The additional electro-types which appeared in the Globe of Saturday, showing Sir Adolphe Caron to have paid over $7,000 in Quebec county during the general election of 1887, although his agent returned that he only expended some $800, are creating some excitement in Conservative circles at Ottawa. If proven, and Sir Adolphe's signature is given with the notes and the amount of money, the offense is a serious one. It is made all the more so seeing that the Government refuse an investigation. Nothing could have happened to have so completely destroyed the reputation for fairness which Sir John Thompson once was credited with, than his quibbling and pettifogging speech in answer to those charges. The broken down Sir Hector must marvel exceedingly at the action of the Government in defending Caron, when they allowed him to go overboard. In the House the other day when Ouimet defended the Postmaster-General, something which he would not have done twelve months ago for a fortune, Sir Hector looked angrily across the floor but said never a word. His silence means that the Government has in some way for the time placated him. The ex-Minister of Public Works is not theman to refrain from ruining his enemies, Caron and Chapleau, without good reason for his refrain from ruining his enemies, Caron and Chapleau, without good reason for his silence. THE PEOPLE'S FORUM.

The Temple of Fame."

To the Editor of the Advertisers:
In your issue of yesterday there is a characteristic letter from Mr. Geo. W. Armstrong upon the above entertainment. As several of the statements in his letter are alike unjust as they are unkind to those who took part in it, and the moral deductions that he seeks to draw are, in my estimation, so unwarranted I cannot refrainfrom briefly replying to his epistle.

Who ever claimed that "The Temple of Fame" was a religious entertainment? It was a moral, historical and intellectual entertainment. Moral, insofar as it brought prominently before the audience the sentiments of several of the many advocates and leaders of social reform of the present day. Historical, in reproducing a number of funous characters, who fill important and leaders of social reform of the present day. Historical, in reproducing a number of famous characters, who fill important positions in the pages of history; the lessons that their lives were intended to teach, and the leading events connected with their times, were thus brought out in a profitable manner. The songs sung, and the quotations given, either from poet or historian, were both instructive and elevating in their character. In this respect it is therefore character. In this respect it is therefore unjust to term it a theatrical entertain-ment. Dramatic it may be; theatrical it character. In this respect it is therefore unjust to term it a theatrical entertainment. Dramatic it may be; theatrical it is not.

Mr. Armstrong complains that the tendency of the entertainment was to promote "sensuous (?) ideas." Ho would have some difficulty in showing that "sensuous ideas" were sinful ideas. Probably he intended to write "sensual," and that "ideas" represent about as much in this connection as it usually does in Mr. Armstrong's letters. His next objection is sufficiently answered by the deportment of both actors and audience. I am not aware that any London lady has yet appeared on Dundas street in Elizabethan costume.

Mr. Armstrong goes on in a most summary and illogical manner to settle the disputed question in regard to theatergoing, apart from the had taste displayed by him in bringing up this question in this connection, which, to say the least, is altogether uncalled for. He, perhaps unintentionally, produces a strong case in favor of theater-going. About the only objections I have ever heard advanced against the theater are the associations to be found there: the morality of the actors as well as the plays themselves. But given a theater filled with "members of every denomination," the actors all religious people, the characters produced, Queens of Song, Queens of Morey, Queens of Valor, and it such an entertainment should promote sensuous (?) ideas, the fault cannot be in either the performance or the performers, but in the sensual mind of the listener. Granted, as Mr. Armstrong asserts, that the tendency of "The Temple of Fame" entertainment did for the time divort the tender () Christian mind from the solid and serious to the flippant, light and gay. If either of the latter sentiments should prevail surely even Mr. A. would hesitate before calling them sinful.

If Mr. Armstrong had not much fault to find with what he said, would it not have them sinful.

If Mr. Armstrong had not much fault to find with what he said, would it not have been better form for him to examine his prejudices rather than indite newspaper letters condemning that which he admits was entertaining and respectable. Carping is not criticism. Nor does bigotry Carping is not critisism. Nor does bigotry or prejudice find a place in liberal Christian minds. I hold that the "Temple of Fame" was a clean, moral, instructive and harmonizing entertainment, Yours truly, London, May 3.

Euclid Avenue Methodists Indorse Their Pastor's Views-The Ministerial Association Sympathize with Mrs. Alex. Mackenzie.

Mrs. Alex. Mackenzic.
Torongo, May 2.—At the close of last evening's service in Euclid Avenue Methodist Church Rev. A. M. Phillips, the pastor, was requested by his congregation to print and publish his recent sermons on the atonement, in connection with which, it will be remembered, the question of his orthodoxy was raised a few weeks ago. The resolution requesting the same practically indorsed Mr. Phillips' views on the question. Mr. Phillips consented to do as requested.

ON THE BACK SEAT. This May or May Not be a True Story of Crime and Expiation.

[From the New York Sun.] I boarded the train at 4 o'clock in the afternoon, and had scarcely got seated when I noticed a little woman on the last seat of the right-hand side. I could not seat of the right-hand side. I could not see her face on account of the heavy veil she wore, and she leaned over against the window so heavily that I thought her asleep. There were only a few passengers of us in the car, and everybody seemed to shrink into himself as if disgusted.

