GEORGE STANLEY HANGED EARLY THIS MORNING

Avard Beeler Gets Water Contract

His Tender Was the Lowest of the two Submitted and the Work Was Awarded Him After a Spirited Debate.

Another special meeting of the Town Council was held last Thursday evening, and the full council was present.

Before they were read, Coun. Calder asked the clerk if Mr. Mulhall had handed in his bill and received the reply that he had not.

The clerk estimated that including the cost of pipe the total cost of the work would be about $2900.

It was remarked that Mr. Whitman had put the figures in his estimate somewhat lower than that fact was explained by showing that his estimates called for a lot of open trench, and it has been decided since to pipe the whole distance.

The Mayor—Well, the tenders are before you. The difference in the figures don't amount to much—its only a question of expense.

Coun. DeWitt—$45 would be good pocket money.

The Mayor—There wouldn't be that much difference. We must consider Mr. Mulhall's expenses.

Coun. Harlow—Surely he wouldn't charge more than Mr. Whitman. The first time he was here he came down on his own account.

Coun. Chute—We don't want to be mean in the matter. If we had got Mr. Deane he would have charged about $300.

Coun. Calder—I would have thought more of Mr. Mulhall's tender if he had put in his bill as he promised.

The nearness of these figures would seem to show that there is some collusion between the two.

Coun. Chute—If it is a matter of experience Mr. Mulhall would seem to be the man. I have never heard a word against his work in any of the towns in which he has had a contract.

Coun. Calder—Is the town bound to accept either of these tenders?

Coun. Calder—Perhaps the town could do the work cheaper by day's work.

The mayor did not think that would be wise as we were not sure but that we would run into a ledge of rock.

The Clerk—Evidently Mr. Mulhall was trying to figure a little under $1800 and Mr. Beeler a little under $1750.

The Mayor—There is certainly not much difference between the two after the bill is paid.

Coun. Freeman—Perhaps we had better give it to one and hire the other to superintend it.

Coun. De Witt moved that Avard Beeler's tender be accepted. His reasons were in the first place he belonged to the town; in the second place he was a man of considerable experience and if given the contract he would put his mind to it and see that it was done right.

Coun. Chute moved an amendment that the tender be awarded to Mr. Mulhall, as he was a man of experience and that was what was wanted in a work of this kind.

Coun. Longmire said there seemed to be something underlying that he did not like. All things being equal he would favor Mr. Beeler, but on the other hand Mr. Mulhall has put in water and always satisfactorily. The figures are pretty much the same and he was somewhat at a loss what to do.

Coun. De Witt—Every man has got a right to his opinion, Coun. Longmire.

Coun. Harlow would like to have seen R. Allan Crowe tender for the work. Mr. Mulhall was a contractor but he had to hire everything done as he could not do the work itself as Mr. Crowe could have done.

Coun. Harlow explained that he was not associated with Mr. Beeler in any way or manner as far as this was concerned.

Coun. Chute—I have heard Coun. De Witt say that he would like to have a whack at it.

Coun. Calder—Taking everything in consideration and the fact that the figures were so near alike I will certainly support our own town man.

Coun. Freeman announced himself as being in favor of Mr. Beeler. The most important fact, as far as he could see, was the appointment of an inspector.

Coun. Chute explained that he had made his motion in order to make the other talk, and on the question being put, it passed unanimously.

Coun. Calder hoped that the town would not neglect satisfactory bonds.

R. Allan Crowe was named as a suitable inspector but Coun. De Witt and the mayor said they were under the impression that he was going on the works.

Coun. Calder suggested that the water committee be asked to see Mr. Crowe and report at the next meeting. The council adjourned until the next night when the contract would be considered.

The adjourned meeting of the council convened on Friday evening. All the councillors except Coun. Calder were present. Avard L. Beeler, the contractor for the water works was also present.

The clerk read the form of contract which had been drawn up during the day.

Mr. Beeler spoke of a few uncertain things in the contract. For instance in the appointment of an inspector—it would be possible to get a man who

Actor Saves Wife From Drowning

Worcester, July 21.—Clayton Legge, who was one of the principals with the Malcolm Williams stock company which played an engagement of a year and a half at the Franklin Square theatre, acted the part of a hero in a real melodrama at the lake this week.

Mr. Legge saved his wife from drowning after a canoe in which they were riding had been overturned in a small cove at Lake Quinquepennod.

The water was about ten feet deep. Mr. Legge's difficulties were increased by the presence of stumps and lily pads. Mr. and Mrs. Legge were picking lilies and in attempting to reach a blossom which was a few feet from the canoe, the overturning occurred.

Mr. Legge referred to above, belongs to Bridgetown, where he is well known.

Accidents of a Minor Nature

Mrs. George H. Dixon met with a serious accident at Clementsport last Friday resulting in the breaking of an ankle.

On Thursday Arthur, the young son of Albert Wade, fell from a staging at the new rectory, a distance of fourteen feet to the ground resulting in the fracture of an arm.

At the same day Philip, son of Percy Burns, was severely burned about the face and arms at Hicks' factory. He was standing in front of the furnace when the flames were suddenly expelled by the back draft and inflicted the injuries.

The Coast Guard says: "Last Friday, the fishermen at Hawk Point did good work at trawling habitat of Cape Sable. The highest dory, with two men cleared $24. Two men from this place were out in a gasoline boat 26 hours last week and caught over $40 worth of mixed fish.—Port Maitland Bluenose.

He Acted Coolly and Walked With Firm Step to Scaffold

MADE NO CONFESSION

Uttered No Word After He Left His Cell on Last Journey

Windsor, August 1.—George Stanley the convicted murderer of Freeman Harvie, at Ellershouse, in February, paid the penalty of his crime at 2:10 this morning. Stanley acted coolly and walked with a firm step from his cell to the scaffold.

At the scaffold Rodcliffe immediately placed the straps on his feet and legs, placed the black cap over his head, and as the words of "May God have mercy on his soul" fell from the lips of Father Carroll, the trap was sprung and Stanley passed into eternity.

Stanley made no public confession. He went to the scaffold and met his death without uttering a word after he left his cell.

Ten Million Dollars for Charity

New York, August 1.—The Times says: "From a source seemingly reliable came the announcement yesterday, that Mrs. Margaret Olivia Sage, widow of Russell Sage, intends to distribute $10,000,000 to charity as soon as her friends, Miss Helen Gould and Miss Helen Gould, Mrs. Sage, it was said, believes that Miss Gould is able to give her most valuable advice as to how to distribute advantageously.

