CHAPTER XIII.

How beautiful she was! What a lily of lilies! His eyes lifted with tears as he gazed at the dying fire and thought of her.

Alas! why was he ever born? As it was a question as impossible in the answering as it was absurd in the asking, he took up his lamp and went slowly to bed.

So the days that came and left Lillian Melville slowly sinking and falling came and found her true lover cooped up like a dog in the French kennel; but, instead of sinking, gaining his old, glorious strength back fast.

With the recovery of his strength grew his intense irritation at his imprisonment, and a feverish, almost maddening, longing for freedom.

It showed itself in his eyes so plainly that a stricter watch was kept and the jailer came into the room now with his fellow waiting at the door.

Clarence marked that precaution, and instead of feeling despondent at this tribute to his strength, grew hopeful.

He argued that the means of imprisonment must cease at the outer door, as it needed so much precaution at the landing.

He longed to get a view from the front of the house.

He was so weak at the time of his waylaying that he scarcely noticed the route or the streets; but he remembered that the street they stopped in was a long, narrow and a quiet one. He determined to see and tread that street before long if he died in the attempt.

But, although he was working hard at a plan all day, he was careful to conceal any appearance of such an attempt from his guardians. He knew it would not do to assume a cheerful resignation, and so took no trouble to conceal his irritation, paced the room, took his food in silence and gave them short and sharp replies to any questions they put.

One evening, however, he ventured so far as to ask the man who attended upon him if he had such a thing as a pack of cards.

"Cards!" repeated the man, inclined to be suspicious of a toothpick if his prisoner had asked for it.

"Oh, yes; did monsieur require a pack?"

"Well," said Clarence, mildly, "it would help to pass the time away. Bring a pack and let us play a game—carte, cribbage, what you like?"

"Does monsieur like dominoes?" asked the man, with a hard effort not to look eager.

"The very thing," said Clarence, who noted the eager look. "Bring them, by all means."

The man disappeared, locking and bolting the door after him with the usual care, and soon returned with a box of dominoes.

They sat down with all possible gravity, and the game commenced, the jailer's back to the door, Clarence fronting him.

A bottle of wine and some cigars were on the table, and Clarence invited the man to help himself. But he declined with a twinkle of cunning that said plainly enough:

"No, no, monsieur; you would get my head full of wine, and give my legs the slip. No, no."

Clarence did not press him, but helped himself to the wine and proposed to enjoy the game.

At midnight, after playing for several hours, the jailer rose, packed up the dominoes, pocketed the francs he had won and prepared to retire.

Clarence thought a repetition of the bribe might come in well again, perhaps and he offered it to him.

But the man was firm.

"Monsieur," said he, stretching across the table, "which is better—one thousand napoleons or one's life?"

"Life is sweet," said Clarence, with French brevity.

"So!" nodded the man, significantly. "If I let the little bird go he will bring me neck."

"Ah!" thought Clarence; "then my jailer's master is a he!"

And he retired to bed tolerably satisfied with his night's work.

The following morning the man brought him his paper as usual, and Clarence, to whom it was the only thing of interest in the long, dreary day, took it eagerly, and his eagerness increased tenfold when his eyes rested upon the following paragraph:

"We learn that the gentleman who fell in the duel upon the harbor sands was an English gentleman bearing the name of Clifford. His body has not yet been discovered, and it is conjectured that the outgoing tide washed it out to sea."

A grim smile crossed his face and his brow knitted.

"Not dead yet," he thought, "but alive to unravel this knot and punish the culprit."

And so he was supposed to be dead? Well, well, there would be very few mourners—none; perhaps, beyond that foolish young fellow who had stood by him in this hour of danger, and his regret would be lessened by the reflection that he should be freed of the debt for the thousand pounds.

He took up the paper again and looked over it with abated interest.

When the man had read the announcement of his own death, all other matters must necessarily seem tame and stupid.

By an effort, he succeeded in smothering his feverish agitation from his face. He even attempted to hum an English air as the men came up the stairs with his dinner, but broke down lamentably and confined himself to looking cheerfully.

The man nodded respectfully and set the dinner out. The other odious and hateful turnkey stood guard at the door.

Clarence Clifford returned the salutation and chatted upon the weather—of which, alas! he knew very little—and inquired, as usual, if his jailer had received any instructions as to his liberation. To which the man, as usual, answered:

"No, monsieur, none. Patience."

"All right," said Clarence, with a sigh. "A hand at cards to-night, I presume—or the dominoes—eh?"

"The dominoes, if it so please monsieur," replied the man, greedily.

And Clarence nodded. As the man was leaving the room he called him back and said, as if by an afterthought:

"By the way, Antoine, your friend, must be dull, ask him to join us, and—throwing a napoleon upon the table—bring some wine."

He gave his invitation loudly enough for the invited to hear him.

Now, although Antoine, the prudent, could withstand wine, Jacques, the bibulous, could not. His eyes glistened and he made a gesture of assent to his mate.

"Jacques thanks you, monsieur, and he will do himself the honor to accept."

"That is all right," said Clarence Clifford. "Cards, dominoes, a song, what you will, anything to kill time."

Jacques grinned and the door closed.

Clarence waited until the heavy footsteps had died away, then took up the cruet and examined it.

Alas! for his plan, one ingredient had failed already—there was no vinegar. He rang the bell, and Antoine, the attendant, came lumping up instantly.

"Antoine," he said, tasting the sauce to his cutlets, "what sauce is this?"

"Sauce piquante, monsieur," replied the man.

"Sauce insipide!" retorted Clarence. "It is mawkish—hem! a little vinegar, perhaps—ah, there is none there."

And he turned the cruet around with some annoyance.

"A thousand pardons, monsieur," said Antoine. "I will get some."

And he disappeared.

Clarence smiled and smiled still more when the man appeared with a large bottle.

"Will monsieur take what he requires?"

"Oh, leave the bottle," said Clarence.

And the man left the bottle, tramping down to Jacques, to whom he remarked that the Anglais was growing particular.

Speed Traps Are Declared Illegal

CALIFORNIA REQUIRES EXAMINATION FOR OPERATORS OF AUTOMOBILES.

Los Angeles, Cal., July 4.—Various changes in California Motor Vehicle laws were made by the Legislature, recently adjourned, and the new regulations will be in effect July 24.

The most important change made provides for the elimination of operators. This, however, does not affect persons now in possession of a valid operator's license, but all applicants for licenses after July 24 must answer certain questions intended to reveal whether the applicant is physically and mentally fit to operate a motor vehicle. The examination may include a test of hearing and eyesight, and an actual demonstration of the applicant's ability to exercise ordinary care and reasonable control of a motor vehicle by driving one under the supervision of the examiner.

No person under 14 years of age may be licensed as an operator, or under 18 years as chauffeur or driver of a school bus. Habitual drunkards, drug addicts, insane persons, imbeciles, epileptics or feeble minded persons will not be allowed licenses.

Devices for depressing the beams of light from headlights upon drawing near to an approaching motor vehicle have been legalized in California.

Speed traps are declared unlawful, and a court shall be without jurisdiction to convict where only speed trap evidence is available.

Another new California law makes it a misdemeanor to throw from a moving vehicle any lighted cigar, flaming or glowing substance, or ash, which may cause a fire. This is designed to prevent fires being started in the National Forests, of which there are 19,000,000 acres in California.

A bill to increase the gasoline tax in California from 2c. to 3c. per gallon passed the Legislature, but was not signed by the Governor. Opposition to this measure was led by the Automobile Club of Southern California, which charged that the plan to assess motorists only for funds for new highway construction was class legislation, uneconomic and unsentimental.

PENITENTIAL

Dark and dismal, grim and bleak is the prison in the vale; there resort the men who seek, crookedly, the easy kale. Men are always going there, long processions every day, going from the sunshine fair to the dungeons cold and gray. Going from the joy and mirth of the world where men are free, to the saddest place on earth, where the stern-faced warders be. In the crowd are many men, who forsaking virtue, thought, "We will never reach the pen—we're too clever to be caught. Only bores are gathered in, bores who cannot hide their trail; we will spring such curves in sin that the law cannot prevail. Bonehead criminals may fall, pulling vulgar stunts in vain, bores who try to use their gall as a substitute for brain. But when men with domes of thought go to reap the sucker crop, 'twill be strange if they are caught by the common, garden cop. We'll outguess the eager sleuth, beat his game at every curve, and in penitential booth not a fortnight shall we serve. We are clever, we are wise, highly gifted—we were born, we are baffles in disguise, and we'll laugh the law to scorn." You may see them in parade, fellows smarter than the law, toiling up the rocky grade to the prison's dismal stair. And the cells are always filled with the hoary birds who thought, "we're so clever, we're so skilled, that we never will be caught."

Household Notes.

Chop and heat left-over cooked meat and serve on toast with cream gravy.

Use a little caramelized sugar in bread pudding and serve with whipped cream.

Lettuce to be used in chicken sandwiches is nicer when finely shredded. Fruit that is to be used in a cake should be washed, thoroughly dried and floured.

The sauce for boiled ham may have a few chopped pickles or olives added to it.

A convenient hospital sheet equipped for any emergency should be in every home. Season ham well and bake in grape juice diluted with half its quantity of water.

KIA-ORA

MEMBERS of your household and many of your guests will want KIA-ORA because it is known throughout Newfoundland as the most delightful beverage obtainable. It is made in London from fresh Messina lemon juice and sugar in a most hygienic manner, untouched by hand from the beginning to the end. This knowledge of cleanliness greatly increases the pleasure of drinking it.

The composition of KIA-ORA Lemon Squash is no secret. It is simply fresh Messina lemon juice and white cane sugar. The health giving and health preserving qualities of lemon juice are unequalled by any fruit or vegetable product, extremely valuable to adults, even more valuable to growing children, yet to most people no beverage is so good to take as KIA-ORA Lemon Squash.

KIA-ORA is extremely economical in use. A large bottle when mixed with water or soda water will fill not less than 24 large glasses.

Cutwork Embroideries

Broderie anglaise is very fashionable this season and often entirely covers the material, so that the garment for which it is used appears to be full of holes. Race coats of ecru-colored, hole-embroidered superannated are a novelty prepared for Ascot. These coats show the severity and close-fitting lines of a riding habit. A very pretty effect is secured by choosing a brilliantly colored frock which shows through the coat.

