NEWS PER MAIL.

Rumours of a Russian Constitution.

VIENNA, Nov. 23.

The Tagblatt confirms the news I sent you on Friday night anent the chances of M. Waloujoff as Prince Gortschakoff's successor and adds the following particulars concerning the representative regime that would be established should M. Waloujoff eventually be appointed Chancellor.
Early in March a Russian Constitution would be promulgated, and the new Parliament would be opened in the course of the spring. The Grand Duke Constantine Nikolaievitch, brother of the Czar, and now president of the Council of State, would be appointed President of the Constitutional Ministry. The question as to what class of the population, and what provinces would be called upon to elect representatives, would be regulated in accordance with a precedent that dates from last century, during the reign of Catherine II, when representatives from all parts of the Empire were called together, with this difference—that the next Legislature would have all the character of a national Parliament. The half-savage tribes existing in certain parts of the country would not be represented.
The Russian possessions in Central Asia would be separated from the rest of the realm, and form a distinct Government after the fashion of British India. In that case the Emperor would take the additional title of Czar of Central Asia and Turkestan. Awaiting the realisation of these brilliant plans, it is announced that the present Administration intends to divide Russia into twelve Stadtholderships, in order to fortify the existing system of centralisation.

A week ago there were some tumultuous scenes at the St. Petersburg University, in consequence of a vexa-tious measure connected with the costume of the students put in force by the Chief Inspector Antropoff.

The latter appealed for assistance to General Gourko, who very wisely refused to interfere, on the plea that if he did so, he would be obliged to take stronger measures than were warranted by the offence, and to expel half the students from the University.

The Chief Inspector seems to have taken the hint, and to have smoothed a difficulty, doubtless of his own making.

Description of the New Cable Line.

[From the Boston Traveller Nov. 14.]

Only a few days more will elapse before the new Poyner-Quartier cable will have been laid, and a new through ocean connection be established between North Eastham, a point near Provincetown, Cape Cod, and Brest, France. From North Eastham the land lines of the American Union Telegraph Company will afford shore transmission to all parts of the United States and Canada, and a well organized and perfect opposition will be established. By means of this opposition telegraph tolls will, necessarily, be reduced and the public cannot fail to reap a great advantage.

The Poyner-Quartier Cable Company is composed of French and American stockholders, the former mentioned, holding the balance of power, and has a paid up capital of 42,000,000 francs, soon to be increased by the additional amount of 10,000,000 francs. Its officers are practical men experienced in telegraphic business with the outside world. The cable which is being laid was constructed by Siemens Brothers, of England, who also built the cable used by the Direct Company.

It is considered heavier stronger, than any now used by other companies. The process of its building is especially adapted to secure the results. A central wire of copper is surrounded by ten copper wires, twisted, insuring absolute conducti-ty in all weather. For insulating purposes three envelopes of gutta percha surround the wire, and outside of the gutta percha is placed a wrapping of manilla hemp treated with Chatterton's compound. An armor of steel wire for protection is outside the hemp, the wires composing the armor being laid in a peculiar manner, side by side so that fractures seem almost impossible to occur.

Surrounding the armor is another covering of manilla hemp, saturated with an antiscorrosive compound, which makes the assurance doubly sure that the cable will always be ready for use.

Next year the company will lay still another cable from Land's End to St.
Pierre, thus establishing a double line between this country and Europe.
The prospect of a speedy arrival of the Faraday is excellent and the company expresses itself confident that its connections by sea and shore will be perfected before Christmas. The Faraday, which is excellently adapted to the laying of ocean cables, was in the very centre of the recent cyclone in the North Atlantic Ocean, but paid no attention to the unruly elements, keeping on about its business of cable laying, just as if nothing else was going on. Her daily appearance is there looked for.

Gambetta's Residence.

M. Gambetta seems destined to be always setting houses in order: he has in his day done good work in this respect: recently he over-hauled his official residence at the Hotel Bourbon, odd title for a leading Republican's home but Mr. Grey lives in a Palace, and the chief Magistrate of Venice had also palatial residences; he has now made a "Voyage round my chamber," he might boast, for he has taken official possession of Chambre des Deputes, and visited it from the cellar—the anniversary of Guy Fawkes is in the air—to garret. He has replaced all the republican symbols and decorations that the Second Empire had covered with other tapestry or new paint. The accommodation is excellent, the heating and ventilation more than fair; the Stranger's Gallery is spacious, and the Press has not only a roomy compartment, but a special staircase leading to it. The arrangements for the "buffet" promise to be excellent, the cellars are stocked for half a dozen years, which corresponds to the "climatic duration" of a fixed "regime" for ever in France—according to M.
Littré of fifteen years, dating from 1870.
With all the comforts of a home thus at their command, deputies ought to turn out some practical work for the nation.