OBITUARY.

DR. JOSEPH H. FORESTER

The sad news has reached here of the death of Dr. Joseph H. Forester, which took place at San Francisco on July 2.

The doctor, with his family, went to California from Nova Scotia, during the latter part of last November, having gone with the intention of residing during his remaining years with his children, and incidentally hoping that the milder and much more healthful climate of the Pacific coast would greatly facilitate his recovery from the malady from which he had so long suffered.

But after several months under skilful medical treatment, from which he received but little benefit, his system having failed to respond to the remedies administered, it was, after consultation, decided, that his only hope of being restored to health, was by a surgical operation, to which he submitted with Christian fortitude.

But his constitution had become so much impaired and enfeebled by the ravages of disease, that despite the closest attention and care of the very able surgeons in attendance, he passed away peacefully, from complete exhaustion, after seven weeks of intense suffering, surrounded by his worn and sorrowing family. Having practised many years as a physician, in Nova Scotia, and in the home of his youth, there are many of his friends and acquaintances who will, when apprised of his demise, learn the news with regret.

He had the impression from the beginning that he would not survive the ordeal of an operation, but when at last assured by the surgeons that such a course was imperative, courageously submitted to the inevitable, and thereafter through all the harrowing vicissitudes of his dreary struggle over death, never murmured.

Avard Morine of Bear River, In a Fit of Temporary Insanity Cut His Wife's Throat, Then His Own.

Bear River, July 28th.

A terrible tragedy which cast a deep gloom over the entire place was enacted here last Saturday morning, between the hours of four and five o'clock, when Avard Morine, who had been under the doctor's care for the past year, but who has been able to be around and do some light work for the past few weeks, cut his wife's throat and then his own.

He had been occupying a room on the first floor of their home while his wife occupied one upstairs. Friday night two children slept with her—their youngest, a boy of five years and a year old baby she was taking care of.

At the time mentioned above Morine entered her room and after striking her three severe blows on the head with a hatchet, cut her throat with a razor making a gash fully five inches long.

Mrs. Morine jumped up and ran into another bedroom and from there down stairs where she lay down on a sofa her life blood fast oozing away.

Morine, after doing the deed went down into the cellar where he cut his own throat, severing both jugular veins and the windpipe. He then ran down back of the house a distance of about two hundred feet to the river and jumped in. The little boy by the time had run across the street to the home of his grandparents and aroused them.

Mrs. John Morine got to the house as soon as possible after arousing her son Edward, who lives close by. In the meantime Dr. Lovett had been sent for, and Edward had gone in search of his brother. He saw him struggling in the water and launched his boat which was near by, and with the help of his father got him ashore. By this time life was extinct, as was also the case with Mrs. Morine when the doctor arrived.

An inquest was held on the body of Mrs. Morine by Coroner Dr. R. J. Ellison. The jury was as follows: W. W. Clarke, foreman; Alden E. Long, Geo. T. Tupper, Geo. Harris, William Houshew, Charles Wilson, Rupert Rice, A. B. Marshall, F. W. Fleet, George Crosscup, Joseph Spears, Eli Smith.

Two witnesses were examined. Mrs. John Morine sworn, said—My husband said you are wanted down to Ida's. I got there as soon as possible and found her lying on the sofa with the blood streaming from her throat just like water from a tea kettle. I got a wet towel and laid it on her and some flour to put in the cut, then knelt down by her and said, "Ida, you have got to die." She said: "Take care of the baby. Don't go for a doctor. Good-bye." Then she shook her head and died.

Edward Morine sworn, said—"Neither came to my house and said Edward has killed Ida. I went to the house and found her in her death agonies. I went searching for Avard and saw him in the river about ten feet from the shore, just the top of his head sticking out of the water. I got my boat and father helped me get him ashore. He was dead."

THAT BROTHER OF HIS.

An aged and doddering gentleman was on the witness stand in a case involving the inheritance of a goodly and long-entailed estate. It was necessary that the fact of the existence or non-existence of other heirs than the old gentleman be established.

"Have you ever had any brothers or sisters?" asked the attorney who conducted the direct examination.

"I never had a sister," piped the old gentleman, "but I had one brother."

"Is that brother still living?"

"No, he is dead."

"When did he die?"

"About—about—let's see—it was about a hundred and fifty years ago."

"I asked you—you must have misunderstood me—I asked you when your brother died."

"And I told you about a hundred and fifty years ago."

"But I am serious in my question and cannot listen to such absurd answers. Remember you are on oath."

"I am telling you the truth," insisted the old gentleman, earnestly.

Here the judge interposed:

"The witness must refrain from levity and facetiousness and confine his answers to facts, or I shall be obliged to take punitive measures for contempt."

"There is no contempt, judge," protested the witness. "I mean what I say and if your honor and the attorney will give me an opportunity to explain I shall make it clear to you."

"The witness may have an opportunity to set himself right, if possible," said the judge.

"Well, your honor, my father married when he was 17. A year later his wife bore him a child and died. The child died within three months. My father remained single until he was 72, then married a young woman, to whom I was born a year later. I am 95 years of age."

After profuse apologies the examination proceeded.

WOMAN'S HARDEST TRIAL.

Mr. and Mrs. Nagger were at the breakfast table, when Mr. Nagger said to his wife:

"Did you hear Mrs. Flutter say last night, when we were calling there, that she made all of her own dresses and trimmed her own hats?"

"There was fire in the eye of Mrs. Nagger, and the iron of sharp and keen resentment seemed to have been driven into her soul when she said in reply:

"And did you hear Mr. Flutter say that he always took care of his own furnace instead of paying a man $6 a month to do it, as a certain man I know of who can't afford it does? Did you hear that? And did you hear Mr. Flutter telling how he saved 30 cents a week by shaving himself instead of running off to a barber, and running the risk of contracting skin disease, as you do? Did you hear that?"

Humors of Worcester Politics

Bribing, Treating and Fighting

(How in Canada we are always accustomed to look on elections in England as being "pure and unadulterated.") Battle following account of elections in the one constituency of Worcester, dipped from the Birmingham Weekly Post, would go to show that the Englishman wants no help from either Americans or Canadians when it comes to the "fine art" of buying an election.—News Editor (Montreal).