"Who's the woman back there?" I asked of the conducter as he sat down head of the conductor as he can be conducted as head of the conductor as he can be conducted as head o beside me for a few minutes.

"Don't know; going to St. Louis," he said. "Sick ?"

said.

"Sick?"

"Maybe, and maybe it's something on her mind. I've got an idea that she's watching for somebody."

It was a winter day and raining at that. It was dusk, but the lamps had not been lighted, when six or eight people got on at station. Among them was a couple whom I believed to be newly wedded, although they were middle-aged. The man was fine looking and the woman really handsome, and they took a seat about the middle of the car with their backs to the veiled woman. When I happened to look back I found her sitting bolt upright and acting as if very much excited. Fifteen minutes after the train had pulled out of the station the little woman passed me as she went down the aisle. The lamps were alight now, and I saw a pistol clutched in her with the all. now, and I saw a pistol clutched in her right hand. The couple referred to were acting very lovingly towards each other, but I had not connected the little woman but I had not connected the little woman with them at all. She passed them by two or three feet and then wheeled, raised her veil, and stood with the pistol pointed full in the man's face.

No one can be prepared for action under such circumstances. Every one in the car was looking at the woman, and everybody realized that a traced was at hand, but realized that a tragedy was at hand, but nobody moved. For fully 30 seconds the woman stood like a statue, the pistol within two feet of the man's face. Those in front of him said that he flushed up at first sight of her, and then grow pale as death. He tried to speak, but his lips uttered no sound. The woman beside him looked, raised her hands, and sank back in a dead faint

"George, I have come to say good-bye!" said the little woman at last, and her words were followed by the dull click of the hamwere followed by the dull click of the hammer falling on a cartridge. There was no explosion. Her arm slowly fell until it rested beside her, and with a sobbing wail she sank down in the aisle and was helpless. All of us moved at once. She was lifted to a seat and a woman took charge of her. We turned to the man for explanations, but he had fallen back and his eyes were closed. Two minutes later we knew that he was dead—as surely dead as if a bullet had pierced his brain. A doctor who came in from the car ahead said it was a case of heart failure. He was the husband of the little woman who had been riding so long heart failure. He was the husband of the little woman who had been riding so long on the back seat. They had quarreled, and he had become infatuated with the woman beside him. The wife had planned to encounter them and kill him. He had looked into the face of death for 30 seconds, and the strain on his nerves had stopped the flow of life as suddenly as if struck by a thunderbolt.

A corpea, an adventuress, a widow! It struck by a thunderbolt.

A corpse, an adventuress, a widow! It ended there for us, but not for them. Was it any wonder that as the train rushed on through the darkness each one of us seemed to hear a voice, saying:

"As ye sow, so shall ye reap! The deeds of the wicked shall recoil upon their own heads!"

COUNTY COUNCILS.

The bill introduced recently in the Ontario Legislature by Hon. Mr. Hardy to reduce the size of county councils was a step in the right direction, and it is to be regretted that action is delayed until another session. It may be true that the Bill had imperfections and some features that by many might be regarded as objectionable, but the demands of economy are so strong that no excuse is sufficient for further delay. Look at these figures in one county as an example of what they are in many others. In Oxford the expenditure for county councilors' services increased 300 per cent. in four yeers. In 1887 the cost was $1,337 83; in 1888, $1,555 40; in 1890, $2,308 65; in 1890, $2,650; and in 1891, $4,034 47. There are about 30,000 unorganized, and about 10,000 organized men and women in Detroit, yet only 150 working men and women attended Mr. McGuire's meeting. Why?

Many members of trades unions have expected too much, and many labor leaders have promised too much. There is nothing that will kill any movement more rapidly than disappointment, it matters not from what source it may arise.

A serious accident, which might have proved fatal, occurred on Thursday night last about 10 o'clock. It appears that while Thos. Boyle and Albert McFalls, of Centralia, were going home from a concert in Exeter they met A. J. Rollins and wife, of Exeter, and, it being very dark, neither parties saw the other, and the horses ran together and then turned completely around, capsizing both rigs and throwing the occupants out. Mrs. Rollins got her arm broken above the elbow, besides other slight injuries. Mr. Rollins had his forehead badly cut and three or four of his upper ribs broken and his neck strained. The occupants of the other rig were only slightly injured by their hard fall on the gravel road. Mr. Rollins' buggy was badly smashed. The injured were then taken home, where their wounds were attended to by Dr. Rollins, of Exeter.

What is the lesson to Patrons? The good fellow means well enough, for bad farming most assuredly does not pay; but what about the other meaning that may be taken from his expression? London, Tuesday, May 3.

Sir John Thompson promises that the Gerrymander Bill will be brought down for a second reading on Thursday next.

In Woodstock the hour for closing bars in taverns has been fixed at 10 p.m. instead of 11 as formerly. There seems to be a pretty general movement in favor of curtailing the opportunities for drinking intoxicating liquors.

