Stormy Weather Hard On Baby.
The stormy, blustery weather which we have during February and March is extremely hard on children. Conditions make it necessary for the mother to keep them in the house. They are often confined to overheated, badly ventilated rooms and catch colds which rack their whole system. To guard against this a box of Baby's Own Tablets should be kept in the house, and an occasional dose given to the baby to keep his stomach and bowels working regularly. This will not fail to break up colds and keep the health of the baby in good condition till the brighter days come along. The Tablets are sold by medicine dealers or by mail at 25 cents a box from The Dr. Williams Medicine Co., Brockville, Ont.

The Terrible Year.

It is practically certain the year 1917 will be a year of terror to the victor in the war, even though it does not see the close of the struggle; and it is not likely to see it. There will be battles more terrific and sustained than that of the Somme, and weekly casualties mounting higher than has ever been dreamed of, for both sides must make their greatest and final effort. What we have to confront and overcome is very forcibly told by Hon. Winston Churchill:

"What of the fourth campaign, now starting upon the Western Front—along all roads? It is now clear that Germany in 1917 will make an effort to escape the consequences of her crimes surpassing in its formidable proportions all that has gone before. Most of us do not gather together all our strength, develop to its utmost intensity every resource, and brace ourselves to meet the new shock with foresight and new waves of power and fortitude? Let us above all things, not underestimate the effort that will be required to meet it and beat it down. The German armies to-day are larger and more powerful than they have ever been. The number of divisions which Germany maintains in contact with her enemies has certainly risen in the last few months, and will probably be still further increased before the spring. They certainly cannot number now more than less than 225. The reserves of man-power will be she has available with undoubted permit her to maintain these immense forces in continuous activity throughout the coming year. If the 1918 and 1919 classes of recruits each 600,000 strong, are not thrown in as thorough as they are, the German army will be better in the struggle to end. The moral principle of the war is not in doubt. It is the need for force to yield themselves unreservedly to the martial domination of Prussia. Poland may supply additional resources. Everything will be controlled by Main Headquarters. German authority and German thoroughness will regulate minutely the war against her struggling allies. German commanders will lead their armies. German plans will govern their actions. This constantly increasing armament in direction will not become less competent as the conflict goes on towards its fateful culmination. This profusion of military effort will be supported by the greatest manifestations of submarine activity at sea, and by strenuous attempts to regain aerial supremacy. Side by side with it will be launched an insidious propaganda of peace. A cloud of fair-sounding words and sentiments will be spread between the Germany which now stands desperately at bay, and the dark and bloody records of Belgium and Serbian atrocities, and the long years of arrogant and malignant preparation for aggressive war. Every agency, whether of fear, or lassitude, or humanitarianism, will be in a word to stand between the Hun and retribution. High prices, cruel losses, uninspiring leadership, will be counted on to produce their effects upon the war-making resolution of Great Britain and her allies. The German hope is that the frontiers can be unshakably maintained for another year, a peace come from the consequences of the hideous catastrophe in which she has plunged the world, and leave her free to scheme and prepare a decisive stroke in another generation. Unless Germany is beaten in a manner which leaves no room for doubt or dispute, unless she is convinced by the terrible logic of events that the glory of her people can never be achieved by violent means, unless her war-making capacity after the war is sensibly diminished, a renewal of the conflict, after an uneasy and malevolent truce, seems unavoidable.

Making the Years Count.

As the old year wears itself out to its close there comes to nearly every man of us some irremissible thought of what life is intended to be. We are living, but what is the end of living? What is the be-all and end-all of these swift years that come and go so silently and irrevocably? There can be only one answer. The end of living is a life—a fair, sound, complete, worth-while life. The conditions, and accidents, and surroundings of living; its whole complicated machinery, are not ends in themselves, they are only intended to serve an end infinitely greater than themselves. They are only as the soil in which we are to grow that rare and beautiful and most useful thing, a life that is patterned after the thought of God. If we are growing that, even slowly, painfully, patiently, we are measuring up somewhat to the Divine purpose, and are not living in vain. But if we are not growing that then years come and go and bring nothing that is enduring or worth while in their hands. We ought to be making the years count.

Having trouble with the stowpipe is one of our standard indoor sports.

Fashion Notes.

