CHAPTER XVIII.
"COURAGE MOUNTETH WITH OCCASION."

"Mind, it is a friend who pays it," she begged. "That is enough for any to know; and, Jacob, the friend is 'Miss Grey'—my mother's friend. It is as if she were to dwell here"—giving him the address—"where you must render up accounts to her. What are you looking at?"

"Th—the—this!" he answered, with some confusion, putting up the paper she had given him. "I used to know the name—once."

"My mother said the same. But it may be only chance. Anyhow, as Sydney Grey I shall not—her lips curving sadly at the dead—"disgrace any belonging to me."

"Disgrace!" the old clerk began—but the train was gliding on. He could only, hat in hand, bid her good-bye, and then turn toward, saying slowly, "Hurst, Hurst. Ay, it's best, then, she should be Miss Grey."

With evening Sydney reached her destination—Capel Moss, high, wooded, three parts encircled by a swift-rushing river, on whose foliaged banks masses of crag stood forth like sentries.

Then, with the end of wandering in view, came the fear of excessive weariness, the fall of spirits too long forced. As she made the last mile foot, the full sense came upon her that St. Clair's was lost, no other certainty attained. For a minute her heart faltered. Then out from the amber sky gleamed one bright star. She took it for an omen, and thanked God. The lad who was her guide cried out from the rear, "This be Wynstone, miss." Another instant, and the homely features of last week's acquaintance met her at a porch covered with almost-scented "traveler's joy." She was welcomed—brought into a room where light from the western sky yet lingered. There a tall figure stood. "My brother Gilbert," said Miss Hurst, with a nervous gesture of explanation; and Sydney recognized one whose blind loneliness had moved her pitying help ten days before.

CHAPTER XIX.
MISS GREY'S NEW DUTIES.

Sydney had speculated at different points of her journey on what the "us" of Miss Hurst's communication signified.

Now whether to be glad or sorry, in the surprise of this recognition, she hardly knew. The feeling uppermost she spoke.

"I have seen your brother before, Miss Hurst, so we are not quite strangers."

"As I should have known the instant I heard you speak," said Mr. Hurst, turning toward her voice with some eagerness, but promptly dropping back into his first attitude. "I told you, Jean, the foreign aid made up to me that day for our missing each other's trains. I am glad"—with a bow toward Sydney—"to be able to thank Miss Grey more fully than I could then."

"Well, really," cried Miss Hurst, "this is extraordinary! for both to have met, both spoken to you! And then for you to have found a reason for taking the situation I was talking to you about without the slightest notion of your ever wanting it! That was a most remarkable morning! I hope its events may work for the benefit of us all, Miss Grey."

Remarkable truly, Sydney yet bewildered over its curious climax, had forgotten her new personality and was thinking instead of responding. Miss Hurst felt uneasy. Whatever had induced this beautiful young woman to Wynstone, she did trust the prospect of the peculiar employment required was not going to scare her away, or make her a worse disappointment than that weak widow.

"I hope," she repeated, with emphasis, "we may none of us regret the events of that singular morning."

Sydney quickly responded herself.

"Oh, no! Why should we? I'm—quelling a faltering nerve—never mean to." And reassured by this, her hostess, employer, whatever she was to be, shook hands once more to make up, perhaps, for her brother's not having done so at all, and led the newcomer up stairs, just entering the audible warning.

"Gilbert, stand still till I come down. You are not used to this room. You may knock the chairs over if you more."

"It's a fearful trial" to him, Miss Grey, she pursued, ushering Sydney to her room, "and in a large degree, to me. I'm sure he's never off my mind a moment. And the better he bears it the more I've felt it my duty to keep with him, and make him cheerful, which is not easy. That reacts upon myself, and is the real cause of my feeling we must have a third party. You understand, I couldn't enter on this writing. It would have looked awkward to say, 'I want you expressly to help in taking charge of a blind man,' would it not? And I thought, if you'll excuse my saying so, that as you frankly said you were leaving home from circumstances you would rather not mention, why, I might be allowed a little reservation too. You see?"

"Quite," said Sydney, smoothing her dark hair back with tired hands. Peace from reproach, leave to earn her bread, was all she felt to want awhile. "This makes no difference to me, Miss Hurst; only show me how to be useful; I will do my best."

"And I will show you that fast enough," said Miss Hurst, cheerfully, "but we need not begin to-night. Suppose you can find your way down. There's not much space to go astray in. Your room and mine look out at the back—a lovely view by day-light. Through the swing door, the staircase, and my brother's room. His is shut in by poplars, but that doesn't matter. As I thought when your letter reached me—"

"Yes?" said Sydney, Miss Hurst having come rather inconsequently to a stand-still. "You thought?"

"Oh," hesitating, "nothing particular, Miss Grey. I shall run on till I tire you. But," turning back with a droll bird-like air of caution, "excuse my naming it; I hadn't mentioned anything about you to my brother, Odd, but I hadn't."

Very odd, as Sydney could realize later, for her new friend had not the faculty of keeping much to herself.

"So he knows nothing about you; age or anything personal. And it's as well, perhaps, he should not. You'll feel more comfortable if he imagines you like me, about seven-and-thirty. It will put us on a pleasanter footing, won't it?"

Sydney scarcely saw the force of the argument, but agreement being expected, gave it without qualification.

"From seventeen to seventy," she said, smiling. "I don't mind the least; I won't announce that I am just twenty-one!" and Miss Hurst descended, well pleased.

"A nice, capable person I think this Miss Grey will turn out," she informed her brother, who stood resignedly as she had left him—"intelligent, unless I'm much mistaken. So, Gilbert, I hope I've hit on the means of giving you pleasure and myself rest. No—stopping at a disturbed gesture of her brother—"I didn't mean that, of course. I'm always ready to wait on you, Gilbert, my dear, and attend to you. I consider my time freely yours. Still, I mean, you'll naturally like a change of voice about you, and I can get out now and then, which is what I've never liked to do, for fear you would have an accident before I got back. Now this—er—person" (an appellation so charmingly vague, Miss Hurst kept it sacred to Sydney for many months) "will be in charge of you, as it were, and I shall be easy. And I can manage the extra expense. I do want you to be comfortable. You are sure of that, Gilbert?"

"Yes, Jean," he answered, the contraction of forehead, sign of distress more mental than physical, melting in a smile of singular pathos. "I'm sure I have a sister with the kind heart in the world. If I seem to forget that, it is only because I ache under being a burden to her."

"Now, Gilbert, don't," Miss Hurst stroked him affectionately with a huge crochet-hook. "How can you be a burden? you know I have no one—now—with a querulous sigh—"to care for but you. It's my duty and desire to make you happy."

Then which nothing might be truer. And yet, poor lady, never was method clumsier than that she employed over the task. For Sydney reappearing just then, Miss Hurst begged her to follow to the dining-room, and seizing her brother by the arm, drove him, like a huge schoolboy in disgrace, a few paces in advance; called volubly to Fanny, the young servant in attendance, to put a certain mat straight, unless she wishes Mr. Hurst to trip and break his limbs; apologized to Sydney for ministering first to her brother's requirements at table, "because," in a stage aside, "it might weary him to wait, as he can't see what is going on"—and ere the end of the meal, by acts palpably well meant and exasperating tactics, plunged her brother into patient taciturnity, Sydney into sensitive discomfort. How she was to fill the singular position into which the evening had led her because a prospect so formidable that the tall figure of Gilbert Hurst in every variety of dilemmas haunted each hour of her first night at Wynstone, while, as if to keep her task to the fore, he was the first object her glance lighted on when she looked from her window next morning.

What the World Owes to X-Ray Wonders.

When, a quarter of a century ago, Professor Rontgen discovered, after years of patient study, rays that could pierce certain substances through which light had never passed before, he little dreamt of the way in which his feeble apparatus would be developed in a comparatively short time.

His small vacuum tubes gave out rays which, though capable of penetrating a few substances, could not pierce any kind of metal.

Doctors hailed the new discovery, for it enabled them to find, for example, the exact position of a broken needle in a patient's foot by means of an X-ray photograph. Such a photograph then required an exposure of many minutes; now it can be taken almost instantaneously.

The medical side of X-rays has made enormous advances. The exact position of the broken bones in a fracture can now be seen by the doctor, who formerly had to rely upon his sense of touch. Deformities and displacements of the internal organs of the body can be photographed. If a patient is suffering from indigestion he is given a meal containing some metallic substance such as bismuth. As the metal will not allow comparatively weak X-rays to pass, the process of digestion may be watched and the seat of the trouble discovered.

It has been found, too, that X-rays have a wonderful curative effect in certain skin diseases.

But there has been another development of the use of this marvellous penetrating rays. The invention of the Coolidge tube a year or two ago made it possible to produce X-rays of unlimited power; it was soon possible to see through three inches of even such an opaque substance as hard steel. Today a new form of tube is being made by means of which it is hoped to penetrate a thickness twice as great.

This opened up an entirely new field. The most careful tests by hand or unaided eye cannot disclose the presence of flaws in a bar of steel, and if a flawed bar is used for the making of an axle of an express engine an appalling accident may result. By means of the Coolidge tube we can now examine not only the outside but also the inside of steel bars. Internal flaws escape detection no longer.

Another great difficulty in the past was to test a welded joint. In a perfect weld the two pieces of metal are combined so closely that they seem to become one. A joint may look perfect, though really it is a very bad one. In this case its two halves, though joined well enough on the surface, are quite separate within. Such a joint in a great girder may cause the collapse of a bridge with terrible loss of life. X-rays enable us to examine every part of it, and the fault is detected.

Trapping Criminals.

It is important that the wood used for building aeroplanes should contain no knots, for their presence may mean that one of the struts will give way under the enormous strains it is called upon to withstand. Here again we call in the aid of the "eye" that sees through everything.

There are a thousand other uses for X-rays in everyday life. They will tell real diamonds from false; the former let them pass easily for detecting faked pictures, for when a canvas is X-rayed old and new paint show up quite differently.

The Custom-house man makes use of X-rays to detect smuggling. Precious stones hidden in the heel of a boot show up as clearly as if the heel were made of glass. The rays are the greatest use to those who deal with criminals, for an X-ray finger-print is clearer than one taken with ink-pad and paper. Even now they are the doctor's best friend, and in the world of business, unerring detectors of dangerous faults, bad work, and fraud. What they may do for us to-morrow no man can say.

THE WRONG ROLE.