The Mowat Government seems to be in-rincible in Ontario.—[Montreal Star, Yes, as compared with his strength at the opening of the Legislature three months ago, Mr. Meredith is now six

Mr. Ingram, M. P. for West Elgin, warmly protested in the House that it is eminently in the public interest that his brother, W. H., the writer of "the influence" letter in the South Perth contest, has been appointed to the collectorship of customs at St. Thomas. It was to be expected that a defense would be put in for the Elgin family compact, but Mr. Ingram might have allowed someone else to formu-

The Montreal Herald becomes rejuvenated with the spring. Its new management is hustling it to the front rank of morning papers. In addition to a fine new dress of clear type, it is printed from a fast web perfecting press, specially built for it. There is room and there should be generous public patronage for a good independent Liberal newspaper in Montreal, and that the Herald has been in the past, and will doubtless be in the future, but with in-creased capacity to serve the advertising as well as the reading public.

The only excuse given for compelling one third of the citizens to vote in the sounty, while the village of London West, a portion of London township, is gerrymunicipally. In other words, the apologist for the deal would have us believe that s vote in the city will influence the property owners over the river to become a part o the city. This is a most verdant assumption. The Loudon West electors tre shrewd enough to look after their own municipal interests, and we may rest assured that when they resolve to cast their lot with the city it will be after consideration of a basis of agreement on its merits, and entirely apart from the sharp tricks of self-seeking politicians.

Citizens of London, reflect on this "measure of justice" which is attempted under the Gerrymander Act of Sir John Thompson: London, 32,000 population, on e member.

CONCEIVED IN INIQUITY AND NUR-TURED IN SHAME.

The Ottawa correspondent of the Toronto lelegram (Independent Conservative) tele-"Old Parliamentary hands, who are com petent to look upon matters with unpreju-diced eye, claim that this is the worst gerrymander ever known in the history of Canada. This is an unprejudiced opinion. Of course, newspaper writers who palliate the sins of partisan judges and see nothing wrong in depriving the people of their rights by the agency of a seat steal, recognize only that which is "fair and equitable" in this atrocious attempt to defeat the popular will by establishing constituencies on a chain lightning basis without regard to county boundaries.

The color blindness of these men is truly lamentable. But, as Principal Grant says, they might just as well defend Sodom. The independent elector will be forced to the conclusion that there is something radically wrong with the party that has to resort to expedients so unwarrantable. Of the new measure, Hon, David Mills says:

"It is the most dishonest measure that has ever been submitted to Parliament. It violates every principle of popular representation. A proper equalization of the inequalities in the present system would give a majority of the electors a majority of the representatives. This the Redistribution Bill does not do. At this moment the Conservatives have about two thirds of the Conservatives have about two-thirds of the Conservatives have about two-thirds of the members from Ontario, and yet they have received a minority of the whole vote. The population of Ontario west of the meridian of Toronto was not given due representation by the Redistribution Bill of 1882. The present bill makes that wrong greater. The rearrangement of the constituencies is based upon the relative strength and weakness of the Government throughout all parts of the Dominion. The Province of Prince Edward Island is divided in such a way that according to the voted Province of Prince Edward Island is divided in such a way that according to the vote of last session the minority will return three out of the five members. This is not legislation. It is revolution. Ministers are putting in jeopardy representative institutions and our entire system of constitutional government. It remains to be seen whether the Governor-General, as the representative of the Crown and trustee for the nation, will not interpose his for the nation, will not interpose his authority to save the Dominion from the grave perils which are showing themselves in the present action of the Government."

Can anyone, for example, defend the tactics which decree that North Brant shall e a constituency beginning at the borders of Hamilton and continued, about a township in breadth, through several counties up to the middle of Oxford? While the Niagara constituencies are juggled so as to "hive" Liberal majorities of between 2,000 and 3,000 in the two constituencies of Lincoln and North Brant, and county lines are ruthlessly disregarded, under an excuse that it is all gone about to equalize the constituencies, what do we find? Much smaller constituencies in Eastern Ontario entirely left alone. Two members are taken from Western Ontario, though or taken from Western Ontario, though it is already under-represented, and Eastern Ontario, with a surplus of representa-tives, is left untouched. Why? Be-cause the Niagara Peninsula has been declaring for trade freedom, whereas the small constituencies in Eastern Ontario are represented by Conservatives. Because two of the constituencies in the Niagara Peninsula have a population of under 16,000, it is thought necessary to wipe out two seats, and "hive the Grits," so as to make a substantial gain for their opponents. In over-represented Eastern Ontario, we find pocket constituencies like Leeds and Grenville, with a population given in the last blue book as 13,523, Frontenac with 13,445, Grenville with 12, 931, Brockville with 15,855, and several other contiguous seats left untouched. They could have been re-arranged much more easily and with far greater fairness than has been the Niagara Peninsula, but it is not equalization of constituencies that Slr John Thompson and his associates desire. They want to "load the dice," and whereever possible, compel hitherto Liberal constituencies to indorse the acts of those to whom the majority is conscientiously op-posed. Hence the Niagara Peninsula is carved up and pitched around till the con-stituencies do not know themselves, while a group of over-represented constituen-cies like Brockville, Dundas, Frontenac, Kingston, North and South Lanark, astern counties have remained tied up to the combines. Hence the reduction in the representation of the West. The same course has been adopted in Quebec Province. An Ottawa correspondent informs us that there is no pretense at equalization of the Quebec constituencies on the basis of representation by popula-tion. Sir John Thompson has not altered the state of Vaudreuil, Soulanges or the dozen other Conservative constituencies whose population is below the average, but he has deliberately entered the region of counties south of the St. Lawrence largely represented by Liberals and gerrymandered right and left. Two constituencies, Ver-cheres and Napierville, have been wiped out of existence, and a dozen other counties have been so cut up and mutilated as to be troubles in the future. It reasonable reform, and should be carried, in spite of the opposition of Mr. Foster, Minister of Finance. The Government, it seems, admits the advantage of having a representative, but asserts that the scheme is impracticable. We can see nothing impracticable in it. It is much more necessary to have a man of standing at Washington than to have an agent in Paris, France, an arrangement which existed for years. The debate was adjourned on the motion of Sir John Thomp-