The question of dress is like that of food—it is always cropping up. Fiercely people discuss it, denounce it and do everything but renounce it. The rights and wrongs of such a question are so many that there is only one thing left for each woman to do, and that is to dress to suit her pocketbook (supplies her). For the women who see no harm in new clothes and plenty of them, provided one can afford them, it may be said that the feminine sex as a whole is looking very nice indeed this winter. Women's clothes this season are becoming and practical, and although they are expensive they do not look so. You see few velvets and ratins in ordinary everyday life. Everywhere you see cloth coats with a trimming of fur, generally indicated by the wearer as "rabbit" cloth tailor made, worn with a long or short fur cape, and a hat of velvet or beaver.

A Builder of Health.

Nothing can be of greater assistance in building up the system than Dr. Chase's Kidney Pills. These pills purify the blood and restore the nerves, which are wasted and broken. Gradually and naturally the body and mind regain vigor and energy, and you feel again the joy of living which comes only to people in good health.

The less said about the age of women and earned goods the better.

Happiness has a peculiar way of coming and going without any warning.

Getting Rid of the Ashes

The fire in the human body is not unlike that in the furnace. You cannot get a bright, hot fire until the ashes are removed. Neither can the vital organs of the body perform their functions while poisonous, waste matter remains in the system.

It is said that the human body generates each day within itself enough poisonous matter to kill the individual ten times over. Had Nature not provided means for its prompt removal.

But the blood gathers up the waste matter—the ashes—and it is the special work of the kidneys to cleanse the blood of this poisonous material.

Since the liver, kidneys and bowels are intimately connected in this filtering and cleansing process, no one of these organs can fail without impairing the action of the others. For this reason the most satisfactory corrective treatment obtainable is Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills.

By their combined action on the liver, kidneys and bowels these pills relieve and cure liver complaint, biliousness, kidney derangements, backache and constipation. By awakening the activity of these organs you remove the cause of headaches and indigestion, the blood is purified and you feel fine.

One pill a dose, 25 cents a box, all dealers, or Edmanson, Bates & Co., Limited Toronto.
Do not be talked into accepting a substitute. Imitations disappoint.

For a Better Boy.

Boys, girls only excepted, are by far the most important product of the country, and the crop on which least attention is bestowed. Some educators in England have recommended universal military training as a preventive of juvenile crime. General Baden-Powell pointed out some time ago that it was no panacea. Germany with the strictest and most elaborate military system in the world, he says, has made a record in criminal brutality. The main steps to civic efficiency, says Baden-Powell, are character and health. He believes rather in the cultivation of the spirit of honor and the development of individual initiative than in any system of iron-bound repression. He would like to see goodness made romantic and picturesque in the eyes of growing boys. There is one thing which admits of no doubt. In every city, town, village and country side a great work stands ready for the man who will take it up. Everywhere there are boys, and every here they need the guiding hand of a "Big Brother." Very few people recognize the full significance of the familiar gospel story or realize that a boy, and most probably a very young boy, was selected as a type of the ideal citizen, the greatest in the Kingdom of Heaven. A boy's character is made up of the most splendid loyalties and enthusiasms. These can be allowed to run to evil as they can be conserved to the health of the commonwealth. For those who cannot go to the war there can be no more necessary, no more patriotic task than to help in this work of boyhood conservation.

What Did You See Out There, My Lad?

John Oxenham, the well-known novelist, has blossomed out as the most popular poet of the war. He has written five volumes of verse. "Ben is Amber," "A Is Well," and "The King's Highway" which have had a sale of nearly 40,000 copies. But we give the latest poem from Mr. Oxenham's pen:

What did you see out there, my lad? That has set that look in your eye? You went out as a boy, you have come back as a man.

What was it you saw out there, my lad? That set such deeps in your eyes? Strange things—and sad—and wonderful— Things that I scarce can tell; I have seen in the sweep of the Reaper's scythe— With God—and Christ—and hell, I have seen Christ doing Christly deeds; I have seen the devil at play; I have grappled to the sod in the hand of God; I have heard the godless pray. I have seen Death blast out a soul. From a clear blue summer sky; I have slain like Cain with a blazing blade; I heard him wailing the woe cry; I have lain alone among the dead, With no hope but to die; I have seen them killing the wounded ones; I have seen them crucify; I have seen the devil in petticoats Wiling the souls of men; I have seen great sinners do great deeds And turn to their sin again. I have sped through hell's fiery hall, With hell refulgory shed; I have heard the whisper of a voice, I have looked in the face of God. You've a right to your deep high look, my lad; You have met God in the way; And so man looks into His face But he feels it all his days. You've a right to your deep high look, my lad, And we thank Him for His grace.

