CURTAIN POWER OF LORDS COMMONS TO BE SUPREME

Campbell-Bannerman Submits Government Proposals—Peers Must Ungrudgingly Recognize Constitutional Authority.

WOULD LIMIT PARLIAMENT TO FIVE YEAR PERIODS

LONDON, June 24.—Premier Campbell-Bannerman to-day moved his resolution for the curtailing of the power of the house of lords before the fullest house of the session.

Replying to a question, the premier said it was not proposed that the resolution dealing with the house of lords should be moved in the upper house after its discussion in the house of commons had been completed.

The resolution itself, even if carried, would not have the effect of law or of putting the house of commons in a position to exercise its discretion as to when it should be introduced.

Authority in Commons. The premier declared that the only course open was to recognize ungrudgingly the constitutional authority which rested in the house of commons.

Amid loud ministerial cheers, the premier protested that if this authority should be usurped by a non-elected house of lords, it would be a serious loss.

Continuing, the premier said the present government believed that the reduction of the period of its existence to a parliament of five years would effectively prevent "an effete government which had lost the confidence of the people."

Balfour Defends Lords. A. J. Balfour opposed the resolution and defended the house of lords. He admitted that the house of commons was constitutionally the predominant partner, but declared that the house of lords was a necessary part of the constitution.

PAID MACHINISTS' UNION TO AVOID ALL STRIKES

But When Payments Were Stopped Strike Was Declared—Willing to Show Vouchers.

HORNELL, N. Y., June 24.—In a signed statement telegraphed to Hornell to-day General Manager J. C. Stewart of the Erie Railroad charges representatives of the International Association of Machinists with having accepted from the Erie each year until this year, the sum of $10,000 to avoid a strike.

When the Erie decided to no longer pay this sum to the representatives of the association, Mr. Stewart states that a strike was threatened and finally called.

The Money Stringency And Our Banking Laws

The people of Canada find themselves surrounded by a stringency in money. The same conditions obtain more or less in the United States, in Europe, in other places. It is hard to get money where once it was easy. It is hard to get money, tho the security offered is ample and undoubted.

Why, then, are the banks not so accommodating? There are many reasons: There has been great expansion; their available assets have been overloaned; there may be breakers ahead, indeed, are almost certain to follow great expansion, and therefore now is the time to shorten sail; and that, and here is the point we wish to emphasize, they cannot get out any new stock at the present condition of the money market.

Roughly, the paid-up capital of the Canadian banks is one hundred millions of dollars (exactly $96,167,887). Most of this money is Canadian money, contributed by Canadians.

Now, let us come to another point: Our laws in regard to railways and most of our stock companies are so framed as to allow of capital required by them to be raised outside of Canada.

33. The capital stock may be increased from time to time by the shareholders.

34. Any of the original unsubscribed capital stock, or of the increased stock of the bank, shall, when the directors so determine, be allotted to the then shareholders of the bank, pro rata, and at such rate as is fixed by the directors; provided that:

35. In no case shall a rate be fixed by the directors, which will make the premium, if any, paid or payable on the stock so allotted, exceed the percentage which the reserve fund of the bank then bears to the paid-up capital stock thereof.

36. Any of such allotted stock which is not taken up by the shareholders to whom the allotment has been made, within six months from the time when notice of the allotment was mailed to his address, or which he declines to accept, may be offered for subscription to the public, in such manner and on such terms as the directors prescribe.

37. The shares of the capital stock shall be paid in by such instalments as the directors appoint.

38. The directors may make such calls of money from the shareholders as they find necessary.

39. Such calls shall be at intervals of not less than thirty days.

40. Notice of any such call shall be given at least thirty days prior to the day on which the call is payable.

41. No such call shall exceed ten per centum of each share subscribed.

The only case in which these rules are not to apply is when additional capital is suddenly required to buy out another bank.

Now let us accept the oft-repeated claim that it is trust funds, that it is "the widow and the orphan" that own our bank shares, and we find this the condition of affairs:

That our banks are hampered as no other financial institution is hampered in getting additional capital into its business, that the measure of getting out new capital stock, and therefore the measure of increasing the available capital of the banks for the business of the country, is the ability of the widow and the orphan to take up any new shares.

Or, perhaps, we will put it in a fairer way, if we say it is measured by the ability of existing shareholders to take up new capital, and these existing shareholders are largely our people.

Now, this to our mind is all wrong. It must be changed. We want outsiders to take up a large block of our bank stocks, as they do our railways.

We want as much additional capital as we can get from outside. To convert the deposits which shareholders have in the banks into bank shares does not increase the available capital of the banks of the country a dollar.