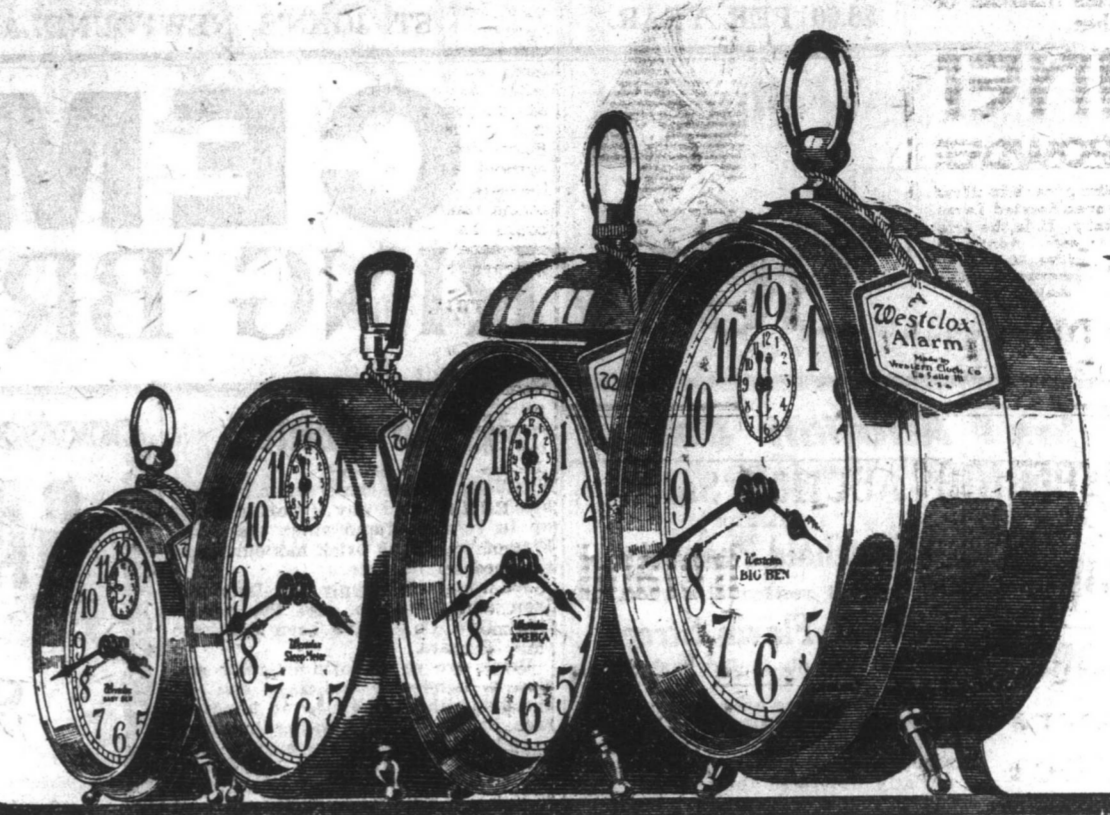

G. Bernard Shaw put on his robe prophetic, and said that Carp would win the recent fight; his guess was raw; it was a thing pathetic, and as a seer G. Bernard was a fright. No more can he with features most commanding, compel our awe when he'd the future read; at one fell swoop he spotted his prophet standing, he Elijah badly gone to seed. When a prophet sees the people grin, if he is wise he will take in his own shot his bolt, he's fooled by his snoring, his words don't crash facts are out of line. All over world poor delegates are trying the things for which they were sent into harm. The barber longs to preach a ringing sermon, the bandman would plow the sea, the student hopes to see French and German, when all needs is Greek or Cherokee. In us this folly is outcropping, other crafts we'd drop our tools; with diligence I keep my a-popping, but I would like to see cows and mules. Westclox alarms make and hold so many friends because they run and ring on time.

The secret of their dependability is inside the case—Westclox construction.

The wheels turn on needle-fine pivots of polished steel. Friction is greatly reduced; the clock runs more smoothly and gives you longer service.

Big Ben, America, Sleep-Meter and Baby Ben are the four top-notchers of the Westclox line. But all Westclox alarms have this same construction. The men who make Big Ben take pride in making every Westclox right.

It will pay you to look for the Westclox mark of good time-keeping on the dial and tag of the clock you buy. Then you will have a timekeeper that you can depend on for honest, faithful service.

MOTHER naturally thinks of the possibilities of the fabric shrinking in the wash. It is therefore a relief to her to know that the fabric will not shrink or lose its charm if Lux is used for its cleansing.

Durability, charm of colour, quality of texture, the freshness of newness—these are preserved to all good fabrics washed with Lux. A packet of Lux—a bowl of warm water—and dainty hands can cleanse delightful fabrics in a delightfully easy manner.

The beautiful pure Lux flakes are whisked into a creamy, bubbly lather in a twinkling. Greatly assists the cleansing foam through and through the soiled texture—then rinse in clean water and hang to dry. Lux cannot harm a silken thread, it coaxes rather than forces the dirt from the clothes.

British Government Make

Maximum Offer to Ireland.

Lloyd George Will Address Letter to De Valera--Rumors of Military Mobilization May Have Bad Effect--Lahore Objects to Visit of Prince--Freedom of Movement For American Food Commission.

CARDS FACE UP.

LONDON, Aug. 19. The British Government, declared Lloyd George to-day, in making its settlement proposals to Ireland, had looked on putting the whole of its terms into a letter to Eamonn De Valera, without keeping anything back, and the sequel had proved, he said, that it was right in adopting that course. I want to make it clear, continued the Premier, that the Government did not put forth haggling terms, but put forth everything they could easily concede to purchase peace and the good will of the Irish people.

In Ireland itself, as far as I can see, the doubt is not as much as to the terms, but as to whether the Government really means them, that is the question of working out the terms, of elucidation and elaboration, and not changing the terms, the outline of which cannot be altered, nor the basis changed. Former Premier Asquith followed Lloyd George, in addressing the House of Commons, expressing approval of the course adopted by the Government with regard to adjustment. He thought, however, it would be a great misfortune if the action were misinterpreted as indicating an abandonment of, or even relaxation of hope for a peaceful settlement. Amid cheers the Liberal leader declared the Government's proposals entirely commendable themselves to him in substance. A much more important fact, Mr. Asquith added, was evidence in the opinion they had behind them throughout not only the British Empire, but the United States. Some other speeches and questions followed, during which the Premier stated that if there was a settlement the House would proceed with a Bill without any delay other than that necessary for thrashing out of the terms, and he did not think that could be done by October 18th in any case. The motion to adjourn on October 18 was adopted.

THE MAXIMUM TERMS.

LONDON, Aug. 19. Lord Curzon, speaking in the House of Lords to-day on the proposals, said the Government had offered all that could be given without compromising the safety of the Realm, the Sovereignty of the Crown, and the dignity of the Empire.

RUMOURS THAT IRRITATE.

DUBLIN, Aug. 19. Thus far there has been no sign of any unusual influx of Black and Tan or soldiers into Dublin or other parts of the country, but rumour, which is claimed to have emanated from military sources, says there are 30,000 troops in England ready to be transported to Ireland in case of the breaking down in Irish quarters the view is expressed that even the rumour of such preparation, and it is only such will be found to have a bad effect upon Sinn Fein opinion.

LARKS THAT ARE CRIMES.

DUBLIN, Aug. 19. Two Black and Tans, who were out on a lark, commandeered an auto belonging to the Irish Republican faction. The Republicans retaliated by kidnapping the Divisional Inspector of Police, and it took all the diplomacy of liaison officers to get the affair smoothed over.

PUNJAB DEMANDS UNCONTROLLED KHALIFAT.

LONDON, Aug. 19. A Reuter cable from Lahore, capital of the Punjab, says that the municipality of Lahore has passed a resolution, with but two dissenting votes declaring that until the wrongs both of the Punjab and of the Khalifat are redressed, it would be unwise and inexpedient for the Prince of Wales to visit Lahore in the course of his forthcoming tour of India. The resolution adds that though the municipality entertains no personal feeling or disrespect for the heir apparent, its members feel convinced that his visit would be exploited for political ends, and it has determined not to accord him any welcome whatsoever, nor to incur expense for his reception, nor to participate in official functions. The Punjab has a population of over ninety millions. The question of Khalifat restoration of its complete independence of control at Constantinople, is therefore a live one.

A NECESSARY CONTRACT.

RIGI, Lovin, Aug. 19. Walter Lyman Brown, for the United States, and Maxim Litvinoff, for Soviet Russia, agreed this afternoon to sign to-morrow definite contracts for United States relief for the Russian famine in terms, granting to the Americans extreme freedom of movements and absolute control of food distribution.

EX-PREMIER RHALLYS DEAD.

ATHENS, Aug. 19. Demetrios Rhallys, former Premier of Greece, is dead, it was announced here to-day, as the result of an illness which he has been suffering for many months.

TROUBLE IN THE PHILIPPINES.

MANILA, Aug. 19. Charges that members of the Philippine Constabulary are killing Moros in Mindanao Island, because they complained of abuse to the Wood Forbes Mission, are contained in a telegram received by Charles E. Yester, Acting Governor of the Philippines from E. S. Lyon, United States prosecutor in Mindanao Island. The telegram said prominent Moros in Lanao are in fear of their lives, because they made complaints to General Wood. One of the men, one woman and one girl were killed, two men and one boy were wounded by Constabulary on August 3. Prominent Datus say the Constabulary's action is a violation of the Moros they would kill all Datus who made complaints. On August 14, the Constabulary beat up six Moros without cause. The Moros request that you (Yester) telegraph the Constabulary not to kill them, and notify General Wood, Brigadier General Cramm, commanding the Constabulary, and Mr. Yester has referred the matter to General Wood.

A SUDDEN SINKING.

ROCKLAND, Me., Aug. 19. Five men barely had time to scramble to the wharf early to-day, when the fishing sloop Minerva sank in the dock without warning. The Minerva had 300 pounds of fresh fish aboard.

TRIBESMEN REPTILED.

MEILLIA, Aug. 19. Spanish convoys and advance posts have been furiously attacked by Moorish tribesmen. The convoys were driven back by artillery fire with great losses.

HOME RULE FOR WALES.

LONDON, Aug. 19. Announcement in favor of Welsh Home Rule has been made by Premier Lloyd George, says the Liverpool Post to-day. The Premier, who made the announcement at a dinner of Welsh Nationalists, pledging himself, according to the newspaper, to support a measure of Welsh devolution, if such were agreed upon by the Welsh members of Parliament. The Home Rule favored by Welsh Nationalists means a greater degree of local self-government.

HEAVY ACTIONS AGAINST MAS-KINGO.

QUEBEC, Aug. 19. The steamer Maskinonge, which collided with the Canadian Recruit last night, causing her to be beached and practically submerged, was seized in the stream here to-day for a claim of $560,000 on behalf of the Canadian Government. Action for the above amount and other possible damages to result, was also entered in the Admiralty court against the owners of the same ship, and the Dominion Oil Company, on behalf of the Canadian Government Merchant Marine.

SPAIN RECRUITING IN ENGLAND.

LONDON, Aug. 19. That a recruiting campaign is being carried on by the Spanish Consulate in England to secure troops to fight against Moorish tribesmen was brought up in the House of Commons to-day by Joseph Kenworthy, Independent Liberal, who endeavored to get the Government to make a statement on the subject, but Cecil Harmsworth, Under Secretary for Foreign Affairs, declined to discuss the matter until he had had opportunity to consult with other Government departments.

REVOLUTIONIZING STEEL.

TOKIO, Aug. 19. A new process, by which sand and iron or magnetite sand may be converted into pig iron and thence into steel, has just been made public by Goro Matsukata and Dr. Osobu Naito. The discovery, scientists say, will not only revolutionize the steel industry of Japan, but of the world. The process is carried out by means of combining sand iron with coke, using hot gas flames, and making ferro-coke, from which iron can easily be taken.

MUTINY ON STEAMER.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 19. Mutiny on board the Panama Railway Company steamer Alacra, was reported to the Navy Department to-day in an official message from the commander of battleship squadron No. 2. A guard of marines was placed on board at the request of the master, the message said.

The Most Sacred Links of Empire.

In the series of remarkable speeches delivered at the Annual Dinner of the Royal Colonial Institute, the dominant note was attachment to the Royal Family. The King, the Duke of Connaught, who presided, and the Prince of Wales, who announced that he had become a Fellow, have, in their various ways, rendered service to the cause of United Empire which can hardly be too widely recognized. As Mr. Melghon so happily put it: "That human affection which, in our rather inexpressive language, we term loyalty to the Crown sums up what is the most sacred link of Empire." No Cause For Alarm.

Lloyd George's statement in the House of Commons on Thursday, concerning the Anglo-Japanese Alliance, recently renewed, was made with the one purpose of showing that United States has nothing whatever about which to be alarmed because of the agreement between the two. The alliance was discussed freely at the Imperial Conference of Premiers, and all agreed that Japan had loyally observed every condition of the alliance treaty with Britain, during the war. The British Prime Minister took particular pains to make it clear and beyond the shadow of a doubt that it was by no means impossible for Great Britain to fulfill her obligations to Japan, while at the same time observing and cultivating a spirit of fraternity toward United States. One only difficulty was in the way of a United States-Japanese rapprochement, and that was the problems of the Pacific, in which ocean Japanese interests are paramount. But whether it is advisable to permit Japanese influence to be paramount also, considering that United States has certain claims therein, not forgetting those of Britain, as well as the question which is causing all the controversy. Of course, unless a thorough understanding between the three nations is arrived at, each will view the other with possible distrust, and where distrust is there can be no confidence. It will be a matter for congratulation if the conference to be held at Washington reaches a complete basis of agreement on the Pacific problem. Should this sense the suspicion created in United States that Japan has designs on absolute control of the Pacific Ocean will be dissipated, and a better and more confident feeling engendered. The future peace of the world would thus be guaranteed, for the three principal naval powers would be most concerned in preventing warfare and increasing their commercial prestige, to the advancement of their trade interests and industrial productivity.