Worcester has an interesting record in the matter of elections and petitions. As long as three centuries ago the voters are recorded to have been "bribed with wine." That was because the office of M. P. was much coveted, and there were many candidates for political honors and for the city's wages to Parliamentary representatives, which ranged from 2s. 6d. to 4s. a day, with an allowance of 6s. a day for a man servant. Because of this bribery the Corporation scorned the Parliamentary wages.

They also issued several chamber orders to prevent more than a stipulated quantity of wine being given to each voter. But at a later date the Corporation, who had then acquired the habit of creating just as many freemen as served their purpose, had to be content with a paternal interest in such freemen as possessed a vote for the sister of Hereford. The Mayor was selected as the fittest custodian of their persons and votes, as testified by the following item in the Corporation's accounts for 1751:

"Paid to the Mayor for taking the freemen to Hereford election, 41 2s. 10d."

The item wears the semblance of the modern practice of whipping-in. The poll used, long years ago, to be open for as long as six weeks, which gave ample leisure for the exercise of influence upon the electors by either side. In 1784 the polling was reduced to fifteen days, but local historians say that during the whole of the time (whether 42 or 15 days):—

"The city was completely surrendered to a saturnalia of infamy; and there were hideous scenes of debauchery and drunkenness."

One cause assigned for the decay of trade in the once prosperous city was "the frequent and expensive operations" in the elections (an elegant euphemism for bribery and corruption) but, on the other hand, it is asserted that the Worcester Royal Porcelain Works (whose name is a household word) were founded in 1750 chiefly for political purposes. So the city gained one great trade as a recompense.

AN ANTI-CORRUPTION CHAMPION.

Bribery and corruption were regular parts of the great political game. As early as 1773 a candidate named Sir Watkin Lewis made a bold effort "to destroy the influence of bribery and corruption" in the city, and the ladies of the city rewarded Lady Lewis for her efforts in the same direction by presenting her with a superb piece of plate adorned with many curious emblematical devices. History says further that Sir Watkin was "elected" in the seat in which King Alfred was crowned; and the function was a "splendid affair."

In 1802 the local historian, Turberville, says, "politics mattered less in the election than person or purse."

In 1806 the supporters of a candidate Colonel Bromley, pleaded that they were "disgusted by the unwholesome bribery of previous elections"; but when by a strange irony of circumstances a petition was lodged against Colonel Bromley, that professing purist declined to defend it, and preferred to vacate his seat by accepting the Children's Hundred. The humor of the situation did not end there. Mr. Gordon, the petitioner, was successful at the resulting election, and his opponent sought retribution by petitioning against him on the score of bribery, which petition was dismissed. Religious freedom was discussed at that election; and the projected poll was carried on amidst a great deal of fighting and outrage!

In 1813, 250 out-voters who resided in London were fetched to the Faithful City, but they created a disturbance before they started, and at Worcester the rioting and disturbances were "worse than ever before recorded."

Although during the 17th and 18th centuries the popular tumults had been violent and long continued. In 1819 Colonel Davies's return was petitioned against, the inevitable allegation being bribery and treating; but the necessary witnesses were kept out of the way by a humorous method of contesting petitions which was not entirely forgotten, for as late as December, 1892, a material Liberal witness in the Worcester petition left the Court for lunch and has not been seen or heard of since. Colonel Davies was declared elected on the casting vote of the House of Commons Committee.

A TRIANGULAR FIGHT.

Notwithstanding party recriminations about bribery there was a good-as-you-please triangular fight in 1826 between Mr. G. R. Robinson, Colonel Davies, and Mr. Griffiths. The last named spent £8,000 in a week, and then drew in his purse strings—and lost. The other candidates were more liberal, and the total expenditure was estimated at £25,000. As there were 3,816 votes polled, each vote cost a little more than 6d. Mr. Robinson is recorded to have made himself popular "by a free expenditure of money."

He headed the poll, which is not surprising.

In 1835 Mr. Robinson and Colonel Davies were opposed by a carpet-bagger, Mr. Bailey, and history says of him that he "opened eighty public-houses," and that he polled fifty-five pauper's votes. But upon a petition he squeezed in his one vote; the decision of the petition costing him £16,000. In 1837 he was petitioned against once more, but the petition was abandoned.

In 1835 the rival factions had a sharp affray, and many partizans' heads were broken. Worcester people used to take their elections very seriously, and in 1841 the nominations in the Guildhall were attended by a pandemonium in which the rivals "fought with bludgeons."

In 1847, Mr. Ruford, one of the city candidates, spent £4,000, (though it trumped at his subsequent bankruptcy) but he was elected at the time; and another local historian, Noke, says of this contest: "This open-house inquiry raged in a rank and file which had never been equalled at previous elections. Probably, too, half the electors were paid for their votes under what was called the 'messenger judge'."

County and borough elections worked in Worcester were perhaps not quite so bad. Of the contest in the county in 1837 it is recorded that Mr. Horace St. Paul spent about £16,000, to secure 2,595 votes. The representation of the county was contested regularly by the Lydelltons and the Lysons, and when in 1831 an outsider chanced to get nominated in opposition to Colonel Lygon, he was actually frightened away on hearing that the Dowager Lady Beauchamp had subscribed £50,000, to fight the county. Profuseness of expenditure proved votes at £16 APEICE.

An Evolution election in 1831 furnished a record that sixteen freemen came down from London at £12 apiece—which nullified the election. But the election of Mr. Borchwick for that constituency in 1837 was made void by the gift of a silver snuff-box inscribed "Ex dono amici sui conducti," and a duel followed between the unsated nominee and a supporter.

Bowdley, another county borough, was perfect in electioneering arts, and in 1847 it was recorded by Turberville: "As much as £15 was paid for a vote. Twenty-six or twenty-seven inns were opened, some of which applied as many as 1,000 gallons a day. A most pernicious system of intimidation, kidnapping and treating prevailed."

Bribery and corruption continued to be parts of the game until 1854, when they became punishable. For a quarter of a century afterwards no election was contested, but the general election of 1880 resulted in no fewer than five petitions in city and county divisions.

In 1880 Mr. G. H. Williamson, who has just been unseated, then a stalwart Radical of the most uncompromising type, wrote to the press declaring that the sweeping charges brought against him by the Tories in a petition against the Liberal M.P.'s returned for Worcester were a complete fabrication, and he was as good as his word, he and all the Liberals named by the petitioners being elected. Just as the Conservative petition failed in 1880, the Liberal petition in 1842 failed.

Rev. Ritchie Elliott, of Paradise filled the appointments of the Baptist church on Sunday in the absence of Pastor Brown.