Mutiny on board the Coringa

The new Windsor ship Coringa, which came to St. John last spring, for her first cargo, was recently the scene of a fatal affray. An Antwerp despatch of the 17th ult says:

The Admiralty Court which met here on the 12th inst, under the presidency of Mr Grattan, the British Consul, to inquire into the circumstances attending the death of a man named James Henry who was killed on board the English ship Coringa, while on her way from New York to this port delivered its decision to day. According to the statement of the captain of the Coringa, the circumstances of the case were as follows:—During the voyage several disputes occurred amongst the crew, in which the first mate, Harry Cutting, had continually to interfere in order to restore peace. Eventually the quarrel rose to such a pitch that the captain himself had to intervene and he ordered the chief offender to be put in irons. At this a regular mutiny broke out, which ended in the mate, Cutting, striking down the seaman Jas.
Henry, with an axe. The latter died from the effects of the wound in six days.
On arriving at this port the facts were reported to the authorities, and the first mate, together with five sailors, named respectively, William Cheshire, William Roasted, Michael Kearney, Edward Phee and John O'Connell, were taken into custody—Cutting, the mate, on the charge of causing the death of Henry, and the others for their share in the mutiny. The Admiralty Court has now ordered Cutting to be sent for trial before the English courts on the charge of manslaughter, and has sentenced Kearney, O'Connell and Rodsted to one month's imprisonment and pay a fine of £5. The other sailors, Cheshire and Phee were acquitted.

The captain of the "Coringa" has been ordered to pay £10 of the costs, the remainder to be charged to the British Government.

Cutting was brought before the Thames Police Court early in November, and the preliminary examination commenced.

Men who have risen from humble life to wealth and high social rank have been often ashamed of their parents, and shown them little attention or respect. Such treatment indicates a vulgar mind. True nobility follows a different method. Richard Hurd an eminent Bishop of the Church of England, at the close of the last century, was a man of courtly manners, of great learning, who moved with distinction in the best society of the Kingdom. George III pronounced him "the most naturally polite man he had ever known." He however, never failed to show the utmost respect for his mother, a farmer's wife, of no education, but of sterling character. When he entertained large companies at the episcopal palace, he led her, with a stately courtesy, to the head of the table, and paid her the greatest deference. The high born families who sat at his table revered the conduct so becoming to a son and a gentleman.

A Giant and His Tailor's Bill.

A trial which is stated to have caused great excitement, came on at the Brighton County Court. The plaintiff Mr.
Ivens, is a gentleman 6 feet 3 inches in height, and proportionally stout. Mr.
Ivens's attention was attracted to an advertisement of a firm of tailors announcing that they were prepared to supply tweed suits at two guineas, and he thought, as his solicitor remarked, that a suit at that price would be an extravagance, and requested the advertisers to send an assistant to take his measure. When the assistant arrived the plaintiff told him that the firm would have rather a losing bargain; to which the assistant replied that it would be a capital advertisement for them, and that they made the little ones pay for the big ones. The plaintiff's measure was taken, and he called to have the suit refitted, but the principal told him that their advertisement did not apply to giants. He afterward obtained a similar suit at another tailor's and sued the defendants to recover 3s., which was the difference between the price he paid and the amount advertised by them. The Judge decided that the defendants had made and broken the contract, and gave judgment for the plaintiff for the amount claimed, with costs. Probably both parties will be satisfied. Mr. Ivens has got his suit, and the tailors have got their advertisement though not in the form suggested by their polite assistant.

A STRANGE STORY.