But United States Government and people, regard the Anglo-Japanese Alliance as a menace. An extremely readable article by George L. Koehn, of the Department of History, Reed College, Portland, Oregon, is published in the August number of "Current History." In the course of his writing Mr. Koehn says, "Many Americans, especially those who live on the Pacific Coast, view with uneasiness the renewal of the alliance in its present form. They regard this pact as inimical to the safety of the United States, and feel that if it should be renewed without change, British-American relations would be poisoned by mutual distrust and fear, and vitiated by a continuous anticipation of war." The fear of the East does not lend itself so much to the West, the people of which section do not see that there is a great cause for alarm in a closer tightening of Anglo-Japanese relations. But the East is obsessed with the idea that there is much to be alarmed at over the renewal of the alliance between Britain and Japan. They have developed the conviction that this alliance is against United States, and according to Mr. Koehn insist that such alliance is an obstacle to good relations between Britain and United States; first because it is conducive to bringing about a war between America and Japan; and secondly because in case of war England would be morally bound to come to the aid of her ally. Since this alliance was consummated in 1902, Japan has adopted a foreign policy, says Mr. Koehn, which involves three aims: (1) To have repealed all legislation of a discriminatory nature, and to obtain equal privileges and rights for her people; (2) To obtain a free hand in China, and to proclaim a so-called Monroe Doctrine over Asia; and (3) To gain control over the Pacific. In everyone of these ambitions, Japan has come into direct conflict with United States ideals, and has led to a state of affairs which, some observers believe, makes a war highly probable.

The first aim of Japan has an important bearing on California. This State does not want Japanese immigration, nor will it tolerate racial equality. Japan, while claiming equal rights for its people who emigrate to other countries, does not permit foreigners to become citizens of her land; neither will she allow them to become laborers or engage in any business. But Japan, according to the Oregonian professor of history, uses the issue of race equality as a smoke screen to conceal her actions in the Far East, and to imbue her populace with a strong hatred of America as popular pretext for war. This would be alarming indeed, were there sufficient evidence that England would hasten to the assistance of Japan if the latter country declared war on the United States because of some imaginary grievance arising out of the hostility of California or any other State in the Union to Oriental immigration. But there is nothing in the text of the 1911 pact that pledges Britain to rush to the assistance of Japan, unless that nation is attacked by another. Article II. of the pact of 1911, reads:

"If by reason of unprovoked attack or aggressive action on the part of any power or powers, either high contracting party is involved in war in defense of its territorial rights or special interests mentioned in the preamble of this agreement, the other high contracting party will at once come to the assistance of its ally, and will conduct war in common, and make peace in mutual agreement with it."

It cannot be certain at the moment, whether or not this Article was modified in the recent renewal, but this much can be said, that the statement of Great Britain did not sign this agreement or subscribe to the above words, without being frankly clear on the position in which it placed them. That United States would be the precipitant of hostilities against Japan, did not enter their minds, yet if with true Oriental cunning Japanese agitators working deviously, as is peculiar to them, so irritated the United States that to save her honor and dignity the Union had to declare war, the question to be decided would be whether Britain was justified in completing the terms of the agreement or not. But with the words of Lloyd George so conscientiously expressed that "Great Britain could faithfully fulfill her obligations to Japan and at the same time observe the spirit of fraternity toward United States, it may safely be assumed that there is nothing entangling in the new alliance recently entered into, and consequently there is no cause for alarm by United States that Britain is a potential enemy because of the Anglo-Japanese agreement.

Not a Fish Producer.

Russia although having parts of its coast line washed by three great seas, Baltic, White and Black, and with a great inland sea, Caspian, and numerous rivers, is not a fish producing country, though dwellers on the shorelines of the waters named, do engage in the catching of such fishes as frequent these seas on a small scale. All the fish food hitherto imported consists of Siberian and Scotch herring, salted and pickled, and according to writers acquainted with internal conditions, salted herrings and a tin of great value, and oysters are the only foods the majority of the population have tasted since spring. Possibilities are opened up here for the sale of Newfoundland's herring pack, particularly if the Fordney Tariff Bill in United States passes. That Russians are fish consumers has been very clearly shown to Mr. A. Cohen, whose letter appears in our columns today. They do not go in for the dry cure, but are very partial to salted and pickled varieties. As fast days upon which no meat can be eaten are enjoined by the Orthodox Russian Church, it is not difficult to conceive the vast opportunities offered Newfoundland, once Russia is restored to normal conditions. The suggested idea that our exporters induce the Government to take up the sale of such of our fish as are now in the markets of Europe awaiting purchase, to either the British or American Russian Relief Commissions, is rich in possibilities for the future, should such a consummation be arrived at.

Police Court.

Two cabmen summoned by Const. Churchill for disorderly conduct were each fined $1 and costs. Mr. Hunt appeared for one of the accused and pleaded not guilty. Mr. Barron for the other put in a plea of guilty, with extenuating circumstances. Two laborers were charged with the larceny of an oil barrel from a Water Street grocer. Mr. E. L. Carter for one of the defendants pleaded guilty, with extenuating circumstances. A fine of $2 was imposed. Mr. Ayre for the other defendant pleaded not guilty, but a witness for the prosecution deposed that he saw the barrel. A fine of $2 was also imposed. A motorist for driving without a light on the night of the 18th inst. was fined $5 or 14 days.

Schooner Refloated.

A message has been received by the Assistant Collector of Customs stating that the schooner Bessie C. Lake, of St. John's, ran aground on the beach at Ferryland yesterday. A dense fog prevailed at the time and the crew discharged about 2 tons of the cargo in the bay after which the schooner floated off without sustaining any damage.

Schooner Ashore.

Shortly after one o'clock to-day the Fisheries Department received a message from the operator at Cape Race saying that he had sighted an unknown schooner ashore on Chance Cove Beach. No further particulars were given. It is likely that the vessel went ashore in a fog and that the crew are safe.

TO-DAY'S MESSAGES.

A SPLIT FORESHADOWED.

DUBLIN, Aug. 19. No visible change in the Irish situation has taken place in consequence of the speech delivered in the House of Commons to-day by David Lloyd George, British Prime Minister. In general effect, comment heard on all sides, after the Premier's speech appeared in the evening newspapers, was that Lloyd George understood his constituents and that De Valera understood his. The silence of Arthur Griffith, founder of Sinn Fein, since the opening of Dail Eireann, has been the subject of some comment, and there have been rumors dealing with the possibility of Griffith leading those of moderate opinion in Sinn Fein against De Valera.

MR. J. A. MacKENZIE HONORED.

VANCOUVER, Aug. 19. C. Stephenson, Winnipeg, was elected President of the Life Underwriters Association of Canada, at the closing session of the annual convention here to-day. Among the other officers elected was the Vice-President for Newfoundland, J. A. MacKenzie.

DOES NOT WANT HOME RULE.

DUBLIN, Aug. 19. The Irish Bulletin, this evening, prints a protest against what it describes as a deliberate distortion of a grave issue, by misrepresenting Ireland as demanding Home Rule. The newspaper declares that what Ireland demands is freedom, which in Ireland's sense never can be reached by the road the dominions have travelled.

NO TRIPLE ALLIANCE.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 19. Comment among Senators to-day was unfavorable to the proposition of an alliance between Great Britain, Japan and United States. Senator Borah told a representative of the Canadian Press that it would be, in his opinion, useless for Lloyd George to come to the Washington conference after contemplating such a plan. Senator Hitchcock said the idea was hardly consistent with the purpose of the League of Nations, and he doubted whether United States would be interested in it.

TWO EXPRESSIONS.

LONDON, Aug. 19. Continuing his address in the House of Lords to-day on the Irish question, Lord Curzon, Secretary for Foreign Affairs, said no one could fail to be struck by the unprecedented unanimity of praise and support with which the Government's offer had been received. The press of the dominions, the people of which, above all, were the best qualified to judge what dominion status meant, and the true character and scope of the offer, praised it. He referred also to comment on the opinions of foreign newspapers, especially those of United States. Lord Curzon concluded by saying that the issue was trembling in the balance. If any challenge were given, the Government would accept it, and would not quail before the difficult task that would lie before it. Baron Birkenhead, Lord Chancellor, said he could not share in the optimism that pervaded some of the speeches on the outcome of negotiations. It would be disastrous, however, if it were not clearly recognized by those to whom the Government's offer was addressed, that the offer contained the Government's last word and compromise. The Chancellor concluded by saying that no one should bind himself to the conclusion that if the present attempt at negotiations collapsed, Great Britain would find herself committed to hostilities on a scale never previously undertaken in Ireland.

REMAINS CHIEF FIGHTING FACTOR.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 19. Results of bombing tests off Virginia Capes, from June 21 to July 21, have failed to displace the battleship from its prominent position as the nation's chief defense at sea. This was the outstanding conclusion of a report of the joint board of army and navy, made public to-day, by General Pershing, senior member, and approved by Secretary Weeks and Acting Secretary Roosevelt. Tests, which resulted in the sinking of four ex-German warships by aerial bombs, proved powerful, and the board added that it has become imperative, as a matter of national defense, to provide for the maximum possible development of aviation in both army and navy.

AGREEMENT REACHED.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 20. A satisfactory agreement has been reached with the Soviet Government at Riga, under which the American Relief Administration will begin immediately to fight a famine among the children of Russia. Secretary Hoover announced yesterday.

WHAT WERE THEY?

DUBLIN, Aug. 20. The danger that exists of possible incidents, whilst Irish negotiations are being prolonged, was again called to attention to-day by reports from Cork on happenings of last night there.

PEACE WITH U.S.A.

BERLIN, Aug. 20. Unless unexpected complication develop in the next few days, a formal peace treaty with United States will be signed by the German Government next week.

LEASING PETROGRAD PORT.

LONDON, Aug. 20. Donald McLeod's weekly report says it is reported that an English financial group have secured a long lease from the Soviet Government of the port of Petrograd, and that, if carried out, the deal should prove of great value to the shipping of all Nations.

CHANCE FOR A BARGAIN.

LONDON, Aug. 20. A Reuter despatch from Paris says that a law has just been passed by France, stipulating that the French owned fleet of cargo steamers must be sold by August 21, 1923.

Russians Are Fish Eaters.

Important Communication From One of Themselves.

Editor Evening Telegram.
Dear Sir,—I am much interested in the letters published in the Evening Telegram by Mr. Wm. White in reference to the disposal of our fish to the Russian Relief Committee. I think that Mr. White has put forward a splendid idea, which should be followed up at once by the fish trade through the Government.
Having spent the greater part of my life in Russia, and knowing the country and habits of the people, I can say that Russia is a great fish eating country. Every Russian from the highest to the lowest is fond of fish. Herring from Siberia and Scotland is in great demand. The Russian is especially fond of fish food, pickled or salted dry, and our dry codfish would be considered a tasty meal which they would eat in an uncooked state with bread.
There are two fast days a week, and nine weeks fast before Easter, when the Russian must eat fish of similar foods. If Newfoundland catered to Russian requirements, the entire product of our fisheries would be only a small proportion of Russia's needs. If caplin, dog fish, flat fish and many other kinds of Newfoundland fish which are now turned into manure, were sent to Russia, say via Riga, in a pickled state, our shippers would be surprised at the ready sale and the good prices which would be obtained.
Yours truly,
A. COHEN.

Rubber Boots

WEAR is what you want in Rubber Boots and WEAR is the one big feature in the "Columbus" brand. Note the arrows in the illustration. They point to the parts of the boot where the hardest wear comes.

"Columbus" Rubber Boots

are made to stand hard usage. They are made of the finest grade of Rubber and the process by which they are cured—Steam Pressure Cure—gives them a lasting quality that makes them wear indefinitely.

