Newspaper men, as a rule, have but two things to sell, space and subscription, and it would be just as consistent to ask your grocer for a dozen oranges "just to fill" as to ask the editor for a dozen lines in his paper, just to boost your business, with the idea that you are doing a kindness to fill up space. Try getting a free dinner at the hotel just to make a show for business for the house.

Carleton Place Poultry Fair Dec. 10.
At a meeting of the Carleton Place merchants, held last Thursday evening, it was decided to hold the annual Poultry Fair for this year on Friday, December 10th. All the principal dealers have been communicated with and it is expected that there will be a goodly number of buyers and keen competition, so that the highest prices may be relied upon. The Carleton Place Fair last year paid the best prices in the district, and it is hoped that the same result will be experienced this season.

The White Feather.
Famous British War office play coming here. The greatest dramatic event in our history. "The White Feather" at the Opera House on Thursday next. "The White Feather" will reach Carleton Place on Thursday via the stage of the Opera House where it is announced for presentation. That it is the big looked for event of the theatrical year is evidenced by the large advance sale which practically insures a packed house. Without any doubt this will be the biggest of all dramatic events ever given here. The Messrs. Johnson Bros. are deserving the thanks of the community for their enterprise in securing this magnificent attraction and the way to show our appreciation of their efforts to keep Carleton Place on the theatrical map and give us the best the small Canadian circuit affords is by giving them a packed house and we are glad to say that all indications look that way.

L.O.F. At Home to its Members.

Court Mississippi No. 78, Independent Order of Foresters, had a very pleasant gathering at their Court room last night. The meeting was called early and eight new members were initiated by the Chief Ranger in a very impressive manner. The lodge hall was crowded to the doors. Mr. S. B. Lynde, the High Court Deputy, has been in town for the last few weeks, and has received a number of valuable additions to the order. After the initiation the hall was cleared and the dances made merry to the strains of music. Mr. R. Gordon's violin, his daughter accompanying on the piano. Refreshments were supplied by the companions, chaperoned by Companion Hughes, whose untiring efforts added much to the pleasure of the evening. The old and young mingled in the light fantastic and the young fellows hadn't much on the old chaps. Brother Hughes, Brother Carr, and Brother Bennett united in saying it was "like good old times again."

Fraser-Cavers.

A very pretty wedding took place this morning at the home of Mr. and Mrs. James Cavers, Beckwith street, when their eldest daughter, Miss Jean, was united in the golden bonds with Mr. Roy Fraser, M.A., of Brooklyn, N.Y. The ceremony took place at 8:30 o'clock, the drawing-room being very prettily decorated with evergreens, chrysanthemums and smilax. As the bride entered the room with her father, Miss B. V. McEwen played the wedding march. She was attired in a travelling suit of navy blue, with a chic hat of black velvet, and carried a bouquet of American beauty roses, and was unattended. Rev. A. A. Scott performed the ceremony. After the usual congratulations the bridal party sat down to a dainty breakfast, three of the girl friends of the bride waiting upon the table. The young couple left by the 10:30 train for Ottawa, en route to their new home in Brooklyn, and bear with them the best wishes of hosts of friends for a long lease of conjugal bliss. The bride, who is one of the town's well-known and popular young ladies, was the recipient of a very large number of handsome gifts. The groom, who is a Canadian, and a graduate of Canadian Colleges, holds a responsible position at present in the Arbuckle Institute at Brooklyn. Among the out-of-town guests present were Mrs. Fraser, of Brooklyn, the groom's mother, Mr. and Mrs. T. W. Cavers, of Copperhill, Tenn., Miss Gertrude Hyslop of Ottawa and Miss Etta Young of Almonte.

HOME CIRCLE COLUMN

Pleasant Evening Reveries dedicated to tired Mothers as they Join the Home Circle at Evening Tide.

MOTHERS.

It was a Boston child, of course, who said when somebody asked her what she considered mothers good for: "Why you see God couldn't be everywhere, and so he just had to make mothers."

But it takes grace to be a good mother—now doesn't it? She must be wise and patient and good natured and serene and always ready to comfort and help without losing her self-control. Prof. Swing once said he knew many mothers whose children were well washed, well scolded, well dressed, and well whipped, but few whose children were inspired and it certainly takes grace to lead such a life before the children that they shall be inspired.

If you have good, healthy children, full of animal spirits and rollicking with fun and life, be thankful for it even if they do make more noise some times than it seems possible to bear; for the weak and nervous child is ten-fold more of a problem. There are two general types of nervous children. The active child always on the go, inquisitive, and acquisitive, but delicate as the mimosa leaf shrinking back into itself at the first repulse or harsh word, and the pale, quiet, affective child, thoughtful, responsive. The child of the first type may be the embryo philanthropist or leader of criminals, inventor or social iconoclast, as his training tends, while the child of the second type develops into the philosopher, the poet, the man of letters, or the misanthrope, the recluse, the anarchist, as the case may be. One of the greatest mistakes in training a nervous child is to think that strength can come through opposition. Such a child should be guided, not driven. If afraid of the dark, it should not be forced to sleep in an unlighted room. Timidity should not be ridiculed, but patiently explained and argued away.

Few people realize how important it is to have sunshine in the house. We must have fresh air, they say, and throw open the doors. But the sun's rays must be kept out. It will fade the carpet. So they keep the shutters shut and the curtains down. What must be the condition of a room which is kept dark? But it is just as true of an individual that sunshine is just as necessary to keep us in a healthy state and capable of scattering smiles, as it is for a house to have both heat and light, in order to make it healthful. Sunlight is a substance; so is the sunlight of the soul. We need not manufacture either. What the natural sun is to the earth, the Lord is to the soul. We need to open the shutters by putting away every selfish and worldly thought; we need to let up the curtains that separate us from the neighbor's welfare. We are created to be diamonds, to reflect the light. But if we absorb it by turning our affections and thoughts wholly upon self we become like charcoal.

Much happiness or misery depends on the management of the home. Let me ask why are there not more ideal homes? Not merely places where food and shelter may be obtained, but where the inmates are ever anxious to speak loving, sympathizing words and do the kindest deeds within their power.

How much capital have you invested in the worrying business? Some folks put everything they have into it and never draw out a cent. All they get in the end is crow's feet around their eyes, sour faces and dried up souls. Does it pay?

Cultivate kindness of heart; think well of your fellowmen; look with charity upon the shortcomings in their lives; do a good turn for them as opportunity offers, and finally, don't forget the kind word at the right time. How much such a word of kindness, encouragement or appreciation means to others sometimes, and how little it costs to give it.

SEND THE CHILDREN TO BED WITH A KISS.

O, mothers, so weary, discouraged, Worn out with the cares of the day, You often grow cross and impatient, Complain of the noise and the play. For the day brings so many vexations, So many things going amiss. But, mother, whatever may vex you, Send the children to bed with a kiss.

The dear little feet wander often, Perhaps from the pathway of right, The dear little hands find new mischief To try you from morning till night; But think of the desolate mothers Who'd give all the world for your bliss, And, as thanks for your infinite blessing, Send the children to bed with a kiss.

For some day the noise will not vex you, The silence will hurt you far more, You will long for the sweet, childish voices, For a sweet childish voice at the door; And to press a child's face to your bosom— You'd give all the world just for this. For the comfort 'twill bring in your sorrow, Send the children to bed with a kiss.

—FLORENCE A. JONES.

Pen Picture of a French Soldier.

An American war correspondent says that the modern French soldier looks more like a grimy miner than the traditional fighting man. His head is completely covered with a heavy shell trench helmet, giving him the appearance of a man of arms of the Middle Ages. His nose and eyes are covered with a gas mask. The rest of his face and his hands are smeared over with a thick coating of vaseline so as to shed the vitriolic acid thrown by the Germans. On one hand is fitted an appliance like an enlarged brass knuckle into which slips a bowie knife. Either knife or brass knuckle are good for close work against the enemy. In the other hand he usually carries a hand grenade to toss into the enemy's trenches.

Man without Country.

It is unnecessary to assert that the Irish as a race have not been backward in this war to uphold with their lives the sacred principles of liberty and humanity for which the British Empire is fighting to-day. The blood of Irishmen, thousands of them, stains the soil of Belgium and northern France, and Gallipoli in affirmation that they have been in the forefront of this conflict as they have been in the other great wars that have made the British flag respected and revered the world over. Irishmen, too, form no small part of the great navy that is keeping the seas free of murderous pirates. That there are "slackers" in Ireland causes surprise only because it is contrary to the characteristic of the race. There are "slackers" in England and Scotland, and unfortunately there are slackers in Canada. They do not belong to those countries—they are men without a country. It was Ireland's misfortune that 900 men who sought to evade war service by emigration to a foreign country should have been born in that country. They were not Irishmen, they were just slackers without any nationality.

DESTROYING QUACK GRASS.

Methods Employed by a Farmer in Attacking the Weed.

A farmer gives his experience in dealing with quack grass as follows: As quack grass is taking possession of some of our best land throughout the central west, I thought perhaps a few words relating to my experience in dealing with it might set some one thinking and consequently benefit him. In my early experiences with quack grass, which came first in small spots, I tried killing out with salt. I could kill it entirely if I used salt enough, but the expense was out of reason, and, besides, when I used salt enough to kill the quack nothing else would grow on the land for years. I then tried digging and burning, but soon gave that up as a bad job. One can scarcely get all the roots by digging, and it is too expensive. I might enumerate several methods I tried, but was not entirely satisfied with any. Finally I got to thinking strongly on the subject. All the methods I had tried had been too expensive for the results obtained. I then began along a new line entirely and have found it much cheaper and very much more effective.

