British admiralty is drawing up designs for two monster cruisers, which will be not only the largest war ships in the world, but the fastest. They will be known as the Terrible and Powerful. Each ship as the Terrible and Powerful. Each ship will have a length of over 500 feet and a beam of about 70 feet. Engines will be placed aboard each craft capable of developing 30,000 horse power. A speed of 25 knots per hour is aimed at. With these engines the two ships will be apace in engine capacity of the new Cunard greyhounds Campania and Lucania. Their langth will be less than the Cunard ships, but each of the cruisers will nossess displacement greater than it has will possess displacement greater than either of the liners. Save for torpedo boats the speed of 25 knots per hour aimed at will place the Terrible and Powerful ahead of all speeds now attained by any vessel affoat. The cruisers are to have an armor protection and will carry large and powerful rapid-fire gun hatteries

A Wise Conclusion.

The following item, which is going the inds of the press, contains the germ of a great truth:—
"There is something for the 'native Amer-'Your people drove us out centuries ago. Now these people are coming to drive you out. If you don't stop them, you will be in a few centuries what my people are now.'"

Saw the Ship Come Up.

Mr. W. A. Letson left for Port Medway this morning to attend the funeral of his father, J. J. Letson, who passed away on Tuesday morning—his 86th birthday. The life of the deceased was well studded with striking events. He was born on board ship at Port Royal, Jamaica, in 1808, his godfather being the father of the late Hon. J. W. Johnson. His father was lost at sea the next voyage. His mother was a connection of the Howe family; he and the late Joseph Howe attended school together in Halifax. While a boy he stood on government wharf, Halifax, and saw the Shannon and Chesapeake come up the harbor. He afterwards removed to Miramichi and was there during the great conflagration. Later on he removed to Port Medway, doing business there until appointed collector by the provincial government in 1855, which position he held until 1883.—Lunenburg Progress.

Perfect Satisfaction Gentlemen.—I have found B. B. B. an excellent remedy, both as a blood purifier and general family medicine. I was for a long time troubled with sick headache and heartburn, and tried a bottle, which gave me such perfect satisfaction that I have since then used it as our family medicine. E. SIR WILLIAM is a dark bay, foaled 1887, bred at Maple Grove Farm, Auburn, Maine. He is very symmetrical and highly finished, with plenty of substance; this, with his very speedy conformation, gives assurance that he will not only be fast, but that he possesses the power of his ancestors to transmit their good qualities to their offspring, as his colts are beginning to prove. It will be observed that he carries the same per cent of the producing blood that produced Nelson as if he were a son of that noted horse. That, combined with the blood of Messenger Wilkes, 2.25, makes him a very desirable young horse to breed to. Then, too, the classical building erected by Georgia, the queer old fort reproduced by Florida, and the handsome modern structure credited to Wisconsin, were all worth a survey, so that by the time that portion of the grounds sacred to state buildings had been covered, the visitors found to their dismay that it was long past noon.

"And we haven't had a peep inside any of them," declared Florence, poutingly. "Why, Sterling, we shan't even be able to see half the buildings before dark, I'm certain!"

Her husband adroitly evaded this tentative protest. "I would suggest, my dear, that we stroll past the foreign buildings on our way down to the Administration building, where, I understand, we can strike a restaurant. How is your appetite?"

Of course it was good. Mrs. Williams was young, healthy, and had been walking pretty steadily for two hours. Besides this they had breakfasted at eight o'clock.

It occurred to Sterling Williams more than once, as they passed groups of laborers at work, that the men were not falling over each other in an effort to complete their tasks but on ihe contrary were taking matters remarkably easy. He stopped to chat a minute with one old soldier who slowly raked a small pile of gravel into a gap in the road.

Another hour was spent by the two Dakotians in wandering about the foreign buildings, in the examination of the exteriors of which their interest flagged materially.

Mrs. Williams confessed that she began to feel a trifle tired, and her husband acknowledged that he was "infernally hungry;" so they merely glanced at the fisheries building and that erected by government, took a hasty peep at the battle-ship, and then passed along the beautiful esplanade in the direction of the restaurant in the Administration building.

THE IMMENSITY OF THE WORLD'S FAIR.

How Two Young Married People Started to "Do' the Big Show h one has an idea that he can see all that is worth taking in at the world's fair in one day is going to be badly fooled. If anybody doubts the statement let him follow the experiences of a young man from Dakota who with his bride of two weeks visited the grounds for the first time last Monday.

His wife is very pretty—she was one of the belles of Huron—and her husband is known as an exceptionally bright young fellow who has already been highly commended by the supreme bench of the state or his clever arguments at the bar and his carefully prepared briefs. From this one may readily infer that the South Dakota is nobody's fool—and yet be thought hould see the world's fair in a day.

Sterling Williams and his wife were conveyed to the grounds by way of the Illinois Central. They left the cars at Sixtieth street, that station being the nearest to the South Dakota state building, from which starting point as a loyal citizen Sterling proposed to make the grand rounds.

South Dakota state building, from which starting point as a loyal citizen Sterling proposed to make the grand rounds.

With them alighted two Frenchmen, who had stared at pretty Mrs. Williams all the way from Van Baren street; an Italian, several Japs, a German commissioner, three advance English tourists, an Australian—who had never ceased talking about the beauties of Melbourne from the time he boarded the train—and a score of Americans intent, like Mr. and Mrs. Williams, on seeing the great show.

Among the latter were a bride and groom from Racine, who wandered off toward the fair entrance hand in hand; a young miss of 10, who apparently "ran" the whole family and directed all its movements, from pere and mere down; a melancholy old gentleman with white side whiskers wearing a clerical necktie, and a good-natured, loquacious party in a silk hat, who flourished a green umbrella and used it as a pointer in emphasizing his flow of language.

but I think it's the government building.
Let's ask the guard at that door."

"Manufactures and liberal arts, "returned the man in uniform. "Stand back, please, no visitors allowed inside without a pass."

BEGIN TO CHANGE THEIR VIEWS.

"Why, there's nothing to see, is there?" asked Mrs. Williams.

"No, mem; but them's my orders; you see if everybody went in 'ud interfere with the workmen."

The couple drew back. "Come on, Floring the whole world tributary to a single person's effort, if that effort were not worthy. And if, by some miracle of deception, the world were once led to try an unworthy interesting the whole world tributard."

where the name of Ayer, and consequently of Lowell, is unknown.

The this fame is well deserved the very fact that Ayer's remedies enjoy it in itself safficiently proves. There is no such thing as fooling all the people all of the time, and it would be a pretty difficult matter to bring the whole world tributard."

That is a tie that binds to the whole world, for there the man in uniform. "Stand back, Please, no visit

A line of freight cars opposed their progress. "Oh, dear," sighed Mrs. Williams, "must I crawl under one of these cars?"

Sterling paused irresolutely. "N.o, my Sterling paused irresolutely. "N.o, my Sterling paused irresolutely."

Sterling paused irresolutely. "N.o, my Sterling paused irresolutely."

"Yes, sir, this is the manufactures building, "he asseverated in answer to their query, "also the building for liberal arts." But his questioners were hurrying away and all heard was the voice of the lady saying in a petulant tone: "For goodness sake, Sterling, let's get away from that building; in country places, where you will