Mrs. Wm. Dunham and son, of Lexington, Mass., is visiting her father, John S. Beals and other relatives.

Our oldest resident, Mr. Rice Whitman, who is over ninety years of age, has been in quite feeble health the past few weeks. He is well cared for. He has had an honest and upright Christian life and has a host of relatives and friends.

PARADISE.
The death occurred at Paradise on Sunday, July 22nd, at Weston, only son of Wallace Rumsey, of that place. His death was due to peritonitis following an attack of appendicitis. The funeral was held on Monday, being conducted by Rev. H. H. Saunders, assisted by Rev. J. H. Balcom. The many beautiful flowers testified to the esteem in which Mr. Rumsey was held by those who knew him. Of a genial and kindly disposition he will be very much missed. He leaves to mourn their loss a wife, father, mother and two sisters, two of whom reside in Boston.

J. Stewart Foster was successful in obtaining his grade "B" certificate, his aggregate being 612.

Make Hay While the Sun Shines
There is a lesson in the work of the thrifty farmer. He knows that the bright sunshine may last but a day and he prepares for the showers which are so liable to follow. So it should be with every household. Dysentery, diarrhoea and cholera morbus may attack some member of the home without warning. Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera and Diarrhoea Remedy, which is the best known medicine for these diseases, should always be kept at hand, as immediate treatment is necessary, and delay may prove fatal. We notice among different resolutions adopted at a recent meeting of delegates representing various Fishermen's Unions, held at Wood's Harbor, one pleading for the repeal of the law that prohibits the use of the purse seine by Canadian fishermen inside the "thirty mile" limit.

As our readers are fully aware, the waters within the "thirty mile" limit are exclusively for Canadians to enjoy fishing privileges. That a certain restriction, such as the prohibition of the purse seine has been placed upon our fishermen in their own waters, shows plainly that the action taken must have been well-advised, and for the best interests of the fishing industry at large. The reasons for so doing must have been good and obvious.

Fish traps are to be found along the coast, and occasionally make good hauls. The same applies to nets. Both are stationary, and allow the fish to wander at will with good results.

But to return to the purse seine. Its introduction would mark a real change in the prosecution of our coast fishery. A change we think that would be fraught with ill to both traps and nets.

With some fishing the fish—shall we say—are relentlessly pursued. Those that are not bagged are scared here and there. Where then will the trap and net fishermen come in? The same fishing cannot but prove detrimental to their interests.

On the plea of individual rights and privileges, and the greatest good to the greatest number, we cannot fall into line with the resolution.

We do not wish to be understood as reflecting in any sense upon representative gatherings, and especially fishermen's. We stand firm for anything that betters the condition of the fishermen either generally or for any particular locality.

Such a privilege as the one aimed at would result in a conflict of fishermen's interests. A concession on the one hand that would result in limitations on the other.

DEAFNESS CANNOT BE CURED

by local application, as they cannot reach the diseased portion of the ear. There is only one way to cure deafness, and that is by constitutional remedial treatment. Deafness is caused by an inflamed condition of the mucous lining of the Eustachian Tube. When this tube is inflamed you have a running sound or imperfect hearing, and when it is entirely closed, deafness is the result, and unless the inflammation can be taken out and this tube restored to its normal condition, hearing will be destroyed forever; none cases out of ten are caused by Catarrh, which is nothing but an inflamed condition of the mucous surfaces.

We will give One Hundred Dollars for any case of Deafness (caused by catarrh) that cannot be cured by Hall's Catarrh Cure. Send for circulars, free.

LOOSE TEETH.

Sometimes They Are the Result of Nervous Troubles.

He was an excellent dentist, and no one could have accused him of tinkering with a sound molar unless it actually needed attention. When the handsome young woman patient came to him and complained that her teeth were getting loose and she was afraid she would lose them he gave her some good advice and charged her nothing, although it was worth a good stiff fee.

"There is nothing in the world the matter with your teeth," he said. "Each one is as sound as a new dollar. But you should put yourself under the care of a physician. In some nervous diseases the outward symptom is a shrinking of the gums. This is not an alarming sign, however. Some persons lose their teeth through a shriveling of the gums on account of an excess of uric acid in the system. If they drink plenty of water the trouble would disappear. I have had several patients whom I have cured simply by getting them to drink plenty of water."

"The gums are pretty good indicators of the general health. Persons whose gums bleed frequently think there is something the matter with their teeth. The trouble is constitutional instead of local. A good tonic would put them on their feet, and this, accompanied by plenty of exercise in the open air, would stop the bleeding of the gums."

"Quit it unless you wish to lose your teeth," commanded the dentist. "Also you should consult a nerve specialist. Evidently you have been worrying a great deal lately."

It distressed Miss Willing to find how much the little girls in her Sunday school class thought about dress and outward adorning. She never lost an opportunity to tell them how slight was the importance of such things.

"The reason I didn't come last Sunday was because my coat wasn't fitting," said small Mary Potter one day when questioned as to her non-appearance the week before. "My old coat had spots on it that wouldn't come torn through."

"But, Mary, dear," said the teacher gently, "you know it's not the outside that really matters."

"Yes'm, I know," said little Mary, "but, Miss Willing, mother had ripped the lining out, so there wasn't any inside to look at!"—Toult's Companion.

THE WEEKLY MONITOR, Bridgetown, N. S.

MILK ON THE FARM.

With the advent of the warm summer weather the troubles connected with the keeping of milk will be aggravated. No food product absorbs so readily or becomes contaminated more rapidly when not properly taken care of than milk. The following advice, given by Prof. Pearson, of the Dairy Department of Cornell University, may be read with profit.

Whether milk is delivered promptly or held some time before delivery, it needs particular care. The best dairyman provides for this purpose a room near the stable, but separated from it so as to exclude dust and unpleasant odors. As soon as a pailful of milk has been drawn from the cows, it is carried to the milk-room, poured through a fine strainer, and cooled with an apparatus made of this material and containing cold water. The milk flows over the outside of it in a thin sheet. After twenty or forty quarts have been thus treated, the shipping can is filled and set in cold water or the milk is bottled and kept cold until needed.

Some farmers do not use this care, but strain the milk directly into the large cans, which stands in any convenient place, usually within the stable. When the can is filled it is placed, as soon as convenient, in a tub of cold water and stirred until partly cooled, then left with the cover ajar until wanted for delivery.