"Not long ago," says the London Daily Telegraph, "a well known collector of curiosities in Paris, who had devoted considerable sums of money to the gathering to gether of bank notes of all countries and all values, became possessor of a Bank of England five pound note to which an unusually strange story was attached.
The note was paid in a Liverpool merchant's office in the ordinary way of business sixty-one years ago, and its recipient, the cashier of the firm, while holding it up to the light to test its genuineness, noticed some faint red marks upon it which, on closer examination, proved to be semi-effaced words, scrawled in blood between the painted lines and upon blank margin of the note. Extraordinary pains were taken to decipher these partly obliterated characters, and eventually the following sentence was made out:—"If this note should fall into the hands of John Dean, of Long Hill, near Carlisle, he will learn hereby that his brother is languishing a prisoner at A'giers." Mr. Dean was promptly communicated with by the holder of the note, and he appealed to the government of the day for assistance in his endeavor to obtain his brother's release from captivity. The Prisoner, who, as it subsequently appeared, had traced the above sentence upon the note with a splinter of wood dipped in his own blood had been a slave to the Dey of Algiers for eleven years. When this strange misadventure first attracted attention in a Liverpool counting house. His family and friends had long believed him dead. Eventually his brother, with the aid of the British authorities in obtaining his release from the long imprisonment which he has undergone. He died in about six months after from the effects of his previous illness.

A Very Interesting Pauper.

At the weekly meeting of the Charlestown Board of Guardians, the clerk said that in the list of deaths at the workhouse this week, was one of a very interesting character—Charles Cartwright, aged sixty-four, who had been an inmate for a good many years. He had for a short time held an office in the house of a subordinate kind. At the commencement of his life Cartwright lived for many years in very different circumstances, and it was reported that he had got through two fortunes of $40,000 and $80,000. He knew from one of Cartwright's apprentices, who was a friend of his that he used to drive to his works regularly in a carriage drawn by four horses. He was a man of considerable education and it was interesting to converse with him. It was reported in the workhouse, and he never denied it, though he was charged with it frequently, that in addition to composing little poems which were inserted in newspapers at Stockport and elsewhere he was regularly engaged in writing sermons for some clergymen with whom he had a permanent connection. Cartwright wrote very fluently. He lived very contentedly in the workhouse, where for some time he was paid for, by his friends, and he (the clerk) was frequently applied to, to make arrangements for his maintenance out of the house. At one time he had an allowance of £1 per week, and he used to drive about in cabs, smoking expensive cigars and dining in the most expensive restaurants.

Mr. Bailey said that not twelve months ago he was at the workhouse when Cartwright drove up a handsome phaeton, smoking a cigar. He said he had been to see his friend the late Mr. Callendar whom he said he brought out, "and who would not have been member for Manchester but for him."

A Sermon by Telephone.

A unique experiment was made Sunday between the Dominion Methodist Church, on Metcalfe street, and the residence of the manager of the Dominion Telegraph Company, it being nothing less than the transmission, by telephone of the whole morning and evening services, sermon, choir singing, &c., for the benefit of an invalid having expressed a desire to hear divine service, it was resolved to make the above experiment, which has resulted so successfully. The telephone, which in a box, 4 by 6 inches, was placed upon the pulpit, immediately to the right hand of the pastor, and was probably unnoticed by the largest portion of the congregation; yet it was quietly gathering in every word that fell from the speaker's lips, and every note from the organ and choir, and re-uttering them with remarkable distinctness at the other terminus of the wire, distant about a mile and a-quarter, where lying upon his couch the invalid heard and enjoyed a Sabbath service, which, which, but for this triumph of modern invention genius, might not have been participated in for some time. Persons who were present state, that the singing, as heard through the telephone, was beautifully sweet.

The Finest Diamonds in the World.

Western sovereigns are not the possessors of the finest diamonds in the world, for Rajas of Manta porneo and the Shah of Persia have the largest hitherto known. One belonging to the Emperor of the Mongols weighed 270 carats (about four grains each), and was valued at 12,000,000 francs. The famous Orloff, the property of the Russian crown, is one of the most remarkable diamonds, on account of the well known circumstances under which it was brought to Europe. The large stone belonging to 1,730 carats, would be worth many millions were not its brilliancy diminished by certain defects. The Sultan of Nizam's diamond weighs 400 carats, that of the Emperor of Austria 29 grains, that of the King of Portugal 25½ grains. The famous Koh-i-Noor or mountain of light, is the property of the Queen of England. The one which adorned the tiara of Pius IX., and was bequeathed by him to his successor Leo XIII., is one of the finest stones known. It came from the treasury of the Duke of Burgundy; seized at Ganson, it was sold after the battle to a Jew of Bourne for 3 crowns, then successively for 5,000 and 6,000 ducats and afterwards purchased for 14,000 by Luigi Sforza, from whom it passed into the hands of Pope Julius II., for 20,000 ducats. Every one knows that the "Regent," of the weight of 136 carats, is the finest of the diamonds belonging to the French regalia. Connoisseurs consider it to be worth 12,000,000 francs.