From Paris comes wonderful multicolored broderie anglaise on the very finest silk. Various tones of silk are used to embroider the perforations. The effect is at times the fabric had been dipped haphazardly in many pastel tones. One of the most favored color schemes is a lovely combination of lilac, orchid-mauve, pale pink, blue and ecru.

Russia's Ugly Duckling

Manchester Guardian: Trotsky is at the house for whom great decisions are a morning tonic. He is an ugly duckling in the orthodox humdrum brood of revolutionary leaders. Lenin recognized him and set him beside himself. The other ducklings cannot forgive that promotion and seek to shorten his neck to match their own. They can accuse him of heresy, but live in glass houses where Trotsky delights to exhibit them. They can neither do with him nor do without him. So they compromise. They do not excommunicate him, lest they should themselves be accused of provoking a schism in the church. They do not deny him a share in their labors, but by giving Lenin's chosen right hand the work they have mostly reserved for their own little fingers, they illustrate the flexibility of any man's will when he leaves it in the charge of his successors.

QUEBEC, July 13.
Cardinal Beaudry suffered a slight indisposition on his return from a motor trip to St. Nazaire yesterday, but a report from the Palace to-day stated that he was a little better and "we manslaughter. Five of the accused are architects, one a building contractor and the other a building inspector.

Hyman Bloomburg, lessee of the building, was arrested last week on a manslaughter charge and appeared again to-day to face a charge of main-released on bail after pleading not guilty.

feated the challenging United States

Philadelphia gold challenge cup.
Beresford had previously refused to defend the cup after winning the Diamond Sculls trophy, claiming that the latter symbolized the world's championship and not the Philadelphia cup. After agreeing to race the American he declared that if he won, he would leave the cup in America

Wedding Bells

QUINLIN—FOWLOW.

A very pretty wedding was solemnized on July 11th at 8 p.m. at St.
Mary's Church, when Mr. Frederick Fowlow, son of Mr. Martin and the late Priscilla Fowlow, led to the altar Miss Margaret Quinlin, daughter of Mr. William and the late Marie Quinlin, both of Trinity. The bride looked charming in a gorgeous dress of white satin and finest lace daintily looped with orange blossoms, with a long flowing veil and a crown of orange blossoms. She carried a most beautiful bouquet of sweet peas and maiden hair fern, while the bridesmaids were dressed in beautifully beaded blue silk dresses with black hats and gloves.
The groom was ably supported by Mr.
Charles Windsor while Mr. George Laité acted as father giver. Miss Sarah Downton and Mrs. George Laité acted as bridesmaids. After the ceremony the party motored to Pleasant Street to the home of Mrs. Thomas Newhook, sister of the groom, where an enjoyable supper was partaken of and amusements indulged in until midnight, when the happy guests returned to their homes. The presents were many and valuable, showing the esteem in which they both were held.
The groom's present to the bride was a beautiful wristlet watch, to the bridesmaids a string of pearls, and to the brides boys gold cuff links. The happy couple returned by Sunday's express to Trinity to spend a few months, when they will return to U.
S.A. to make their future home where they had both been residing for some years. We wish Mr. and Mrs. Fowlow many years of wedded bliss, and may their lives be both happy and useful.

Laid to Rest

The interment of the late William Allen took place yesterday afternoon.
Many veterans of the Great War, wearing poppies in remembrance, attended the funeral. At the home of the deceased and at the graveside Rev.
Dr. Fenwick officiated. The G. W. V.
A. ritual was recited by Asst. Sec.
Parsons, and after a minute's silence poppies were thrown in the grave by the veterans.MINARD'S LINIMENT FOR SORE night was well attended. President Mr. Arch. C. Tait in the Chair. The Secretary, Mr. Stewart Dewling, read a report of the hatching eggs distributed this year. About five thousand eggs were sent out—including a shipment of about fifty eggs to Ireland.

A large number were sent to the North, South and West Coasts, as well as to Grand Falls. Three breeding pens of White Leghorns were sold to Cartwright and Red Bay, Labrador, and the other pen to Flower's Cove.
The Grenfell people are trying to interest the people and school children there to raise pure bred poultry. Eggs will be distributed next season from these breeding pens. A committee of six members was appointed to report on arrangements for the 1925 show to be held the last week of November.
A special effort will be made to exhibit live fowls this year and in all probability a silver cup and cash prizes will be offered. Doctor Bishop, V.S., will have the special charge of this department on the Poultry Association's committee. President Tait then entertained the meeting by giving a lantern lecture, showing two sets of slides kindly loaned the Association by the International Harvester Co., of Chicago, (1) Poultry; (2) Dairy Cattle. Amongst the illustrations shown was one sent in by his Excellency the Governor of "Black Opringtons." The slides were educational and most interesting. The Association hopes that the lecturing committee, of which W. D. McCarter is convener, will shortly give a series of public lectures. The Secretary reported a big demand for Barr'd Rocks this year.
The public are becoming more interested in breeding pure bred birds. Mr.
Geo. Tucker gave the meeting some valuable information regarding an electrical device to keep the drinking water from freezing in the winter. One member, W. R. Butler, reported as high liner in the sales of hatching eggs, having disposed of nearly 800 eggs from his own breeding yards.THE BEST VALUE IN

in which Louise Dresser, Dorothy MacKall and William V. Mong are the stars.During his long association with the motion picture industry, Mr. Woods has written scores of original screen stories, in addition to adapting innumerable stage plays and famous novels, including "The Birth of a Na-technique, combined with his marked ability to define and express human emotions, has long been a dominant factor in such high class productions.

In his latest success "What Shall I name and he is now termed the organ-investigating possibilities in that connection in the Alberta grain fields.

For some time experiments have been carried along this line, as a result of the effort of the provincial trade com-

The Medical Association

Yesterday the Newfoundland Medical Association formally opened its second annual Convention, and to-day the programme which has been arranged begins in earnest. We take this opportunity to wish the Medical fraternity Godspeed in their work, and to extend a hearty welcome to the members of the profession who have come from Nova Scotia and the outports in Newfoundland to attend the Conference.

Too much importance cannot be attached to the benefit of these meetings both from the standpoint of the profession and that of the public. In the first place, the opportunities in this country are all too few when the doctors can meet, compare notes, and discuss the various problems which arise in connection with their work. This drawback increases their individual labour and responsibility, and deprives them of the pleasure of that social intercourse with men of congenial tastes and ideas, which is so material a factor in relieving the irksomeness of work in any profession.

From the public standpoint such meetings have a practical significance which cannot be too strongly emphasized. If there is one problem more serious than another with which the country is daily confronted, and which calls more loudly for close study, it is that which concerns the health of the community. The prevalence of certain diseases, the unhygienic conditions in many settlements, and the most effective means of combating them and of raising the standard of health generally, are matters concerning which the ordinary layman is more or less ignorant. Be he a politician or private citizen keenly desirous of doing something to improve existing conditions, he is powerless to deal with them and must rely upon the advice and assistance of experts.

To the medical men on the other hand, these are problems with which they are daily confronted, and with which they are dealing as effectively as possible with the limited facilities at their disposal. On the rare occasions when they meet these matters are fully considered, the views of eminent men from the outside world are heard, and the methods adopted in other countries described. Whether or not the community as a whole will reap the benefit depends, not upon the Association, but upon the governing authorities. The Association has no power to alter the existing state of affairs; it can do nothing more than make recommendations, and as an advisory body it deserves the fullest recognition. Further, in the public interest it is imperative that such recommendations as are made should be acted upon to the utmost extent of the funds available.

The only reasonable excuse that a Government can plead for failing to make every provision to relieve suffering is ignorance of prevailing conditions and a lack of means to deal with them. The former excuse can be no longer advanced since full information is available, and the increasing improvement in the financial affairs of the country warrants our undertaking more effective measures to deal with them.

Press Correspondents

INTERESTED IN NEWFOUNDLAND DEVELOPMENTS.

Mrs. Girvan, who is at present on a visit to the city, is a representative of the Halifax Herald and the Sunday Leader. Before coming to St. John's Mrs. Girvan spent a few days at Corner Brook and Deer Lake obtaining particulars of our new pulp and paper enterprise. She has just returned from an extensive tour of the West Indies, in which Canadians are particularly interested at present owing to the Trade Treaty which has just been signed, and in connection with which the Herald brought out recently a special edition. Mrs. Girvan is particularly interested in our plans for further development, namely, the building of the hotel, the new dock, the work of the Highways Commission and other activities recently undertaken.

Improvements to Quidi Vidi Lakeside

From our advertising columns it will be noticed that the C.C.C. Band have kindly volunteered to give a concert this Tuesday evening at the lakeside in aid of the Regatta Fund. As previously mentioned there has been expended this year so far, about twenty-five hundred dollars and as the regular regatta costs about fifteen hundred in itself, there is an amount of over four thousand dollars needed altogether. Heretofore, the annual financing was done on Water and Duckworth Streets with occasional donations from certain industrial concerns, but efforts will be made by the committee this year to call on all business men, shop owners and citizens generally, who it is felt would welcome an opportunity to give something towards the cost of our annual derby day. The addition of two new boats this year is creating a new interest and it looks as if the 1925 regatta will be one to be long remembered.

Motor Car Ditched

Yesterday afternoon motor car No. 6744 previously owned by Hugh Bishop, became ditched near Duff's Mill on the Topsail Road. The only damage sustained was a broken wind shield. Mr. James, the owner of the car, received a slight cut on the hand and over the left eye as a result of falling glass. The motor car remained in the ditch all night, and is being taken out of the ditch to-day by Lester's men.

Mrs. George W. Clark will be "At Home" to her friends on Wednesday and Thursday, from 3 to 5 p.m., at her future residence, No. 9 Gear Street, (nee Miss Sadie Cooke).—July 14, 11.

Warehouse Broken Open

On Sunday night the warehouse at Tessler's premises, where a large quantity of liquor is stored, was broken open, and it is supposed that a quantity of booze was stolen. The matter is being investigated. Some months ago this warehouse was tampered with but as far as can be learned the guilty party or parties were not located.