And yet this is what the Canadian banks are trying to do to-day and can't do. The act is specifically designed to prevent outside capital from coming in.

The Bank of Montreal, the Bank of Toronto, the Dominion Bank, the Imperial Bank, and others, could double their capital to-morrow, and get it all taken up in London to-morrow, if it were not for these hampering provisions.

How the situation would be relieved if, for instance, the Bank of Montreal's share capital was double what it is, and, consequently, its issue of its own notes double of what they are, I twenty-five millions alone available to-morrow.

Not one of our banks cares to offer new shares to-day under the act. The widows and orphans can't take them up, and they won't let others take them up.

All this must be changed, and parliament must change it. The bank nav. been given great franchises, great privileges, but conditional on taking care of the banking requirements of the country.

It will not do to say, start new banks. Nor will it do to call names at the bank manager who found a way to get German money into Canadian bank. But to do this it must be stated that he had first to get every one of his existing shareholders to sign all kinds of "waivers of their rights" before he could do it, and it was a long and dreary operation.

Canada ought to make it as easy to get outside capital into our banks as it is to get money for our railway enterprises. Not to make it hard.

And then there are other things: What is one unit, if any, that is to be used on our banks—especially on the railways?

REYNOLDS, snatched as he was tramping across the railway tracks at De Grassi and Queen-streets. Port Hope friends are keeping him company.

Port Hope Pedestrian Barber Makes Half Distance on Time

Reynolds, on Walk of 128 Miles on Wager, Reaches Toronto, and After Refreshing Bath and Dinner, Resumes Long Journey—Confident He Will Finish Within 38 Hours.

The man—James Reynolds, aged 55, a Port Hope barber. The feat—To walk from Port Hope to Toronto and return in 38 hours.

The distance—128 miles. The wager—$600 to $300 against the accomplishment of the feat. General betting, even money.

Referee—L. G. Bennett, Umpires—W. Evans and J. Stevens. Reynolds left Port Hope 1 a.m. Monday. Arrived Bowmanville, 26 miles, 6 a.m.; left Bowmanville, 6.30 a.m.; arrived Whitby, 35 miles, 10.30 a.m.; arrived Pickering, 42 miles, 1.45 p.m.; arrived Half-Way House, 55 miles, 4.50 p.m.; arrived Norway, 60 miles, 5.50 p.m.; arrived King Edward Hotel, 64 miles, 6.45 p.m.

Return journey begun 7.45; arrived at Half-Way House, 9 miles, 10 p.m.; left Half-Way House 10.05.

Jimmie Reynolds, the Port Hope barber who is walking on a wager from Port Hope to Toronto and return in 38 hours, reached the Halfway House, nine miles from Toronto, on his return journey at 10 o'clock sharp Monday night.

He was not in good condition, altho the walk from Toronto did not seem to have any great effect on his appearance and actions.

He stated to a World reporter that he was tired—very tired—as he leaned his head on the bar, while drinking lemon sour, the only substitute he could get for "cold" tea, the beverage he has used on the trip. His feet were sore, and his heels blistered.

"I would like to go to bed and sleep," he said, languidly, and with a faint smile. "It would be a good way to die—drinking."

When his trainers urged him to hurry he exclaimed: "I'll have a glorious day to-morrow if I win this."

Confident of Winning. He appeared quite confident of winning, but perhaps that "if" indicated the doubt existing beneath the confident exterior. Those who were near him, thought his appearance did not indicate any too good chances, but his trainer stated that he would brace up when he got well started.

He left Toronto at 7.45, with a pretty tired look, but struck a good pace, which, however, had relaxed by the time he reached the Woodbine. Here he nearly got on the wrong road by following straight out King-street. He was called back, however, before more than a minute had been lost.

Record Time to Toronto. Reynolds' time to Toronto was a record. He covered the 64 miles in exactly 17 hours and 45 minutes, or a mile every 16.1-2 minutes. Should he continue this gait he will arrive home well within the 38 hours set to win the wager.

Altho his friends expressed the opinion that everything was "O.K.," the pedestrian was not in the best of shape when he left the King Edward Hotel. For instance, his throat was filled with dust, even after an hour's rest, a refreshing bath and a good dinner. This fact alone would be a nervous irritation if nothing else. At the same time, both heels were considerably blistered, and in general he was not in the trim he expected to be in.

Not Properly Clad. An onlooker remarked that the pedestrian's boots were too heavy, that the fact of wearing braces instead of a belt was a mistake. His attire in general was not the make-up which a reasonable man would wear for a strict endurance contest. A felt hat, fairly heavy, the man claimed, should have been replaced by a big straw one of the lightest material. Instead of a cane, an umbrella carried in a certain way would serve the swinging purpose, and at the same time have been decided protection against the burning sun.