THE CARBONAR HERALD

"Honest Labor—our noblest heritage."

CARBONAR, N.S., DEC. 25.

CHRISTMAS.

Once again the great anniversary of universal Christendom has come round, bringing with it all the pleasing memories associated with the time honored traditions connected with the advent of that glorious morn when herald angels announcing to the fallen race of Adam, the joyful tidings of the advent of a Redeemer, first sung the hallowed anthem—"Glory be to God on High and Peace on Earth to Men of Good Will." Since that glorious event, the most memorable and most stupendous in the world's history, what wondrous, what beneficent results have accrued to the interests of humanity. A world hitherto steeped in the darkness of paganism and idolatry, was illumined and vivified by the genial rays of Christianity, human nature was restored to its pristine grandeur and dignity and the foundation of human society were laid upon a lasting and imperishable basis. 'Tis true that for centuries the heaven-born principles of Christianity had to withstand all the great and potent influences, which earthly powers and principalities could bring to bear against them; but true to their Divine origin, the lapse of time has but tended to their still further and more glorious development and extension. Imbued with, and guided by the benign and all salutary influences referred to, coming down to us, through the long period of nineteen centuries, is it not fitting, we may ask, that upon each recurring anniversary of the great leading festival of Christendom, our most anxious thoughts and desires should be directed in a particular manner to the alleviation of the wants of our suffering fellow creatures, which are necessarily many and trying at this inclement season. By thus endeavouring so far as in us lies, to minister to the comfort and happiness of suffering humanity, by forgiving and burying in oblivion all past differences and disputes with our neighbours, and in fine, by a practical observance of the great Christian principles of "Peace and Good Will" to all, we may hope really to enjoy that great blessing, which we most sincerely wish unto all our readers. A HAPPY CHRISTMAS—with many returns.

PUBLIC IMPROVEMENTS.

Within the past season, some important public improvements have taken place in this town. Amongst the most prominent, is the widening of that portion of Water Street, east of the premises of Messrs. Gould and the erection of patent pumps in various localities. For these improvements, Carbonar is indebted to the characteristic zeal and energy of her much respected and venerable representative, the Hon. John Rorke. It is not unreasonable to expect, that the public lamps and the fire engine both repeatedly referred to in these columns—improvements so essential to all well regulated communities—will come next in order. With regard to the road expenditure for the district of Carbonar within the past year, we are happy to learn that much valuable work has been done in this direction, especially by the construction of roads, opening up valuable agricultural lands.

Correspondence.

TO THE EDITOR OF "CARBONAR HERALD," ST. JOHN'S, DEC. 22th, 1879.

DEAR SIR,—Some time having elapsed since I had the pleasure of communicating with you and thinking that the numerous readers of your deservedly popular and widely read journal, would like at the opening of this festive Christmas season, to hear something of the sayings and doings of the metropolis, I take my pen to drop you a few lines. The weather which has been so remarkably mild during the month of November and even far into the present month, has within the last few days assumed a character of somewhat arctic severity, the thermometer through the day of Monday ranging from 10° to 20° below zero. Notwithstanding the present rigorous nature of our climate, you will no doubt perceive from the St. John's papers, that the philanthropic ardor of the votaries of Temperance has not cooled, but on the contrary has been stimulated to more earnest and increased zeal in the promotion of the interests of their good cause. As a striking evidence of this fact, on the evening of Tuesday the 16th inst. a meeting was held at the central school for the purpose of inaugurating a Church of England Temperance Association. At this meeting which was attended by a highly respectable audience, the Lord Bishop being in the chair, several of the leading fellow citizens being speakers, the groundwork of the association was founded, which there is every reason to believe will extend over the whole colony. On the following Saturday evening a large public meeting was held in the Old Hall, the Hon. J. J. Rogerson in the chair, Messrs Killegrew, McNeily, and Withycombe being the principal speakers. Thus you will see that the Temperance campaign is fairly opened and a large army is taking the field to do battle with the forces of the old despotic monarch Rum. So much for Temperance movements, the next most important subject of local interest is the usual annual Christmas examination of the various educational establishments, which were certainly of a highly creditable character. Whilst writing upon this subject I am reminded of an impression that is gaining much ground amongst our people, of the comparative utility of a higher order of education for the rising generation of this colony, considering the limited field for advancement afforded natives of this country; owing to the importation of strangers to fill positions, proper speaking, the birthright of the children of Terra Nova. That much ground exists for complaint on this score, I am sorry to say, is unfortunately, but too true more particularly with regard to our mercantile establishments, where comparative strangers are but too often thrust into positions of trust and emolument over the heads of those whose claims to prior consideration are incontrovertible. I am however happy to observe a growing spirit of patriotism and determination now manifesting itself amongst all classes and sections of our people, which I have no doubt will in time prove an effective remedy for the evils complained of. Reserving for a future number some further observations, which the length of my present letter precludes. Yours, &c.