Persons handling milk in this way do not appreciate how sensitive the milk is to foul surroundings and how quickly it will absorb injurious odors. It is fortunate for consumers that milk shows so plainly when it has been carelessly handled. If purchasers are sufficiently watchful they can avoid being supplied with milk which has been improperly cared for. A dairyman should always bear in mind that milk is a food, and he should not leave it unnecessarily in any place he would be unwilling to have his own food left an equal length of time.

When milk is served soon after milking, in many cases it is not cooled by artificial means, and in small towns supplied by dairymen who drive in twice a day, it is often delivered warm from the cow. To many persons this is a guaranty of purity; but milk served in this way will sour in a short time. Within two or three hours after it is delivered it is likely to be nearer the condition of sourness than milk 12 or 24 hours older, which was cooled immediately after milking and kept at a low temperature.

In some cases the milk delivered in the morning is that of the previous evening, well cooled and kept in a cold place, and the milk delivered in the afternoon is the morning product, similarly treated. This is a much better method than the delivery of perfectly fresh, warm milk. When but one delivery is made each day, and that in the morning, the production of the same morning and previous evening is usually distributed.

Many dairymen do this when they first draw from the farm to the places of delivery, except when it is necessary to start before the hour of milking; then the milk of the morning and evening of the previous day, and the milk of the same morning delivered by itself early in the morning, and the supply of the same morning is taken. During the hottest weather is served later.

THE FARM

APPLES TO PLOW UNDER DURING FALL.

Replying to the questions of a correspondent I will say one of the best crops which can be sown at the present time (July) for the purpose of plowing under the coming fall would be either soy beans or cowpeas.

There is a difference in the time required to get the crop ready for plowing under. The soy beans are ready in 14 weeks per acre and harrowed in, and would be ready to plow under in the fall. Possibly the only objection to either of these crops mentioned would be the price of the seed. Should that be a serious objection, then I would use Canada field peas and barley, preferring barley to oats, because it makes a better growth at this season and is less likely to be attacked by rust. I would sow one bushel of Canada field peas and harrow them in, and one bushel of barley and harrow it in lightly.

Some of Nova Scotia soils are benefited by liming, but this is not usually true. Purchase at the drug store five cents' worth of blue litmus paper and press the paper against the moist soil. If the blue litmus paper turns red, the soil is acid and would be benefited by liming. Care must be taken in making this test not to press the paper with the fingers for this might cause the paper to turn slightly red.

In applying lime about 40 to 60 bushels per acre should be used. This is more effective if applied after plowing and then harrowed in. If the lime is thoroughly fine, a fertilizer drill is the best implement with which to apply it. This distributes it evenly and saves away with much of the unpleasantness of the operation. If sown broadcast, it may be distributed from the rear of a wagon, being thrown out and scattered by means of a shovel. I would recommend using the fertilizer drill if you own one or can borrow one.

UTILIZING WASTE APPLES. The following article on evaporating apples on the farm is by George T. Powell, the well known fruit grower and horticultural expert of Columbia County, N. Y., and a well known speaker before the various horticultural associations in New England. Mr. Powell practices what he preaches and this description is of his own plant:

In fruit districts, such as in western New York, where apple growing is done on a large scale, there are large evaporators in every town, where farmers may sell their windfalls. There are also small evaporators for farm use. These are made of wood, with a system of racks, fitted one above another, upon which to put the sliced apples. A stove below furnishes the heat and ventilators are made in the top of the building by which the heat is regulated. These dryhouses are made of different sizes, and from eight to 40 bushels of apples may be dried in 24 hours. The difficulty with these farm evaporators is to obtain the necessary help with which to do the work. The work cannot be so economically done as with the large evaporator, and they are going out of use to a large extent, beyond providing for family or local needs.

DESCRIPTION OF PLANT. With the increasing quantity of apples at Orchard farm in the Hudson valley, and with no evaporator near, four years ago I put up a building 20x30 feet, two stories with an ell 16x20 feet. There are two rooms below, each 20x20 feet, in which furnaces are placed with a system of pipes run which carry and distribute the heat to ring around the rooms near the top of the floors above, upon which the apples are spread. Two large towers are built through the roof which carry a strong draft, thus drawing the heat rapidly from the furnace rooms below.

The entire cost of this building was $800. We have turned out in a season 16 tons of white stock and five tons of chops and waste. With another furnace room and drying floor, several tons of chops and waste could be dried.

The chops are apples too small to be pared and run through without spring. The waste, consists of cores and parings. It requires four tons of coal a week to run the two furnaces. The chops and waste will, usually, pay for the coal. The summer and autumn apples are too soft to be of any value for evaporating. About September 15 we begin on the Greenings and earlier winter varieties. When running up to full capacity, it requires ten people to handle the work. A day man to run the slicing, to attend to the furnaces and do the general work and overnight man. Two parers will run through the machines 100 bushels a day; while six women are required to trim the apples, cutting out blemished spots and pieces of the skin that the parers have missed.

The apples run from the trimming table into a large box where fumes of sulphur pass through them to hold the color. Without this sulphur fumigation the apples would turn brown and become discolored before they could be dried. The bromstone is burned in a small stove underneath the box so that only the fumes pass through the apples with no injurious or deleterious effect produced upon the fruit.

The drying floors are cleared twice a day; the apples being thrown into a large pile, where they undergo a curing process before being packed. The weather makes a great difference in the work. On a bright day with a clear atmosphere and north wind the apples will dry rapidly, while on a cloudy day with a south wind it is difficult to get the day's run dry enough and off in time for the night run. The white stock is packed in 50-pound boxes. Women select large pieces and face the boxes very evenly, after which the apples are pressed in until the required weight is obtained. The cost of packing, including the paper lining, is one cent a pound.

There is a difference in the time required to dry different varieties of apples. Where all kinds are dried together, some are dried too much and some not enough. If the fruit is not sufficiently dried it frequently becomes sour, and is the cause of much trouble between buyers and sellers, the stock often being rejected on arrival and has to be sold for immediate use. Baldwin will produce 64 pounds dried fruit to a bushel; Greenings 6; King 5; Ben Davis 4; Gillflower 4; Twenty Ounce 5; Belleflower 5; Seck-no-Further 4; Roxbury Russet 9. If some of the finest kinds, like the Spitznburgh, Fall Pippin and Northern Spy, could be run separately and packed by themselves much higher prices could be obtained for them. The flavor in quickly dried fruit is much finer than in the old process of sun drying.

