Starving in Luxury

Many people with plenty, suffer from ruined stomachs and must sit idly by and watch others enjoy their meals. Late suppers, too much rich food, and irregular meals, have placed them in this terrible condition. The stomach is the seat of many ills and should re-ceive your best care if you wish to keep all the faculties clear.

governor. Mr. Guild is evidently much greater favorite than Mr. Bates. Apropos of the contest in Massachusetts-one of the most powerful influences worked on behalf of Mr. Douglas, the Democratic candidate for governor was reciprocity with Canada. It is doubtful, however, if his election has hastened reciprocity. A significant feature of the contest across the border, as indicating the trend of public opinion was the election of the men whose views and acts were the most pronounced in favor of purity and cleanliness in public life. Party politics were disregarded in the election of Mr. Folk as governor of Missouri. The same state ment may apply to the reelection of Overnor La Folette in Wisconsin. Both of these men are glorious examples of the highest type of toan in politicallify. Missouri and Wissonsin have demonstrated clearly and unmistak ably that they have us use for boodlers. Perhaps other sir and countries will profit by the emple. At all events the achievement of Missouri and Wisconsin is a sign of the times. ...

JUSTICE IN DISGUISE.

Sensationalism thinly disguised in the form of public enlightenment is the term implacable extremists would doubtless consider applicable to the publication of Mrs. Maybrick's story. One excellent journal, the Saturday Evening Post, has however, braved public opinion and given to its readers Mrs. Maybrick's own story. The Post is to be commended for its enter prise which, while it may be of a sensational nature is nevertheless charitable. Mrs. Maybrick's story