A Trip to the Dominion.

No. 7.

Ottawa, the governmental capital of the Dominion, is a romantic and beautifully located city on the southern bank of the river from which it derives its name and is distant about one hundred and sixty miles by rail from Montreal. In its earlier days some quarter of a century since, this unpretentious lumbering settlement, known as Bytown, so called from its first founder Col. By, an officer of the Royal Engineer department, was the home of the Indian and the woodman little idea being then entertained as to its future destiny as the governmental metropolis of the Dominion whose territories now extend from the Pacific to the Atlantic. However within that period, time, the great arbiter of the destinies of men and nations, which has produced such wondrous changes in the political affairs of many countries of the Old World, has not been without exercising its influence upon those on this side of the Atlantic, the Confederation of the British North American provinces, from P. E. Island to British Columbia not being the least important amongst the changes above referred to. To this last mentioned great variation in the political affairs of the sister colonies may the young and promising city of Ottawa attribute its present proud position, its site as the governmental metropolis of the Dominion, being the choice of Her Most Gracious Majesty, its old and mellifluous Indian name of Ottawa being substituted for that of Bytown. The city of Ottawa embraces within its limits a population of about forty thousand inhabitants, chief of British and French extraction, the latter element being principally located in that section of the city east of the canal and known as lower town, whilst the British mainly occupy the upper or western portion of the city. Ottawa being an incorporated city, its municipal affairs are directed by a Mayor and Town Council selected from the prominent business men of the city. Next to the Parliament Buildings the leading objects of interest to the tourist visiting Ottawa, are its churches and educational institutions. Of the former there are about twelve, located in different quarters of the city, all being of the various denominations comprising the population of the city, the principal being the Roman Catholic and Church of England Cathedrals, both in lower town, and St. Patrick's Roman Catholic, and the Kirk of Scotland in upper town. All these buildings are splendid specimens of architecture and form no unimportant feature in the varied attractions of the city. Among the educational institutions of Ottawa, the most prominent are the R. C. University the magnificent institution of the Christian Brothers, both in lower town, the splendid schools of the sisters of Notre Dame and of the Grey nuns, branches of each of which are located in different parts of the city and the Ladie's College on the Richmond Road in the western suburbs. Besides the institutions mentioned, Ottawa possesses also quite a number of Banks, branch establishments whose headquarters are at Montreal, two public markets, an Opera House and several halls the property of various public bodies connected with the city. At the time of my visit, the press of Ottawa was represented by three respectable sized dailies, irrespective of the Gazette, the official paper of the Government, which is printed and published from the office, eastern block, Parliament Buildings. The principal industry of Ottawa is the lumber trade, quite a number of mills being established at the Chaudiere, or western end of the city, the logs for which rafted down the river from various sections of the Ottawa valley are detached in cribs above the Chaudiere falls and passed through the timber slides to the river below. To the stranger visiting Western Canada, no more interesting sight can be presented than that of those magnificent logs containing some thousands of valuable rafts floating down the waters of the Ottawa, skillfully guided and directed at every turn of the river by the hardy and adventurous raftsmen who in the pursuit of their perilous avocation encounter no small amount of risk, not a few instances being on record, where from the breaking up of the rafts from some cause or other, many of the noble fellows have been consigned to a watery grave.

Local and other Items.