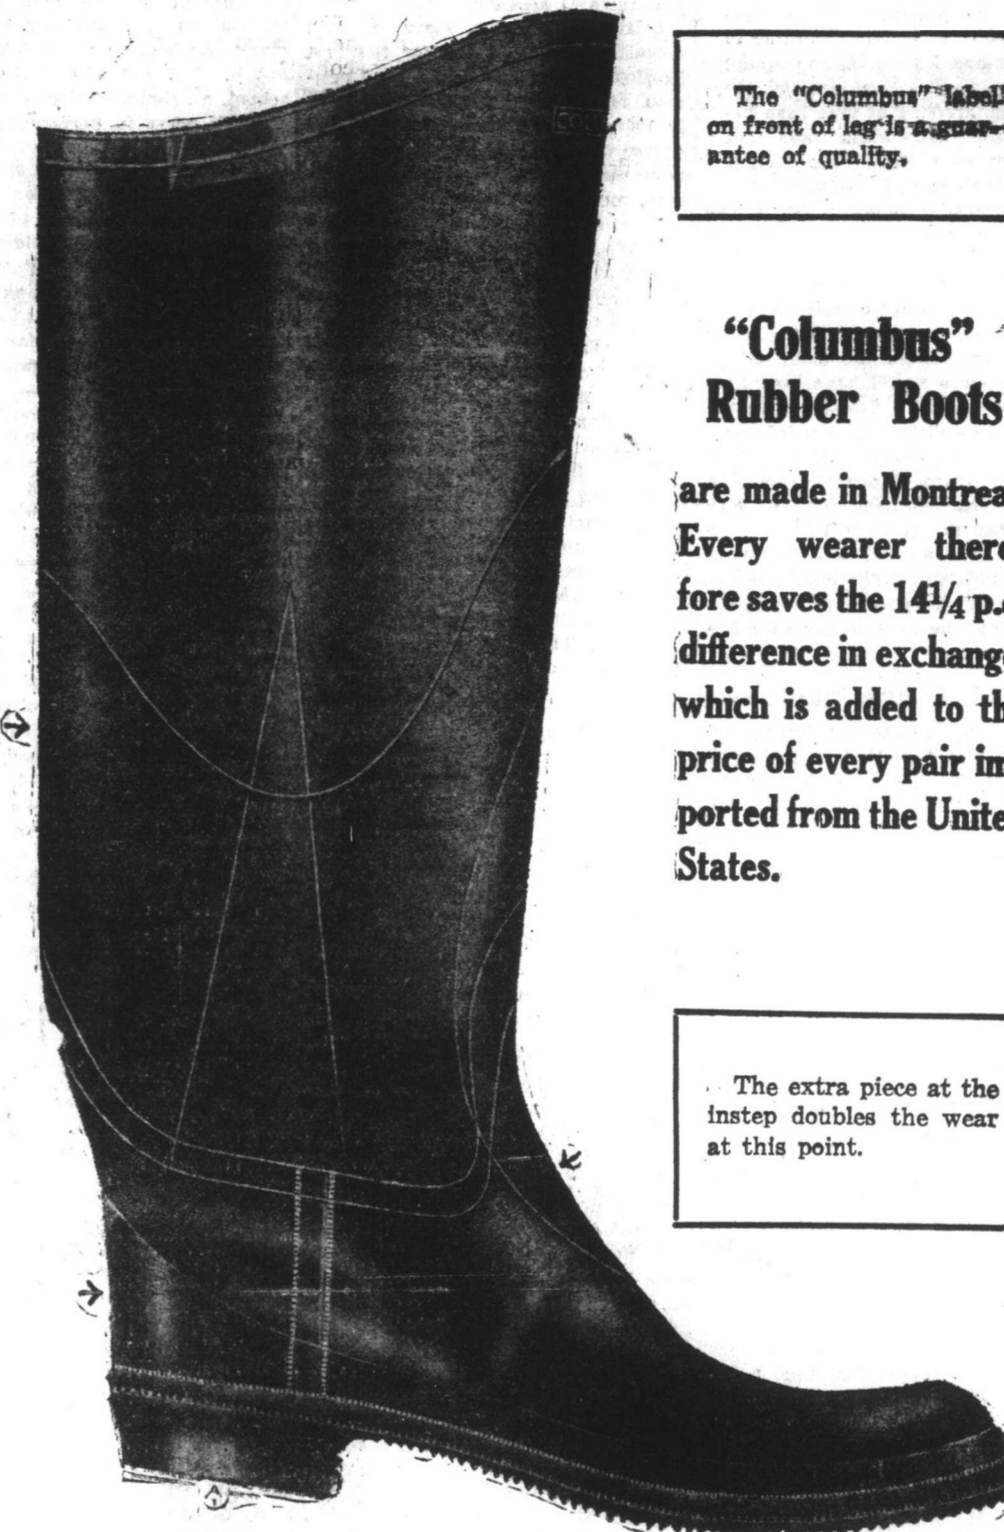

The back part of the leg is also reinforced at the right spot.

It is a real economy to buy these Boots.

You don't know how good a pair of Rubber Boots can be until you've tried the "Columbus" brand.

The back-heel is double strength, in keeping with the sole and heel.

The heavy solid heels also add to the durability.

The "Columbus" label on front of leg is a guarantee of quality.

"Columbus" Rubber Boots

are made in Montreal. Every wearer therefore saves the 14/4 p.c. difference in exchange, which is added to the price of every pair imported from the United States.

The extra piece at the instep doubles the wear at this point.

Maybe it's because he gives so much study to hats and men; because he sells many more hats than any other store. But principally because he has at his back the World's three Best Hats:

Christy, Stetson, Borsalino

that makes correct hat choosing certain. Sometimes customers get confused seeing so many styles—want them all, yet can buy only one. But there Kearney is at their side to help and advise. "That's the one for you!" he says—and he's never wrong—never!

Lobster Fishery.

The Packers of Placentia and St. Mary's Bay are making an effort to get permission to renew lobster fishing in September, and have made application to the Marine & Fisheries for same.

In view of the growing scarcity of Lobster season after season, we think it would be unwise to allow Fall fishing, which in the end would react with greatest harm on the Lobster fishermen themselves. If this privilege is granted to Placentia and St. Mary's, no doubt, other districts will make a similar claim. The argument that the times are exceptionally hard just now, is a strong one, but the Lobster fishermen should be able to find other paying work, such as codfishing from now till the last of October.

We understand that the Executive of the Government is holding a meeting to decide on what reply to give to the requests of the Packers of Placentia and St. Mary's and, it is to be hoped, in the best interests of the future of the Lobster fishing, that the close season will continue, as it is under the law.

Cribou Reported Scarce.

Should be Protected by Enforcement of Close Season.

A gentleman who returned from the interior this week reports that Caribou are surprisingly scarce and that he believes they will become extinct in a few years, unless there is made a close season for at least three years. The Caribou has been a great asset and unless protected by a close season they will be all gone in a few years.

He spent a month in the hunt of the Deer Country and never saw a Deer. Twenty years ago he was in the same territory and saw hundreds crossing his camping grounds every day. There is more vital necessity for protecting the Caribou by a close season than in making a close season year after year to save the beavers.—Trade Review.

CUBS PROTEST GAME AGAINST RED LIONS.

Manager Hall of the Cubs has entered the following protest to the League in connection with Thursday's game which was won by the Lions 4 to 2:—

"Gosse, at bat, hits a fly between 'home-plate and first which will fall directly on the base line. 'Gosse, making a straight run up 'the line, arrives at the point 'where the batted ball is about to be fielded by pitcher Callahan, 'who is standing on the base line 'to receive the ball. Gosse, real- 'izing the possibility of interfer- 'ing with fielders according to 'Gos. 6 and 7, Rule 56, by running 'off the base line and behind the 'fielder, arriving at first base be- 'fore the ball—which was not 'caught by Callahan but relayed 'to first to catch the runner."

The protest then goes on to allege that the heart-breaking part of Base Umpire Hartnett's decision in calling Gosse out for "interference" is that two Cub runners had crossed the plate before he was called out. Gosse being third down, retired the side, other- wise the score would have been tied. Claude deposited a five-spot with the protest like a little man, which he will lose should the League fail to sustain it. Should John B. see the point in Claude's argument, and the rules bear it out, then the game will have to be replayed. And we feel safe in saying that the fans would dearly love to see another clash. A special meeting of the League will be held to-day to settle the matter.

ON YOUR TOES, BOYS.

Interest in the Championship Sports' Event on Wednesday afternoon grows apace, and the grand stand reserved seats at 25 cents are selling rapidly. As the programme is under the auspices of the Amateur Athletic Association, the various courses are being carefully measured, and three stop-watches will click off the time. A number of the athletes of the dear goneby days are generously subscribing gold medals for each event, and each winner will in addition receive the first A.A.A. certificate to be issued qualifying him as the recognized champion for 1921. Also, a special and very valuable Victor Ludorum medal will be presented by the A.A.A. to the athlete receiving the greatest number of points, viz.:—4 for first place, 3 for second, 2 for third, and 1 for fourth. In the past the hundred yard runners have been seriously handicapped by crowding and collisions on the course, and to overcome this each man will be given tapes. This is an excellent idea and will ensure fast time being made. Below we publish the local records which we feel sure will be interesting to our readers, and will bring back memories of all the by-gone days since the late Mr. Tom McNeill inaugurated the Highland Games, which were the first recognised sports to be held in Newfoundland. It is more than likely that some of the records will be shattered. In the Guards' Sports, young Skirving (who is clipping seconds off the mile each time he runs) was only 4 seconds behind the record time, and his supporters feel that given favourable conditions he can do the trick. Raymond Halley has done 4 hurdles this summer in 13 seconds, which is Eric Bowring's time for a 5 hurdle stant. Albert Martin is only 4.5 of a second behind the record for the 220 yards at the G.W.V.A. Sports. Duke Winter is also in training for the 100 and 220 though not yet entered. The Football Place Kick is a new event and one that is sure to be exciting, as a great difference of opinion exists as to which of our local footers has the strongest kick. The record is 200 feet, or about two-thirds the length of St. George's Field. Charley Cyr, who is due on the Maroon Wednesday morning, will run Bell for 5 miles. This is an open event, and anyone may enter. It is therefore likely that all the 10 mile men who competed in the Guards' Sports will be on deck to see what they can do against the Montreal artist. Bell is out to beat Shrubbs' time of 26 minutes 32 seconds, and in view of his remarkable showing on Wednesday, feels that he can do it. On the road he has done it in 26.02 without labouring, but of course turf is much more trying. A final meeting of the Sports' Committee will be held to- night to complete all arrangements. To prevent discomfort to spectators who occupy the grand stand, only ticket holders will be allowed inside the enclosure, and the committee in charge have decided to issue sufficient tickets only to ensure seats. It is therefore advisable to buy reserved grand stand tickets now selling at 25 cents each at Cheeman's. The public are reminded that positively no one will be allowed inside the grand stand around the field except those who will be asked to take charge of the field as officials, etc., and hearty co-operation of the public in this respect is requested by the Sports' Committee.

LOCAL RECORDS.

5 Hurdles.—Eric Bowring holds the Newfoundland record, having run in 1909 at St. George's Field with 5 hurdles in 13 seconds.

100 Yards.—Jim Vincombe 9 4-5 seconds at St. George's Field in 1899. Ran subsequently for 8 years doing it in 10 seconds flat each time.

220 Yards.—George Knight established a new record of 35 seconds at the Highland Games in 1909, which he smashed again in 1913 by 1 second. At the last G.W.V.A. Sports Albert Martin was only 4.5 of a second behind.

1-4 Mile.—At the C.L.B. Sports in 1910 Knight broke all previous records by doing it in 55 seconds flat.

1-2 Mile.—Held by Joe Greene, time 2 minutes 11 seconds.

1 Mile.—For many years a gold medal had been offered for the first Newfoundland runner to do it under 5 minutes. Frank James ticked it off at 4:53 in 1909, but as it was claimed the course was short, refused to accept the prize until the track had been competently measured. The late Owen Steele finished second in the race with a time of 4:57. It was not until four years later that Fred Marshall broke James' record at the Star-C.C.C. Sports by doing it in 4:50, and he still holds it.