Since last November the British military, with their families, and persons connected with the British navy, have been permitted to visit this fine lookout. With them cleanliness is the object sought for, and the etiquette of the bathroom differs from the etiquette of the parlor. With Europeans, he says, the attitude of waltzers, is only permitted when the music is played. It is something like this with the Japanese bathers. When the necessary operation of washing or doing other work requires it to strip becomes a duty. On the other hand, a Japanese woman would scorn to appear decollete. To her eye our ball rooms are an astonishment, and the exposure of the person for display is incomprehensible. This writer thinks that the Japanese are not excelled by their Western brethren in modesty.

The reports as to the progress of the surveys for the proposed Pan-American railroad through Ecuador are of unusual inter-Thompson:

When before the electors of West Middlesex, immediately prior to last Dominion general election, Dr. Roome solemnly bledged himself to support the movement because the support the movement of Justice that in the redistribution of seats in the House of Commons consequent upon the result of the cenus the Government had determined to alter the territorial boundaries of this electrial district, has not taken the electors by surprise, but has caused the utmost indignation. No substantial reason was given by the Minister for interfering with a constituency like Lincoln and Niagara. It was argued the propulation of seats in the House of Commons consequent upon the result of the cenus the Government had determined to alter the territorial boundaries of this electrial district, has not taken the result of the cenus the Government had determined to alter the territorial boundaries of this electrial district, has not taken the result of the cenus the Government had determined to alter the territorial boundaries of this electrial district, has not taken the result of the cenus the Government had determined to alter the territorial boundaries of this electors by surprise, but has caused the utmost indignation. We are informed that Mr. Hutchins, who managed to squeeze in for North Middlesex by a fluke, and Mr. Marshall, the member for East Middlesex, also promised to support the movement to obtain free binder twine. There is much indignation in the county, because all three voted in favor of the continuance of the twine tax in the House the other day. Men who are as tited up by the influence of the combines that they are ready to betray their constituents can honestly be held to have for feited the confidence of the electorate.

CANADA AT WASHINGTON.

Mr. Laurier warmly supported Mr. McCartby's motion to send a Canadian to Washington to look after Canadian business there in conjunction with the British Minister. It is an ascertained fact that in the past Canadian interests have been misunderstood, neglected, sacrificed through red tape at Washington. Mr. McCartby's motion would do much to prevent such troubles in the future. It is a reasonable reform, and should be it belongs as a county, and adding it to

For Months a Hermit Almost Within Hearing of a Great City.

New York, May 2.—An isolated pavilion on North Brother Island, 200 yards from the nearest building where human beings live, had been for eight months the lonely habitation of Tsang Ding, the leper. On Friday night he died of disorders arising from leprosy.

Tsang Ding eight months ago was a prosperous man in the Chinese quarter. He was 33 years old, owned two groceries, and lived at 57 Mott street. A rumor arose that he was a leper. It reached the Board of Health, and on Aug. 16 the unfortunate man was taken to North Brother Island, together with Ong Moy Toy, a Chinese gambler, who was also found to be a leper. Ong Moy Toy found means to get back to China, and, as the disease in him was not so virulent as in Tsang's case, he was allowed to leave the island on his promise to return at once to China.

Tsang Ding lived all alone at North Brother Island after that. A small part of the island was set apart for him to walk about in, but he was forbidden to approach anyone or converse with anyone but the doctors and the attendants who brought him his meals. Almost within hearing distance of a great city he was as isolated as a hermit in a desert. Up to the last Tsang

When the warm days came he would sit in the sun with his face turned eastware, watching the vessels as they went by. He died alone, but for the doctor and his attendant. All the things he used will be burned, and Tsang Ding will be buried in the place where he passed the lonely eight months. the lonely eight months.

A CLOSE RELATION.

A Wonderful Sympathy Between the Two!

Few people know that a close relation-a wonderful sympathy—exists between the great nervous system and the organs of assimilation. Mental worry and distraction assimilation. Mental worry and distraction is very destructive to perfect digestion. The brain and bowels soon become equally sluggish, and the terrible troubles that ensue through diseases of the digestive organism, and those of a nervous character, soon make life a heavy burden.

A broken-down nervous system has a tremendous influence on the stomach, and

A broken-down nervous system has a tremendous influence on the stomach, and soon produces derangement of the liver. A weak, nervous organism produces troubles of the heart and kidney disease. The nervous system is the great ruler over all parts of the body.