The extensive circulation of the "Herald" throughout Conception Bay and the various outport districts of the colony render it a most desirable medium for advertising purposes. We would direct the particular attention of business men generally to the above mentioned most significant

The weather which during the past and up to the middle of the present month has been peculiarly mild and favorable for the season, has within the last eight or ten days, undergone a considerable change, sharp bracing winds with rather intense frost succeeding to the mild weather experienced during the earlier part of the season. Throughout Sunday and during the forenoon of Monday the weather was unusually severe, the temperature being so extreme, that several parties exposed to the inclemency of the weather, were rather sharply frostbitten.

In accordance with the invariable usage of the press at this season, Thursday next, New Year's Day will be a holiday with our staff. We therefore beg to intimate to our numerous readers that the HERALD will not be published on that day, the next issue will however appear, on the following Thursday, 8th ult.

We inadvertently omitted Captain Peter Furlong's name in publishing, in our last issue the signatures to the address presented to the Rev. S. Flynn.

We learn that the "Theresa" Dean master, belonging to Messrs Duff & Balmer, from Sydney, bound to St. John's, and now overdue, was seen off the Narrows on Thursday last, prevalence of westerly gales since then, the vessel, we presumed must have made for to the South East, and will, of course require a few days favourable wind to get back.

The "Annabella" and "Fredrick William" arrived here, Tuesday last at 10 a.m. in the height of the snowstorm the "Voyager" also arrived in Harbor Grace same time; the three vessels having left St. John's at 2 o'clock that morning.

The members of the Avalon Dramatic Club of this town, have now in rehearsal, the popular and well-known drama entitled, "More Blunders than One," and a farce entitled, "The Irish Tutor." From all we can learn of the previous history of the Club, we confidently anticipate a rare treat on the occasion. We wish the Avalons every success.

By Proclamation in the Royal Gazette of Tuesday, 6th inst, we learn that the Legislature of this colony has been still further prorogued until Thursday, 12th February, then to meet for the despatch of business.

The weather, on Monday last, was so unfavorable, that the s. s. Lady Glover, did not cross the Bay until Tuesday.

We would direct the attention of our Police authorities, to the suppression of an evil, in connection with which, for some time past we have had much cause of complaint. We refer to the disreputable practice of tearing and defacing posters and notices placed in prominent localities on the public highways. Should this disgraceful practice be continued in the future, we shall leave no means untried to bring the guilty parties to justice.

On Monday morning last, a person resident in the eastern end of this town, in the vicinity of Harbor Rock Hill, having to come up town on business, unfortunately lost £2 in Bank notes, between the locality mentioned and the premises of the Hon. John Rorke. The finder, upon leaving the same at this office, will be suitably rewarded.

On Sunday night last, a valuable brooch was also lost, between the premises of Messrs. Joyce Brothers and the Beach. The finder will be suitably rewarded by leaving the same at this office.

Our old and much esteemed friend, the Editor of the Temperance Journal, will please accept our most grateful acknowledgements for the Christmas number of that interesting little periodical. The Temperance Journal comes to us as usual at this season, replete with a varied and recherche, collection of matter, particularly appropriate to Christmas. We most heartily wish our worthy contemporary, the compliments of the season—with many happy returns.

PATRON.

The Most Rev. HENRY CARFAGNINI, D. D., O. S. F., Bishop of Harbor Grace.

VICE-PATRON:

The Most Rev. JOHN CAMERON D. D., Bishop of Archat.

REPORT:

It affords us much pleasure in submitting our usual Annual Report, to congratulate the Society on the prosperity attained during the past year.

The Society held its annual procession on the 31st December last and assisted at Thanksgiving Mass celebrated at the Cathedral of the Immaculate Conception.

We regret to record the death of two members during the past year. Mr. M. Murphy, who died at Labrador, and Mr. Robert Granville, jr., a young and very deserving member, whose remains the Society accompanied to the grave.

By the Treasurer's account now laid on the table, we find the receipts of the past year amount to £185 5 6 and the expenditure £143 16.

The demands on the funds during the past year for sick benefits were unusually large, but we are led to believe that all similar institutions in the Island bear the same record.

The Juvenile Society is, we are glad to say, in a very prosperous condition both in numbers and finance, reflecting much credit on the guardians.

We have to acknowledge the continued interest in the Society displayed by our beloved Bishop and Patron the Most Rev. H. Carfagnini and his clergy members, particularly by our Spiritual Director the Very Rev. D. Falconio, O.S.F.