SAVAGE ATTACK ON ORCHARD EVIDENCE

Defence in Great Trial Will Also Allege Conspiracy by the Mine Owners.

THE MOST MONUMENTAL LIAR

Counsel Says It Will Be Proven So—Outlines Defence of the Accused Trio.

BOISE, Idaho, June 24.—In an address that required two sessions of the district court to-day, Clarence Darrow of Chicago, outlined to the jury the detailed defence of Wm. D. Haywood to the charge that he murdered ex-Governor Steunenberg.

In broad description, it is to be a denial of every material count in the testimony of Orchard with a showing that Orchard killed Steunenberg because of a private grudge borne by the loss of a rich share in the Hercules mine, and explanation of the independent circumstances that tend to connect the co-defendants with Orchard's life and operations.

Mr. Darrow characterized Orchard during his address as follows: "Harry Orchard was a cheap soldier of fortune, a shoestring gambler who had never done a day's work in his life. He owned a sixteenth share of the Hercules mine, but sold it because of his needs and continued his gambling."

"We will show that he did not participate in most of the crimes of which he has here boasted. I don't like to take any of the bloom off a peach like that, but while we will show he is not the murderer he boasts himself, we will compensate him by proving him to be the most monumental liar that ever existed."

"If Orchard to-day held his one-sixteenth interest in the Hercules mine he would be worth half a million dollars, but I think he would rather have what he has got, because it is more valuable to the newspapers."

Mr. Darrow described the three defendants in the Steunenberg murder case in detail. He declared that Haywood was born in Utah, an American citizen, whose forefathers came to America prior to the revolution.

Haywood Courageous. "He is a plain, blunt, courageous fighting man," declared Mr. Darrow, "fighting the militia when necessary, fighting for the rights of workmen; fighting for the protection of the widows and orphans."

"A plain, blunt, honest man whose ancestry were honest men. Moyer was the man, who, as the head of the Western Federation of Miners, fought every conceivable fight as men like him, born of such stock, always fighting."

"And what about Pettibone? Geo. Pettibone had never been a member before of the Western Federation of Miners. He had mined and then started his store. A happy, careless, sunny man with a laugh and a joke for every one."

Pettibone, the attorney said, was never connected intimately in any way with the Western Federation of its officers.

The defence will call its first witness to-morrow morning, and promises, unless cross-examination is exceptionally long, to make all of its showing within seven or eight days.

Haywood Will Testify. Haywood will take the stand to make personal denials of Orchard's accusations. Moyer may be called to testify solely to events and circumstances affecting the Western Federation of

PRESENTATION OF PRIZES BISHOP STRACHAN SCHOOL

Many Prominent Churchmen Present at Closing Exercises and Reception.

Many of Toronto's prominent citizens, clerical and lay, were present at the closing exercises and reception at the Bishop Strachan School last night. ## Grafting Among Women

One of our leading journals has recently been starting a crusade against women grafters. This paper has also taken part in protesting against the bride grafter, and a higher stand will have to be taken by the woman of the future if she wishes to preserve her reputation for honesty. But there are certain aspects of this question which might be more fairly viewed by the men.

We hear constantly of the woman who rises at 3 a.m. to pick her husband's pocket, of the woman who collects souvenir spoons, etc. But what about the bride grafter, who doesn't make his wife a regular allowance? What about the bride whose men acquaintances have so long made her house a rendezvous for themselves and their women friends that patience was nearly at an end on the part of the bridegroom on members of the party who come to see the visiting friend or cousin, stay for tea, and take the young lady out, ignoring the bride-to-be because she is engaged (yes, and often long before she has any idea of being engaged), on the score that "Oh, well, Tom's her fellow, and he'll take her out." How about the women who go to visit the girl with a wide acquaintance because they will meet men there? There are two sides to every question.

Nevertheless, there is a contemptible meanness in stealing your hostess's spoons, in forcing presents from chance acquaintances and in absolutely phoning the brigand on members of your own family, which surely ought to be despised by every true woman.

It has its funny side, too. I know a young girl who complains that since negligé collars have come in she can't keep a single nice tie on account of its being the socialistic age.

Recently he heard a woman suffragist advocate the wearing of men's clothes. "Why," she exclaimed, "I should have to get up early every morning if I wanted anything at all to wear." This is indeed the socialistic age.

But there is one form of grafting among women which is more detestable than any other. It is when a woman deliberately lays out to make trouble between her women friends and their acquaintances of the other sex, that we see her meanest qualities displayed. Girls who would not steal, who are horrified at the idea of murder, deliberately ruin the lives of their friends, their dearest friends as a legitimate pastime. "This is not grafting," some one says, "It is intrigue."