Medical Association in Annual Convention

Yesterday at 4 p.m. the Newfoundland Medical Association opened its second annual convention in the Normal School. The President, Dr. L. E. Keegan, presided and introduced his Worship the Mayor, Hon. Tasker Cook, who extended to the Association an official welcome to the city of St. John's. The Mayor in a very fine address complimented the Medical profession on the strides which the Medical profession was making in Newfoundland as evidenced by the improvements in recent years in public health and preventive medicine, and all the more credit to the members who were without the facilities for medical research. Dr. C. A. Forbes, of Bonaville, Vice-President of the Association, thanked the Mayor for the interest he manifested in the work of the organization; the encouragement derived from the warm welcome received would serve as a stimulus to the success of the Convention.

Dr. Keegan then introduced Doctors Miller, Smith-Walker and Acker, of Nova Scotia and proceeded to deliver his presidential address. That this address was an excellent one was evidenced by the appreciative applause which was accorded the President at its close. The history of Medicine and Surgery in Newfoundland from the earliest times was traced, and a warm tribute was paid to the pioneers who paved the way for the modern work now being performed. Without doubt the address of the President will form a very valuable record of the Medical and Surgery work of the Newfoundland practitioners, and future historians of the work of this profession in Newfoundland will have fewer musty volumes to peruse because of the paper which comprised personal reminiscences and painstaking accumulation of historical data. At the instant request of the Association the President has consented to allow it to be published in full at a later date.

Dr. Freebairn of Ferryland moved and Dr. Anderson of Heart's Content seconded a vote of thanks, which was carried with much enthusiasm.

The following members of the profession were present at yesterday's gathering: Bages, Millertown; Knapp, Hr. Breton; Parsons, Hermitage; Forbes, Bonaville; Fitzgerald, Trinity East; Cron, Hr. Grace; Anderson, Heart's Content; Wood, LeDrew, Twillingate; Pullins, Curline; Newhook, Old Perlican; Whelan, Bay Bulls; Jones, Avondale; Smith, Alexander Bay; Freebairn, Ferryland; Giovannetti, Bell Island; Chisholm, Manuels; Whiteway, Musgrave Harbour, together with the resident doctors of the city of St. John's and visiting Doctors noted above from Canada.

Belvedere Garden Party

Construction of the various marquees at the Belvedere grounds is well under way and the lady table holders are interested in having each booth prettier than its neighbor. Never was more enthusiasm manifested on the part of those interested, all working to ensure a big success for the Orphanage. The over-popular Mr. Cashel band will be in attendance through the courtesy of Bro. Ennis. The Mr. Cashel boys have made an enviable name for themselves since their tour across country and many will attend the garden party especially to hear their latest musical hits. The affair will terminate with a splendid dance at night in the Recreation Hall under the management of Mrs. H. Pedigrew, who is going to antoid pains to have the Hall at its very best. It is confidently hoped that fine weather will ensue as nothing has been left to chance whatever, where the comfort and entertainment of patrons is concerned.

Orphanages of all denominations should merit the greatest support of the pleasure loving public, and the Belvedere institution housing over two hundred fatherless little girls is certainly a fair mark for the generosity of all. Every dollar contributed to the Belvedere Garden Party to-morrow is a direct help to the little ones at the Orphanage.

GOSLING-NASH.

The marriage of Mr. Ambrose Gilbert Gosling, to Miss Elwin Nash, took place at the Church of England Cathedral yesterday afternoon at 3 o'clock. The spacious edifice was filled by the friends of the bride and groom. The Lord Bishop of Newfoundland performed the ceremony. Mrs. Charles McK Harvey gave the bride away, and Mr. Gerald Harvey supported the groom. The bride was very prettily attired in white, crepe de chene, embroidered with silver, and carried a beautiful bouquet of white carnations and smilax. The four charming little bridesmaids were Misses Jennie Edgar, Edith Croable, Ruth Hickman, and Brenda Watson, who were attractively gowned in mauve, pink, yellow and green. Following the ceremony a reception was held at the residence of the groom's parents, Mr. and Mrs. W. G. Gosling, LeMarchant Road. Many presents including several substantial cheques were received by them. The bride and groom left by the S. S. Newfoundland for England where the honeymoon, extending about two months, and including a motor tour of Devonshire and other parts, will be spent.

PEPYS BEHIND THE SCENES

July 13th.—A chill east wind all this day with fog and indeed, more like the early spring than the summer nor does it seem how we are like to have any warm weather at all this year, to my great discontent. Some talk about the town concerning a demonstration to seek the opening of the district of St. John's East alibi what truth there is in it I do not know save that the matter is common gossip. Being come to the Petty Court this morning, do hear Capt. Byrne of the American vessel to give us how the whiskey being put in his small boat from the "Herbert Green," he is told there is no charge for it. I do hear how bathing suits for men are to be made in brighter colours this year, which do trouble me to think that men should grow more effeminate in their tastes as women from more masculine. Indeed, if this fashion becomes widespread, when I am bathing in the future meditations I must not only have cotton wool in my ears, but also dark glasses to cover my eyes.

Auction Sale of Cement

The auction sale of cement at Hickman's premises this forenoon, was well attended. About 1,400 steel barrels of cement which was in the fire was disposed of in lots of 50 and 100 barrels. Some lots went for about $1.00 per barrel, and one purchased secured over half the total at that average. The cement appears to be very little damaged, except for a small proportion of the whole, where the fire cut through the packages. Capt. A. Keen was auctioneer.

Magistrate's Court

Yesterday Afternoon's Session.

When Court opened yesterday afternoon, Capt. Thomas Byrne, one of the defendants in the case arising out of the Herbert Green seizure, took his place on the stand, and his examination-in-chief was continued by Mr. Fenelon. When recess was taken at 1 p.m. yesterday, the witness was being examined concerning a conversation, alleged to have taken place between himself and super cargo Ryan and Capt. Nauffts.

Capt. Byrne being placed on the stand after recess was further examined about the conversation, and what transpired subsequently. He said that two or three minutes after the conversation, Kendrick came to the cabin door and told super cargo Ryan, if Capt. Byrne wanted a case of whiskey it would be all right. Even then Ryan refused. Witness told super cargo that Kendrick was a plain clothes revenue officer and continued by stating that two other officers on the dock knew all about it. Witness had not been in conversation with Customs Officer Roberts at any time. As a matter of fact he did not know the man. Super-cargo Ryan then told Captain Byrne he would let him have some whiskey provided he would take it in a boat, and not place it on the dock.

Capt. Byrne consented to this and left the steamer to secure a boat. He found one near the wharf with no oars in it, and procured one from the Orleans, some 300 yards away. In the meantime witness had met Wilson stationed on the dock, and also saw Kendrick and Shears. When witness had returned from his vessel to the Burness Wharf, he noticed the bow lines were gone on the Herbert Green, looking as though the ship was ready to sail. Capt. Byrne admitted that he got down into the boat and sculled around to the off shore side of the Herbert Green where five cases of whiskey were lowered over the ship's side into the boat. Witness then went back in his evidence to the time when Shears went ashore to get some money. Capt. Byrne stated he did not know whether Shears would be able to get any or not. It was not until Shears and witness were in the boat that the money was asked for, and witness even admitted that when he went to the side of the Herbert Green he did not know whether they were going to lower either one, two, or three cases of whiskey. After it had been placed in the boat witness asked super-cargo Ryan how much for the lot, but the only reply received was "that they were getting away from here." While the words were exchanged the ship was moving away slowly.

Capt. Byrne then started to scull alongside of the vessel Orleans when somebody called out "stop." The boat was then turned round to where the police officers were, and while he was doing so, a shout came from the wharf to "Throw it overboard."

When the police took charge of the boat and its contents, Capt. Byrne told the officers that he had borrowed the boat without permission and asked leave to have it returned. Shears was in the boat during the time with Capt. Byrne.

Q.—Did you tell Customs officer Kendrick, on the Orleans that you were looking for a two-masted schooner named Moshier?

A.—That day I did hear of a schooner coming into port to load liquor, and when Kendrick told me that the Herbert Green was loading liquor, I said it was a schooner that was coming here.

Q.—Did you say anything more about the Moshier?

A.—Kendrick was saying a schooner was yesterday morning Friday, but he did not know its name.

Q.—Was Kendrick still with you on the Orleans when Mr. Shears went ashore to cash the cheque?

A.—He was.

Q.—Was Kendrick still with you until he came back?

A.—Yes.

Q.—When Kendrick went ashore after that, Shears was still with you, was he not?

A.—Yes.

Q.—Did Kendrick come back after that, before 11 o'clock?

A.—Yes.

Q.—Did Kendrick go with you and Shears from the vessel Orleans.

A.—Yes.

Q.—Customs Officer Green has stated that a conversation between three of you in cabin, centred on whiskey and rum running. Did you discuss rum running with Nauffts or Ryan at eight o'clock?

A.—No.

Q.—Did you discuss with super-cargo Ryan the price of whiskey?

A.—No.

Q.—Did you tell super-cargo Ryan you were particularly anxious to secure the best whiskey?

A.—No.

Q.—Did you make statements to Capt. Nauffts, and Ryan, about the prices of Bond Store or Controller's Liquor here?

A.—No.

Q.—Did you say to super-cargo Ryan, "You could put the stuff over the outside?"

A.—No.

Q.—Did Mr. Ryan say to you, there was no difference what way it was taken?

A.—No.

Q.—Did you hear Customs Officer Green, in giving evidence, say he was hiding behind the crates?

Commissioners Return From West Coast

Chairman T. A. Hall and Hon. W. J. Ellis, of the Highroads Commission, who were on a visit to the West Coast in connection with the location of proposed roads there, returned to the city yesterday. At Corner Brook arrangements were made to build the road via Crow Gulch. Under this arrangement the road will be through the settlement as at present. The idea of going to Spruce Brook via Frenchman's Cove has been abandoned. It was found too difficult to get from the seacoast in the Serpentine Country owing to the abruptness of the hills. The route now being tried out is through Georgetown to Cook's Brook. Survey parties are at present engaged on this section. Chairman Hall and Hon. W. J. Ellis paid a visit to Grand River and inspected the work in progress on the new concrete bridge which will span the river at Upper Ferry.