In conclusion we offer our thanks to the members for their hearty co-operation, especially for the zeal displayed in promulgating the principles of the Society, as is witnessed in the large increase of membership of the past year.

Respectfully submitted,

A. T. DRYSDALE, President, JAMES GRAHAM, Secretary.

The Paradox of Time.

A VARIATION ON RONSARD,

Time goes, you say? Ah, no!
Alas, Time stays, we go;
Or else, were this not so,
What need we chain the hours,
For youth were always ours?
Time goes, you say—ah no!

Ours is the e, e, deceit Of men whose flying feet Lead through some land cape low; We pass, and think we see The earth's fixed surface flee—Alas, Time stays—we go

Once in the days of old, Your locks were curling gold,
And mine had shamed the crow;
Now, in the self same stage, We've reached the silver age;
Time goes, you say—ah no!

Once when my voice was strong, I filled the woods with song To praise your 'ro e' and 'snow,' My bird that sang is dead, Where are your roses fled?
Alas, Time stays—we go!

See, in what traversed ways, What backward Fate delays The hopes we used to know; Where are our old desires?
Ah, where those vanished fires?
Time goes, you say—ah no!

How far, how rear, O Sweet,
The past behind our feet Lies in the even-glow!
Now on the forward way,
Let us fold hands and pray, Alas, Time stays—we go!

"BOREEN."

CHAPTER VI.

Then Ethel pulled Nugent from one end of the launch to the other, presenting him to all hands, and revealing the entire resources of the boat, from the latest novel of William Black to the ice-house, wherein reposed a shape of ice representing 'Mist de la Cour,' after John Everett Millais. Presently she bounded to the deck with a cry of 'There's pappal' and sped across the grass to meet a spectacled gentleman clad in blue flannel and a glazed-horn pipe-looking hat and a buff-ribboned tie. From the pockets of the raki little jacket bulged forth official papers bound with the stereotyped red tape, and in his right hand the most noble the Marquis of Pomfret, K. G., bore a scarlet morocco despatch box bearing the all-potential initials V. R., being those of his sovereign lady the Queen.

Ambling beside Miss Branscombe was a gentleman attired in white flannel very open at the neck, a broad, rolling flannel collar being confined by a sailor knot of delicate pink, while between the ends of the 'All in the Downs' trousers, and the varnished patent-leather shoes peeped forth stockings the same hue as the tie—this being the 'correct form' on the river Thames. The man was handsome, languid, and of the crutch-stick and tooth-pick class. He was one of the charmingly-dressed lay figures one sees in the bay-windows of the palatial clubs in St. James' Street or Pall Mall.

A sting of what? Was it jealousy? Bah! A throb of pain beat in Walter Nugent's heart as he recognized in Miss Branscombe's companion Sir Jasper Jyvecote.

'This is Walter, papa,' cried Ethel, as she led her father on board by the handle of the despatch-box.

'Ah!' casting a Treasury-Bench glance at the barrister. 'How do, Mr. Blantyre,' extending three whole fingers.

'Nugent,' exclaimed my hero, flushing scarlet.

'Ah! look at Blantyre. Have a habit of calling a certain set of young men Blantyre. Like a type. Fine day.' And the Marquis, who in his language combined the Socratic method with the Jingo ellipsis, passed into the saloon where he soon became immersed in papers which he extracted from the scarlet despatch-box.

'Barrister,' exclaimed his wife can't you let those horrid things go for one day?

'I can't my dear. House sitting. Fifty questions to answer. Secretary to meet me at Cookham Lock, another at Marlow, a third at Pulleyne.'

'Who would be a cabinet minister, Mr. Nugent?' laughed the marchioness. 'I have a nominal husband, Ethel a nominal father. I believe that he is alive, that he resides beneath the same roof with me, I know that he sleeps. I cannot say that he eats or drinks. As for reading, like the brook he goes on for ever. How I wish Mr. Disraeli would throw over the reins of the government to Mr. Gladstone!

'By Jove! if he did you'd have your husband in Opposition,' drawled Sir Jasper Jyvecote.

'Any change would be for the better, Sir Jasper.'

'Haw! Haw! Really, that's awfully good. I must tell that at the club. By the way, you heard what the Duchess of Sutherland said the other night at Lady Dudley's dawnee.' And the Baronet proceeded to relate, with many chuckles and any number of 'aw you knows,' a very pointless, long-winded story beginning with nothing and ending with less.