If our people more thoroughlyunderstood these great and important truths, we would see less suffering and disease around us. There is, however, room for thankfallness and joy. Our Canadian people have found that there is now a highway opened up to the land of health by the use of Paine's Celery Compound—a remedy specially prepared for the strenthening of the great nervous system. This Paine's Celery Compound has proved itself to be the only true nerve medicine ever placed before mankind. The troubles of our time, such as sleeplessness, irritability, morbidness, dayspepsia, indigestion, weakness, neuragia and rheumatism—all resulting from a deranged nervous system—are easily and quickly cured by the great modern remedy. The blessings and good wrought by Paine's Celery Compound are not confined to one section of Canada; every part of the Dominion has felt its power.

London's Humiliation.

London Seath and London East have been ricorreprated into London since 1881.

London West is an incorporated village. Yet the new gerrymander transfers London West from East Middlesex to London for electoral purposes, and leaves London South and London East in the rural riding. That is to say, the new Redistribution Bill takes a city, draws a line up the center of some of its streets, and says that the people on one side of that line shall vote in one riding, the people on the other side in another riding. And after thus excluding several hundred citizens from the right of voting with their fellows, it takes several hundred people living in a distinctly separate with their fellows, it takes several hundred people living in a distinctly separate municipality, and orders them to vote in the city. The unwritten law of fair play and justice commands that in redistributing the constituencies municipal boundaries shall be considered, so that voters with community of interest may act together. The Dominion gerrymanderers have systematically violated this law, but in no case more flagrantly than when they in no case more flagrantly than when they take from London that which belongs to her and give to her that which is not hers.

LONDON AND PORT STANLEY. The Act Giving Lendon Better Centrol Passed in Committee of Par-liament.

[Special to the Advertiser.]
Before the Railway Committee this morning the bill respecting the London and Port Stanley Railroad was considered. Large deputations were present from both London and St. Thomas. The London deputation succeeded in getting the bill passed in the shape the London City Council had amended and approved it. The preambles and clauses 1, 2 and 3 were passed. Clauses 4 and 5 were cu out, and clause 6 became clause 4. An adout, and clause 6 became clause 4. An additional clause was inserted, as suggested by the London Council, "that nothing herein contained shall set aside the rights or priorities of the holders of the bonds and debentures of the company, as such, in respect of the rights and properties of the company, which shall remains as if the act had not been passed."

The St. Thomas deputation asked for an amendment to be put in stipulating that the granting of car shops should not be a consideration in making any new lease. They asked also that London should not have preferential rates. Both were said to have preferential rates. Both were said to have preferential races. Both were said to be unnecessary, because the common law prevented one and the Railway Act covered the other point. It was shown that the St. Thomas people stand in no worse posi-tion by the act than before.

The Attack on Fort Sumpter Described by the Man Who Fired It.

Major Wade Hampton Gibbes, a prominent citizen of Columbia, S. C., may be put upon record for having made the following statement regarding the firing of the first shot of the war.

"On the "night of April 11, Capt. George S. James, who commanded the artillery company stationed at Fort Johnson, was instructed to have a shell exploded at 4:30 the next morning, which was to be the signal for a general bombardment. I, as first lleutenant in command of the battery of ten-inch mortars, was intrusted with this duty. Our mortars were loaded and trained, one with full charge, directly on the fortress, the other, according to instructions, to explode high in the air and wide of the mark, only as a signal, Corp. Welch with one lanyard in hand and I with the other anxiously awaiting the moment and watching our timepiece. As the hand marked the half-hour the shell was thrown high in the air, a beautiful sight, as the whole line could be traced by the burning fuse. Immediately our mine was sprung to destroy a house which interfered with our view, and then the sum which was trained upon the fort, and was intended for business, was discharged, all within one minute. Lieut, Henry L. Farley, with Capt. James, commanded a second battery of mortars, and Lieut, Hayne, a detachment of reserves. These are absolute facts, and the two shells from my battery were the first two shots of the siege. "Has Rob Dow come back?" I called out after I had started. "Whaur frae?" she replied; and then I

"Whaur frae?" she replied; and then I remembered that all these things had happened while Nanny was at Tilliedrum. In this lite some of the seven ages are spread over two decades, and others pass as quickly as a stage-play. Though a fifth of a season's rain had fallen in a night and a day, it had scarcely kept pace with Gavin. I hurried to the town by the Roads. That brae was as deserted as the country roads, except where children had escaped from their mothers to wade in it. Here and there dams were keeping the water away from one door to send it with greater volume to another, and at points the ground volume to another, and at points the ground and fallen in. But this I noticed without had fallen in. But this I noticed without interest. I did not even realize that I was notding my head painfully to the side where it had been blown by the wind and glued by the rain. I have never held my head straight since that journey.

Only a few looms were going, their peddles in water. I was addressed from sevral doors and windows; once by Charles Will.

"Dinna pretend," he said, "that you've walked in fra the school-house alan!" The walked in fra the school-house alan!" The rain chased me into this house yestreen, and here it's keeped me, though I bide no further awa than Tiliyloss. "Charles," I said in a low voice, "why is the Auld Licht bell ringing?" "Hee you no heard about Mr. Dishart?" he asked, "Oh man! that's Lang Tammas in the kirk by himsel' tearing at the bell to bring the folk thegither to depose the minister."