I call it grafting advisedly. It is done for the same purpose and no other, than to injure a woman who has a man friend who takes her out, who plans little parties for her enjoyment, who unselfishly tries to give her a good time. In a moment every girl of her set is "fairly wild," as they say, to get an introduction. "He will do as much for me" is the idea. All sorts of schemes are worked to make the man believe his friends think little of him, and to separate them. When some clever young woman finally succeeds, it simply means that the man is added to a train of admirers obtained in the same unscrupulous way. He soon sees the point—he never dreams of marrying the second girl, who probably doesn't want him anyway, and two lives are spoiled for the sake of pure graft.

Providence Easy for Toronto Tim Flood Back in the Game

Score Was 9-2—Newark Wins Double Header at Montreal—Buffalo and Rochester Win at Home.

Altho a worn-out team by their travel to Newark Sunday, Toronto pounded out 14 safeties for a total of nine runs at Diamond Park yesterday; while Providence, their opponents, notched two, one of them being a yester.

Owing to Flood being back at second base, the team was shifted, Kelley going to right field. Flood signalled his appearance by cracking out three liners, one of them a two-bagger. He also figured in the run column, notching two.

Errors were numerous, the visitors having no less than five, while two were recorded against the Maple Leafs. Providence pitched out of the game in the fourth, allowing Chadbourne to trot home from first, while our own Thoney fumbled a bunt.

Pitcher Mack, who essayed to deliver the batters for the visitors, evidently had spent a bad night, for the locals got to him in every inning but the fifth, and then he hit a man. His throwing arm was bad, no less than three errors being credited to him.

McGinley and Carrigan were the battery for the Pats. Hurley having missed the last at Newark. Nine hits were registered off Mac, but he kept them scattered, and in places good with the willow.

Providence scored their initial run in the fourth, when Chadbourne secured a life on an infield hit. Abstein flew out, did Poland to Phayle. Phayle threw to the basemen to catch Chadbourne, who first turn. Umpire Conway allowing Chadbourne to trot home, altho the ball did not get in the bleachers.

THE PARLIAMENTARY SENSE. Scarcely had the corporations and their hired men ceased chortling over the veto by Governor Hughes of the two-cent-a-mile act passed by the legislature of New York, when the announcement follows that all the railways in the United States have agreed to adopt two cents a mile as the maximum charge for the carriage of passengers.

The answer is to be found in the fact that Mr. Hughes has been always a hard-working lawyer, with his vision limited by the narrow boundaries of Manhattan. He has never had occasion to know or to care what the people wanted. He has dealt with columns of figures rather than with columns of men.

The system of government in the United States is to be commended for its elasticity in so much as men unknown to politics and politicians may, at one bound, reach the highest office and be thus enabled to execute the people's will. But on the other hand, it is noticeable that men untrained in politics, while thoroughly capable in some executive position, fail lamentably as legislators. It is dangerous to entrust any such man with the veto power.

The rate to be charged for passenger traffic is a legislative duty. It cannot be referred to a board nor can it be solved by a professor of mathematics. Sir Wilfrid Laurier is keen enough to know this, and voted down a proposal by R. L. Borden to refer this parliamentary question to the railway commission. To this extent he tacitly acquiesced in the contention continuously made by W. F. Maclean (South York), to the effect that this question was one of policy and not one of administration. Mr. Maclean has insisted, on the floor of the house, repeatedly, that parliament must fix the maximum passenger rate even to a readjustment of other tariffs might follow as a detail of administration. This impelled him to withhold his support from Mr. Borden's resolution to refer the maximum passenger rate to the railway commission for solution. He did not question the good faith of the opposition. Indeed, Mr. Borden's argument flowed along the lines followed by the veto message of Governor Hughes. Both men unopposedly spoke from the standpoint of the lawyer, rather than from the standpoint of the parliamentarian.

Sir Wilfrid Laurier in his heart was less friendly to two cents a mile than was too apt to be the case. He was too apt to refer to the question of policy and not one committed to parliament.

It is unfortunate that upon division, the opposition went upon record as declaring this not to be a question of policy. It is even more unfortunate that some members of the opposition—not Mr. Borden—have declared that any one who favors two cents a mile is a "radical," and a "demagogue," and that the proposal to establish this popular rate is "slap-trap."

Sir Wilfrid Laurier does not lack the parliamentary sense. Should he adopt two cents a mile as a plank in his platform it need not astonish the students of his career. He has never denied that it is a question to be settled by parliament. Indeed, he has kept his chuckle-headed followers silent, and let members of the opposition throw brickbats at two-cent-a-mile and the member for South York (W. F. Maclean), while he sat back and enjoyed the fun. Our sunny premier is stubborn at times, but he never attempts to stand on the track and defy a locomotive advancing towards him at seventy miles an hour.