Pole Vault.—Is held by Charlie Eagan who mounted 9 feet 3 inches at the St. Bon's Sports in 1916.

High Jump.—5 feet 4 inches by Bob Culhane at the St. Bon's Sports.

Cricket Ball Throw.—Jack Caning threw it at the Cadet Sports this year for 345 feet 10 inches, beating Mike Finn (the previous record holder) by 22 feet 2 inches.

Putting the Shot.—Held by Sergt. Morrissey, distance 35 feet.

Hammer Throw.—The records are not quite clear on this, but Will Co-field has a distance of 84 feet, 2 inches.

5 Mile Turf.—Alfred Shrubbs ran it here three years ago in 26 mins., 32 secs.

Drop Kick Football.—This is a new event here and there is no local record. The world's amateur record was established by W. P. Chadwick of Exeter, in 1898, of 200 feet, 8 inches.

Wanted—A Benefactor.

Editor Evening Telegram.

Dear Sir,—Mr. Geo. Ayre deserves the praise and thanks of every citizen, as he will deserve those of future generations, for at last getting the Parade Ground into the hands of those who will improve it and change it from an eyesore to a thing of beauty, and everybody will concede that it is high time. Now as Mr. Ayre has done his part, who is going to do the rest? The Hon. Sir Edgar Bowring has endeared himself for ever to all his fellow citizens by his munificent benefactions. His name would live forever if he had only bestowed a "new" Park as a gift to his native city, but his latest gift to the blind will be the means of having prayers said for him, and he prunes sung, when most of the rest of us have been long forgotten.

During the last five years, several rich merchants have died and left millions to be squandered by people, many of whom would be better with- out it. But not one of them left a school, a scholarship, a park or even a parish pump in perpetuation of his memory, or as a benefit to his fellow citizens. They are gone and forgot- ten, and the only mention they get from their fellows is one of contempt for their avarice and cupidity.

Surely we have amongst those who made so much money during the war, at least one who has bestowed and given a Park as a gift to the Parade Ground what Sir Edgar has done for Bowring Park.

Last week I was at Bowring Park, with a party of New York ladies and gentlemen, who had seen all the parks of their own country, and many of those of Europe. They were all enthusiastic about the natural beauties and all joined in generous praise of the bounty of Sir Edgar Bowring. They emphasized the fact that nearly all their men of wealth bestowed parks, universities, scholarships, etc., on their native cities, and it is only the old miserly hogs now that try and carry their money with them. Is there any patriotic man, or bunch of men, who will now guarantee to spend a few thousand dollars on the Parade Ground to make it a source of pleasure to future generations and to help and keep his or their names ever green? I pause for a reply.

Yours truly,

An Admirer of the Bowring Type, Aug. 20, 1921.

Turkish Joan of Arc.

ANGORA (Associated Press).—A Turkish Joan of Arc, Aishe Hanum, has started a woman's fighting brigade against the Greeks. Her organization, called the Kain brigade, has already taken part in active fighting and she is constantly enrolling new recruits. This is the first time in Turkish history that a woman has been so militantly active. She has been dubbed by the people of the Anatolia, "The Conqueror." Her personality is in distinct contrast to the beautiful Halide Edib Hanum, the writer and graduate of the American Constantinople College, who has been so active in Nationalist politics for for two years, and fled to the interior in March, 1920, to escape imprisonment by the Allies.

Aishe Hanum is a stern, dark woman of the soil, aged 53, who sees visions and believes she is inspired by the Prophet. She wears a veil, but has cast aside skirts. She carries a rifle, and when not at the front, goes through the villages accompanied by her 15-year old son, urging the peasants to contribute food and money and their able-bodied women to cast out the enemy stranger from the homeland. As Nationalist soldiers, the uniform of the Kadin Brigade corresponds to that of its leader.

Indirectly, Aishe Hanum is doing as much as Halide Hanum to emancipate the Turkish woman. When she began her work, the Turkish men, who dislike to have women interfere in politics, tried to force her to return to her farm. But, by the courage born of her visions, Aishe Hanum has continued until she is recognized as an aid to the Nationalist cause.

Italy's White Strike.

Rome, (Associated Press).—The so-called "white strike" of the state employes of Italy produced another series of innovations in labor disputes. The workers kept their positions and nominally did not cease to work but all "soldiered on the job" to such an extent that in many cases total absence from work would not have wrought greater damage. The strike besides involving the ordinary employes in the state administration included the post office forces, which in Italy comprises both the telephone and telegraph. The employes would present themselves for work in the morning and "soldier" along with their work, setting practically nothing done until 11 o'clock, when all would leave the various ministries and offices for a labor meeting. The whole of the state's administration would then be at a standstill for several hours, while in some cases it extended for the whole day. Besides the mass meetings, there would be local meetings held in the various departments, all at the expense of the time of the government. The greatest public inconvenience was caused by the attitude of the postal employes, including the telegraph and telephone staffs. Dismissal was threatened those who attended the daily labor meeting, but that threat only partially succeeded in restoring discipline. Telephone service was practically at a standstill. Persons would attempt to get the centrals for hours and would finally give it up in despair. Occasionally, a central operator would answer but there was never a guarantee that the connection wanted would be given. The letter-carriers also participated in the "white strike." The street letter-boxes became filled too full for another letter. They were only emptied when it satisfied the whims of the man assigned for the work. The service was completely disorganized. Premier Giolitti gave orders that all adhering to the "white strike" must be punished. Accordingly over 100 were discharged in Rome, 400 in Milan, 140 in Naples and a large number elsewhere.

TOKIO.—(Associated Press).—The betrothal of Prince Yasuhiro, the second son of the Emperor, and Princess Naoko, fourth daughter of Prince Ichijo, will take place in the near future, it is believed here. Prince Yasuhiro, who was born on June 25, 1902, is now attached to the third regiment of infantry, stationed at Tokio. Princess Naoko, who is 14 years of age, is attending the Peereses' School.

Saint Cyprian.

Thascius Cyprian was born about A. D. 200, at Carthage, where he spent the greater part of his life. He was a teacher of rhetoric and was remarkable for his learning and his integrity. When well on in life, he made the acquaintance of Caecilian, a venerable Christian priest, and from him he learned the virtues of his faith.

At the death of Caecilian Cyprian took the name of Caecilius in addition to his own.

Interpreting literally the words of our Lord, "If thou wilt be perfect, go, sell that thou hast, and give to the poor," he sold the two landed estates that he possessed and distributed the proceeds to the poor.

Cyprian then devoted himself to the study of the great African Christian Father Tertullian, and almost at once became a noted man in the African church.

In the year 246 he was raised by the votes of the Christian Community to the dignity of the priesthood, and it is said as early as the next year, was placed at the head of the church as bishop.

The fact that these honors, came to Cyprian, unasked, angered a number of the priests who formed a party against him and proceeded to contest the authority of Cyprian.

During the Decian persecution of the Christians, Cyprian absented himself but not because he lacked courage.

"At the beginning of the troubles" he writes, "when with furious outcries, the people had repeatedly demanded my death, I withdrew for a time, not so much out of regard for my own safety as for the public peace of the brethren, that the tumult might not be increased by my presence, which was so offensive to the heathen."

He recommended others to act in the same way. "On this account," says he, our Lord commended us in times of persecution, to give way and fly: He prescribed this rule, and followed it himself, for as the martyr's crown comes from the grace of God, and cannot be gained if the appointed hour has not arrived, he who withdraws for a season, while he still remains true to Christ, denies not the faith, but bides his time."

From his retirement, Cyprian kept up a constant correspondence with his flock, by means of certain ecclesiastics, who gladly braved danger to be his messengers.

Before the beginning of the Decian persecution, Cyprian had taken the view that any who denied Christ should for ever remain outside the pale of the visible church. But when he was brought face to face with the persecutors and the broken and contrite hearts of penitents he realized that the blood of Christ had been shed for these and begged his brother bishops to deal leniently with them.

Eventually those who had suffered everything but death for their faith, espoused the cause of the lapsed and took upon themselves as martyrs or approved witnesses for God to absolve them from their sins.

Of course this could not be allowed. But by his gentleness and firmness, Cyprian managed to adjust matters, after prolonged controversy.

In May, A.D. 253, Cyprian returned to Carthage and two years later, the plague broke out with great virulence. In this affliction the Bishop acted as became a true father of his flock, and gave all his means and energies to their assistance.

In the year 257, the Emperor, Valerian, banished Cyprian from his flock. During his absence, members of his diocese as well as multitudes of the common people were brought before the tribunal charged with the crime of professing Christianity.

Cyprian deciding that his place was with them returned from his exile, and allowed himself to be taken prisoner.

When the news of his capture became known, pagans and Christians alike poured into the streets to do him honor.

Sentence of death was passed upon him by the heathen courts, and Cyprian said: "God be thankful!"

The whole court crowded with Christians, resounded with the roar, "Let us die with him!"

When his hour arrived Cyprian was seen to be praying. Removing his dalmatic, he remained kneeling in a long white linen garment, awaiting the stroke of the executioner. He bound the napkin round his own eyes, and extended his hands to a priest and deacon to tie. The Christians spread before him napkins to receive his body when he fell, that they might be sprinkled with the blood of so great a martyr. The sword flashed, his white head fell, and the body bowed forward, and was prostrate on the cloths.

In the night, the faithful buried the body, with great solemnity on the Mappellan way.

Ambassadors of Charlemagne passing through Carthage, centuries afterwards, opened the tomb of the Saint and carried off his relics to France, where they were deposited at Arles. In the night, the faithful buried the ed them to Compiègne, and placed them beside those of Saint Cornelius.

Poor Asylum Inmates Entertained.

On the evening of the 10th, being Wednesday, there was given by the Westey Epworth League to the inmates of the Poor Asylum their annual summer picnic or treat. Long before 2.30 the grounds were nicely decorated for the occasion. The day being nice and warm, every inmate was on the outside and enjoyed themselves. At about 3 o'clock the Committee in charge wended their way to the Asylum and began at once to prepare the necessities for the event. No pains were spared to make the time a success, which it could not be otherwise under the guidance of the stalwart Committee, consisting of Messrs. Harry V. Churchill, S. Moore, and W. Wilteday, assisted by Misses Cook, Butt, Taylor, Sparkes and others. At 5 p. m. the boys and girls began to seat the old people around for the feast of the occasion, and each one received a large sag brim full of candy, fruit, cake, etc. Tea was served also and appreciated and enjoyed by everyone of them, as there faces showed afterwards. We cannot but pause here to say a word of two about the most worthy Supt., Mr. A. W. Miller and his staff. Mr. Miller was all the evening and night to the fore, helping in every way the boys, and attending to each and every inmate in his own genial and kind way. After the tea had been cleared away and all taken back to the hall they, for an hour and a half enjoyed a full programme of items rendered by the inmates and members of the Committee, while the obliging and efficient President, Mr. Mark Pike, in a most pleasing manner filled the duties of chairman. Mr.

Miller, the Supt. of the Asylum, also gave a very interesting address along the lines of his work. The Poor House should no longer go by that name, because it has certainly undergone general revision since Mr. Miller has taken it over, and one going there cannot help but noticing the great changes that have taken place. Everything is spotlessly clean. No offensive odour prevails, while each inmate, male and female, by the expressions on their faces tell that they are happy once more. Wednesday the 10th of August has gone down as another red letter day in the history of the House for the Poor.—Com.

In Memoriam.

MRS. SUSIE MUNN.