Instead of going to Whamond's house in Instead of going to Whamond's house in the School-wynd I hastened down the Enker's close to the kirk, and had almost to turn back, so choked was the close with floating refuse. I could see the bell swaying, but the kirk was locked, and I battered on its door to no purpose. Then remembering that Hendry Munn lived in Cout's trance, I set off for the house. He saw me crossing the square, but would not open his door until I was close to it.

"When I open," he cried, "squeeze through quick;" but though I did his bidding a rush of water darted in before me.

he said, "it was surprise enough to cure

"Hendry," I replied instantly, "why is the Auld Licht beil ringing?"
He put his finger to his iib. "I see," he said imperturbably, "you've met our folk in the glen and heard fra them about the minister."

"What folk?"
"Mair than half the congregation," he replied, "started for Glen Quharity twa hours syne to help the farmers. You didna as well tell mea?"

"Lick away at the bone you hae," the cobbler replied heartlessly, and conducted me to his room up one of the few inside stairs then in Thrums. Hendry's oddest furniture was five boxes fixed to the wall at such a height that children could climb into them from a high stool. In these his bairns slept, and so space was conomized. I could never laugh at the arrangement, as I knew that Betty had planned it on her death-bed for her man's sake. Five little heads bobbed up in their beds as I entered, but more vexing to me was Wearywarld on a stool.

'In by, dominie," he said sociably. "Sal, you needna fear burning wi' a' that water on you, You're in mair danger, o' coming a-boil."

"I want to speak to you alone, Hendry,"

"I want to speak to you alone, Hendry." I said bluntly.

"You winna put me out, Hendry?" the alarmed policeman entreated, "Mind, you said in sic weather you would be friendly to a brute beast. Ay, sy, dominie, what's your news? It's welcome, be it good or bad. You would meet the townsfolk in the glen, and they would tell you about Mr. Dishart. What, you hinna heard? Oh, sirs, he's a lost man. There would habeen a meeting the day to despose him if so many hadna gaen to the glen. But the morn'il do as well. The very women is cursing him, and the laddies have begun to gather stones. He's married on an Egyp.

"Hendry!" I cried, like one fgiving an order.

"Wearywarld, step!" said Hendry, sternly, and then added soft-heartedly. "Here's a bit news that'll open Mysy Moncur's door to you. You can tell her fra me that the bell's ringing just because I forgot to tie it up last nicht, and the wind's shaking it, and I winna gang out in the rain to stop it."

"Ay," the policeman said, looking at me sulkily, "she may open her door for that, but it'll no let me in. Tell me mair. Tell me what he leddy at the manse is."

"Out you go," answered Hendry.

came back to me saying, "It was best to tell him the truth to keep him fra making

"But is it the truth? I was told Lang Tammas—"
"Ay, I ken that story; but Tammas has other work on hand."
"Then tie up the bell at once, Hendry,"

"Then the up the ben at once, Henny, I urged.
"I canna," he answered gravely. "Tammas took the keys o' the kirk fra me yestreen and winna gi'e them up. He says the beli's bein rung by the hand o' God."
"Has he been at the manse? Does Mrs. Dishark know—"

"Every use," I said.
"None," a nawered Hendry, sadly.
"Dominie, the minister was married to the Egyptian on the hill last nicht, and Tammas was witness. Not only were they married, but they're run aff together."

"You are wrong, Hendry," I assured him telling as much as I dared. "I left "What! But if that is so, how do no "What! But if that is so, how do no no come back wi' you?"

"Because he was nearly drowned in the flood."
"She'll be wi' him?"
"He was alone."
Hendry's face lit up dimly with joy, and then he shook his head. "Tammas was witness," he said. "Can you deny the marriage?"
"All Jask of you." I appeared gravited!"

"All I ask of you." I answered guardedly,

"There can be nothing done, at any rate," he said, "till the folk themselves come back frac the glen, and I needua tell you how glad we would a' be to be as fond o' him as ever. But Tammas was witness." "Have pity on his mother, man."

"We've done the best for her we could," he replied. "We've prigged wi' Tammas no to gang to the manse till we was sure the minister was living. "For if he has been drowned," we said, "his mother need never ken what we were thinking o' doing." Ay, and were sorry for the young leddy, "What young lady is this you all talk of?" I asked.

"What young lady is this you all talk of?" I asked.

"She's his intended. Ay, you needna start. She has come a' the road fra Glasgow to challenge him about the gypsy. The pitiful thing is that Mrs. Dishart lauched awa her fears, and now they're baith waiting for his return as happy as ignorance can make them."

"There is no such lady," I said.
"But there is," he answered doggedly, "for she came in a machine late last nicht, and I was ane o' a dezen that baith heard and saw it frae my window. It stopped at the manse near half an hour. What's mair, the lady hersel' was at Sam's Farquharson's in the Tenements the day for twa hours."

I listened in bewilderment and fear.

Sam'l's bairn's down wi' scarlet fever and like to die, and him being a widow man he has gone useless. You manna blame the wives in the Tenements for hauding back. They're flied to smit their ain lithins, and as it happened Sam'l's is a' aff to the glen. Weel, he ran greeting to the manse for Mr. Dishart, and the lady heard him evities to Lay.

"No. They must have been on the other side of the river." Again that question forced my lips. "Why is the bell ringing?"

"Canny, dominie," he said, "till we're up the stair. Mysy Moneur's lug's at her keyhole listening to you."