FINANCING CITY IMPROVEMENTS.

What Toronto, and for that matter every Canadian city, should possess is the power enjoyed by all British communities to make public improvements pay for themselves. In such matters as the opening of new and the improvement of old thoroughfares, the creation of parks and open spaces, every city should have right to expropriate at a fair valuation under existing conditions, not only the area actually necessary but all the ground which will immediately benefit. The principle underlying this contention is a perfectly fair and proper one. When additional values are created at the public expense for an object of general benefit these are not allowed to accrue to property-owners who have done nothing to start with and the unearned increment becomes a public asset.

The current number of The Chautauquan Magazine is devoted largely to the question of civic improvement, discussing the important subject in various aspects. One of the sections deals with the "power to condemn more land than is absolutely needed in order to sell again," and the facts cited show a surprising advance in United States sentiment in favor of the principle. Reference is made to a pamphlet in which Mr. Theodore Marburg calls attention to the recent opening of the Kingsway and Aldwych, the magnificent new thoroughfare connecting Holborn and the Strand, one mile in length and one hundred feet wide, constructed at a cost of $30,000,000. "This entire expense," says the Chautauquan, "has been more than recouped because the city had authority to condemn and purchase the land fronting on the street to sell again after the improvement had been completed."

It appears that the first important pronouncement upon this subject made in the United States was contained in the report of the New York City Improvement Commission, published about a year and a half ago. As quoted it runs:

Altho the expenditures necessarily required by any proper plan must be large, they could in the instance be greatly reduced if the city had the power exercised in many European cities of condemning more land than the area actually required so that the city might reap the benefit to be derived from the enhanced value of neighboring property, and the judgment of the commission steps should be taken to secure such changes in the constitution and legislative enactments as may be necessary for the purpose. This method of taking more land than required with the object of resale at an advance price for recouping part of the expenses has been applied in various cities of Great Britain and the continent where extensive alterations and improvements have been undertaken for securing sanitary conditions or improving the city generally, and it is questionable whether many of the improvements would have been otherwise accomplished. Objection to giving the city such power has sometimes been raised on the ground that it might be abused or injudiciously exercised. In these times, however, of increasing municipal activities when so many more extensive powers are constantly being entrusted to those charged with the administration of the city's affairs, such objection can scarcely be considered necessary. It is, in fact, a very natural and logical conclusion, if proper safeguards and limitations are imposed.

Last year a report was published on "American Park Systems," which contained an important incidental reference to the need for such authority. It said:

If Philadelphia had the authority to condemn land on both sides of Fairmount Park, the result of the initial expenditure would be of course larger, in the long run it is altogether likely that the city would be able to recoup the entire expense. In other words, Philadelphia taxpayers will pay from eight to ten million dollars because the city has not this authority. Further, if it had the authority, the city, having secured a title to these properties, could sell the land with building restrictions, thus insuring a more beautiful approach to our great park.

Ohio already has a statute providing for "the purchase of more land than is needed for a definite improvement with a view to recovering the cost of the improvement by the resale of additional land area. Cities in other states, such as San Francisco and St. Louis, are moving for similar powers and the proposition is so just and reasonable in itself and so greatly in the public interest as to be all but self-evident when fully understood. Its bearing on the present Toronto situation is direct and clear. If the city had authority to acquire and resell areas adjacent to necessary public improvements their cost would be largely, if not wholly, met by the proceeds. Under such a system the extension of Bloor-street to Danforth-road, the formation of new diagonal streets and all other improvements making for the benefit of the city could be easily accomplished. With large schemes of this class to carry thru in the near future, Toronto should obtain power to expropriate all land which will be directly benefited by any public work and to resell it when the improvement is completed.

THAT "TIP"

"Word comes from the riding of Lincoln and Niagara that the Conservative executive, having received a tip that the general elections would occur between Nov. 20 and Dec. 20," has nominated E. A. Lancaster for member of parliament.

Mr. Lancaster has many qualities of usefulness and no doubt will receive the hearty support of his constituents. In view of this "tip" it was no doubt incumbent upon the executive to give him the nomination, which he would have received at all events.

"But surely our friends in Niagara will not bury their light under a bushel. This tip, if well founded, should be passed around. But whence came it? Has the governor-general tipped it off? Did Sir Wilfrid Laurier cable this "sure thing" to Grimby? Does R. L. Borden know of it? Did it come from the Kingsway?"