THE DIFFERENT GRADES AND PRICES. Until the orchards at Orchard farm can furnish sufficient apples to keep the evaporator running, we are purchasing from 4000 to 5000 bushels windfalls from the surrounding neighborhood each autumn; in order to keep those regularly employed who are doing the work. The grades made are fancy, choice and prime. The fancy stock is made from the best and largest apples. The choice is the next size, in the pieces or rings, bright in color, and neatly packed, while the prime is good stock, but has more or less of small and broken pieces throughout. With a full crop of apples prices usually run 7 1/2 to 8 cents for fancy, 6 cents for prime and 5 1/2 cents for choice, with chops, cover and skins correspondingly lower.

Where fruit is not sprayed, the apples are so wormy that usually not above 10 to 12 out of a bushel can be paid for windfalls. There is so much waste from trimming and the cost of labor is so great, that the profits on such stock are reduced to a point where even the running of a large evaporator does not pay, but where orchards are cultivated, and the fruit sprayed, higher prices may be had and paid for the apples and a large otherwise waste produced is turned to a profit both to the grower and to the manufacturer.

A Japanese Proverb. A Japanese proverb worth remembering: "He who knows not and knows not that he knows not is a fool. Shun him. "He who knows not and knows that he knows not is humble. Teach him. "He who knows and knows not that he knows is asleep. Wake him. "He who knows and knows that he knows is a wise man. Follow him."

The Remedy. "I am greatly troubled with kleptomania," exclaimed the fashionably dressed woman as she bustled into the drug department. "Now, what would you advise me to take for it?" "Your departure, madam, by all means, replied the floorwalker, and bowed her to the elevator.

Two of a Kind. "You say that Fawcett came to his end through contributory negligence?" "Yes," answered Broncho Bob. "He showed down four aces in a poker game, and two of 'em was the ace of diamonds."

APPLE GREEN VOILE GOWN.

Dame Fashion, but as a matter of fact many of the best suits have long sleeves on their jackets. The short sleeves, though, on certain costumes is very fashionable.

Green in all shades is the modish spring color. It appears in blue, emerald and several tones of hunter's green, but the bright apple green is the most striking of all.

The gown illustrated is of apple green voile. The skirt has at the hem an elaborate design, carried out in velvet ribbon of a darker shade. Baby Irish lace makes the deep yoke, ends, belt and inset pieces on the sleeves. A smart little butterfly bow of black satin gives a Frenchy touch that is very attractive.

"FRETTY"

By Nancy Hazlitt

Allanetta ran about the garden singing shrilly:

"Dear! Dear! What can the matter be? Dear! Dear! What can the matter be? Dear! Dear! What can the matter be?"

Johnny so long at the Fair. He promised to bring me a bunch of blue ribbon—

He promised to bring me a bunch of blue ribbon— He promised to bring me a bunch of blue ribbon—

To tie up my bonnie brown hair. "Fretty, I really wouldn't call him out of his name—you know it isn't John."

"Cousin Langley said provokingly from the leafy depths of the grape arbor. "Besides, your hair isn't brown—not in the least. Instead it's pure carrot color. Also mightly pretty, if I were a painter person I might call it something else but being what I am, a stickler for truth—"

"Would you know the truth if you met it in the road?" Allanetta flung at him. "Of don't believe me," she went on disdainfully, shaking her glowing curls at him.

She was bareheaded and the sun struck out high lights from the "titan mass above her white forehead, then fell down to weaken green gleams in her long-lashed eyes. Slim as became seventeen, tallish, light on little arched feet, with a long neck unbending her face, she was distractingly pretty, especially to eyes jaded with artifice and sick of fashion—more specifically Langley's eyes.

"What have we to say to the painter person, Fretty?" Cousin Langley asked, coming out and laying hold of her hands. "Are we going to tell him to go about his business? Or are we going to say 'Yes—and thank you, sir' when he asks—"

"He won't ask," Fretty said, not trying to take away her hands. "You see, I told him, at the very first, I regarded it as my duty to marry you. Otherwise you would waste all your money—besides it was the only way to keep Alderbrook in the family. He agreed with me—although I think he was sorry—it must have seemed a shame to him to miss such an opportunity. He admitted that flirting was a necessity to him—that is why, I think, he is away just now."

"Indeed?" Langley said in tone an interrogation. Fretty nodded, echoing—"Indeed!"

famous comrade—he had kissed her often, called her his little sweetheart, and actually gone the length of sending down to her from the city after he was back there a birthday ring. Notwithstanding, he had found her married and happy, with a baby as round, rosy and dimpled as he remembered her. Ten years, he had reflected, made big changes every way—still he was not quite prepared for the change they had wrought in Fretty.

The name was of his own coinage—in all other mouths the girl was Alfa. He had been quite taken aback to find that she did not resent his version of the legitimist nomenclature. Indeed, she had said, with a little hovering smile: "The one comfort about my name is—no matter what people call me, they can't possibly make it worse than that is."

The saying had in a way startled him—he had not thought to find philosophy at seventeen in the rural regions. But as time went on he discovered that the philosophy was the least of Fretty's surprises—young as she was, unformed, and inexperienced, she had a way with her, also a point quite wonderful to see. He did not wonder that she had taken captive his artist friend Vernon—it was Vernon's habit to fall fitfully in love with every girl who was in the least out of common. Fretty had not a single usual fiber in her—in proof, take the fact that Vernon's adoration had not in the slightest degree turned her head.

"What have we to say to the painter person, Fretty?" Cousin Langley asked, coming out and laying hold of her hands. "Are we going to tell him to go about his business? Or are we going to say 'Yes—and thank you, sir' when he asks—"

"He won't ask," Fretty said, not trying to take away her hands. "You see, I told him, at the very first, I regarded it as my duty to marry you. Otherwise you would waste all your money—besides it was the only way to keep Alderbrook in the family. He agreed with me—although I think he was sorry—it must have seemed a shame to him to miss such an opportunity. He admitted that flirting was a necessity to him—that is why, I think, he is away just now."

"Indeed?" Langley said in tone an interrogation. Fretty nodded, echoing—"Indeed!"

Yes, Mr. Wortham—your divinity—has opened Gramscrow—can't he tell you before yesterday—so Mr. Vernon couldn't stay away longer."

"Who says she is my divinity? And how do you like it? Seeing you have appropriated me," Langley asked, coloring in spite of himself. He felt all at once, young and raw, and it. He wanted to shake Fretty—shake her hard. She was jesting of course—but how beautifully she had turned the tables on him. Quite unaccountably he found himself trembling, his hand moist, his face, he knew, high-colored—and all without any reason.