This bridge, which is 1100 feet long, consists of eight spans 121 ft. long. Each span has two concrete ribs carrying concrete pillars, which in turn support a deck of the same material. This bridge when finished will be the longest and most important in Newfoundland. A survey party is now working between Little River and Port aux Basques. They have secured a pretty route by leaving the sea front and getting into the hills. The area between Port aux Basques and Little River is hilly and unswerving, and had the road followed the route of the railway it would have given tourists a bad impression. The Commissioners feel fortunate in securing what is termed an extremely attractive route. This road will be from two to three miles from the coast in places, and it is expected will be shorter than the railway between the points.

The following reports for the week ending July 11th, has been received by the Game and Inland Fisheries Board:—

South Branch Codroy River—8 rods, 13 salmon, 4 to 22 lbs. each.

Crabbs River—10 rods, 60 salmon, 3 to 12 lbs. each.

Middle Barachois River—Water low, no rod fishermen.

Robinson's River—7 rods, 38 salmon, 3 to 5 lbs. each.

Flat Bay Brook—3 rods, 9 salmon, 3 to 9 lbs. each.

Harry's River, (Upper)—3 rods, 19 salmon, 4 to 21 lbs. each.

Exploits River—2 rods, 2 salmon, 5½ and 6 lbs.

North Arm River, Bedford—Plenty salmon; water in good condition.

Gander River—9 rods, 21 salmon, averaging 6 lbs. each; water high, N. W. and S.W. branches choked with salmon.

Gambo River—Water good, salmon and sea trout in. One rod, 4 salmon, 5 to 11 lbs. each.

Terra Nova River—Plenty salmon going in; river still keeping high; 2 local rods, 2 salmon, 5 and 12 lbs.

Port Blandford—Plenty salmon going in, particularly N.W. and salmon brooks.

Salmonier River, (Lower)—Salmon going up, plentiful.

Little Salmonier—Salmon in abundance; plenty of water.

North East River, Placentia—Salmon very plentiful, 4 rods, 20 salmon, 4 to 5 lbs. each.

July 14th—Warden Burt, Ragged Harbor River, caught two men using nets near the falls. The Warden has been instructed to seize the nets and prosecute the offenders.

S.S. Meigs, Capt. Burgess, sailed at 10 o'clock this morning on the Labrador service route. She took a large freight and the following passengers: Misses Gilmore, Chadwick, Pippy, Hiscok (2), Drover, Butt, Mrs. Hiscok; Messrs. J. W. Hiscok, J. Drover, B. Norris, Rev. Fr. O'Brien, Rev. Mr. Noel and J. McRae.

The idea of going to Spruce Brook via Frenchman's Cove has been abandoned. It was found too difficult to get from the seacoast in the Serpentine Country owing to the abruptness of the hills. The route now being tried out is through Georgetown to Cook's Brook. Survey parties are at present engaged on this section. Chairman Hall and Hon. W. J. Ellis paid a visit to Grand River and inspected the work in progress on the new concrete bridge which will span the river at Upper Ferry.

This bridge, which is 1100 feet long, consists of eight spans 121 ft. long. Each span has two concrete ribs carrying concrete pillars, which in turn support a deck of the same material. This bridge when finished will be the longest and most important in Newfoundland. A survey party is now working between Little River and Port aux Basques. They have secured a pretty route by leaving the sea front and getting into the hills. The area between Port aux Basques and Little River is hilly and unswerving, and had the road followed the route of the railway it would have given tourists a bad impression. The Commissioners feel fortunate in securing what is termed an extremely attractive route. This road will be from two to three miles from the coast in places, and it is expected will be shorter than the railway between the points.

The following reports for the week ending July 11th, has been received by the Game and Inland Fisheries Board:—

South Branch Codroy River—8 rods, 13 salmon, 4 to 22 lbs. each.

Crabbs River—10 rods, 60 salmon, 3 to 12 lbs. each.

Middle Barachois River—Water low, no rod fishermen.

Robinson's River—7 rods, 38 salmon, 3 to 5 lbs. each.

Flat Bay Brook—3 rods, 9 salmon, 3 to 9 lbs. each.

Harry's River, (Upper)—3 rods, 19 salmon, 4 to 21 lbs. each.

Exploits River—2 rods, 2 salmon, 5½ and 6 lbs.

North Arm River, Bedford—Plenty salmon; water in good condition.

Gander River—9 rods, 21 salmon, averaging 6 lbs. each; water high, N. W. and S.W. branches choked with salmon.

Gambo River—Water good, salmon and sea trout in. One rod, 4 salmon, 5 to 11 lbs. each.

Terra Nova River—Plenty salmon going in; river still keeping high; 2 local rods, 2 salmon, 5 and 12 lbs.

Port Blandford—Plenty salmon going in, particularly N.W. and salmon brooks.

Salmonier River, (Lower)—Salmon going up, plentiful.

Little Salmonier—Salmon in abundance; plenty of water.

North East River, Placentia—Salmon very plentiful, 4 rods, 20 salmon, 4 to 5 lbs. each.

July 14th—Warden Burt, Ragged Harbor River, caught two men using nets near the falls. The Warden has been instructed to seize the nets and prosecute the offenders.

S.S. Meigs, Capt. Burgess, sailed at 10 o'clock this morning on the Labrador service route. She took a large freight and the following passengers: Misses Gilmore, Chadwick, Pippy, Hiscok (2), Drover, Butt, Mrs. Hiscok; Messrs. J. W. Hiscok, J. Drover, B. Norris, Rev. Fr. O'Brien, Rev. Mr. Noel and J. McRae.

OIL SITUATION.

NEW YORK, July 8.—Present policy

of leading oil men is so framed as to cause the greatest possible withdrawal of oil from storage this year, rather than encouragement to open new fields. This policy so far this year has been successful. It has resulted in satisfactory prices for crude oil and refined oil products which are enabling the oil companies to make large earnings, in many cases record earnings. Continuation of that policy will mean large earnings throughout the rest of this year.

This is the first change in several years.

Basically the situation continues strong, with production of light oil the lowest in several years. It is now down to 1,407,000 barrels a day, against 1,525,000 a day the first of the year and 1,888,000 in July, 1923. This is a decrease of 487,000 daily from the peak.

Despite all the wildcatting going on as usual, results of prospecting work have been disappointing. At present new field work is confined largely to deep drilling in Oklahoma, but this does not seem to hold out the promise that wildcat drilling along the Mexico fault zone did last year.

Oil men have been more far-sighted in handling the present situation than in many years. They have largely succeeded in eliminating hoarding of gasoline, which did much to unsettle conditions last year. This has been done by keeping the spread between wholesale and retail price of gasoline small so as not to permit the scalper of gasoline to thrive. At the same time prices have meant a good profit to all companies which have the interest of the oil industry at heart. Present refinery price in midcontinent is 32 cents a gallon, which is considered a very fair price, allowing good profits. As the acreage under oil is not getting two gallons of gasoline where he formerly got one out of the same amount of crude, the fairness of this price is apparent.

Oil men have been more far-sighted in handling the present situation than in many years. They have largely succeeded in eliminating hoarding of gasoline, which did much to unsettle conditions last year. This has been done by

REINOLD'S LINIMENT FOR COLDS.

Supreme Court

WEDNESDAY, July 8.

MR. HOWLEY (Continued).—Now, my Lord, might I direct attention to No. 822 in Volume 2, which is marked "J.A. McD. 436." This appears to be the first communication which leads up to the connection with Rothermere, and is a letter from Lord Rothermere to Mr. H. D. Reid, dated 16th February, 1920. It reads:—

LONDON, Feb. 16, 1920.

Dear Reid.—A few of my friends here are desirous of taking a hand in a paper-making proposition. Are your Humber River limits for sale? If so, will you send particulars of the price. I understand you control a proposition on the Gander River. If this is so, will you also send me particulars of this.

My friends have a fair amount of money, but before committing themselves will require an option for three or four months, so as to enable them to enquire into any proposition they care to consider. I hear you had a very bad winter in Newfoundland, we had a very good one here—fine open weather without any particular cold. I am hoping to make my long anticipated visit to Newfoundland this year. Health and business prevented my going last year.

Yours very faithfully,
ROTHERMERE.

H. D. Reid, Esq.

Now, my Lord, here at the very start of the connection with the Rothermere interests, we have the Rothermere position clearly defined by himself, that before committing themselves they will require an option for three or four months, and I take it that that means, if it means anything, that at the end of those three or four months they did not necessarily have to commit themselves if they did not want to. Then, if your Lordship will refer to No. 645, that is "J.A. McD. 31," and in a message from the Trust to Harry Reid, St. John's, dated 29th April, 1920:

LONDON, April 29, 1920.

Harry Reid, St. John's.
Gander negotiations progressing. Stop Rothermere's man asks if you willing to negotiate separately for the Reid-Newfoundland grants stop. If so on what terms in detail stop Rothermere's request suggest desire purchase Reid grants in hope timber estates would fall in cheap at later date.

CAMERGOT.

Now, my Lord, I think that it is apparent that the so-called Reid grants are in a different position altogether from timber lands held under license from the Crown under the Crown Lands Act. In the one case you are dealing with fee simple grants obtained under special contracts and which are subject to many of the burdens and restrictions which apply to timber lands held under license, and everything else being equal; that is, lands being equally timbered and operating conditions, logging and that sort of thing being equal, there is no doubt that the Reid grants, so-called, would be a much more attractive proposition to a purchaser than timber lands held under a license, and because it would be a much more attractive proposition to a purchaser it would be likely to command a better price and here we have at this early stage of the negotiations with Rothermere the suggestion that it is his desire to acquire all these lands, but for the immediate present all that he wants to get hold of is the Reid blocks, in the hope that the Timber Estates would fall in cheap at a later date. Well, I do not find any fault with the Rothermere people for taking that attitude, but it is apparent that the approach of Reid by Rothermere interests at that time that the approach by Rothermere when he asks about this property and points out that he does not want to commit himself, that what he wants is not the Gander area, but the Reid blocks in the Gander area. Then, my Lord, we have No. 635, which is "J.A. McD. 73." This is a letter written on the 8th of June, 1920, by Major MacDonald to Mr. H. D. Reid. It reads:—

H. & O. T. T. Ltd.,
London, June 8, 1920.

H. D. Reid, Esq., St. John's.

Dear Mr. Reid.—

Gander Pulp.