'I am not the guest of these people. I do not swim in their sun-lighted waters, I do not use Nugent's bitter. I have been invited to amuse their child, to put on cap and bells, spread out my ragged carpet, and tumble for her. And making a sign to the watchful Boreen, he lastly rose and strode forward, where he seated himself upon a brass cannon which shone in the June sunlight like burnished gold.

It was a beautiful scene, the silvery river smooth and full of serene lustre as a mirror, the lilies and reeds, and wild flowers and trees, reflected full fathom five' the sky of a keen blue painted with tree-tops, and the outer edges of the caves white in the glorious dayshine. Trout and perch and barb leaped high in air, leaving soft, billowy rings on the glassy surface, through which the bows of the saucy launch cut mercilessly. Now they passed a green field, the grass languidly nodding to the scythe-man, new by the deep shadowed wood emitting the odor of pine and cedar, now in front a lawn of emerald velvet glowing with blood-red geraniums and lilies, and golden calceolarias and scarlet snapdragons, backed by a lordly villa, the children saluting the steamer with hats and croquet-mallets and joyous shouts. Now they darted beneath a bridge of antique shape, its gray stones apparently held together by the clinging clutches of lichens and mosses and ferns, yokels and bloves and straw hats gazing downwards on them as they scooted in and ready with open eyes and open mouths when they emerged on the other side. Ever and anon they would come upon white-flannel clad youths towing their-kits, their companions lying at full length on gaily-coloured cushions in the boat or peering long, unwieldy punts after the fashion of the Venetian gondoliers. They skimmed close to elderly gentlemen seated upon wooden chairs in flat-bottomed boats, fishing for barble, each man with a red cotton handkerchief across the back of his neck and an open umbrella in the disengaged hand. The laughter of picnic parties from the woods rang upon the airy hum of summer, mingled with the lowing of cattle and the barking of jealous dogs, who, espying Boreen gave him to understand that, were he bold enough to set foot on shore, he'd be driven to take the water again and make that his natural element. Oh! it was a glorious day in June and what so fair in the whole year's case of Dame Nature?

Walter Nugent seated astride the brass cannon, gave way to bitter thoughts.

'I knew I would be in the way, and yet I was weak enough to remain in London for the purpose of—what? To spend a day on board the steam-launch of a marquis. I suppose if I was a friend of the engineer, or the steward, or the pantry boy I could have done the same. Ay, how they laugh! The idiotic jokes of this guided borenet go off like feu de joie. I do not admire your taste Miss Branscombe. I suppose it's all right; eh, Boreen, old man? To this Boreen responded by a violent barking directed at a sleepy-looking cow that was standing knee deep in the cool water beneath the shade of a horse-chestnut in full bloom.

'You have deserted us, Mr. Nugent,' said Hester's sweet low voice.

'Please not to mind me,' exclaimed Walter. 'I am enjoying this thing immensely.'

'Least lonely when most alone.' Who is it that has said that?

'Miss Branscombe,' he retorted, 'I am not alone. Am I Boreen? Whereat Boreen dashed madly from side to side of the launch, challenging every living thing on either bank of the river to mortal combat.

'Have you been up the river before Mr. Nugent?' seating herself on a camp stool.

BEWARE OF AMERICAN COUNTERFEITS

I most respectfully take leave to call the attention of the Public generally to the fact, that certain Houses in New York are sending to many parts of the globe SPURIOUS IMITATIONS of my Pills and Ointment. These frauds bear on their labels some address in New York.

I do not allow my medicines to be sold in any part of the United States. I have no Agents there. My Medicines are only made by me, at 555 Oxford Street London.

In the books of directions affixed to the spurious make is a caution, warning the Public against being deceived by counterfeiters. Do not be misled by this audacious trick, as they are the counterfeiters they pretend to denounce.

These counterfeiters are purchased by unprincipled Vendors at one-half the price of my Pills and Ointment, and are sold to you as my genuine Medicines.

I most earnestly appeal to that sense of justice, which I feel sure I may venture upon asking from all honorable persons, to assist me, and the Public, as far as may lie in their power, in denouncing this shameful Fraud.

Each Pot and Box of the Genuine Medicines, bears the British Government Stamp, with the words 'HOLLOWAY'S PILLS AND OINTMENT, LONDON,' engraved thereon.