"You lie, Hendry Muun," cried an invisible woman. The voice became more plaintive: "I ken a heap, Hondry, so you may as well tell me a."

"Lick away as the hone, you has." the "Lick away as the hone, we have "the limit of the stair way as the hone, we have "the limit of the stair. When the limit of the stair way as the hone, we have "the limit of the stair way as the hone you has."

I set off for the Tenements at once, declining Hendry's company. The wind had fallen, so that the bell no longer rang, but the rain was falling dogsedly. The streets were still deserted. I pushed open the precentor's door in the School-wynd, but there was no one in the house. Tibbie Birse saw me, and shouted from her door—

The Name Which Is Above Every Name.

ful the Greatest and Most

BROOKLYN, N. Y., May 1 .- This morn

BROOKLYN, N. Y., May 1.—This morning Dr. Talmage discoursed from the text Philippians ii., 9: "The name which is above every name."

Paul is here making rapturous and enthusiastic description of the name of Christ. It is an easy name. Sometimes you forget the name of a quite familiar friend, and you have to think and think before you get it; but can you imagine any freak of intellect by which you should forget the name of Jesus? That word seems to fit the tongue in every dialect. Down to old age, when the voice is tremulous, and uncertain, and indistinct, even then this regal word finds potent utterance.

age, when the voice is tremulous, and uncertain, and indistinct, even then this regal word finds potent utterance.

As we cannot disassociate a name from the character of the person who has the name, that consideration makes the name of Jesus unspeakably beautiful. I cannot pronounce that name in your presence but you think of Bethlehem and Gethsemane and Golgotha, and you see his loving face and you hear his tender voice, and you feel his gentle touch. As soon as I pronounce his name in your presence you think of him who banqueted with heavenly hierarchs, yet came down and breakfasted on the fish which the rough men hauled out of Genesaret; you think of him who though the clouds are the dust of his feet, walked footsore on the road to Emmaus. I cannot speak his name in your hearing this morning, but you think right away of the shining one who helped the blind man to sunlight, and who made the cripple's crutch useless, and who looked down into the laughing eyes of the babe until it struggled to go to him; then flinging his arms around it, and impressing a kiss upon its beautiful brow, said, "Of such is the kingdom of heaven."

Oh, beautiful name, the name of Jesus, which stands for love, for patience, for self-sacrifice, for magnanimity, for everything that is good and glorious and tender and sympathetic and kind! It is aromatic with all harmonies. Sometimes, when I look at that name of Jesus Christ, it seems as if the letters were made of tears, and the they seem to be gleaming crowns. Someharmonies. Sometimes, when I look at that name of Jesus Christ, it seems as if the letters were made of tears, and then they seem to be gleaming crowns. Sometimes that name seems to be twisted out of the straw on which he lay, and then it seems to be built out of the thrones on which his people are to reign. Sometimes I sound that word Jesus, and I hear it in the sob of Gethsemane and the groun of Calvary, and then I speak his name and it is all a-ripple with gladness and a-ring with hosanna. Glorious name!

Take all the glories of bookbindery and put them around the page on which that name is printed. On Christmas morning wreath is on the wall. Let it drip from harp's string and let it thunder out in organ's diapason. Sound it often, sound it well, until every star shall seem to shine it, and every flower shall seem to breathe it, and mountain and sea, and day and night, and earth and heaven acclaim in full chant. "Blessed be his glorious name forever." "The name which is above every name."

Have you ever heard in a Methodist church, during a time of revival, a scores of souls come to the altar and ery out for mercy under the power of just two lines of glorious old John Wesley?

mercy under the power of just two lines of glorious old John Wesley?

Jesus, the name high overall, In heaven, or earth, or sky.

To the repenting soul, to the exhausted invalid, to the Sunday school girl, to the snow-white octogenarian, it is beautiful. The aged man comes in from a long walk, and he tremulously opens the door of his home, and he hangs his hat on the old nail, and puts his cane in the usual place, and he lies on his couch, and he says to his children and his grandchildren: "My dears, I am going away from you." And they say: "Why, where are you going grand-tather?" "Oh," he says, "I am going to Josus;" and so the old man faints away into heaven.

And the little child comes in from play and she flings herself in your lap, and she says, "Mamma, I'm so sick, I'm so very sick;" and you put her to bed, and the fever is worse and worse, and some midnight while you are shaking up the pillow and giving the medicine she looks up in your face and says, "Mamma, I'm going away from you." You say, "Why, where are you going, my darling?" And she says, I am going to Jesus." And the red cheek that you take to be the mark of the fever turns out to be only the carnation bloom of heaven.

in the Tenements for hauding back. Also, to flied to smit their ain littline, and as it happened Saml's is a' aff to the glen. Weel, he ran greeting to the manse for Mr. Dishart, and the lady heard him crying to Jean through the door, and what does she do but gang straucht to the Tenements wi' Sam'!. Her goodness has naturally put the folk on her side against the minister."

'This does not prove her his intended," I broke in.

'She was heard saying to Sam'!."

answered the kirk-officer, "that the minister being awa it was her duty to take his place. Yes, and though he little kent it, he was already married."

'Hendry," I said, rising, "I must see this lady at once. Is she still at Farquharson's house?"