You have been advised of the negotiations leading up to the granting of the option so fully that there is little further to be said in this connection.

Your brother signed the option agreement on the 4th inst., and was handed the cheque for £2,000. The option agreement was then handed to the Bank of Montreal to be sent to their head office in Montreal for transmission to their St. John's branch. A copy of the option agreement is enclosed herewith. As provided for in the agreement Lord Rothermere's solicitors notified the Trust's solicitors that Mr. Cowley's representatives in Newfoundland were Messrs. Wood & Kelly and the Trust was informed by telephone to say by Mr. Cowley that instructions were being sent to their representatives in St. John's on the matter of title and inspection of the timber areas. A further telephone message received to-day requested information on what could be termed first, second and third class pulp lands in the area in question. At their request we sent you a cable to-day adding our views that it was their chief aim to locate the burnt over area on Timber Estate referred to in reports received from you. The following is a copy of the cable:—

"Rothermere asks us if possible to indicate to him by lot numbers what are in our opinion first class, second class, third class pulp area Gander to facilitate his instructions inspectors to gather their wishes in the matter are to locate burnt over reported in Timber Estates stop They are writing instructions Newfoundland Thursday. CAMERGOT."

The impression we got from our conversation with the prospective purchasers is that they are seriously inclined toward the completion of the transaction and intend to exercise their option. However, in order to be on the safe side, and provided you agree, we should continue to hold other prospective buyers in readiness to enter into negotiations for purchase should Lord Rothermere decide not to compete. We sincerely trust, however, that this eventually will not arise.

For your information and guidance we enclose copy of letter just received from the solicitors. We shall be obliged if you would give, after perusal, the enclosed copy of agreement to Mr. Conroy, as provided for in the agreement.

Yours faithfully,
J. A. MacDONALD.

Now, my Lord, there at that early date there seems to be in the minds of the Plaintiffs the idea that, although the Rothermere people were seriously inclined towards a purchase, they should contemplate that they should continue to hold other prospective buyers in readiness, and, incidentally, I submit that we are entitled to deduce from that letter that at that time they had in sight some other prospective buyer, and it develops from another part of the correspondence to which I shall refer later that they had in sight a Colonel Walker. The next letter to which I would like to direct attention, my Lord, is No. 716, which is a letter from Mr. Greenwood to Mr. H. D. Reid, marked "W.H.G.76," dated the 26th of July, 1920, and it seems to deal almost entirely with the Gander business. It reads:

(The letter will be found at the end of this instalment.)

Now, my Lord, here is confirmation of the idea suggested in the Trust message to us to which I referred a while ago, that Rothermere at this time had in mind the purchase of The Reid Lots and the Reid Lots Only. The next letter to which I would like to refer your Lordship is also from Greenwood to H. D. Reid and is No. 734, "W.H.G.76," dated August 13th, 1920. It reads:

N.B.&T. Co. Ltd.,
London,
13 August, 1920.

H. D. Reid, Esq.,
Reid Mtd. Co.,
St. John's.

Dear Mr. Reid.—Re Gander Area. Again to-day I have been in conference with Col. Walker, D.S.O., of Hull, a prominent paper man, on the matter of obtaining an advance of £60,000 to take up the Timber Estate option.

We have again gone fully into the whole matter, subject to your recent cable, and two things might very properly be considered, namely, first, that the mortgage should carry interest at 7 p.c.; second, that the suggested bonus should be added to the mortgage money at the expiration of the first twelve months, then £30,000 would be added, and second, at the end of 18 months then £15,000 would be added. We may not need this change, but it is worth while thinking about. The Colonel is making an appointment to-day to see one of the largest pulp men in the British Empire, and so soon as he has placed the proposal before him he will bring me into the conference, and we will see with what speed we can complete the negotiations. It may be that this particular gentleman that we are interviewing will not consider the proposal, but should he consider it the difficulty of obtaining a purchaser for the Gander area will be solved, as he is influential in pulp circles.

We have several other persons likely to be interested, and will carry on the negotiations as rapidly as possible. One thing that mitigates against a presentation of the proposal is the fact that we have no detailed cruise of all the timber area comprised in the Gander territory, nor have we the professional views of an expert pulp engineer to go upon. All we can present to an expectant mortgagee are the facts in our possession, which, as a general rule, are not sufficient to sway the opinion of a man who has spent his whole life in the pulp business. However, as we have not the facts, and as I understand it you are not in possession of the cruiser's report or an expert's opinion, we must do the best we can with the material we have and present the matter as a financial proposal, first joined with an option for purchase at a price and emphasize the excellence of the timber and the opportunity of getting a large amount of raw material as a reserve for making pulp. You will agree with me that Rothermere was in a different position from any other men we can approach in London, because he had the opinion of his man Scott in Newfoundland as to the Gander area and had no reason to go behind that opinion in forming his judgment.

With any other person unfamiliar with Newfoundland and without the advantages Rothermere has had, I am inclined to believe difficulties may arise, and as I see no way of surmounting them until they do arise, I only make the suggestion in the hope that at an early date an opportunity make possible the complete cruise of the whole area might be made and the opinion of an expert professional pulp man obtained on the feasibility of developing the pulp lands. So soon as we have been able to get to grips with the man that the Colonel is seeing this afternoon I will reply to your cablegram by cable.

With kindest personal regards, in haste.

Yours faithfully,
W. H. GREENWOOD.

McD., 116, which is a letter from Major MacDonald to Mr. Reid, dated the seventh of September, 1920. It reads:

H. B. & T. Co., Ltd.,
London,
7th September, 1920.

H. D. Reid, Esq.,
Reid Newfoundland Co.,
St. John's.

Dear Mr. Reid, Gander Area.—As you were advised by cable on the 3rd inst., Mr. Cowley was interviewed on this matter last Friday and was expected to make an appointment for a continuation of the discussion after he had seen Lord Rothermere. Instead of hearing from Cowley, H. J. Crowe called at the office at 6 p.m., after we had left, and afterwards got on the house phone. He had been seen on Saturday by Mr. Greenwood and myself when Gander was discussed for a few minutes. He had previously discussed Gander with Lord Rother-mere and we gathered rather fully from his knowledge of the price on the option, etc. We informed Mr.
Crowe that we were going on with the sale of the property independently of Lord Rothermere, but before finally closing we would follow your wish to ask Lord Rothermere for a final offer if he cared to make it. We would like to effect a sale to Lord Rother-mere but could not afford to consider his last offer for part of the property and thereby lose a great proportion of the financial interest in the remaining areas in consequence of its un-saleability apart from water power.

Mr. Crowe in his conversation stated that he had occasion to discuss the matter with Lord Rothermere and informed His Lordship of our determination to go forward in the present independent negotiations for sale if a decision was not arrived at this week. Mr. Cowley was brought into the discussion and instructed to take up negotiations with us to-day. We are awaiting a call.

Mr. Crowe further informed me that Lord Rothermere told him he had had a cable from Mr. Coaker asking if he intended buying Gander, to which Lord Rothermere replied that he could not purchase as he had not got the money. Mr. Crowe asked that any offer made by Lord Rothermere be not turned down until he had a chance of seeing Lord Rothermere.
From our point of view we concluded that Mr. Crowe and Lord Rothermere have a perfect understanding on the matter and we feel that any offer made should be in the form of a firm offer with a substantial payment this month.

against a refusal to purchase by Lord Rothermere, Mr. Foster of Messrs.

manufacturers, was spoken to and affirmed his willingness to discuss purchase. We are making an appointment to see him this afternoon.
Strangely enough, when we were talking to Grant Morden yesterday he asked if we had pulpwood for sale as his newspaper interests were dependent upon purchasing their supplies from dealers, and we gathered without any guarantee of quantity.
We are lunching with him one day next week to take this matter a step further to see if he is seriously inclined, but will do nothing without reference to you.

I am sending you this letter in order that you may be fully aware of the various steps in negotiations. The negotiations, you will agree, have reached a delicate state and will require careful handling. I hope we shall be able to worry through them successfully.

Yours sincerely,

J. A. MacDonald.

Now, my lord, with regard to that letter, which was written on September seventh, not so very long before the actual signing of the option of October first and still less time from the date when apparently the agreement to take the option of October first had been decided upon, if your Lordship will remember, that negotiations which led to the agreement for the option apparently materialised about the 21st or 22d of September, because it was on the 22nd that Mr.
Cowley wrote this letter stating what he expected to do if the cruisers' report was satisfactory. But here on the seventh of September we have the point, first of all, that the

Rothermere Interests Were Still Nibbling at the Gander.

We have the evident fact that all through this year 1920, from the time that Rothermere first wrote out to St. John's to Mr. Reid in February, 1920, the Rothermere people had their eyes on the Gander property. It is apparent that, although they had their eye on the Gander property as a whole, in the early part of the summer they were contemplating that for their present purposes it would suit them to obtain possession or control over the Reid blocks without bothering about the Timber Estates blocks, and here in September we find that Rothermere is informed through Crowe that other purchasers for this territory are in sight, and that Rother-mere at this time in response to an enquiry from Mr. Coaker as to what was going to be done on the Gander—I do not know that it has any material bearing that Mr. Coaker enquired, but probably there was an election on and he wanted to issue a manifesto or something of that sort—but, be that as it may, what Rothermere replied to Crowe was that he could not purchase because he had not the money.
Then, my lord, within a fortnight, within two weeks from this date, the second Gander option has been negotiated. The document to which I will like to refer your Lordship is No. 764, marked "J. A. McD., 116," and written on the 14th, September, 1920, by Major MacDonald to Mr. H.
D. Reid. It reads:—
N.B. & T. Co., Ltd., London, 14th
September, 1920.
H. D. Reid, Esq.,
Reid Nfld. Co.,
St. John's.
Dear Mr. Reid,— Gander.