The news of the death at Montreal of Mrs. Stewart Munn, wife of Mr. Stewart Munn, senior partner of the firm of Stewart Munn & Company of that city, was received by all that knew her in this town and bay, as elsewhere, with very deep regret. Mrs. Munn though never very robust was, it was understood here, in comparative health up to a few weeks ago, and the intelligence of her decease came as a sad shock to her relatives and friends. Her last years were spent in loving ministrations to the aged partner of her long happy married life who has been in declining health for years and has lately been confined largely to the house, as those here who remember him and family and appreciate them for their many attractive qualities, have been concerned to learn. They will join with the many friends, elsewhere in heartfelt sympathy with him and them in their sore bereavement. Mrs. Munn is the last of three sisters to pass from earthy scenes, daughters of the late Captain Azariah Munden of seal hunting fame; three ladies distinguished by many notable qualities of head and heart. Mrs. R. S. Munn who passed away at Montreal about two years ago at a good old age, loved, honored, and highly esteemed as her sister the subject of this imperfect memorial tribute now has; Miss Julia Munden whose useful, beautiful and self-sacrificing life came to a close over twenty years ago, and the one that was spared to the last to enter on the stage of the fuller, ever-joyful and ever-enduring life beyond. Mrs. Munn was of a sweet and winning disposition combined with sensible and solid traits and in unison with charms of person and manner, she endeared herself to all that came within the circle of her acquaintance. She was born in Brigus, Conception Bay about 76 years ago, and after a grounding in the elements of school education there went with her sisters to the Homeland where they added to the knowledge thus gained further instruction in the substantial and in the accomplishments that so largely contributed to make them so useful and pleasing members of home, social, and general spheres of life. A few years after her return home, she was united in marriage to Mr. Stewart Munn and came to Harbor Grace a young bride, and resided here till 1873, when she and her husband removed to Montreal where they have since lived. There is left to mourn their grievous loss, besides Mr. Munn, one son, Stewart of the firm of Stewart Munn and Co., and one daughter, Julia, married to Mr. Courland Luce and living in Hartford, Conn., besides a large circle of relatives and friends. Amongst the former, are her nephews Messrs Dugald, William, and Archibald Munn of St. John's, A. Graham Munn of Summerland, B.C., and R. S. Munn of Harbor Grace and Ronald Munn of London, England, besides nieces living in Canada, sisters of the above named. To these and others that feel their loss, sympathy will be extended.—FRIEND.

Harbor Grace, Aug. 15th, 1921.

Roller Skates.

The roller skate was patented in France as early as 1819. Since that time scarcely a year has passed without the recording of some improvement. The skating improvement consisted in so gearing two pairs of wheels that they would "cramp" when the footplate was canting to either side, and thus cause the skate to move on a curved line. Several years elapsed before the value of this invention was recognized generally. In the meantime the inventor was busy making improvements and taking out other patents and in 1874 had brought the skate practically to its present condition. The device of "cramping" the wheels secured the initial success of roller skating. The earlier inventions were crude affairs. About 1864 the modern appliances. About 1864 the mania for rolling skating appeared in England. Two years later the "rinkling" fever broke out in Australia, and spread thence to England and the United States. Since that time the craze has appeared, at intervals only to die out again. During 1884 and 1885 the sport was at his height in the United States.

Will Meet Monday Night

A meeting of delegates from the various football teams with the Newfoundland Football League has been called for Monday night when the matters of the postponed Star-B.I.S. game and the protest from the Highlanders in reference to Wednesday night's game will be considered. A meeting was called for Thursday night, but only delegates from the B.I.S., Highlanders, Star and Cadets being present, it was thought better to let the matter stand over for a larger meeting.

Drug Stores Up-to-Date

The old fashioned drug store with its window decorated merely with one red and one green bottle is no more, writes a U.S. correspondent. I remember when there was talk of our leading druggist putting in a 1-nozzle fountain back home. Indignation ran high. Some of his stamp customers threatened to transfer their trade to the postoffice. The modern drug store is becoming more and more like a vaudeville show. Here is what I saw in the five big windows of one at the corner of Broadway and Forty-second street. A Turk in a dazzling costume rolling cigarettes. A young woman demonstrating a fountain pen. A hen-haired beauty demonstrating removable eyelashes. Two "celebrated beauties" before dressing tables showing how to use rouge. And an athletic young man in tight showing how to be like him by the use of an electric vibrator.

Newfoundland and Its Blind.

(By J. M. Howley.)
Article II.

The Institution of the Movement for the Establishment of a Local Training Institution.

The idea of endeavouring to establish in Newfoundland an institution for the Training and Employment of the Blind originated with Mr. John Howley, the outstanding personality of the movement, of whom and of whose work in this connection to the present date, I propose to deal in this article. Mr. Howley is himself a Newfoundland, and needs no introduction to a great many of our people. About fifteen years ago he was stricken with almost total blindness, and with indomitable pluck, immediately took such steps as were in his power to offset as far as was humanly possible the severe handicap which he was suddenly called upon to bear. He entered the Institution for the Blind in Halifax, and was there, as he himself expresses it "taught to be blind" against that blindness is not in itself an unsurmountable barrier to success in life, but could be overcome to a great extent by patience, perseverance and a strong will power. Mr. Howley's adaptability and his power of organization quickly came to the notice of the Superintendent of the Halifax Institution, with the result that after being there but a short time, he was appointed to the executive of the institution. The position which he has held in him by such men as Sir Frederick Fraser, amply qualify him for the position in which he has been placed in his endeavour to ease the burden of his afflicted brethren in Newfoundland. It is necessary to digress at this point to state that for some years past, the Newfoundland Government has maintained a number of our blind people at the Halifax Institution for the Blind, but the number has been very small in comparison with the number eligible for and in need of proper training. I understand that for the past four or five years, the yearly average of those so maintained has been about seventeen. Mr. Weir, with characteristic love of his native country, and with the sympathy born of similarity of affliction, conceived in the year 1913, the idea of training our blind Newfoundlanders in their own country; or rather, I should say, in that year decided to put into practical form the idea that he had long cherished, of devoting his talents, energy and time to the betterment of his blind fellow countrymen. In that year he paid a visit to Newfoundland, under the auspices of the Halifax Institution, with a view to inaugurating a system of home training, which has been essayed with good results in other countries. In the following year he made his second visit, and through the courtesy and co-operation of the Superintendent of Education, was enabled to gather statistics concerning the blind of the country, thus laying, as it were, the foundation stone of what promises to be the realization of his ideal. His further efforts were curtailed by the outbreak of the great war in August, 1914; but in 1916 he came to Newfoundland with a number of blind musicians, graduates of the Halifax Institution, and gave a number of entertainments at various centres throughout the country, thus giving a practical demonstration of one of the many means of overcoming the handicap of blindness.

In the early part of 1919 Mr. Weir arranged for the calling of a public meeting, at which his scheme for the establishment of a local institution was definitely launched, and the co-operation of a number of prominent people in the capital enlisted. He also, in this year, made a tour of the Northern Districts as far as Twillingate, giving addresses at several places and demonstrating the advantages that would accrue to the country at large, as well as to the individual blind, by the accomplishment of his ideas. In June, 1920, after the promise of assistance by the Government, the Institution for the Training and Employment of the Blind in Newfoundland was duly incorporated. The only obstacle to its immediate activity was the lack of a suitable building in which to commence operations. It was the intention to erect a suitable edifice, but for various and obvious reasons, such a procedure was not feasible. The project was, therefore, for a long time apparently doomed to failure, or at least to considerable delay. But with his well known and greatly appreciated liberality, Honourable Sir Edgar Bowring has now supplied the means of carrying to a successful issue, a work which will undoubtedly have the support of the vast majority of Newfoundlanders, and will forever redound to the credit of the enthusiasm and patriotism of its founders.

To reach this stage an enormous amount of work was entailed on Mr. Weir, but he managed to find time for the completion, as far as possible, of the records of the blind people throughout the island. Taking the data that he had obtained in 1915 and 1914 as a basis, he circumscribed all the blind of whom he had record, numbering about five hundred. In his circulars he stated that it was proposed to do, who were eligible for training, what classes of training it was proposed to adopt, etc. Except in the cases where it was considered that age or physical decay would render training unnecessary or unfruitful, questionnaires to be completed and returned to Mr. Weir were enclosed to each individual. Of the number sent out—between two hundred and fifty and three hundred—some one hundred and seventy-five have been returned. On receipt of these, applications for admission to the proposed institution were forwarded. In each individual case information was sought and in the majority of cases obtained, from clergymen, doctors, magistrates and other prominent citizens throughout the island. When received, this information was filed for reference, and Mr. Weir proceeded to divide the applications into two classes, after first eliminating those who for various causes could not be deemed to be physically or mentally capable of benefiting by such training as it was proposed to give. The first class comprised those who could be considered eligible for admission to training as soon as the proposed institution would be in a position to care for them; and the second those to whom it was considered advisable to supply certain training at home preparatory to their entrance to the institution. All of this work entailed a great deal of correspondence and care, and while to the general reader it would not appear to be a work of very great proportion its extent can be gauged by those who are conversant with statistics and record work. Furthermore, the planning of the requirements of the institution for the furtherance of its work had to be given consideration. The requisite machinery for the institution, commensurate with the number of people who could be engaged in the various trades, had to be decided upon, and a vast amount of detail in connection with housing, etc. had to be attended to. Mr. Weir has all these matters brought to such a state that very little time will be expended in settling the institution in position for the commencement of its work.

Asked as to the reason which prompted him to give up a more remunerative position at Halifax, with larger fields of labour there, or elsewhere throughout the American Continent, for the uncertainty attached to his proposal as it concerned this country, Mr. Weir stated that his knowledge of the Maritime Provinces at Halifax, and of the great many of his blind fellow countrymen who were unable, owing to the limited field of the Halifax Institution, to take advantage of the training there afforded, and also, the fact that after having graduated from the Halifax Institution, most of our Newfoundlanders returning to their old homes, were placed in their former position of dependence on others, were the principal factors in his decision. He cited numbers of instances in support of his latter contention, stating his conviction that in such cases, the hopes that were raised in the breasts of those who were given the opportunity of being more or less independent, were dispelled by their return to their old conditions of living, and their old positions in life were more miserable than before they had had the opportunity afforded by training at Halifax.

In this country, where in the present time, men who are qualified broom makers, mattress makers, shoe makers and piano tuners, and women qualified as seamstresses, vocal and instrumental music teachers, art fabric weavers, and in the art of cane chair-seating, who are living examples of this statement. A sad commentary, so it seems, on the care of its blind by the Dominion of Newfoundland—a truly laudable effort so far as their training was concerned, absolutely barren fruit, presumably because of indifference and certainly because of neglect to provide avenues in which to put into practice the knowledge and experience the blind have gained at Halifax.

Is it any wonder then, that a man of Mr. Weir's calibre should answer the call to labour in his native land, in an endeavour to overcome this deplorable state of affairs. And is it not our duty as true Newfoundlanders, to assist this cause in every manner possible. A great deal of time has already elapsed without definite provision being made for our blind, but I feel safe in saying that a few short months will see the beginning—a small one perhaps—of the dispersal of the clouds that hang over those so afflicted and in Mr. Weir's hands, as Superintendent, there is no question of the failure of the Newfoundland Institution for the Training and Employment of the Blind. To him obstacles are only made to be surmounted, and the prospective good rendered more desirable on account of the difficulties besetting the path to success. Mr. Weir has many difficulties to contend with in the initial stages of the development of his idea, and were it not for his firm belief in the ultimate success of this great cause, I do not think the incentive for these efforts of mine would have materialized. A Forgotten Eccentric.
In any gallery of eccentrics a place should certainly be found for John Miggot, who was born on August 20, 1714, and who was better known as John Elwes, which name he assumed in his fiftieth year, when he inherited the property of his uncle, Sir Harry Elwes, of Suffolk. John Elwes knew his uncle's character so well that when he visited him he used to break his journey at an inn and change his attire for a worn-out coat, a tattered waist-coat, and a pair of much-darned worsted stockings. Such a nephew was dear to the heart of the old man, who left to him his entire property. The heir showed his gratitude by laying out in state the miser at his seat. When Elwes was sixty years of age Lord Craven invited him to stand as Parliamentary candidate for Berkshire, and he consented to do so on condition that he incurred no outlay. He was returned and sat at Westminster for twelve years, at the end of which period some expense being involved and opposition threatened, he retired to private life. In the House of Commons he never spoke, and though he supported Lord North and Fox, his vote could not be counted on as a matter of course. Nobody could buy him, for he wanted nothing; and the only time of his life when he was thoroughly frightened was when he heard that Lord North proposed to ask the King to confer a peerage upon him. He maintained that all great fortunes are made by saying "no"; and he proved the truth of this by amassing eight hundred thousand pounds. He let his mansion go to rack and ruin, until in the neighbourhood of sixty he was facetiously called "the poor-house." To save fire he would sit in the kitchen, and yet his bodily health endured until his death, at the age of seventy-five. He was then living in miserable squalor, and haunted by fears of poverty, he passed away without a friend in the world.

