her neighbor, coming down, and exchanging a pleasant greeting, saw that the radiant young wife's eyelashes were wet with tears. while her voice sounded unnaturally "May young wife's eyelashes were wet with tears. while her voice sounded unnaturally cheerful.

So the artist, who had been a young wife berself once, and was now a patient, quiet berself once, and was now a patient, quiet berself once, and was now a patient, quiet prayer, and softly nurmured aloud, "May little widow, fell a planning again as soon as she had given the children their supper, and after a merry game of romps put them to hed.

I description of the greatest outrages existing under the British flag is the system that the door of the studio, kissing Kate Lanox with a tender and reverent grace.

"Only one dollar beside the money for rent!" she sighed, "and four meals to provide before I can again see Mr. Poser Well, I have some stores in the pantry, I will see what there is and then go to marriage!"

The total and the some stores in the pantry, I will see what there is and then go to marriage!" will see what there is and then go to mar-ket. I must manage to share my dinner with my poor neighbors—at least to invite them—or I shall be troubled all day. How glad I am that I bought gilts for the child-ren three weeks since, when they were cheaper and I had the money; now they at least will not be defrauded of their excheaper and I had the money; now they at least will not be defrauded of their expected enjoyment on Christmas day!"

Among other lessons which the vicissitudes of life had taught this brave little women, was that of the true art of cookery—how to provide a delicious meal from cheap and simple materials; so when she had looked through her pantry she tripped off to market with a self satisfied and happy smile, as if she had been going to buy the largest turkey and best bunch of celery to be found there, though her basket was small and her purse held only one dollar.

The Wilsons, her neighbors, occupied but one room, which was warmed by fire in a large open grate, and Alrs. Lenox knew that the young wife was accustomed to cook a simple breakfast by this fire every morning. But for two mornings past there had been no fragrance of beef-steak and coffee, or any other good thing, coming through the cracks of the halled up door that led from her pantry into their room, and she could not help fearing that they were living very fragally.

So, of Christmass morning, Mrs. Lenox

they were living very frugally.
So, on Christmas morning Mrs. Lenox went with her children to bid the neighbors "Merry Christmas," and when the Wilsons' door was opened one quick glance "stockings hung by the chimney with the rehildren to bid the neighbors "Merry Christmas," and when the Wilsons' door was opened one quick glance showed her that no cooking had been done that day, nor was likely to be. The husband sat by the windsw looking out, while the wile was sewing near a very small, carefully built fire.

By the responded politely to her greeting, but they looked pale and sad.

"stockings hung by the chimney with care,"—that it is remembered by the charitable that the poor we have always with us,—that all the Christian world sing of "peace on earth" for the one day, and then quarrel with, and jostle against, and strive to overreach each other during all the other days of beatty spice and a natural interest.

By the responded politely to her greeting, but they looked pale and sad. but they looked pale and sad.

The artist hurried back to her room and

To-day all mingling pathways lead,

The angels' song, o'er land and seg,

O tender Faith ! O constant Friend! I beg you to accept one little dish from my table since you prefer to remain at home, because I am dreadfully supersti-tious and I believe in the old Saxonproverb 'The family whose Christmas dinner is unshared, will be unlucky all the year.' So please do taste a morsel just to save me Shine thou, our Star, when wild and drear ... The Night's dark waters roll,

Such a thing happened once in this house before a came to it. It must not happen again! I will get paid to-day for this picture, and when the children are asleep I will run round to the market and buy a turkey, with all the accompaniments, and then I will invite Mr. and Mrs. Wilson to "An, God bless you! You saved us! We were hungry!" if the reply be evasive, as is expected, the reply be evasive, as is expected, the Government will take immediate at the reply be evasive, as is expected, the Government will take immediate at the government will take immediate at the steps for agreeing on a policy with our representatives in Parliament. It is believed that this is a favorable time for action, and that if the representatives of this Province are true to its interests stoped beating for a moment at the thought "What if my darling should ever be hungry!"

Mrs. Wilson was not a weak young woman—only unnerved just then by excitement; she composed herself soon and explained.

Saint John is not the only portafflicted with combinations for cheating saillors and shipmasters. Other ports are then I wilt invite Mr. and Mrs. Wilson to eat with us to morrow, and I will learn if they are in trouble."

Inspired by kindly thoughts, she worked faster than ever, and soon the last touch was gently placed, the miniature rigidly scrutinized, and with a satisfied smile wrapped up. Then telling the children to get their coats and hats they all three nastened away to the photograph gallery. Only one young clerk was there, having been left in charge while the others went home earlier than usual.

"Mr. Poser expected you," said he, "and told me when you brought his wife's picture to shut up the place, and bring it to his house. Said he knew you wouldn't disappoint him—you never do."

"Where is the house, Johnnie; I might take it myself (and get paid," she added mentally." man—only unnerved just then by excite ment; she composed herself soon and explained.

"Yes," she said, in low thrilling tones, "yes," she said, in low thrilling tones, "we had only a loaf of bread and a bit of cheese all yesterday, and to day only a low biscatist, until you placed that delicious dinner at our door. Oh! it was like the heavenly manna. When I was eating thought I was no longer in this world."

"I am so glad that you were not sarry at me."

"Harry was angry at first. He wished me to carry it back at once, and when I implored him just to taste a little, he said we were not beggars, and ordered me to return it! I think he was really out to read as in that city; the said on the said brigands. They are how trying to break up the operations under the United States law on a lady and gentieman! We have been poor a long time. All our said orders will prevail over these same soick and out of work; we have been poor a long time. All our said orders will prevail over the seame soick and out of work; we have been poor a long time. All our said orders will prevail over these same, against whom it has been found a lady and gentieman! We have been used to live well. Now people owe larry who don't pay, and at last his money and courage went together. But you saved us! Poor Harry! he had lost you avered us! Poor Harry! he had lost you saved us! Poor Harry! he had lost the cheek the evil. It would be fay hetter to cheek the evil.

where is the house, Johnnie; I might take it myself (and get paid," she added mentally.)

"Up in Fortieth street—but you hadn't better take it. Mrs. Lenox, for he has a party to-night, and I live near there."

"Very well, Johnnie don't undo the package; if you take it from the box it might get broken."

"Oh, I'll look out; Merry Christmas, Mrs. Lenox: I won't see you to-morrow."

"Merry Christmas, Johnnie; I shall not forget you on the 26th." She turned sadly away and went slowly home with the children, trying to share their enjoyment of the brilliantly beautiful shop windows, where so many things were displayed that she would like to own. But she scarcely thought of thet, her disappointment in not getting the expected ten dollars that even ing had quite deranged her plans, for now no turkey could be bought.

"Laugh, mamma, laugh! Don't be so sill! energy and the sender, loving smile such as an angel's face might wear and both the children laughed outright."