On Saturday last we had an interview with Lord Rothermere at the Savoy, and discussed Gander from various points of view. The material points arising out of the meeting were that Lord Rothermere declared himself to be a buyer on terms, and that he would require a detailed description of the property offered for sale.
We accordingly called you to-day who intends to make offer, but wants to state clearly what you are selling.
Telegraph a full description total area including Reid lot numbers. Must have reply here by Monday morning.

CAMERGOT.

Your replies as per copies attached reached us in time for the meeting yesterday when we paraphrased your cables and made a table as attached.
We did not make an offer on your terms stated as we had negotiated for an offer from Lord Rothermere knowing that to be the best way to test his sincerity and his intention to come anywhere near a price you could accept. At the meeting yesterday, I met Sir Alexander Caird, Director of the Anglo Newfoundland Development Co. who was conversant with Gander limits from reports made by one Gil-mour. After discussing the reduction of the area from that previously offered, Lord Rothermere asked if 81 acre for the total would be considered, I said there was not the slightest chance. He then said he would make a firm offer on Wednesday but as in the former interview he suggested that payment might be made by the issue of notes that could be immediately negotiated. The result of the last meeting was a promise of his Lordship that a definite offer would be made provided he could get a reply as to why the areas had been reduced and a clear indication of where the timber estates acreage that had been dropped from the offer was situated, also regarding small power at Glenwood. A cable as follows was accordingly sent:

"Say Rothermere who will make offer Wednesday provided that full information can be secured concerning which part timber estates excluded and why. Can Glenwood Power be included in sale, if not, why not. What is the estimate of wood pulp and timber on properties offered for sale?
Rothermere serious purchaser but feeling of apprehension prevails on account of decreased acreage. Urgent have information meeting Wednesday.

CAMERGOT.

The general discussion centered around the probability of a block of 100,000 acres of the best portion of Gander being taken out of the deal
I assured them that was improbable and that a satisfactory answer to their questions as above referred to would be forthcoming. They persisted, however, in the view that there was every probability of some of the best land being taken out of the area first under option and that there would be every likelihood of their demanding a short time to inspect the portion now on offer. I informed them that any offer containing this condition could not be considered if the period asked for was a lengthy one, and I thought when they were given the area melted from the offer, they with their present knowledge could quickly decide. The railway facilities were then touched upon and the meeting then terminated with the assurance from Lord Rothermere that he was a serious buyer and that the Anglo Development Co. were prepared to join him. The meeting was characterized by the most cordial relations.
If no exception is taken to the elimination of the small power at Glenwood there is little doubt an offer will be made for purchase which we will try to improve as far as possible and then inform you of the terms by cable.
Crowe, whom, by the way, we are seeing this morning, has, we understand, stated to Lord Rothermere that the great value of Gander lies in the possession of the small power which can be cheaply harnessed and which would provide a plant with power to produce 100 tons of pulp per day, and being near the railway would be Lord Rothermere's best source of supply to act as a reserve to his paper mills at Grand Falls. We are arranging for Mr. Warren to meet Lord Rothermere and fulfilminate on Southern Harbor or Fortune Bay. He is most anxious to do this as it affords him a good opportunity of conforming to his election pledges in connection with railway facilities for his constituents. Mr. Warren is also keen on Humber developments and has seen Blackstad and will meet him again to urge development on national lines that would include the co-operation of the Government.

Yours sincerely,

J. A. MacDonald.

Now, my lord, here is the position, that on the 14th of September Rother-mere is representing himself as ready to make a firm offer, that here is Sir Andrew Caird, a director of the Anglo Newfoundland Development Company and an associate of Lord Rothermere and actually one of the parties to whom the option of October first was granted, who was conversant with the Gander limits from reports made by one Gilmour. Now, so far as the Gander limits are concerned, and so far as any knowledge of the limits is concerned, we have this position, in No.
734, "W.N.G.78," we have the statement that "Rothermere was in a different position from any other man we can approach in London because he has the option of his man Scott in Newfoundland as to the Gander area," and then in this "J.A.McD. 126," to which I have just referred, No. 764, we have a statement that Sir Andrew Caird was "conversant with the Gander limits from reports made by one Gilmour." So that I submit, my lord, that the question as to the quantity of timber on the Gander limits, insofar as Rothermere and Sir Andrew Caird were concerned, must have been settled to such an extent that another cruise by a third party, no matter how high his reputation and experience were, would not have affected their minds necessarily, certainly would not have affected their minds conclusively on the subject, because here they were, Rothermere with the opinion of his man Scott, a former official of the Rothermere interests at Grand Falls, the head officer out there, and Caird with the knowledge derived from Gilmour's report, Gilmour being Scott's successor and at that time high in the office and in the confidence of the Harmsworth people; so that both Lord Rothermere and Sir Andrew Caird at this time not alone must have had knowledge of the contents of the Gander property, but must have had knowledge that they had no doubt of knowledge upon which they relied to an extent greater than they would rely upon knowledge obtained from anyone else, because they had this knowledge direct from their two principal leading men out here. Then, my lord, if with that knowledge they accepted an option on a property alleged to contain a quantity of timber they either must have known, their knowledge must have told them, that that quantity of timber was there, or, if they understood from that, that that quantity of timber was not there, then they had no intention to buy. In other words, the representation contained in the option as to the quantity of timber that was there, irrespective now as to whether that representation was correct or was not correct, that representation did not mislead Rothermere or his representatives who took this option. That representation could not mislead Rothermere because he would not rely on it. The natural thing for him to do was to depend upon what he had been told by his own men. Then I submit, my lord, we are forced to this conclusion that either his own men had reported to him a quantity of timber agreeing with the amount named in the option, or if it was otherwise that he either never intended to exercise the option as it stood or expected to modify that option and reduce the price. And, my lord, this latter view of it to my mind is borne out by Clause II in the option itself. I have sought to reconcile the inclusion in that option of Clause II, with the position apparently created by the letter that Cowley writes on the 22nd of September, and the only way by which I can reconcile it is that nobody was misled by the figures of quantity of timber that were contained in the option of October first, but that everybody, including the Rothermere interests, had the idea in their minds,

"this is only an option. This is not an obligation on us to buy. If this timber is there we have a right to say we will buy it and the right to reject it. If investigation shows that this timber is not there or that there is any doubt as to what quantity is there we want to still have a string on this property so that we can negotiate for a purchase at a lower figure." Or there might be the other position, my lord, that Rothermere had never, not even when he took the option of October first, departed from what apparently was his pet idea, to get hold of the Reid Company lots and thereby isolate the Timber Estates lots, and put them in the position that they were practically in the scrap heap and could be bought for whatever he liked to offer for them. I am not finding any fault with the Lord Rother-mere interests for that idea at all.

From their viewpoint I suppose it was good business. But that seems to me to be the position.

Mr. Turner's Evidence.

I would ask your Lordship next to refer to No. 775, which is marked "J.
A. McD. 136," and is a message from the Trust to Reid dated September 22nd, 1920. Now, my lord, on this date, which, curiously enough, is the very date of the letter from Cowley to the Trust telling them that they intended to purchase if the amount of timber was there, on this date here is the position, that information in the possession of the Rothermere people states that "Half of the Timber Estates area is waste and many times burnt over and the price is assessed accordingly." Sir Andrew Caird and Cowley declare this best and final offer," etc. Now, my lord, if the information in the possession of Rother-mere is that the Timber Estates area is half of it waste and many times burnt over, surely the information in the possession of the Rothermere people must have indicated to them the quality of wood on the property, and, surely, if, as Mr. Turner has told us, he could not find any more than somewhere in the neighbourhood of 700,000 cords of wood on the property—at least this is what his reports—as final offer, this 700,000 which is spoken of in the option of October first, shrewdly with such a discrepancy as that the Rothermere people would not have accepted the option of October first.
Here is the position on the 22nd of September: Rothermere and Caird have the information from Scott and Gilmour, whatever it is, we do not know. Then with this information in their possession they come down and negotiate the terms of an option, and when they finally negotiate the terms of this option, price and so on, they arrive at that figure, that figure is reduced because they make allowances for what their information tells them is waste and burnt lands, and at the same time they write a letter stating that if the quantity of timber is there, or the value of timber is there, they will purchase. Might I point out, my lord, a peculiar wording of Cow-ley's letter of September 22nd which had not occurred to me before, "that the long interview which Sir Andrew Caird and I had with you yesterday." Taking this, in conjunction with the telegram No. 775, to which I have just referred, that apparently is the time when the Trust learnt that Rother-mere people had information stating that half the Timber Estates area was waste and many times burnt over and the price was assessed accordingly, and he says, "After the long interview Sir Andrew Caird and I had with you yesterday it will be only fairness on the part of our friends in Newfoundland that will prevent the deal being made." Now, my lord, having regard to the fact that this interview of yesterday settled the value of the lands, not the quantity of timber on the lands but the value of the lands, having the information they had with regard to waste and burnt lands the price was assessed accordingly. Cowley writes that it would be only failure to prove the value—and if that means anything, I submit it means the price that had been assessed at the meeting the day before —that would prevent them from exercising the option. Now what have they done? At the very most—if we give Mr. Turner's evidence its full effect—at the very most it is a proof of the quantity of timber on the lands and no reference whatever has been made to the value of the lands so far as their value in pounds, shillings and pence is concerned. And even if the information that Cowley and Caird had when they entered into this agreement, the information that they had from Scott and the information that they had from Gilmour, was to the effect that the quantity of wood on the lands was the quantity reported by Turner or thereabouts, then the point that they had in their minds when they entered into this option was not how many thousand or how many million cords of wood were there on this land, but that the lands such as they were, with waste and with burnt territory and everything else, were worth £220,000, the price named in the option, and there has not been one tittle of evidence adduced by the Plaintiffs to show that value, greater or less or equal, to that mentioned in the option they set upon these lands or the cruise determined for these lands.

Now, my lord, the next letter to which I would like to refer your Lordship is No.
549, which is marked in the book "J.
McD. 445."

This is a letter written by Major MacDonald to Mr. Conroy on the 9th December, 1920, and after the Rother-mere people had declined to exercise the option, and in the last paragraph of that letter he says, "I cannot but think, however, that the bad times which have suddenly fallen upon us is a very strong factor in regard to the decision of his people" (that is, the Rothermere people) "to break off negotiations for the purchase." Now, my lord, what I would like to submit for your consideration in connection with this view of the Gander is, that having regard to all this correspondence, the reason for the non-exercise

WALKER TO MEET SHADE.