It is a beautiful when a little deprivation of the dying girl said: "I'm going to Jesus." Then said the little girl that was well, as the dying girl said: "Where are you going to Jesus," Then said the little girl that was well, as the dying girl said: "Well, then, if you are going to Jesus, give my love to him." It is a beautiful name, whether on the lips of childhood or on the lips of the lold man.

are going to Jesus, give my love to him." It is a beautiful name, whether on the lips of childhood or on the lips of the old man. When my father was dying the village minister said to him, quoting over his pillow this passage: "This is a faithful saying and worthy of all acceptation, that Christ Jesus came into the world to save sinners," and there he stopped, Then my father finished the quotation by saying: "Of whom I am chief."

But I remark again, in regard to this name of Christ, that it is a mighty name.

I have seen a man bound hand and foot of the devil and captive of all evil habits, at the sound of that name dash down his shackles and march out forever free. I have seen a man overcome of misfortune and trial, every kind of troubles had he; but at the sound of that name the sead ropped and the clouds parted, and the sunburst of eternal gladness poured upon his soul. I have seen a man hardened in infidelity, defiant of God, full of jeer and scoff, jocose of the judgment day, reckless of eternity, at the sound of that name blanch, and cower, and groan, and kneel, and weep, and repent, and recipies an groan, and kneel, and weep, and repent and pray, and believe, and rejoice, and triumph.

But I remark again, the name of Christ is an enduring name. You get over the fence of the graveyard and you pull the weeds back from the name that has nearly faded from the tombstone, and you wish that Walter Scott's "Old Mortality" would come along and rechisel it so that you might really find out what the name is. Shall the emancipated bondman ever forget who set him free? Shall the blind man ever forget the set him free? Shall the blind man ever forget who be thim free? Shall the blind man ever forget who brought them home? Why, to make the world forget that name would be to burn up all the Bibles and burn down all the churches, and then, in the spirit of universal arson, go through the gate of heaven and put the torich to all the temples and mansions and palaces, until in the swful confagration all heaven went down and the people come out to look upon the charred ruins; but even then they would hear the name of Christin the thunder of falling towers and But I remark again, the name of Christ in the crash of temple walls, and see it in-terwoven into the flying banners of flame, and the redeemed of heaven would say: "Let the temples and the palaces burn; let them burn. We have Jesus left." Blessed

"Let the temples and the palaces burn; let them burn. We have Jesus left." Blessed be his glorious name forever. The name which is above every name.

My friends, have you made up your mind by what name you will accost Christ when you see him in heaven? Now, that is a practical question. For you will see him, child of God, just as certainly as you sit there and I stand here.

I am staggered with the thought that there may be persons in this house for whom this name has no charm though it is so easy, though it is so beautiful, though it is so potent, though it is so enduring. Oh! come to-day, and see whether there is anything in Christ. I challenge you to test with me this morning whether God is good, and whether Christ it precious, and whether the Holy Ghost is omnipotent. Come, my brother, I challenge you. Come, and we will kneel at the altar of mercy. You kneel en one side of the altar and I will kneel on the other side of the altar of mercy, and we will not get up from one heaves will not get up from one heaves will not get up from one. side of the altar of mercy, and we will not get up from our knees until our sins are pardoned and we are able to ascribe all honor to the name—you pronouncing it and I pronouncing it—"the name which is above every name."

Solomon wasn't in it when he declared that the "borrower is servant to the lender." Everyone who has tried it knows the lender has to wait on the borrower. London is kicking because one third of its population is tacked to the county by the gerrymander. The city is big enough for two members; but the Government dare not do it justice by putting it on a level with Hamilton and Ottawa. The Weekly Telephone of Milton, Rock county, Wisconsin, says: "Mrs. E. L. Spence returned from Chicago Monday evening, to which place she had been called by the serious illness of her father, Mr. William DeVinny, who died on Friday afternoon last of a paralytic stroke after a very brief illness. The funeral services took place Sunday afternoon, and he was buried in Oakwood Cemetery beside his wife, lately deceased. He was 75 years old, and during the last few years of his life was a great sufferer from rheumatism. Extraordinary Arguments.

According to Mr. Monerieff, Judge Elliot had a perfect right to act as one of Mr. Care had a periest right to act as one of Mr. Carling's partisans during the recent election campaign in London. The member for East Lambton argues that a judge has a perfect right to announce what his decision is to be in a particular case before he has heard either evidence or argument, and that he is acting quite properly when he contributes articles to a Tory newspaper discussing the merits of issues upon which he must afterwards pass judgment; that, in short, a judge's usefulness is not in the least impaired because he chooses to become an active election heeler for one of the political parties. This is how the Conservatives propose to uphold the dignity and inhad a perfect right to act as one of Mr. Car parties. This is how the Conservatives propose to uphold the dignity and integrity of the bench. If our judges are to be allowed to become political partisans and to publicly avow themselves as such, then the American system of electing judges, and thus making those functionaries directly responsible for their conduct to the people of the districts in which they administer justice, is preferable to the practice at present in vogue in Canada—under which Ministers from Nova Scotia, New Brunswick and Quebec are able to pitchfork political partisans upon the bench of this Province, and Ontario Ministers have a voice in the election of judges for other Provinces.—[Ottawa Free Press.