The method employed is what might be called the smothering method. The idea is this: If one can rot the quack roots in the ground he has turned an enemy to a friend. I would do this by first enriching the soil by a coat of manure or a clover crop or preferably both. Then anything I plant or sow will grow quickly, while if the land was in a lean condition any smothering crop would grow so slowly that my opportunity would be lost. A good way would be to sow the mixed grasses and clover and pasture for a couple of seasons, covering with manure while to pasture. The very tramping of the stock has a tendency to bring quack roots nearer the surface.

Late in the fall of the year after it had this treatment I would plow quite shallow and harrow down at a convenient time the following spring, thoroughly if I could spare the time. I also double disk and harrow again at odd times. About June 1, not much later, I plow again quite deep, harrow down and sow immediately to German millet, about one and one-half bushels to the acre. I sow each day as fast as plowed so to get the millet started ahead of the quack. When my field is plowed my millet is sowed. Inside three days, if there is plenty of moisture, the millet is up and inside of ten days it covers the ground. By having the ground rich and sowing at this warm time of the season the quack will never see daylight until fall, when the millet is cut for hay, and then it is dead, root and branch, and the ground is in splendid shape for a bumper crop of corn next season. In fact, I have raised our best corn on land treated as above, with scarcely a root of quack showing on land that was badly sodded the year before. By this method very little extra work is given the land save the extra plowing, a big crop of very good millet hay is grown, and a big crop of roots is rotted in the soil equal in value to a coating of manure, and the ground is left in excellent condition for two crops of corn following.

Some have tried buckwheat in place of millet, but with not as good success, as corn does not follow buckwheat as well, and after one has got the soil into a high state of fertility by this method he naturally wants to grow corn following, as small grain is very apt to lodge. Small patches of quack can be easily smothered by using tarred paper as a cover for six weeks. In using tarred paper be sure to lap the sheets well and weight down with earth. This is too expensive a treatment except on very small patches. It is very difficult to handle quack grass on land that is not well drained.

HE GETS THERE.

DON'T jeer about the self made man. Or on him use a hammer. Because in making known his wants He uses self made grammar. Though at the college on the hill He did not take a course full. He always can make known his wants In language plain and forceful.

He may not know just how to act When he gets up in meeting. He may not juggle with his fork When he is busy eating. But when the dinner bell resounds You find that he is able To have the best the market holds Load up his groaning table.

In making love to some sweet girl He cannot sing her praises. Although his feelings are intense, In fine and fancy phrases, But when it comes to leading off The sweetest little treasure You bet you'll find him on the job Where you can take his measure.

He is not versed in Greek and French, With art he does not dally. But in a business deal it's hard To chase him up an alley. Without advantages from books The world alone he faces, But, oh, he makes the money dance And puts it through the paces!

Coming to a Choice.

"Yes, sir," said the street orator, "the trusts are a menace to the common man."

"Think so?" asked the flippancy one.

"Think so? I know it. We must destroy the trusts or they will destroy us."

"Is it as bad as that?"

"Yes, and worse."

"Now, candidly, as a fair man who has given much thought to this subject, which do you think the country could get along the best without—the trusts or us?"

Undoubtedly.

"Have you heard it?"

"What?"

"The latest thing."

"No. What is it?"

"It is very interesting."

"Is it?"

"Yes, and long."

"What in the world is it?"

"It isn't in the world at all. It is the comet's tale."

Ambitious.

"Every woman is ambitious."

"Is she?"

"Yes; she has two ambitions."

"What are they?"

"One is to be rich and fashionable."

"Yes."

"And the other is to be more rich and fashionable."

Consented.

"Why did you think your wife would like a pet monkey?"

"Why?"

"Yes."

"You know, I am away so much."

"Well?"

"She misses me awfully."

At Government Expense.

"They are talking of having a health department at Washington."

"That will be fine."

"How will that help?"

"Can't the congressmen send out pills then, as they now send out seeds?"

Particular.

"Why did your cook leave?"

"She said she didn't like either our politics or religion."

CANADA'S LIVE STOCK INDUSTRY

In competing for the markets of the world there is no branch of industry that exceeds in importance that of live stock breeding and raising. Paraphrasing the old Jingo cry, we have the land, we have the will and we have the climate. What is needed is the means, and ever more means, and simultaneously the ways of marketing. However divergent in views and theories people may be, it cannot be denied that they are all united in a common effort to improve both agricultural and industrial conditions. In helping the one the other is being aided. The interests are inextricably involved. If either is especially prosperous both ultimately must be, although one may feel the benefits of extra demand and high prices before the other.

In the past few years especially, all the provincial governments as well as the Federal government have bent much of their energies towards the improvement and extension of agriculture. While a deal of scientific effort has been devoted to the cultivation of the land and improvement of productions of the soil, sight has not been lost of the needs and necessities of that other branch of inestimable worth—live stock, meaning thereby horses, cattle, sheep and swine. In the latter direction pure bred animals have recently been placed in various districts where their services were previously difficult to obtain, the registration of pedigrees has been nationalized, systematized and subsidized, grants towards greatly liberalizing the premiums at exhibitions have been made, a special branch has been established in connection with the Experimental Farm system at Ottawa to investigate the cause of disease, to give counsel to breeders and to control outbreaks of infectious or contagious ailments, judges and lecturers have been appointed free of cost, cold storage facilities have been arranged and refrigerator cars equipped and paid for, grants have been made under the tremendously beneficial Agricultural Instruction Act with its ten million dollar attachment, for the encouragement of veterinary education and research and everything possible has been done for the development and increase of co-operation.

Important and valuable as are and have been the efforts above enumerated in the interests of live stock breeding the devotion of the Federal department and the Provincial departments has been by no means limited to them. In fact as far as present human ken can travel little has been left undone. But one of the greatest lines of endeavor has yet to be mentioned, namely the improvement of marketing and transportation facilities. While this object has never been lost sight of, constant attention having been bestowed upon it in various ways, it remained for the present Dominion Minister of Agriculture to take the matter boldly into his own hands and, with the assistance of a capable staff, to devise a policy calculated to lead to definite, distinct and permanent advancement. Without inquiry and investigation nothing can be methodically and satisfactorily accomplished. With this principle in view a marketing commission was appointed, the duties of which to ascertain advantageous points of sale and to effect and bring about the most convenient and economical arrangements for disposal, shipment and carriage to destination. It was in following this policy negotiations were carried on for the purchase by the British government of six and a half million pounds of meat canned in Canada.

Owing to high freight rates, disturbances in shipping and scarcity of boats, unwanted difficulties have recently been experienced in exportation and even in handling across the continent. It is towards remedying these and placing matters in a much better light and on a greatly improved footing that the commission has been created. In many ways there is evidence that this is being accomplished, although undoubtedly there are obstacles to overcome that will be continually cropping up. Nor is the appointment of the aforementioned marketing commission the only step that is being taken for the advancement of the live stock and agricultural interests, but a commission of influential, widely-known and experienced business men has been appointed to go into the whole subject and to report upon the most advisable measures to be taken for the advancement of farming, breeding and raising, shipping and selling and financing, and for the aggregate prosperity of the country.

Recruiting sergeants in Ottawa presented each of the young men in a tea room with typed invitations to come dancing for a moment and to consider the call of their country.

The steamer Alfred P. Wright, worth $40,000, laden with a cargo of wheat valued at $100,000, was burned to the water's edge at Portage entry, Sault Ste. Marie, the origin of the fire being unknown. The crew escaped, but lost all their effects.

Lost for Two Days and a Night.

Messrs. E. C. and Frank Heffron, of Lanark; H. B. Lyon, of Latimer; Solomon and Alex. Benedict, of Mississippi; and Floyd Ellis, of New York, spent the hunting season at the Bagged Chute. Deer were plentiful but luck did not seem to favor them. They only secured two but they were good ones. Ernie Heffron had an interesting experience on Wednesday last. He was returning from the runaway in the afternoon when he came across a bear's track, which he followed until he became completely lost. Night came on and he set about to make himself as comfortable as possible, considering the inclemency of the weather. With his fire, near which he made a bed of leaves in the shelter of a large log, where he spent the night in peaceful repose, notwithstanding the fact that the howling of wolves could be heard in the distance. Morning came but Ernie was still lost. However, he philosophically concluded to make the best of it, and being very hungry began to look around for something to eat. There was nothing in sight but an owl; this he shot and roasted for breakfast. For his dogs he shot a rabbit. Thus nourished they again essayed to make camp, but instead found their way to Clarendon, where they took the train back to Flower Station and the camp. Needless to say his companions were overjoyed to see him, as they had been prosecuting a vigorous but fruitless search, and had about concluded that he had met with an accident.—Lanark Era.

Military Music.

"No one in time of peace can understand what war is," writes Rev. Charles E. Jefferson in the Woman's Home Companion. "We may prepare for it, but we do not realize what it is we are preparing for. Military preparations are quite interesting, even exciting. Boys and girls are always fascinated by the paraphernalia of battle. Never have the instruments of war been so intricate and sparkling as now. All the trappings of the military world are alluring."

"Military music is full of piercing notes, which set the corpuses of the blood dancing. But military music is not the music of war. The music of war is the groans of wounded and dying men and the sobs of broken hearted women. Military music is one of the embroidered veils thrown over the face of war to make boys think that war is glorious."

A Mulberry Tree Legend.

The mulberry, "wisest of trees," as Pilny termed it, really "likes" London and fruits profusely even in the grounds of the Charterhouse, at murky Smithfield. London mulberry trees are mainly derived from a fad of James I., who wanted to found a silk growing industry. With the proverbial folly of a pedant, the British Solomon, introduced the black mulberry, disliked by silkworms, instead of the white variety, which forms their food. The black mulberry had been planted by Cardinal Pole at Lambeth in 1555, and there were still older specimens in the garden of Syon House. According to a pretty Greek legend, all mulberries were originally white, but a mulberry tree was growing beside "Ninny's tomb" when Pyramus and Thisbe loved there, and the blood of the lovers turned the fruit to its present color.

Origin of the Onyx.