NEW YORK, July 9.—Mickey Walker, of Elizabeth, N.J., world's welterweight champion, will meet Dave Shade, of California, his most persistent challenger, in a 15-round decision match in New York State, if a reliable promoter can be obtained to stage the match, the State Athletic Commission announced to-day following a conference with the two principals.

Jimmy DeForest, matchmaker of the Polo Grounds A.C., already has Shade's signature for a match, and it is expected that he will make a strong bid for the title match. Tex Rickard, who holds the boxing rights at the Yankee Stadium, will also likely bid.

While no definite date for the match was set at to-day's conference, it developed that the Commission is in favor of an outdoor meeting, which means that Walker will probably meet his most outstanding challenger before the summer season terminates.

NURMI NEEDED A HARDER MATRESS TO RUN AT BEST.
Great Fin complained That The Beds Were Too Soft In The United States.

NEW YORK, July 6.—Paavo Nurmi, who shattered more than thirty world's foot-racing records during his recent visit to this country, is of the opinion he would have added more to his list had he been provided with hard mattress on which to sleep during his sojourn here.

This was disclosed in an interview with Paavo published in the "Uusi Suomalainen" daily paper of Turku or Abo, Finland—Paavo's town—a copy of which has just been forwarded here by Toivo Kekkonen, a Finnish-American lawyer with offices in the Woolworth Building.

It was while being questioned regarding the stomach ailment which forced him to quit the track while leading Willie Ritola in the "Casey" 5,000-metre run at Madison Square Garden, that Paavo complained of "too soft a bed."

"What was the matter with your appendix?" inquired the Uusi Suomalainen reporter, according to the published interview.

"It wasn't the appendix that bothered me," answered Paavo. "That was an ordinary thing which, I might add, affected me for a couple of weeks."

thereafter. Certainly the fact I slept in too soft a bed had a great deal to do with it. Beds that are too soft are not good for success in athletics.

In his talk with the Turku reporter Nurmi declared there is no nation which can become so enthusiastic as Americans when they think they have good cause for enthusiasm and he praised the American public and the American athletes. He said, however, that he regretted the American attitude regarding amateurs and professionals, stating it was his impression that the Americans think there is no difference between the two classes and that both are paid for their performances.

Paavo said American baseball still remains a mystery to him. He said it was a swift, breath-taking game, but not an easy one for the foreign visitor to understand.

When questioned regarding the possibility of taking up residence in the United States, Paavo replied that he had returned to his Turku home "perhaps for the last time." He refused to explain what he meant by that statement beyond saying that during February and March he was very homesick, but that that feeling disappeared afterward.

Nurmi's home town gave him a most enthusiastic reception, according to the "Uusi Suomalainen" and there were present at the ceremony representatives and newspapermen from all parts of Finland.

SHADE TO REFUSE WALKER BOUT IN CALIFORNIA RING.

NEW YORK, July 8.—After waiting two years for his chance to meet Mickey Walker, the chances are that Dave Shade will refuse to go to Los Angeles to get his crack at the welterweight champion.

Neither Shade nor Leo Flynn, his manager, want to go to the coast to have it out with Walker when it is a "natural" for these parts. It would be sheer stupidity to take the bout to the Natives. It belongs here and would draw a tremendous gate. It has been on the fire for nearly two years and has been steamed up to the king's taste.

It is easy enough to say go to the California Club, and another to bring out the crowd to make it worth while. With all the windy talk about it being a great drawing card for the Coast town, it is a good bet that it doesn't draw $35,000 if it goes there. They're always kidding themselves out there. They would drag old Leo Flynn into a bloomer? Ah, not him, not him! Despite the long, patient wait, Flynn will refuse to make the trip. And you can't blame him one bit. If it is a good match for California then it is a good match for the North Pole.

Suggestions Regarding Children's Playground

Dear Mr. Editor.—That most excellent movement "The Playground" in the City Parks set in motion by the Rotarians and which was mentioned in the City Churches on Sunday (at least in one and I assume in all) deserves the fullest support from all Citizens. Although many children, more especially "the tines" live with in easy reach of the Parks, it is not always possible for them to get there as the Parks in most cases are unable to leave their houses. Would it be at all possible for some of the girl and boy organisations to take up this end of the work? What I would suggest is, the sections of the City within reach of the Parks, be divided and planned and allotted to the various helpers who would in turn select an assembly ground in the various areas. Here each morning and afternoon the children who have none of their own to take them along would meet their escort. For the homeward journey I would suggest rallying points for each street or section be arranged in the Parks where at say 12.30 and 5.30 the children would be picked up by their "big brother or sister." Another point is—are there enough lavatories in the Parks? These should be so constructed and looked after as to be an object lesson to the children, and for that matter "grown-ups."

Yours very truly,

CITIZEN.

Wake Up

The rain storm of last night makes it opportune to ask the City Fathers to Wake Up in more ways than one. At this particular time we have in mind that periodically, or about every four months the Council employ for a few days, at each period, a gang of men, box carts and horses and a steamroller, all the above being used to repair the top of Casey Street and also where this thoroughfare crosses Brazil Square. After the first rain storm all the mud is washed away and also these repairs were made a few days ago at considerable expense to the public, the rain storm of last night has washed away all the repairs and left the road in a terrible condition again. These particular repairs to this particular section have been going on for years and years. Wake up, City Fathers, and do not waste the funds that you do get. The City of St. John's is so situated by Nature that it should be the cleanest city on this side of the pond, whereas we have to thank Natures provisions for the absence of plague amongst us. Imagine what a terrible condition of filth would be our City's if we never had a rainstorm, and when that rainstorm occurs it gives the City Fathers a lesson in cleanliness and also proves to them beyond the shadow of a doubt that when it comes to permanent road repairs, Wake Up is not strong enough but that more initiative and brains are needed in the works.

Yours sincerely,

OBSERVER.

Black Baby for Prince of Wales

A GIFT HIS ROYAL HIGHNESS DECLINED.

Some amusing incidents which the Prince of Wales himself has thoroughly enjoyed have marked the Royal tour (says a Johannesburg message.)

When his Royal Highness was making his way towards the Free State border, the pilot train (travelling several miles ahead of that conveying the Royal party) stopped at a wayside station late at night to take in coal.

"Can I see the great white chief," quavered the old man, the whites of his eyes gleaming like stars in the darkness.

Very Disappointed.

"No, the great white chief comes by the next train," was the reply.

The old native seemed very disappointed. I should meet the great white chief for I have a gift to make."

There was a moments silence while he stretched out a gnarled black arm towards the rolled up blanket.

"I have but a few possessions," he went on "and so the gift is but a small one. It is my daughter." Here he twitched aside the blanket and showed the head of a baby girl.

His Royal Highness ordered that a message be sent to the old chief conveying his compliments and an assurance that the spirit in which his offer of a human gift had been made was highly appreciated.

Mrs. Coolidge Takes All Blame

FOR NEAR ACCIDENT ON FRIDAY. Swampscott, July 4. (A.P.)—Mrs. Coolidge to-day laughed off the incident of yesterday when she was very nearly run down by a motor cycle during a walk here.

Calling to White Court Sergeant Charles B. Cooley of the State Police, driver of the machine which shot between her and James Haley, Secret Service man, on a turn in the road, Mrs. Coolidge took the blame for the affair.

"It was all right," Mrs. Coolidge assured him as she shook his hand. "Anyway, I was on the wrong side of the road."

Women and Cats

Men are accustomed, these days, to being informed that they are poor fish, and that the hand that wields the powder puff is the hand that counts. Of course men still run the world, earn the money, and the women spend it. To flatter the spender is a tradesman's trick, and women flatter the earners when they want frills and furbelows. Men being a good-natured, tolerant creature, goes his way and says little. But he is entitled to take notes, and he will be interested to hear of a lady who specialises in oil paintings, etchings, and whose work is attracting particular attention in London. She has been studying her own sex and their foibles, and the results, when transferred to canvas, are distinguished for their acidity. One outstanding piece of work is "The Ladies' Cloak Room," where men never enter, and the study is not flattering to woman-kind. "I merely reproduce what I see," states this young woman painter. "The great majority of women, in my experience, are very caty and absurdly vain. My pictures merely tell the truth."

This feminine critic affirms that there is no male equivalent of the feminine "cat," which, indeed, is something to be thankful for. This is one example of male superiority, for "catiness" is an indication of a very small mind. Moreover, it indicates a lack of good nature, and that tolerance which should distinguish all reasonable beings. Why women should cultivate "catiness" is a mystery that the mere male has never been able to fathom. Only a woman could explain the infirmity, and why so many of her sex falls victims to it. It is a weakness that is responsible for an immense amount of unhappiness, and the remedy is in the hands of women themselves.—Liverpool Post.

Something to be Thankful For

London Daily News: There are so many ways of being ill nowadays that it is almost impossible to avoid them all. . . . When we are not ailing in the eyes of the physician we are almost sure to be in a terrible state according to the mental doctor, when we are passed as whole by him there are always the surgeons to whom we ought to be chopped about. As for Lord Dawson's statement that life is too swift for modern man, that he works too strenuously, it is very refreshing after the assurance of all the gloomier prophets that the present generation does not know what work means.

SIDE TALKS.

By Ruth Cameron.

CALLING ONE'S FRIEND A FOOL.

Can you imagine any friend or friendly acquaintance saying to you in all seriousness in the course of a friendly conversation: "I think you are a good fool. If you were as bright as you would be able to run your business better."

Of course you can't. You know some people may think it but you don't expect them to say it. And yet how often people do say it by inescapable inference!

A Brilliant Thought. I have a boat. Instead of keeping it out of the river of your house, keep it at some little distance behind a bridge. When your friends see what the first thing they say is: "What a fine boat you have! Keep it out of the river." You explain that it is too high to go under the bridge. But others look at the bridge, and say: "Why don't you get them to take the draw?" Then you explain patiently that there is no keeper of the draw and that it is only opened for emergencies—which your wish to get through on an afternoon's ride would hardly be called. They say: "Oh."