The Last Friend.

It is ten years since Harry Shaw cater became a publican master says the Boston Globe. In that decade his adventures have been enough to exhaust the utmost resources of patience legal and human. They have not exhausted, his mother's. She appears at his bedside in the hospital saying "Don't worry, Harry. I'll take care of you."

What she has been through of anguish in the recapture of his son, so one except a mother can understand. The murder of White, the legal battle, the hard glare of daylight on her son's life, the efforts to be judged sane, the escapes from the asylum, the flight, another legal battle, the release and finally this fresh outbreak ending in attempted suicide—if all this were not a matter of familiar record it would sound incredible.

Yet this mother's loyalty has followed her son without faltering up to the shadow of the electric chair. She sees him not with the eyes of the world, but with eyes which remember him as a helpless baby, as an innocent child, and as a boy capable of infinite good. Love is the magic of this vision, and there is no magic like a mother's love.

Over the misery and wreck of her son's life her love and loyalty shed a kind of consecration. The eyes of the world may not share her view of her son; but there can be but one opinion of her loyalty. It cannot all wish to look inward, and if fortunate enough to have a mother living, ask who in like circumstances would be their last friend?

Destroying Woodpeckers.

A Canadian Bank manager recently boasted that he had shot seven woodpeckers in succession in his orchard, evidently under the impression that he was performing an exceedingly meritorious service to the community. He was destroying one of our most active insect-destroying birds, and though heeded interested in the conservation of his trees and of our forests, he was destroying a most useful ally in their preservation. Being insect and woodpecker-killers, their special enemies, as they were able to reach these pests so secure from other enemies. No birds are more useful in their protection of our forests.

"I hear she is a master of foreign languages," "Yes, she can tear off a few of them." "French, German, Italian, etc., I suppose." "Oh, she is way beyond them! Got, Spanish and grand opera are her specialties."

Major Frederick Borden Eaton, son of the late Mr. Starr Eaton, of Canisling, has taken over the duties of Assistant Director of Supplies and Transport at Kingston, Ont.

Capt. G. A. Barns, of the R.A.M.C. now in France, has been included in the recent list of names sent to England for honorable mention, by Sir Douglas Haig. Capt. Barns is now serving at the front with the 19th Durham Light Infantry, and his many Halifax and Dartmouth friends will join in congratulating him on the recent honor that has been bestowed upon him by the great manager-in-chief of the British forces on the Western front. Capt. Barns is a son of the late W. L. Barns, of Dartmouth.

From Saskatchewan. Mr. H. K. Bligh and his little son, Emerson Bligh, Jr., have been in the county some weeks visiting relatives and friends of the Bligh family. Mr. Bligh is a son of Emerson Bligh who was in our town visiting a few years ago and a grandson of the late Jeremiah Bligh of Woodville. He is a nephew of Mrs. Bill of this town and also of the late Howard Bligh. Mr. Bligh thinks the western provinces, and in particular his own province of Saskatchewan, are entering upon a great season of prosperity. The labor question is the great problem. Mr. Bligh and his father have a very large farm and they are engaged in mixed farming—cattle, horses, sheep, swine, also wheat, oats, barley and flax. Although only a young man Mr. Bligh has been Municipal Councillor in his district for eight terms and has been solicited to be a candidate in the ensuing contest for the local legislature.

$17,000 from a Small Town. The 'Maritime Merchant' in discussing the mail order competition in its last issue, states that in a certain small provincial town, the astounding sum of $17,000 passed through the local Express Office, and doubtless the total amount sent out from the community was easily double this, as most people buy Post Office Money Orders. This has been ascribed when some co-operative effort must be made to make the home people realize what an injustice it is to their local merchants, their town, country and province, this habit of sending money orders.

KIDNEYS FAIL TO WORK

Galena, Ont. "My husband and I got pills for Rheumatism and Kidney Disease from a doctor. The pills did not do much good. The pain in his back was terrible and the kidneys were failing to do their work properly. After taking one dose of GIN PILLS he found them to be exactly what he needed, and after taking two boxes of GIN PILLS he was completely cured. We heartily recommend GIN PILLS as every opportunity to our friends and relatives. Mrs. James B. Milford. All druggists sell."