When waters charged with carbonate of calcium derived from limestone are allowed to evaporate they deposit their load in the form of sinter, or tufa. This process can be observed at many thermal and "petrifying" springs and also in the formation of stalactites and stalagmites in limestone caverns. In this way large masses of compact carbonate are formed, some of them of great beauty. The so called "onyx marbles," of which the Mexican "onyx" is a familiar example, are formed in this way. Some rock of this class is stalagmitic in caverns, and some of it is formed by springs. Its variations in color and texture, to which its ornamental character is largely due, are commonly produced by impurities or inclusions, such as oxide of iron or even mud and clay.—New York Telegram.

War's Horrors Arise.

From Neglect of God,

Says Bramwell Booth

"THE son of William Booth reigns in his stead, and finds just now his international religion buffeted by the winds of war," writes Mr. Harold Begbie in the Chronicle. "He of all religious leaders in this country is most concerned by the international character of the war. German Salvationists are shooting English Salvationists, and Russian Salvationists are shooting Austrian Salvationists. The General of the Salvation Army, like the Pope in Rome, must keep his head. He keeps it, I think, very effectually."

"He told me certain unprintable things which made my blood run cold. And yet hear him when this war is spoken of as evidence against faith in a Supreme Being."

"This war," he said, "is nothing like so devastating in its effects as the drink traffic, or prostitution, or commercial oppression. Wouldn't you accept such a war as this once in every hundred years, horrible as it is, if by so doing you could get rid for ever of the destruction—destruction of bodies and souls, destruction of lands and houses—wrought by drink, prostitution, and sweating? People who accepted without a murmur the atrocious suffering caused by these enemies of the human race suddenly wake up now and ask, How can you believe in a God with Christians killing Christians and Europe deluged with blood?

"Has Christian never killed Christian till now? What nonsense they talk! This war is nothing—nothing compared with the murderous destruction of sin. God does not work like an autocrat in the moral sphere. God is omnipotent; but omnipotence cannot make five of two and two, of make a lie a truth. Why does God permit this war? Why does He permit sin? God is not responsible for sin, and He is not responsible for war. Man is responsible. And war is here, spreading anguish, destitution, wretchedness, and sorrow incalculable from the very same cause which allows sin to work a worse havoc among the human race."

"He sat forward in his chair, and said: 'Neglect of God—that is the cause. And I see this war as a passing event by which all men who truly believe in God may, if they will honestly and fearlessly use it, draw the nations to realize man's need of Christ. Wars come about through a certain state of society."

"Men say that after the war all will be changed, and when you press them you find they are speaking of political changes—socialism, and the rest. But there's an old saying in the North of Scotland. 'New boat old rocks.' No political changes can bring the millennium. No internationalizing of labor can prevent strikes and wars. What you want in your boat, new or old, is a captain; and unless you have got the Almighty on the bridge you'll go to pieces on the very same rocks which made shipwreck of your former state."

"He told me that all over the world men are now looking to this great British Empire and wondering in what new form it will emerge from war. 'I have been immensely impressed,' he told me, 'by all the reports which reach me from foreign countries concerning this matter. They want to know how we shall reorganize ourselves, how we shall reconstruct ourselves. What a chance for the churches! Just think for a moment what our influence might be in the world if the whole British Empire was organized on a Christian foundation. And why isn't it so organized? Don't we profess ourselves to be a Christian nation. Have we announced ourselves as a nation of aesthetes? Have we made a national renunciation of God? I want to see an immense crusade against national apostasy. I want to see this great nation converted to God.'"

Military Balloons.

The British Army has the best balloons of any country in the world, and these balloons differ from all those made in other lands. Our balloons are made, not of silk, as used to be the custom, but of the intestines of oxen, and it takes no fewer than 40,000 to make one balloon.

Killed Three Times.

Sergeant Tom Jones, of the 7th Welsh Battalion, has been three times reported killed in action, and a fortnight ago was officially declared to have "died of wounds." He is now in hospital at Cheltenham making as good a recovery as can be expected in these trying circumstances.

Card to the Amusement Loving People of Carleton Place and Vicinity

It is with no little pride that we come before the theatre going public of Carleton Place and vicinity with this announcement. We feel that no city of its size, in Ontario, is more entitled to the best of the travelling companies than is Carleton Place. Under ordinary circumstances, of course, "The White Feathers" could not visit here as it plays only in the larger cities, but a change in their bookings made it possible for us to secure the attraction and we grasped the opportunity. The attraction comes direct from the Royal Alexandra Theatre, Toronto, where it played the week to capacity houses nightly, and in a return engagement at that. It also makes a return visit to Ottawa, playing the Russell Theatre, Dec. 2, 3, 4. We are bringing this company here under a heavy personal guarantee and trust that the people of Carleton Place and vicinity, realizing this opportunity, will fill the house to the full. Because of the heavy expense involved there will be no passes issued for this performance.

Respectfully,

JOHNSON BROS.

BRITISH IN MONASTIR

They Hold Serbian City and Are Being Reinforced.

Serbs Have Won an Important Victory at Leskovatz in the Nish District—Bulgars Have Ceased Operations Towards Monastir in Fear They Will Be Surrounded—Serbs Join Montenegrins.

LONDON, Nov. 22.—The Serbian Legation at Rome reports an important Serbian victory at Leskovatz, in the Nish district, after a battle lasting several days. The Bulgarian losses, the Legation adds, were enormous.

A Daily News despatch from Athens, filed Saturday, says:

"Bulgarian troops have ceased their attack from Prilip towards Monastir because they fear Serbian troops at Katchanik will advance and encircle them."

Despatches from Bucharest to the Italian press say that British forces have arrived at the Serbian city of Monastir, and are being reinforced. Road conditions delayed the advance of the Bulgarians against Monastir.

Whether the Serb-British force can hold out long is doubtful, but an optimistic note is sounded in a Reuters Agency despatch from Athens dated yesterday. According to the correspondent, persons arriving from the front describe the situation as less sombre than reported. He adds:

"The Serbs are retreating in perfect order, and have lost no prisoners. The guns captured by the Bulgarians are old pieces of little value, and a thousand pieces of artillery remain in the possession of the Serbs, whose morale is still good. The ultimate issue depends upon the timely arrival of the allies' forces."

The German army commanded by Gen. von Kooress, which was reported Saturday as having advanced from Raska, on the Ivan, where the river crosses the southern boundary of Old Serbia, to Banja, north-east of Novi-Bazar, has taken the latter town, according to the German official statement issued yesterday. Novi-Bazar is a little over six miles south-west of Raska, on the Raska River, a tributary of the Ivan.

Meanwhile the Serbian army which was operating in the north-western corner of the old sanjak of Novi-Bazar has effected a junction with the Montenegrins, and apparently has withdrawn with the Montenegrins across the Lim to Montenegrin soil.

An official Montenegrin statement announces that the Montenegrin and Serbian forces are holding against heavy attacks on the Lim, and that the Montenegrins in the sanjak have been compelled to retire to their principal positions of defence, presumably in their own mountains on the left bank of the river.

The withdrawal of a body of Serbians to Montenegrin soil does not mean that the whole Serbian army in Central Serbia has been driven off its own territory, for Mitrovic, connected by railway with Uskub, where the road joins the Nish-Salonika railway, is still in Serbian hands, as also is Pristina, south-east of Mitrovic, and east of the railway.

OFFENSIVE A FAILURE.
Enemy Driven Out of Newly Occupied Ground at Czarotysk.

PETROGRAD, Nov. 22.—The Austrians and Germans were unable to retain the ground that they occupied at Czarotysk on the River Sty, being driven out by the Russian artillery fire, and the Russians resumed possession of the little town again. This place, which was unknown before the war, has become historic by reason of the heavy fighting which has prevailed in its district for the past three months. The Russians evidently gave way before the Austro-German attack for the purpose of getting a good target for their artillery. The Teuton offensive was doomed to failure after an initial success because the country around Czarotysk is a great marsh. Expert opinion here believes that this enemy offensive was undertaken for political and not military purposes, being designed to impress the Roumanians.

In Courland the wintry weather has put a stop to military activity. The Russians forced the Germans to retreat near the Poniewiesze railway, west of Dyvink. In the abandoned trenches the Russians found arms, munitions, and dead. West of Riga violent artillery firing has again been resumed.

Skirmishing on Caucasian Front.
PETROGRAD, via London, Nov. 22.—The statement issued by the War Office yesterday says:

"In the Caucasus in the region of Tortum and the coast there was artillery and rifle firing and skirmishing between advance guards."

"North of Lake Van and south of Lake Urmiah there have been engagements with bands of Kurds."

Last night's official report said:

"In the Caucasus on the front extending from the Black Sea to the northern shore of Lake Van there were outpost actions. Our aeroplanes dropped bombs on Turkish troops engaged in the region of the Villages of Koprucki and Khorasan. On the south-western shore of Lake Urmiah there have been encounters with bands of Kurds."

Progress in Cameroons.
LONDON, Nov. 22.—Marked progress by the Anglo-French expedition against the Cameroons is reported in an official statement issued by the Press Bureau yesterday. The statement follows:

"The Nigerian Government reports that the Anglo-French troops occupied Tibati, in the Cameroons, on November 3, driving out the Germans. Banyo was taken on October 24, and a position south of Banyo Mountain was taken on November 6. Fifty were killed and injured. The enemy casualties are not reported. The Allies captured a machine gun, stores, and baggage."

Lord Alverstone is seriously ill. Germany will prevent speculation in foodstuffs.

The readers of this paper will be pleased to learn that there is at least one dreaded disease that science has been able to cure in all its stages, and that is catarrh. Catarrh being greatly influenced by constitutional conditions requires constitutional treatment. Hall's Catarrh Cure is taken internally and acts through the blood on the mucous surfaces of the system thereby destroying the foundation of the disease, giving the patient strength by building up the constitution and assisting nature in doing its work. The product has so much faith in the curative powers of Hall's Catarrh Cure that they offer One Hundred Dollars for any case that it fails to cure. Send for list of testimonials.