WHEN THE GOVERNMENT CONTROLS THE WEATHER.

Will it ever be possible to control the weather? That is a question that has been asked every day after a most annoying rain storm had arrived with our week end guests and most impolitely outstaged them. The chronic conservative and pessimist of the family hooted the idea, of course, and treated the question as mere persiflage designed to beguile a gloomy breakfast table. But the optimist of the family gave it the hospitality that optimists and radicals always have for new ideas.

The Greatest Invention.
"There have been plenty of new inventions in the last 50 years that in the old days would have been thought as absurd and impossible as this seems to us," averred the optimist. "Who knows but what some invention to induce rain will fall at certain desired times and thus prevent it from falling at other times, will be the Twentieth Century's greatest invention?"

Well, when you come right down to it, who does know, one way or the other? The pessimist thinks he does, but he doesn't. He may yet be consulting a Government weather table to find out when the next rain storm is scheduled.

For presumably the Government would have to have charge of any such vastly important apparatus as one to induce rain. And why, wouldn't there be tremendous pressure brought to bear on the parties in charge to have it rain at one time or another? How terrible it would be if politics got into the rain bureau and we found the matter of our supply of rain and when it should fall handed back and forth among political parties!

We Would Learn to Plan for Them.
Presumably, the only way would be to have the scientists decide just how much rain was needed, just how much it would be beneficial to have fall at one time and how often, and then have rainy days announced by the government. They wouldn't be half bad that way, would they, because one wouldn't mind them if one could plan for them and not have the and yet I'm contrary enough not to be wholly pleased. I would love rainy days scheduled so that they need not collide with week-end guests, but I am not sure I'm ready to do away with them altogether—for I persist there is a charm about a rainy day that I would not like to lose forever.

I wonder whether you think that is a perversion, or whether there are some of my Reader-friends who share this odd taste with me?

Fashions and Fads.

Rows and rows of black silk braid are the sole trimming of a frock of Poiret twill.

The vogue for sleeveless frocks is now expressed in sleeveless smocks and sweaters.

A little girl's frock of pale pink organdie has ruffles upon ruffles of blue organdie.

Some of the fall coats are girdled at a low waist line with elaborate jeweled belts.

A one-piece dress of French linen has a sleeveless three-quarter coat to match. The long slashed panels of the coat are held together by rows of little buckled linen straps.

Pa Miss Rainy Days.
That sounds like a scheme that ought to come as near pleasing all the people all the time as could be,

Shopkeepers, Read This!

Lantic is in Yellow Packages--2 lbs. & 5 lbs.

Next time you open a barrel of sugar, count the bags, the 2's, the 4's, the 5's, the 7's, the 10's, the 14's, you use in weighing up the barrel of sugar. Figure the cost of the bags and twine and time spent in weighing. Don't forget to estimate the wear and tear on your scales.

Next time you're busy weighing up sugar keep your eye on the people who come into your shop to buy something, but finding you busy weighing up sugar, go out without buying anything. Charge up these losses on your barrel of sugar.

Taking your several parcels of sugar from 2 lbs. to 14 lbs. and reckoning that you put up 50 parcels of sugar out of a barrel, consider that you're taking 50 chances of making a mistake. 50 chances to waste a little sugar.

Consider also why it is that grocers in Canada and America use package sugar in preference to barrel sugar? If you carefully consider the above matters you will realize that 1 cent per pound is a fair estimate of your loss in retailing sugar out of a barrel.

If you sell package sugar (you can get Lantic in 2's, 5's, 10's and 20's) you have no weighing to do, each package contains full weight of sugar. Selling Lantic in packages saves you the cost of all wasted bags and twine. Saves you loss from short weight. Enables you to attend to all customers who come into your shop. You'll know Lantic Sugar by the red ball on the YELLOW package. Try a 100 lb. case of 2 lb. packages. Your customers will prefer Lantic.

Sealing Wax Craft.

"I love that little jade green vase on the mantelpiece," said a girl visitor to a friend. "It gives just that right touch of color in your room."

"I'm glad you like it because it was my first attempt at sealing wax ornament with flowers on it that originally cost a few cents. I was going to throw it away when someone suggested that I should cover it with sealing wax, and behold the satisfactory result!"

All that is wanted to do this decorative wax work are various sticks of sealing wax and a small spirit lamp, as a candle would smoke and discolor the wax. Any odd china or glass vases can be used as a foundation.

First warm the vase a little. Then hold it by the top part and begin at the bottom edge, putting on little dabs of sealing wax here and there and pressing them flat against the vase. Be very careful not to put on too much at once, or to scorch the wax. The wax will adhere to the vase as it becomes cold, but in order to get the smooth glazed surface that is characteristic of pottery it must be held near the flame to melt it a little.

Continue to put on the wax and smooth it in this way until the vase is covered. If more than one colored wax is used be careful always to turn the vase in the same direction when smoothing it down by the heating process so that you avoid a merely mottled appearance and get a swirl of colors going in the same direction. It looks particularly well to use several shades of the same color. But small vases in one tint such as jade or Chinese yellow have a gem-like effect that is very attractive.

Harmonising Colors.
Another good idea is to use a little of the metallic sealing wax in gold or silver, putting it on at the shoulder and near the neck of the vase and melting it into the plain color. Or a vase intended as a receptacle for certain flowers can be done in the mingled tones found in the blossoms—for instance, a red-brown shading to yellow for wallflowers. When done the vases look like expensive pottery. They can be washed in cold water, but water will take off the gloss. The wax can at any time be reheated to restore the gloss.

Cruel French Convict System.

LIFE'S SHACKLED IN CHAINS ON BOARD SHIP.

(From the New York Herald.)
PARIS, Aug. 6.—Chained amidstships as in the days of buccaneering pirates, and recalling the scene in "Mano Leont," ninety-five life termers left St. Martin De Re this week for the French penal colony. This is the second voyage of a German cruiser now known as the Ducla, and again calls unpleasant attention of the fact that France still maintains the medieval system of handling her convicts.

Instead of being inspired to reap some benefit from their punishment, they are subjected to the severest treatment imaginable with the daily routine so hard that the average victim willingly would risk death to escape it. For all this the French public has to pay heavily.

During the voyage the unwilling passengers are crowded with clanking chains into the narrow middle deck, with fifty guards standing over them with loaded rifles ready to quell insurrection. Hands along the left side are left unbound, but the slightest disturbance sends all offenders to barred cells under the deck, where breadless soup is meted out as punishment for the rest of the trip to Guinea.

Punishment is Heartbreaking.

The Ducla's next voyage will be to Algeria, where murderers, thieves and tractors undergo heart-breaking punishment until they are willing to promise obedience to their superiors. Then, if they are considered trustworthy, they are farmed out to farmers, who are making the French colonies a profitable investment.

The departure of the contingent this week was marked by unusual scenes, the mothers of several of the deported not attempting to hide their shame as they knelt on the pier with outspread arms, crying farewell to those who were lost to view to them forever.

The majority of the prisoners were too hardened to show sorrow, but perhaps a dozen who still had the light of youth in their eyes, as they were taking up their burden of heavy sacks, turned for a final glance at their native land, only to be prodded by the bayonets of the guards for not hurrying aboard.

Twenty-five murderers, whose death sentence had been commuted by Presidents Millerand and Poincaré, were in the group. They represented the very dregs of society, snarling at the missionaries who went aboard to administer admonitions.

200 Foreigners Aboard Ship.

According to the official statistics, more than 200 foreigners left on the ship, mostly Asiatics and Africans, who tried to betray France during the war, but the chief in this category was a Barcelona lawyer, Ramon, who confessed he had been in the Kaiser's pay until he was arrested at Marseilles in 1917.

Four Bonnet Rouge conspirators, convicted of treasonable practices during the war, Landru, Goldsky, Marion and Vouca, were taken ill at the last minute and will not go to French Guinea until next November. It is estimated that the voyage will last twelve days and will cost the Government 1,000 francs per convict, without counting maintenance of free personnel, whose food is of the best quality.

It is certain that the appetites of the men in the chain gang will be whetted, for, although with customary consideration the military details are each provided with a quart of red wine daily, the fare of the prisoners does not contain anything better than dried codfish, and occasionally a small portion of beef stew.

Mr. Hawker Not Fit to Fly.

HOW AIR-EXPRESS PILOTS ARE SAFEGUARDED.

(Daily Mail, July 18.)

At the inquest at Hendon on Saturday on Mr. Harry Hawker, the Atlantic airman, who was killed on Tuesday while flying a Nieuport-Goshawk machine with a 300-h.p. A.B.C. Dragonfly engine, it was stated that he suffered from tubercular disease of the spine, and had been advised by a doctor not to fly for some time. The verdict was Death by Misadventure.

Dr. Garner said Mr. Hawker called to see him 18 months ago, but he was out. Mr. Hawker was in such pain with his back that he went to see a specialist without waiting. The specialist found he had tubercular disease of the spine.

The coroner: Have you ever tried to persuade him to give up flying?—I tried my utmost to get him to submit to the specialist's recommendation, but he would not.

The post-mortem examination showed that hemorrhage had either taken place in the air or by the shock of landing. Dr. Garner said he found a mass of blood on the front of the spinal cord that had evidently collected under pressure, and he thought the blood had oozed out during life.

Told Not to Fly.
Dr. Garner said Mr. Hawker had been receiving treatment from a specialist, and he believed he had been advised not to fly for some time. His physical condition was not strong enough for him to take risks like that. Mr. Hawker did not realize how serious his condition was. Hemorrhage might have started in the air or while he was driving his motor-cycle from Kingston.

Dr. Garner said his theory was that Mr. Hawker was sitting in his seat when he struck the ground. He was thrown forward and his chin struck something which threw his head back and broke his neck.

Mr. Phillip Folland, who designed the machine that Mr. Hawker was driving, said it was in perfect condition. Mr. Hawker, he said, lived about 10 minutes after reaching the ground. There was no truth in a statement that the wings of the machine had been clipped.

The coroner recorded a verdict that Mr. Hawker died of injuries caused by the smashing to the ground of the aeroplane in which he was flying and of which he had lost control owing to his physical disability. This, he said, amounted to a verdict that death was due to Misadventure.

The Northcliffe Interview.

(From the Manchester Guardian.)

The formal denial by the King of the preposterous statements attributed to him in the Northcliffe interview published in the "New York Times," which we reproduced recently, was hardly needed in order to convict them as a pure fabrication. If His Majesty has judged it to be worth while to repudiate them in the statement which the Prime Minister was authorized to read in the House of Commons recently, it is because important public interests were involved, and any credit given to this fairy-tale, whether in America or in Ireland, might have done something to endanger the prospects of conciliation and peace in Ireland. No one not extremely credulous could have believed that the King would have said to Mr. Lloyd George, "Are you going to shoot all the people in Ireland?" and "I cannot have my people killed in this fashion," yet there it was in good plain print in an important New York paper on the alleged authority of Lord Northcliffe, telegraphed in due course by one of Lord Northcliffe's New York staff to one of Lord Northcliffe's newspapers and duly published in it, even though suppressed in its later editions. Here was a trap for the unwary, and it was thought well to lose no time in clearing the matter up for an astonished and bewildered public. Now Lord Northcliffe himself comes, if somewhat late, to our assistance, and in a message published to-day himself repudiates the words attributed to him in the report published nearly a week ago.