"FRUIT-A-LIVES" Brought The Joy Of Health After Two Years' Suffering

MADAM LAPLANTE
25 St. Rose St., Montreal, April 4th.
"For over two years I was sick and miserable. I suffered from constant headaches, and had palpitation of the heart so badly that I feared I would die. There seemed to be a lump in my stomach and the constipation was dreadful. I suffered from pain in the back and kidney disease. I was treated by a physician for a year and a half and he did me no good at all. I tried 'Fruit-a-lives' as a last resort. After using three boxes, I was greatly improved and twelve boxes made me well. Now I can work all day and there are no headaches, no palpitation, no heart trouble, no constipation, no pain or kidney trouble and I feel like a new being—and it was 'Fruit-a-lives' that gave me back my health."

"Some Time."

Sometimes, when all life's lessons have been learned,
And sun and stars for ever more have set,
The things which our weak judgment here have sprung,
The things which we grieved with
Lashed wet
Will flash before us out of life's dark night
As stars shine most in deeper tints of blue.
And we shall see how all God's plans are right,
And how, what seemed reproof, was
Love most true.
And we shall shortly know that lengthened breath
Is not the sweetest gift God gives
His friend,
For that sometimes the sable pall of death
Conceals the fairest boon His hand can send.
If we could push aside the gate of life
And stand within, and all God's workings see,
Should we not put an end to doubt
and strife,
And for each mystery find a perfect key.

What Liquor Men Say.

The liquor men in the United States are somewhat aghast at the increased force of the prohibition wave but are whistling hard to keep their courage up. Some of the liquor journals declare that the movement is only spasmodic, and they predict that all the prohibition States will wither and die. Others declare that the people are drinking as much as ever in spite of prohibition, and the San Francisco Wine, Brewing and Spirit Review thinks prohibition is an awful sham, creating bootleggers and moonshiners, inducing insanity developing the use of drugs, and increasing poverty and taxation. Just how it can at the same time fail to prohibit and yet force people to resort to drugs because they can't get whiskey we are not told, but liquor men were never strong on argument. All the papers without exception seem to lament the increase of the illicit trade, but not one suggests that the brewers and distillers crush out this trade by refusing to supply it. One of the most interesting comments is by Mr. J. M. Gilmore, publisher of Boston's Wine and Spirit Circular (New York). He declares that on all sides he hears the remark "The saloon is doomed." He thinks, or at least he hopes, that the prohibition movement is simply a revolt against the saloon, and he seems to favor heading to the storm and letting the saloon be swept into oblivion. "But at the same time he is not quite sure that all that prohibition means, and he says, "Do these drastic laws mean that the people are ready and willing to give up the use of wine, beer and whiskey? If so, then goodnight! The spirit of the whole argument is that prohibition is a menace to the trade, but at the same time just as much liquor is sold, yet because people cannot get it they take to drugs; prohibition also doesn't mean that people want to get rid of liquor, but it does mean they want to get rid of the saloon, hence the brewer and distiller are safe enough, and yet they had better fight prohibition to the drop of the hat. To us the argument seems somewhat twisted, but our liquor friends seem to think it a all right.—Exchange.

A Perilous Custom.

This perilous custom of treating has spread very widely. When a customer has made a good purchase he is often invited by the merchant to go off to a restaurant or a bar-room for a bottle of wine to "close up the bargain." The drummers for commercial houses seek very often to win customers by polite invitations to a drinking resort, or to a theatre, or sometimes to hasten too vite to be mentioned. I know of a very affable salesman in a wholesale dry-goods establishment who became a dissipated man from having to invite customers to lunch with him over a bottle of wine! His employers set that bright young man to tempt other people, and he did it at the cost of his own character. The various athletic contests and inter-collegiate ball games are attended with an enormous amount of hard drinking; much of it takes the form of "treating" by those who have won their games or their bets. It is not too much to say that a vast amount of intemperance with its terrible results to purse, character and immortal souls can be traced directly to that cunning device of the devil which puts poison into a man's brain under the pretense of putting "kin-ness" into his heart.—Dr. Cuyler

About Catching Cold.

(ISSUED BY THE DEPARTMENT OF THE PUBLIC HEALTH, NOVA SCOTIA.)
At this season of the year common colds are especially prevalent. There is a great deal of misapprehension about the cause of colds. Exposure to inclement weather and to draughts may doubtless play a part in bringing on an attack, but the majority of those who suffer from colds are unable to trace their illness to such factors. Overheating, lack of fresh air, insufficient sleep, insufficient exercise, which are looked upon by some as causes, are certainly inefficient, either separately or combined, to produce a cold. The most common cause can do is to reduce one's resistance to infection. For colds are due to infection. Non, and they are spread from person to person much like other infectious conditions which involve the respiratory tract.