APPLETON.

Special to THE HERALD.

Mr. and Mrs. Wm. Ainslie, and little daughter, of Smiths Falls, came out on Sunday to visit friends at "Riverside Cottage." Mr. Ainslie returned to the Falls on Monday.

Mr. Senley Fuller, who has been at Creelman, Sask., for some time, is visiting friends here.

Mr. Byers, of Rosetta, spent Sunday with Mr. Jas. Pye.

Mr. and Mrs. F. Stanzel and baby, of Carleton Place, spent Sunday with Mrs. Owens.

The regular home missionary concert will be held in St. Andrews church on Friday evening.

The sacrament of the Lord's supper will be observed in the Methodist church next Sunday afternoon.

A Scotch concert will be held in St. Andrews church on St. Andrew's "night," Nov. 30th. Rev. and Mrs. Stevens, and other talent from Almonte, Rev. Mr. Merrilees and Mr. Campbell, of Blakeney, and Rev. Mr. Lowry, of Franktown, will contribute to the programme.

Order four Wood from Taylor's $1.50 and $1.75 per load.

ALMONTE.

From the Gazette.

At the Presbyterian manse on Wednesday evening of this week, at 7 o'clock, Miss Jessie T. Currie was united in marriage to Mr. Alex. Houston, son of Mr. and Mrs. Robt. Houston, Rev. S. C. Brown performing the ceremony.

Word has been received from the west of the death of Mr. Samuel S. Dickson, at Regina Beach, Sask. He was born at Cedar Hill, a son of the late Samuel Dickson, and was married to Harriett Hilliard. To them five boys and three girls were born, a number of whom are dead. Two brothers, Messrs. H. H. Dickson of Pakenham and Mr. Stephen Dickson of Lunenburg, Sask., and two sisters, Mrs. John Riddell in the States, and Mrs. Jas. Mansfield of Manitowick, are still living. Two of the deceased sisters were Mrs. Wm. Snedden and Mrs. Jas. Ritchie. Mr. Dickson went west in the early nineties, and has since lived there. Mrs. Dickson died about a year and a half ago.

An interesting event took place on Wednesday afternoon of this week at four o'clock, when Mr. William Waddell was united in marriage to Miss Lucia Annetta Cunningham, eldest daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John Cunningham, of Ramsay. The ceremony was conducted by Rev. James McCune at the Reformed Presbyterian manse in the presence of a few friends of the contracting parties, after which the young couple, accompanied by their friends, drove to the bride's home, where a bountiful wedding dinner was served. Miss Ruby Cuthbertson, of Lanark, cousin of the bride, was bridesmaid, and Mr. Alan Bowes, Fitzroy, groomsmen.

PERTH.

From the Express.

At the solicitation of a number of influential ratepayers of the town, Mr. W. J. Pink has consented to stand for the Mayoralty of Perth for next year.

At an early hour last Friday morning the village of Westport narrowly escaped being completely destroyed by a fire which broke out in the dwelling over the store of H. C. McEwan and spread rapidly consuming the best part of a block. McEwan's building which also contained a barber shop and house was destroyed, together with the drug store and dwelling of R. J. Whaley, the two-story brick shop and dwelling of G. W. Castle, jeweller, and the store and home of T. G. Butler. Two barns were burned and several other stores and dwellings were slightly damaged. So serious did the situation look, an appeal was made to Brockville by telephone to send aid, but before railway arrangements could be completed the fire was said to be under control. The damage is placed at $50,000 with $30,000 insurance.

Arthur Code, wounded in France in the early summer, wherein he lost an eye, and later discharged from further service, has gone to Ottawa, having secured a government position as inspector of gas and electricity for the northern part of the province with headquarters at North Bay. Arthur is a competent electrical engineer, and the position will meet his case exactly and then he is content to fill the position.

There is nothing small about the account presented to Mr. John Code, as treasurer of the county this week. It came from the Children's Aid Society of Kingston, and is for $5,250 for the keep of three children for 175 weeks. These children were committed in July 1912 to the House of Providence of Kingston, and in the committal order Magistrate Taylor allowed $10 as a county grant towards the cost of conveying the children to Kingston. Now Inspector Wylie comes along and interprets the order to read $10 per child per week. That is Chateau, King Edward and Windsor living.

Place your COAL ORDER now, and get early delivery before the rush is on. TAYLOR BROS.

BOYD'S

Special to THE HERALD.

The sacrament of the Lord's supper was commemorated in the Methodist church here last Sabbath afternoon.

The funeral of the late Mr. Ab. Dowdall, of Hillside, was largely attended. Rev. Mr. Dustin officiating.

Mr. Thos. Kidd, formerly of this place, but now of Toronto, spent a day or so calling on old friends here, being down for the funeral of Mr. Dowdall.

Mr. Geo. Cooke was finishing up threshing here last week for the season.

Mr. John Warren, of Cobden, visited friends here last week.

Our cheese factory is still running four days a week, a good flow of milk coming in yet. Mr. Hammond, the secretary, is paying the patrons for the last two months, this week, and the price is splendid.

LANARK.

From the Era.

Rev. J. C. MacLeod, of St. Andrew's Church left to-day for a two weeks' holiday at his old home in Glace Bay, Nova Scotia, visiting his aged father, who is in failing health.

Mrs. Wm. Warrington received a letter on Monday, from her brother, Private Alexander Trotter of the Argyle and Sutherland Highlanders. At the outbreak of the war in August, 1914, he went to the front with his regiment, only fourteen members of which now survive. Private Trotter was wounded in one of the engagements of the war but has since most recovered, and has been transferred to the 1st Garrison Battalion, Royal Welsh Fusiliers, now in Glasgow, Scotland, waiting to be sent to India for other service, as he was passed unfit to return to the front.

Lanark has lost one of her oldest residents in the person of Mr. William Smith, sr., who died at his late home, Lanark, on Thursday, Nov. 11th, the result of a paralytic stroke. He was born in Lanark township, on Oct. 20th, 1832, a son of the late John Smith. On January 29th, 1855, he was married to Miss Hannah Walker, who died in 1860. Three children were born to them—Mrs. James Pye, Appleton; Mrs. A. C. McIntyre and John Smith, Lanark. His second wife was Miss Janet McLaren, by whom he had a family of two sons and eight daughters—William, Mrs. Jno. N. Watt and Nellie, Lanark; Mrs. Wm. Blair and Mrs. A. J. Cresbie, Winnipeg; Mrs. W. F. Perkins, Battleford, Sask.; Mrs. David McNeely, Carleton Place; Jennie, Maggie and George, deceased. The second wife died March 17th, 1914. Two brothers, John and George, and three sisters, Elizabeth, Jane and Sarah Ann, are all dead. The funeral took place on Saturday, 13th inst., at two o'clock p.m., to Lanark Village cemetery. Rev. John Murray, pastor of Zion Congregational church, conducted the services. The pallbearers were Messrs. A. C. McIntyre, James Pye, John Smith, William Smith, Jno. A. Watt and Jno. McLaren. Mr. Smith was a resident of Lanark for seventy-three years. In early life he engaged in the tannery business and later turned his attention to farming. About twenty years ago he retired. Mr. Smith filled a place in Lanark village that won him much respect. He was the oldest resident and his familiarity with the happenings of long ago made him a source of information for those who wished to become conversant with Lanark's early days. In his years of retirement he was fairly entitled to the name of Lanark's grand old man, a role which he filled with quiet grace. He will be missed in the degree that we attach importance to old associations, as well as for his personal qualifications as a man and a citizen.

WAR LOAN

DOMINION OF CANADA

ISSUE OF $50,000,000 5 p.c. BONDS MATURING 1st DEC., 1925

REPAYABLE AT PAR AT

INTEREST PAYABLE HALF-YEARLY—1st JUNE, 1st DECEMBER.

ISSUE PRICE 97½

A FULL HALF-YEAR'S INTEREST WILL BE PAID ON 1st JUNE, 1916.

THE PROCEEDS OF THE LOAN WILL BE USED FOR WAR PURPOSES ONLY.

In the event of future issues (other than issues made abroad) being made by the Government, for the purpose of carrying on the war, bonds of this issue will be accepted at the issue price, 97½, plus accrued interest, as the equivalent of cash for the purpose of subscriptions to such issues.

THE MINISTER OF FINANCE offers herewith on behalf of the Government the above named Bonds for subscription at 97½ payable as follows,—

10	per cent on application.
7½	" 3rd January, 1916,
20	" 1st February, 1916,
20	" 1st March, 1916,
20	" 1st April, 1916,
20	" 1st May, 1916,

The instalments may be paid in full on and after the 3rd day of January, 1916, under discount at the rate of four per cent per annum. All payments are to be made to a chartered bank for the credit of the Minister of Finance. Failure to pay any instalment when due will render previous payments liable to forfeiture and the allotment to cancellation.

Applications, accompanied by a deposit of ten per cent of the amount subscribed, must be forwarded through the medium of a chartered bank. The bank will issue a provisional receipt.

This loan is authorized under Act of the Parliament of Canada and both principal and interest will be a charge upon the Consolidated Revenue Fund.

Forms of application may be obtained from any branch of any chartered bank in Canada, and at the office of any Assistant Receiver General in Canada.

Subscriptions must be for even hundreds of dollars.

In case of partial allotments the surplus deposit will be applied towards payment of the amount due on the January instalment.

Scrip certificates payable to bearer will be issued, after allotment, in exchange for the provisional receipts.

When the scrip certificates have been paid in full and payment endorsed thereon by the bank receiving the money, they may be exchanged for bonds with coupons attached, payable to bearer or registered as to principal, or for fully registered bonds without coupons.

Delivery of scrip certificates and of bonds will be made through the chartered banks.