The particular words attributed to King form, however, only a part of the whole tendency and parent object of which was to discredit the initiative of the King, who stated to have made his speech opening the Ulster Parliament solely of his own motion and not of custom of the Constitution with the authority of ministers, also the King denies the Northcliffe also deny that he made such suggestion. Or can it be a wording of contradiction would imply, that the whole thing is an invention and that Lord Northcliffe is the victim of a wicked paper hoax? That would indeed be a tragic fate for one holding his place in the newspaper world. But the mystery crowds on mystery, and that is plain is that nobody has the slightest attention to the view as a record of fact.

Longest and Stormiest Session of House.

Exposures of Government Wrong Doing--Sensational Administration Scandals--A Review of 1921 Proceedings.

THE LOAN BILL.
Early in the session the Government found it necessary to introduce resolutions in the House to give them authority to raise a loan of $5,000,000. The manner in which this loan was raised will forever remain a blot on the fair name of the Government. It raised it, and on the colony. The money was necessary, it is true. The business of the country could not be carried on unless financial assistance could be obtained. Regarding this, but by no means unbecomingly, the Opposition contended to permit the Resolutions to pass, but it was not until some time afterwards that they learned the "discreet" means employed by the Government in its negotiations. For the first time in its legislative history Newfoundland had to obtain a loan to pay the interest on existing loans as was necessary in this case. The money was negotiated for with almost secrecy by the Government. So little was said about it that suspicion was aroused in many minds. It had been justified that suspicion! In the first place the loan was raised on the strength of the financial statement for the year provided to him in which the Squires Government came into power. This was deceit of the worst kind and in the case of any ordinary individual, an action for obtaining money under false pretences would undoubtedly ensue. Furthermore, the brokers who bought up the loan, cleared over $700,000 from it. They were permitted to purchase bonds of the face value of $100 for $88. They consequently made $12 on every bond they bought. Moreover, the country has to pay 6 1/2 per cent. interest on these bonds for a period of fifteen years! It was the most ruinous financial transaction that the country has ever concluded.

INDEPENDENCE ASSERTED.
It is impracticable, in the course of this article, to review happenings in their chronological order, and readers will have to pardon any seeming disconnectedness.
It was not until after the House was in session some time that the first sign of an independent spirit was manifested on the Government side of the House. The only man who had sufficient courage to break away from party ties and do justice to the electors who sent him to the House, was Mr. Frank Archibald, junior member for St. John's. It was towards the end of a late night session when the Estimates were being debated that Mr. Archibald rose to his feet and after a spirited and manly speech, in which he denounced the Government's inaction and incompetency, moved his seat to the centre of the floor. Mr. Archibald has been vilified in the Government press for his action. Of this, however, he need take no heed. He went to his constituency and offered to resign his seat. On every side he was commended for his action, and a resolution was passed by his constituents congratulating him and upholding him in the stand he had taken. Since he dissociated himself with the Government, Mr. Archibald has made some powerful addresses. In the course of which he has pressed beyond a doubt that Hon. W. F. Coaker is dominated by a higher human power than even the F.E.U. If only there were more men like Mr. Archibald in the Government how different things might have been.

THE ESTIMATES.
The Government promised economy during the present year. Unfortunately, however, their idea of economic administration differs considerably from that of those who are well acquainted with financial matters. Drastic cuts were made in some departments where they were necessary. Other cuts were made where there was no justification whatever, whilst votes for unnecessary departments did not even feel the edge of the knife. The estimated expenditure for the fiscal year, 1921-22 is approximately $11,000,000, when Supplemental Supply and Expenditures under the Audit Act are included. This is an abnormally high estimate when our financial affairs are in so chaotic a state. The estimate for the Finance Department is increased by $37,000. A slight increase is also noted in the Colonial Secretary's office. The same applies to the Department of Justice. Whilst the vote for the Department of Education is decreased it still reaches the enormously high figure of $808,000. Here is a case where the guillotine could have been employed most effectively. This department is an excuse for the Government to become guilty of the most flagrant acts of extravagance. The head of the department, Dr. Barnes, is supposed to be a most intellectual man. He may have been at one time, but since his advent into politics he seems to have become a devotee of reasoning power as any of his colleagues. In no other way can his extravagant demand for his department be excused. Hon. Dr. Barnes was at one time a man who commanded the respect of the community. He is now looked upon as nothing more than the ordinary petty office holder, who will hold his job by the coat to the country what it may. A large estimate is that for the Department of Agriculture and Mines. Not only is the vote a large one but it, also, is entirely unnecessary. There is a decrease of $100,000 in the vote for the Customs Department and of $200,000 in the Department of Public Works. The greatest decrease, however, is in the vote for the Marine and Fisheries Department. Thanks to the abandonment of the Fish Regulations, the large sum of over $500,000 has been saved. But whilst many cuts in this department were necessary, others are likely to do more harm than good. No provision at all has been made for the protection of the Lobster Fishery and for wardens in connection with the Game and Inland Fisheries Board. It was a very short-sighted policy. Whitbourne Notes.

Owing to the long continued drought this summer, a number of residents have found their wells very low, and in many cases have had to go some distance for good drinking water. Rocky River was nearly a rocky river bed, rather than a rapidly flowing stream. Mr. Ezekiah Mervin's mill at that place, has been closed down in consequence, also Messrs. A. Drover and Gushue's mills. Some distance away, two heavy showers of rain, of late, may rectify things somewhat—we hope.

Mrs. A. Pieraway of Sandy Point, Bay St. George, was here last week from town, where her daughter is at present in the General Hospital awaiting a serious operation. Mrs. Pieraway returned to town last Wednesday 14th inst. We are glad to hear the operation is successfully over. Miss Stella Pieraway has been the C. E. teacher at Briggs for some time and is a very popular young lady.

Sir William and Lady Horwood, who were enjoying a vacation at Colinet, N. B., returned to town on Monday morning's train from here.

Rev. C. Jeffery, who was about to leave for Placentia last Saturday, was unexpectedly called to New Harbor, J. P. Beauchamp being too ill to officiate for the service. He is now somewhat better.

We are sorry to hear that Canon Smart, Hart's Content, is very unwell at present.

Mr. and Mrs. Leslie and family, arrived here on Wednesday evening's train, to spend a couple of weeks. We are pleased to have them come back again.

Father Kavanagh of Gambo, was here last Sunday, 14th inst.

Mr. Gushue of Rocky River, met with a serious accident, when his fine horse was killed by an incoming freight train.

Mr. John Drover returned home from Badger in ill-health this week. Complaints seem to be rife among the men re their diet and no doctor to lighten their woes, when they are ill.

Magistrate Thompson of Briggs, was here yesterday, remaining over until to-day (Thursday), at Mrs. Samuel Sparkes.

Mrs. H. Mercer went to town on a business trip this morning.

Little Vera Sparkes, youngest child of Mr. and Mrs. George Sparkes, has been seriously ill the last few days. We hope the wee girl will soon be her usual bonnie self again.

The Rev. Ives Stocker and Mrs. Stocker, are expected here on the 23rd. The Anglican missionary, known as "Our Own Missionary," will no doubt be warmly welcomed wherever he goes. A missionary service, with address, will be held here on that date.

Several motor cars, mostly bringing troutmen, have been here of late. The Briggs Road is said to be in excellent condition for motorists at present.

Mr. and Mrs. Austin Tipple, are here visiting Mr. and Mrs. E. Tipple; also Mrs. Philip Grouchy of St. John's-COR.

THE TENTH MAN.

Nine passed him by with a hasty look, Each bent on his eager way; One glance at him was the most they took. "Somebody stuck," said they; But it never occurred to the nine to head A stranger's plight and a stranger's need.

The tenth man looked at the stranded car, And promptly stopped his own. "Let's see if I know what your troubles are," Said he in a cheerful tone; "Just jump in the mire. Here's a cable stout. Hitch onto my bus and I'll pull you out."

"A thousand thanks," said the stranger then, "For the debt that I owe you; I've counted them all and you're one in ten. Such a kindly deed to do." And the tenth man smiled and he answered them, "Make sure that you'll be the one in ten."

Are you one of the nine who pass men by In this hasty life we live? Do you refuse with a downcast eye The help which you could give? Or are you the one in ten whose creed Is always to stop for the man in need?

Chiropractic.

(PRONOUNCED KIRO-PRAK-TIK)

Evolution is perpetual. Health modes are no exception. Who will say the Electric Light does not improve on the tallow candle?—the self-binder on the old-fashioned cradle?—the thrasher on the flail?—or the automobile on the ox-cart? Results are the measure of merit in any Health work. Chiropractic makes no claims not based on success.

In the Science of Chiropractic the Brain, Spine and Nerves are looked to for health of the whole body. The Brain receives its Power from the Intelligence that rules the Universe and transmits it to the body through the Nerves. The Spine is the route of Nerve travel and organ of Nerve distribution. Displaced joints in the Spine compress (pinch) the Nerves and interfere with the impulses from the brain, which irregularities are the cause of about all the diseases the body suffers. The Chiropractor adjusts these disordered vertebrae (small bones) of the Spine by hand and the patient gets well by the forces that reside in the body.

The following cut explains it more definitely.

If you suffer from any of the above listed disorders, investigate Chiropractic and regain your health.

New Films for Summer Snapshots!

The Kodak Store window is worth more than a passing glance just now, give it your whole attention as you go by.

It is full of roll films, and is a silent reminder to you to buy your roll films THERE and NOW.

You often lose a good "snap" by not having a roll of film on hand. Prevent this by keeping half a dozen in reserve, and get them at the Kodak Store.

Charged With Attempted Murder.

Tormented by a number of boys, an elderly resident of St. George's, in a fit of passion, took a gun from the rack and going to waste, the lady were congregated, fired, the shot entering a tree. The matter was reported to the authorities and the man was arrested and brought before Magistrate McDonnell, and after a hearing, was committed to the Supreme Court for trial on a charge of attempted murder. The affair happened about a week ago, and the trial will likely take place during October at the fall criminal session.

Garden Party in aid of St. Francis Parish will be held at Outer Cove to-morrow, Aug. 21. The Red Taxi Motor Bus and Motor Cars will be at Rawlins' Cross from 2.30 to-morrow afternoon to convey passengers at very reasonable rates. The "Acushla Ma Chree" Band will be present during the afternoon. The best teas of the summer will be served. Please come and bring your friends.—aug20.11

Negroes Hoaxed the Kaiser.

A European correspondent tells the story of an amusing prank played upon the ex-Kaiser in the second year of his reign. A party of negroes arrived at Berlin in charge of Herr Karl Ehler, who let it be understood that they were princesses of the dynasty of the high and mighty Sultan of Mandara, an African ruler, whose dominions were at least equal in importance to those of the Sultan of Morocco. On the strength of this they were entertained in the most elaborate manner by the Emperor.

It was only several weeks after they had left Berlin, on their return to Africa loaded with gifts and decorated with Prussian orders of knighthood, that it suddenly became known that the negroes thus honored were men of absolutely no rank or importance in their own country, and that far from being chiefs or dignitaries they were quite ordinary natives, who had been assigned by the petty chief of the wretched Central Africa village of Mandara, to which they belonged, to act as porters for the conveyance of the baggage of Herr Ehler to the coast.

Ehler, who was an old classmate of the ex-Kaiser at the University of Bonn, imagined that it would further his interests and lend importance to his explorations in the eyes of the authorities at Berlin, if he took four of the finest looking of his black porters with him back to Germany.

Partly through the ignorance of the people on board the steamer and partly owing to the crowded character of the steerage and intermediate cabins they received saloon passages, and thus it happened that by the time they reached Europe an exaggerated impression had been formed on board with regard to their rank and importance.

On landing at Hamburg the local authorities took it for granted that the negroes must necessarily be dignitaries of the highest grade, and as this impression resulted in Herr Ehler being treated with exceptional consideration, gaining all sorts of official and diplomatic privileges, he was careful not to disabuse the Prussian government or to reveal the true condition of affairs.

OTHER DONORS.—In the list of those who so kindly contributed to the Belvidere orphan motor outing at Topsail, on Wednesday afternoon, the following should be included: Miss Margaret Bearns, Mr. Thomas Kennedy, Mr. J. J. St. John, Mrs. J. J. Mulcahy.