The racing season is on, and the cry of the vendor of dope sheets is heard in the land. Perhaps our Toronto Conservatives also had a tip. But there is one tip that is given for what it is worth and it may be of value to other riders where the racers are not yet unblanketed, and that is this:

"Do not make your entry a year before the race is to be run; you may find a better horse a year from now."

GO AHEAD.

Yesterday the city council unanimously appointed a sub-committee to confer with the board of trade, the Manufacturers' Association and other public bodies regarding the advisability of preparing a comprehensive plan for the improvement of the city's material prosperity. This action was consequent on the motion of Ald. Church, to which The World called attention yesterday. It covers most of the main questions of urgent importance now pressing for determination, such as the improvement of the harbor and water front, the furtherance of the city's transportation interests by rail and water, the existence of railway discrimination against Toronto, its establishment as a free port and the policy to be pursued in the annexation of new territory.

While the attitude of the public organizations in the city towards these subjects has already been sufficiently indicated, no harm can arise from the conference now proposed. The prudence of consulting representative bodies in connection with the formulation of a settled policy to be followed in connection with the provision to be made for the needs of a growing and progressive city, has been demonstrated by the advantages accruing in those cases where that course has been adopted. Now that the council has taken formal and official cognizance of the movement, the public bodies approached should urge the committee to vigorous and effective action. Ald. Church hopes to bring them into touch with each other during this week and everything ought to be in readiness for a forward step at an early date.

ROSEBANK.

In reference to an item in The World on May 25 concerning "Squatters on Rouge River Banks," and dated from Rosebank, attention has been called to the fact that Rosebank is the private property of William Cowan, leading to the inference that the information was supplied by Mr. Cowan.

This was not the case, and The World regrets that Mr. Cowan may have thus unwittingly suffered any inconvenience or unjust criticism.

CLINTON WILL GUARANTEE BONDS.

CLINTON, June 24.—To-day this town again voted to guarantee the bonds of the Clinton Trustee Company, who suffered severely in the fire on May 13. The vote was 400 to 5. The town will guarantee bonds to the amount of $20,000, repayable in twenty annual payments.

Trees Infested by Lice.

The Woolly Elm louse has been reported as infesting the trees at the head of Queen's Park, the lower limbs on many of them being in a dying condition. The lice are also reported on Jarvis-street. Kerosene emulsion is the remedy to be applied.

Refuse Controllers' Power.

The board of control did not succeed in obtaining the absolute authority requested to settle all pending actions in regard to tax sales, altho the mayor explained that the city solicitor had advised that it would be good policy to settle all such questions quietly in this way. Ald. McChie and Ald. Church, who led the opposition, claimed that it was the fair and right prerogative of the city council to deal with all matters of tax sales. Ald. Church took occasion to criticize the city's legal department, alleging that the city council was kept in the dark touching details of litigation. Ald. R. H. Graham and J. Hales also raised objections, and Controller Hubbard, bowing to the popular sentiment, consented to allow the settlement of the case on the condition that the city council should be kept advised of the matter to council.

Horse Market Goes Thru.

The third and final reading of the bill for the exchange of a horse exchange on Stanley Park was carried, and the promoters may now proceed with the plans for construction.

Controller Ward's motion, seconded by Controller Hubbard, to give the city council the right to purchase the property of the city on the following vote: For—Controllers Ward and Hubbard, Ald. Foster, Geary, Bengough and McBride. Against—The mayor, Controller Harrison, Ald. Adams, J. J. Graham, Charles G. Chisholm, Sheldon, R. H. Graham, E. Hales, J. Hales.

"Greater Toronto" Idea Favored By Aldermen

Committee Will Confer With Public Bodies as to Comprehensive Plan—Water Supply is Also Discussed.

The "greater Toronto" idea appears to have caught on with the city council, which, at yesterday's meeting, agreed unanimously that a sub-committee should confer with the board of trade, the Manufacturers' Association, and other public bodies, on the advisability of preparing a comprehensive plan looking towards the advancement of the city's material prosperity.

Among the vitally important questions which Ald. Church's motion provides that the sub-committee should consider are the improvement of the harbor and water front, the forwarding of the city's transportation interests by rail and water, the making of a comprehensive plan for the improvement of the city's material prosperity, and the annexation of new territory.

Ald. Church hopes that the conference may be held before the end of the week, possibly Friday evening. The subject is made up of the mayor, Controllers Hubbard and Harrison, and Ald. Chisholm, McMurrich, R. H. Graham, McChie, Geary, Adams and the mover, Ald. Church.

There appears to be a growing sentiment in the city council against the water supply plan proposed by the city's water supply board. Probably the alarmist views about the city's water supply have developed in the minds of the council members.