The interest on the fully registered bonds will be paid by cheque, which will be remitted by post. Interest on bonds with coupons will be paid on surrender of coupons. Both cheques and coupons will be payable free of exchange at any branch of any chartered bank in Canada.

Holder of fully registered bonds without coupons will have the right to convert into bonds with coupons, payable to bearer on registered, without payment of any fee, and holders of bonds with coupons will have the right to convert, without fee, into fully registered bonds without coupons at any time on application in writing to the Minister of Finance.

The issue will be exempt from taxes—including any income tax—imposed in pursuance of legislation enacted by the Parliament of Canada.

The bonds with coupons will be issued in denominations of $100, $500, $1,000. Fully registered bonds without coupons will be issued in denominations of $1,000, $5,000 or any authorized multiple of $5,000.

Application will be made in due course for the listing of the issue on the Montreal and Toronto Stock Exchanges.

The loan will be repaid at maturity at par at the office of the Minister of Finance and Receiver General at Ottawa, or at the office of the Assistant Receiver General at Halifax, St. John, Charlottetown, Montreal, Toronto, Winnipeg, Regina, Calgary or Victoria.

The books of the loan will be kept at the Department of Finance, Ottawa.

Recognized bond and stock brokers will be allowed a commission of one-quarter of one per cent on allotments made in respect of applications which bear their stamp.

Subscription Lists will close on or before 30th November, 1915.

Old Sea Dogs Are

In Charge of Britain's Fleets in Near East

ADMIRAL TROUBRIDGE, a descendant of a naval officer who served under Drake, is in Serbia with the British naval expeditionary force which was allowed to pass through Greece. He may have Balkan experiences more exciting even than those of Admiral Mark Kerr, as Troubridge is operating close to the headquarters of Crown Prince Alexander, the commander-in-chief of the Serbian army.

ADMIRAL DE ROBECK.

Dardanelles against the Goeben and Breslau, the two German battle cruisers which were at sea in the Adriatic when war was declared and escaped to Constantinople as if by magic past the waiting British ships in the Mediterranean under Admiral Troubridge. Through the extraordinary prowess of a German spy, so close to the inner circles of the British Admiralty in London that he was able to discover the secret code, changed every few days, through which orders were transmitted to the fleet, the Germans sent Admiral Troubridge by wireless a code message to return to English waters. He cleared the path for the German boats and arrived in London to undergo court-martial. However, when he produced the despatch in code, there was no doubt of his innocence, and the question of the guilty man has never yet been answered.

Admiral de Robeck, in command of the British naval expedition at the Dardanelles, will very likely be directing the attack of the Anglo-French ships against Bulgaria. Operations at the Dardanelles will soon be rendered impossible on account of the weather, and it is known that Admiral de Robeck will not return to England, but will busy himself with matters in the vicinity of his present quarters. He is a younger brother of Baron de Robeck, now airing his financial troubles in the Bankruptcy Court, but the family, which owes its title to King Frederick I. of Sweden, conferred in 1750, came into possession of a great fortune by marriage in Ireland some generations ago.

The admiral's grandfather fought as a cornet in the Seventh Hussars under Sir John Moore, and the men of his family have long been associated with military and naval affairs. Their motto, significant of the admiral's position to-day, is "Fortis sub forte fatiscit" (The strong yield to the strong).

Cars for Fire Fighting.

The management of the Government railways has made material progress in fire protection in Quebec since taking over the line of the National Transcontinental for operation. A tank car, for fire-fighting purposes, has been equipped and will be stationed at some convenient point between Edmundston and Quebec. This car has a capacity of ten thousand gallons and is equipped with hose to reach a fire five hundred feet from the track. The question of placing two similar cars at convenient points between the City of Quebec and the Ontario boundary is under consideration. Special fire patrols will also be necessary, and the details are being considered. Hon. Frank Cochrane, Minister of Railways and Canals, has announced that the same measures for fire protection will be taken on Government railways as are required by the Railway Commission of lines under private ownership. The measures referred to above constitute an excellent beginning. The Government railways are not under the jurisdiction of the Railway Commission.

Never Wore the Crown.

The King of Bulgaria has a crown that he has never worn in public. In 1902 "Prince" Ferdinand thought the time ripe for proclaiming himself king, and ordered a diadem from Brussels. The "Concert of Europe" ordained otherwise, and the crown was relegated to a cupboard until 1908, when the Prince was elevated to kingship. Austria, however, prohibited Ferdinand's coronation, so that he has not yet worn the crown publicly.

Fighting Jews.

It is computed that nearly half a million of Jewish soldiers are fighting in the war, 20,000 in our ranks. Two of them—one an officer and the other a private—have been awarded the Victoria Cross.

Calling of Gallieni

Was Great Stroke on Part of Premier Briand

OBservers of the change in the French Cabinet have studied chiefly the change from Viviani to Briand. In the opinion of military men, the great change has been from Millerand to Gallieni. Since war is the great business of both the British and French Cabinets, the Minister of War is the most important man in each Cabinet. Whatever may be the difference of opinion as to Asquith's qualifications for the post he occupies, there is no question that the shifting of the portfolio from Kitchener to somebody else would make a more profound impression than a change in the Premiership. So, argues "Ex-Attache," we should concentrate our attention upon the change from Millerand to Gallieni rather than from Viviani to Briand in the new French Cabinet. France has come to the conclusion that the war ought to be handled by professional soldiers rather than by politicians. She has put aside Millerand, or rather Millerand, a very able man and one greatly trusted by the army, has consented to stand aside in favor of a real soldier, to wit, Gallieni.

A Job for Professionals.

In England a real soldier is at the head of the army. It would have been better if a real sailor had been at the head of the navy. In some respects Balfour may be an improvement upon Churchill; in some respects he will be no improvement at all. A proved naval expert would be an improvement upon both. If Admiral Fisher had been in absolute command of the navy we should never have embarked upon the Dardanelles expedition, which, however successful it may be eventually, will be tremendously costly in life. Up to the present time in Great Britain there have been more than military reasons to consider. There have been diplomatic problems to solve. Fisher, probably, took account of only military problems. It appears that France has now come to the point where she regards nothing but military success. Therefore M. Millerand has stepped aside cheerfully, and while promising his support to the new Government, has been willing to see Gallieni, a real soldier, take his place.

France's Kitchener.

Gallieni is a real soldier. They call him the Kitchener of France. Like Kitchener, he is a veteran of the war of 1870, and like Kitchener, his military career has been spent almost wholly in the little wars of the colonies. He spent nearly twenty years in campaigning in Indo-China, and sixteen years in military and geographical expeditions in Central Africa. Both French and British societies recognized his services as an explorer. His greatest success was in Madagascar, where he spent ten years in converting this barbarous island into a remarkably peaceful and prosperous dependency of France. Like Kitchener in Egypt, he not only accomplished the military task assigned him, but before he left had become as popular with the natives as Kitchener was with the natives of Egypt.

The Saviour of Paris.

Like Kitchener, Gallieni is a taciturn man, without personal fear, and relying upon organizing ability rather than upon flights of military inspiration to accomplish his ends. He is tall and stern, and conveys the impression of great physical power. Continuing the comparison, it may be said that when the war broke out Britain turned to Kitchener to save the country, while Gallieni, though retired, was looked to as the saviour of Paris. Of course, the armies in the field have saved Paris from siege; but the hostile armies in the field were nearer Paris than London, and yet London is visited frequently by Zeppelins. Paris sees them rarely. The reason is, or one of the reasons, that Gallieni has grappled with the Zeppelin menace, just as Britain has grappled with the submarine menace.

The Prince's Scarf.

A new scheme for raising Red Cross cash has been started in New Zealand. The idea is for the knitting sex to make a scarf for Queen Mary, no one to knit more than a single row and to pay a mere shilling for the privilege. Everyone who has a hand in it will write her name and address in a book. When the scarf is finished it will be forwarded to the Queen with the book of signatures

Farm College on Wheels

The group of experts outside stock car.

THE Ontario Department of Agriculture has been operating a couple of demonstration cars over the C. P. R. lines in Ontario. The results following the instruction of two years ago, and the appreciation shown by the farmers, inspired the Department to hold evening meetings at most places, with moving pictures as a leading feature.

The work began on October 4th and continued until November 15th. Thirty-seven places were visited, a whole day being spent at each point for the inspection of the cars. Not only the farmers, but the women and children found much of interest in the exhibits and literature distributed.

The train included a live stock coach containing animals exhibiting desirable characteristics, of heavy horses, beef and dairy cattle, poultry, swine and sheep. To add interest arrangements were made to have some stock belonging to the farmers in various localities brought to the train to be compared with that furnished by the Department. Another coach was devoted to exhibits illustrating seed selection and improvement, identification of weeds, testing of seed, drainage, soil moisture, growing alfalfa corn, insect pests, protection from lightning, dairying, poultry raising, etc.

Capable and experienced men accompanied the train for explaining and lecturing purposes and to demonstrate the judging of live stock.

Since the inauguration of the "Better Farming Special" three years ago, the scheme has had extensive developments. Not only the people of Ontario, but the rural districts throughout the whole Dominion, have benefited. The Provincial Governments, with the assistance of the Agricultural Colleges, have used the "Farm College on Wheels" as a means to educate the farmer, his wife and children to higher standards of farming, and have met with considerable success. The "better farming" methods demonstrated by the professors who were on the train were listened to with great interest, and the questions asked by the farmer were further evidence that the visit of the "special" was doing incalculable good. C. P. R., the Guelph Agricultural Col-

Interior of Grain Coach.