It could not be that the bare suggestion of Fretty—the child, the plaything, the creature he loved to tease—as his wife, the mistress of his house and heart, had thus overcome him, ridiculous—and was in a temper over it. He wanted to shake Fretty—shake her hard. She was jesting of course—but how beautifully she had turned the tables on him. Quite unaccountably he found himself trembling, his hand moist, his face, he knew, high-colored—and all without any reason.

"No! I can guess it, Georgina won't have you, therefore you want me to save your broken heart."

"Of course! But how did you guess it?" Langley asked his heart thrilling at the thought of her care to save another woman from slurring. He had meant to tell her what he knew for truth—that while Georgina would have accepted him for his position and potentialities, and given him comradely help throughout their joint career, her heart was by no means engaged, she being of the equable temperament that spends its wildest devotion upon itself. I suppose, there was Vernon. All along he had suspected some kindness—even more—between the pair. They might have each other and welcome. Fretty, sweet, slim, red-haired Fretty, was the one wife in the world for him.

"Impulsively he caught her to him, and, without kissing her, he said: "You're a witch. You saw how I needed comforting, and proposed to me, right off the reel. Henceforth I shall live to keep you from being sorry for it—"

"And I'll make you sorry for it, as long as you live, if you ever dare say that again," Fretty interrupted. Again Langley laughed. He could afford to, Fretty, in spite of her brave words, was nestling to him like a happy child.

Fretty snatched away her hands, laughing heartily. "What an actor was lost in you, Cousin Langley?" she said. "You had such a ring in your voice! I wish Tommy Hartwell had been within hearing."

"No! You want the heathen to rage, you mix!" Langley said, again imprisoning her hands; then, the ring coming back to his voice stronger than ever: "Fretty, I know you were in fun; but, please, dear, let's make it earnest. I want you—no body else, I have been wanting you ever since I came, without having sense enough to know it."

"How about Georgina?" Fretty murmured, turning away her head, so Langley might not see the mounting color in her cheeks. "I don't know," Langley laughed triumphantly. "May I be plain enough to speak the frozen truth?" he asked, his lips very close to Fretty's ear. She turned a little more away from him, saying very low:

"No! I can guess it, Georgina won't have you, therefore you want me to save your broken heart."

"Of course! But how did you guess it?" Langley asked his heart thrilling at the thought of her care to save another woman from slurring. He had meant to tell her what he knew for truth—that while Georgina would have accepted him for his position and potentialities, and given him comradely help throughout their joint career, her heart was by no means engaged, she being of the equable temperament that spends its wildest devotion upon itself. Of Interest to Farmers

Don't leave stones in the road. If your horse doesn't stumble at them, somebody else's may. When you see in the beaten track a loose stone fit to give a wheel a hard jolt or bring down a stumbling horse, stop and throw it to one side. It will pay you to take that trouble even on a strange road that you expect never to travel again. It is good for your character. It helps to justify your claim to be a civilized man, living in a civilized community. Every truly civilized community rests upon the theory that the care of all is the duty of each, and that every individual in the community, according to the prevalence of security of individual responsibility for the general welfare.

Pleasing Perplexing!

"It's not where can I find employment, but which position shall I accept, that bothers me."

RESCUICATING THE DROWNED.

The astonishing tenacity with which life clings to the human body is a good thing to remember in these summer days when the bathing resorts are taking their annual toll of human life. The case of Robert Mosnier, reported by the life-saving service of the Third District, is a good illustration of this fact. He was brought to terra firma after being under water for twenty-three minutes. The life savers worked over him for an hour and three-quarters before the first sign of returning life was obtained, and he did not regain consciousness until the next day. If his body had been recovered by ordinary untrained men there is little question that he ever would have regained consciousness at all. After fifteen or twenty minutes of artificial respiration hope would have been given up and the faint flicker of life which evidently remained allowed to die out for lack of perseverance. After the removal of water from his lungs artificial respiration should be resorted to and continued for several hours if necessary, a physician of course being summoned at once.

ONE OF THE NEW COATS.

dresses. This silk comes double width and therefore cuts to much better advantage than the narrower sort. There is a new chiffon taffeta in an odd tone effect with little figures and blocks here and there on the narrow stripes. So perfect is the blending that from a distance the impression is that of a solid color. The sailor hat is abroad this season, trimmed with a band and rosettes of velvet ribbon. In this guise the mannish appearance is done away with entirely, and a mighty pretty and feminine hat is the result. An edition of a man's derby hat adorned with stiff quills and prim rosettes made of ribbon is at the present moment. Oriental embroideries are in vogue again this spring. Most of this embroidery is done on silk, but there are beautiful examples to be found on linen. The coat seen in the illustration is one of the smart spring models. Box plaits are arranged from shoulder to waist both back and front. About the neck is an embroidered collar, and turned back cuffs of the same trimming finish the three-quarter sleeves. A poplin makes a tiny skirt effect below the waist, which is encircled with a leather belt. JUDIC CHOLLET.

There is promise of a great deal of "self embroidery" appearing on linen suits. This embroidery is done with thread the exact tone of the linen itself.

Cross stitch, although not as popular as it has been for several seasons, still is to be seen on children's dresses and occasional shirt waists. It will be carried out in the finer kind of cross stitch with the stitches set close together. Radium and burlingham silks are being made up into charming suits and

Great Entry List for Dominion Exhibition

Applications for Space in Manufacturers' Building and Machinery Hall Far Exceed That Available—Date of Closing of Other Entries.

With the applications exceeding by a large amount the space available for exhibits in the Manufacturers' Building and Machinery Hall the success of those departments of the Dominion Exhibition at Halifax is assured. It will now be a matter for the management to do the best it can in arranging exhibits and cutting down space asked for, to make the most possible showing for exhibitors and for the great Exhibition as a whole. The date of the closing of entries in Live Stock, Poultry and Dairy Departments is Wednesday, August 8th. It behooves our Live Stock men to leave no steps untaken to ensure a creditable display in this department, one that will reflect credit on this part of the Dominion in view of the competition that will ensue with the progressive cattlemen of the rest of Canada. A similar remark applies to the Agricultural Department, the entries for which close on Monday, August 27th. On August 27th also, the entries in Fine Arts and Ladies' Work close.