Ald. Lytle started a brisk discussion, by taking a decided stand against the water supply plan proposed by the city's water supply board. He spoke of the water shortage which has been experienced in the city, and the danger of the sprinkling of the streets might be discontinued. He argued that business firms or private individuals who have a vested interest in the city's water supply should be allowed to supply the city's needs.

Foster opined that citizens should get first consideration; Ald. J. J. Graham complained that the water supply plan was a waste of money. He believed that a lot of nonsense had been talked about the danger of a water shortage, and that the city's water supply was more than sufficient.

The proposed forcing thru of the extension of Harbor-street, from Clinton-street to the water front, was also discussed. It was argued that the extension of Harbor-street would be a waste of money, and that the city should consider other means of improving its harbor and water front.

The arguments advanced by J. E. Haines, in support of the extension of Harbor-street, were that the extension, being in the general, rather than in the special, interest of the city, should be on the general rate, and that it would ultimately be necessary to fill in the ravine between Grace-street and the water front, and that the proposed steel bridge was a waste of money.

Mr. Jackson, on behalf of the deputation, were that the extension, being in the general, rather than in the special, interest of the city, should be on the general rate, and that it would ultimately be necessary to fill in the ravine between Grace-street and the water front, and that the proposed steel bridge was a waste of money.

The property-owners affected said that they do not object to the extension in itself, but object to what they consider an unfair appropriation of the city's funds to the extension of Harbor-street.

Who are the Guild of Civic Art? I have been unable to find out who they are. This, with easy candor, did Ald. McChie declare himself in comment on the proposed contribution by the city of $1000 towards the plan of improving the city's harbor and water front.

Controller Hubbard retorted that some of Toronto's best citizens were at the head, and cited Byron E. Walker. Ald. Bengough thought the city council should settle all pending actions in regard to tax sales, altho the mayor explained that the city solicitor had advised that it would be good policy to settle all such questions quietly in this way.

The board of control did not succeed in obtaining the absolute authority requested to settle all pending actions in regard to tax sales, altho the mayor explained that the city solicitor had advised that it would be good policy to settle all such questions quietly in this way.

Mr. Darrow explained that Moyer and Pettibone stated that they were in the mine and declared that every lawyer knew the danger, whatever the circumstances, of having men waiting trial testify under like circumstances. Mr. Darrow denied the existence of the great conspiracy to murder, alleged by the state with Orchard's testimony as its basis; denied that the federation was anything but an earnest, aggressive labor organization, with higher wages, shorter hours, tolerable working conditions and the care, safety and education of its members and their wives and children as its high and only aims; denied the intimacy with the three co-defendants that Orchard paid claim to; denied the several conferences and conversations that Orchard swore to; denied that Orchard ever testified and promised to prove his contentions with many of the men mentioned by Orchard when on the stand and many witnesses of Orchard's character not connected by any tie with the federation or its leaders.

cially franchised and given great privileges, in order to do the banking business of the country—sending their money for investment (to-day it is over twenty-five million) out of the country, when it is sorely needed at home.

What limit, if any, to these banks using their available funds for the flotation (carrying) of stocks and bonds that are created out of industrial franchises in foreign countries.

What limit, if any, should we place on our insurance companies in using, out of our country, the accumulated capital of their policyholders. Who retains the increase of the issue of Dominion notes.

We want more bank capital in this country, and we want it most from the outside, because money brought into the country is new available capital. And we want to be able to get it quick and at emergency—not to have it spread over a couple of years and hampered at every turn.

We want more money from outside to lend on mortgages. That would be a relief. We also want outside money for our railroads. And we want more deposits from outside. Did it ever strike our banks that if they gave a higher interest on deposits, foreign deposits on notice would come in with a rush. Don't say "If we increased the interest to the depositors we'd have to increase the discount rate to borrowers."

It doesn't follow. You could pay the increased interest on deposits, out of the enormous reserves. It is the over-zealous care set out in the Banking Act and exercised by existing shareholders in the reserves of the bank that blocks the way to a great increase in our banking

SPECIAL FARM STOCK EDITION

THE HIRED MAN'S FEET.

The question that has been asked of our farmer friends brings up a very important part of the household economy on the farm. The question may have seemed superfluous, but it is one that has been forced to the front by the demands of our rural life.

The early settlers built their houses with only the plan for protection and rest in view. Security from the elements and the beasts begat an architectural design with few windows and with an economy in rooms.

With the modern attention was the outside overlooking the rigors of Canadian nature. Thus the modern conveniences that save so many steps, that give pure air and sunshine and running water in the house, were not expected or looked for.