The experts on the train were drawn from the Agricultural College at Guelph, one of the most up-to-date in the country. An interesting incident occurred during the tour. A thoroughbred Shropshire weaver gave birth to a lamb on board the train, and the question arose as to who it belonged to, whether the "special" was doing incalculable good. C. P. ## WORN WORRIED WOMEN

Her Many Duties Affect Her Health
And Often She Breaks Down Completely

It is little wonder that there are many times in a woman's life when she feels in despair. There is no nine-hour day for the busy housewife. There are a hundred things about the home to keep her busy from the time she arises until it is again bed time. What is the result? Often her nerves give way, her good looks suffer, her blood becomes thin, her digestion is disturbed and her system threatened with a complete breakdown. Every woman should do all possible to protect her health and good looks, and there is one way in which she can do this, and that is by taking Dr. Williams' Pink Pills. These actually make new, rich blood, strengthen every nerve and every organ, bring the glow of health to the cheeks and brightness to the eyes. These pills have done more to make the lives of thousands of women sunnier than anything else in the world. Mrs. Daniel Theal, Waterloo, Ont., says: "I was very much run down, my blood was thin and watery and I would faint at the least excitement. I suffered from headaches and dizziness and often it seemed as though there were clouds before my eyes. Finally I was forced to go to bed with weakness. I doctored for six weeks while in bed without receiving any benefit. Finally I was induced to take Dr. Williams' Pink Pills, and when I had taken ten boxes I was completely cured, and never felt better in my life. I am convinced that what Dr. Williams' Pink Pills did for me they will do for others, and I warmly recommend them to all weak women."

You can get these Pills from any medicine dealer or by mail at 50 cents a box or six boxes for $2.50 from The Dr. Williams' Medicine Co., Brockville, Ont.

Stuffed Potatoes.

A nice way to vary baked potatoes is to cut a slice from the top of each and scrape out the inside. Mash, season with salt, pepper, chopped parsley (if liked) and butter, and heat in a little hot milk; add two well-beaten whites of eggs. Refill the skins, sprinkle with grated cheese, and bake in a hot oven about six minutes.

A Fateful Game of Chess.

It is a Spanish tradition that the fate of Columbus overhung on a game of chess. For years the great navigator had haunted the Spanish court, trying to interest some one in his plans, but at last he determined to abandon the country and visit France. The night before his intended departure he sought an audience with the queen to communicate his intentions and to take his leave. The queen asked him to wait while she made another effort to interest the king. She found Ferdinand engaged at a game of chess and, disturbing him by her entrance, caused him to lose a piece. Annoyed and irritated by the incident, the king, after rudely denouncing Columbus and his schemes, informed Isabella that the result of the petition would depend on the result of the game. It grew worse, and the chances were all against the launching of the expedition. But the queen, overlooking the board, whispered to her august spouse a suggestion relative to a move that would be advantageous. The king followed the advice, the complexion of the game was quickly reversed, and Columbus' dream of years was realized at last.

Prolific Fungus.

An average sized mushroom will produce as many as 1,500,000,000 spores, and a common toadstool shaggy cap has been shown to produce as many as 5,000,000,000. Fortunately for the other inhabitants of the world, however, the probability of successful growth of any given spore is somewhat remote. The mushroom or toadstool plant is formed by fine filamentous threads which ramify beneath the soil, and if we assume that a successful plant of the mushroom or shaggy caps produces as many as ten mushrooms or toadstools we find that the chance against successful growth to maturity is respectively about 18,000,000,000 and 50,000,000,000 to one in the two species mentioned. Even more prolific than the mushrooms and toadstools proper is the giant puffball, a large specimen of which has been known to produce as many as 7,000,000,000,000 spores.—London Knowledge.

Domestic Bliss.

Mrs. Newed (to her husband)—I cook and cook and cook for you, and what do I get? Nothing! Mr. Newed—You're lucky. I always get indigestion.

Ancestry of the Hen.

Darwin believed that our domestic fowls are descended from the jungle fowls of India. As other authorities have sometimes disputed his view, the statement of Charles William Beebe, curator of ornithology at the New York zoological park, is especially interesting: "After studying all four species of feral Gallus in their native haunts as well as many examples of natural and artificial hybridizing and reviewing the evidence from all points of view I can find no reason to attribute the ancestry of all varieties of our domestic fowls to other than the red jungle fowl of India."

Inquisitive.

"Yes, Henry writes very good letters from college. They show a strong thirst for knowledge. He never writes without asking for information." "That's fine. What does he ask?" "He always asks, 'When are you going to send me some more money?'"—Cleveland Plain Dealer.

All the Same.

The "horny handed" calls what he lives on "pay," the skilled mechanic "wages," the city clerk "salary," the banker "income," a landowner "rent roll," a lawyer "fees," a burglar "swag," but it all comes to the same in the end.—London Scraps.

To Avoid Worry.

If you would avoid worry train your self to be methodical and to act up to the good old maxim of never putting off till tomorrow what can be done to-day.

Here's Proof That ZUTOO Cures Headache.

Mr. E. F. Tomkins, Ex-Mayor of Coaticook, Que., proves it. "Your Tablets are a safe and effective remedy for headache." Mr. Geo. Legge, Editor of the "Granby Leader-Mail" proves it. "Your Zutoo Tablets deserve to be widely known as a cure that will cure." A. C. Hanson, B. A., K. C., Colonel of the Hussars, proves it. "I use Zutoo Tablets and find them a very satisfactory cure for Headache." 25 cents per box—at all dealers.

Gordon Craig SOLDIER OF FORTUNE

By RANDALL PARRISH
Copyright, 1915, by A. C. McClurg & Co.

There was nothing there to interest me, and I crossed a narrow space of grass to where a broken picket fence was visible amid a fringe of weeds. No description can fitly picture the gloomy desolation surrounding that ramshackle place. Evidently this fence, now a mere ruin, had once served to protect a garden plot. But I saw merely a tangled mass of wild vegetation, so thick and high as to obstruct the view. Narrow footpaths branched in either direction, and I chose to follow the one to the right, thinking thus to skirt the fence and learn what was beyond before approaching the negro cabins on the opposite side. To my surprise I found myself suddenly standing on the bank of a narrow bayou, the water clear, yet apparently motionless, the opposite shore heavily timbered. Owing to a sharp curve I could see scarcely a hundred yards in either direction, yet close in beside the shore a light boat was skimming over the gray water. Even as I gazed, the fellow playing the paddle saw me and waved his hand. In another moment the bow grounded on the bank and its occupant came stumbling up the slight declivity.

He was a medium sized, wiry looking fellow, with olive skin and small mustache, dressed in brown corduroy, a colored handkerchief wound about his head in lieu of a hat. As he came to the level where I stood he stopped suddenly, staring into my face.

"Savrel! I thought eet was Coombs. Who are you, m'sieur?"

"I came in last night," I replied evasively, "and was just looking about a bit."

The black eyes searched my face, and I noted his right hand touch the hilt of a knife in his belt.

"What water is this?" I asked, ignoring his action. "Bayou?"

"Oui, m'sieur."

"Are we near the sea?"

"Twenty-seex mille. You not know where you are? 'Tis odd you not know, m'sieur."

I laughed, enjoying his bewilderment, yet not realizing how to turn it to better account.

"Oh, no. I came by train in the night and am a little hazy as to location. You live about here?"

"Som' time. Then off again—sailor. Where Coombs? You know, m'sieur?"

"No, I don't," I acknowledged. "Asleep in his cabin likely."

The creole, for such he undoubtedly was, made a swift resolve.

"'Tis like, m'sieur. I find out. Maybe you come too."

The last was more of an order than a question. I gave it no apparent heed, but turned in the direction of the cabins. I had no reason to avoid Coombs. Indeed, I desired to see him, and I had no intention of permitting this lad to suppose that I feared his veiled threats. Without so much as glancing back at him I advanced along the footpath, my hands in my pockets. Yet my mind leaped from point to point in eager speculation. Little as I liked Coombs this creole was even more dangerous. The one was a rough, the other a venomous snake. So far as the original purpose of my adventure was concerned it had already largely faded from recollection. The swift recurrence of more startling events dominated.

"Ze right; turn to ze right, m'sieur," said a voice behind me, and then I saw Coombs standing before the door of the second cabin.

"What does this mean, Broussard?" he growled savagely. "Where did you pick up that fellow?"

"At the landing," the creole hastened to explain. "How could I tell? He said he knew you, m'sieur."

"Oh, he did, hey? Well, all I know about him is that he blew in here last night with a woman. Claimed to be young Henley and took possession of the place. I reckon it's about time I saw some papers to prove what yer are, young feller, 'fore yer go snooping round at daylight. What's yer game anyhow?"

The man's bluster gave me my clew. The thought suddenly occurred to me that for some reason he was more afraid of me than I of him.

"You can see my authority, Coombs, any time you are ready to exhibit your own," I returned coolly, leaning back against the side of the cabin and staring him straight in the eyes. "If you are the overseer here, then it is my money that is paying your wages, and from the look of things you'll not hold the job long at that."

Coombs did not cringe, but my tone brought him uneasiness.

"The niggers won't work," he returned gruffly. "Thar ain't a nigger on the place."

"Apparently white men enough hanging around. What's the matter with the negroes?"

"Ghosts," and the fellow laughed. "Maybe yer've seen 'em?"

I straightened up, stung by the sneer in his voice.

"No, but I've seen something more to the point—a murdered man."

"What?"

"Just what I said. There was a man killed last night in that back room upstairs. Shot in the head through the window. I heard the shot and investigated. His body lies there now." I saw Broussard's snaky eyes flash across toward Coombs' face, but the latter remained motionless.

"It's a d— lie!" he ejaculated roughly. "There is nobody there!"

"Easily settled. Come with me, and I'll show you."

Rather to my surprise neither objected to the test, and we tramped in single file toward the house. Some precaution kept me at the rear, and I followed silently to the room of the murder.

There was the furniture as I remembered it, the dirty walls, the opened window. But the overturned chair stood against the wall, the cards were stacked on the table, and there was no body lying on the floor. Coombs let out a harsh laugh.