One takes cold because he comes into more or less close touch with someone else who has a cold, or because he is exposed in some way to infection. The germ is given off in the spray which is ejected from the mouth and nostrils in sneezing, and from the mouth in coughing and in talking loudly. Crowded public assemblies, train cars, railway cars, and such places are probably the most likely situations in which one becomes infected. Other means by which infection may be transferred include handkerchiefs, towels, dishes, cutlery, etc. One frequently sees a mother use her own handkerchief to wipe away the discharge from her child's nostrils. The practice is accountable for the spread of infection in altogether too many instances.

Every one who has a cold should be most careful to cover the mouth and nose when coughing or sneezing, and to do everything possible to prevent the discharges from his throat or nose coming into contact with articles which others may subsequently handle. Frequent washing of the hands is to be commended as a wise preventive measure, for the hands are doubtless more frequently responsible for carrying germs of infectious diseases than anything else.

A cold may prove to be a very serious matter. Just as in the case of other infectious diseases, with all, only a little condition may be in the majority of those attacked, there are always some who suffer severely. It is unwise to trifle with any infectious condition—even with an ordinary cold.

Don't Be Dyspeptic.
The dyspeptic has thought only of the stomach when the real trouble is in the Liver, Kidneys and Bowels. Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills thoroughly cleanse and purify the digestive and excretory system and in this way put the organs of digestion into splendid working condition. A little patient urging on of these organs when sluggish will restore the habit of healthful digestion.

Importance of Securing Vigorous Potato Seed Stock.

(EXPERIMENTAL FARM NOTES.)
Experiment conducted at the Dominion Experimental Station, Kentville, N. S., with eight lots of Garnet Chili potatoes secured from different growers in 1915 show a variation in yield from 36 bushels to 240 bushels per acre, or a difference of 2.4 bushels per acre in yield when grown under uniform conditions. Seed from these eight lots planted in 1916 yielded from 68 bushels to 212 bushels per acre a difference of 144 bushels per acre. The respective positions of the different lots were changed very little in the second year, but the lowest yielding ones increased somewhat and the highest yield was not so great.
Seed from fifteen others of this variety was planted in 1916 and the lowest yield obtained was 158 bushels and the highest 278 bushels per acre, a difference in favor of the best over the poorest of 120 bushels per acre.
Ten lots of pure stock of Green Mountain from different growers ranged from 180 1/2 bushels per acre to 313 bushels per acre, a difference of 132 1/2 bushels. Seventeen lots of Irish Cobbler ranged from 93 bushels per acre as the poorest to 235 bushels as the best, a difference in favor of the best yielding strain of 142 bushels.
This would show that there might be as great a difference between potatoes of the same variety, as there is between potatoes of different varieties, and that it is wise to secure stock from which have had high yielding crops. Because the Green Mountain has failed in giving a crop on a certain farm is not proof that this variety will not yield well there; it may have been due to low vitality in the seed stock. Such reasons in yield may have been due to disease, or unfavorable soil or climatic conditions which affected the crop at some time and it may be better to discard the stock entirely than to try to bring it up to its former vitality by selection.
The publisher of the best Farmer's paper in the Province in writing to us states:
"I would say that I do not know of a medicine that has stood the test of time like MINARD'S LINIMENT. It has been used for years in our household ever since I can remember, and has outlived dozens of would-be competitors and imitations."

Higher Christianity.

Two women were coming from the prayer service.
"You shocked me to night beyond measure," said one.
"In what way, pray?" asked the other in surprise.
"Why, you spoke of that horrid creature."
"Well, what of it? I did no harm."
"But you did harm. You committed an awful sin."
"An awful sin!" echoed the other. "You surely do not mean to say that it is right to cut any one in the house of God?"
"I do," emphatically. "God's house is just the place where Christians should pass sinners by—unnoticed."
P. A. G. M.

Rigid Economy a Duty.

Rigid economy is the duty we owe to ourselves and to the men fighting for us at the front. It is treachery to spend a single penny on unnecessary luxuries. To squander money is to squander victory. Neglect of the easy duty that falls to us at home must imperil the triumph gained in varying degrees, to all else. No one has the right to buy anything that is not a real necessity. The nation is staking its all on the great issue. The individual must be prepared to do the same.