Too Deep For Your Intelligence. They are satisfied now that you really have thought things out as well as they themselves could have. But they didn't take that for granted at first. They plainly thought that the idea of going through the drawbridge was too absurd for your intelligence and that unless they suggested it to you, you never would think of it.

Or you have some relative in the family who has been going deaf for several years. Your friends come in contact with her and they say sympathetically, "It's too bad isn't it when she's so young?" And then they ask brightly, as one who is inspired: "Don't you think it would be a good thing to consult a specialist?"

The Inference Is Obvious. Of course they know that if any member of their family began to go deaf the first thing they would do, being people of ordinary intelligence, would be to consult a specialist in ear troubles. The inference is obvious.

To be sure if you taxed them with insulting you they would doubtless reply that they do not really mean what they so plainly infer. . . . In one way of course, they don't. . . . The point is that they just didn't stop to think that you have doubtless used ordinary acumen on your own problems and that if you have not been able to solve them by simple ordinary means there is a catch behind the apparent simplicity that they cannot see.

Wedding-Day Luck

SUPERSTITIONS ABOUT BRIDES-MAIDS.

It would seem that little credence is given nowadays to the time-honoured legend, "Three times a bride's maid, never a bride." Witness, for instance the tamerity with which a certain young lady of Royal birth recently disclaimed this hoary fancy. It is true that her daring caused a flutter in the dove-cots of the ultra-cautious, but what is of greater significance is that these dove-cots were found to be sadly depleted.

Most people, if the truth were told, accepted her superior intelligence as a marked sign of the times, and put it down as being really very much to her credit. And who will deny the good sense of this popular verdict?

The old ways doubtless served our fathers well according to their light and leading, but new generations must of necessity find new standards both of thought and action, and nothing is more certain than that the lingering conservatism of the aforementioned dove-cots is doomed to an inevitable extinction.

By no stretch of imagination can we conceive of a bride's maid-to-day crying her eyes out because she chanced to meet a black cat on her way to the marriage service. Indeed, with us the whole black cat tradition is more a matter of pleasantness than an article of faith. Yet it was the cause of endless heartbreak in the old days.

Neither would a modern bride's maid, who forgot something in the flurry excitement of the wedding-day, worry very much about having to turn back for it, and she would be considered childish if she did. But among our forbears such turning back was a provocation to malignant spirits which no girl in her senses would have hazarded.

In the same way, if anything went wrong with the bridal attire, or if any part of the festive celebrations for which the bride's maid was responsible fell through, all the witches of the underworld seem to have joined forces in precluding any possibility on her future happiness in love or wedlock. To the modern view, such grim realities of the past are fit merely for our entertainment.

Take, for example, the superstition concerning the proverb, "Three times a bride's maid, never a bride." The wedding celebrations, or "bridal gale," as it was then called, lasted for several days, and often for more than a week. It was the duty of the principal bride's maid to superintend these prolonged festivities, her function being that of deputy hostess during the honeymoon of the bride.

It will be seen that she had thus very favourable opportunities of exhibiting her good qualities before the guests, and had, of course, the special facilities of her office for making friendships with the young bachelors among their number, utilizing and directing their individual and joint contributions to the gaiety of the festival, and generally being much in their company. On the whole, it will be admitted, a diversion which few young women willingly forego!

A Hopeless Case.

Now, if we remember that these wedding celebrations, happening in days when the means of communication and travel were in their crudest stages, were about the only opportunities then existing for social intercourse on any large scale, we shall begin to see the significance that was openly attached to them.

Cecilia and Algy met for the first time, and were mutually impressed. Jack was introduced to Jill and became infatuated. Small wonder, then, that if the principal bride's maid, enjoying so many privileges not open to the other young women guests, failed to improve her chances of striking up a love affair of her own she was frankly put down as lacking the necessary charm, adroitness, or luck!

And this is precisely what happened; Moreover, should she be fortunate enough to enjoy this favourable situation a second time and still fail to carry off a young gallant, her friends—and even herself—gave up her case as hopeless. Hence the superstition.

But even this specimen of the crude logic of former days is mild in comparison with some other examples that are worth noticing. If they do not instruct, they at least amuse. One of these was known as the ceremony of dancing in the hog's trough. It concerned an elder and unmarried sister who acted as bride's maid at a younger sister's wedding, and was designed to serve a twofold purpose.

Penalty of Spinsterhood.

Primarily it was the penalty she had to pay for allowing her junior to outstrip her in the matrimonial race, a thing which, apparently, she had no business to do! Its secondary function was to ensure, by what means we

Death Certificate

Clerk's Own Record

PARIS—Before committing suicide at Nevres, Ernest Desbrières, 63, wrote out his own death certificate.

He was secretary at the town hall, and his duty was to write out birth, marriage and death certificates. A letter left on his bedroom table read: "I have prepared my own death certificate, which will be found lying on my office table."

Uncle John Hare and Little Jack Rabbit were on their way to the old gentleman Hare's bungalow, when all of a sudden as they passed the Fairy Bunny Forest a loud voice shouted:

"Stop a while and give a smile to your friend, the Giant Bunny. You might say a word to his little birdy. Be sure to make it funny."

and bending over the treetops the face of the Ragged Rabbit Giant smiled down on the two little rabbits. The next minute he pushed through the trees and stood before them, his pretty Yellow Bird perched on his shoulder. It was mighty lucky that Uncle John Hare had brought the Bunnymobile to a stand still on hearing the giant's voice, otherwise he might have run right into his high top boots.

"How are you, my big friend?" laughed Uncle John Hare, politely lifting his brown derby hat. "Am I not a lucky old hare to have my little bunny nephew with me?"

"You'll be still more lucky if you can keep him with you for a week," answered the Ragged Rabbit Giant with a grin. My goodness, it was a broad grin—something like a cavern in the side of a mountain.

"Want to hear the secret?" went on the giant, bending over to whisper to the little bunnies.

"A Lollypop Party?" shouted the little rabbit, hopping up from the seat. "Is it a Lollypop Party?"

"No, my little bunnies," answered the old giant, with another grin. "Follow me, I'll show you," and he turned about and took the road through the forest. Carefully guiding the Bunnymobile, Uncle John Hare kept close to the heels of the old giant as he strode along in his seven league boots until, by and by, after a while, and almost a mile, he stopped beside a big log cabin. Up from the chimney curled a long feather-like line of smoke, and there stood the Circus Elephant.

know not, the culprit's future success in the marriage market—a worthy object, beyond any question.

The ceremony itself was a simple one. It consisted solely in the laggard maiden getting into a hog's drinking trough and dancing a jig, usually to the accompaniment of much boisterous raillery from a crowd of excited spectators.

In what fanciful way this quaint performance influenced her star of destiny we are not told, nor have we any means of finding out, though it is easy to see that as a form of penance it may well have been embarrassing enough.

Certainly no hard and fast rules guided the custom, and there is just as certainly no historical data to prove that it was ever justified! Latterly, indeed, it developed into a mere occasion for rollicking fun, when a lively young swain usually got into the trough beside the fair delinquent, on a mock pretence, of course, of helping her through the ordeal, but in reality to heighten the merriment of the crowd.

The Chaplet of Myrtle.

But this one thing is known about it, that in various parts of the country, and particularly in the West of England, it was considered essential that the hopeful spinster should wear green stockings during her "turn." Why green stockings? Here we rub shoulders with one of the enigmas of the antiquarian world. But it may help us to surmise if we recollect that about this same period Shakespeare was writing in blank verse, "Green indeed is the colour of lovers."

Another curious old custom had to do with the chaplet of myrtle with which brides were formerly crowned. This chaplet was invariably the gift of the bride's maid, who carried it in state to the bride's home on the eve of her wedding. Here they participated in a little family pre-marriage banquet, when all and sundry showered their dutiful praises on the garland of evergreen foliage.

As has been said, these quaint superstitions died out in jest, and their passing is not to be mourned for the plain fact is that among our ancestors superstition had assumed the role of tyrant, and it was more than time that its power should be broken.

Those unable to visit Belvedere Garden Party in the early afternoon are cordially invited to come along for "Tea". The ladies have many good things in store for all who want nice things to eat. You will like shirriff's delicious Jelly and the many other tempting dishes provided.—July 14.11

THE NEW CHRYSLER FOUR

WALTER P. CHRYSLER TELLS ABOUT IT.

Far ahead in power, speed, fuel mileage, beauty; in safety, ease, and complete and perfect roadability. First car of its price with the option of hydraulic four-wheel brakes.

A STRONG FRAME THAT CANNOT WEAVE.

"We have built, in the Chrysler Four chassis frame, a body foundation that is unusually sturdy. In addition to the customary design of strong, stiff cross members, there is a stout torque tube at the front, and at the rear, a wide, strong, integral brace of heavy gauge metal. This frame does not weave and distort—and those are the two actions which loosen body bolts and set up squeaks and rattles. The radiator, too, is bolted rigidly to the side members of the chassis frame.

"You can drive the new Chrysler Four all day with hardly a sense of fatigue. It is hardly ever necessary to shift gears—except for starting from a dead stop. When shifting is necessary, it is made clean and noiseless by the matched transmission gears and easy clutch action.

"Steering on any kind of road and at any speed is but the merest effort. In the Chrysler Four, the steering king pins—which usually have only plain thrust-bearings—are provided with ball thrustbearings, and the entire steering mechanism is designed especially for balloon tires.

"Any attempt of mine to describe the wonderful riding qualities of this car could not possibly do them justice. It is enough to say that a ride in it will amaze and delight you.

"The dynamic symmetry which Chrysler engineers were first to translate into beautiful motor car design in the Chrysler Six, is the basis, of course, for the beauty of the Chrysler Four.

"Height, length, breadth, curve, beading, fender design, even window size, are all calculated and plotted with scientific precision, so that the final result may be beautiful and in good taste. The closed car bodies are built by Fisher.

"The Chrysler organization is just as proud of the Chrysler Four as of the Chrysler Six. It presents this new car as the most modern and soundest expression of the four-cylinder principle in the world, and with the conviction that the Chrysler combination of four-cylinder results will have no equal for years to come."