Consequently that generation lived in unhealthy abodes and suffered much in health and prospect. The rebuilding of these farm dwellings which succeeded the log were on a better plan, but in them the privileges of bathrooms and washrooms were largely neglected.

Thus our modern farm life has to get along in these old houses, without the conveniences that nearly every city dweller possesses.

But the case is not irremediable. A small expenditure will put in a force pump, a supply tank in the attic and a few pipes thru the rooms, and thus secure a water supply and a bath tub in every farm house.

It is a good plan to screen the stable windows to keep out the flies from the horses. Manage always to have a shade tree in the pasture. Horses, cattle and sheep suffer from the direct rays of a midsummer sun quite as much as do men.

The day of the draught horse is still at its height. From $600 to $700 for a team are common figures now. Sometimes we see trees which dry up the grass under them, while in the same neighborhood will be trees under which the grass will grow greener than elsewhere.

Alfalfa is being cut for hay this week. It should be cut just as the lower leaves are showing. The day of the draught horse is still at its height. From $600 to $700 for a team are common figures now.

Some of the other varieties are: Holy Terror Gold, 10.98; Mine, 10.98; Japanese Fanicle, 10.92; Cuckoo Wonder, 10.92; Magic, 10.20; Japanese Barnyard, 10.11; Gerani, 9.57; Hungarian Grass, 8.57; Common, 8.60; California, 7.51; White French, 4.98; Red French, 4.98.

THE FARMSTEAD

Spray again! Sow millet now. Watch the gooseberries. Strawberries are ripe nearly everywhere. Watch the filly sale at Elora.

Fat cattle are being marketed from farm stables at good figures. Letters on farm subjects are always welcomed. Corn is growing nicely on most of the Ontario farms.

The excursions to Guelph are very successful this year. Keep cultivating the corn. Fifteen tillage the season is not too often. It pays.

Examine your apple grafts and press down the wax where it has not covered. Look out also for the aphid. A thrifty corn crop takes from each acre of land at least 750 tons of water.

James Dalgety, Clydesdale importer of Glencoe, has left from Montreal via the Donaldson line for Scotland, where he will purchase a select consignment of horses for Canada.

CLEANLINESS ON FARMS NECESSARY FOR THE DAIRY

What Constitutes a Successful Dairy Plant on an Ontario Farm.

It has been said that the dairy interests of Ontario have received more government encouragement than any other industry. Whether this be true or not, the importance of the industry demands much attention and the dependence of our people's health upon a proper supply of pure milk makes regulations and laws very necessary.

The atmosphere of the dairy plant is of the utmost importance. Milk, as everyone knows, is the most nourishing of all foods, because it contains all the constituents necessary to support life, but at the same time, it is one of the most delicate, because, in its character, it is very susceptible to changes from the moment it leaves the udder of the cow.

The chief sources of contamination are the cow, the air, the dirt, and the utensils. The cow herself is one of the most fruitful sources, not that she secretes milk containing germs, but because these germs exist in the hair which covers her body, and many of them during milking find their way into the milk.

The dairy utensils, as we have said, are frequently a great source of contamination, either owing to improper cleaning, or because they are left exposed to infection. The one great means by which the milk-producer is able to minimize bacterial contamination is cleanliness.

Efficient ventilation is perhaps the first essential to a good stable, but, unfortunately, many of our present-day stables cannot be properly ventilated owing to their faulty construction.

Another strong point to remember in connection with the management of the drinking water to which too much attention cannot be given. It is to be regretted that in too many cases the cows have access only to a stagnant pond into which they must wade to obtain sufficient depth to drink.

While the present season near Mohawk has been very unfavorable for the farmer and gardener, prospects are not by any means discouraging. Fall wheat now indicates a fair average yield. While some meadows do not produce abundantly, others appear very favorably.

The potato beetle is displaying great activity during the past few days. The "hard shells" are unusually plentiful and aggressive. Could potato growers be prevailed upon to grow up very unsatisfactory potato culture for one season as the most effective remedy, it would create a greater demand for bread and a greater demand would result in an increased price.

Excursion to O. A. C. A large excursion party, consisting of farmers from Stouffville and Elmhurst, on their way to the Guelph farm, passed thru Toronto yesterday.

CROP OUTLOOK.

The crop outlook in Ontario during the past week has decidedly improved. Fall wheat is heading out and has improved wonderfully upon early appearance of spring grain.

Corn is coming up well, and as a large acreage has been sown, a high level of the hay crop will not be felt so much. Many farmers have found the advantage of the checker-board plan, and are cultivating the corn and potatoes both ways.

On the whole the crop outlook in Ontario is most promising and ought to be most grateful news to all. There are some reports of a late start in the spring, but this is not a serious matter.