"Well, where's yer dead man? I reckon ye don't see none, hey?"

"No," I insisted, "but I did see one—twice. The body lay there where the stain shows on the floor. It has been carried away within half an hour."

"A likely story. Who could do the job? Nobody round this shebang but Sallie an' me. I sure ain't been in yer, an' I reckon it won't Sallie. So cut it out, young feller. After breakfast you an' I'll have a talk an' find out a few things. Come on, Broussard, an' let's talk over that matter o' ours."

The two went down the stairs together, and I closed the door of the rear room and stepped out into the hall. Sallie was in the kitchen, for I heard her voice questioning the men as they passed through. Out of the window I caught a glimpse of them both disappearing through the weeds toward the bayou.

That dead body had not moved itself. Human hands had accomplished the deed during the brief period of my absence outside. Whose hands could have done it? Not those of Coombs, surely, for he could not have passed me and attained the house while I was in the garden unseen, nor Sallie, for she possessed no strength to more than drag the dead man to some near-by covert. With the possibility of this in mind I searched the vacant rooms of that floor, closets and all, thoroughly, but to no result. There was therefore but one conclusion possible—unknown parties were involved. We were not alone in the house in spite of its apparent desertion.

I paused in doubt before Mrs. Bernard's door, convinced this was the truth. Should I tell her frankly the story of the night, my vague discoveries, my suspicion? I surely had no right to deceive the woman or keep her with me. I had determined myself to face it out—to risk life, if need be, to learn the truth. But I had no right to involve her further.

I rapped at the door twice before there was any movement within. Then her voice asked who was there, and at my answer she came out fully dressed, fronting me with questioning eyes.

"The night has rested you," I said smilingly, my heart beating in swift appreciation of her beauty. "Are you ready for breakfast?"

"For anything to escape the loneliness of that room," she replied seriously. "If I really looked rested it is not from sleep, for I have passed the night in terror. My slumber was fitful and filled with dreams. But I am sure of some things—my door was tried twice, and I heard some one prowling about the hall."

"That might have been I," I interrupted, "as I was out there during the night, but I certainly never tried your door."

"You had a light?"

"Yes."

"I saw that shining over the transom. It was much later when my door was tried—no longer before daylight, I think. Whoever it was passed out the front hall window on to the porch roof. My light was burning, although turned low, and no doubt he saw me sitting up, wide awake, on the edge of the bed, for he had disappeared by the time I gained sufficient courage to approach the window and look out."

"Climbed down the trellis probably," I said, deeply interested. "It appears strong enough to support a man. I wish you had got sight of the fellow."

She lifted her hands to her head. "But I was so frightened. My head throbs now with pain. I was frightened last night in the darkness. I confess I completely lost my nerve and would have run away if I could. Perhaps I even said things which made you believe I regretted my action in coming with you. But I am more myself now, and I mean to remain and discover what it all means. Can you guess why? Do you not suspect who I am?"

"Who are you? Only as you have told me."

"And I told you only a half truth. I am the wife of Philip Henley." Her cheeks flushed, a touch of passion in her voice as she faced me. "That is the truth. Do you suppose that I would ever have come here with you otherwise? No matter how desperate my condition was, that would have been impossible. I should have despised myself."

My surprise at this avowal kept me silent, yet I could not conceal the admiration from revelation in my eyes. She must have read aright, for she drew back a step, grasping the knob of the door.

"I—I wanted to tell you yesterday—all the way coming down here. But I wanted to discover just what you were like."

"You mean whether I could be trusted?"

She looked at me frankly.

"Now I am simply going to trust you fully. I must. There is no other way. I thought it all over and over again last night and determined to confess everything as soon as we met this morning."

CHAPTER VII.
The Decision.

NOW that I could openly associate myself with Philip Henley's wife in a struggle to retain for her what was justly her own, all feeling of doubt vanished, and I became grimly confident of the final result.

"I am glad to know that," I said, "for now I can work openly, knowing exactly what I ought to do. I have felt like a rat skulking in a hole. I believed what those men told me. They convinced me with proofs I could not ignore, but they must have lied. Would it be possible for Philip Henley to be in a penitentiary convicted of crime?"

"It would not be," she returned firmly. "There was no time after I left him for an arrest and conviction. That alone is sufficient to convince me of fraud and conspiracy. His remittances were amply sufficient."

"Then what do you think has occurred?"

Text of the Lesson, Amos v, 1-15. Memory Verses, 14, 15—Golden Text, Jer. xxi, 28—Commentary Prepared by Rev. D. M. Stearns.

SUNDAY SCHOOL

THE INTERNATIONAL SERIES.

Lesson IX.—Fourth Quarter, For Nov. 28, 1915.

The message of Jonah was to gentiles, suggestive of foreign missions; that of Amos was to Israel, and therefore a home mission lesson reminding us of the need of the church today to be awakened to see her privileges and opportunities and responsibilities. The sins of Israel and her needs were not different from those of believers now. They bore the name of Jehovah, but were false to Him and worshiped idols. "They know not to do right, saith the Lord" (iii, 10). There was self and sin in all their worship. Therefore the Lord said, "Offer a sacrifice of thanksgiving with leaven, * * * for this liketh you" (iv, 4, 5). Leaven is always a type of evil. Because of the sin in their professed worship of God He said, "I hate, I despise your feast days." I will not accept nor regard your offerings (v, 21-23). Although they outwardly kept new moons and Sabbath days their hearts were long for them to be over that they might sell corn and wheat and grow rich by fraud, giving small measure and taking in as much money as possible (viii, 4, 5).

Consider the growing rich by fraud that abounds today even among those who hold high positions in the church, the oppression of the poor, the formality in worship, the false teaching that all are children of God, that Jesus Christ was only one of the sons of God, better than the others, but not God; that there is no hell, no lake of fire; that if people are not saved in this life they can be in the next and that a God of love will never allow any one to perish eternally; the Bible cannot be taken literally, it does not mean what it says—consider all these horrible things and then think how God in His mercy sent forth a Daniel Crawford from the heart of Africa and a William Sunday from the baseball field to show His people their sins and to uphold the honor of His word.

How does the Lord plead by Amos? He reminded them how He had brought them out of Egypt, led them forty years in the wilderness, given them the lands of others, raised up prophets and Nazirites from among their sons and revealed to them His purposes by His prophets (ii, 10, 11; iii, 7; ix, 7), therefore He would have them seek Him and live, assuring them of an abundant pardon if only they would turn to Him with the whole heart (v, 4, 6, 14; Isa. lv, 6, 7). He also pointed them onward, as He always did and still does, to the future glory, for in spite of all the sin of Israel it is the purpose of God to restore Israel and bless all nations through them. He will raise up the tabernacle of David (ix, 11), and James said at the great council at Jerusalem that would be after He had gathered the church, as he put it, taken out of the Gentiles a people for His name. Then he said that all the Gentiles would after that be gathered (Acts xv, 13-15). Note how in the very last words of Amos' prophecy the Lord said that He would bring again the captivity of Israel, that they would build their waste cities and inhabit them; that He would plant them upon their land and that they would no more be pulled up out of it (ix, 13-15). Abraham was encouraged and sustained by the assurance of the city—Moses by the recompense of the reward, David by the kingdom, Paul by the glory to be revealed and our Lord Himself by the joy set before Him. I know of no way by which the church of today can be turned from its worldliness and indifference so successfully as by setting clearly before her the great love of God in Christ Jesus, the greatness of the salvation He has provided and the glory of the kingdom to which we are called.

Men are trying to remedy the evils that exist, to reform or uplift the race, by their own efforts, but "They know not the thoughts of the Lord, neither understand they His counsel" (Mic. vi, 12). They do not know that the babe of Bethlehem was born to rule in Israel and that there can be no kingdom of peace on earth till He shall come again (Mic. v, 2-4). People are so filled with their own thoughts and ways, just as Israel was, that they will not be agreed with God and therefore cannot walk with Him (Amos iii, 8). Because many preachers in pulpits and teachers in seminaries are turning away from God to the wisdom of men there is a famine of hearing the words of the Lord (Amos viii, 11). As in the last lesson, those who have knowledge of God are disobedient and asleep and must be awakened. As it is written in Eph. v, 14, "Awake thou that sleepest, and arise from the dead, and Christ shall give thee light." "Be not unwise, but understanding what the will of the Lord is" (Eph. v, 17, 18). "It is high time to awake out of sleep, for now is our salvation nearer than when we believed. The night is far spent, the day is at hand" (Rom. xiii, 11, 12). The whole world lieth in the wicked one; it is an evil age from which the Lord desires to deliver us (I John v, 19; Gal. i, 4). All things indicate as never before that the end of this evil age is near and that it is a time to be specially separated unto God from all evil and unbelief.

The message of Jonah was to gentiles, suggestive of foreign missions; that of Amos was to Israel, and therefore a home mission lesson reminding us of the need of the church today to be awakened to see her privileges and opportunities and responsibilities. The sins of Israel and her needs were not different from those of believers now. They bore the name of Jehovah, but were false to Him and worshiped idols. "They know not to do right, saith the Lord" (iii, 10). There was self and sin in all their worship. Therefore the Lord said, "Offer a sacrifice of thanksgiving with leaven, * * * for this liketh you" (iv, 4, 5). Leaven is always a type of evil. Because of the sin in their professed worship of God He said, "I hate, I despise your feast days." I will not accept nor regard your offerings (v, 21-23). Although they outwardly kept new moons and Sabbath days their hearts were long for them to be over that they might sell corn and wheat and grow rich by fraud, giving small measure and taking in as much money as possible (viii, 4, 5).