Is Great Demand. The demand for Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera and Diarrhoea Remedy here has been so great that I have scarcely been able to keep it in stock. It has cured cases of dysentery here when all other remedies failed.—Frank Jones, Pikeville, Ind. This remedy is for sale by S. N. Weare.

Sunshine Furnace

The "Sunshine" furnace and "sunny" ways are synonymous. The cold, dreary winter days can be made cheery and warm with a pure, healthful heat if you have a "Sunshine" furnace. Is easier to operate, cleaner, uses less fuel and "shines" in many other ways over common furnaces. Two shakers are used to shake the heavy, triangular-shaped grates. This just cuts the work of shaking-down in half, besides being easier on the furnace than the old one-shaker style. Sold by enterprising dealers everywhere. Booklet free. OBITUARY

GILBERT HILL.

Gilbert Hill, an aged and highly esteemed resident of Bridgetown, passed away last Wednesday at St. Croix Cove, where he had been staying with his brother, Mr. Hill was 84 years old. He leaves four sons, John, in Bridgetown, James, in Rochester, N. Y., Theodore, in New York and Owen, in Boston. Two brothers and a sister, Mrs. Walter Healy, of Outram, also survive. The funeral services were held at St. Croix Cove, and the remains in charge of Undertaker Ross, were brought to Bridgetown for interment.

The Pickup Cup will be shot for next Saturday on the Bridgetown Range at 500 and 600 yards.

Murdered Wife, then Killed Himself

The unanimous verdict of the jury was that Mrs. Ida Morine came to her death by the hands of her husband, Avard Morine, while he was laboring under a temporary or acute fit of insanity.

Mr. Morine has always been an industrious law-abiding citizen and he and his wife were both members of the Advent church and Salvation Army, he being at the Army meeting on Friday evening and taking part as was his custom when possible to attend. Mrs. Morine was a devoted Christian woman, a fond and loving mother and good neighbor, and one who, although she has had a large share of trouble, has ever been resigned to the will of her divine Master.

Seven children survive the victims of this sad tragedy, the youngest being five years old.

Interment took place on Sunday afternoon in Mt. Hope Cemetery, a large number being present. The services were conducted by Rev. Gilbert Roggles, assisted by Rev. W. A. Duncanson and the captain of the Salvation Army.

E. S. M. Eaton, B. A., (Aechia) of Auburn, has been appointed a position on the faculty of the Maritime Business College, Halifax. Mr. Eaton has had two years' experience as instructor in commercial work, besides having experience in office work. In December last he passed the Intermediate Examinations of the Institute of Chartered Accountants of Nova Scotia.

Rev. A. N. Marshall who leaves for England next Tuesday will preach next Sabbath evening in the Baptist church. Mr. Marshall was heard with great delight by large congregations when he preached in June and no doubt but the capacity of the church will be taxed to the utmost by his numerous friends and by those anxious to hear him.

LOCAL AND SPECIAL

Middleton will take a vote on incorporation August 14.

The work of laying the new concrete sidewalks around the Union Bank building commenced today.

Com. D. G. Harlow has purchased the pretty little auto brought here from Halifax by Frank Hillis.

Dr. Armstrong cut several heads of fully matured cabbage on July 25th, which he claims to be exceedingly early.

The Clarence W. M. A. S. will meet in the vestry of the church next Monday afternoon at 2:30 o'clock. A full attendance is requested.

Among the forty successful students of the Maritime Business Education Association of Canada we note the following: John S. Welton, Auburn; M. Lavina Boyart, Granville; Carrie M. Roop, Middleton.

One night quite recently the fire alarm system was tampered with evidently in an attempt to pull in a false alarm. Whoever it was doing the mischief did not understand how to work the box properly and his attempt, although working the firemen, did not result in getting them out. Officer Greenham has been on the look-out since and expects to land the culprit in a few days.

It is very evident that all Baptist do not take our denominational paper, the Maritime Baptist, or have failed to see the notice put there by our president in regard to the number of delegates sent by each church to the coming convention which will be held in the Baptist church of Bridgetown August 22nd to 24th. It is impossible to provide free entertainment for more than three from each church.—Com.

HYMENEAL

HARNISH-GRIMM.

A pretty wedding was solemnized at the home of Mr. S. P. Grimm on Wednesday evening, July 25th, when his daughter Miss Nora Jeanette was united in marriage with Mr. Reginald Harnish, of Lequille. The ceremony was performed by Rev. J. Bartlett in a most impressive manner. The parlors were beautifully decorated with ferns and daisies. The bride, who was charmingly gowned in white silk with lily of the valley and orange blossoms, carried a bouquet of white roses, entered the room on the arm of her father to the strains of Mendelssohn's Wedding march. Miss Oda Grimm, sister of the bride, acting as bridesmaid, was becomingly gowned in white silk and carried a bouquet of pink roses.

Little Mrs. Hilda Grimm acted as maid of honor. A beautiful collation was served in the dining room, after the ceremony to about seventy-five guests. The "small boy" did his part in a lively serenade. The presents were numerous and to the porting of the bride. Mr. and Mrs. Harnish will reside in Bridgetown.

Com. De Witt said he had called up Mr. Crowe by telephone—he being in Hampton—and thought it would be possible to obtain his services as inspector.

The council decided to give Mr. Beeler until September 29th to complete the work. In case it should not be completed on that date he was to reimburse the town in the amount of all moneys paid as wages to an inspector further than that date.

The council decided to give Mr. Beeler until September 29th to complete the work. In case it should not be completed on that date he was to reimburse the town in the amount of all moneys paid as wages to an inspector further than that date.

The contractor named Avard Anderson as bondman and the council agreed to him.

Com. De Witt said O. S. Miller had asked for water in his property near the station and agreed to take three taps if it could be put over there.

The clerk pointed out that that was a matter solely for the water commissioners of Carleton Corner district.

The mayor was of the opinion that this was no time to think of water extension.

Com. Chute—No. But there is no reason why we can't look around for future extension.

Com. De Witt drew attention to the fact that another light was needed between the bridge and the railway station.

It was decided to make no change until the new bridge was installed.

D & A Corsets

From a durability and perfect fitting point of view, a D & A Model is an ideal garment.

It will content you in every point, that makes corset comfort—the comfort of perfect style, of shapely fit of graceful design, of ease for the woman who wears it. Modish to a degree, every corset that bears the D & A mark—well made—whatever their price—every one; but above all—easy—comfort, and comfort—and again comfort—that is the D & A supreme merit.