Consider the growing rich by fraud that abounds today even among those who hold high positions in the church, the oppression of the poor, the formality in worship, the false teaching that all are children of God, that Jesus Christ was only one of the sons of God, better than the others, but not God; that there is no hell, no lake of fire; that if people are not saved in this life they can be in the next and that a God of love will never allow any one to perish eternally; the Bible cannot be taken literally, it does not mean what it says—consider all these horrible things and then think how God in His mercy sent forth a Daniel Crawford from the heart of Africa and a William Sunday from the baseball field to show His people their sins and to uphold the honor of His word.

How does the Lord plead by Amos? He reminded them how He had brought them out of Egypt, led them forty years in the wilderness, given them the lands of others, raised up prophets and Nazirites from among their sons and revealed to them His purposes by His prophets (ii, 10, 11; iii, 7; ix, 7), therefore He would have them seek Him and live, assuring them of an abundant pardon if only they would turn to Him with the whole heart (v, 4, 6, 14; Isa. lv, 6, 7). He also pointed them onward, as He always did and still does, to the future glory, for in spite of all the sin of Israel it is the purpose of God to restore Israel and bless all nations through them. He will raise up the tabernacle of David (ix, 11), and James said at the great council at Jerusalem that would be after He had gathered the church, as he put it, taken out of the Gentiles a people for His name. Then he said that all the Gentiles would after that be gathered (Acts xv, 13-15). Note how in the very last words of Amos' prophecy the Lord said that He would bring again the captivity of Israel, that they would build their waste cities and inhabit them; that He would plant them upon their land and that they would no more be pulled up out of it (ix, 13-15). Abraham was encouraged and sustained by the assurance of the city—Moses by the recompense of the reward, David by the kingdom, Paul by the glory to be revealed and our Lord Himself by the joy set before Him. I know of no way by which the church of today can be turned from its worldliness and indifference so successfully as by setting clearly before her the great love of God in Christ Jesus, the greatness of the salvation He has provided and the glory of the kingdom to which we are called.

Men are trying to remedy the evils that exist, to reform or uplift the race, by their own efforts, but "They know not the thoughts of the Lord, neither understand they His counsel" (Mic. vi, 12). They do not know that the babe of Bethlehem was born to rule in Israel and that there can be no kingdom of peace on earth till He shall come again (Mic. v, 2-4). People are so filled with their own thoughts and ways, just as Israel was, that they will not be agreed with God and therefore cannot walk with Him (Amos iii, 8). Because many preachers in pulpits and teachers in seminaries are turning away from God to the wisdom of men there is a famine of hearing the words of the Lord (Amos viii, 11). As in the last lesson, those who have knowledge of God are disobedient and asleep and must be awakened. As it is written in Eph. v, 14, "Awake thou that sleepest, and arise from the dead, and Christ shall give thee light." "Be not unwise, but understanding what the will of the Lord is" (Eph. v, 17, 18). "It is high time to awake out of sleep, for now is our salvation nearer than when we believed. The night is far spent, the day is at hand" (Rom. xiii, 11, 12). The whole world lieth in the wicked one; it is an evil age from which the Lord desires to deliver us (I John v, 19; Gal. i, 4). ### Barns Burned Near Smiths Falls.

Yesterday afternoon a serious fire occurred on the Murphy Farm, Sand Road, which is owned by Mr. John Mc-Ewen, Smiths Falls. The fine barn and outbuildings were completely destroyed, together with the season's crops.
Most of the farm implements and live stock were saved. The origin of the fire is not known and Mr. McEwen has not yet figured out his loss. The farm is situated about a mile from town and was only recently acquired by Mr. Mc-Ewen.—News of the 19th inst.

Too Good to Miss.

"The White Feather" is not a mere sensational drama thrown together to take advantage of the war excitement, but is a well constructed and delightfully written play, which graphically and accurately portrays the actual workings of the German spy system in Great Britain during the first few weeks of the war, and the methods adopted by the British government to combat it.
The result is a story more intense and exciting than any fictitious narrative could be, and there is a delightful sentimental interest as well. The scene is a seaside resort overlooking the North Sea, with four German spies endeavoring to compass the destruction of a British squadron by wireless signals, carrier pigeons and other devices. The manner in which Christopher Brent who poses as a "nut" and a slacker and who receives the white feather from the girls of his acquaintance, foils the German plans is founded on fact and is at once thrilling and humorous. The present company consists of actors selected and drilled by the British producers in charge of the New York production.

Married at Ottawa.

The Ottawa Citizen says: A wedding of considerable interest in the city was quietly solemnized in St.
Matthew's Church, First avenue, by Rev. G. S. Anderson, the rector, when Miss Hilda L. McEwen, Ottawa, was married to Mr. Arthur A. Russell, also of the city. The bride was given away by Mr. Robert Hamilton and was attired in a tailored suit of Belgian blue with hat to match, and wore a blouse of white shadow lace over chiffon. She was attended by Miss Annie L. Maguire, of Almonte. The groom was assisted by Mr. Nathan Crawford of Ottawa. After the service the young couple motored to the home of the bride's sister, Mrs.
Nevin, 55 Rosemount avenue, where an informal reception was held for a few friends. The bride received many beautiful and costly gifts, including several from Carleton Place, Almonte and Pittsfield, Mass. Her gift from the groom was a diamond and pearl ring, and the gift to the groom was a pearl stick pin. The bride's gift to the groom was a diamond and pearl stick pin, and to the bridesmaid a gold pendant with pearl settings. Mr. and Mrs. Russell will reside at 613 King Edward avenue.

Lanark County Regiment.

Preference has come to Major de Hertel for services rendered as recruiting officer for Lanark and Renfrew district. The Major has been promoted to a colonelcy, and has been given command of a new regiment to be raised for overseas service. It will be known as the 103rd, and will be Lanark county's own regiment. Second in command is Capt. Watt, now promoted to be Major.
Capt. Edwards is the junior Major.
The Adjutantcy has been offered to Lieut. Gilroy, Smiths Falls. Capt.
Morgan Carry, C.M.R., Kingston, is paymaster, Capt. Consitt, Perth, medical officer, and Capt. Wilson, Perth, dental officer, and Capt. McIntosh, chaplain.
Almost all the officers of 42nd are accepting commissions in the new county battalion for overseas. The battalion will be 1200 strong, with headquarters at Perth. Col. de Hertel is to be congratulated in his promotion, and a signal honor has been conferred on the county in having a battalion raised here.
The new colonel has won his spurs through hard work as a recruiting officer, having turned in almost 4,000 recruits for different battalions. Major Watt has also won his majority through persistent work.—Expositor.

Red Cross Maxims.

Recognize that every wounded man has a claim on your purse as well as on your sympathy.
The symbol of humanitarian relief is the Red Cross but not Red tape.
Do not grumble at the extent of Red Cross work. Be thankful that the casualties are few as they are.
Co-operate harmoniously with fellow Red Cross workers. It is unseemly to squabble at the bedside of wounded and dying men.
Contribute in labor if you cannot contribute in wealth. Give cheerfully, generously and above all immediately.

FRANKTOWN.

Mrs. Lowry, of "the Manse," is spending the week in Ottawa.
Mrs. Peter McEwen is expected home from an extended western tour shortly.
A large crowd is expected at Mr.
James Fleming's sale on his farm on Wednesday afternoon.
Col. J. M. Balderson, K.C., of Perth, was the guest of Rev. J. W. S. Lowry and family, at St. Paul's manse, on Thursday and Friday last.
The Presbyterian church people are preparing for their anniversary services on next Sunday week, December 5, and the usual social and concert on Monday evening. Mr. D. I. Ferguson is training a large choir for the occasion and the special preacher of the day is Rev.
C. W. Nichol, pastor of Westminster church, Ottawa.
The Beckwith and Montague Rural Telephone Company are busy pushing forward the work of line construction over more of their allotted territory in this part of the township. A line is being built along the McLaren road from Gillis Corners to the Kilmarnock road by way of the sixth line, and work over another section, on the second,
third and fourth lines has commenced.
These different branches will all run into the Franktown central, which is the centre of gravity for the company.
All are invited to the patriotic rally in St. Paul's church on Thursday evening. There will be rousing patriotic music and stirring addresses by several military men and other local gentlemen.
L.O.L. No. 381, will hold their annual meeting in the Orange hall, on Wednesday evening of next week,
December 1.
Roy Houston made a short visit to his home here last week before going to Kingston for the winter with his battalion.
Two of our soldier villagers, Sergeants
Jerry O'Shea and H. Willis, were home for the week-end. They are now quartered at Napanee for the winter, or until such time as they receive orders to start for the front.
One of our village citizens doing service at the front is lately reported missing, Private James Perry, who enlisted with the first contingent. Private Perry had not reported nor been heard of after a recent skirmish with the enemy. His parents and friends are anxiously awaiting some definite intelligence about him.
The patriotic and recruiting rally which was to have been held in the Presbyterian church last Friday evening was postponed until next Thursday evening on account of the very unfavorable weather. The township committee in charge of the purchase of the machine gun from Beckwith will meet at the close of the public meeting.
Sunday last was an interesting day at St. Paul's Church, when the pastor discussed the pros and cons of the church union question. The sermon, which occupied upwards of an hour in delivering, was attentively listened to by a large congregation. Ballots for voting on the question were distributed to members and adherents and they are to be returned not later than next Sunday.
The minister declined to take either side.
A number of the young and fair from our village and vicinity attended the Orange ball at Unisville on Monday evening and report an enjoyable time.
Mr. Sam Carley has been under the weather for some days and his familiar figure is missed from our village streets and places of concourse and conversation.

A VALUABLE MEDICINE FOR LITTLE ONES

Mrs. G. Morgan, Huntsville, Ont., writes:—"I wish every mother and especially young mothers knew the value of Baby's Own Tablets. They have certainly worked wonders with our baby. She was troubled with colic and constipation and cried all the time but the Tablets soon put her right and she is now a fine healthy child." The Tablets are sold by medicine dealers or by mail at 25 cents a box from The Dr.
Williams' Medicine Co., Brockville, Ont.

Several nurses were lost when the
